KNOCKERS BUSY

Yuan Shi Kai's Reform Plan Repealed By Empress.

Her Solicitude For the Poor People Most Amusing.

Pekin, April 13.—The dowager empress has issued an edict repealing the comprehensive stamp taxation schedule which Yuan Shi Kai, governor of the province of Chi Li, was about to inaugurate throughout his province. The edict assigns the poverty of the people as the reason for the repeal, but it is believed that Yuan Shi Kai's enemies procured it for the purpose of crippling his proposed reforms. One of the contemplated effects of the proposed plan would have been to secure honest returns of taxes collected and to deprive minor officials of large perquisites. The degree of the dowager empress' solicitude of the poor people is evinced by the costly junket she is taking.

The court will return from its visit to the western towns Wednesday and will sojourn at the hunting park. A short railroad is being built between the main line and the park to convey the crown princess of Bavaria, Maria Theresa, who is visiting Pekin, to the park for an audience with the dowager empress.

THE DETAILS OF TREATY

Between Cuba and United States Presented to Palma.

Havana, April 13.—Minister Squiers today outlined to President Palma and Foreign Secretary Zaldo, the details of the permanent treaty between Cuba and the United States in accordance with the propositions prepared at Washington. The Cuban government will not permit the publication of the terms at the present stage of the negotiations. The naval stations agreement, the ratification of which is now pending in the senate, will not be re-opened, but it is understood that the ownership of the stations is covered in the treaty in addition to the Isle of Pines and the Platt amendment features. There is no doubt that a permanent treaty will be concluded soon on the lines proposed at Washington.

STARTLED THE CONGREGATION

Child Runs Into Church and Tells of Murder.

St. Paul, April 13.—A Clinton, Iowa, special to the Dispatch says: While temporarily deranged, Frank Hush, of Erie, Ill., ten miles east of here, shot and killed his wife while on the way to church, then returned home and killed himself. Their little daughter startled the congregation by running into church and telling of the tragedy. The body of the woman was found near the building, and the remains of her slayer were found in the house, where he had gone after emptying the contents of his revolver into the body of his wife. They were about 35 years old and leave two children.

MAS NEED NOT TELL

What Woman He Had With Him at Hotel.

New York, April 13.—Justice Blanchard today decided that Lucien Mas, a witness in the Fair will case, need not answer certain questions that were asked him in the hearing before Referee Keenan. Mas, in the hearing before the referee, was asked who was with him and at what hotel he stopped the night before the accident. He replied that he was with a woman, but refused to give her name or tell the name of the hotel they were at, on the ground that as he was a married man, the answer would tend to degrade and incriminate him.

Justice Blanchard decided that the question was immaterial, incompetent and not necessary to the action.

STEEL MAINMAST

Of the Reliance Has Been Successfully Stepped.

Bristol, R. I., April 13.—The steel mainmast of the Reliance was successfully stepped today and the work of rigging was gotten well under way. The heavy mast forced the Reliance down in the water several inches forward, giving her a more even trim than she possessed while her deck was bare. The riggers at once began connecting the shrouds and headstays. It is thought the work will be completed in the course of a week.

MURDER AND SUICIDE.

Holyoke, Mass., April 13.—Narcisse Gague, aged 38, while insane killed his wife at his home last night and cut his own throat. He is likely to die. The man had recently been acting strangely. It is thought that he became angry with his wife for some reason and struck her with a flat iron, breaking her skull, and then cut his throat with a bread knife.

KING SAILS FOR MALTA.

Gibraltar, April 13.—The British royal yacht Victoria and Albert, with King Edward on board, escorted by six cruisers, sailed for Malta today.

BOUND FOR THE WEDDING.

New York, April 13.—A special train of four private cars and a Pullman carrying guests for the Vanderbilt-Nelson wedding at Newport, R. I., tomorrow, left here today.

BILLS KILLED BY THE HOUSE

State Immigration Board Bill Defeated.

Measure Against Election Grafting Beaten.

FROM A STAFF CORRESPONDENT

St. Paul, April 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—The house was in a destructive mood this morning, and it killed the first two bills on the calendar. One was that by Mr. Oleson of North Branch, creating a state immigration board and the office of immigration commissioner. This got only 45 votes where it needed 60, and there were 43 against it. Mr. Hugo, of Duluth, changed his vote to no and gave notice that he would move for a reconsideration of the vote by which the bill was lost.

The other bill was that by Mr. Shephard, of Minneapolis, designed to do away with election grafting of all sorts. It provided that no person or association should ask or receive any aid of any sort from a candidate for public office or from a public office. It was amended so as to provide that it should not apply to campaign committees and so as to make the punishment fine or imprisonment instead of only a fine, by Mr. Girling, but when the vote was taken it was defeated, getting only 57 votes to 33 against it, where it needed 60.

Finally the house got in a more genial mood and passed the bill by Ambrose Tighe, of St. Paul, abolishing all standing appropriations for state institutions, with an amendment by Mr. Deming, of Minneapolis, providing that the bill should not operate to repeal any law creating a special tax for any of the state institutions. Otherwise the house session, which was only an hour long, was devoid of interest.

W. I. Nolan moved a reconsideration of the vote by which his bill requiring contractors to build temporary floors in buildings under construction was defeated and the motion prevailed.

Mr. Erickson, of Yellow Medicine county, tried to get the general legislation committee's anti-bucket shop bill out of the committee on judiciary, but Mr. Armstrong, of the committee, explained that the committee had been tio ncommittee's anti-bucket shop bill soon, so Mr. Erickson's motion did not prevail.

Ambrose Tighe introduced a bill designed to control the use of cocaine by drug victims. It provides that nobody may sell cocaine except at retail, though wholesalers may sell to registered pharmacists and to no others. Nobody may sell any cocaine except on the written prescription of a duly licensed physician, and no prescription calling for cocaine can be filled a second time except on the written request of the physician making the prescription. The sale of patent medicines containing cocaine is regulated by a provision that they cannot be sold unless cating the fact that cocaine is one of their ingredients. Violation of any of these provisions is punished by a fine of $50 to $100, or thirty days to one year. Fines are to be equally divided between the state pharmacy board and the school fund of the county in which the conviction is made.

The senate this morning passed Dr. Budd's bill providing that school districts, townships and villages may, if they wish, provide their treasurers with surety bonds at public expense.

The Calhoun bill permitting co-insurance clauses in fire insurance policies was postponed by the senate.

In committee of the whole in the senate, the Armstrong bill requiring hotels to have either fire escapes or direct exits from each floor above the third to the ground was recommended to pass.

So was the bill by Hiler Horton of St. Paul designed to protect purchasers of coal by punishing light weight dealers. Provision is made for public scales where consumers can have their purchases weighed if they wish to make sure they are getting a full ton. The owners of the scale can charge 15 cents a ton. As originally drawn the bill applied only to cities over 50,000, but it was amended today to apply to cities over 10,000, and when it comes up on the calendar it will probably be amended to apply to cities over 3000.

The Deming house bill abolishing days of grace, except on sight drafts, was recommended to pass. So was the Wilson senate bill giving district judges their expenses while away from their home county on judicial business. Another Wilson senate bill giving physicians examining insane cases $5 and 15 cents mileage, and the Clague house bill allowing county attorneys for their postage, telephone and telegraph expenses were formally considered.

The Barker bill providing for cottages at the soldier's home for the wives and widows of veterans was recommended to pass. Both houses adjourned to afternoon.

The vote by which the anti-vaccination bill was killed in the senate Friday will come up again this afternoon or tomorrow, when a motion to reconsider it will be made in hopes of saving the bill.

STILLMAN H. BINGHAM.

EIGHTY SKELETONS WERE FOUND ON RENA CHRISTINA

Warship Sunk By Dewey, Raised at Manila, Revealed That Number of Her Crew—Fifteen Shell Holes Were Found In Her Hull.

Manila, April 13.—The warship Reina Christina, flagship of Admiral Montojo, which was sunk by Dewey in Manila bay, was floated and beached yesterday. The skeletons of about eighty of her crew were found in the hull. One skeleton evidently was that of an officer, for it had a sword by its side.

There are fifteen shell holes in the hull of the Reina Christina, one made by an 8-inch and the others smaller. The main injection valve is missing, showing the ship was scuttled when Admiral Montojo abandoned her. The hull is in fair condition.

Capt. Albert R. Couden, commanding the naval station at Cavite, took charge of the remains of the Spanish sailors, expressing a desire to give them an American naval funeral. The Spanish residents, however, are anxious to ship the skeletons to Spain, and it is suggested that the United States transport Sumner convey them to Spain by way of he Suez canal in June.

A wrecking company is endeavoring to raise all the sunken Spanish warships.

UNION MEN FORCIBLY TAKE NON-UNIONISTS FROM STEAMER

High Handed Proceeding By Striking Firemen at Buffalo—Board Steamer and Force Non-Union Men to Quit Work and Go With Them.

Buffalo, April 13.—Four non-union firemen who were forcibly taken from the steamer Mack, which arrived from Chicago late last night, were returned to the boat by the police today. Frank Blair, a fireman, who was reported missing, was found today having hid in the coal bunkers of the vessel. The names of the firemen have not been learned. No arrests have been made. The Mack had just passed the breakwater when a number of men in small boats were beside her. They climbed the fenders before the boat got into the Buffalo river and demanded that the non-union firemen be turned over to them. Capt. Hollingshead said the non-union firemen were under his protection and that they would not be taken from the boat. Before the Mack had been tied about forty union firemen, the captain says, swarmed over the rails of his boat and seized the firemen and carried them off. They were found later at the headquarters of the union, and upon demand of Capt. Hollingshead, who was accompanied by policemen, they were released. One of the men had been ill-treated by the unionists.

MUD DIGGERS GO OUT ON A STRIKE

Chicago, April 13.—Six hundred dredgemen went on a strike today, and all contract work on river and harbor improvements in Chicago and other Lake Michigan ports is tied up. The strike order was voted upon by 100 men at a meeting held yesterday and affected firemen, engineers and deck hands employed by the Chicago & Great Lakes Dredging company. The strike is said to have been precipitated by the company sending a dredge to Waukegan and attempting to operate it while refusing to pay the Chicago rate of wages.

DEFECTIVE GUN

Was Cause of Fatal Accident on Battleship Iowa.

Shell Was Seen to Strike Water Near Target.

Washington, April 13.—Admiral Higginson's report to the navy department upon the fatal explosion on the Iowa last week shows that a defective shell was not the cause. He says:

"I regret to inform the department of a sad accident which happened on board the Iowa, while at target practice today at 12:40 p. m. While on her third shot from the port forward twelve-inch gun, the muzzle blew off and the pieces from it penetrated the three decks underneath, killing three men and wounding four others. That portion of the ship was thoroughly wrecked. I have sent her to the navy yard for temporary repairs and burial of the dead, and I have to recommend that she be sent north for more permanent repairs. I enclose herewith a report from Capt. Perry, giving the names of the killed and wounded. It does not appear that this accident was caused by the bursting of the shell as some witnesses stated that they saw the shell strike near the target. The inner tube presents a fracture, but on none of the pieces, into which the muzzle of the gun broke up, are the grooves indented, or scored as in the case of a bursting shell. The gun, I am informed has been fired 127 times previous to the discharge in which the accident occurred."

Capt. Perry's letter attached, simply states the names of the victims of the explosion.

PAYNE HAS RETURNED

Has Nothing to Say Regarding the Postoffice Investigations.

Washington, April 13.—Postmaster General Payne returned to Washington today from his West Indian cruise with Secretary Moody and party. Mr. Payne's arrival was anticipated with much interest in view of the investigation of affairs of the postoffice department which has been in progress by his direction during his absence. Mr. Payne, however, had nothing to say regarding the investigation. In fact, he did not go to the department. Instead, he sent for Mr. Whitney, his private secretary, and spent his morning at his hotel, going over matters that have accumulated during his absence. The investigation, meantime, continues, and a large corps of picked postoffice inspectors, numbering about fifteen or twenty, are making a searching inquiry into the various phases of the investigation.

AGRICULTURE CONGRESS

Opened at Rome Before King and Queen.

Rome, April 13.—The international agriculture congress was inaugurated at the capitol today before King Victor Emmanuel and Queen Helena. About 1300 delegates were present. The American representatives, Dr. Daniel E. Salmon, chief of the United States bureau of animal industry, and Henry E. Alvord, chief of the dairy division of the United States department of agriculture, have not yet arrived. The marquis di Capelli, president of the congress, in his opening speech criticised the extra protectionists of certain American countries, and said he foresaw that their attitude would change with the increase of their population to the advantage of those of European countries.

GOVERNOR AFTER THEM.

Denver Fire and Police Boards Are In Trouble.

Denver, April 13.—Governor Peabody has notified the members of the fire and police boards of Denver to appear before him on Tuesday next to show cause why they should not be removed for alleged malfeasance and misfeasance in office. The particular charge for which they must stand trial is permitting gambling in the city in violation of the law.

REMAINS WITH WASHINGTON.

Denver, April 13.—In reply to the offer of President D. O. Packard of the Denver baseball team, offering him a position on the team, Ed Delehanty declines the offer for the reason, as he states, that he has made terms with the managers of the Washington team and will play this season for them. He did not state the nature of the compromise, but he said that there would be no more friction.

SNOW SPOILS HOLIDAY.

London, April 13.—Severe weather today spoiled the Easter bank holiday. It was bitterly cold, 9 degrees of frost being registered in many parts of the country early in the morning. This was followed by heavy snow storms through the North and Midlands, while some snow fell in London and even as far South as Dover.

BROKE HIS THIGH.

Toronto, April 13.—Sir Oliver Mowatt, lieutenant governor of Ontario, slipped in his bedroom and broke his thigh. He has been in feeble health for some time and the shock to his system will, it is feared, be serious.

DISCUSSED THE FAIR.

Berlin, April 13.—Emperor William yesterday received in audience Dr. Lewald, the commissioner of Germany to the St. Louis exposition, and discussed with him matters pertaining to the fair. The commissioner sails from Bremen for New York tomorrow on board the North German Lloyd steamer Kaiser Wilhelm II.

CLERKS ARE TURNING PINK

Have Been Experimenting With Boraxed Food.

Complexion Is Evidently Caused By Chemical.

Chicago, April 13.—A dispatch to the Tribune, dated Washington, says: The department clerks, who for several months have submitted to Dr. Wiley's borax cured food experiments, are slowly assuming a pink complexion. Dr. Wiley's food experiments are conducted with the strictest secrecy. A dozen or more young men connected with the deparament of agriculture have for several months been living on a diet prescribed by Dr. Wiley, who is seeking to determine the chemical effects of borax and other chemicals on prepared food.

It has only developed within the last week that all who have been at the doctor's table are taking on the pink complexion. It is not thought that this is due to borax, which has been given to the young men in their food, but to some chemical ingredient which has been mixed with the food unknown to the subjects.

The only admission that will be made at the department is that the drugs used in the food have, up to date, proved absolutely harmless. The pink complexion which some chemical evidently causes, gives the men a healthy appearance, as would result from good circulation of blood, brought on by outdoor exercise.

TALK ABOUT RACE SUICIDE IS NONSENSE, SAYS PENTECOST

New York Speaker Talks on President Roosevelt's Recent Utterances on the Subject and Pronounces Them Entirely Erroneous and Tells Why.

Chicago, April 13.—A dispatch to the Tribune from New York says: "President Roosevelt's Nonsense About Race Suicide" was announced as the title of an address by Hugh O. Pentecost in Lyric hall yesterday. Speaking of the president's recent utterances on "race suicide," Mr. Pentecost said: "The rabbit seems to be his ideal citizen."

In part Mr. Pentecost said: "The class of Roosevelt ideal citizen is one who is ready to work, fight, suffer and have children. He regards others as shirkers and criminals.

"To be married and have children, if you are intelligent and are sure of bringing your children into a desirable world, is well, but marriage and childbearing as it now goes on among the poor and ignorant is a crime against the race. As people become more intelligent they have fewer children, and I venture to say that after many people have had children grown, if they had the experience over again they would have none. So long as conditions remain as they are now it is foolish for working people to marry, and still more foolish for them to have children if they do marry, for every child born to them is a new little slave of mine or mill."

LAURIUM GIRL'S NARROW ESCAPE

Houghton, April 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Miss Redna Dahl, 13-year-old daughter of Jacob Dahl, of Laurium, narrowly escaped death by drowning in a deep pool while sightseeing about Houghton and Douglas Falls, near Lake Linden. She was standing on a high bank overlooking the pool, when a youngster, in trying to pass her, gave her a slight shove, sufficient to cause her to lose her balance and to plunge headlong into the water. Her friends stood speechless and helpless to aid the girl, who was being carried by the swift current to the brink of the falls, which are forty feet high. Henry Pascoe, of Laurium, who happened to be nearby, hastened down the embankment and caught the girl by he hair just as she was sinking for the third time. With the assistance of others who came to the rescue, Pascoe carried Miss Dahl to a place of safety, where she was resuscitated and taken home.

PACIFICO WAS NOT AT ALL PACIFIC

Hartford, Conn., April 13.—Dominick Pacifico, an Italian, 18 years old, shot three men in this city last night. Andrew Hallisey was shot in the abdomen and will probably die. Jeremiah Condron was shot in the top of the head. The bullet was extracted. Thomas Fitzgerald, who recently returned from the Philippines, grabbed the Italian and was shot in the shoulder. According to witnesses, Hallisey har an argument with an Italian, when Pacifico came along on a bicycle, jumped off and began shooting. He was found a half hour later hiding in a closet in a house near the scene of the shooting. He claims that four men attacked him. Richard Powers was arrested for knocking down a man who said he could identify the prisoner. Over 2000 people followed the prisoners to police headquarters and there was some talk of lynching the Italian.

P. O. OFFICIALS WILL BE ARRESTED

New York, April 13.—Investigation into the charge made against the Manhattan posoffice department is said to have advanced to the point that arrests will come. Secret service men have arrived here from Washington and joined the detectives who have been secretly pushing the inquiry for the past five days. The newcomers are under orders from First Assistant Postmaster General Wynn and a Washington dispatch says they were to hold themselves in readiness to make one or more arrests under quick advice. It is impossible to get any expression of opinion from prominent present or former officials. Postmaster Van Cott could not be seen and Assistant Postmaster Morgan simply said "Nothing new." It is estimated that if promotions were made in many instances at from $25 to $50 a head the "rake off" in New York alone amounted to $50,000 a fiscal year. The investigation started here is expected to spread to other cities.

USED HIS BIG SHEARS AS A WEAPON

St. Paul, April 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Leonard Chamberlain, a painter and paperhanger, is under arrest at the Rondo station, charged with stabbing his brother in law, Oscar Bracken, 23 years old, at Chamberlain's home, 13 Tilton street at 9 o'clock this morning. Bracken is at the city hospital with a severe wound in his abdomen and cuts on his face. His condition is regarded as serious and he may die.

Bracken works for Chamberlain and rooms with him. Sunday night he did not return until after midnight and with his younger brother was compelled to force his way into the house, the door being locked because of the lateness of the hour. This morning after breakfast, there was an altercation and Bracken says that he picked up a poker to defend himself. Then, according to Bracken's story, Chamberlain attacked him with a large pair of paperhangers' shears, inflicting the wounds on Bracken.

OLD HORSE TRAINER ILL.

New York, April 13.—Orrin Hickok, the trotting horse trainer and driver who has been ill for some months past is said to be near death in a sanitarium in Cleveland, Ohio. It was Hickok who drove St. Julien when he made his world's record of 2:11¼, for which event he trained the horse three years. Hickok received his education as a trainer and driver in California. He is about 70 years old.

PENSION INCREASED.

Washington, April 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—An increase of pension to $12 has been granted to John W. Cottrell, of Staples, Minn.

BOODLERS FEAR

The Investigation Being Made By Missouri Grand Juries.

Indictments For Perjury May Be Returned Before Bribery.

St. Louis, April 13.—The investigation of charges of boodling made in connection with baking powder legislation in the state legislature is being carried on today by grand juries in St. Louis and Jefferson City. Circuit Attorney Folk, under whose direction the St. Louis grand jury has been at work during the past week, has secured important information it is believed that will be made use of before the Jefferson City body, which resumed its sessions this morning. Mr. Folk and Attorney General Crow, who is taking care of the Jefferson City end of the investigation are working together and the fact that the evidence given before two grand juries is available for comparison, makes the situation serious for those who may not have told the truth. It is stated that perjury indictments may even be found before the return of actual bribery indictments.

Speaker White Cotton of the lower house of the legislature held a long conference with Mr. Folk yesterday and it is is understood he gave much valuable information to the officials. A number of important witnesses have been called by both bodies for examination today.

EXPEDITION SATISFACTORY

Jesup Knows Nothing About Alleged Russian Duplicity.

New York, April 13.—Morris K. Jesup, who provided the funds for the Jesup exposition to Northeast Asia for the purpose of studying the natives and gathering collections of their implements, said today that he was perfectly satisfied with the results of the expedition. He declared:

"What these stories amount to regarding obstacles placed in the path of the explorers by Russian officials I cannot say, but I know the expedition has been successful, for the collection is here now and being made ready for exhibition.

"When we first decided on making the exploration, the Russian government assisted us in every way. The emperor himself took a personal interest and ordered his officials to facilitate the work. Passports were cheerfully provided and the scientists began their labors auspiciously. The familiarity of these men with the country, natives and dialects fitted them for the work. The St. Petersburg Academy of Science co-operated, and every available means at its disposal was provided. The expedition accomplished its object and Messrs. Bogoroz and Jochelson are in New York making the collection ready for exhibition."

HE ADMIRES CORPSES.

Morbid Curiosity of Milwaukee Youth Is Punished.

Milwaukee, April 13.—Henry Freischmidt, twenty years old, Friday morning went to 520 Twentieth street, and, representing himself to be an undertaker, was admitted and viewed the body of Mrs. Eva Roberts, who had just died. He was discovered by the real undertaker, who had been sent for, and was turned over to the police, to whom he confessed that he had an insane desire to look at corpses.

The case was the first of its kind ever reported to the Milwaukee authorities, and as no provision is made by the statutes for the offense, it was necessary to take the offender into court on the charge of disorderly conduct. He was given the highest possible sentence, ninety days in the house of correction. The police say Freischmidt has for some time been hanging around undertaking establishments.

TOO MUCH WIND.

Spin of Shamrocks Abandoned on Account of Weather.

Weymouth, Eng., April 13.—The Shamrock I's spinnaker boom, which was carried away by a steam yacht which fouled the old cup challenger during the race with the Shamrock III off here Saturday, has been spliced, but it has been decided to postpone further contests under actual racing conditions between the two boats until a new spar can be fitted. A trial spin between the Shamrocks was arranged for today, but the weather conditions were so bad that it was decided to abandon the trial, owing to the risk of carrying away the challenger's spars.

GRAIN ELEVATOR BURNED.

Chicago Structure With Contents Destroyed By Fire.

Chicago, April 13.—A grain elevator owned by the Lake Shore & Michigan Southern company was destroyed by fire today. The elevator was used by Churchill & Co., grain merchants, and contained nearly its full capacity, 150,000 bushels. The fire was discovered in the third "leg," and spread rapidly. Fifteen men were employed in the structure, but all escaped. The elevator was valued at $75,000, fully insured by the railroad company. The calue of its contents is placed at $125,000.

IN MARINE CIRCLES

Union Men Claim Vessel Owners Are Coming Into Line.

Two More Tugs to Go Into Commission at Once.

"Between fifteen and twenty independent vessel owners at Buffalo and other lower lake ports have signed the union contract with the Firemen, Oilers and Watertenders' association," said William Jones, the agent of the union for the head of the lakes. "Among the companies which have signed are the Union line, Grand Trunk line, Soo line, Seither line and a number of other smaller companies.

"Out of the list of vessels which have arrived at Duluth this season the Luzon, Buell and Wyoming carried union crews and the Grammer, which cleared for Buffalo, also carried union men. The non-union firemen on the Van Hise and Maritana quit as soon as they reached port. Of the other boats which have left with non-union men the Watt, Gates and Poe are held up at Two Harbors waiting for men.

"The men that have been signed are not competent firemen, and the heavy northeaster which was blowing yesterday was too much for some of them, several cases of seasickness being reported.

"The Pittsburg Steamship company made the oilers an offer to pay them the union scale of wages, but they refused to go back until the trouble with the firemen and watertenders had been settled also.

"I believe the end of the strike is not far off. Several other owners are considering terms of settlement and the Pittsburg company can not afford to have its fleet held up much longer."

TWO MORE TUGS.

Excelsior and Inman Will Go Into Commission.

Two more tugs will go into commission this evening and tomorrow morning. The Excelsior and Inman have been fitted out and are ready to commence towing.

Capt. J. F. Byers will be in command of the Excelsior with Jacob Hiller, as engineer. The Inman will be commanded by Capt. William Burnett with James Walsh in charge of the engines.

The Carrington is being fitted out and will be added to the fleet within a few days.

The Dowling of the Independent line has been raised and came from Superior yesterday under her own steam. The Independent Tug company has opened its office in the old Singer office facing the ship canal. J. A. McMillan, formerly despatcher for the Great Lakes company will be day despatcher for the company. The Steamer America, of the Booth line, has been fitting out. It was expected that the America would make her first trip April 15, but it will probably be much later than that before she leaves as there is still considerable ice at Port Arthur.

PORT OF DULUTH.

Arrived: Van Hise, Maritana, Nye, coal, Lake Erie; Luzon, light for grain, Buffalo; Bon Ami, passenger, North Shore; Wyoming, merchandise, Port Huron.

Departed: Heffelfinger, Epire City, ore, Lake Erie; Gates, Poe, J. L. Elwood, James Watt, light, Two Harbors; C. W. Moore, passengers, North Shore.

UNIQUE CELEBRATION.

Johnson & Moe Entertain Wednesday Afternoon and Evening.

Four chartered cars, three of which will be crodwed with West Duluthians and the other conveying the Third regiment band, which will discourse sweet music along the line, will aid in the celebration, Wednesday afternoon, by Johnson & Moe, the West End big department store, of the running of the West Duluth cars once more by way of Superior street.

Arriving at the store, the party will be entertained by Flaaten's orchestra, from 3 to 5, to one of their popular concerts. Another will be rendered in the evening from 7 till 10. The firm extends a most cordial invitation to who can to be present at both afternoon and evening performances.

Cook Dies Suddenly.

Henry Clausen, a cook, died suddenly at an early hour this morning in a lodging room in the Branch Bethel. The cause of death had not been determined at a late hour today, but friends of the dead man say that he had been ill all winter.

For some time past he had been engaged as a cook in the restaurant of Gust Johnson. The authorities have been informed that a brother of Clausen's resides in St. Paul and is a street railway conductor there.

STRONGEST EVIDENCE OF FAITH

S. F. Boyce Guarantees That Hyomei Will Cure the Worse Case of Catarrh in Duluth.

When one of the most reputable concerns in Duluth guarantees that a medicine will effect a cure or he will return the money, it speaks volumes as to the merit of that remedy. It is in this way that S. F. Boyce is selling Hyomei, the treatment that has made so many remarkable cures of both acute and chronic cases of catarrh in Duluth and vicinity

Hyomei is not a pill nor is it a liquid that has to be taken with a tablespoon or kineglass. Just breathe it by the aid of an inhaler that comes in every outfit and benefit will be seen from the first treatment.

It destroys all germ life in the air passages and lungs and enriches and purifies the blood with additional ozone. It cures catarrh of the head and throat, or of the stomach, liver and kidneys. Wherever mucous membrane contains catarrhal germs, that Hyomei will do its work of healing. When using this treatment, the air you breathe will be found like that on the mountains high above the sea level, where grow balsamic trees and plants which make the air pure by giving off volatile antiseptic fragrance that is healing to the respiratory organs.

Remember that if Hyomei does not cure you S. F. Boyce will refund your money. This is a good time to cure catarrh by this natural method and prevent catarrhal colds that are so common at this season.

AT WEST DULUTH

Delays in the repairs to the Merrill & Ring mill prevented the expected opening this morning, and it will not commence operations for the coming season until tomorrow. The mill will open with one shift of men running only during the day for some time to come. About 150 men will be employed on the day shift.

The St. Louis mill is closed down this week for repairs. It is the semi-annual spring closing. The machinery will be thoroughly overhauled and put in shape for the summer's run. It will probably reopen Monday.

The Alger & Smith mill also resume operations for the season Monday, opening with two shifts of men and employing from 300 to 400 men.

The opening of the mill season means much to West Duluth. When the four mills in this part of the city are running they employ from 1000 to 1500 men. Few of these men receive less than $2 per day, and there are a number of highly paid positions in each of the mills. The merchants are already commencing to feel the effect of the renewed activity in the mill business, and the stores in West Duluth have been doing a very heavy business during the past few days with woodsmen who have returned for the summer's work and are buying their summer outfits. Houses are scarce and there are practically none for rent in the town. The real estate offices are turning away people every day who desire to move to West Duluth and cannot find suitable dwellings.

The streets are filled with woodsmen who have returned from the camps in the northern woods and are waiting for the mills to reopen. There is no sign of labor troubles and everything seems to point to a prosperous season.

PLEASED WITH SERVICE.

West Duluthians Glad at Getting More Cars.

The West Duluth street cars are now using the subway regularly, the first trip through it being made yesterday morning. The new six-minute schedule has also gone into effect.

The citizens in this portion of the city are pleased with the action of the street railway company in so improving the service. The West Duluth line, which has long been the best paying line in the city, has now a sufficient number of cars to properly handle the traffic, and West Duluth people are hopi ; that the days of the strapholder are past.

The subway is also receiving commendation from the residents of this section of the city, who claim that in doing away with the old wooden bridges and avoiding the grade crossing the money was well spent.

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

The baseball game scheduled for yesterday afternoon, between the West Duluth and the Big Duluth teams was postponed on acount of the wet grounds. It will probably be played next Sunday.

T. E. BOWEN INSANE.

Former Duluthian Committed to St. Peter Asylum.

Duluth friends will regret to learn that Thomas E. Bowen, at one time a resident of this city, has been committed to the asylum at St. Peter for insanity. Drink brought his once bright and active mind to wreck and ruin. Mr. Bowen was at one time editor of the Duluth Daily News and for several years resided here. Many will regret to learn the news contained in the following editorial note in the New Ulm Review:

"The sad ending of a brilliant career is no better typified than in the case of Tom Bowen, so well known in this county and throughout the state. He owned the Sleepy Eye Herald in its palmy days, and there was no better paying paper in the state than the Herald. By reason of his logic and prominence in the Democratic party Mr. Bowen was elected senator from this district, and filled the office with credit, being one of the popular men in the legislature. His prominence gave him ambition and he disposed of the Herald and went into the daily newspaper business in Duluth. He got in with a fast crowd there, and a few years served to drain him of all his resources, and he has been going down ever since. A victim to the drink habit he became its inveterate slave, and would spend his last cent for something to quench his thirst. He has been adjudged insane and taken to the asylum at St. Peter. Mr. Bowen has a most interesting family to which this affliction must bring the most poignant remorse."

SCHLEY MAY LECTURE.

Has Received Offer Which He Is Considering.

Chicago, April 13.—Rear Admiral Schley may go on the lecture platform. Saturday he received an offer from an eastern manager, the terms of which were decidedly flattering.

"Will you accept it?" he was asked.

"I am considering the matter," he replied. "I do not believe I shall, but of course I may change my mind. This is not the first offer of the kind that has come to me. I have refused all the others. Really, I can't say now what I shall do about this one."

"Are you planning to write a book, as has been reported?"

"I probably shall some day, although that, too, is a matter of future consideration. I know I should enjoy the work that it would involve, but I have not quite made up my mind yet to set about it."

The rear admiral was feeling much better yesterday than he was on the evening of his arrival in Chicago. He went out for a short walk, and was inclined to ridicule the fears of his wife and Mrs. McClure that his touch of the grip might result in anything serious.

"You know how these women folks are," he said. "They are always trying to make a man think he is ill in order that he will take better care of himself. I hope to feel as well as I ever did in three or four days."

FINE STONE

In Possession of M. Henrickson Jewelry Company.

What is considered the largest perfectly cut diamond ever shown in the city is on exhibition at the store of the M. Henricksen Jewelry Co., 324 West Superior street. COLLIERIES IDLE.

Large Number of Miners Celebrate Easter Monday.

Pottsville, Pa., April 13.—There are a number of collieries idle in the Mahanoy region, owing to this being Easter Monday. The large number of employes, especially the Greeks and Poles, remained away from work.

At the Glendower colliery and the Anchor washery, in the Heckscherville valley, the employes threw down their tools after working a short time because new conditions were exacted of them by the bosses. The employes began work with the understanding that the number of hours to be worked on Saturday would be arbitrated. When they resumed work the men who were suspended for refusing to take other's places were ordered to make personal application to the bosses to be restored and to promise not to strike under similar circumstances should they arise.

DOCKAGE CHARGE

Lake Men Claim They Have Nothing to Do With It.

D. G. Black Thinks Elkins Law Will Aid Duluth.

Some differences of opinion have arisen regarding the question of dock charges for handling freight shipments into Duluth on city docks.

A representative of one of the most prominent lake transportation lines said today that the majority of the jobbers were foolish to mix up with the trouble, because their freight is placed on their own docks and no charges are made.

The Wright-Clarkson Mercantile company has no docks of its own, and will be the principal sufferer, according to the transportation man, and the others, excepting the men on commission house row, are practically uninterested.

The lake shipping man added that the lake lines have absolutely nothing to do with these dock charges, which are 50 cents a ton for handling, and the charge is imposed by the owners or lessees of the Duluth docks.

A representative of one of the big jobbing concerns of the city threw a further light on the situation this afternoon.

"The trouble with those dock charges is," he said, 'that the lake lines have taken such a stand that they are responsible for the charge affecting the big jobbers who have their own docks. The lake carriers have made a rule that only carload shipments will be set upon the docks of the jobbers to whom they are shipped, and that less than carloads will be placed on the regular commercial docks. It is at these docks that the change is made, and when less than a carload is brought, the charge is made.

"This causes an extra and unjust charge on certain classes of goods, which pay a high rate, and in some instances 10,000 pounds of one commodity will cost more to ship than a carload of iron. This shipment will come in for the extra dock charge, while the iron which is a carload will be placed on our own docks. What we want is to have the arrangement made that will permit the landing of all shipments to our docks.

"The reason why this demand is a fair one is that the big jobbers have put their money in docks and ought to get some benefit therefrom. There is lots of dock room, and the companies not having docks new can get them, and when they do, they ought to receive some benefits from the investment.

"That is the reason the protest has been made. We have had no formal announcement that the charges will be made, but it is expected daily."

WILL AID DULUTH.

D. G. Black Thinks Elkins Law Will Help.

David G. Black, traffic manager of the Marshall-Wells company, returned this morning from New York a sincere believer in great results for Duluth through the Elkins bill, if it pans out.

"It will be one of the biggest things for Duluth that has happened for a long time, if the spirit is carried out, for it will give Duluth the advantage of what is hers, her location. Now understand, I am not a particular advocate of the Elkins' law, but I can see that if uniformity of rates is maintained Duluth will have a great advantage commercially over other Northwestern cities, on acount of her far superior location."

Mr. Black says there are many inconsistencies in the law, and that when they are corrected it will be of great value to this city to have the law enforced.

The trouble with things now are that big importers from the East, in the Twin Cities and through the West are placed upon a basis the same as Duluth's, and her natural location as the head of the lakes does her no good and gives her no trade advantages compared with what are really hers.

The Elkins law, with its non-discriminating rate provision, will place Duluth in the golden seat, and where she is naturally entitled to be.

Mr. Black says the Eastern transportation men are all in a state of chaos regarding the law. The bill provides for regulations for carriers, and it is not decided yet as to whether the designation includes the lake and ocean transportation companies or not, and opinions of all kinds are being given every day.

The railroad men are not sure that the law is a sound one, and they are not certain that it is unsound, and while they are trying to observe the provisions, they are also trying to see where corrections must be made, and want the constitutionality of the measure tested.

"There is one fine thing for Duluth, that has come to a head already," said Mr. Black, "and that is the storage charge for warehousing shipments through the winter, which are brought here by the Minneapolis concerns, and left here. When they want to send them out in the winter months, they ship rigth from the Duluth warehouses. Now the railroads are compelled to charge a storeage fee, and the goods will either have to be taken to the Twin Cities or they will cost enough for storage so that the Duluth importers will have a chance for the business, and Duluth's location will count."

BIG BOAT'S LANDING.

White Boat Likely to Stop at Northern Pacific Dock.

The Northern Steamship company's boat running into Duluth will probably land at the Northern Pacific docks at the foot of Seventh avenue West.

The docks at the foot of the viaduct, which were leased by the Great Northern Steamship company when the two boats were running into Duluth, have not been secured, and so far no official statement has been made regarding where the boat is to land.

"We haven't heard a thing about where the boat will land," said City Passenger Agent Kitchell of the Great Northern road this morning. "It is not unlikely, however, that the landing will be made at the Northern Pacific docks at the foot of Seventh avenue, however. We do not know anything definite, though, and no announcement official or otherwise has been made as yet."

FLOUR PILING IN.

Warehouses Filled Waiting For Lake Movement.

The lake transportation companies' warehouses in Duluth and Superior are packed with flour for eastern shipment, and the warehouses are simply packed full of the commodity, waiting for the boats to get under way.

Thousands of barrels of flour have come up from the Twin Cities and the mills in Duluth and Superior have been sending consignment after consignment to the warehouses of the lake lines, to be shipped as soon as the boats got running.

The rate from Duluth to New York is 20½ cents a hundred pounds. Little flour is moving by rail, though some is going out for domestic use at New York. The bulk of the flour for shipment will lie in the warehouses until navigation is under full sway.

Roads Hauling Again.

Active operation has been resumed on the Missabe and the Iron Range roads and the ore is being hauled down to the docks today in train loads at frequent intervals again. The boats are moving to the docks as rapidly as the Pittsburg Steamship company can secure firemen and crews to man them, and this is being done rapidly now, as the opposition by the strikers is becoming less strong every day.

Soft Coal Price Drops.

With the opening of the navigation season on the great lakes, the price of bituminous coal has taken a drop at the head of the lakes. The reduction amounts to about $1.50 per ton and will become effective tomorrow morning. The wholesale prices to be quoted are $4.50 for Youghlogheny and Hocking screened lump, delieverd on board cars, and $3.75 for unscreened. Reductions will be made in other grades of soft coal. The steamer Thomas Wilson brought the first cargo of soft coal to Duluth this year and other cargoes are on the way up here.

Railroad Notes.

D. A. Blakeney, who recently came here to take the position of city passenger agent for the Omaha road, has gone to still water to secure his household goods and will move his family here this week and make Duluth his permanent home.

C. R. Lonergan, traveling freight agent agent of the Northern Pacific, returned this morning from an extended trip through the copper country and the northern peninsula of Michigan, where he has been at work in the interests of his road.

THE FEAST OF THE PASSOVER

Its Observance By the Jews Began Saturday Evening.

Saturday evening at sun-down the celebration of the Jewish feast of the Passover began and will continue until next Saturday evening at sunset. No special services occurred at the synagogue yesterday. The feast commemorates the deliverance of the children of Israel from the hand of oppression and is observed as a period of feasting and gladness. The first two days and the last two days receive special observance. During this time the Jews eat no leavened bread, commemorating the fall of manna to the children of Israel. The prepared bread they do have is fixed in many appetizing ways by the majority of the Jews, but the most orthodox exist by the bread alone for the eight days. The period of celebration is very generally observed and most strictly by the ortohdox Jews.

SWAMP LAND CASE.

Interesting Hearing Is on at Land Office.

Evidence is being heard today before the register and receiver of the local land office in the case of Jewett MacPherson against the state of Minnesota. The case is an interesting one, inasmuch as the evidence is being taken subject to a decision of the secretary of the interior which has not yet been received, but which is expected at a very early date.

MacPherson brought a contest against certain state swamp lands in section 32-57-12. The decision of the secretary which is pending will decide whether contests are allowed to be brought against swamp lands or not. Should the decision be in the affirmative the evidence will be allowed. Should it be in the negative the evidence will be thrown out and the case dismissed.

This decision of the secretary is being awaited with much interest and will be one of the most important received at the land office in several years. The character of much of the swamp land has changed since the division was made, and if contests are allowed, it is believed by many land speculators and others who know the north country that much of the land now included in the swamp land reservation could be successfully contested.

The Closing Concert.

The closing concert in the series by Lanners' Concert band was successfully given yesterday afternoon at the Metropolitan Opera house to a large and appreciative audience. A special program was arranged and it proved intensely pleasing to the patrons. Mrs. James McAuliffe, who was the soloist for the occasion, was received with great enthusiasm and responded to the call of the audience many times. Miss Willa Mae Wylie, who was to give a reading, "Easter Tide," was unable to appear, but her place was ably taken by Mr. Penner.

Arrangements are under way by the Metropolitan Opera house management to give a series of sacred concerts every Sunday evening.

Articles of American Manufacture Despite the Late Trouble.

Statistics For Last Year Show Trade Is Increasing.

Washington, April 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Julius G. Lay, United States consul general at Barcelona, has written a lengthy communication to the state department relative to the trade of the United States with Spain in 1902. Accompanying he report Mr. Lay sends a great mass of statistics all indicative of the fact that in spite of our recent unpleasantness with Spain that country continues to purchase innumerable articles of American manufacture. A glance at Mr. Lay's tables show at once a number of articles of American manufacture have had increased sale during the year of 1902.

Cotton is "facile princeps," with a declared value for the first ten months of the year of $11,628,469, as compared with $10,034,480 during the corresponding period of 1901. That the imports of the raw material for the industry in this part of Spain should have increased is in itself a favorable indication of prosperity. Part of the improved demand for cotton may perhaps be traced to the high prices ruling for flax, which have seriously affected the consumption of linens; but it is chiefly due to a general revival in trade as a result of the favorable crop returns.

Coal imports are valued at $8,156,215, compared with $7,493,806 during the preceding year. The cheaper prices of British coal have contributed toward an improved demand, buyers using these grades in preference to the poorer qualities of Spanish coal.

It is satisfactory to note the figures for those products which our manufacturers are steadily pushing in this market, in spite of the keen competition of our rivals. We see that the imports of agricultural machines have increased from $55,634 to $164,812; fine tanned leather, from $380,664 to $414,351. I may mention, with regard to the sale of American leather, that tanners here are complaining bitterly of the harm done to their trade by the growing consumption of these goods. They are finding out not only that their antiquated methods fail to produce as good an article, but that the cost of production prevents the mfrom selling at a remunerative price against our manufacturers. With few exceptions, tanners lack the necessary capital to enable them to invest in proper machinery, so that there seems to be every chance for American dressed leather finding a permanent market in Spain.

An improvement is noticed in the imports of electric incandescent and arc lamps, but I regret to say that these have been supplied by European countries, principally Germany. I have asked dealers why they cannot obtain their supplies from the United States, and they reply that the German makers sell cheaper, take smaller orders and grant easier terms of payment than American firms. Incandescent lamps are sold at 30 to 31 centimes (6 cents) each, freight and insurance paid to Spanish port. Large quantities are also sent by parcels post, twenty-five at a time, packed in cardboard boxes.

Under the heading of locomotives, locomobiles, etc., an increase of over $100,000 is shown. Most of the locomobiles imported thus far have been of French manufacture. Electric locomobiles are practically useless in this country, except in the large cities, owing to the lack of generating stations. Steam-driven cars are also disliked, because of the fear of explosion.

The imports of lumber show a falling off, but this is due to those of 1901 having been in excess of the requirements of the Spanish market; consequently the year opened with heavy stocks that had to be worked off. The sale of staves is naturally dependent on the year's vintage and the exportation of wine, which during 1902 showed a steady decrease compared with the figures for the two preceding years.

Since my appointment to this post I have endeavored to aid our manufacturers to open up the Spanish market for the sale of American goods. In spite of many difficulties, I have at last succeeded in interesting a responsible firm here in the establishment of an American trading house, to be worked in conjunction with a well-known firm of exporting agents in New York. I regret to say that in consequence of the prosperous state of trade in America, I find little or no desire on the part of our manufacturers to interest themselves in commerce with Spain at present. In one case which came under my notice, a trial order for a sample lot of goods was sent to a firm in the United States, along with a remittance in payment, but the order was declined on the plea that, being unable to cope with the demand at home, foreign orders could not be accepted.

The careful study I have made of the Spanish market leads me to believe that there is a desire on this side for American goods, and I am of the opinion that our manufacturers should make an effort to let their products be known in this country, and should not refuse to execute sample orders, even though they find themselves unable at the present moment to establish regular business connections. By following this suggestion Spain will be prepared and ready to take American goods when our manufacturers are again in a position to give their attention to export trade, and time will not then be lost in preliminaries.

ATTEMPTED TO ESCAPE.

A Convicted Murderer Gets Through Jail Walls.

St. Paul, April 13.—A Helena, Mont., special to the Dispatch says: There was a jail delivery at Glasgow, Saturday night, William, Hardee, the convicted murderer, leading the gang. Hardee and John Brown were recaptured, but Albert Jackson is still at large. The men dug their way through a brick wall. The supreme court on Eaturday denied Hardee a new trial and he will now be hanged.

TO AVOID PLAUGE.

Pekin, April 13.—Russians explain their delay in evacuating New Chwang, Manchuria, by the fact that they are organizing an international sanitary commission with a Russian at the head of it to prevent a recurrence of the outbreak of bubonic plague.

CHARGED WITH GAMBLING.

Chicago "Get Rich Quick" Concerns Are Raided.

Chicago, April 13.—Detectives today raided four alleged "get rich quick" concerns and arrested three men on the charge of conducting gambling resorts. The concerns were the Chicago Crescent company, the Chicago Mail Order union, the Star Distributors' union and the Montana Mining, Loan and Investment company. The first three are said to be controlled by Harry Altizer and the last by John J. Jacobs. Altizer was taken into custody, but Jacobs could not be found. W. J. Groskius and J. L. Gittings appeared to be in charge of the place and were placed under arrest.

VIOLATED OATH.

Marino Lanera Joined the Revolutionary Movement.

Manila, April 13.—Marino Llanera, formerly an exile on the island of Guam, has been arrested in Pampanga province, Luzon. He joined the revolutionary organization and accepted a commission from that body. The constabulary captured his commission and other incriminating documents. Llanera will be charged with brigandage and possibly with treason as he took the oath of allegiance when he left Guam.

A BARROOM FIGHT

Between German and Austrian Soldiers at Pekin.

Pekin, April 13.—A barroom row today between German and Autsrian soldiers culminated in a street fight, in which fifty men on each side were engaged and bricks, clubs and knives were used. A great crowd of Chinese witnessed the affray. Finally a company of German infantry, with fixed bayonets, and a patrol of Austrian troops, separated the combatants and cleared the streets. Several of the Germans and Austrians who took part in the disturbance were so severely hurt that they were taken to the hospital. Both of the fighting contingents will be confined to barracks for a fortnight.

The Furniture, Rugs, Draperies and Beautiful Things for the Home!

Everything is ready for inspection by Duluth's furniture critics—women who want lovely, tasty pieces—different than most furniture stores carry—and much better than the average department or dry goods store can show.

Not a complete line of furniture such as you will find at the other stores—No 49c chairs! No $2.98 beds! No $7.95 sideboards!—and a lot of similar trash, glued together and made to look flashy, but with absolutely no wear—and advertised as great bargains!

None of that sort of stuff here—that's why we say this furniture stock is different than any at the head of the lakes.

We do not carry any cheap grades—neither do we carry any kitchen or the cheaper sort of bedroom stuff—but confine ourselves strictly to the higher grade lines of parlor, library, living room, dining room, den and hall pieces, and try to get them as choice and fine as we can.

Upon our floor will be found representative pieces from the very best makers of this country—from Grand Rapids and other parts of the country where good furniture is made. By confining ourselves strictly to high grade kinds, we concentrate our efforts in that one direction—This advantage should be apparent to furniture buyers.

We carry complete lines (in finer grades only) of Davenports and Divans, covered or ready to be covered from $25.50 to $150.

Easy Chairs and Rockers from $12.50 to $49.50.

Desks for the home from $11.75 to $95.00.

Bookcases from $12.50 to $175.

Parlor Cabinets, of gold or mahogany.

Music Cabinets $17.50 to $75.

Library and Occasional Tables $11.50 to $85.

China Cabinets $57.50 to $120.

Dutch Hall Clocks from $25 to $225.

We also carry a very large line of odd pieces, such as Pedestals, Tabourettes, Shirt Waist Boxes, Hall Seats, Hall Racks, Plate Racks, Stein Racks, Screens and various pieces almost too numerous to mention.

GRIP VICTIMS

THOUSANDS ARE PROSTRATED

Mills, Factories, Railroads, Stores and Nearly All Industries Are Crippled

Thousands of people in this city suffering with colds are about to-day. To-morrow they may be prostrated with Grip or Pneumonia. Grip is spreading. Whole families are suffering. Many business places are crippled through sickness of employees. The disease is not necessarily dangerous with proper care and the right remedies. It is almost suicide to depend on quinine and whiskey or home decoctions. Don't trifle with a cold. Either take my Cold or Grip Cure or call in a competent physician. I can't say what your doctor will do for you, but I do know that my Cold and Grip Cure will speedily break up all forms of colds and grip. It checks discharges of the Nose and Eyes, stops sneezing, promptly relieves the Throat and Lungs, allays Inflammation and Fever, and tones up the system. It cures Headaches and Dizziness accompanying the symptoms of Grip, produces sleep and restores strength to the body. It is invaluable in all forms of Influenza or obstinate colds—MUNYON.

I will guarantee that my Rheumatism Cure will speedily cure nearly all forms of Rheumatism; that my Dyspepsia Cure will cure any case of indigestion or stomach trouble; that 90 per cent of kidney complaints, including Bright's Disease, can be cured with my kidney Cure, 57 cures for 57 ailments. Every druggist sells them—mostly 25 cents a vial.

AMONG THE BEST

Is the Lake Superior Gold Mining and Milling Company.

Company Officered and Directed By Well Known Michigan Men.

The Lake Superior Gold Mining and Milling company is one of the latest flotations in which north country people are chiefly interested. It is organized to develop gold claims in the state of Sonora, Mexico, about twelve miles northwest of Magdalena in the Guacomea mountains. Its prospects are described by its officers and directors as being exceptionally bright.

These latter men are well known throughout the Upper Peninsula, being as follows: President, W. H. Laidley, of Chicago; vice president, Peter W. Phelps; treasurer, F. H. Begole; secretary, George Barnes; general manager, James Hooper, Magdalena, Mex.; consulting engineer; Thomas Hooper, superintendent of the Victoria Copper Mining company, Rockland; corporation counsel, A. B. Eldridge; attorney, Frank J. Dufrey, Nogales, Arizona; directors, W. H. Laidley, Peter W. Phelps, James E. Connel, George Barnes and Thomas Hooper.

The company is organized under the mining laws of Arizona with 500,000 shares of a par value of $5 each, the stock being non-assessable and there being no personal liability of shareholders.

The first issue of stock was made several days ago, when 50,000 shares were placed on the market at 50 cents a share. They sold almost at once, being in big demand. Today an issue of a second 50,000 shares at $1 a share will be placed on sale, and it, too, is expected to be in good demand, for the reason that the company has on its claims a mine, worked to date by old Mexican methods, which is claimed to be capable of yielding $2000 a month, even with the present primitive facilities.

TWO GROUPS OF CLAIMS.

The company controls two groups of claims. The La Fortuna group was first obtained. It consists of fifteen pretenencias which form an unbroken line extending upon the trend of the vein for a distance of 7500 feet, or nearly a mile and a quarter. Considerable work has been done on this group, and everywhere paying rock has been shown up. The gold bearing vein is a contact between lime and granite, the distance between foot and hanging walls being about 140 feet. Rich shoots of ore cut through this at a sharp angle and all the vein matter carries values uniformly outside of these highly mineralized zones, no assay yet taken giving less than $5.50 per ton gold. The gold is very free, is often held in combination with iron pyrites, and it is estimated that 95 per cent of it can be saved by the simplest methods of stamping, centifrugal milling or rolling. It is an excellent cyaniding proposition, containing no refractory elements to interfere with ready extraction of its metallic contents. This is a feature of great value to the company, and one of the advantages the gold ores of this particular district offer as compared to many other fields where ores are so base as to give little profit after the expensive methods necessary for their treatment.

Below the shafts and surface cuts the vein is exposed in a canyon dividing the mountain, this being at a point many feet below the shaft. From the estimates readily made from these explorations and the mill tests it is claimed that it can be conservatively said that fully $6,000,000 tons of milling ore, having a value of $5,000,000, net, have been proved, and in addition there is a large territory within the limits of the boundary lines of these claims which should give further value to the figures already stated, the speculative value being entitled to careful consideration.

THE LA JOJOBA MINE.

The La Jojoba mine was secured after the La Fortuna group was obtained largely on account of the favorable manner in which President Laidley and Treasurer Begole were impressed with the property on the occasion of a recent visit to Mexico. The Jojoba includes twenty-eight pertenencias, about two and a half miles by one and a fourth.

At the time of its purchase by the Lake Superior Gold Mining and Milling company, the La Jojoba mine was being operated by Mexicans, who were running a 5-stamp mill under many difficulties, chief among which was the lack of competent mechanics to superintend and care for the machinery and mine workings. The latter could best be described as rabbit burrows, so ramblingly were they conducted. Even with these obstacles the mill was making money, this attesting to the value of the ores being treated. Formerly worked by Spanish priests during the eighteenth century, the shaft had reached a depth of only 150 feet, although rich quartz is showing in its bottom. The ores were conveyed to surface in rawhide sacks carried upon the backs of natives, who used notched poles as a means of ascending and descending through some of the connecting "holes," or winzes, and who were provided with spiral stairways in the shaft proper, this forming the ore-hoisting convenience of the present time. The most recent improvement consists of a few wheelbarrows in which the ore is handled from one drift to the shaft. Only the very rich ore shoots of the big vein could be worked, and the portion "gophered" by the miners is a very small part of the vein proper, the latter being as yet merely scratched upon surface by the many years' operation of the Mexicans.

There is excellent ore all the way from surface to the bottom of the shaft that will give handsome returns in the mill. The latter can be placed in proper working condition by a small outlay, and can easily earn $2000 per month on the average ore of the entire ledge. There is room for fifteen additional heads of stamps, and these will be placed in position soon. With this slight increase $5000 per month can be earned. This will give the company funds from the outset to carry on its development work, being a great assistance in a financial way, as well as providing the most satisfactory means of practically determining the value of new ore bodies which will surely be found outside of those already known to exist on these claims.

The ores of the La Jojoba are free milling, the geological and mineralogical characteristics being similar to those present at La Fortuna. There are immense bodies that can be cheaply stoped and sent to the mill where increased stamping facilities will be added as rapidly as possible.

PLEASED TO GET THE HOOPERS.

The officers of the company regard themselves as very fortunate in being able to obtain James Hooper and Thomas Hooper in the capacities of superintendent and consulting engineer, respectively. The former is now thoroughly familiar with mining conditions in the Southwest. He has operated New Mexican gold properties for eight years and he speaks the Spanish language. His father, the consulting engineer, is best known to upper peninsula people as the superintendent and agent of the Victoria, where he has made a great record. His ripe experience in mining and milling in all of its phases will be at the command of his son. The Hoopers will leave for the mines in about ten days, and will immediately take up the task of mapping out the work for both groups of claims.

Magdalena will be the base of supplies. It is only an hour and a half distant from the claims, an excellent wagon road running the entire distance. Labor in the vicinity of the claims get $2 a day Mexican money, the equivalent of seventy-four cents American money. It is of excellent quality, if properly supervised.

TO GET RID OF HIM

Friends of Alleged Highwaymen Are After Matt Ark.

He Is Assaulted and Ordered to Leave Town.

Friends of three alleged highwaymen are tremendously anxious that Matt Ark should leave Duluth.

The police authorities are determined that he shall stay until he has given testimony against the highwaymen and promise serious trouble for any person or persons making further efforts to have him leave this vicinity.

Mr. Ark was recently robbed of $70 in the St. Croix avenue district. The three men supposed to have relieved him of the money were quickly apprehended and are now in the county jail awaiting the action of the grand jury.

Ark was enticed to West Superior by friends of these three men and then he was treated till fairly drunk and put on a train which his new acquaintances said would take him to Duluth, but Ark woke up at Hurley rapidly going in the opposite direction.

He was brought back here and gave his testimony against the highwaymen and yesterday a second effort was made to get him out of the way. Jacob Hill was arrested for assulting Ark down on Lake avenue yesterday afternoon.

This morning Hill was taken before Judge Windom and Ark testified that he had threatened to kill him if he did not leave town at once. Hill denied this. The court in passing on his case said:

"There seems to be but little question as to the motive for making this assault, and just to impress it on your mind that it is none of your business how long witnesses may stay in this city I will impose a fine of $25 and costs or in default of payment you will stand committed to the county jail for a period not to exceed 30 days.

"If you come before me on a similar charge again and under these circumstances the necessity of your leaving state witnesses alone will be further impressed on your mind by a sentence of ninety days in jail."

DULUTHIANS IN FLORIDA

More on the Riviera This Season Than Ever Before.

St. Augustine, Fla., April 9.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Tatler, for the season of 1903, on April 4 suspended publication with the regret of not having had the pleasure of recording the arrival of an awfully nice bunch of Duluthians that swooped down upon the other Northern beauties like the cyclone struck halo, for the "bunch" to a big majority are golden haired and sun-kissed darlings. Who are they? Why every home-staying Duluthian knows Mr. and Mrs. H. M. Peyton and the charming trio of Peyton offshoots, Miss Martha M. Peyton, Miss Alice H. Peyton and the Miss Peyton, J. B. Cotton and his pretty wife, and their sweet babe and Miss Margaret Panton; Miss Markell who, like the Misses Peyton, is giving her parents, Mr. and Mrs. C. Markell, an outing on the Riviera, and the fascinating Miss Ann Dale White whose pretty face and hands Old Sol has kissed to a nut-brown tint, are at the Alcazar, but will soon leave for their homes via Atlantic City. Mr. and Mrs. Hopkins and their pair of lovely little ones, who have been joys to society here the past winter, will also soon leave. Mr. and Mrs. Stone, the other ones of Duluth's prosperity, are en route home from their winter on the Riviera. The Abbots, Mungers, Alcotts and other charming Duluth residents have favored us again this season. Mr. and Mrs. F. D. Gilbert, with Miss de Peyster, a sweet young New Yorker, gave great pleasure by their visit at the Ponce de Leon, leaving sweet reminders and regrets mingled by their departure.

There were more Duluthians on the Riviera this season than ever before, which is most gratifying, but only a fair exchange for the loss to us of Col. David D. Gaillard and his darling little wife and Master Pierre Gaillard. Will The Herald plase aid in sending us some more—and these too, of Duluth's lovely residents that we of the Sunny Southland can admire more of the fairest of the city where the North sun fits down all around."

THE FAIR.

Many Bargains Offered By West Superior Firm.

On page 8 of this issue of The Herald appears the weekly announcement of the Fair, West Superior, containing a list of the regular Tuesday bargains offered to Duluth people. The Fair's Tuesday sales have proved in the past very popular, and that of last Tuesday, the first one to appear during the present season, eclipsed in interest all that had gone before. Today's announcement is replete with splendid bargains in all lines.

Cement For Marquette.

The Alpena Portland Cement company of Alpena, Mich., has been awarded the government contract foar furnishing 6000 barrels of cement for use in the construction of the new concrete breakwater at Marquette, Mich. The price is to be $2.30 per barrel or $2.40 in sacks, delivered, with a rebate of 10 cents for return of sacks. The bids were opened Saturday by Capt. D. D. Gaillard, government engineer. The government is now advertising for a tug and two small locomotives to be used in the construction of the new concrete pier at the Superior entry.

Killed By Train.

Charles Peterson, aged 28 years, who has been employed for some time past as a blacksmith on the ranges, was struck and killed by the southbound Twilight limited Saturday afternoon, about two miles below Itasca, Wis. Peterson is said to have been walking on the tracks and did not heed the customary signals. The body was badly mangled, both legs being cut off. The decedent was unmarried.

SUCCEEDS FUNSTON.

Denver, April 13.—Brig. Gen. Frank K. Baldwin took charge of the department of the Colorado today, succeeding Gen. Frederick Funston.

THE TROUT SEASON

Wednesday the First Day Upon Which They May Be Caught.

High Water In Streams Will Make Poor Fishing.

The trout season opens Wednesday. Streams are at the high water stage and muddy, which means poor fishing and there is not much of the old time enthusiasm in evidence.

Notwithstanding unfavorable water and weather conditions a number of prominent men, who make it a point never to miss the first day of the season under any conditions, even if every little trout caught costs about $10 apiece, are making preparations to get out of town Tuesday evening.

One enthusiast sent down to Iowa for angle worms more than a month ago and the box containing the worms arrived here last week. Since the arrival the worms have been carefully dieted on fresh earth and kept nice and warm to make them as lively as possible for next Wednesday's sport.

Sucker river is the nearest trout stream to the city and reported to be in about as good condition for fishing purposes as any of the north shore streams, so Sucker river will probably get the bulk of the fishing this week.

The black bass season does not open until June 1, but the season for pike and all other food fish inhabiting the waters of Minnesota will be open on May 1.

For several seasons past there has been considerable selling of trout and bass in Duluth and local sportsmen are out with a notice this season that fishing for commercial purposes, contrary to law, will not be tolerated and the game warden will be furnished with evidence of violations wherever such evidence can be obtained.

Due notice is served. Due notice is hereby served on the public generally that DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve is the only salve made from the pure, unadulterated witch hazel. Those persons who get the genuine DeWitt's Witch Hazel Salve are never disappointed, because it cures.

MAX WIRTH.

CATTLE-RAISING.

The Modern Cattle Trade as a Profession.

To the Editor of The Herald:

In these days of overcrowded professions, trusts and enormous capitalization of established industries, it is not always easy for a young healthy man of moderate means to determine what is the best, most agreeable and most profitable calling to pursue. In the overcrowded Eastern and northern centers of population there are hundreds of young men who have some capital at their command, yet can not find a suitable avenue for either their energy or their money.

Some of them drone half-heartedly through a course of study at a law school or a medical college; many endeavor to start some mercantile business, which is, by comparison, a pigmy weakling as compared to the modern equipments of the great merchants; others buy stock in rich companies, but their holdings are a mere "drop in the bucket," and the clerical positions which they may gain in the establishment are often not better paid than those of bookkeepers and clerks.

The parents of strong sons, for whom, by economy and industry, a modest fortune has been accumulated, are often more worried to see their children properly launched in the world of usefulness than are the parents of less fortunate sons. The youth of 21 who is too well educated and too well provided with money to require an early and earnest realization of the necessity of self-support is in a worse fix at last than the laborer's son who grapples with life's hardships in his boyhood and forces from toil and illiterate surroundings an honorable living and a career of his own choosing. The young man, who at 21, finds himself in possession of $10,000 and a good school-ing, yearning for independence, and restricted by modern mercantile and professional conditions from starting certainly on a safe career of thrift, energy and integrity, is in a sad plight. In many cases he will dwaddle away ten years before choosing a profession; in others, he will drift with the idle and dissipated sons of wealthy men till his habits are fixed in evil ways, and his thirteenth birthday finds him a man without purpose or use in a yorld that waits not upon the laggard or the idler.

Instead of sending their sons to Paris, Vienna, Monaco and the Riviere, to "top off" their college educations, and, incidentally learn how to drink absinthe and roll cigarettes with one hand, if the well-to-do fathers of able-bodied sons would give them say, a six months' course of American outdoor development as cowpunchers on some Western ranch at $25 a month "and keep," they would be doing a much greater service to their offspring and to their country at large. Theodore Roosevelt once said that he held his experience as a cattleman in equal esteem with his college education, and that he would never have reached his success had it not been for his career as a plainsman, a cow puncher and a rancher.

Those who shrink at the very notion of the drudgery of farming; those who yet fancy that the calling of a husbandman is all a weary round of dull toil; those who yet believe that all the rural citizens of this country are "men with the hoe;" those who think that the agriculturist is at the mercy of chance, and that it requires a great fortune to be "a country gentleman" in the United States—all these may read with interest, and perhaps profit, the few engaging facts here in set down about cattle business and its possibilities in the West and Northwest.

In the East the man who does live in the cities is either a rich man or "a farmer," and the town-dweller usually uses the latter word in sarcasm. In the Northwest (where, by the way, the effect of modern progress, intelligence and courage are most apparent both in city and country life) the character and condition of the farmer, as well as of the urbanite, is as far in advance of the Eastern 'Rube" as this century is ahead of the last. But of the mental status and professional method of the Northwesterners are high in the essentially crop farming communities, the position and potentiality of Northwestern cattlemen is still more assured and alluring. Under modern established conditions the breeding and feeding of beef cattle is as pretty and as fascinating as certain and as scientific a business as could be chosen from a thousand of the traders and professions of any big city.

In this state, for instance, a profitable cattle business can be launched and carried forward with nearly the same capital that would be necessary for a business of similar scope in any other sections of the United States. Bearing in mind that a dairy or creamery farming business is as different from the cattle business as window gardening is from the greenhouse industry, and remembering that suitable pastured lands for large herds cannot be bought in Eastern states for less than twenty-five to fifty times the price of Northwestern lands, it is not difficult to realize the attractions and advantages of the Northwestern cattlemen over his petty predecessor of the East.

The calf-crop of well-conditioned cows in a herd of 200 will average about 175 each season, equally divided as to sex. Then in the retention of his she-calves and the rapidly accruing capacity of his breeding herd as the heifers mature and beginning to bear, the cattleman finds first the astonishing culminating profits of his investment, and then the certainty of a handsome and ever-increasing income. The increase of his herds, both numerically and as to quality, is the "pretty" part of the business. It is compound interest without the necessity of calculation, but with the certainty of results. It is the kind of business that "works while you sleep," for the progress of nature's cure as the suitable enchantment of the value of the land which you can buy now at very low prices, but which, as emigration and advancing civilization encroach, must rise with the rising trade. The man who embarks in this fascinating business now will quickly find himself able to add to his holdings at prices that insure the ultimate wisdom of his original purchase and investment. It is a simple business proposition when you remember that the market value of the low price at which lands suitable and perfectly adapted to cattleraising can be bought. In other words the increasing and high price for beef is out of all proportions to the low value yet placed upon a "beef-raising plantation."

CLARKE MAKES VAGUE CHARGES

Claims Others Must Have Been at Hibbing's Treasury.

Scandal involving several village officers of Hibbing is threatened by Charles L. Clark, former collector of the water and light department of that place, arrested in Montana last week, charged with embezzling $1700.

Mr. Clarke mentions no names, but says that while he may not have made a full return of money collected by himself, there must have been some person else tampering with the village funds to make a shortage of $1700."

In the custody of Deputy Sheriff Bates and accompanied by a representative of the security company that was on his bond, Mr. Clarke returned to Minnesota yesterday morning and was arraigned before Judge Windom this morning.

He waived a preliminary examination and was bound over to the grand jury without bail, though the judges of the district court may later name a sum sufficient for his release pending further procedure in the case against him.

The prisoner is an intelligent-looking young man, 28 years of age and unmarried. He is well known in Duluth, and several friends and acquaintances have offered to do anything in their power for him, but he insists that the charges against him will not be so significant when the matter is fully investigated and explained.

The little folks love Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. Pleasant to take; perfectly harmless; positive cure for coughs, colds, bronchitis, asthma.

ARTS AND CRAFTS.

Opening of the Exhibit at the Library.

The Arts and Crafts exhibit, which opened this morning in the club room of the library, is the first affair of the kind that has been given in Duluth, and the Art club has reason to feel proud of its achievement. The proceeds of the exhibit is to go to the making of more classes in the art work possible next winter.

The exhibits have been obtained from well-known firms from all over the country and beautiful loans of pottery, metal work, weaving, burnt leather work and bookbinding are shown. The hand wrought jewel work is probably the most beautiful thing shown in the exhibit. Some stunning and gorgeous pieces are shown. Some rings, really monsters in execution, are shown. One is a ring of gold, two pieces brought up at the back to make the ring three-quarters of an inch in width at this point. Two red stones, hyacinths, are set at the extreme of these pieces. The work is beautiful. Another ring of silver is finished with a very crude effect and is set with one blue opal. A bracelet with several of the large broque pearls that are so popular is shown and the exhibit in this line is attracting a deal of attention. The excellence of the many other lines must be seen to be appreciated, the bookbindings and book plates being particularly attractive and the leather work being artistic and beautiful. The exhibit will be continued for the rest of the week.

SWEEPING CHALLENGES.

New York, April 13.—Coach Hanlan, of Columbia university crew has issued two sweeping challenges to Harlem river oarsmen. In behalf of his 'varsity eight he offers to row any picked crew on the Harlem river a mile and a half and give them a start of ten seconds. In behalf of his freshman eight Mr. Hanlan makes the same offer to any picked eight of junior oarsmen. Mr. Hanlan wants both races to be rowed for challenge cups.

Bodily pain loses its terror if you've a bottle of Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil in the house. Instant relief in cases of burns, cuts, sprains, accidents of any sort.

A great and unusual sale!

After-Easter clearance of broken lines.

The immense stocks carried in all our enlarged departments have all shared in the phenomenal trade of the past three months, and with our increased business there necessarily comes an increase in the number of lines which are more or less broken and depleted. All these odds and ends must go at once, for only by clearing the broken lines can we make room for the summer goods now arriving by every train and soon to be augmented by the Lake Express. Rather than carry a single broken line into the new trading season, we take our losses now, while these goods are fresh and desirable. You'll find a little money will buy more this week, than ever before at this season of the year. Sale begins promptly at 8 Tuesday morning.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

The livery stable of J. T. Girty Son at Knightstown, Ind., and thirty-three horses were lost, including a fast driving mere belonging to Senator T. H. Neby and W. W. Reeves' fast pacing mare Gigin, valued at $1500. Loss, $12,000.

John T. Larsen, a sailor on the schooner Mary A. Hall, at Newark, N. J., become violently insane and tried to murder the crew. The madman slashed Andrew M. Johnson so he may die. In running to escape from the captain and mate of the Hall, Larsen fell overboard and was drowned. Larsen had been melancholy for several days.

Henry VanDusen, of Madison, and Joseph VanEst, of Columbus, Ohio, were shot and probably fatally wounded in a bloody fight at a resort half a mile west of Kenosha, Sunday morning. The shooting was done by Al Brown, who was arrested by Chief of Police Reynolds after a struggle. He is now in jail. No one is able to give a clear story of the fight.

The five Missouri packing companies which were fined $5000 each on March 20, for violation of the anti-trust law through their attorney, have mailed to the state supreme court a draft for $27,166 in payment of fines and costs incident to the action against them.

Assistant Attorney General James M. Beck tendered his resignation to President Roosevelt before the president's departure for the West. He will retire April 30, to enter a New York law firm.

NATIONAL PURE FOOD LAW.

The question of pure food interests everyone who eats, and therefore interests everyone who lives. There has been considerable agitation on the matter, both state and national, and more or less legislation has been enacted in various states. One great drawback in passing laws bearing on pure foods has been the lack of a national standard by which the purity of foods could be judged and thus far about all legislation has been in the line of keeping out poisonous and very injurious ingredients rather than establishing a high standard. The United States government will soon establish a series of standards and the advocates of pure food will try to get a law through congress making them compulsory. These standards, while having no legal binding as laws at present, will be issued for the guidance of officials of the federal government and of the states that may see fit to adopt them in the discharge of their official duties. They will be of especial advantage to the courts in instructing juries and in preparing decisions in regard to disputes as to the character of food products. These standards, issued as they are by the department of agriculture, and signed by the secretary of agriculture, will carry just as much weight in shaping legislation and the enforcement of the laws now on the statute books, as though they had been legally enacted by congress, because it will be the natural tendency of all courts and law officers to accept the standards fixed by the secretary of agriculture after being ascertained by a board of experts.

It may not be, that as far as health is concerned, a pure food law is absolutely necessary, because if a man gets sick from eating something, he will avoid it in the future. One great benefit of such a law would be in promoting honesty in the trade and the elimination of unfair competition. Where a man is not permitted to fabricate and sell a spurious article, he has to offer for sale the genuine product, and hence he cannot cut below legitimate prices. Another great benefit would be the unification of state laws and thus remove from the manufacturers onerous conditions of labor and shipment, which are required in each state. Uniform methods of labeling and packing goods would follow so that they could be shipped to any state in the Union without change or alteration to conform to the local laws. For instance, some of the states have laws that require a particular kind of label to be placed on certain products, which must be packed in a specific manner. If goods are not put up and labeled in this style and cannot be sold in certain states; and again, if they are labeled and packed in that particular manner they are not eligible for sale in another state. Hence hundreds of manufacturers are required to manufacture and carry certain products in twenty or twenty-five different ways in order to suit the local laws in that many states. A national law would do away with all this annoyance which is now beneficial to nobody, and at the same time would result in the unification of state laws in order to bring them into harmony with the federal statute. A national pure food law would be of benefit in many ways and cannot be enacted any too soon.

A PAYING INVESTMENT.

A writer in the Review of Reviews believes that the Panama canal will prove a paying investment for the United States and urges the rapid advancement and completion of the work, that its earning capacity may be effective. It is the superior borrowing power of the United States, he says, that makes it feasible for this government to go ahead and dig an inter-oceanic canal where the private French company had to give up for lack of ability to get the necessary capital, and the American Nicaragua company had to abandon operations for a like reason. The Panama canal will cost the United States nothing more than an annual interest charge of possibly $4,000,000. The more quickly the work is pushed to completion, the sooner this charge on the treasury will be met in whole or in part by the earnings of the canal as a productive investment.

The Suez canal, after paying all charges of operation, maintenance, and improvement, regularly earns a net profit of about $10,000,000, or 10 per cent on the amount invested in the enterprise, which is approximately $100,000,000. With the immense improvements that have been made in the mechanical methods for canal-digging, and resultant economies, it is quite possible that the canal may be built for the $144,000,000 that was set down in the careful estimate made by Admiral Walker and the engineers of the isthmian canal commission. It is not unreasonable to believe that the traffic through the canal would soon become very large, and that the canal tolls would amount to enough not only to pay the interest upon the bond issue, but also to provide an ample sinking fund for the ultimate redemption of the entire cost of the enterprise. Therefore there is reason to believe that as a financial undertaking the canal will prove a brilliant success.

Melville E. Ingalls, defeated candidate for mayor of Cincinnati, probably realizes now that it was a tactical error to tell those switchmen, asking for an increase of wages, that $1.12 a day was enough for any workingman, and that if he got over $1.50 a day he was likely to make a fool of himself. No man who holds such views can be elected to any office in this country.

Chicago had a candidate for municipal honors whose name is Jozwiakowski. And, despite his name, he was elected.

Summer stocks of diamonds should be laid in at once. Prices are to be advanced 5 per cent.

A STRONGER COMPETITION.

One of the claims made by those who opposed the merger of the Great Northern and Northern Pacific roads as not in harmony with public policy, was that it would bring development in Northern Minnesota to a standstill. The attorney general in the complaint filed on behalf of the state in the suit to dissolve the merger devoted much space to picturing the disastrous effect the merger would have on the northern part of the state by retarding the building of new railroads and preventing competition. The Herald said at the time that this was a mistaken idea and that, instead of being an injury, the merger would be a great benefit to the Northwest. It has seen no reason to change this opinion; on the contrary, recent events have confirmed the correctness of the view. The courts may decide that the holding company plan is a violation of the Sherman law, but it cannot be denied that the merger itself, instead of retarding development and crushing competition, has had the opposite effect.

What means the entry of the Soo road into territory served now only by the merger roads, and the building by the latter of branches and extensions to hold as much of the territory as possible? It means that Northern Minnesota and North Dakota are going to be developed in a railroad way, and that there will be greater competition than ever before all through this territory. This is the result of the merger. When the roads were on an independent basis, there were understandings that neither would invade the other's territory. The formation of the merger put an end to these understandings, and a new and stronger competition was created. The Soo road finds that it must get into the merger roads' territory or be left behind in the contest for traffic, and the latter are prompted by the Soo's proposed extensions to strengthen their position by building connecting lines and branches. The Canadian roads are likewise active along the boundary line. With the merger less than two years old, the northern part of this state and North Dakota are witnessing a railroad development and strong competition greater than for many years past. All of which shows how groundless were the alarms sounded in the political merger attack in this state. The people are being benefited instead of being injured. The rapid railroad development that is going on will open new territory to settlements, will build up small towns, increasing the field for our jobbers and manufacturers, and will raise land values.

STEAMBOAT ACCIDENTS:

The frequent accidents that have occurred on steamboats, due to defective boilers, machinery and hulls, have caused the treasury department to realize the necessity of adopting and enforcing more stringent regulations for the safety of passengers who travel on the water. With this end in view the department will reorganize the steamboat inspection service and will in the future hold owners of steam vessels to a strict accountability for non-observance of the laws for the protection of passengers and property. On May 15, examinations will be held all over the country for the positions of inspectors of hulls, boilers and machinery and other parts in the steamboat service. These examinations will be held for the purpose of establishing an eligible register from which good men may be appointed as vacancies occur in the service. It is known, however, that as soon as some available men are secured there will be a wholesale dismissal in the steamboat inspection service.

It is believed in the department that loose administrative methods, running over a long period of time, have permitted evils of all kinds to grow up in the service. These are to be stamped out and the cleaning process will involve the removal of many incompetent inspectors and other employes. The department officials wish it known that prospects for promotion in this branch of the government service will be better in the future than ever before. Merit and ability are to be recognized wherever found. It is hoped that experienced and capable engineers and others possessing technical qualifications required in these positions will apply at the examinations. Henceforth the punishments provided for the failure to promptly renew certificates of inspection of hulls and engines will be rigidly enforced. It has been the custom to deal leniently with engineers and masters who neglected to comply with the law requiring inspection every twelve months. A fine of $500 is provided for the oversight, and the full penalty is to be inflicted in the future.

Too much attention cannot be paid to the safety of the traveling public, and even if one accident can be prevented and lives saved, the added work of the department will not have been in vain. In the Duluth district there have been few accidents of this kind, the result, no doubt, of the effective work of the inspectors here.

EXTRAVAGANT LIVING.

An interesting computation of the average expenses of living in Denver, representing the mean and the poor, has been made by Professor Garvin, a teacher in the high school of that city. He finds that the average family of five persons spends $2405.84 per year. His list includes doctors, lawyers, civil engineers, ministers, photographers, insurance agents, real estate agents, architects, railway officials, clerks and heads of departments in factories and stores, and by taking proper pains he managed to make his figures very authentic.

While some people think that it is the extravagance of the rich alone that makes the workingman's lot hard, with wages largely the measure of a bare existence, the statistics collated by Professor Garvin show that it is really the salaried class that is the careless class with expenses. The men who are getting from $2000 to $5000 a year are those who are running riot with expenses. To Professor Garvin's surprise, he found that many of these persons did not know how much they spent, showing that financial hardship must be the lot in the end of some of those who answered him flippantly that they never kept an account of expenditures, but who admitted that they were apt to run into debt. Others admitted that, while they paid their bills regularly every month, they had no idea of how much they spent.

Thus it will be seen that it is the combined extravagance of those who get salaries big enough to be extravagant with, along with the wasteful rich, that leave the simple workingman hardly enough to furnish a decent living.

Although congress passed a law prohibiting the sale of liquor at the capitol, no penalty for its violation was provided. Consequently drinks will be served as of yore. It was another case of the Prohibitionists being "gold-bricked."

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"Charley" Salisbury, who has been engaged in operatic work for a dozen years, since leaving the newspaper ranks, and is now with Marguerita Sylva's "The Strollers," as business manager, has been in the city for a couple of days. He is much interested in the experiment to be made here this summer with a repertoire opera company, but believes that it will be such a success that the future will see a similar organization of a permanent nature.

"The people that are being engaged for the summer company," said Mr. Salisbury, "are the kind that make a venture of that kind a success. They are all hard workers and enthusiastic opera people and the management, which will be in the hands of Al. Walle, will be as good as it could be. I know a few things about the opera business, and I have been keeping an eye on this part of the country for years. There is no doubt in my mind as to the outcome of the venture."

Mr. Salisbury is one of the western managers who has built theatrical organizations in the past few years. He made the Salisbury stock companies and has been identified with the opera business in New York for several years, and planned the big productions at the Pan-American exposition at Buffalo three years ago.

He used to live at Oshkosh, and his first visits to Duluth were made when he was at the head of a baseball organization in that city which used to come up here and play the team in this city, which was part of the old league.

The Hotel McKay has made quite a name for itself in the state at least, and a letter that reached the house the other day showed that it is being talked about outside the city of Duluth.

A letter addressed to one of the employes of the house reached the United States the other day. The only superscription besides the name of the receiver, was "Hotel McKay, Minnesota."

The letter came via New York and never even went to the Twin Cities, but came straight to Duluth.

Manager McKay says it wouldn't have surprised him so much if the letter had gone to the Twin Cities and had been forwarded from there. The house is a new one, and it doesn't stand to reason that in its short existence its fame would spread through the country at large.

Somewhere, however, the mail clerks had heard of the hotel and the letter was sent straight through.

Captain Weeks, the lumber vessel agent, is stopping at the Spalding. He is getting things in shape for the lumber transportation, and expects that the shipments will begin now in a few days. The captain has been pretty busy of late, but he was so thoroughly impressed, just before coming here, with the "signs of spring" down in Michigan, that he has to tell everyone about it.

Before starting up here he went out to a small lake, near which a friend of his resides, just outside Detroit.

"Oh, it was grand," says the captain. "It is on the bank of the lake. Over on the right the frogs are croaking and to the left the robins, bluejays, sparrows and all the birds were twittering and singing. The sun rising over the hill in rosy splendor in the morning. It was fine, and I hated to leave it and come away up here."

The captain has told a great many about this beautiful picture, but he has not explained as yet the phenomenon of the frogs croaking in the morning, at the rising of the sun.

Appropriating Dewey's Honors.

Hartford Courant (Rep.): Ex-Secretary Long, of the navy, has an interesting paper in the current Outlook on the navy in the late war. It offers another illustration of the inadvisability of men in such positions writing on such matters. The most interesting part of the article is not its historical element, but its personal quality. The edge is quietly taken off from Dewey. Friend Crowninshield comes in for credit as often as it is possible to lub him in, and so on. There is no mention of the fact that Dewey cut his cable and went in on his own hook. Not much. The sunrise is located at Washington every time.

Mr. Cleveland Gives Up.

Chicago Record-Herald: Ex-President Cleveland is going to appear on the platform in New York with Booker T. Washington. Evidently Mr. Cleveland doesn't expect to have any further use for the Solid South.

A Suitable Location.

Pittsburg Dispatch: The promoters of that combination of farmers to control prices have transferred their efforts to South Dakota. As their purpose is to divorce the farmer from his money the appropriateness of the location is evident.

A Note of Encouragement.

Springfield Republican: President Palma's message to the Cuban congress sounds still another note of encouragement concerning the republic. The finances must be regarded as in a sound condition, with a surplus of $2,538,000 in the treasury. Railroad building is going on rapidly and the people display no sign of their old revolutionary tendency. It may be out of place to say where the credit belongs, yet much of it certainly belongs to the Cubans themselves.

THE WEATHER.

United States Agricultural Department Weather Bureau, Duluth, Synopsis of weather conditions for the twenty-four hours ending at 7 p. m. (central time), Monday: The storm is central over the lower Ohio valley, and is accompanied by cloudy weather in most districts east of the 100th meridian and rains over the southwestern lake region, the central valleys and southeastern states, heavy over Tennessee and southwestern Wisconsin. The barometer is high over the Rocky mountains and eastern slopes, accompanied by mostly clear weather and cool weather temperatures ranging between 15 degrees and 25 degrees as a rule in the Rockies. The winds in the lake region are fresh to brisk northerly.

Local forecast for twenty-four hours, ending at 7 p. m., (local time), Tuesday: Duluth, West Superior and vicinity—Partly cloudy tonight and Tuesday. Slightly warmer Tuesday. Fresh and brisk northwesterly winds.

H. W. RICHARDSON,
Local Forecast Official

Chicago, April 13.—State and upper lakes forecasts till 7 p. m. Tuesday: Wisconsin—Rain this afternoon and possibly tonight. Tuesday probably fair.

Minnesota—Generally fair tonight and Tuesday. Warmer Tuesday.

The Dakotas—Fair tonight and Tuesday. Warmer Tuesday and in extreme west portion tonight.

Lakes Michigan and Huron—High and dangerous northerly winds shifting to northwesterly on Michigan by tonight and on Huron by Tuesday morning. Rain tonight, clearing Tuesday. Change to storm northwest, 10 a. m.

Lake Superior—Brisk northerly winds. Partly cloudy tonight and Tuesday.

POINTED REMARKS.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "Man, made in the Creator's image, is the proudly defiant ruler of the universe," remarked the orator.

"Guess you forgot the microbe," piped a voice from the rear of the hall.

Washington Star: "Haven't you any regard for the law?"

"Sure," answered Meandering Mike. "I have de highest regard fur de law. I kin never forgit de many obligations I am under to de law fur board an' lodgin'."

Philadelphia Press: "Those are the pedals," explained the musician.

"The pedals?" repeated the idiot, who was unfamiliar with the anatomy of the piano. "O, I see. You use them merely for the foot-notes."

New York Sun: Cleopatra pressed the asp to her bosom.

"What a pity," she exclaimed. "If I could only use a sea serpent, what a story it would make!"

However, her fine instinct for the dramatic enabled her to carry off the affair with great eclat.

Boston Transcript: Hallit—What's the matter, Klay? You look all tired out!

Klay—And I don't know when I've worked so hard. I looked at the men clean up the railroad station this morning and after that I saw three safes raised into four-story windows, and four loads of coal delivered in baskets.

Philadelphia Press: "Do you admire large families?" asked the courtly Virginia dame.

"Not too large, madam," replied George Washington.

It was shortly after this that the immortal George married a widow with two children.

But some years later, as the historian is compelled to add, he became the father of an entire country.

Growth of Rural Delivery.

New York Tribune: Congress appropriated $12,500,000 for the rural service during the next fiscal year, beginning July 1, and the department will establish 15,000 new routes on the money. On March 15 there were 14,005 routes already in operation, and by July 1, this number will be increased by the natural growth of the service to 15,000 routes. Thus it is expected by the end of the next fiscal year, which will be June 30, 1904, to have 30,000 rural carriers in motion, and 15,000,000 people living outside of towns and cities will have their letters and newspapers delivered daily at their doors.

Pledge and Performance.

New York Press: No president ever breathed the martial spirit more than Theodore Roosevelt and few commanders-in-chief's appeals to the militant patriotism of their people have drawn readier response. Yet when his topic is war we find no failure to reach the heads as well as the hearts of his countrymen. The most stubborn anti-imperialist can find little aid for his quarrel in Mr. Roosevelt's dignified and judicial justification for his predecessor's taking up of "the white man's burden," though that species of the breed which engaged in the calumny of the fighters who carried the load of the brown man must feel the sting of the presidential lash. The Fargo address, if only as the formal record by President Roosevelt of the fulfillment of a great promise by President McKinley, is noteworthy.

Where Reform Is Needed.

San Francisco Chronicle: If the principles of the Elkins amendments to the interstate commerce law were enforced against the express companies, in their relations with the railroads of the country, discrimination in their favor in the carrying of express matter would stop or the rates charged the government for the transportation of the mails would be materially reduced.

WUN LUNG, THE HEADLINER

By William H. Osborne.

(Copyright, 1903, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

The world is small, and the years go by. Time flies like the old invisible she dragon who visits the temple every hundred years. It is not so long ago that little Wun Lung and his neighbor, Fow Kee, sat at the feet of the smaller Sun Joy in the Street of the Six Hundred Full Blown Roses. Wun Lung and Fow Kee were men—or thought they were. Sun Joy was a woman. Their combined length did not exceed nine feet. Sun Joy was demure and coy and winsome. Wun Lung was lively and good natured. Fow Kee was burly and jealous and ill natured. He and Wun Lung kow-towed, as it were, at the shrine of Sun Joy—and at that shrine, so it would seem, Wun Lung had the inside track. And for that Fow Kee would pull Wun Lung's short, soft pig tail—and Wun Lung would simply laugh.

But Wun Lung had something beside his good nature to recommend him—and that something made him much admired by little Sun Joy and much envied by Fow Kee. For Wun Lung, although he never realized it for many years, was a natural born acrobat. Many believe that feet were made to walk upon. With Wun Lung it was an even toss up as to hands head or feet. He could wriggle like a snake in the grass. He could tie himself into a knot like a skein of silk. And he didn't keep all this to himself. For the first great event in the lives of Fow Kee and Sun Joy happened on the day when, under the admirable tuition of Wun Lung, they each were able to walk from end to end of the bamboo pole in the market place—the pole where the rickshaws are all lined up. And when they had learned they did the trick, not once, but twenty times a day.

Wun Lung and Fow Kee, still bowing low at the shrine of Sun Joy, grew up into young men—Sun Joy grew into a young woman.

And one day something happened. Fow Kee was in trouble. Over what no one knew. He had looked upon the glowing opium too often—he had lived too hard. He had disregarded that commandment which to us is the eighth, being also the three thousand and first injunction of Confucius. In other words, he disregarded the law of private property, and one night he silently stole away. And that left Wun Lung only to kowtow before Sun Joy. But one day he too went—went in the daytime, with the good will of his neighbors in the Street of the Six Hundred Roses. He went to make his fortune in the new land favored of all lands. But he went, as he said, but to return.

In a little side street in San Francisco Wun Lung set up the inevitable laundry. And as he washed and ironed he thought of little Sun Joy and his spirits rose and he sang in his mild, quavering oriental voice, the songs of his home land. And many came to look upon him, for he had one interesting peculiarity which others of his race did not have. For if Wun Lung was on one side of his ironing board and desired to reach the other side, he merely vaulted high in the air—and there he was. He made quick little side steps over to the stove, and he whirled round and round on the ball of one foot, like a top. And he laughed as he did it.

One day a scowling, skulking Chinaman, attracted by the crowd, stuck his head inside and uttered a guttural exclamation. Wun Lung responded with a smile and a kind word. His visitor was Fow Kee. Fow Kee came in. He explained that he was rich and prosperous. He did not explain why his clothes were slightly ragged, but he did suggest that if Wun Lung could put up twenty-five American dollars he could make Wun Lung a rich man. Wun Lung put them up and waited to become rich. Fow Kee disappeared. Time flew. Wun Lung moved to Chicago. The crowd there admired him also. He explained that his name, Wun Lung, really meant Agile Gibbon. It was in Chicago that he again met Fow Kee. This time Fow Kee looked prosperous, but he still scowled. If Wun Lung had not become rich on that twenty-five it was apparent that Fow Kee had. Fow Kee watched some of Wun Lung's antics about the laundry with considerable interest. In the gathering dusk he whispered in Wun Lung's ear. Wun Lung grew wide eyed in surprise. The next day Wun Lung shut up shop.

In the Imperial theater in the metropolis, the headliners were the Kee-Lung troupe—the Chinese (not Japanese mind, but Chinese) grotesque acrobats. They had been running for four weeks and were so popular. The troupe consisted only of Wun Lung and Fow Kee. The stage was rigged up like a Chinese laundry and what they did was done there—even to the mild quavering songs of the inimitable Wun Lung. When they had firsted started, Fow Kee, whose evil mind strayed back to the Street of Roses, again whispered in the ear of Wun Lung. Again Wun Lung acquiesced—and he had done more—he had placed the hands of one of the Chinese Tongs a substantial sum of money for the transportation of the beautiful Sun Joy to America. He knew that the Tongs would get her here or bust. And all day long he sang of the little Sun Joy and bided his time. And so also did Fow Kee.

Sun Joy came. Fow Kee, who had inside knowledge of the time of her coming, received her at the hands of the representative of the Tong. He whispered in her ear that it was he who had sent the money to bring her over. She asked about Wun Lung. Fow Kee smiled and said that Wun Lung was happy—Wun Lung and his Irish-American wives. And he scowled and smiled as Sun Joy uttered a low-voiced exclamation of despair.

At last Wun Lung and Sun Joy met, with enthusiasm on one side and much reserve on the other. Fow Kee hung about for a time, but finally was compelled to leave them alone. And then Sun Joy burst forth and told Wun Lung about his Irish-American wives. Wun Lung smiled. The wives belonged to Fow Kee, not to himself. And so he told Sun Joy. And she believed him and was glad.

And Sun Joy joined the troupe—and she was a strong drawing card. The Kee-Lung-Joy Chinese Acrobats held their place at the top of the program. And Sun Joy learned. She had not forgotten the bamboo rod in the market place. But she clung to Wun Lung and rebuffed Fow Kee. She was a queen in her way, was Sun Joy, and Fow Kee was afraid of her. But he thought if Wun Lung was out of the way it would be a good thing—a very good thing. But the troupe made money. Fow Kee got the most of it, but Wun Lung and Sun Joy had plenty, too.

High up in the laundry on the stage was a tight wire which was supposed to be an indoor clothes line. This wire was not ten feet—it was twenty-five feet above the boards of the stage. All three of the troupe danced upon this wire. Fow Kee was not altogether graceful and he generally was afraid, and the other two had most of the applause. Wun Lung especially made a hit.

One night before the curtain rose, Fow Kee, with his own hands, moved the real iron stove over to a point directly under the wire. A man falling from above upon the stove might be crushed to death.

It was at the very climax of the act. The three were upon the wire. Suddenly, by an almost imperceptible movement, Fow Kee jerked his elbow into Wun Lung's side. Wun Lung braced himself, grasped at the air, tottered and fell. He was a little fellow and he did not weigh overmuch. Fow Kee smiled and scowled. But little Sun Joy darted forward and caught Wun Lung as he fell. This, too, destroyed her balance, but with her other hand she clung to the wire. And there they hung, in mid-air. Fow Kee now grasped the situation. He did not want her harmed, and he saw she would cling to the last gasp. And anyway if they did fall now it was likely that they would light on their feet. He therefore waved his hand lightly to the audience and stooping down, by main force lifted Sun Joy and Wun Lung back to the wire. The audience who thought it was a new trick, laughed and applauded. But Sun Joy, who had seen it all, did not laugh. Nor did she laugh later when she saw Fow Kee shake a bit of white powder into Wun Lung's tea.

But she did laugh the next day when she and Wun Lung, in a luxurious palace car, sped west from danger into safety, sped on their hasty wedding trip back to the beautiful street of the Six Hundred Full Blown Roses. Back in the Imperial theater a scowling Chinaman was trying to do the Kee-Lung-Joy act all by himself. He didn't do it well and the crowd knew it. "Bring on the little Chink and the little girl," they yelled.

THE STAGE.

of all the plays that the late Charles Hoyt turned out, none ever appealed more strongly to the masses than his "A Trip to Chinatown." That this comedy is a most popular one is attested by the fact that it has been played to larger audiences and made money for its author than any other of the Hoyt palys. "A Trip to Chinatown" appears to be an entertainment that appeals to all classes and seems to have struck the keynote of the popular taste. This season is promised a complete new scenic production, the latest and most popular music, clever specialties and one of the best companies ever seen in a Hoyt show. The company includes Wm. Kellar Mack, Jack Campbell, Frank Beamish, Percy Walling, Wm. Sturgeon, John Doyle, Sylvia Starr, Kitty Wells, Nellie Sennett Miller, Molly Saylor, Zenie Blair and others.

"A Trip to Chinatown" will be seen at the Lyceum tonight.

Tonight the Ferris Comedians will produce at the Metropolitan a play new to Duluth theatergoers, the drama of western life, "In Idaho." It shows many scenes of life in the famous Rocky Mountains. It will be appropriately scened and costumed. The specialties will be given another complete change. Considerable interest is being manifested in the approaching bread contest to be given in conjunction with the regular matinee performance on Wednesday afternoon, April 22, at which time $10 in gold will be given to the lady bringing the best baked loaf of bread. The contest is open to all. The winning loaf of bread will be decided by two expert bakers. This will be a new and novel exhibition, and no doubt will bring forth many contestants. After the decision is made, the bread will be distributed to charitable institutions and to the poor of the city.

Miss Marguerite Sylva, the charming young woman who has in two or three years won a foremost place in the comic opera field, will appear at the Lyceum tomorrow and Wednesday evening and Wednesday afternoon in "The Strollers." In "Miss Bob White" last year Miss Sylvia won a triumph such a few prima donnas have scored in Duluth. The company supporting Miss Sylva includes Messrs. George C. Boniface, Jr., a comedian of deserved reputation; Neil McNeil, one of the best singing and dancing funmakers on the stage; D. L. Don, whose quaint and eccentric comedy creation in the play is one of its biggest lifts; David Torrence, the baritone, whose rendition of the delightful "Lorretto" number is one of the musical hits; and the Misses Dorothy Hunting, a contralto of unusual merit, and Louise Middleton, one of the most beautiful women on the stage, who sings, who sings, dances and acts the part of Mimi to perfection. The chorus is very large, and is said to contain more handsome young women than any similar organization that ever left New York.

Wealth Flouts Poverty.

Philadelphia Press: The durbar at Delhi, India, according to Lord Curzon, the viceroy, cost only $900,000. If that was the public cost the real cost must have been vastly greater. That money, in a country where people starve to death every year might have been expended much more profitably than in a mere display, but perhaps that investment pays in India.

Speed the Day.

St. Louis Republic: If the Irish land bill is passed by the British parliament and its operation proves as beneficent as is expected, "Ould Sod" should soon be owned by its agricultural peasantry and the Saxon-Celt feud of centuries buried under the furrows made by proprietary plowshares.

Nervous Strain Overworked.

Baltimore American: No wonder Americans succumb under the nervous strain and high tension of life when municipal campaigns and house-cleaning season come about the same time. A man has no time to recover from the Scylla of one before he is hurled into the Charybdis of the other.

SALES OF LUMBER

Several Manufacturing Concerns Have Cleared Their Stocks.

Sawing Season In Local Duluth Having an Early Opening.

Lumber sales have been somewhat more brisk during the past ten days, and several stocks have been disposed of by local manufacturing concerns. The Merrill & Ring company is said to have sold 3,500,000 feet of dry stock left at its docks last fall, and thus practically cleaning up all its old stock. Richardson & Avery made a sale of 3,000,000 feet of the spring cut, and the Red Cliff Lumber company sold some of its recent lumber cut, following larger sales made by the company last winter.

It is predicted that there will be a clean sweep of lath in the local market early this season. Prices for lath range from $2.50 to $2.75 for No. 2 quality, and from $2 to $3 for the No. 1 quality.

The mill season is opening early. The Merrill & Ring plant will start today or tomorrow on its summer run. The company has about 10,000,000 feet of logs at the mill left over from last season, and which will serve as a supply to keep the mill operating until the ice goes out of the bay and the logs can be rafted in from Split Rock, on the north shore.

The Alger-Smith company expects to start the old Mitchell & McClure plant within a week or ten days on the logs which have ben railed into West Duluth and banked during the winter. The St. Louis mill, which has been sawing steadily for the McAlpine Lumber company and has cut about 8,000,000 feet, will start up again in a week after a few repairs.

The Lesure mill will probably be the last of the harbor mills to get in operation this spring. The company conducted large logging operations this winter, and when the mill does start it will be kept running with a double shift for the rest of the season. During the past two years the mill has been cutting on day runs only.

Many of the mill employes, who have been in the woods for the winter or have been visiting in Michigan, are back ready to begin their summer season's work in the mills.

It is claimed that some of the local mill companies, who have been selling during the past winter and this spring, either of their present cut or the last year's stock, are practically sold out and off the market in certain grades. The price of boards in the wholesale markets has not changed of late, but the cost at retail is so high that in connection with other advances in building supplies a serious effect is being predicted on consumption in the Northwest. Contractors and architects are said to be already feeling the effect.

The old Jones mill in Oneota will start up within a few days to cut for W. H. Gilbert, and will work steadily the rest of the season. Mr. Gilbert had about 5,000,000 feet cut at the St. Louis mill before it entered on the contract with the McAlpine Lumber company.

The Nebagamon mill started up a week ago on a long summer's run. The sawmill at Chisholm started up the first of last week for a cut of about 20,000,000 feet. The Plummer & Ash mill is expected to start up for the first time some time this week on a cut which will take some years to complete. The mills at Cloquet are all ready to start on their summer run.

The Swan River Logging company, which has been putting logs in the Mississippi river all winter, expects them to begin moving this wek. The company has about 60,000,000 feet in the river. A heavy rain about the headwaters of the river last week has caused a high stage of water in the upper part of the river.

Lumbermen are claiming that the Cole bill, which has passed the Minnesota house of representatives, providing for the assessing of logs where they are cut, will deprive Minneapolis, Duluth and Stillwater of the taxes they receiev from logs found May 1, and that while it will not add materially to the taxes of lumbermen, it will work injustice in many ways if it becoines a law. They claim there will be a different assessment for every county, and that there is a liability of this resulting in discrimination against some firms, and they will never know what valuation the assessor is going to put on their logs. The lumbermen further hold that rates of taxation vary in different counties, that they already pay a heavy tax on standing timber which is assessed every year as real estate, and then they will pay taxes twice on logs cut in the winter, one tax for the logs and the other with the real estate tax on standing timber, which will nave to be paid again the year after the logs are gone. This, they claim, will mean a three times tax on the same logs.

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Directors of Hancock Development Syndicate In a Row.

Hancock—A lively row is expected among the directors of the Northwestern Development syndicate on the return of H. Z. Brock, formerly superintendent of the mines in the Cambourne group in British Columbia, who was dismissed from his charge without a hearing. Because of the action of the majority of the directors in discharging Mr. Brock, C. D. Hanchette and F. C. Mayworm have resigned as members of the board and have been replaced by Frank A. Kohlhaas, of Calumet, and John Daniell, mining engineer of the Franklin Mining company.

Marquette—Thirty engineering students at the Michigan College of Mines have started on a visit to several large manufacturing centers. They will go to Toledo, Pittsburg, Philadelphia, New York and Niagara Falls. The junket is an annual affair arranged by the faculty.

Houghton—Three teams have already been secured to do the degree work at the reunion jubilee of the copper county lodges, Knights of Pythias, which will be held here April 20. The teams are those from Sault Ste. Marie, Marquette and Ishpeming.

Calumet—The health boards of Houghton, Hancock, Calumet, Lake Linden and the various townships of the country have published notices to the effect that all dogs must be muzzled after May 1, and that all dogs not muzzled will be shot.

Lake Linden—A merger of the Houghton County District Agricultural society of Houghton and the Houghton County Agricultural society of Lake Linden will soon be submitted to a vote of the members. The consolidation is to be made for mutual benefits.

Menominee—The police arrested fourteen boys for throwing stones through the windows of passing trains, cutting the air brakes on freight trains and putting sand in the oil boxes of the cars.

Good for children. The pleasant to take and harmless One Minute Cough Cure gives immediate relief in all cases of cough, croup and la grippe because it does not pass immediately into the stomach, but takes effect right at the seat of the trouble. MAX WIRTH.

Why Should Duluth Stores Fear Our Competition In Garment Selling?

EITHER WE REALLY DO SHOW newer, better and more exclusive styles—or else we quote greatly lower prices—or we do all these things.

We say positively that we do every one of the above things.

Duluth's high-priced store probably realizes this fact—else it would not be so afraid to have you make comparisons of their styles and prices with ours.

To illustrate how they dread our competition—just visit the high-prices store's garment department in Duluth—after you have seen what they have to show—tell the salespeople you have decided to come over and see what we have.

Then watch the panic that ensues.

The department manager will come—if you still persist in your determination of seeing our stock, even the firm will be called on—and you'll be flattered and implored and offered substantial reductions.

These are facts as told us time and again by Duluth ladies who have lived to congratulate themselves for coming here before buying.

Try it yourself—you'll make money if you do. You'll save a few dollars if you only work the "scare" on them, but You'll Save Money and Get Better Styles By Coming Over Here.

These are assertions which we make based on the fullness of fact—we know full well the strength of our position—we invite all who would choose from the very latest styles—and all who would buy at reasonable prices to see our stock before choosing. We agree to refund carefare both ways to any and all Duluth people who are not convinced of the superiority of our styles and the economy of our prices.

We are glad to have our customers make comparisons with stocks they may see elsewhere in Duluth, St. Paul, Minneapolis or Chicago—the better posted they are—the better for us.

We encourage Superior women to see the Duluth showings—they are the more satisfied with us every time a fair comparison is made.

Take Interstate cars direct to our doors. Regular daily delivery to Duluth.

THE SPICER-FANNING STYLE GUARANTEE.

We guarantee our styles to be absolutely correct and will exchange any wrap or costume bought here within four weeks after date of purchase, provided the garment has not been worn.

We could not exchange—nor would you expect us to exchange a garment which had been worn.

A GLOOMY EASTER

Weather Anything But Ideal For the Great Event.

Services In All Churches Marked By Brilliancy.

Easter with such weather as prevailed is but half an Easter for in the feminine mind at least the wearing of new bonnets and new gowns is inseparably associated with the day, and there is not much attractiveness in the idea of introducing the new apparel on such a day as yesterday. But from a religious standpoint it was a brilliant Easter. The churches of the city were never more handsomely adorned, the music was never more brilliant, and the congregations everywhere were very large.

At the cathedral in the morning hundreds were unable to gain admittance. The music was very fine, the choir being assisted by Flaaten's orchestra. Bishop McGolrick delivered the sermon and solemn high mass was said.

Dr. Robert Forbes addressed the Commercial Travelers' association last evening in the First Methodist church. The church was crowded to the doors, many being turned away unable to obtain seats. An excellent musical program was rendered by a quartet composed of Mrs. C. H. Thornton, Miss Mary Bradshaw, Milton B. Griffith and Grafton Mason.

After an appropriate Easter sermon Dr. Forbes addressed a few well chosen words to the commercial travelers.

"Some day," he said, "the doctor will attend his last patient, the lawyer will plead his last case, the minister will preach his last sermon and yon will make your last trip. And then what will earthly possessions avail? What will wealth, fame, fortune avail? The only thing that will be of use to you then is character. I do not speak as an alarmist, but these are the facts and we must face them.

"The greatest curse of the profession of the Knights of the Grip is the necessity to be constantly away from home. A man beyond the holy influence of home ties is subject to a hundred temptations. Keep the memory of your home in your heart and it will keep you true to God and to yourselves.

"The business world and the spiritual world are less far apart than is generally believed. The washerwoman leaning over her tub to earn money for the support of her fatherless children is doing a no less holy thing than the minister preaching his Sunday morning sermon. She is no less a prophet of God. The lumber jack is a prophet of God. The miner who works beneath the earth is a prophet of God. You, commercial travelers are prophets of God. We are all one great family working together to fulfil His plan."

At the First Methodist church at 3 o'clock in the afternoon the annual service of the Knights Templar was held and city Sir Knights in uniform attended. The prayer was offered by Dr. S. P. Long, the pastor, and Dr. Robert Forbes delivered the sermon. His theme was "Jesus Christ, a Glance at His Manhood and Works." He dwelt not upon the resurrection from the dead which they had assembled to commemorate, but upon the worth of Christ as a man and upon his career upon earth.

After the service the Knights Templar returned to their hall and the Scottish Rite performed the ceremony of relighting the lights etinguished at the Maundy Thursday banquet.

PLUMBERS' COMBINE

Declared By Missouri Courts to Be Illegal.

St. Louis, April 13.—Acting in conformity with the instructions given by the St. Louis court of appeals, Judge Horatio Wood, of the circuit court, held that the association of master plumbers of St. Louis was an illegal combination; that it was organized to maintain and monopolize the plumbing business in St. Louis with a view to fixing the price and restricting the sale of plumbing supplies to master plumbers only, and an order was made dissolving the association on the ground that it carried on business in restraint of trade. The case was appealed and the appellate court held that the association was an illegal combination and ordered the case remanded.

The Clergy like it—Here are a few names of clergymen of different creeds who are firm believers in Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder to "live up to the preaching" in all it claims. Bishop Sweatman, Rev. FAILED TO STOP

Freight Train Rushes By Siding, Crashing Into Passenger.

Four Persons Killed In Accident on Intercolonial Road.

Halifax, April 13.—Four persons dead, two fatally hurt, at least one missing and several others slightly injured, is the record of a head-on collision on the Inter-Colonial railway, which occurred just before midnight Saturday, near Windsor Junction, seventeen miles from Halifax.

The poles and telegraph lines along the roadside were wrecked and this city was cut off from communication with the outside world for hours.

The trains in collision were the Canadian Pacific railway express from Montreal and Boston for Halifax and a fast freight from Halifax for Montreal. The conductor and driver of the freight had orders to take the siding at Windsor Junction and let the express cross, but for some unknown reason Driver Copeland of the freight ran past the junction on the main line and met the express two miles beyond.

It is thought that Copeland may have lost control of his train, which was made up of seventy-five cars. The freight was running twenty-five miles an hour and the express, which was two hours late, was traveling about forty-five miles an hour.

The dead are:

EXPRESS DRIVER WILLIAM WALL.

EXPRESS FIREMAN MICHAEL OAKLEY.

FREIGHT FIREMAN HILL.

FREIGHT BRAKEMAN THORPE.

The fatally hurt are: Freight Driver Copeland. A tramp named McGready, of Antigonish.

The express consisted of postal and baggage cars and three passenger coaches in charge of Conductor McClafferty. The freight was an unusually heavy train in charge of Conductor Haynes. Both trains were hauled by new and powerful locomotives and they crashed together on a level piece of road, skirting a lake. The engine crew of the express and Fireman Hill, of the freight died almost immediately after the crash and Brakeman Thorpe was instantly killed. The driver of the freight is in the hospital with a broken spine and cannot live. A tramp had been caught stealing a ride on the train and had been put off each time by the train hands, but managed to swing on again and was finally taken into the caboose out of danger. The brakeman of the freight, who was killed, was in the cab, having gone forward prior to reaching Windsor Junction, to be in readiness to drop off the train when it slowed up and open the switch to let the freight in on the siding.

When the speed of the freight was not reduced approaching the junction, Conductor Haynes says he realized that nothing short of a miracle could prevent a collision. There was no bell cord to send a warning to the driver, and the conductor ordered a brakeman to drop off the rear end of freight and telegraph the next station, Wellington, to hold the express. The message was too late. The express sped past Wellington station as the operator received the warning signal. He dashed out on the platform wildly waving a lantern, but the train disappeared down the line in the darkness. A few minutes later the collision occurred.

The locomotives locked together and remained on the track. The postal and bagage cars went over the embankment down into the lake. Two railway mail clerks in the postal car were shaken up. Their car landed right side up and began to fill with water, but they escaped by climbing through a window in the roof and wading ashore.

KILLED BY HIRED MAN.

Prosperous Farmer of Southport, P. E. I., Is Dead.

Charlottetown, P. E. I., April 13.—Alexander Stewart, aged 45 years, a prosperous farmer of Southport, five miles from here, has been killed by his hired man, John Carver. They had a dispute over wages, and Carver, it is said, threatened to shoot Stewart, who seized a gun and broke it on Carver's head. Carven then went away and returned later with a gun loaded with shot. He called Stewart to the door and shot him. Carver was arrested.

A GREATER RUSH

Influx of Settlers Near Duluth Surpasses Previous Years.

Many Farms Started Since the First of the Year.

"The rush for farmland in Northern Minnesota this spring has never been equalled in the history of the state," said A. W. Kuehnow, of the Boston and Duluth Farm Land company.

"Since the beginning of the year hundreds of settlers have been placed on farms in the vicinity of Duluth, and the land is being rapidly brought under cultivation. Our explorers report that big changes have been made since last year. Land that was formerly a wilderness is now dotted with farms.

"The biggest change is in Carlton county. The majority of the settlers who have come to this district have bought lands in Carlton county, and it is becoming rapidly settled.

"The greater part of the land which is being purchased is bought by bonafide settlers, and there is comparatively little going to speculators at present, as was the case when lands were being taken for the timber. The settlers are principally farmers, or farmer's sons, who come here from Iowa, Illinois, Southern Wisconsin and other Middle Western states. They sell their land in those states for $50 or $100 an acre and come here to buy land which is fully as good for farming purposes for from $5 to $10 an acre. I know of several cases where such men have put the whole proceeds from the sale of their Iowa farms into land here, getting from five to ten times as much land as they formerly had. They intend to wait until the value of the land has doubled or tripled and then sell out, making themselves independent.

"In several cases small colonies have been moved here from some of the more settled parts of the country. Several families in the community will desire to move to a newer country, and will combine to send a representative to purchase land for them all. Then they sell out and come here, settling on adjacent farms. This plan goes far toward mitigating the hardships of life on a farm in a newly-settled country."

Temperance Union Meeting at the Swedish Baptist Church.

The monthly temperance meeting by the Duluth Scandinavian Christian Temperance union was held yesterday in the First Swedish Baptist church in the West End. A large number were present and the program was short but impressive. The church choir rendered a fine selection and a pleasing number was given by the Nilson quartet. A paper was read on temperance education in schools and its importance in the instruction of the younger element as to the danger in the use of alcohol.

Rev. A. Edstom said that he had devoted much of his time to temperance work in the year past when in Stockholm, Sweden, and had taken an active part in the efforts to save the fallen. Although the results of temperance work are not always what one would expect, the work for the good cause should continue.

Rev. F. Linden's address was eloquent and instructive. He has a fine command of language and was followed with close attention by his hearers. He expressed his pleasure at having had the opportunity of being with the temperance workers during years past in Duluth, and he commended the temperance union on its conservative and untiring efforts in the work.

"The Christian's Responsibility Towards the Liquor Traffic" was his topic. He said:

"The word Christian as used in a wide sense is elastic. The European nations are Christian, at least called so, and our own United States is called a Christian country. However, I wish to speak to Christians as individually responsible in this matter. The one who demonstrates his religion in practical life is a true Christian, and his wishes are to help save the fallen and prevent evil from taking hold of his fellow-men. To interest ourselves in the welfare of others, the responsibility rests upon us as Christians, especially when we see the curse the liquor traffic brings. You would be astonished to look at the real effects of the traffic. It lies at the bottom of nearly all crime.

"Rev. Bergman, of Aitkin, informed me that O. G. Olson, who was hanged at Aitken, was brought to his crime by drink. I once had a conversation with Henderson. He told me he had been drinking hard before he committed the crime for which he was executed. He said he would never have killed that woman had he not indulged in strong drink.

"The traffic in liquor is an unlawful institution as it is carried on, even if every voter says it is not. Those who support it are criminals, inasmuch as the institution produces crime and misery. The fact that many have paid for the right to sell it does not alter the matter.

"The value of human life meets our thoughts of our responsibility. I have seen many a promising young man go down to despair and misery through the curse of drink. What is he worth to his mother, to his father? The Spanish-American war did not cause more lives than those who have perished during the last six months through through the saloon traffic. Let the Christian people of our land neglect their responsibility toward this momentous question and our republic will go down to ruin, as great nations have been devastated by vice and crime in past history. This is a serious question. I plead for the home, for the country. The United States is the most blessed land on the globe. Here liverty-loving men and women sought and received freedom, religious and civic. Ideas have been wonderfully developed under the stars and stripes. Ideas unheard of in other lands. We love our country. We realize the enormous resources we have, but the sad fact that the liquor traffic is causing such devastation among the people calls us to stand up as Christian citizens to defend our homes and our country from ruin. I appeal to each one that by example and in every way possible to use your influence for promoting the work of saving your fellowmen from the ruinous liquor traffic."

Rev. J. A. Anderson, of the Methodist church, spoke at the close of the program in behalf of the temperance union in appreciation of the assistance Rev. Linden had been in the temperance educationa work during the seven years he has been a resident of Duluth. The vast audience joined in the good wishes spoken by Rev. Anderson to Rev. Linden, all rising to their feet in acknowledgment. The program closed with a number by the Nelson quartet.

Rev. Linden will leave the latter part of April for his new field of work in Seattle, Wash.

WILL TRY TO SAVE WISKER

Counsel Will Claim That Directors Were Responsible Ones.

New York, April 13.—John M. Wisker, the engine driver of the White Plains local which crashed into the New Haven local train in the Park avenue tunnel in February of last, causing the loss of seventeen lives, will be called to trial on a charge of manslaughter in the criminal branch of the supreme court on Wednesday. Counsel for Wisker says the fight on the case will be one of the most stubborn ever seen in a criminal court.

It was learned that Wisker's counsel will try to show that the directors of the New York Central Railroad company should have been indicted. He will call every one of the directors. It will be shown by experts that the trains have been run at full speed in the tunnel on foggy days, when it was impossible to see the signal lights.

Wisker will be a witness. He will tell for the first time his own story of the disaster.

SEVENTH DAY ADVENTISTS

Elect Officers For Conference to Be Held In London.

Oakland, Cal., April 13.—The biennial conference of the Seventh Day Adventists closed today. The following officers for the conference to be held two years hence, in London, were elected: President, A. G. Daniels, of Battle Creek; vice president, L. R. Conrad, of Germany, and W. W. Prescott, of Battle Creek; secretary, W. A. Spicer, of Battle Creek; treasurer, I. H. Evans, of Battle Creek; auditor, D. D. Parmalee, of South Lancaster, Mass.

The general conference executive committee was selected as follows: H. W. Cottrell, representing the Atlantic union conference; C. W. Flaiz, northern conference; E. T. Russell, central conference; G. G. Rupert, Southwestern conference; W. T. Know, Pacific conference; W. H. Thurston, Canadian conference; G. A. Irwin, Australian conference; L. R. Conrad, German conference; P. A. Hansen, Scandinavian conference; O. A. Olsen, British conference; P. G. Wilkinson, French conference; W. H. Hyatt, South African conference; F. U. Westphal, South American conference; W. W. Prescott, Battle Creek; A. T. Jones, California; L. A. Hoopes, Nebraska; A. G. Daniels, Battle Creek; W. A. Spicer, Battle Creek; G. I. Butler, Southern conference; W. C. White, California; C. H. Jones, California; David Paulsen, Chicago; G. C. Ottsen, Sweden; A. J. Read, Philadelphia; Frederick Griggs, Massachusetts; W. Sisley, Canton; S. N. Haskell, New York; R. M. Killgore, Tennessee.

A BAKERY COMBINE.

Options Secured on Nine Wholesale Establishments.

Newark, N. J., April 13.—Arrangements are being made for the combination of nine wholesale bakeries in this city, Jersey City and Hoboken, with a capital of $1,500,000. The men at the head of the project have already secured options for sixty days on a number of plants. With the options, each concern has given a valuation of its property, the total amounting to $2,300,000.

For the proper appraisement of good will, it has been agreed that it shall be done by allowing 1 cent for every pound of flour baked during the year 1902, and 1 cent for each cent of profit earned during that year.

The present managers of the plants bind themselves to remain in the same positions for three years, and two years longer if that is demanded. They also agree not to engage in any other bakery business for ten years in New Jersey.

FIGURES KILLED HIM.

Lightning Calculator Is Dead From Mental Overwork.

Trenton, N. J., April 13.—William Vallance, the famous lightning calculator, who could do any sum in a mathematical calculation mentally and with but an instant's hesitation, is dead, aged 30 years. About a week ago he was taken to the state hospital suffering from a severe mental strain, believed to be the result of his work with figures.

Vallance could duplicate the feats of any of the lightning calculators and then beat them all by stating instantly any desired date in history. He could not tell how he knew history, but would rattle off fact after fact without ever making a mistake.

He could give instant answer to such arithmetical questions as multiply 388,487 by 4641. Feats in algebra were his delight.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

Short Term Soldiers Cannot Go to the Philippines.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Sturgis—It is stated that recent orders from the secretary of war direct that all men of the Second squadron of the Thirteenth cavalry (Troops E and H, now stationed at Fort Meade, and F and G at Fort Keogh) having less than one year to serve from date of sailing for the Philippines, are to be transferred to the Sixth cavalry—which will arrive at Fort Meade some time in June—unless they will accept their discharge and re-enlist in the same troop. It has been reported that twenty-four men have already been discharged and left the post on furlough. The duties at Fort Meade at the present time are very hard, as only two troops of cavalry are taking care of 521 horses, besides their usual garrison duty. Thirty-six recruits in charge of one lieutenant arrived at the post from San Francisco.

The cobalt mineral claim, three and one-half miles south of this city, discovered and located two years ago by B. C. Burris, and of which he, Jesse Brown and M. F. Hill are owners, has been bonded to a wealthy Minneapolis company for a period of one year. The company, as soon as the weather is settled, will make a full exposure of the mineral-bearing ledge and inform themselves as to the probable quantity to be secured, as well as to its richness. If the investigation proves satisfactory the company will pay $1000 for each of the seven claims.

Deadwood—It is expected that a number of important law suits will be the result of the resistance to the law providing for the collection of taxes on mortgages. The commissioners of Lawrence county, acting on the advice of the state's attorney, have ordered the county treasurer to proceed with the collection of the taxes, and some of the mortgage holders are preparing to test the law in the courts. Assessors have been assessing mortgages for the last two years. In some cases the taxes have been paid, but in a majority of them collection has been resisted, the mortgage holders paying their other taxes, but refusing to pay taxes on their mortgages, and filing affidavits with the treasurer declaring that their mortgage taxes are not to be collected legally, holding that the law cannot be enforced. Mortgages are assessed for about one-third of their value.

Bonesteel—Late reports from the gold discovery on the Fink farm, six miles southeast of Bonesteel, indicate that the mine is a bonanza. Several pieces of the quartz rock have been assayed and show a value of over $50 to the ton.

The Commercial club is in receipt of letters stating that Colonel James H. McLaughlin, United States Indian inspector, will be here early in May for the purpose of closing negotiations with the Rosebud Sioux Indians whereby they cede 416,000 acres of land in Gregory county to the government. This tract of land will, no doubt, be thrown open for homestead settlement early in 1904.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Fargo—The Scottish Rite Masons of this state have arranged to have a re-union in the Bad Lands near Medora in July. The meeting is contingent on whether the number of applications will reach thirty-five, but there seems no doubt about it. A special dispensation has been secured and the meeting will be held in some of the famous plains near Medora, out in the open. Wives of the members of the Scottish Rite will accompany them on the outing.

Since the row over the school superintendency there has been much discussion over the successor of Superintendent Smith. Some members of the board are reported to be anxious to elect an eastern man to the position, while others favor some of the bright young principals in the smaller towns of the state. Sentiment is crystalizing in favor of North Dakota talent and Superintendent Hoover of the Park River schools would be acceptable to many of the patrons.

Mohall—The controller of the currency has approved the application of H. H. Steele, H. N. Peck, E. B. Page, H. J. Huland and M. A. Benson to organize the First National Bank of Mohall.

Enderlin—An unknown man fell from the east-bound passenger train at Venloe, on the Soo, and was instantly killed. The head was severed from the body and both legs were cut off.

MOVEMENT IS INCREASING

The Federation of Catholic Societies Continues to Grow.

New York, April 13.—The importance of the step taken by Archbishop Farley this week toward federating the Catholic societies of New York state and bringing them into the national federation is just beginning to be appreciated by Catholics. The federation will represent a membership of more than 1,000,000 men, 200,000 of whom hail from New York.

Although New York has been the last state to enter the federation, its founder, Bishop McFaul, of Trenton, is closely allied with the New York archdiocese. In outlining the history of the American federation Bishop McFaul made this statement:

"Since the Columbian exposition the Catholic societies of the United States have been tending to a national federation. At the Chicago convention there were four states already organized and ten more in progress. The movement is increasing every year so fast that it is expected that most of the societies will be represented at the convention in Atlantic City in July, and it is not too much to predict that all the leading societies will send delegates to the convention which will likely be held at the Louisiana Purchase exposition in 1904. To account for this rapid prdogress it must be observed that the federation has met with no serious opposition. Its promoters have never attempted to constrain any society to take part in the movement, and from the first they have insisted that every organization thus federated should maintain its autonomy and freedom of action.

"By deed rather than by assertion they have lived down the charge that they were seeking to form a political union. In their public actions they have avoided everything that could savor of politics, notably in their Cincinnati and Chicago conventions, held at a time when Catholics considered they had just provocation for adopting political measures.

"When the entire Catholic body was aroused last summer by what seemed at the time to be detrimental to the interests of the church in the Philippines, the dignified and loyal attitude of the federation's delegates in Chicago did much to inspire confidence in the administration and t oinform the American public of the true state of affairs in those islands. In this way the movement has been benefited rather than hurt by the accusation that it is political and anti-administration in tendency.

"The framers of the constitution of the American Federation of Catholic societies acted wisely in declaring:

"'Partisan politics shall not be discussed in any of the meetings of the convention of the federation or subordinate body of the federation, nor shall this body or any subordinate body thereof indorse any candidate for public office.'

"From the start this enactment precluded the possibility of utilizing the organization as an instrument to advance party measures or to control votes or political patronage for any party or personal advantage, and lifted the whole movement to the high plane befitting a body with such exalted religious, social and civil aims."

ROBBED THE GRAVE.

A startling incident is narrated by John Oliver, of Philadelphia, as follows: "I was in an awful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides, no appetite, growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Then I was advised to use Electric Bitters; to my great joy the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50 cents, guaranteed, at Abbett's drug store.

A CULTURED RACE

Existed In Peru Thousands of Years Ago.

San Francisco, April 13.—The earliest American civilization far ante-dating the generally accepted limits of pre-Columbian cultures, have been traced in Peru by Dr. Max Uhle, director of the anthropological excavations and explorations of the university of California in that country, where, heretofore, Inca traditions had led scientists to believe Peruvian civilization only a few centuries before the coming of the Spaniards. The archaeological work of Dr. Uhle has established the fact that a great civilization flourished 2000 years earlier at the least, and that a cultured race, of higher development than the Incas was in existence before the Trojan war.

This remarkable discovery is a result of a study made in the two expeditions which Dr. Uhle led in recent years at the expense of Mrs. Phoebe Hearst and under the auspices of the university of California.

TRAGEDIES AT BUFFALO

Murder, Suicides and Attempted Suicides Were Easter Features.

Buaffalo, N. Y., April 13.—A shooting affray in which a 9-year-old boy was killed and a woman mortally wounded, an attempted murder, two suicides and two attempts at suicide that may result fatally, occurred in this city last night.

Joseph Kwaitkowsky, 51 years old, a representative Polish citizen, is locked up at police headquarters charged with shooting his landlady and killing his own 9-year-old boy.

Kwaitkowsky formerly conducted an extensive business in one of the markets of this city. His wife died about a year ago, leaving two children. Since the death of his wife business difficulties drove him to drink. For the last four months he has lived in rooms. The owner of the house, Mrs. Tekla Wolinski, her husband and their children occupied the rear part of the building. The children of the two families were constantly quarreling. Last night Kwaitkowsky returned home and found the children in the usual turmoil. Mrs. Wolinski notified him that he would have to move, whereupon Kwaitkowsky drew a revolver and began firing, backing out of the house as he did so. Mrs. Wolinski followed the infuriated Pole and grappled with him. He pointed the revolver at her breast and fired. She fell to the ground mortally wounded. Kwaitkowsky tired several more shots, one of them striking his own 9-year-old son, Peter, killing him instantly. A large crowd quickly gathered and Kwaitkowsky retreated into the house, and locked the door behind him. Five officers in plain clothes, who were on duty in the vicinity, surrounded the house. The Pole barricaded the doors and began firing through the windows at the officers. The policemen crept up alongside the house and endeavored to get a shot at the Pole. They fired about thirty shots through the windows but failed to hit him. Kwaitkowsky continued to fire until his ammunition was exhausted. The officers then battered down the front door. They found the Pole hiding in a closet. He gave a desperate battle with a stiletto before he finally was overpowered.

George Denning, 55 years old, had been separated from his wife for some time. He called upon her today and tried to induce her to resume marital relations.

She refused. He drew a revolver and fled. She fell to the floor in a faint, and believing that he had killed her, Denning ran away. His body was found later in the evening. He had taken poison.

Miss Mar--- Beers, 20 years old, an actress, took morphine. She is dead.

Bertha Vaughn, 23 years old, swallowed a dose of vitroil. Her condition is serious.

Miss Blanche Murphy, after a quarrel last evening with an unknown man, who disappeared, swallowed a quantity of laudanum. She was taken to a hospital.

Lawrence Ratajazak last night shot and instantly killed John Nowak, 20 years old. Eye witnesses of the shooting differ in their statements regarding the affair and the police have not yet determined whether it was a case of manslaughter or murder.

STREET CAR HELD UP.

Highwaymen Make a Good Haul In Chicago.

Chicago, April 13.—Three masked men held up a street car near Garfield Park, in this city, at an early hour yesterday and robbed seven passengers, the conductor and motorman of about $100, a gold watch and some jewelry. The highwaymen boarded the car near Sacramento avenue. One kept guard on the front and one on the rear platform, while the third entered the car and, at the point of a revolver, forced the occupants to give up their valuables. The only woman on the car fell on her knees praying for mercy, but without avail. The matter was not reported to the police for several hours, and no clue has been found to what is the boldest holdup of the kind in this city since October, 1895.

BURNED TO DEATH.

Two Persons Lose Lives In Indianapolis Fire.

Indianapolis, Ind., April 13.—Nathan Morris, one of the best known attorneys of Indiana, and Frank Haas, the 12-year-old son of Dr. Joseph Haas, was burned to death yesterday morning, and Mrs. Joseph Haas, Miss Belle Haas, Misss Rose Haas, Louis Haas and Grace Lemon, governess, were injured more or less seriously.

The residence of Joseph Haas, at No. 523 North Alabama street, was nearly burned to the ground. The fire started at 3 o'clock from the furnace. The family was asleep on the second floor. Mr. Morris was a brother of Mrs. Haas. From the position of his charred body when found, it was evident he was endeavoring to get the family out of the rooms when overcome by smoke and flames. The firemen succeeded in saving the other members of the family after heroic work, so rapidly did the flames spread. The body of Frank Haas and the unconscious governess were found on the back stairs. Louis Haas broke his leg jumping from a second story window. Mr. Morris was the senior member of the well-known commercial law firm of Morris & Haas. He was born in 1837 and has practiced here since 1877. The injured members of the Haas family are still in a serious condition, though it is believed all will recover. Mrs. Haas and one of her daughters are suffering and it was feared at first they had inhaled flames.

Dr. Haas, one of the best known physicians of the city, was at Lima, Ind., visiting his son at a military school.

EASTER AT ROME.

Rome, April 13.—Easter Sunday here was marked by magnificent weather. A private mass was held at the vatican with a few select guests. The pontiff was present, but for the first time in his pontificate he did not officiate personally. This circumstance has given rise to all kinds of rumors respecting Pope Leo's health, which, however, was well enough to receive a large number of Hungarian pilgrims.

A Good Beginning

If the blood is in good condition at the beginning of the warm season, you are prepared to resist disease and are not apt to be troubled with boils, pimples, blackheads and blotches, or the itching and burning skin eruptions that make one's life a veritable torment and misery.

Now is the time to begin the work of cleansing and building up the blood and strengthening the weak places in your constitution. During the cold winter months we are compelled to live indoors and breathe the impure air of badly ventilated rooms and offices. We over-work and over-eat, and get too little out-door exercise, and our systems become clogged with impurities and the blood a hot-bed of germs and humors of every kind, and warm weather is sure to bring a reaction, and the poisonous matter in the blood and system will break out in boils and pustules or scaly eruptions and red, disfiguring bumps and pimples. Make a good beginning this season by taking a course of S. S. S. in time; it will not only purify your blood and destroy the germs and poisons, but promote healthy action of the Liver and Kidneys and give you a good appetite at a time when you need it most.

S. S. S. improves the digestion and tones up the Stomach, and you are not continually haunted by the fear of indigestion every time you eat, or troubled with dizziness, nervousness and sleeplessness. There is no reason to dread the coming of warm weather if you have your system well fortified and the blood in a normal, healthy condition. It is the polluted, sluggish blood that invites disease germs, microbes and poisons of every kind and bring on a long train of spring and summer ailments, break down the constitution, and produce weakness, lassitude, and other debilitating disorders.

Eczema, Acne, Nettle-rash, Poison Oak and Ivy, and other irritating skin troubles are sure to make their appearance unless the humors and poisons are antidoted and the thin, acid blood made rich and strong before the coming of warm weather.

SSS

A course of S. S. S. now would be a safe precaution and a good beginning and enable you to pass in comfort through the hot, sultry months and escape the diseases common to spring and summer. S. S. S. is guaranteed purely vegetable and is recognized as the best blood purifier and the most invigorating and pleasant of all tonics. Write for our book on "The Blood and Its Diseases."

THE BEST TONIC AND APPETIZER.

While living in Sherman, Tex., I became a victim of impure, watery blood. I ran down in appetite and energy; was scarcely able to get about and had to stop off and rest occasionally. I took S. S. S. and began to improve at once, and after a thorough course became strong and well.

I think S. S. S. the best medicine I ever used as an appetizer and general tonic. J. G. SCOTT, 811 Railroad street, Rome, Ga.

WESTWARD HOE

To Be Presented By Members of a Harvard Society.

An Old English Play With Amusing Ideas of America.

Cambridge, Mass., April 13.—The performance of the Elizabethan play, "Eastward Hoe," which will be given in Cambridge this evening by members of the Delta Upsilon society of Harvard university, adds yet another to the increasing list of old English plays performed during the last few years at Harvard, Yale, Chicago and other American colleges and universities. Many of these old plays would unquestionably fail to hold a modern audience. It has been said of "Eastward Hoe," however—the joint work of three playrights, Marston, Chapman and "rare Ben Johnson," as he is described on his tomb in Westminster abbey—that it would still be playable after a certain amount of necessary editing to remove the characteristic grossness of many of the "good old plays."

But whether or not the play could be produced successfully in modern theaters, "Eastward Hoe," probably so named in reference to the cries of the boatmen who ferried pleasure seekers back and forth across the Thames in the days of the Blackfriar's theater, at which it was first presented is especially suited to interest American students of stage literature. Not only is it a well-knit comedy of early seventeenth century manners, but its dialogue touches upon America as it was then being talked of in London taverns and along the London water front. Two of its characters, an industrious and a vagabond apprentice, are supposed to have given the great English caricaturist, Hogarth, the suggestion which resulted in his famous series of cartoons called "The Idle and the Industrious Apprentice." And it was for an incidental mention of the Scotch, carefully excluded from later editions, that the three playrights were clapped into jail and were believed to be in danger of losing portions of their ears and noses.

Briefly told the story of "Eastward Hoe" depicts the victory of industry and content on the one hand and the overthrow of idleness and conceit on the other. An honest London goldsmith has two daughters, a wife and two apprentices. His wife, Mrs. Touchstone, has an ambition to belong to higher circles of society, which is shared by her daughter, Girtred, and reprobated by her daughter, Mildred. Of the two apprentices, Golding is a sober, industrious youth and Quicksilver is quite the opposite. Then there is Sir Petronel Flash, a poor and rascally knight, who plays upon the ambitions of Girtred and her mother simply to marry Girtred and so obtain possession of a small fortune with which belongs to her, meaning to desert her immediately after marriage and take ship for Virginia.

and abetted by the idle apprentice, is brought to failure by a storm which shipwrecks the boat in which the adventurers are leaving the Thames and throws them into the power of the law. And in the last act, after suffering imprisonment and promising to mend their ways thereafter, they are freed through the good offices of Mildred, now happily married to the industrious apprentice, who is himself well on the way to the worldly distinction of becoming an alderman.

Such is the brief skeleton of the play, lacking, of course, the humor which the playwrights enmbodied in its series of incidents and the very convincing picture which they have left of the London of the period. What that London thought about America, then typified by Virginia, is both amusing and instructive. One of the adventurers, who is planning to accompany Sir Petronal and Quicksilver to Viringia, asks the captain of their vessel whether there is much treasure there?

"I tell thee," says the captain, "gold is more plentiful there than copper is with us. All the chains with which they chain up their streets are pure gold; all the prisoners they take are fettered in gold; and as for rubies and diamonds, they go forth on holidays and gather them by the seashore, to hang on their children's coats, and stick in their children's caps; as commonly as our children wear saffron gilt brooches, and groats with holes in them."

"And is it a pleasant country withal?"

"As ever the sun shined on: temperate and full of all sorts of excellent viands; wild bear is as common there as our tamest bacon is here; venison is mutton. And then you shall live freely there, without selgrants, or courtiers, or lawyers, or intelligencers; only a few industrious Scots, perhaps, who indeed are dispersed over the face of the whole earth. But as for them there are no greater friends to Englishmen and England, when they are out on't, in the world, than they are; and for my own part, I would a hundred thousand of them were there; for we are all one countrymen now, you know, and we should find ten times more comfort of them there than here."

It was the captain's remark about the Scots that apparently got the joint authors of "Eastward Hoe" into immediate difficulty, although, even with a Scottish king on the throne and Scotch influence everywhere in evidence (to the disgust of a good proportion of the native Londoners), it seems a small matter to have made so much trouble. But Sir James Murray, a Scotch gentleman high in favor at the court, considered his people deeply insulted, and his influence with the king was sufficient to have Marston and Chapman immediately arrested. Johnson, hearing of the arrest, insisted upon sharing his collaborators' imprisonment, although he afterwards declared that he had nothing to do with the passage in question. The report that spread around London was that the authors were to be punished by having their ears and noses cut—one of the interesting penalties then provided by the laws of England. The affair, however, blew over without disastrous consequences, although Jonson's mother had prepared a poison which she had intended to mix with her son's drink in prison if the sentence had actually been executed —"a lustie strong poison, and that she was no churl, she told, she minded first to have drunk of it herself."

"Eastward Hoe" is the second play, with which Jonson was associated, that has been given at Harvard during the last decade, the other being his more famous "Epicoene, or the Silent Woman," produced some years ago, by the English department of the university in conjunction with members of the American Academy of the Dramatic Arts. On this occasion the entire environment of the old Elizabethan theater was reproduced—stage, actors and spectators—the modern audience sitting in the gallery of Sander's theater, where the performance was given, and looking down upon an Elizabethan audience assembled in an Elizabethan playhouse. Dekker's "Shoemaker's Holiday," produced also at Butler college, is another of the old dramas that have been given in Cambridge.

THE WESTERN COAL TRADE

Coal Operators Suffer By Oilers and Firemen's Strike.

Chicago, April 13.—The Black Diamond, reviewing the Western coal trade, says:

In the anthracite branch of the coal industry, trouble seems to occur with alarming frequency. No sooner was the strike difficulty in the anthracite region arbitrated than there were other sources of annoyance. In the Western trade, business is almost at a standstill this week, owing to the strike the firemen and oilers employed by the vessels in the great lakes' trade. Every preparation had been made for an early start in the movement of coal westward by water, and it was predicted two weeks ago that the tonnage moving by this time would assume considerable importance. On the first of the month the oilers and firemen went on strike and the situation has been deadlocked ever since. There are constant rumors at the lakes ports that the strike will soon be settled and that movement for the year will commence in earnest, but these apparently have no foundation, and until the vessel owners' association and the unions can get closer together than they are at present, it is probable that no tonnage of any consequence will be moved.

Coal operators are not involved in this struggle except that they suffer by reason of it. Coal is carried by vessel owners independent of the railroad companies in most instances, and the owners of these vessels are united in an association which has decided to fight the matter to the end. This being the case, the coal road companies and the anthracite coal operators cannot bring about a settlement even though they are disposed to do so.

Already ten days have elapsed during which no coal has been moved. It is true that one or two cargoes have left Erie ports, but the tonnage represented has been so inconsiderable as compared with that which it was expected would be moved that it constitutes no factor in the situation.

While quantities bare of anthracite at all important lake ports and with this coal tied up at loading points, the longer the strike continues the greater will be the curtailment in the tonnage moved West and consequently the influence it will have on the situation net fall.

Prices on anthracite hold steady without change from the circular basis announced last week. The principal selling agents at important points, however, are chafing at their continued helplessness and feel that they are losing precious time, which could be used to advantage. Retailers are also more or less disappointed as a result of this unexpected delay. In many instances they had taken orders much earlier than usual and had planned to fill them during the spring months, when business was slack and prices were the lowest.

In the bituminous trade, the most important feature of the trade has been the announcement of new Hocking coal prices in the all-rail trade. With the April discount deducted, which amounts to 90 cents a ton for the payment of bills on or before the 15th of the following month, the circular basis is as follows:

Lump, f. o. b. at the mine	$2.10
Steam lump, at the mine	2.00
Mine run, at the mine	1.85
Domestic nut, at the mine	1.85
Steam nut, at the mine	1.85
Pea, at the mine	1.85
Nut, pea and slack, at the mine	1.60
Coarse slack, at the mine	1.35
Fine slack at the mine	.90
Washed stove, at the mine	2.10
Washed chestnut, at the mine	2.10

This is an advance over the opening prices a year ago. Freight rates have also advanced from the mines to the distributing points. For instance, the rate a year ago from the Hocking field to Chicago was $1.50 per ton, and this year it will be $1.65 per ton. Rates to other points have advanced in proportion.

Contract making in Western territory is slow and very few large contracts have been closed up since last week. Large operators are restricted in their views as to the tonnage they want to contract, as compared with last year, and continue very firm in their views, while buyers are apparently still reluctant to meet the prices asked by the leading operating interests. Some spot coal still remains on track at Chicago and a few other points, and while this can be obtained steam users are neglecting to make contracts. There is more of the tendency on the part of contract buyers, however, to take hold than there was, and, after considerable shopping around during the week, some additional contracts have been closed.

ALLEGED TRAITOR BEATEN.

Cleveland, Ohio, April 13.—Peter Jensen, an alleged traitor to the Lake Seamen's union, was badly beaten yesterday on the docks by men who got away before the police responded to a riot call. Jensen was charged by his co-workers with hiring men as deckhands, but in reality worked as firemen, there being a strike among the latter. William Penn, of Chicago, secretary of the Lake Seamen's union, will come to Cleveland for a conference in the matter. Organizer Taber has placarded the city, warning the men from the lake docks.

GROWTH OF TRADE

In the Various Countries and Sections of the World.

Comparison Makes Satisfactory Showing For the United States.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, April 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—The story of the world's commerce, past and present, is told in the "Statistical Abstract of the World," the first chapter of which has just made its appearance in the monthly publication of the treasury bureau of statistics, is an interesting one. This first chapter of the Statistical Abstract of the World presents the figures of the commerce of every country of the world, so far as obtainable, extending back as far as possible; in some cases only a decade or two, in others a full century. The figures are expressed in United States currency, and the subsequent chapters, which will discuss quantities as well as values, will also be expressed in terms of United States weights and measures.

These figures tell the story of the growth of comemrce in the various countries and sections of the world, and a comparison of the progress made by the various countries makes a very satisfactory showing for the United States. The countries discussed are grouped by grand divisions. In Europe a very large proportion of the countries show larger imports than exports. In America, and indeed most of the younger countries, the exports exceed the imports, save in a few instances in which the country is so extremely young that it has not developed its producing powers. In the Orient some countries, notably India, export more than they import; while in other cases, notably Japan and China, the imports exceed the exports.

Taking the European countries in the alphabetical order in which they are arranged, Austria-Hungary shows a growth in imports from $210,000,000 in 1870 to $325,000,000 in 1901, and in exports from $192,000,000 to $383,000,000, showing an excess of exports in 1901 amounting to $58,000,000. Belgium's imports grew from $177,000,000 in 1870 to $428,000,000 in 1901, and her exports from $133,000,000 to 353,000,000, the balance showing an excess of imports amounting in 1901 to $75,000,000. France increased her imports from $553,000,000 to $843,000,000, and her exports from $541,000,000 to $774,000,000, the trade balance being an excess of $69,000,000 of imports in 1901. Germany's imports increased from $775,000,000 in 1872 to $1,290,000,000 in 1901, and her exports from $551,000,000 in 1872 to $1,054,000,000 in 1901, the trade balance being in 1901 $236,000,000 of imports. Italy shows a growth in imports from $172,000,000 in 1870 to $331,000,000 in 1901, and in exports from $146,000,000 to $264,000,000, the trade balance being $67,000,000 excess of imports. Netherlands increased her imports from $187,000,000 in 1870 to $818,000,000 in 1901, and her exports from $153,000,000 to $696,000,000, the trade balance being $122,000,000 excess of imports. Russia's imports grew from $201,000,000 in 1870 to $322,000,000 in 1900, and her exports from $216,000,000 to $369,000,000, exports exceeding imports in 1900 by $47,000,000. Spain shows a growth in imports of from $101,000,000 in 1870 to $183,000,000 in 1901, and her exports increased from $77,000,000 to $152,000,000, the trade balance United Kingdom increased her imports from $1,259,000,000 in 1870 to $2,210,000,000 in 1901, and her exports from $971,000,000 to $1,363,000,000, the excess of imports over exports in 1901 being $847,000,000.

Turning to Asia and Oceania, the figures of the trade of India show a growth in imports from $160,000,000 in 1870 to $264,000,000 in 1902, and in exports from $255,000,000 to $403,000,000, the trade balance being $139,000,000 excess of exports in 1902. China's imports grew from $100,000,000 in 1870 to $190,000,000 in 1901, and her exports from $87,000,000 to $120,000,000, imports exceeding exports in 1901 by $70,000,000. Japan increased her imports from $35,000,000 in 1870 to $127,000,000 in 1901, and her exports from $15,000,000 to $125,000,000, the trade balance being $2,000,000 excess of imports in 1901. The trade of Australasia is shown separately for each of the various colonies, but summarized shows $201,000,000 of imports and $223,000,000 of exports in 1900, exclusive of the intercolonial trade, the balance thus being $22,000,000 excess of exports.

Considering the principal American countries, the figures show for Mexico a growth in imports from $20,000,000 in 1873 to $62,000,000 in 1901, and in exports from $28,000,000 in 1877 to $35,000,000 in 1901, the excess of imports in 1901 being $29,000,000. This adverse trade balance, however, is largely made up by exportations of silver, which in 1901 amounted to $35,000,000. The British West Indies increased their imports from $21,000,000 in 1970 to $32,000,000 in 1901, and their exports from $23,000,000 to $29,000,000, the excess of imports in 1901 being $3,000,000. The figures include inter-island commerce. Taking up the principal British West Indian colonies separately, it may be said that the imports during 1901 were: Barbadoes, $5,000,000; Jamaica, $8,000,000, and Trinidad, $12,000,000; and the exports in that year, Barbadoes, $4,500,000; Jamaica, $9,000,000, and Trinidad, $11,500,000. Canada's imports increased from $74,000,000 in 1870 to $212,000,000 in 1902, and her exports from $73,000,000 to $211,000,000, the trade balance being $630,000 excess of imports in 1902; though in most of the years since 1894 the figures show an excess of exports ranging from $2,000,000 to $23,000,000. Argentina's imports increased from $47,000,000 in 1870 to $109,000,000 in 1901, and her exports from $29,000,000 to $161,000,000, exports thus exceeding imports in 1901 by $52,000,000. Brazil increased her imports from $9,000,000 in 1870 to $96,000,000 in 1901, and her exports from $89,000,000 to $197,000,000, the trade balance being an excess of $101,000,000 of exports. Chili's imports increased from $28,000,000 in 1870 to $50,000,000 in 1901, and her exports from $27,000,000 to $62,000,000, exports exceeding imports in 1901 by $12,000,000. For the United States the figures show a growth in imports from $436,000,000 in 1870 to $903,000,000 in 1902, and in exports from $376,000,000 to 1,355,000,000; the trade balance, which in 1870 was $60,000,000 excess of ports, was in 1902 $452,000,000 excess of exports. The excess of exports over imports for the United States alone is greater than that of all other countries of the world combined.

Note.—In the above comparisons domestic exports have been used wherever practicable.

ALL-BRITISH COLONY.

No American Settlers Are Wanted at Saskatoon.

St. John, N. B., April 13.—The steamer Lake Manitoba, with the Barr party of British immigrants on board, docked yesterday. Yesterday afternoon the first train load of immigrants started for Saskatoon, in the Northwest, and another followed at night. It has been stated that in every township founded a quarter section would be given by the Canadian government to a Canadian or American who may be acquainted with the best methods of working the land, to serve as an instructor to the Britishers. Rev. Mr. Barr, leader of the party, says that they do not want any Americans. He denies that he has any feeling against Americans, but he says the idea which caught the British public was that of an all-British colony, and this he proposes to carry out. Three townships will be formed.

Mr. Barr says there will be 1500 more Britishers out next month and 10,000 next year, all for Saskatoon.

SLIGHTLY HIGHER

Wheat Started Out Higher But Eased Off a Little.

Flax Was Fairly Active and the Market Lower.

Duluth Board of Trade, April 13.—The wheat market started out fairly strong this morning and after advancing reacted suddenly and then ruled steady. Chicago reported that the bull leader in May was doing nothing, and that a special feature in the situation was the large amount of contract wheat taken for private elevators, 122 cars being reported.

Primary receipts of wheat were 638,000 bus, last year 565,000 bus. Shipments 308,000 bus, last year 820,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour were 233,000 bus. The world's shipments last week aggregated 8,377,000 bus, against 11,620,000 bus the previous week and 8,062,000 bus last year. The amount on passage decreased 216,000 bus.

Receipts of wheat at Duluth and Minneapolis, 524 cars, and at Chicago 27, a total of 340 cars, against 439 last week and 208 last year.

May corn in the Chicago market closed ⅝c higher and May oats slumped off ⅛c. Primary receipts of corn were 392,000 bus, last year 912,000 bus. Shipments, 189,000 bus, last year 171,000 bus. Clearances of corn were 201,000 bus. World's shipments of corn last week were 3,299,000 bus, against 3,589,000 bus the previous week and 2,851,000 bus last year. The amount on passage decreased 2,165,000 bus.

Trading in wheat on the Duluth board was very light. The market opened with May ⅝c up at 75¼c. It sold at 75⅝c at 9:32 and fell off to 75¾c at 9:35. It again sold at 76⅝c and then fell to 75-⅛c at 11:05. From that point it rallied to 75¼c at 11:20 and then fell off again and closed at 75c, an advance for the day of ⅛c. Minneapolis was a shade higher, Chicago unchanged and New York ¼ lower.

Cash prices continued at ¼c over May for No. 1 northern to arrive and 1¼c under for No. 2. Sales were practically nothing.

Flax was fairly active and lower. May sold ½c off to $1.09¾ and then rallied to $1.10 and closed there. July also closed with a loss of ¼c but September advanced ½c. Car receipts were 32 at Duluth and 28 at Minneapolis.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat to arrive, No. 1 hard, 77¼c; No. 1 northern, 75¼c; No. 2 northern, 73¾; May, No. 1 hard 77c; No. 1 northern, 75c; July, 74⅝c. Flax, cash, $1.09; to arrive, $1.10; track, $1.09; May, $1.09; July, $1.11¾; September, $1.12¾; October, $1.12½; November, $1.11. Oats, to arrive, 32c; on track, 32c; May, 32½. Rye, on track, 49c; to arrive, 49c; May, 49½c. Barley, 35@51c. Cars inspected: Wheat, 2; last year, 9; oats, 1; barley, 2; flax, 32c. Receipts: Wheat, 40,450; oats, 4800; rye, 500; barley, 2693; flax, 79,352. Shipments: Wheat, 20,717; barley, 202,134.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Good Demand For Wheat With Prices Strong.

Chicago, April 13.—There was a good demand for both May and July wheat at the start and opening prices were strong, May being unchanged to ¼c higher at 75⅛@75⅜c while July was unchanged to ⅛c higher at 70½c. The leader of the bull campaign of last week was apparently resting on his oars, as there was no evidence of either selling or buying from that source. Under the influence of the heavy buying by locals May advanced to 75⅝c but reacted again as suddenly as it advanced, to 75⅜c, where a steadier tone prevailed. July steadied around 71c, after selling up to 71¼c. A special feature in the situation was the large amount of contract wheat taken from private elevators, 122 cars being reported. Minneapolis and Duluth reported direcelpts of 344 cars, which with local receipts of 27 cars, none of contract grade, made total receipts for the three points of 341 cars, against 439 cars last week and 208 cars a year ago.

The market was extremely unsettled until late in the day when trading became less active and a steady tone prevailed. May and July closed unchanged at 75¼ and 70⅝c.

Trading in corn was active and opening prices were strong under the influence of unfavorable weather being ¼@⅜c higher at 42⅞@43⅜c. Under a good commission house demand for May the market became still stronger. May advancing to 43¼c and holding firm at the advance. Local receipts were 84 cars, none of contract grade.

Prices were firm and May closed ⅝c higher at 43⅝c.

Oats opened firm in sympathy with other grains and May was a shade higher at 32⅝c. The volume of trading was light, but with a fair demand from scalpers and with few offerings the market became stronger. May selling up to 33⅛c. Local receipts were 143 cars.

Provisions opened easier, influenced by the weaker hog market. May pork being 2½c lower at $17.20; May lard a shade lower at $9.85 and ribs unchanged at $9.82½. There was some covering by shorts and with offerings rather light a better tone developed. May pork being especially strong and selling up to $17.80.

Close: Wheat, May, 75¾c; July, 70⅝c; September, 68c. Corn, April, 32⅝c; May, 43⅜c; July, 43¾@43⅝c; September, 43¼@43½c. Oats, April, 32⅝c; May, 32⅝c; July, 29⅝c; September, 27⅝c. Pork, May, $17.85; July, $17.35; September, $17.05. Lard, May, $9.87½@9.90; July, $9.72½; September, $9.65@9.67½. Rye, May, 50c; July, 50c. Flax, cash Northwestern, $1.10; Southwestern, $1.07; May, $1.12. Timothy, April, $3.50. Clover, April, $12.60. Barley, cash, 42@53c. GRAIN GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—The market here was almost lifeless. The recent Armour manipulation has brought both the pit and outside trade pretty much to a stand-still. Armour is still undoubtedly long a good big line of wheat, but on present conditions he would have great difficulty in buying more or selling any. The market may get some color and tone from the cables tomorrow. Cash situation was slow. The eastern European political situation is being watched, but so far it is not a factor in the market of prices. Estimated cars 35.

Corn—Market here was firmer in tone and rather more active. There was some little improvement in the shipping but the strength came mainly from pit conditions and the covering of shorts. The decrease in the visible supply was also bullish. Speculative operations are, however, not large or interesting. Estimated cars 105. Oats—Market was quiet and firm. There is little of interest either in the cash situation or speculative trade at the moment.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Figures printed by the Oregonian show wheat and flour shipments from Oregon and Washington for the first nine months of the current year, present an aggregate of over 26,300,000 bushels from all ports. The amount already shipped, together with that now in sight for the remaining three months of the season, assures total shipments for the year ending June 30, of at least 31,000,000 bushels at an approximate value of over $22,500,000. This great amount of money distributed in sparsely settled states of Oregon, Washington and Idaho is sufficient of itself to keep wheels of trade moving in a long line of industries throughout the Northwest.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, April 13.—The cotton market after opening steady at an advance of 16@3 points became still stronger, thought by no means active, except as made so from time to time by efforts on the part of shorts to cover. Weather conditions were calculated to increase bear confidence. The local bear contingent, however, was made timid by the presence of the New Orleans bull leader, in company with the pool manager, who appeared to be co-operating for higher prices in both markets, the local result being a new record. May contracts selling up to $10.49, July to $10.11, August to $9.49; September at 8.86; October at 8.55 and December at 8.40 within the first hour. There was no news to explain this rise.

There was more or less strike news current at this point following the Lowell, Mass., demonstration, but it failed to exercise any immediate influence. In the absence of cable news from Liverpool, owing to the holidays all classes of traders showed caution.

In the last half hour May cotton touched 10.63 and July 10.20, the record prices. It was understood on the exchange that Wall street was a heavy buyer of July for short account. The bull leader supported May during the entire session.

Cotton spot closed quiet 15 points higher. Mid ups 10.6[illegible]; mid gulf 10.90. Sales 934 bales. The cotton futures closed steady: April 10.5[illegible]; May 10.60; June 10.20; July 10.18; August 9.56; September 8.86; October 8.56; November 8.45; December 8.43.

"OH, FUDGE!"

Exclaimed Mrs. Grantier When Accused of Hypnotizing

Chicago, April 13.—"As a physician and a student of hypnotism I sincerely believe that Mrs. A. W. Grantier exerted an occult influence over my wife and compelled her to leave me."—Dr. Mathew Bozinch.

"Hypnotism? Oh, fudge."—Mrs. A. W. Grantier.

Mrs. Bozinch, a tall, blonde beauty who could throw most light upon the puzzling affair, has fled from her husband and cannot be found.

She has not been discovred, and now the doctor has sued his wife's dearest friend, Mrs. Grantier, alleging hypnotism.

But Mrs. Grantier says:

"Mrs. Bozinch left her husband because he was cruel to her. She came to my house one day covered with bruises and asked me to protect her.

"So he charges me with having alienated his wife's affections, does he? Well, there weren't many affections to alienate. He did not behave well to her, and she liked me and left him."

A BREAK IN STOCKS

Sharp Slump In Northern Securities on the Curb.

The General Market Affected and Prices Took a Drop.

New York, April 13.—Shares of the Northern Securities were extremely weak on the curb today, selling off to 98½, a decline of 5½ points from last Thursday's closing quotations, during the early session. Much of the selling came from stock exchange houses and there seemed to be no support. There is little doubt that some of today's selling was of a forced character. The course of Northern Securities was not without its effect on the general market, prices receding considerably. Declines of 2 to 3 points were common. Call money was offered at 7 per cent, but the demand was light. During the noon hour Northern Securities broke to 97 and then rallied a point. The break in Northern Securities to 97 shortly after noon was followed by increased weakness all through the active list. A number of standard railway shares made new low records for the present moment, including Pennsylvania and New York Central. The decline in these issues was less severe than in a number of others, for example Atchison, Baltimore & Ohio, Northwestern, St. Paul, Delaware & Hudson, Union Pacific and Rock Island, all of which broke 3 or more points. Lackawanna fell 10 points on very light trading, St. Louis & San Francisco com., 6½. Reading, 4¼ and Erie seconds, 4½. There was a 10-point decline in American Express on a sale of 100 shares. Southern Pacific sold off to within a fraction of its recent low record. Common report attributed the severe break to heavy selling by the American clique and a prominent local operator. So far as could be learned in the early afternoon the banks were not calling loans, but brokers were demanding additional margin from customers.

New York, April 13.—With the London stock exchange still closed for Easter Monday there was nothing to indicate the outside view of the Northern Securities decision before the opening here. Prices declined sharp fractions and in some cases made immediate recoveries, showing a very feverish tone. Reading was down ¼ and Pennsylvania, New York Central and Canadian Pacific ¾. Southern Pacific, after opening unchanged, advanced ¼. Secondary prices were better than the first prices. Prices moved jiffuily, though with an upward tendency. Most of the important losses were made when supporting orders appeared and in a few cases prices rose substantially above Thursday's close. St. Paul, Missouri Pacific, New York Central, Amalgamated and Sugar showed especial firmness and offset scattered selling of less well known stocks. Southern Pacific fluctuated feverishly. Near 11 o'clock the market became heavy and declined below the opening prices on active selling. St. Louis & San Francisco lost 3 net, Rock Island 1½, Reading 1¾ and St. Paul, Union Pacific, Canadian Pacific, Baltimore and Ohio, Norfolk and Western and Copper 1 to 1¾. Northern Securities on the curb sold down from 102⅜ to 101. Prices on the stock exchange showed close sympathy with the movement of Northern Securities on the curb. Support for that stock accompanied the rally on the exchange, but Northern Securities after a momentary rally broke violently to 98½, a loss from Thursday's final prices of 5½. This led to renewed liquidation on the stock exchange. Declines reached 2⅜ in the Pacifics, Atchison, St. Paul, Rock Island, Texas Pacific, Reading, Baltimore and Ohio, and other leading active stocks. Dealings were in large volume on the break. Bonds were heavy at noon in sympathy with stocks.

A drive against the Gould and Southern stocks checked a momentary rally and prices sagged rapidly. Texas Pacific broke 4, United States Express 4¾, St. Louis & San Francisco 6½ and American Express and Lackawanna 10. United States Steel preferred dropped 2⅜ to 83. Southern Pacific fell to 64⅜ and bounded up again to 66 with some slight effect on other active stocks. Liquidation was renewed on a large scale just before 1 o'clock in St. Paul, Baltimore & Ohio, Union Pacific, Reading and Missouri Pacific. Losses generally ran from 2½ to over 4 points in the active list and the level of prices was the lowest of the current downward movement.

There were a few feeble rallies when the pressure of liquidation momentarily relaxed, but prices dropped weakly again to the lowest of the day before 2 o'clock. Losses extended in St. Louis & San Francisco to 8½, Reading 5½, Illinois Central 4¼, Union Pacific 4¼, St. Paul 4, Missouri Pacific 5⅜, Amalgamated 3¾ and New York Central and Pennsylvania 2⅜. Additional declines in the last hour caused losses for Wells Fargo of 19½; Great Northern preferred, 10; Soo preferred, 6½; Anaconda, 6; Reading, 5⅜; Baltimore & Ohio, 5; Hocking Valley and Northwestern, 4⅝, and General Electric 4½. In order to cover shorts the bears had to bid up prices 1 to 1¼ for St. Paul, Union Pacific, Canadian Pacific, Missouri Pacific, Atchison, Illinois Central, Pennsylvania, Baltimore & Ohio, Reading, Louisville & Nashville, Amalgamated, Sugar, Manhattan and Brooklyn Transit. Selling was renewed at the higher level and prices yielded again within a fraction of the lowest. The closing was rather quiet but heavy.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market is active and weak. The unfavorable decision to the merger in the Securities case was a shock sufficient for an already overloaded market. Fears of governmental attack upon other combinations of a like character pervades the existing sentiment. There was a lot of scattered liquidation and a great deal of pressure from professional short selling. The market showed some steadiness at the close, but the rallies were unimportant. The break has stirred up outside interest to some extent and there was more steadiness at the close, but the rallies were unimportant. The break has stirred up outside interest to some extent and there was more scattered buying of stocks than for some time past. The banks came to the aid of the market with cheap money. After so severe a break, barring accidents, of course, some rally is due. We see no reason, however, to pin our faith to a sustained bull market. The lead is too big and the drift of events seem to be against prices.

Town Topics: We do not believe the decision should be interpreted as also affecting other railroads owning stock in competitive lines. The progress of the so-called community of interest is only temporarily checked by Northern Securities decision, for concentration is the tendency of the times the anti-trust law will be repealed if necessary. Value is not destroyed and the news could not have come at a better time for the stock market, which is over sold has had a big decline and contains no public interest. The prospective record breaking wheat crop, better money conditions and improvement in the iron and copper trades still incline us to be bullish and in fact the Northern Securities decision seems to us to be a real benefit in one way, viz: It will prevent a wholesale organization of holdings companies and a further increase of undigested securities giving an opportunity for the absorption of new stock now on the market.

THREATENS TO DISCLOSE

Scandals Involving Naval Officers With Beautiful Hawaiian Women.

Oakland, Cal., April 13.—The fight for the guardianship of Aytia Leonie Ashton, a pretty little Hawaiian girl, 5 years of age, has taken a sensational turn. The name of Rear Admiral Merry, U. S. N., retired, has been dragged into the proceedings in court. Frank Ashton, a San Francisco real estate agent, and the child's father, has been doing everything possible to obtain possession of his daughter, and he has intimated that unless Mrs. Ashton, who was divorced from him a year ago, releases her claim, he will make exposure of her past gayety with one of the best known American naval officers.

The Ashtons were married six years ago in Honolulu, and a year ago Mrs. Ashton was granted a divorce and the custody of their little daughter, then 4 years of age, was awarded to Ashton's mother. A short time ago Mrs. Ashton secured possession of the child on the pretense that she wanted to see her for only a few hours. The father began habeas corpus proceedings and regarding Rear Admiral Merry's share in the scandal, it is said, Ashton forced his former wife to give up the little girl by threatening to make public the letters.

KEENE QUITS MARKET.

Will Go to Europe For a Long Rest.

New York, April 13.—James R. Keene, has completed his short contracts in the market, got rid of his odds and ends, closed out his speculative securities, and is preparing for a vacation of several months in England. At least this is the story that is current in Wall street, and it is generally believed, although Mr. Keene's representatives are not inclined to discuss it.

It is known, however, that the great operator has determined to seek rest and quiet, and to that end has leased an estate in England, where he will live for several months. His only recreation will be found in attending the principal race meets, in which he has many entries. It is said that Mr. Keene will sail for England as soon as his health permits. He does not desire to be burdened with any stock market commitments.

It is common report in Wall street that what Mr. Keene has lost in his Southern Pacific venture he has made up in his campaign on the short side of the market which began about three months ago.

TO SUCCEED YUNG LU.

Pekin, April 13.—Prince Ching, president of the foreign office has been appointed grand secretary in succession to the late Yung Lu.

GOLATE IS KILLED

By Loine Stilto In a Row at Stevenson Mine.

Shot In the Brain and Died Two Hours Later.

Hibbing, Minn., April 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—Dominico Golate was killed at 6:30 o'clock last night by Loine Stilto at a dance at the Stevenson mine, six miles west of here. The men were Italians and quarreled. They went outside and engaged in a rough and tumble fight, during which Stilto pulled a revolver and shot Golate in the right eye, the bullet lodging in the brain.

The wounded man was brought to Rood's hospital, and died two hours later. The murderer escaped and has not been apprehended. Golate was 30 years of age and leaves a family.

CLERGY AS POLICEMEN.

Voters of Wisconsin Towns Ask Their Appointment.

Milton Junction, Wis., April 13.—A petition signed by fifty voters of this place has been filed with the town clerk asking that Rev. C. M. Starkweather and Rev. Thomas W. Norton, Methodist ministers, be appointed police officers for the villages of Milton and Milton Junction. Both were prominent in the fight against licenses, which resulted in a victory for the no-license party. They will be appointed, as it is believed they will enforce the law and end violations of the liquor regulations.

WEDDING GUESTS COMING.

London, April 13.—The White Star liner Celtic, which sailed from Liverpool for New York Wednesday, will have among her passengers the marquis and marchioness of Hertford, Lord Edward Seymour and Lady Jane Seymour, who are to attend the wedding of the earl of Yarmouth at Pittsburg, Pa., to Miss Alice Thaw, of that city.

Prospects For Industrial Exposition Are Brightening Steadily.

Large Number of Tickets Already Disposed Of.

"The prospects for the Northern Minnesota and St. Louis County Agricultural, Mechanical and Industrial exposition which will be held in this city next August, continues to grow brighter and brighter," declared Secretary Thomas E. Hill, of the association, this afternoon.

"Every encouragement is being extended by the local business concerns to whom the matter has been broached and although but a limited amount of territory has thus far been canvassed for membership certificates 200 have already been sold, representing the sale in advance of 4000 tickets."

Mr. Hill says that no effort has yet been made to reach the people outside the immediate business center but that from now on until August the fair proposition will be pushed.

A circular is being issued weekly containing the names of all subscribers to membership tickets, together with their business address, which is to be scattered widely and serve as a sort of business directory besides giving the fair advertising. The circular will also contain the names of the business firms and professional men on the ranges and surrounding towns who are assisting in the movement.

CONFESSION DEMANDED

By Counsel For Howard But Is Not Forthcoming.

Frankfort, Ky., April 13.—Counsel for James Howard, on trial for the third time for the murder of William Goebel, filed on the opening of court today a written motion demanding a copy of the "Confession and evidence," given before the grand jury by Henry Youtsey, who is serving a life sentence as accessory. Attorney Franklin, for the commonwealth, denied that Youtsey had ever made a "confession" to him and refused to give his notes of the grand jury proceedings. The court overruled the motion.

Six witnesses, all of whom have testified in former trials of Howard, were examined. The defense made no cross examination except when the name of Howard was brought in.

ELEVATED CAR JUMPS TRACK.

Chicago, April 13.—John Sherman, a guard on the Metropolitan elevated railway, was probably fatally hurt, and many passengers were shaken up and badly frightened when the second car of a westbound train jumped the track early today. Sherman was crushed between the car and the side of the power house and was pinioned there until the wrecking crew arrived.

THE FERRY BIDS

Three Propositions Submitted to Board of Public Works.

Will Recommend Carrington For Contract at $30 a Day.

Just 536,876 people crossed the ship canal on the ferry boat Estelle during the past year, according to a statement of the owners of the boat.

These surprising figures were submitted to the board of public works today when the commissioners opened bids for the Park Point ferry service for the coming season.

The Estelle was offered at $27 a day. Charles F. Hartman, offered the E. T. Carrington at $30 a day and Frank Brower, of Ashland offered the little excursion boat Lucile, at $28 a day.

The board will not award the contract but will present the bids to the council, recommending that the contract be let to the Carrington on the ground that such a boat is demanded by public safety.

The Carrington, it is claimed, can carry 480 passengers at a trip with perfect safety and is said to be very staunch.

The Lucile is regarded as the best equipped boat for such ferry service but the city is not willing to pay $28 a day for any boat afloat.

The bids were submitted on the basis of a twenty-minute service, stops to be made at the Lake avenue and Park Point docks as at present. The question of a Fifth avenue West landing was not presented.

It is announced that a delegation of Park Point citizens and Minnesota Point cottagers will appear before the council urging the award of the contract to the Carrington as many of the these people recently petitioned the city to refuse the service of the Estelle on the ground that a boat more staunch than she seemed to be would inspire greater confidence in the safety of those compelled to cross and recross the canal each day of the year.

AGREEMENT NOT YET REACHED

City and Furnace Company Still Working Over the Terms.

The representatives of the city and the Zenith Furnace company's representatives were working at high pressure this afternoon endeavoring to formulate the gas deal agreement in such a manner that it could be presented to the council this evening.

Among other items of news meagrely given out by those in the conference was an intimation that to begin with the gas might be furnished from the Zenith company's coke oven system at a rate of 90 cents per 1000 feet for illuminating and cooking purposes and 75 cents per 1000 feet for gas for other purposes.

The city will not award a gas franchise to the Zenith Furnace company, but will draw up a long term gas furnishing contract along the lines of the agreement reached between the furnace people and the water and light commissioners.

The drafting of this contract will be left to City Attorney Mitchell, who has just returned from a business trip to Iowa and St. Paul, and who has not participated in the negotiations up to this time. As a result Mr. Mitchell will have to make an examination of the agreement and then draw up his contract, and one of the members of the conference said that it might be impossible to get the matter properly before the council this evening, and in that event it would go over until next week.

THOSE WHO HAVE DIED

Boston, April 13.—The Rev. Clarence E. Eberman, aged 41 years, field secretary of the United Society of Christian Endeavor, is dead. News of his death, which occurred at Banff, Northwest territory, yesterday, was received here today. Mr. Eberman was on a convention tour accompanied by his wife. His death was due to virulent typhoid fever, complicated with contestion of the lungs.

Huntington, W. Va., April 13.—William A. Smith, a noted Confederate general, died here today from pneumonia, aged 73.

Chattanooga, Tenn., April 13.—Col. J. E. McGowan, the veteran editor-in-chief of the Chattanooga Times, died last evening.

OFFICERS RETALIATE.

Friends of Corbin to Leave Metropolitan Club.

Washington, April 13.—In retaliation for the affront offered Gen. Henry C. Corbin, the high officials of the army and navy are preparing to resign in a body from the fashionable Metropolitan club. Since the refusal of the club to permit Gen. Corbin to become a member, his friends have been working for revenge.

At a meeting held by the Corbin supporters called by Gen. S. M. B. Young, the best way of securing it was discussed and it was practically agreed that by resigning in a body they would be able to show in the most emphatic way their disapproval of the club's action and their loyalty to the adjutant general of the army.

Society women of Washington have taken a hand in the fight. Upon receiving negative replies to the letters which they sent their men friends, requesting favorable action on Gen. Corbin's name, they decided to cut the names of his enemies in the club from their invitation lists. If the threat to resign is carried out it will remove from the club such prominent army and navy officers as Gen. Young, Paymaster General Bates, Gen. Gillespie, Gen. Wallace F. Randolph, Gen. Anson Mills, Capt. Cowles, the president's brother-in-law, Admiral Bowles, Admiral Taylor and possibly Admiral Dewey. It is said that Secretaries Root and Moody may also leave the club as an indication of their disapproval.

TRANSFER MADE

Capt. D. D. Gaillard, Government Engineer, to Leave Duluth.

Capt. Potter of Memphis Coming—Maj. Sears to Nashville.

Special orders from the headquarters of the United States army, Adjt. Gen. H. C. Corbin's office, at Washington, under the date of April 9, were received today at the engineer's office for the Lake Superior district, announcing a large number of changes and transfers in the United States engineering corps, by the direction of the secretary of war.

Capt. D. D. Gaillard, engineer in charge of this district, is relieved and ordered to report by letter to the chief engineer at Washington, for instructions.

Maj. Lansing H. Beach is ordered to relieve Capt. Gaillard temporarily, and the Lake Superior district is to become permanently in charge of Capt. Charles L. Potter, of Memphis, Tenn., who will assume the station here as soon as the flood in the Mississippi river subsides.

Maj. Clinton B. Sears, former engineer in charge of this district, who has been on duty in the Philippines, is ordered on his arrival in the United States, to take the station at Nashville, Tenn., and relieve First Lieut. William J. Bardeen of the works in the Nashville engineering district. When Companies E and F, Second battalion of engineers, arrives at the Washington barracks, which will be about Jan. 15, 1904, Lieut. Bardeen will also turn the Chattanooga engineering district over to Maj. Sears.

Lieut. Col. James B. Quinn, engineer in charge of this district before Maj. eSars, has been transferred from Norfolk, Va., to Savannah, Ga.

Maj. Beach, who is to have temporary charge of this district, is to assume the office in connection with his other duties. He is now engineer of the Eleventh lighthouse district and of the rivers and harbors on Lake Michigan, and is located at Detroit, Mich. Capt. Potter, who will have permanent supervision of this district, has been in charge of the Third district of the Mississippi river from the mouth of White river to Warrentown, for improvement, construction and repair of the levees; a member of the board of engineering officers in building and repairing levees on the Mississippi; engineer of the Sixteenth lighthouse district; in temporary charge of the improvement of the mouth of the Yazoo river and harbor of Vicksburg, the Yazoo river and its tributaries, and in charge of the engineering work in connection with the Vicksburg national military park. He has been residing at Memphis, Tenn.

Brophy--Murphy.

The marriage of Miss Nellie Brophy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Brophy, of 808 West Fifth street, to James Murphy, was celebrated this morning, at 9 o'clock, at the Cathedral, Rev. Father O'Dwyer performing the ceremony. Miss Mayme Godman was the bridesmaid and George Dondino acted as best man. The bride was charmingly gowned in white crepe de chene. She wore a bridal veil and carried bride's roses. The bridesmaid wore a gown of pale blue silk crepe du chene and carried pink roses. Mr. and Mrs. Murphy will be at home after April 19, at 1911 East Fourth street.

HILL AND MORGAN

Have Another Consultation But Decline to Talk.

New York, April 13.—J. P. Morgan was in conference today at his office with President J. J. Hill of the Northern Securities company and E. H. Harriman, of the Union Pacific and Southern Pacific roads. The conference was reported to have some bearing on the decision in the Northern Securities case, but no confirmation was obtainable, as those present at the conference declined to talk for publication.

St. Paul, April 13.—(Special to The Herald.)—At 11 o'clock this morning Clerk of the United States Circuit Court of Appeals Lang told the Associated Press that no appeal or notice of appeal in the Northern Securities case had yet been filed.

Judge George B. Young, counsel for President Hill, told the Associated Press at noon that the appeal was not yet ready to be filed, and it was impossible to tell just how soon it would be ready.

SOFT COAL ADVANCES.

Illinois Operators Increase Price Ten Per Cent.

Chicago, April 13.—The Illinois coal operators, at a meeting held here this afternoon, decided to advance the price of soft coal 10 per cent, to take effect immediately. The mine owners declared that the miners demands will increase the cost of producing the coal a few cents a ton, and that a further demand by the miners will be made before next winter. For these reasons it is believed advisable to make the advance.

TO PLAY CHESS WITH HAVANA.

New York, April 13.—A cablegram from the Havana chess club to the Manhattan chess club, which arrived today, says, that the arrangements of the latter club for a consultation game, to be played by cable between consulting parties of the two clubs were acceptable on the whole. The game will therefore be played either this month or on a Saturday and Sunday early next month.

OUTLAW IS SIGHTED.

Bakersfield, Cal., April 13.—Outlaw McKinney was seen this morning at Isabella. He was on foot and was not wounded. Deputies are in pursuit from Kernville. Sheriff Collins and posse left Garden station for Kernville last night.

HARRISON'S PLURALITY.

Chicago, April 13.—Mayor Harrison's plurality over Graeme Stewart is fixed by the official canvass at 7679 votes, the mayor having secured 146,308 to 138,529 for Stewart. The official count resulted in no change in other offices.

MAYOR IS DISCHARGED.

Seattle, April 13.—Judge Bell today sustained the demurrer to the grand jury indictment against Mayor Thomas J. Humes and discharged the defendant. Mayor Humes was indicted for alleged neglect of duty in reference to gambling.

ANOTHER STRIKE

Freight Handlers, to Number of Three Hundred Are Out.

Want An Advance From Thirty to Forty Cents An Hour.

Duluth has another labor strike.

Over 300 members of the Freight Handlers' union are out for a wage scale of 40 cents an hour as compared with 30 cents last year, piece work and 30 cents on steady work, and an agreement that they shall not be asked to load package freight vessels after 10 o'clock at night unless such vessels can be loaded before midnight.

This strike became effective yesterday morning, when members of the union refused to go to work unloading the package freight steamer F. R. Buell, of the Port Huron & Duluth line, at the Northern Pacific docks.

The strike threatens to seriously interfere with the package freight business of the big Knudsen-Eden contract, and for a time may tie up all of the exclusively freight handling boats except those boats that carry freight to and from such concerns as the Marshall-Wells Hardware company, which load and unload under the ton-gang system, which has been in vogue in this port for a great many years.

A number of non-union men were put to work on the docks early this morning and efforts were made to hire freight handlers in West Superior and elsewhere, but these efforts were not very effective, for the reason that the strikers have notified cities and lake ports for several hundred miles around, to stay away from Duluth.

It is claimed that in all lake ports except Duluth the agreement that freight handlers shall not work after 10 o'clock at night has been in effect for several years.

The members of the firm are determined to hold out against the wages demanded, claiming it impossible to pay the figure under the contract price they have made for the stevedore work.

LONG VOYAGE

Of a White Owl on an Iceberg.

Baltimore, Md., April 13.—While the whaleback steamer Forest Castle, from Liverpool, was off the Newfoundland banks an owl as white as snow fell exhausted on the deck.

The owl made a desperate flight from an iceberg to the ship. It was "dead beat" when it floundered aboard, and without a great deal of trouble was made a prisoner by members of the crew.

The sailors were utterly asonished at the arrival of the passenger. Some saw the peculiar object coming laboriously through the air, making a line-fly for the whaleback. Away off on the horizon line was a great iceberg which had worked its way further south than these terrors of the northern sea are won't to do.

When the "berg" parted company with the icefield of the Far North it probably carried with it the owl, which clung to its raft of crystal until flight was useless, a stretch of open sea forming a barrier over which the bird did not dare attempt flight.

When the British Forest Castle appeared on the horizon the bird made its one last dash for life.

When the ship was on the Capes it was boarded by Pilot Duff and Capt. Taylor made him a present of the owl. The pilot gave it to Park Commissioner Booz, for the zoological collection at Druid Hill. White Wings will be taken to the park at once and will be put on exhibition.

The owl is a big specimen, eighteen inches in height. It is a rare specimen of its kind.

LOUBET AT MARSEILLES.

French President on His Way to Algeria.

Marseilles, April 13.—President Loubet arrived here today from Paris on his way to Algeria after receiving continuous ovations along the route. The party was met by the civil and military authorities and was escorted to the prefecture, where an official reception was held. A grand banquet followed the reception. During the day M. Loubet made several short speeches, mainly expressing his sturdy republicanism. Only one minor disturbance between a group of Socialists and army adherents was reported. Blows were struck. Six persons were injured, chiefly on account of the crowd.

ITALIANS VISIT WARSHIPS.

Genoa, April 13.—Gen. Carrote, in command of the army district in which Genoa is situated, accompanied by the prefect and the United States consul, Richmond Pearson, visited the American squadron today and remained to lunch on the flagship Chicago. Both the general and prefect expressed to the commander of the Chicago, Capt. J. H. Dayton, their satisfaction at seeing American warships in Italian waters and the hope that such intercourse would strengthen the bonds of friendship existing between the two countries. The squadron is expected to leave here tomorrow.

CHARGED WITH MURDER.

Milwaukee, April 13.—Martin Jochowicz was arrested today charged with killing John Potrykus in front of a saloon on Ninth avenue last night. Jochowicz was arrested at his home and when taken to the police station, made a full confession, claiming the deed was committed in self-defense.

WILL HEAR WRIGHT'S CASE.

Washington, April 13.—The United States supreme court today granted the motion of Attorney Marshall representing Whittaker Wright in the extradition proceedings, against him and set the argument for next Monday afternoon the disposal of other cases, set for hearing on that day.

AMERICAN MONEY GOES.

Havana, April 13.—The Havana street railway today began collecting 5-cent fares in American money, in accordance with the concession granted by the military government. The fares had hitherto been paid in 5 centavos, Spanish coin.

St. Louis and Return $22.30.

The Northwestern line, Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha, will sell excursion tickets to St. Louis, Mo., April 26 to May 1, inclusive, at $22.30 for the round trip. Tickets limited to May 4 for return passage. City ticket office, 405 West Superior street.

RESULT OF DECISION

In the Merger Case Will Be Very Far Reaching.

New York, April 13.—Jacob H. Schiff, of the banking firm of Kuhn, Loeb & Co., members of the Harriman syndicate and a director of the Northern Securities company, the Baltimore and Ohio and the Union Pacific railroad, in an interview in the Evening Post on the Northern Securities company said:

"The result of the decision, if it be confirmed upon appeal, must necessarily be far reaching. The decision practically establishes this: That anything done which will put it in the power of any company to restrain industry and trade, is illegal, even if the very reverse of such restraint is intended, as no doubt has been the bona fide purpose of the corporators of the Northern Securities company. Thus, as a logical consequence, the power the Pennsylvania possess to influence Baltimore and Ohio and other corporate managements, all the power the New York Central possess to direct the Lake Shore, Michigan Central and the Nickel Plate companies management, or the New York, New Haven & Hartford's influence over the New England road, even if such power or influence as actually exercised be beneficial to the public, is illegal.

"This is the danger in the situation which has now been created. Not that I believe that the government will at present go any further, but as it is, almost anyone, for the purpose of blackmail or other sinister purposes, has it in his power to harrass the most of the railroads and industrial corporations. With all this, I do not feel particularly pessimistic. We shall, no doubt, for some time find a great unwillingness to embark in new affairs, but that is no misfortune, for promotion has been carried too far, and in this respect perhaps the Northern Securities decision may prove a blessing in disguise. The American people have a particular faculty for adapting themselves to conditions as they exist, and in due time the effects and results of even the situation now created will wear off, and as a consequence of the inactivity and further liquidation which we are certain to have, money will, after a time, become plentiful, and then likely all sound securities will benefit by the process of recovery, which sooner or later will surely set in. The country has at no time in its history been in a better and more prosperous condition than it is at present, and it is certain to profit by the experience which it is just gaining in perhaps a somewhat forcible, and to some, expected manner."

BOODLER SENTENCED.

St. Louis, April 13.—John Schuttler, former member of the house of delegates combine, indicted for bribery in connection with the Suburban railway Douglas today to serve four years in the penitentiary. A motion for a stay of execution was overruled and Schuttler was released on an appeal bond in the sum of $10,000.

NEGROES INDICTED.

They Are Charged With Murdering a Chinaman.

Indianapolis, April 13.—Ollie Sanders, Nim Davidson and James Andre, all colored, who are held by the police, were today indicted by the grand jury and will have to answer to a charge of having murdered Doc Lung, a Chinese laundryman, several months ago. Lung was beheaded in his Indiana avenue shop. The indictments were returned on the strength of a confession made by Saunders. The tip on which the indictments were returned came from Rufus Cantrell, the negro ghoul.

The trial of Dr. Joseph Alexander on the charge of grave robbing has been indefinitely postponed because the negroes under indictment have refused to testify against him. The latter will be tried first.

HIRING NEGROES

To Take Places of Striking Lake Firemen.

Cleveland, April 13.—A. R. Rumsey, of this city, shipping master for the Lake Carriers' association, is in Louisville, Ky., today hiring negroes to take the place of the striking firemen and oilers on lake vessels. It is understood that Rumsey has already secured a number of men who will be sent at once to Cleveland.

CHARGES OF BRIBERY

Against Provincial Secretary Are Being Investigated.

Toronto, April 13.—The investigation into the charges of bribery brought by R. R. Gamey, member of the Provincial parliament for Manitoulin, against J. H. Statton, provincial secretary to the cabinet commenced here today before a royal commission of two judges. Extraordinary interest is being taken in the trial.

At the election last May the liberal government was returned to power by one majority. The death of a liberal supporter put the parties on an equal footing. Gamey elected as a conservative, avers he received $3000 as a bribe to vote with the government.

WELL-KNOWN WOMAN HURT.

Chicago, April 13.—Mrs. Lewis Parks, a former vice president of the Young Women's Christian association, was fatally injured today while alighting from a Wabash avenue cable train. She failed to hear or see a train approaching from the opposite direction and was knocked down and dragged several feet. She was removed to her home in an unconscious condition. Mrs. Parks is 78 years of age.

RECEIVER APPOINTED.

Milwaukee, April 13.—An Evening Wisconsin special from Kenosha, Wis., says: Judge Belden this afternoon appointed Henry F. Jordan receiver of the Kenosha State bank, which was recently closed by State Examiner Bergh. Jordan furnished a $20,000 bond.

MOODY IS BACK.

Washington, April 13.—Improved in health and with much information regarding American naval property in the West Indies Secretary Moody returned to Washington this morning from an extended cruise aboard the Dolphin in the Carribean sea. With the secretary were also the other members of his party, Postmaster General Payne, Senator Proctor, of Vermont; Representtives Cannon, Foss and Gillette, Judge Dunbar, of Boston, and Mr. Pearl, of Haverhill, Mr. Moody's law partner. Except for a trip to Newport News next Saturday, to attend the launching of the cruiser West Virginia and for an inspection of the Norfolk navy yard, the secretary now expects to remain in Washington until August.

BRITISH STEAMER ASHORE.

Norfolk, Va., April 13.—A dispatch received here shortly after noon from the Currituck inlet life saving station reports the British steamer Daybreak, bound from Santiago to Baltimore, with a cargo of iron ore, ashore off Pebble shoal near False cape. The vessel is said to be in good condition now and may be floated if a tug arrives in time. Captain Morris and crew of twenty-two men are on board.

HOSTILITY TO UNION LABOR

By President of Manufacturers' Association.

His Report on Labor Bills Before Congress.

New Orleans, April 14.—The National Association of Manufacturers, representing hundreds of millions of invested American capital, began at Tulane hall today what promised to be the most important annual convention in the history of the organization. The open and avowed hostility of President D. M. Parry towards the methods of organized labor has attracted wide attention, and the largely increased delegate representation from the various manufacturing states of the North was declared by the members to be largely due to the interest taken by the members in the labor question. Large delegations from the Eastern and New England states arrived Sunday and yesterday, and the special train bearing representatives of the Middle states section came in this morning with President Parry and other officers of the association.

Immediately upon the arrival of the train the delegates gathered at Tulane hall on University place, where James W. Porch, vice president, of Louisiana, called the convention to order. Mayor Paul Capdeville, of New Orleans, and Governor W. W. Heard welcomed the delegates and President Parry responded. Then the convention began its work with the reading of the president's annual report.

After calling attention to the marked growth of the National Association of Manufacturers which now has over twenty-one hundred members on its roll, Mr. Parry immediately took up the question of the battle between the manufacturers and organized labor in connection with the eight-hour and anti-conspiracy bills, which were defended at the last session of Congress. Referring to this contest Mr. Parry said:

"By its determined opposition to the passage of the eight-hour and the anti-injunction bills this association performed what to my mind, was a great public service, the full significance of which is, perhaps, not realized even by many who were foremost in condemning those measures. The mere defeating of these two bills does not tell the story. What was done that was much more important and far-reaching was to give an opportune check to socialistic impulse. It is impossible to hide our eyes to the fact that a large mass of the people, forgetful of the liberties and blessings they now enjoy, are with restless ardor striving to force the nation to what must eventually mean industrial disaster, if not anarchy and despotism.

"Organized labor, an army presumably two million strong, feeling its strength and exultant over many victories it had won, concluded last winter that the time was ripe to make congress engraft upon the statute books of the nation its sprigs of socialism, legalizing those denials of individual rights which it has heretofore sought to enjoin by force. It drew up and fathered the eight-hour and anti-injunction bills, the former of which could well have been entitled "An act to repeal the bill of rights guaranteeing the freedom of the individual," and the latter should have been termed, "A bill to legalize strikes and boycotts."

"The introduction in congress of such measures as these and the support they received there and from the press and public can only be regarded as ominous manifestations of the deep-seated power of an organization which in late years has had such an insidious growth that we find it dominating to a dangerous

REGINALD C. VANDERBILT IS WED TO MISS CATHLEEN NEILSON

The Brilliant Event Occurs at Newport and Is Witnessed By Many Guests From New York.

Newport, R. I., April 14.—The wedding of Reginald C Vanderbilt, of New York, the youngest son of the late Cornelius Vanderbilt, and Miss Cathleen G. Neilson, also of New York, which occurred at "Arleigh" at noon today, was a brilliant event, as well as an early beginning of the social season of 1903, at Newport. As the marriage took place in a private villa, it lacked much of the splendor which usually attends a church function. About 150 guests, nearly all from New York, were present. The decorations were white on a background of green. The bridesmaids were gowned in white, with white picture hats; the bridegroom, his best man and the ushers wore white puff cravats and white boutonniers, and the bride, of course, was attired in the purest white. The day was gray and cold, with a misty, northeast wind blowing in from the sea.

For an hour preceding the ceremony an orchestra played, and just at noon the measured strains of the Lohengrin march signalled the approach of the bridal party. The Rev. Father Meenan, attended by two altar boys, previously had taken his place at the floral altar, and just as the procession started down the grand staircase Mr. Vanderbilt, accompanied by his elder brother, Alfred Vanderbilt, took positions beside the priest.

Miss Neilson advanced on the arm of her uncle, Frederick Gebhardt. Her four bridesmaids were Miss Isabelle May, of Washington; Miss Florence Twombley, a cousin of Mr. Vanderbilt; Miss Evelyn Parsons and Miss Nathalie Schenck.

The ushers, who led the procession, were Jules B. Neilson, a brother of the bride; Ellis Adams, of Orange, N. J.; Arthur A. Burden, of New York; S. N. Stone, of Syracuse; Peter Goelet Gerry and Albert Gray, of New York.

The bride was gowned in heavy white silk, with a costly veil of a rare lace flowing back from the crown of her head to the end of the train. Around her throat was tightly clasped a serpent necklace of rarest pearls, the gift of the bridegroom.

The ceremony was brief. Its completion was indicated by the Mendelssohn march. A reception followed and an inspection was made of the bridal gifts, which were declared to be probably as costly an array as was ever bestowed on two young people at the advent of their married life. Then came the wedding breakfast.

Mr. and Mrs. Vanderbilt left for their new villa at Sandy Point, a few miles up the island, during the afternoon, where they will spend a few days previous to a three months' trip to Europe.

PUGH BILL TO DIE IN HOUSE

Influence of Commission Has Killed It.

The Duluth Normal School to Get $63,000.

FROM A STAFF CORRESPONDENT

St. Paul, April 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The omnibus appropriation bill came into both houses this morning and was made a special order for Thursday at 10:30 in the house and at 3 o'clock in the senate. The bill appropriates about $3,100,000, which, with the standing appropriations, makes about $6,500,000. This is more than it was two years ago, but the large increase in miscellaneous revenues to the state and the increase in assessed valuation will permit the smallest tax levy the state has ever had, 1 mill. Two years ago it was 1 3-10 mills, and four years ago it was 1 5-10 mills. The bill appropriates $63,000 for the Duluth normal school, of which $31,750 is for the coming year and $31,230 for the next year. It also appropriates money to pay the deficiency in the construction of the building as follows: Heat regulating devices, $1925; plumbing, $2288.83; furnace, $1200; architects' fees, $2331.34. Allowance is made for an increase of $500 a year in the salary of the president of the school, placing him on the same basis as the other normal school presidents. For wolf bounties $30,000 is appropriated; $40,000 is for publishing the session laws; $15,000 for additional expenses of the legislature, and $10,000 for the state's anti-merger fight. This latter item is cut down from the amount asked by the governor, $25,000.

Senator Pugh's civil service bill is doomed to defeat in the house. When it came in last Saturday it was referred to the grain and warehouse committee, and subsequently Speaker Babcock changed it to the committee on general legislation. There is no doubt that the committee will either report it for indefinite postponement or not report it at all, and he chances are that it will lie in the committee until the close of the session.

Mr. Dowling moved this morning that the bill be taken from the general legislation committee and given to the grain and warehouse committee, of which Mr. Hugo, of Duluth, is chairman. In making the motion he intimated that the bill had been referred to the committee on general legislation for the purpose of smothering it.

Speaker Babcock said that he had ordered the change of committees made, and he assumed entire responsibility for it. The ill-fate of the bill can be traced to the influences of the railroad and warehouse commission.

FATHER BEATS HIS CHILD'S BRAINS OUT AGAINST STOVE

Infuriated Brooklyn Man Seizes His Three-Year-Old Daughter By the Legs and Brings Her Head Down on Stove With Crushing Force.

New York, April 14.—In consequence of threats made by her husband that if she were not at home when he returned, he would kill her and their 3-year-old daughter, Mrs. Charles Joeger, of Brooklyn, sought refuge in the house of her sister. When Joeger reached home last night he found the rooms deserted. Infuriated, he ran from the house and hunted in different places for his wife. Everybody denied having seen her, but he waited and watched at his sister-in-law's door until he heard the voice of his child at play with other children. Bursting in the door he knocked his wife against the wall and grabbed his daughter by the legs as she flew to her mother's arms. Mrs. Joeger fell upon her knees and begged him not to injure the child.

Shouting curses at his wife and still holding the child by the legs he swung the little body around his head and brought her head down with crushing force upon a stove. He dropped the child then and shouted at his wife, "It is your turn next." Then he ran away, and going to the house of a friend handed him $5 and told him to hurry and get a doctor, as his little girl had been hurt. A doctor who was called in said the child's skull had been crushed in many places, and she could not live. Joeger was caught shortly before midnight hiding in the home of his brother. He did not know anything about the injury to his child.

EMPLOYERS MUST WARN NEW MEN

Denver, April 14.—Employers who fail to explain to men taking the place of others who may be out on a strike, the annoyance or violence to which they may be subjected from those whom they supersede, are liable for damages in case injury is done. This is the opinion of the court of appeals just handed down in the case of William Holthauser, who, while in the employ of the Denver Gas and Electric company, was shot by striking employes of the company. He declared that he was hired without being told that there was a strike at the plant.

In giving the opinion, Court Justice Thomson said: "The controlling feature of this case is that the employer knowingly exposed the employe to personal danger and concealed the danger from him. It is intimated that during the intervening time the plaintiff ought to have discovered that a strike was in progress and that the defendant's old employes were in no tranquil frame of mind. How he might have made the discovery unless he had seen or heard something to suggest inquiry are not told. It is alleged that the plaintiff did not know that there was a strike on, or that he was in any danger until he was attacked. The explicit statement of fact is not to be met by mere argument."

MRS. VANDERBILT OBLIGED TO MOVE

New York, April 14.—Mrs. Jacob H. Vanderbilt has been notified by her landlord that she must relinquish possession of her fashionable tea and smoking rooms on Fifth avenue on May 1. Simultaneously Mrs. Vanderbilt received a notice from another landlord that she must give up possession, on the same date, of her residence on East Thirty-seventh street. "It looks very suspicious," she said, "that I should receive both these notices the same day. It looks as though my enemies were still at work. But I am not dismayed. I shall get other rooms right in this block. I have not been satisfied with the old quarters. I want a front room. Our business is good, and I am sure that we shall get along much better when we get established in really proper quarters." When Mr. Margelles, from whom Mrs. Vanderbilt rents her tea and smoking rooms, was seen, he said: "Mrs. Vanderbilt is a very fine woman, but I must have the rooms."

ULTIMATUM TO NORTHERN PACIFIC

St. Paul, April 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—A. B. Garretson, assistant grand chief of the Order of Railway Conductors, who, with W. T. Newman, fourth vice grand master of the trainmen's organization, is in St. Paul conducting the negotiations for the committees of their organizations with the Northern Pacific, states that unless the company recedes from its position today and sends for the committee, the latter will return to their homes and a poll of the road on the question of a strike taken.

"The Northern Pacific refuses to grant to its men what every other trans-continental road has allowed," said Mr. Garretson. "The company refuses to do away with the double-headers in a way to equalize matters. There is the obstacle. The company has refused the men's concessions. Now it is for the company to determine what it will do."

The grand officers, with the committee, waited on General Manager Cooper yesterday, when the latter told them he could not accept of their proposition. Today will develop decisive results.

TO CHANGE ITS HEADQUARTERS

Wells-Fargo Express Company to Move to New York.

San Francisco, April 14.—The general offices of Wells-Fargo & Co. which have been maintained in this city ever since the establishment of the company over half a century ago, are to be removed to New York next month. It is announced that the offices of the president vice president nd general manager will all be established in New York, and possibly some of the lesser department headquarters.

Directors' meetings will henceforth be held in New York as well as the annual meetings of the company and the new arrangement it is said, will in all probability necessitate some changes in the personnel of the board.

According to the Chronicle, the influence of E. H. Harriman, who is interested in the affairs of the express company to the extent of the Southern Pacific's ownership of stock in the corporation, is said to be largely responsible for the change of headquarters as he wishes to be in closer touch with the express company's officers than at present.

E. A. Steadman, manager of the Atlantic division of the express company, and R. A. Wells, of Kansas City, manager of the division, are here assisting President Evans in adjusting the affairs of the local offices preparatory to the transfer.

FEARS FOR LYNCH.

Is Not Well Since He Entered Prison.

New York, April 14.—It is learned that the friends of Col. Lynch, who is undergoing a sentence of life imprisonment for high treason in aiding and abetting the Boers in their war against Great Britain, are greatly concerned about his health in prison, cables the Tribune's correspondent in London. Lynch has lost weight as well as spirits, and his friends are saying that his health is failing rapidly and that he may not live long enough to be pardoned by a special act of grace by the king after the royal visit to Ireland.

THOUGHT TO BE DEAD.

Canal at Soo Dragged, But No Body Found.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., April 14.—Thomas Holmes, a cook, recently employed in the lumber woods at Blind River, Ontario, is believed to have committed suicide by jumping into the canal Sunday.

He was last seen on the south pier. Later his hat, held down by a stone, and in it a letter addressed to Miss Lambert, to whom he had been engaged, was found. The letter contained no reason for committing suicide, but said his body would be found in the canal and that his property was left to Miss Lambert.

Miss Lambert says Holmes had been despondent over some financial loss. The canal was dragged, but the body was not found.

DETAILED AS SOLICITOR.

Washington, April 14.—William Miller Collier, of New York, who recently was appointed assistant attorney to the attorney general, has been detailed as solicitor of the department of commerce and labor. He entered upon his duties today.

ARTILLERYMAN OBTAINS HIS RELEASE BY A FORGED ORDER

Had Been Placed In Guard House For Forging Check and Secured His Freedom By Passing Bogus "Release" on the Sentry.

New York, April 14.—With rifles loaded and belts filled with ball cartridges, detachments from the regiment at Fort Totten, Willt's Point, scoured the neighborhood yesterday in pursuit of a comrade who, imprisoned for one year for forgery, had obtained his release by another and promptly fled.

The fugitive was a member of the Fifty-fourth coast artillery and was attached to the office of Capt. Bailey, disbursing officer for the school of submarine defense. He had access to the check book and forged Capt. Bailey's siganture to a check, which he had cashed in his own company. Obtaining leave of absence, he came to this city.

Meanwhile the forgery had been discovered and soldiers were dispatched in search of the clerk. He was found and taken to Fort Totten guard house, still wearing evening clothes. All day Sunday he was confined there.

Yesterday he was taken under guard for an itnerview with Capt. Bailey. As he came out he handed to the sentry a "release," saying: "Give that to the sergeant." The sergeant recognized the order for release, and the clerk went to his tent. Hastily bundling his civilian's clothes together he swam the creek which divides the fort from the mainland and disappeared just as it became known that the "release" was also a forgery.

MONEY FOUND IN EVERY NOOK OF OLD MISER-HERMIT'S HOVEL

Belvidere, N. J., April 14.—Patrick Flynn, 82 years old, known as the miser and hermit of Harker's Hollow, has been found dead in his hovel. He had not been seen for several days, and neighbors entered his home and found him sitting in an improvised chair, his head on one side. Flynn had never been married, and all the money that came into his possession he hoarded. He would not trust any of the banks, but kept it all in his hovel. His house was barricaded from front and back, and no one could have broken into it without a long siege. It was known that the old man had money, and when the searchers broke open his trunk they found a pile of bank bills covered with mold. Out of the old rags on which he slept many pieces of gold and silver fell. There was an old can in one corner. It had some musty flour in it, and in the bottom was a bag of silver coin. In the weatherboards, in the chimney under the rafters, in fact wherever the men searched they found money. When counted the money found amounted to nearly $3000 in gold, silver, bills and pennies.

It was learned that Flynn had a sister liivng in New York, and she was at once telegraphed for. The sister had been to see Patrick last summer. She alleged that she knew that the money found was a small part of the wealth of her brother and ordered the search resumed.

CUBAN CONGRESSMAN FIGHT DUEL

New York, April 14.—Congressmen Villuendas and Garmendia fought a duel with swords on Sunday, says the Tribune's Havana correspondent. Senor Garmendia was slightly wounded in the right wrist. Four congressmen acted as seconds. The duel was the result of words exchanged in the lower house on April 6, when Villuendass called Garmendia a little, rude, ugly person, and a clown. Garmendia prepared a letter for signature by Villuendas, in which the latter retracted his statement, but Villuendas refused to sign it and said he would only give satisfaction on the field of honor.

ATLANTIC MAN HELD FOR SHOOTING

Houghton, Mich., April 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Erick Helkla a miner at the Atlantic mine, is held on the charge of shooting his brother-in-law, Jacob Pekala, also of Atlantic. The bullet entered Pekala's breast and he may not live. Both were out driving on Sunday, with Pekala holding the reins. Helkla remonstrated with him for driving too fast and a quarrel ensued. Monday morning the quarrel was resumed in a saloon in Atlantic, when Helkla is said to have shot Pekala. Helkla fled but was arrested while boarding a train at Homestead crossing near Elm River.

GOVERNOR VAN SANT AFTER ANOTHER MERGER FUND

Wants $25,000 More to Continue State's Anti-Merger Fight, Although the Issue Has Been Decided—Amendments to McCarthy Log Lien Law.

FROM A STAFF CORRESPONDENT

St. Paul, April 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Governor Van Sant is before the appropriation committees of the legislature asking for another $25,000 gift to prosecute the anti-merger fight.

This is in spite of the fact that the federal courts have decided the issue in a sweeping manner, and in spite of the fact that there has never been a shadow of hope that the state of Minnesota would prove to have any jurisdiction over the subject matter.

A good many people down here look upon the attempt to continue the state's fight as a large chunk of political buncombe, designed to keep before the people the fact that Capt. Van Sant is in the fight, and that notwithstanding the fact that the contest has been carried up to the federal courts, where the federal authorities have fought it out and won, he must be noticed by the people as a figure in the game.

What further benefits can be obtained by prosecuting the state suit it is difficult to understand. Of course the fact that the suit has been won by the federal authorities tends to overshadow the governor's importance in the matter, and possibly this can be overcome by prosecuting the state's case up as high as it can go, but it costs money, and so long as the desired result—that of breaking the merger—has apparently been accomplished, there are people that consider it rather foolish to spend more of the state's money along this line.

The legislature at the special session of 1902 passed a bill giving the administration $25,000 to fight the merger with. It did not go very far, however. Of that sum $19,000 was spent in the de-

BODY OF ITALIAN FOUND IN BARREL

New York, April 14.—A murder was discovered early today, according to the police, by the finding of the body of a man, apparently an Italian, in a barrel, in East Eleventh street, near the docks. The man's throat was cut from ear to ear. The body was warm when found and the work of ferreting out the supposed crime was begun at once by detectives. A scrub woman on her way to work today noticed the barrel on the sidewalk and she saw hanging on it a man's coat soaked with blood. She informed the police. The first and the only clue found during several hours' search was the letters "W. T." painted on the bottom of the barrel, but the police think these letters will aid them a good deal in revealing the mystery. It is supposed that somebody intended to throw the body into the river after bringing it there in a wagon, but found the pier at East Eleventh street closed and dropped the load in the street in a hurry fearing discovery.

The well-kept condition of the hands and nails of the dead man indicated that he was not a laborer. The police say that he wore expensive shoes and may have been in good circumstances. The police discovered the address 364 Third avenue written in pencil on the bottom of the barrel and in the coat pocket of the dead man a bit of paper bearing the words in Italian, translated as "Come, come in a hurry." The police believe this was a part of a decoy letter.

A small perfumed woman's handkerchief was found in the barrel. At 364 Third avenue is a furnished room house. The proprietor, Albert Voecks, was taken to the police station, but said he had never seen the barrel or the body before. Of 200 Italians summoned to the police station, none has been able to identify the body.

HOT SHOT IN WISCONSIN ASSEMBLY

St. Paul, April 14.—A Madison, Wis., special to the Dispatch, says an outbreak occurred in the assembly today over the Barker bill prohibiting political lobbyists from attempting to influence votes, in which Barker took a shot at the game wardens and oil inspectors and Dahl intimated that Barker's breath still smelled of the whisky the federal office-holders were distributing two years ago, which Barker indignantly resented. The bill was finally sent to the judiciary committee for amendment. A resolution introduced last night fixing May 2 as the date for final adjournment of the legislature was referred to a committee where the day will be extended. There is no prospects of an adjournment before the latter part of May. A conference committee was appointed in each house on the school tax bill. The bill making Lincoln's birthday a legal holiday was defeated in the assembly by a vote of 65 to 21.

FEARS FOR THE WATERLOO LEVEE

New Orleans, April 14.—The flood situation at the Waterloo levee, on the east bank of the river, about seventy miles above the city, is considered serious. Water is pouring through a crawfish hole eighteen to twenty inches in diameter, near the base of the levee, and fear is expressed that before the run around can be built, the weakened levee will give way. Five hundred men are at the scene and four rows of cribbing have been started. A break at this point would be destructive, flooding hundreds of acres of cotton land and truck farms in the new river section and submerging thousands of acres of valuable sugar lands in this Pontchartrain district.

HOSTILITY TO UNION LABOR

By President of Manufacturers' Association.

His Report on Labor Bills Before Congress.

New Orleans, April 14.—The National Association of Manufacturers, representing hundreds of millions of invested American capital, began at Tulane hall today what promised to be the most important annual convention in the history of the organization. The open and avowed hostility of President D. M. Parry towards the methods of organized labor has attracted wide attention, and the largely increased delegate representation from the various manufacturing states of the North was declared by the members to be largely due to the interest taken by the members in the labor question. Large delegations from the Eastern and New England states arrived Sunday and yesterday, and the special train bearing representatives of the Middle states section came in this morning with President Parry and other officers of the association.

Immediately upon the arrival of the train the delegates gathered at Tulane hall on University place, where James W. Porch, vice president, of Louisiana, called the convention to order. Mayor Paul Capdeville, of New Orleans, and Governor W. W. Heard welcomed the delegates and President Parry responded. Then the convention began its work with the reading of the president's annual report.

After calling attention to the marked growth of the National Association of Manufacturers which now has over twenty-one hundred members on its roll, Mr Parry immediately took up the question of the battle between the manufacturers and organized labor in connection with the eight-hour and anti-conspiracy bills, which were defended at the last session of Congress. Referring to this contest Mr. Parry said:

"By its determined opposition to the passage of the eight-hour and the anti-injunction bills this association performed what to my mind, was a great public service, the full significance of which is, perhaps, not realized even by many who were foremost in condemning those measures. The mere defeating of these two bills does not tell the story. What was done that was much more important and far-reaching was to give an opportune check to socialistic impulse. It is impossible to hide our eyes to the fact that a large mass of the people, forgetful of the liberties and blessings they now enjoy, are with restless ardor striving to force the nation to what must eventually mean industrial disaster, if not anarchy and despotism.

"Organized labor, an army presumably two million strong, feeling its strength and exultant over many victories it had won, concluded last winter that the time was ripe to make congress engraft upon the statute books of the nation its sprigs of socialism, legalizing those denials of individual rights which it has heretofore sought to enjoin by force. It drew up and fathered the eight-hour and anti-injunction bills, the former of which could well have been entitled "An act to repeal the bill of rights guaranteeing the freedom of the individual," and the latter should have been termed "A bill to legalize strikes and boycotts."

"The introduction in congress of such measures as these and the support they received there and from the press and public can only be regarded as ominous manifestations of the deep-seated power of an organization which in late years has had such an insidious growth that we find it dominating to a dangerous

The Brilliant Event Occurs at Newport and Is Witnessed By Many Guests From New York.

Reginald C. Vanderbilt. Cathleen Neilson.

Newport, R. I., April 14.—The wedding of Reginald C Vanderbilt, of New York, the youngest son of the late Cornelius Vanderbilt, and Miss Cathleen G. Neilson, also of New York, which occurred at "Arleigh" at noon today, was a brilliant event, as well as an early beginning of the social season of 1903, at Newport. As the marriage took place in a private villa, it lacked much of the splendor which usually attends a church function. About 150 guests, nearly all from New York, were present. The decorations were white on a background of green. The bridesmaids were gowned in white, with white picture hats; the bridegroom, his best man and the ushers wore white puff cravats and white boutonniers, and the bride, of course, was attired in the purest white. The day was gray and cold, with a misty, northeast wind blowing in from the sea.

For an hour preceding the ceremony an orchestra played, and just at noon the measured strains of the Lohengrin march signalled the approach of the bridal party. The Rev. Father Meenan, attended by two altar boys, previously had taken his place at the floral altar, and just as the procession started down the grand staircase Mr. Vanderbilt, accompanied by his elder brother, Alfred Vanderbilt, took positions beside the priest.

The grand officers, with the committee, waited on General Manager Cooper yesterday, when the latter told them he could not accept of their proposition. Today will develop decisive results.

TO CHANGE ITS HEADQUARTERS

Wells-Fargo Express Company to Move to New York.

San Francisco, April 14.—The general offices of Wells-Fargo & Co. which have been maintained in this city ever since the establishment of the company over half a century ago, are to be removed to New York next month. It is announced that the offices of the president vice president nd general manager will all be established in New York, and possibly some of the lesser department headquarters.

Directors' meetings will henceforth be held in New York as well as the annual meetings of the company and the new arrangement it is said, will in all probability necessitate some changes in the personnel of the board.

According to the Chronicle, the influence of E. H. Harriman, who is interested in the affairs of the express company to the extent of the Southern Pacific's ownership of stock in the corporation, is said to be largely responsible for the change of headquarters as he wishes to be in closer touch with the express company's officers than at present.

E. A. Steadman, manager of the Atlantic division of the express company, and R. A. Wells, of Kansas City, manager of the division, are here assisting President Evans in adjusting the affairs of the local offices preparatory to the transfer.

FEARS FOR LYNCH.

Is Not Well Since He Entered Prison.

New York, April 14.—It is learned that the friends of Col. Lynch, who is undergoing a sentence of life imprisonment for high treason in aiding and abetting the Boers in their war against Great Britain, are greatly concerned about his health in prison, cables the Tribune's correspondent in London. Lynch has lost weight as well as spirits, and his friends are saying that his health is failing rapidly and that he may not live long enough to be pardoned by a special act of grace by the king after the royal visit to Ireland.

THOUGHT TO BE DEAD.

Canal at Soo Dragged, But No Body Found.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., April 14.—Thomas Holmes, a cook, recently employed in the lumber woods at Blind River, Ontario, is believed to have committed suicide by jumping into the canal Sunday.

He was last seen on the south pier. Later his hat, held down by a stone, and in it a letter addressed to Miss Lambert, to whom he had been engaged, was found. The letter contained no reason for committing suicide, but said his body would be found in the canal and that his property was left to Miss Lambert.

Miss Lambert says Holmes had been despondent over some financial loss. The canal was dragged, but the body was not found.

DETAILED AS SOLICITOR.

Washington, April 14.—William Miller Collier, of New York, who recently was appointed assistant attorney to the attorney general, has been detailed as solicitor of the department of commerce and labor. He entered upon his duties today.

ARTILLERYMAN OBTAINS HIS RELEASE BY A FORGED ORDER

Had Been Placed In Guard House For Forging Check and Secured His Freedom By Passing Bogus "Release" on the Sentry.

New York, April 14.—With rifles loaded and belts filled with ball cartridges, detachments from the regiment at Fort Totten, Willt's Point, scoured the neighborhood yesterday in pursuit of a comrade who, imprisoned for one year for forgery, had obtained his release by another and promptly fled.

The fugitive was a member of the Fifty-fourth coast artillery and was attached to the office of Capt. Bailey, disbursing officer for the school of submarine defense. He had access to the check book and forged Capt. Bailey's siganture to a check, which he had cashed in his own company. Obtaining leave of absence, he came to this city.

Meanwhile the forgery had been discovered and soldiers were dispatched in search of the clerk. He was found and taken to Fort Totten guard house, still wearing evening clothes. All day Sunday he was confined there.

Yesterday he was taken under guard for an itnerview with Capt. Bailey. As he came out he handed to the sentry a "release," saying: "Give that to the sergeant." The sergeant recognized the order for release, and the clerk went to his tent. Hastily bundling his civilian's clothes together he swam the creek which divides the fort from the mainland and disappeared just as it became known that the "release" was also a forgery.

MONEY FOUND IN EVERY NOOK OF OLD MISER-HERMIT'S HOVEL

Belvidere, N. J., April 14.—Patrick Flynn, 82 years old, known as the miser and hermit of Harker's Hollow, has been found dead in his hovel. He had not been seen for several days, and neighbors entered his home and found him sitting in an improvised chair, his head on one side. Flynn had never been married, and all the money that came into his possession he hoarded. He would not trust any of the banks, but kept it all in his hovel. His house was barricaded from front and back, and no one could have broken into it without a long siege. It was known that the old man had money, and when the searchers broke open his trunk they found a pile of bank bills covered with mold. Out of the old rags on which he slept many pieces of gold and silver fell. There was an old can in one corner. It had some musty flour in it, and in the bottom was a bag of silver coin. In the weatherboards, in the chimney under the rafters, in fact wherever the men searched they found money. When counted the money found amounted to nearly $3000 in gold, silver, bills and pennies.

It was learned that Flynn had a sister liivng in New York, and she was at once telegraphed for. The sister had been to see Patrick last summer. She alleged that she knew that the money found was a small part of the wealth of her brother and ordered the search resumed.

CUBAN CONGRESSMAN FIGHT DUEL

New York, April 14.—Congressmen Villuendas and Garmendia fought a duel with swords on Sunday, says the Tribune's Havana correspondent. Senor Garmendia was slightly wounded in the right wrist. Four congressmen acted as seconds. The duel was the result of words exchanged in the lower house on April 6, when Villuendass called Garmendia a little, rude, ugly person, and a clown. Garmendia prepared a letter for signature by Villuendas, in which the latter retracted his statement, but Villuendas refused to sign it and said he would only give satisfaction on the field of honor.

ATLANTIC MAN HELD FOR SHOOTING

Houghton, Mich., April 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Erick Heikla a miner at the Atlantic mine, is held on the charge of shooting his brother-in-law, Jacob Pekala, also of Atlantic. The bullet entered Pekala's breast and he may not live. Both were out driving on Sunday, with Pekala holding the reins. Heikla remonstrated with him for driving too fast and a quarrel ensued. Monday morning the quarrel was resumed in a saloon in Atlantic, when Heikla is said to have shot Pekala. Heikla fled but was arrested while boarding a train at Homestead crossing near Elm River.

GOVERNOR VAN SANT AFTER ANOTHER MERGER FUND

Wants $25,000 More to Continue State's Anti-Merger Fight, Although the Issue Has Been Decided—Amendments to McCarthy Log Lien Law.

FROM A STAFF CORRESPONDENT

St. Paul, April 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—Governor Van Sant is before the appropriation committees of the legislature asking for another $25,000 gift to prosecute the anti-merger fight.

This is in spite of the fact that the federal courts have decided the issue in a sweeping manner, and in spite of the fact that there has never been a shadow of hope that the state of Minnesota would prove to have any jurisdiction over the subject matter.

A good many people down here look upon the attempt to continue the state's fight as a large chunk of political buncombe, designed to keep before the people the fact that Capt. Van Sant is in the fight, and that notwithstanding the fact that the contest has been carried up to the federal courts, where the federal authorities have fought it out and won, he must be noticed by the people as a figure in the game.

What further benefits can be obtained by prosecuting the state suit it is difficult to understand. Of course the fact that the suit has been won by the federal authorities tends to overshadow the governor's importance in the matter, and possibly this can be overcome by prosecuting the state's case up as high as it can go, but it costs money, and so long as the desired result—that of breaking the merger—has apparently been accomplished, there are people that consider it rather foolish to spend more of the state's money along this line.

The legislature at the special session of 1902 passed a bill giving the administration $25,000 to fight the merger with. It did not go very far, however. Of that sum $19,000 was spent in the de-

BODY OF ITALIAN FOUND IN BARREL

New York, April 14.—A murder was discovered early today, according to the police, by the finding of the body of a man, apparently an Italian, in a barrel, in East Eleventh street, near the docks. The man's throat was cut from ear to ear. The body was warm when found and the work of ferreting out the supposed crime was begun at once by detectives. A scrub woman on her way to work today noticed the barrel on the sidewalk and she saw hanging on it a man's coat soaked with blood. She informed the police. The first and the only clue found during several hours' search was the letters "W. T." painted on the bottom of the barrel, but the police think these letters will aid them a good deal in revealing the mystery. It is supposed that somebody intended to throw the body into the river after bringing it there in a wagon, but found the pier at East Eleventh street closed and dropped the load in the street in a hurry fearing discovery.

The well-kept condition of the hands and nails of the dead man indicated that he was not a laborer. The police say that he wore expensive shoes and may have been in good circumstances. The police discovered the address 364 Third avenue written in pencil on the bottom of the barrel and in the coat pocket of the dead man a bit of paper bearing the words in Italian, translated as "Come, come in a hurry." The police believe this was a part of a decoy letter.

A small perfumed woman's handkerchief was found in the barrel. At 264 Third avenue is a furnished room house. The proprietor, Albert Voecks, was taken to the police station, but said he had never seen the barrel or the body before. Of 200 Italians summoned to the police station, none has been able to identify the body.

HOT SHOT IN WISCONSIN ASSEMBLY

St. Paul, April 14.—A Madison, Wis., special to the Dispatch, says an outbreak occurred in the assembly today over the Barker bill prohibiting political lobbyists from attempting to influence votes, in which Barker took a shot at the game wardens and oil inspectors and Dahl intimated that Barker's breath still smelled of the whisky the federal office-holders were distributing two years ago, which Barker indignantly resented. The bill was finally sent to the judiciary committee for amendment. A resolution introduced last night fixing May 2 as the date for final adjournment of the legislature was referred to a committee where the day will be extended. There is no prospects of an adjournment before the latter part of May. A conference committee was appointed in each house on the school tax bill. The bill making Lincoln's birthday a legal holiday was defeated in the assembly by a vote of 65 to 51.

FEARS FOR THE WATERLOO LEVEE

New Orleans, April 14.—The flood situation at the Waterloo levee, on the east bank of the river, about seventy miles above the city, is considered serious. Water is pouring through a crawfish hole eighteen to twenty inches in diameter, near the base of the levee, and fear is expressed that before the run around can be built, the weakened levee will give way. Five hundred men are at the scene and four rows of cribbing have been started. A break at this point would be destructive, flooding hundreds of acres of cotton land and truck farms in the new river section and submerging thousands of acres of valuable sugar lands in this Pontchartrain district.

Fire-Fighter's Story

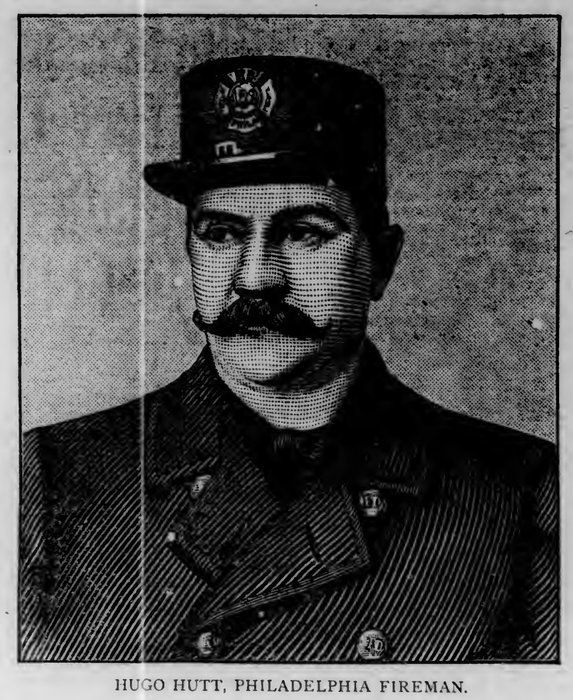
How the Strongest Man In the Philadelphia Fire Department—Once the Weakest—Gained His Strength and Health, By Using Swamp-Root, the Great Kidney and Bladder Remedy.

HERE'S the story of a man who was near death's door and was saved by using Swamp-Root.

If he came to you and said: "My friend, do you suffer with kidney trouble? Does your back ache? Do you feel bad all over and can't tell exactly what's the matter? Have you tried medicines or doctors without benefit? Are you about discouraged? Then do as I did, and get well—Use Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root! I know it will cure you."

If he did this, would you believe him?

Wouldn't you, if you were a sufferer, follow his advice, knowing that he bore living, sentient, vital testimony to the wonderful virtues of this great natural remedy?



HUGO HUTT, PHILADELPHIA FIREMAN.

WELL, that is just what Hugo Hut, strongest man in the Philadelphia Fire Department, hero of a hundred battles with the flames, is doing now through the medium of this paper.

Hugo Hutt has been connected with the Philadelphia Fire Department for the past four years. He is stationed at the engine house at Nineteenth and Callowhill Streets. Mr. Hutt is known as the strongest man in the Fire Department and has taken many prizes at athletic tournaments for his prowess in the field of sports.

He is also an ex-sergeant of the United States Infantry, having for several years been stationed at Fort Niobrara, Neb. Mr. Hut also served with the Sixth Pennsylvania Regiment during the Spanish-American war.

HERE is the story as he gave it to a special representative of Philadelphia's Great Newspaper, "The North American:"

"You will hardly believe it when I tell you there was a time when my body was in such a diseased condition that my relatives and friends would have, at no time, been surprised to learn of my death. It was all due to kindney trouble, for which I could secure no relief. I was under the care of my family physician for a number of years, but he was unable to do me any good. I also consulted two noted specialists on kidney diseases, but they were unable to give me more than temporary relief. I had already made application to join the army, but was turned down on account of my bad physical condition.

"I was advised to try that greatest of all remedies—SWAMP ROOT.

"I wrote to Dr. Kilmer & Co., at Binghamton, N. Y., for a sample bottle and its effect upon me was so noticeable that I went immediately and bought a supply from my druggist, with the result that in a comparatively short time I had entirely recovered and became the man you see me now.

"I served a number of years in the army, and for the past four years I have been connected with the Philadelphia Fire Department. My work, both in the army and fighting fires in Philadelphia, has been of the most arduous, and work that I could not do did I not have a strong physique.

"I do not know what the words "Kidney Trouble" mean now, and do not expect to. I cannot speak too highly of swamp-Root. A few bottles of this great remedy did more for me than a dozen physicians could."

(Signed) HUGO HUTT,
865 Stillman St., Philadelphia, Pa.

AND this is only one man's story — if the average reader of a newspaper could be persuaded to read the thousands of such testimonials which come to Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the kidney troubles which now afflict humanity would be cut down fifty per cent.

For these testimonials all prove beyond a doubt that the greatest cure for kidney, liver and bladder troubles is

Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root

NATURE'S GREATEST AID TO THE SUFFERING.

EDITORIAL NOTICE—Swamp-Root is so remarkably successful that a special arrangements has been made by which all of our read rs who have not already tried it, may have a sample bottle sent absolutely free by mail, also a book that tells all about it and its wonderful cures. Address Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y. In writing, be sure to mention that you read this generous offer in The Duluth Daily Herald. The regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles are sold by all druggists. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root—Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

HOT AFTER KNIGHT

Omaha Police Learn of His Visit to Cheyenne.

Wrote Decoy Letter to Throw Officers Off His Track.

Omaha, April 14.—Chief of Police Donahue has received information from Cheyenne that Frank E. Knight, wanted here in connection with the mysterious disappearance of his wife, was seen in that city last night. The information states that Jeanie Dusenberry, an acquaintance, who is living at Cheyenne, admitted that Knight called on her last evening and was with her some time. Every effort is being made to apprehend him. The letter in possession of the police, written by Knight to Mrs. Stiles, mother of Miss Dusenberry, contains the following:

"I took your advice and, I think, eluded the police all right. It was Mell's (Melvin Dusenberry) giving me away by saying I was going to store the trunk, that did the business. I send you a letter to put in the box for me to keep the authorities thinking I am still in Omaha. Mrs. Knight intended the dose for me, but I caught on and changed the cups, an you know the rest."

The letter enclosed to be mailed was a decoy to cover his tracks and throws no light on the alleged crime.

Mrs. Stiles called on Knight at his work after the investigation was begun by the police, and it is said advised him to leave at once. In his haste he did not stop to secure his salary, and the letter sates that an "order for the amount will be sent to Mrs. Stiles.

AT WEST DULUTH

Footsore, hungry, penniless and strangers in a foreign country, five natives of Montenegro arrived in Duluth yesterday, having walked the entire distance from Chicago.

Two months ago Jhov Perovich Parpo Perovich, Anstria Narkovich, Blagealo Zuice and Jozan Donozelozich left their native land to come to America. They landed at New York March 12 and purchased through tickets to Duluth. In Chicago, they claim, they were robbed of their tickets. They have friends in Chisholm to whom they were going and they decided to walk from Chicago to Chisholm, evidently judging distances in the United States from standards that they had been accustomed to using in Montenegro.

With but $11 in money to supply them with the necessities of life on the trip they started for Duluth by way of St. Paul. The trip to St. Paul was made in twelve days and the particulars of that trip are known only to themselves for they cannot speak a word of English and told their story through an interpreter.

They stopped in St. Paul only a few hours and then began the second stage of their journey to Duluth. They arrived in West Duluth yesterday and were taken in at the police station and given a hearty meal by the kindly disposed patrolmen and firemen. Immediately after eating they fell into a deep sleep from which they did not awaken until late last evening when they related their story to Lieut. Briggs, through an interpreter.

The men seem to have suffered no ill effects from their journey and appear to be in the best of health after their rest. Their relatives in Chisholm have not been heard from and it is probable the men will start for that city today, using the same means of travel that has brought them from Chicago.

NOT FOR POOR MEN.

Comment of a Former West Duluthian on Alaska.

"Alaska is not a poor man's country," said T. Haley, a former resident of West Duluth, who has recently returned from that city. Mr. Haley was one of the first settlers in West Duluth. He left in August, 1898, for the Klondike and since that time has been in all parts of Alaska, visiting Nome, Dawson and the other important mining camps. During the past few months he has been on the Pacific coast and intends to return to Washington within a few weeks.

"There are good chances in Alaska for speculators with some money," he said, "but for the poor man who wishes to enter the mining business for himself that is no place to go. Supplies are very high and all the good claims have been secured by the large companies. There is still a large quantity of gold being shipped from there. It is being taken out by the large corporations and no new discoveries are being announced.

"Wages are high, it is true, common labor bringng from $4 to $5 per day with board, but then a man wants something more than a fair wage to stay in that country. There are very few men in Dawson, probably none, who went there with the intention of staying. They go there to make a stake and they want to make it as quickly as possible and get out. No one wants to live there. And so working for wages, even though they be high, is not an ideal life in Dawson.

"Dawson is not such a wide-open city as it formerly was. The authorities have succeeded in stopping the gambling to a very large extent. It is a lively little city, but the chances are no better than right here in Duluth."

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

EX-SENATOR JONES

Anxious to Get on Isthmian Canal Commission.

Washington, April 14.—Ex-Senator James K. Jones wants an appointment on the isthmian canal commission. His claim is emphasized by what Mr. Jones' friends are telling of his hard luck in business. They say he is "up against it" to make a living. The common impression has prevailed that Jones was quite a rich man. The impression is traceable to much that has been said about his interest in a patent device for doing cotton into round bales. With the help of a little legislation it was said that this device had created a trust in the cotton bailing industry, and that Jones was the trust. The story contributed largely to Jones' defeat for re-eelction to the senate. But now comes the addition that something happened in that round-bale business which not only cut off the revenue, but absorbed about all the money the senator had saved. He is a lawyer by profession, but many years in the senate, with continuous residence in Washington has eliminated clients. He does not find it possible to pick up a living practice. So he wants to help build the isthmian canal. A movement is on foot among eastern Democrats to secure the selection of Senator Gorman as successor to Jones for chairman of the Democratic national committee and manager of the next presidential campaign. It is quite likely that Gorman will be chosen. The selection of a new chairman of the national committee presents difficulties, and opens the way for factional conflict.

HEIR TO FORTUNE.

Half-Breed Has Valuable Land In Canada.

Sioux City, Iowa, April 14.—Through a want ad. in a newspaper the Indian wife and half-breed son of Leander Cartier, one of the first French settlers where Sioux City now is, will probably come into a fortune in Canada and Wisconsin lands. Cartier came here about sixty years ago. He is a Canadian by birth. In western Canada, and later in Wisconsin, he took large land holdings, which he afterwards abandoned, though always claiming they would make a fortune for his descendants.

He was a Civil war soldier, and died here six years ago. In the early days he married an Indian, and she bore him a son. When he was sent to the Leavenworth Soldiers' home twelve years ago he abandoned them, against his wishes, and they were lost. Now the Cartier lands have suddenly become valuable. Advertising has developed that the widow and boy are at the Cheyenne agency, and they are likely to come into their fortune.

English Coal In Demand.

The American demand for English coal is again in evidence, and many large vessels are being loaded and started for our country as rapidly as possible. The demand for the celebrated Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is also largely increased, because more people are learning of its wonderful curative powers in cases of stomach, liver, kidney and bowel disorders, and having tried one bottle they have been convinced of its value, and won't accept anything else in its place. This will be your experience, to, if you will only give it a trial. It will build up the run-down system in the spring, overcome that tired, depressed feeling, purify the blood and cure loss of appetite, indigestion, dyspepsia, constipation, biliousness and la grippe. Don't fail to ry it.

MURDER AT OWATONNA

BUFFALO BILL'S HEARTY TRIBUTE

Cured of Rheumatism by Kickapoo Indian Sagwa and Kickapoo Indian Oil.

HE UNHESITATINGLY ENDORSES THEM.

Says They Cure Where a Cure is Possible, and That They Are Unequalled.

[From the Salt Lake City News.]

There is no man in America whose knowledge of the Indians, their strong and their weak points, can compare with that of Hon. W. F. Cody, Buffalo Bill. The years he spent amongst the different tribes as an invaluable representative and counselor of the United States government gave him a familiarity with their capabilities, skill, habits and customs which makes him the greatest living authority on all matters relating to Indians. With this wonderful knowledge what does Buffalo Bill do when taken sick? Does he consult some high priced practitioner? Does he take some deadly mineral medicine? No. He does just what the humblest man can do as well as the richest. He resorts to the simple but wonderfully sure Kickapoo Indian remedies, which are made from roots, herbs, gums, barks and leaves, whose formulas were secured from the Kickapoos. And what was the result? He was to use his own words "speedily cured." Here is what Col. Cody says:

HON. W. F. CODY.
"Buffalo Bill."

"I have known of the virtues of the Kickapoo Indian Remedies for a long time, on the frontier and in the east they are considered indispensable to every household. I used Kickapoo Indian Sagwa for Malaria and chills with the best results, it being far better for this trouble than quinine or any other remedy. I also used Kickapoo Indian Sagwa and Kickapoo Indian Oil for rheumatism and was speedily and entirely cured. You may use my name and say for what they are recommended the Kickapoo Indian Remedies have no equal."

Sufferers, after reading such a tribute from such a man, can you hesitate? If you have kidney, liver, heart or stomach trouble, rheumatism, impoverished blood, constipation, catarrh or nervous disorder, Kickapoo Indian Sagwa will surely cure you, and it won't leave any unpleasant after effects either like mineral medicines do. Sagwa is sold in 50 cent and $1.00 bottles.

Kickapoo Indian Oil, the sovereign family liniment which is sold at the people's price of 25 cents a bottle, should be in your household. It stops all pain, muscular or nervous, and cures the cause. For bumps, bruises, ear ache, tooth ache, neuralgia, cramps, colic, sprains, strains, headache, weak back and all acute pain, external or internal, it is without a rival.

All Kickapoo Indian Remedies are sold everywhere. Take no substitute for no remedies are "just as good."

THE ELOPERS WERE WINNERS

Rode Sixty-Five Miles In a Fierce Snow Storm.

Hot Springs, S. D., April 14.—Claud Fairbanks and Miss Robbins, aged about 22 and 16 years respectively, arrived here and procured a marriage license, but while waiting for Justice Cook to come to his office to tie the knot, Marshal Dorman received a telegram from the girl's parents at Sheridan, Wyo., to arrest the couple and prevent their marriage, as they were elopers. The marshal lodged the twain in jail to await developments.

It is learned that the young folks live with their parents upon neighboring ranches, near Sheridan, Wyo., and that the parents of the girl objected to the attention of young Fairbanks, but the girl encouraged the young man, and they saddled up two broncbos. Miss Robbins disguised herself in a suit of her lover's clothes and away they sped across the bleak plains of Wyoming to Moorcroft, sixty-five miles distant, riding all night in a fierce snow storm.

Upon reaching Moorcroft the girl donner her skirts and they took the Burlington train for Hot Springs.

Marshal Dornan held the truants for the arrival of those interested, but in the meantime young Fairbanks employed an attorney, who went to Deadwood to interview Judge McGee and procured a writ of habeas corpus.

This was obtained and the runaways expected to be taken before Judge McGee for a hearing, but the persons representing the parents arrived and were not long in withdrawing complaints and the couple were promptly married.

CARRIED HUNDRED FEET

By a Tornado and Escaped Practically Unhurt.

Fort Dodge, Iowa, April 14.—John Maulky, a farmer living near Jolly, Iowa, was carried over a hundred feet through the air by a tornado Saturday afternoon. He landed in a net work of telephone wires and slid down a pole to the ground practically unhurt.

Maulky was hitching his team when the storm struck him. The horses were picked up by the wind, carried across the road and dashed against a tree. One was killed and the other will have to be shot.

Much damage was done near Jolly by the tornado. Several barns were destroyed and the fields were innundated by the heavy rain which accompanied the wind.

DISMISSED ON ERROR.

Merits of White vs. Wright Not Passed Upon.

Washington, April 14.—The supreme court yesterday dismissed for want of jurisdiction, a writ of error in the case of Almond A. White vs. Sidney L. Wright and others, appealed from the supreme court of Minnesota. The case involved lands on which is situated the town of Cass Lake. The action was originated by the plaintiff against the defendant who purchased the land from the United States and subsequently sold it to the Cass Land company which platted the land and sold lots to various persons.

The supreme court of Minnesota sustained the demurrer of the defendants and the decision today related to that opinion. The merits of the claims of the contending parties were not presented, and a final decision on the ownership of the land will be given in a case where the facts are presented.

MOSQUITOES TO BE DRIVEN OUT

And Waste Land Reclaimed In Vicinity of New York.

New York, April 14.—Initiated by ex-Secretary of the Navy William C. Whitney, and undertaken with the sanction of the department of health, operations have just been begun looking to the extermination of mosquitoes from the meadows adjacent to Jamaica bay, Coney island and Gravesend bay.

If successful, a district of forty square miles will be benefited. The scheme also contemplates the reclamation of all the waste land on the meadows by draining and diking.

Great property interests included in the territory mentioned will co-operate, and towns, villages and individuals may be compelled to join in the movement by direction of the health authorities.

A concerted movement is being made by hotel owners, real estate dealers, railroad officials and race track associations. A detailed plan of operations will be promulgated within a month.

As roughly laid out, the scheme includes the draining, improvement and development of all the Jamaica bay meadows west of the Big Channel and Ruffle bar, and the meadows around Bergen beach, Barren island, Canarsie Landing, Plum beach, Garretson's creek, Jamaica bay and those around Sheepshead bay and Gravesend bay back of Coney island.

It will require the employment of hundreds of men for several years to reclaim this vast territory.

RESTORED TO CHURCH

Membership By Dispensation From the Bishop.

New York, April 14.—Divorced from a rich, roving husband, left a widow by a second wealthy spouse and separated from her third husband, Mrs. Dennis H. Gildea has been taken back into the fold by the Roman Catholic church. She left it because of her matrimonial troubles, and now the Rt. Rev. Bishop McDonnell, of Brooklyn, has granted her a special dispensation, and the church offers her its consolation.

Mrs. Gildea was Miss Mary E. Reardon, daughter of ex-Police Capt. John H. Reardon, one of the prettiest girls in Williamsburg. Her admirers were legion. She married Thomas Shayne, brother of C. C. Shayne, the wealthy fur dealer of this city, formerly of Cincinnati. They lived happily for several years, and four daughters were born to them. Then, it is said, Shayne developed a roving habit, and a cloud came over their life.

FORMER SLAVE

Has Been Elected Justice of the Peace.

La Crosse, Wis., April 14.—J. C. Perkins, once a slave, the man who representing the colored population of this county on the occasion of the late visit of President Roosevelt to this city, presented the distinguished visitor with a magnificent bouquet of flowers, is now a judge. He was selected justice of the peace of the town of Shelby, this county, by the white people of that town at the election just held.

He was born a slave on a plantation belonging to his master five miles out of Holly Springs, Miss., in 1840. His master, Col. Dawson, owned at the time 500 slaves and numerous plantations in Tennessee, Mississippi and Alabama.

When the war broke out the young man, just of age, joined the rebel army as servant of Maj. Perkins, whose name he assumed. In 1863, when the emancipation proclamation was issued, he joined the federal forces and served until the end of the war. He was in the battles of Gunntown, Nashville, Mobile and Shiloh.

He then went to Chicago and drove a delivery wagon, and from there settled in Walworth county, this state. In 1877 he married Miss Florence Crosby, of Milwaukee, and they have nine children.

He was an eye witness to the killing of Gen. Johnson, of the Confederate army, at the battle of Shiloh.

Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Cure

Costs Nothing If It Fails.

Any honest person who suffers from Rheumatism is welcome to this offer.

I am a specialist in Rheumatism, and have treated more cases than any other physician, I think. For 16 years I made 2000 experiments with different drugs, testing all known remedies while searching the world for something better. Nine years ago I found a costly chemical in Germany which, with my previous discoveries, gives me a certain cure.

I don't mean that it can turn bony joints into flesh again; but it can cure the disease at any stage, completely and forever. I have done it fully 100,000 times.

I know this so well that I will furnish my remedy on trial. Simply write me a postal for my book on Rheumatism, and I will mail you an order on your druggist for six bottles of Dr. Shoop's Rheumatic Cure. Take it for a month at my risk. If it succeeds, the cost is only $5.50. If it fails, I will pay the druggist myself—and your mere word shall decide it.

I mean that exactly. If you say the results are not what I claim, I don't expect a penny from you.

I have no samples. Any mere sample that can affect chronic Rheumatism must be drugged to the verge of danger. I use no such drugs, and it is folly to take them. You must get the disease out of the blood.

My remedy does that even in the most difficult, obstinate cases. It has cured the oldest cases that I ever met. And in all my experience—in all my 2,000 tests—I never found another remedy that would cure one chronic case in ten.

Write me and I will send you the order. Try my remedy for a month, as it can't harm you anyway. If it fails it is free.

Address Dr. Shoop, Box 685, Racine, Wis.

Mild cases, not chronic, are often cured by one or two bottles. At all druggists.

GERMANY IS ASKED

To Explain the Deportation of Native Students.

Washington, April 14.—The state department has asked the German government for a statement of facts connected with the deportation from the island of Ruk to the island of Ponate, another of the Caroline group, of a number of native students of the American missionary establishment there. The matter was brought to the attention of the state department formally by Rev. Dr. Judson Smith, secretary of the American Board of Foreign Missions, in a note reciting that these students had been harshly treated, according to the accounts reaching him, and asking that the state department look after the welfare of the American missionaries in that quarter and see that their work was not needlessly interrupted. Dr. Smith knows nothing of the facts but is simply acting upon statements that come to him from the missionaries on the island.

Boston, April 14.—The American board has made public reports received from Rev. M. L. Stimson and Miss Jennie D. Baldwin concerning the arrest recently announced of native missionaries in the Caroline Islands by the captain of a German warship. These reports announce that those in custody number four and that there were taken by the captain of the German warship Cormorant. They were accused by a German trader of impropriety toward the German government.

Mr. Stimson said that he went on board the Cormorant to look into the matter and he was received "without courtesy." Being ordered to "move," and "stand," and "sit down" and "leave the ship." He was not permitted to speak in defense of the accused. At a trial held on board the warship twenty heathens, men servants and adherents of the traders, testified against the missionaries and it was decided to take the prisoners to Ponapa.

BECOMING ACTIVE

Port Beginning to Take on Its Lively Summer Movement.

More Tugs In Commission—Schenck to Be Brought Here.

The tug Carrington is being fitted out and will go into commission tomorrow. Capt. Brown will be in command and Charles McEachern will act as engineer. The Excelsior is now at work, but delays in fitting out the Inman prevented her going into commission today as was expected.

The tug Schenck is being fitted out at Sault Ste. Marie and will be added to the Duluth fleet this summer. The Schenck was in commission at Marquette last summer. She is a very powerful tug, being somewhat larger than the Zenith. One of the Duluth tugs will probably be sent to Marquette to take the place of the Schenck.

The port is commencing to assume its summer air of activity, five departures and four arrivals being reported during the past twenty-four hours.

The Penobscot has cleared with grain for Buffalo, but is lying at anchor off the Seventh avenue slip.

The Northern Wind, Northern Wave and Northern Queen are loading at the Great Northern flour sheds in Superior.

ARBITRATION PROPOSED.

Buffalo's Mayor Would Have the Strike Settled.

A movement had originated in Buffalo to settle the strike of the firemen, oilers and water tenders by arbitration. A dispatch from there says:

"Mayor Knight of this city has taken the initiative in the matter by addressing letters to Daniel J. Keefe, president of the International Longshoremen's union, and Michael Casey, secretary of the Firemen's association. He also wrote a letter to William Livingstone, president of the Lake Carriers' association, informing him of the steps that had been taken to settle the strike, and urging him to bring about a meeting of the men and their former employers.

"President Livingstone replied to Mayor Knight, stating that while he was unable to see any grounds for arbitration, he would call a meeting of the executive committee of the association. If it is found there are any differences that can be submitted to arbitration a meeting with the men will be arranged. The meeting between the employers and the representatives of the men probably will be held in this city."

Another dispatch from Buffalo last evening says:

"Twenty-seven ocean firemen tonight applied for food and shelter at the headquarters of the Lake Firemen's union. The firemen claim that they were induced to leave New York on false representations of the labor situation at this port.

"Elliott Shaw, who says he was formerly a fireman on the steamship Teutonic, acted as spokesman for the party. He said that he and his companions were offered work by a man claiming to represent an official of the Anchor line of Buffalo. They were promised $45 a month. The firemen agreed to come to this city, but on arriving there and learning that lake firemen are on strike the ocean firemen refused to go to work. Some of them are without funds.

"The lake firemen will pay their fares back to New York."

PORT OF DULUTH.

Arrived: Etruria, Trevor, Hawgood, coal, Lake Erie; Ottawa light for grain, Buffalo.

Departed: Harvard, Grecian, J. J. Hill, Mesaba, light for ore, Two Harbors; Luzon, grain, Buffalo.

NOT VERY SUCCESSFUL

Were First Automobile Trials For Bennett Cup.

New York, April 14.—With a nasty northeast wind cutting the course and a pour of rain, the first trials for the American automobile team for the Gordon Bennett cup were held near Garden City, L. I., today. Only two cars competed. The contestants were Percy Owen, of this city, and I. P. Moers, of Cleveland. The trials were held on a 5-mile stretch of road between Westbury and Merrick. Mr. Owens was the first to start. The car was given a flying start and covered the five miles in 5 minutes and 55 seconds. On his second trial Mr. Owens stopped before he had completed the course.

Mr. Moers' car was sent away from a standstill. The time for the five miles was refused, and it was announced that an insufficient amount of gasoline would prevent a second trial today.

Further trials will be held tomorrow and Thursday, if the weather permits.

KERR FOUND GUILTY.

Minneapolis, Kan., April 14.—A verdict of manslaughter in the third degree has been returned against Ervin Kerr, charged with killing A. B. Poppham on Feb. 12. Kerr's father is the pastor of the Methodist church at Ada, Kan. The trial attracted much interest and many women attended daily.

ST. LOUIS EXHIBIT

Charles S. Mitchell Talks of Duluth's Interest In Exposition.

Will Meet the Commercial Club and Give His Views.

The Minnesota board of managers of the Louisiana Purchase exposition, represented by C. S. Mitchell, of Alexandria, superintendent of the work, will have a conference with the Duluth Commercial club tomorrow evening for the purpose of making plans for the Duluth end of the exhibit to be made by the state.

The fair managers, who are Conde Hamlin, T. L. Hayes and J. M. Underwood, are now dividing up the $100,000 appropriation to make it reach as many corners of the state as possible, and they want to know just what the people want played up at the St. Louis show next year, before proceeding to the work of finishing plans for the exhibit.

"Our idea has been," said Mr. Mitchell, this noon, "to conceive some way in which there could be shown the immense importance of Duluth as a trade center, and as a commercial way between the East and West. The way must be suggested by Duluth, and we will carry out the plan.

"Another thing that should be shown is the inexhaustible supply of minerals of this vicinity, and the immense traffic in ore from the ranges and supplies to the ranges, and the great importance of it; to show the world why Duluth is bound to become one of the foremost Western cities because of its natural advantages in situation and harbor.

"The docks, the largest in the world, are in Duluth, and something should be shown regarding them; perhaps a working model or anything to show how boats are loaded and unloaded here cheaper than anywhere else on the earth.

"Then there is a fish exhibit for St. Louis county. Minnesota has asked for and secured separate space for exhibiting fish, aside from the federal government's aquarium. In that exhibit, when trout are shown, it will mean Duluth and St. Louis county. These things are in the air, and it is for the Duluth business men to get together and designate how to show these things to the best advantage."

Mr. Mitchell will remain in Duluth until tomorrow night. At the meeting of the Commercial club he will appear before the gathering and lay out his views on the subject and tell what has been planned by the members of the board of managers, and just what is wanted from Duluth in the way of suggestions.

The club, it is presumed, will appoint committees to take charge of the work and receive and make suggestions for the different portions of the exhibit Duluth will be directly interested in.

The Duluth corner, as well as the rest of Minnesota will have to be economical in the plans made for exhibits, compared with other states. Wisconsin gets $200,000 for spending money and Iowa $50,000 more than that, while Minnesota will have to worry along with but $100,000.

LOUBET EMBARKS

On Board Warship and Sails For Algiers.

Marseilles, April 14.—President Loubet, accompanied by the minister and the president of the senate and chamber of deputies boarded the armored cruiser Joanne D'Arc today and started for Algiers amid salutes from the assembled French fleet and from the land batteries. A heavy sea and a northwest wind made the embarkation difficult and promised a disagreeable voyage. The Joanne D'Arc is due at Algiers tomorrow afternoon. An imposing array of warships representing Russia, Great Britain, Italy, Spain and France awaits her arrival.

A NEW IDEA OF LUCK

Manager Saylor of "Trip to Chinatown" Readjusts His Opinions.

Dead Corpse In Baggage Car Does Not Bring Luck.

"If anybody ever tries to tell me that having a corpse on your train is good luck, again," said Manager H. M. Saylor, of "A Trip to Chinatown" company, which failed to get in until this morning, "there'll be two corpses in the baggage car instead of one."

As he spoke he looked sadly at the ticket rack in the Lyceum theater box office and adjusted his glasses. His company was in a wreck up on the Canadian Northern Sunday afternoon, and it took from then until this morning to get them down to Duluth. They came over the Northern Pacific.

"Oh, I'll sue the Northern Pacific, all right. I can't stand to lose an engagement here without a roar. I never was treated that way before. We were left at Staples at a little after 1 o'clock yesterday to wait.

"The wreck on the Canadian Northern took place about fifteen miles south of Winnipeg. It's a wonder we didn't wreck every mile of the fifteen. The road is something fierce. The rails spread out, and we went to the middle of the track. The engineer and fireman jumped and were bruised up some, but none of the passengers were hurt. I walked back on the track and pulled an armful of spikes out of the ties for keepsakes.

"The heavy train that went up ahead of us took the 'Arizona' company, but they got by, and probably tore up the track for us.

"If the wreck had occurred yesterday, April 13, we would have had something tangible to blame it to, but all of us had been under the belief that a corpse in a baggage car was exceptionally good luck and we might have gone on the Great Northern if it hadn't been for the superstition.

"All that happened on the 13th was that we didn't get into the Lyceum theater. That's bad enough.

"We got to Winnipeg Junction all right, with our baggage, and then by 3 o'clock Sunday morning we were on the Northern Pacific heading this way, with plenty of time. I wired several times, and the train was run special for us—that is, it was sidetracked for all the freight and other trains coming up the road, and we didn't get to Staples until 1:30 yesterday afternoon.

"We were requested to get out and wait there, and no telegraphing that we could do would cause any relief from the embarrassing situation. If a train had been sent on there, we would have reached Duluth in plenty of time to have given the show last night."

The company did not get in last night, and there was a large number of people who went to the Lyceum expecting to see Hoyt's funny farce, and went home disappointed. The company will show in Superior this evening.

HOW ALICE DID IT.

Learned to Follow Instructions

"I puzzled mother mightily one morning after a return from visiting some friends. She had suffered terribly from sleeplessness caused by coffee drinking, and of course general nervousness and stomach trouble followed.

"Some one told her to quit coffee and use Postum Food Coffee, but the first morning it was served to her it was so insipid and weak that she gave it up and went to drinking hot water for she did not care for tea or cocoa.

"About this time I went visiting, and during the conversation in reply to an inquiry about mother's health, I told of her sleepless nights and general condition and of the failure of the new drink that we tried.

"I obesreved that my friend looked rather knowing and wise at this statement, but thought nothing more of it at the time.

"In the morning at breakfast I was served with a most delicious cup of coffee, which I drank with great pleasure, but I noticed my hostess watching me carefully, finally I asked for a second cup and she burst out laughing and remarked, 'So your folks don't like Postum?' I was astonished, and said, 'This is not Postum, is it?' She sent for the package in order to satisfy me, and it was exactly like the one mother had. Then I learned that our failure was caused from not boiling it long enough, so when I reached home I told mother I had found a new drink for her and I went into the kitchen and made it from her old package of Postum. She was so delighted with the new drink that I told her it was Postum, and it was amusing to see her perplexity. She looked at the package and read it over. At last she said, 'Alice, how did you ever do it?' I said, 'By simply following the directions.' She exclaimed, 'Why I did not know there were any directions.' It seems the cook had not looked at the package but just brewed it with a little hot water, like she would tea, and that ill not ake good Postum. It must be boiled just as the directions say, then the flavor is delicious.

"The next day mother was to give a little coffee party and we served Postum intsead of coffee. The ladies were all dlightd with it, and we now have 'Postums' instead of 'Coffees,' and it would astonish anyone to hear the experience of the different ladies as to how well they feel and how soundly they sleep at night since they have adopted Postum instead of the old fashioned coffee, and particularly since they have followed directions." Name given by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

WHOLE BOARD UNDER ARREST

Chicago's Election Commissioners In Charge of the Sheriff.

Chicago, April 14.—All the members of the board of election commissioners and chief clerk are under arrest for defying Judge Hanecy's injunction in the Lorimer-Durnorrow contest. The specific charge is contempt of court and refusal to pay $100 fine for opening the ballots after being commanded not to do so. Immediately after the arrest the prisoners were taken by Sheriff Barret to a train bound for Springfield, where their attorneys will apply to the supreme court for writs of habeas corpus and endeavor to have them freed. The entire affair was conducted with great secrecy. The attorneys representing Mr. Lorimer and the board are now in Springfield, where a legal battle will take place. Mr. Lorimer's attorney will file a mandamus suit before the court today to prevent any further interference with the ballots. He will also resist the application for release of the commissioners.

TOWN THREATENED.

Blackmailers Want Money or Will Destroy Place.

Montgomery, Ind., April 14.—William Brown, a merchant, has received a letter from unknown persons, warning the citizens that unless they place a glass jar containing $500 at the end of a bridge west of here, the town will be destroyed by fire and dynamite. The letter has caused excitement among the people as incendiaries have made three attempts to set the town on fire within the last three weeks. The incendiaries escaped. The letter said that these efforts to wipe out the town are but an indication of what would come if the money was not left at the bridge.

CREW OF SCOW DROWNED.

Philadelphia, April 14.—During the severe northeast gale which prevailed last night the scow Hughes capsized in the Delaware river off Marcus Hook, Pa., and four men of the crew were drowned. When the scow turned turtle, the cabin floated away with the men within. The bodies have not yet been recovered.

After Easter

As Busy as Before!

No let up on our steady daily business—

A constant flow of new, fresh and stylish things enables trade to get the latest out here—always!

Our stocks in every department are beaming with lovely things—things that have been arriving within the past few days—to take the place of many closed out by our before-Easter trade!

At this time of the year—the beginning of the Spring Season—women expect the best and most stylish the market affords, and we are prepared—every line is prepared—with large and beautiful stocks—

Particularly is this true of the Garment Section—which is constantly securing new lines to take the place of those closed out from day to day—a constant stream of new fresh novelties from the best makers in the land!

Women who have visited about every store in Duluth, and at the head of the lakes, tell us that our stock contains more lovely things than they have been able to see in all of the other stores put together.

And our immense Garment business bears out this assertion.

We've never experieneed so successful a season in all of our many years of business!

We employ two expert fitters and twenty-eight tailors and seamstresses to look after the alterations alone!

And a small army of salespeople are kept busy on our garment floor looking after the sales.

We are showing at the present time over two hundred styles of Tailored Suits and Costumes alone!

Over Fifty Styles of Spring Coats and Jackets, of cloth!

Over Forty styles of Silk Coats in long, medium or short!

Over eighty styles of Separate Skirts!

Over Forty styles of Silk Petticoats!

Over a hundred styles of Cotton Waists!

Over a hundred styles of Girls' Coats!

All in stock and ready for buyers!

And the Silberstein & Bondy label on each and every one of them—a guarantee of its quality and its style!

And yet our prices are no higher than most stores ask for the ordinary kinds. Try us and see!

WILL FURNISH GAS TO CITY

Furnace Company and City Reach Agreement.

Means Cheaper Gas For Duluth---The Full Text.

The gas deal is practically consummated.

Its importance to every citizen in Duluth cannot be over-estimated.

The Zenith Furnace company will furnish the city with gas from a mammoth by-product coke plant to be located at West Duluth, and the city will go out of the gas manufacturing business, but furnish the Zenith Furnace company's product to consumers through the present municipal system.

Gas for cooking and illuminating purposes will sell next fall for 90 cents per 1000 feet, which is a reduction of 10 cents from the present water and light department price.

Gas for house heating and manufacturing purposes will be furnished for 75 cents per 1000 feet, a reduction of 25 cents on the current rate.

Duluth need feel no anxiety or apprehension for coal strikes of the future, for homes can be heated, according to experts, with gas at the same price that it would cost to heat with coal if coal could be purchased for $7 a ton.

The city enters into a 10-year contract with the Zenith Furnace company, and if the gas consumption is as great as is anticipated, the cost to the consumer for cooking and lighting purposes may be as low as 60 cents per 1000 feet, and for power and heating purposes 55 cents per 1000 feet.

From the very start the Zenith company guarantees the city a revenue of $5000 annually from manufacturing and heating gas sales alone. For every 1000 feet of gas sold under the proposed contract the city will receive a revenue of 15 cents.

The company will build all necessary pipe lines connecting with the city's system, and sell to the city whenever desired after the lines shall have earned 10 per cent on the investment.

West Duluth will get gas in an unlimited quantity next fall, and the mains and service connections in that part of the city will be built by the Zenith Furnace company.

The full text of the gas agreement is as follows:

Duluth, Minn., April 14, 1903.—To the Honorable Common Council, City of Duluth, Minn.—Gentlemen: Your committee on light and water, to whom was referred the communication from the Zenith Furnace company, together with the board of water and light commissioners, have had numerous conferences with the representatives of the Zenith Furnace company, and have agreed upon the following general terms and propositions to be included in a contract between the city of Duluth and the Zenith Furnace company, which we report herewith to the council, with the recommendation that the council enter into a contract with the Zenith Furnace company, embodying these conditions.

Propositions to be embraced in the proposed contract:

1. Gas to be sold to the city, to be divided into two classes, the first-class to include all gas used for lighting and cooking purposes, hereinafter called "lighting" the second class to include gas used for all other purposes, hereinafter called "heating."

2. The Furnace company to begin the erection of a plant for the manufacture of coke in the city of Duluth, and for the manufacture of gas as a bi-product thereof, within sixty days after the execution of this contract, and to be ready for the delivery of gas under this contract to the city (strikes, the act of God, or other unavoidable causes excepted) by Jan. 1, 1904.

3. When the Furnace company shall be ready to supply gas under the terms of the contract, and shall have notified the city to that effect, the city shall cease to manufacture gas at its own plant, and shall distribute only the gas of the Furnace company, so long as the Furnace company supplies the gas required by the city, in accordance with the terms of this contract, and the Furnace company on its part agrees thereafter to maintain and furnish a sufficient supply to meet all the requirements of gas business of the city.

The Furnace company shall deliver the gas in mains of the plant of the city.

The Furnace company shall refrain from furnishing gas for any purposes that would compete, or aid in competing, with the water and light department of the city of Duluth, except at the same rate or rates as is allowed the city by the Furnace company.

4. The price to be paid the Furnace company by the city, for lighting gas, shall be 45 cents for each 1000 cubic feet delivered to the consumers, until the amount taken by the city for such purposes equals 100,000,000 cubic feet in one year.

After the quantity of gas used by the city for lighting and cooking purposes reaches 100,000,000 cubic feet in one year, then the price shall be 42½ cents per 1000 cubic feet for all gas used for lighting and cooking and further reduction to 40 cents per 1000 cubic feet shall be made, when the annual consumption equals 125,000,000 cubic feet.

5. The price to be paid the furnace company for heating gas shall be the rate charged the consumer therefor, less 15 cents per 1000 cubic feet on the first 50,000,000 cubic feet per annum, and 12½ cents per 1000 cubic feet on the next 25,000,000 cubic feet per annum and 10 cents per 1000 cubic feet on the next 25,000,000 cubic feet per annum and 7½ cents per 1000 cubic feet on the next 25,000,000 cubic feet per annum and 5 cents per 1000 cubic feet on all above 125,000,000 cubic feet per annum, and the city shall be guaranteed an income from this reduction upon the heating gas amounting to $5000 per year until such time, if that should occur, that the city is taking so nearly all of the output of the company for lighting and cooking purposes that 15 cents per 1000 cubic feet upon the balance of the output would not equal the sum of $5000 per year; it being understood that if the company is obliged in any year to pay any sum to make up this income to $5000 that it shall be entitled to a credit of that upon the surplus above $5000 in any subsequent year.

The settlement between the city and the Furnace company shall be made on the twentieth of each month for the preceding month and at the settlement in January of each year, adjustment shall be made for any differences that may arise owing to a proper rate not having been figured in the settlement for any month.

6. The price to the consumer of lighting gas shall be solely at the discretion of the city, acting through its board of water and light commissioners.

7. The board will, at the request of the Furnace company, fix such general and uniform rates as the Furnace company may desire for the supply of gas other than for lighting and cooking purposes, provided that the rate shall at no time exceed 75 cents per 1000 cubic feet and there shall be a further provision that authorizes the retention by the city of a sum equal to one dollar and thirty-five cents per annum for each three or five light meter installed for the measuring of consumption of heating gas, it being further understood that a minimum rate of 25 cents monthly shall be charged consumers of heating gas by the city, which shall, in the adjustment or the account between the city and the Furnace company, be treated as having been received for gas furnished.

8. The gas furnished shall be of seventeen candle-power coal gas or its equivalent, if water gas is made, it being understood, however, that in case of emergency, due to circumstances beyond the control of the Furnace company, the candle-power may temporarily be reduced without forfeiting any rates under the contract and further that gas furnished shall be supplied in the city mains at a pressure of ten inches of water at Twenty-eighth avenue west, in the city of Duluth or a less pressure, if mutually agreed upon at the time.

9. The care and control of the city gas works and its entire service system, with all extensions, shall remain with the city, to be executed by the water and light department and the ownership thereof shall rest in the city.

10. Extensions of the service system shall be made under the rules and requirements of the board, as they may be promulgated from time to time.

11. Connections to the curb lines shall be made in accordance with rules and regulations of the board.

12. Any extension of gas mains that may be desired by the Furnace company, shall be made by the board at the company's expense, the work to be subject to competitive bids, in which the company may join.

The size of the mains to be so laid, shall be decided by mutual agreement between the board and the company.

The city shall reimburse the company for said extension, without interest, when the income derived from the sale of gas for lighting and cooking purposes shall equal ten per cent of the cost of such extension as follows: at the close of any year, when it is shown that the bona fide income for such purposes from any extension is equal to or exceeds the required ten per cent, the city shall reimburse the company for the cost of said extension.

In cases where no water mains are in place, the city, acting through its board of water and light commissioners, are to have the privilege of laying water mains in the same trench with gas mains, without paying any part of expense of digging or filling the trench excavated for laying the gas pipe, except that the whole expense of the Furnace company will be repaid, when the income has been shown to be ten per cent, as provided hereinbefore.

When any extension shall have been completed, it shall thereupon become the property of the City of Duluth and the city shall be under obligation to pay for it as hereinbefore provided, when the income for gas used for lighting and cooking purposes has reached the point hereinbefore agreed upon.

All the provisions of the agreement referring to the extension of mains, refer only to pipe laid in public thoroughfares and other public property.

13. The furnace company shall have the right to extend the use of gas for any purposes, by assisting consumers in making connections by the furnishing of apparatus for the consumers thereof, or by any other means it may select, other than by the reduction of rates as herein provided for, but such connections shall be made in accordance with the rules and regulations of the board of water and light commissioners.

14. That the water and light department shall use due diligence in keeping the distributing system in such a state of repair as to avoid excessive leakage of gas. It is mutually agreed that the rates paid the company by the water and light department includes a leakage of gas not to exceed 250,000 cubic feet of gas per annum for each mile of main and that for any excess thereof the city shall pay the furnace company at the rate of 30 cents for each 1000 cubic feet.

15. The care of the present city gas works is to remain with the city, the city at all times agreeing to maintain it in good, working order so that should the company for any reason, at any time, fail to furnish gas or a sufficient supply thereof from its plant or plants in the city of Duluth, then the city through its water and light department shall have the right to operate the city works until the company shall again furnish a sufficient supply of gas, and any additional cost to the department, in thus supplying itself in excess of the rate or rates which is hereby agreed the company shall receive for such supply, shall be at the expense of the Furnace company.

16. The company will lay pipes from its plant to the street adjacent thereto, which shall be its own property and which shall connect with the city mains at that point. The city will lay a feeder main, as provided in section 12 hereof, at the expense of the company, from a point in the street adjacent to the company's plant, to and connecting with the westerly end of the city mains on Superior street at Twenty-eighth avenue West, as at present constructed. This main shall be the property of the city, and shall be paid for without interest, as provided in section 12 hereof, when the bona fide annual income to the city from lighting and cooking gas taken from said feeder main, or extensions thereof, or laterals connecting therewith west of Twenty-eighth avenue West, and west of Twenty-eighth avenue West, shall equal ten per cent of the cost thereof. All extensions of such main or laterals connected therewith shall be constructed and paid for under the provisions of sections 12 and 15 hereof, and the income from any such lateral or extension shall be used in determining when the city shall pay for it, and also shall be counted as a part of the income of said feeder main in determining when the city shall pay for it.

17. The city shall at its own expense increase its holder capacity in proportion to the increase in "lighting gas" sold, so that the company shall be able to supply the city with gas for these purposes at a uniform rate throughout the twenty-four hours.

18. The company to furnish satisfactory guaranty that its obligations under the contract shall be fully and uninterruptedly carried out.

19. The life of this contract shall be ten years.

20. The contract not to become operative until the Furnace Company has in the City of Duluth, ready for operation coking ovens of a capacity capable of furnishing as a by-product to the manufacture of coke gas for delivery to the city equal to two hundred million cubic feet per annum.

21. The city shall be furnished the gas which it uses for municipal purposes at the rate of forty cents per one thousand cubic feet.

22. In case any mains are required to be re-laid with larger mains, owing to the increased amount of gas passing through them for heating purposes, as defined herein, such re-constructions shall be laid under the provisions of section 12 hereof, and paid for by the city under provisions of section 12 hereof.

23. The contract to be made binding upon all subsequent purchasers or owners of the plant, as well as upon the successors or assigns of the city.

IT WAS A VERY THICK FOG.

"Speaking of fog," the major said, according to the New York Sun: "You have some tol'able thick fogs around here all right—that fog you had here on Tuesday, for instance., certainly was a snifferino, but really that was only a light, thin haze as compared with some fogs I've seen.

"Why, say, when I was living in West Slabbington, Ark., we had a fog settle down on us there once that was so thick you could not cut it with an ax. Oh! of course, I don't mean that literally. You could have chopped it with an ax, but not easily, as one man discovered who had a serious reason for wanting to find out.

"This man was just then getting out rock for the foundation of a house he was building, and it occurred to him when that fog settled down that he might get out blocks of fog that would do just as well as stone, and that he could get them in any shape he wanted with far less trouble. Then it was that he tried chopping out blocks of the fog with an ax, but found that was too hard work, and so went to getting 'em out with steel wedges and sledgehammers, he and his hired man working as fast as they could, because they knew very well that that fog quarry wouldn't stay there forever.

"They got out fog blocks enough for the whole cellar, including strips for caps and sills of all the cellar windows, and built the walls of them. And you can get some idea of how dense that fog was when I tell you that those cellar walls, laid of blocks of it 48 years were still standing the last time I visited West Slabbington, and the man that built 'em was still living in the house, hale and hearty.

"And the walls were not only standing, they were in good condition as ever—all but the window caps. These had finally bent and sagged a little in the middle, and the owner told me that he had replaced them with stone caps; but the fog walls were all right still, and the owner said that he believed those caps would have stood it all right too, if he'd cut 'em just a little thicker.

"Oh, Yes; that was a thick fog we had here last Tuesday, all right, but very thin and watery compared with that one I'm telling you about that we had in West Slabbington, Ark."

REPORT IS FALSE

That Securities Company Has Decided to Abandon Appeal.

President Hill Says Appeal Papers Are Being Prepared.

New York, April 14.—Just before the close of the stock market today reports were current that the Northern Securities company had decided not to appeal from the merger decision, and would abandon that plan for one of several others. A representative of the company in a position to speak with authority declared that the report was absolutely false. He added that no plan of action had yet been determined on, and might not be for some time. Another report circulated just before the closing hours of the exchange was that steps were being taken to compromise the Northern Securities case in some way. Just how this was to be done was not brought out. This report, apparently, was without authority. Another rumor was to the effect that steps were being taken to dissolve the Northern Securities company, and that the Great Northern would be managed in some way as an independent organization. Of this rumor President J. J. Hill said:

"There's not a word of truth in that story. There is no intention on the part of the Northern Securities to dissolve the company. On the contrary we are preparing our appeal papers."

A Wall street news bureau this afternoon in connection with the reports that an appeal would not be filed, quotes an informant, named as a "conservative authority," as follows:

"Counsel concerned with the Northern Securities company have completed consideration of three alternative plans which were possibly drawn up and extensively pondered long before the present decision and these counsel together with some of the largest bankers interested in the enterprise will proceed to Washington to lay their case before Attorney General Knox and arrange, if possible, with him a status for the securities involved which will entirely conform to the law.

"There is reason to think that the possibility of such an arrangement has been already strongly hinted at from Washington."

Washington, April 14.—The department of justice has no information to indicate that the Northern Securities company will abandon its case. On the contrary, all the information in the possession of the department is to the effect that the company will appeal to the United States supreme court and contest the case to the end.

BASEBALL LEAGUE

Final Steps Toward Its Organization Are Being Taken.

Former President Kent Tells of Benefit Duluth Will Have.

A meeting of the revision and schedule committees of the Northern league is being held in the Commercial club rooms this afternoon, preliminary to the meeting of the league officials at the West Superior hotel at 10 o'clock, tomorrow morning, when it is expected that the constitution and by-laws, as revised will be adopted as well as the schedule of games to be played by the teams in the Northern league this coming season.

The details of the schedule are not ready to make public, but it is understood that the season will open in the Red River Valley about May 20, with the teams in the Eastern section, Duluth, Superior and Crookston, playing the teams of the Western section, Grand Forks, Fargo and Winnipeg. The season will close at the head of the lakes in September.

Among the league officials attending the meeting this afternoon are President W. S. Laxdahl, of Cavalier, N. D.; former President E. H. Kent, of Grand Forks, and W. S. Lycan, manager of the Crookston team.

Mr. Kent said relative to the situation, this afternoon: "The local organization of the Northern league will perfect its organization this evening. From what I have learned of the plans I am assured that Duluth is to have one of the strongest organizations in the whole league.

"There is no need to fear that Duluth will not have a strong team for it is yet early and by May 1 some of the major and minor league teams over the country will begin to cut their waiting list of twenty or thirty men down to 12 and 15. Then there will be the best of players available for the Northern league teams. The Northern League teams will carry about twelve men on their lists this coming season and they will all be strong aggregations.

"You cannot begin to realize how the people West of the head of the lakes are looking forward to this season of the Northern league. Out in our country we do not have such bodies of water as Lake Superior, for boating and other pleasures and with the interchange of games there is going to follow a larger interchange of business relations. Excursions will be run to Duluth from the western part of the circuit and you will beb surprised at the crowds of rooters that will come here. The Crookston team will probably open the season at Grand Forks and I can assure you that there will be a full train load of Crookston rooters to fill up a section of the Grand Forks grand stand.

"Duluth will be given splendid advertising by the organization here of a league team for not only will the schedules of the games but the standings of the teams will appear in all the daily papers of the country wherever the Associated Press dispatches are used.

"The prospects are very bright for the Northern League this season and we hope by tomorrow to announce the schedules of games for the year. There will be from 90 to 100 games played."

THE "OREGON BOOT."

Owing to the desperate character of William Rudolph and George Collins, alais Fred Lewis, the Union bank robbers, it has been decided to use the "Oregon boot" when the men are placed in the train to be brought back to Union Mo., for trial, says the St. Louis Republic.

I have seen the Oregon boot used but once in my experience in the police department. That was when Marion C. Hadgpeth was brought back to St. Louis for the Glendale train robbery. Hedgpeth was regarded as a dangerous man and the California authorities who brought him back decided to put the boot on him. Hedgpeth saw that it was useless to try to get away with it on his leg and they got him here safely.

The Oregon boot is so made that the weight of the lead band which encircles the leg just above the ankle rests upon the floor when the prisoner is not walking. The weight is about eight or twelve pounds. It is fastened to the heel of the shoe by strips of steel, which run down on either side.

These strips are screwed down to the heel. When the prisoner stands or sits down the weight, therefore, is not upon the leg. But when he walks he must lift the entire weight, and if he tries to run or jump I am told it will break the leg.

THOSE WHO HAVE DIED

Washington, April 14.—Hallet Kilbourne, formerly chief clerk of the interior department and one of the most widely known citizens of Washington, died here today of paralysis, aged 72.

New York, April 14.—Thomas Waterman Wood, an artist, died today of heart disease. He was born at Montpelier, Vt., in 1823. He was well known as a portrait painter and was one of the founders of the National Academy of Design and its president from 1891 to 1899. From 1878 to 1887 he was president of the American Water Color society.

Clarksburg, W. Va., April 14.—William H. Freeman, cashier of the West Virginia bank, was found dead in bed this morning. Heart disease is supposed to be the cause.

"AN OLD SOLDIER."

There is a magistrate over in Manhattan who is said to have so soft a place in his heart for everybody who fought for the Union in the civil war that it is well nigh impossible to secure the conviction of old soldiers brought before him on minor charges, says the Brooklyn Eagle. A man whose word I implicitly trusts, tells me that he himself witnessed the following episode in that court not long ago:

A soiled and bleared old bum was one of a large number of prisoners brought in that morning. In the anteroom, where he was detained a few minutes, pending his arraignment, he asked for a little mucilage, and it was given to him. Without any attempt to conceal his purpose, he smilingly daubed one side of a copper cent with the adhesive and, pressing it against the lapel of his coat, held it there until it was securely stuck.

When he was taken into court, charged with intoxication, and the magistrate asked him what he had to say to say for himself, the old bum dejectedly pointed to what the magistrate's failing vision mistook for a Grand Army button and said:

"You honor, I am an old soldier, and I—"

"Complaint dismissed! Next case!" the court interrupted, while a smile went the round of the room.

My informant says that everybody there, excepting the magistrate, knew the truth about the "button." It was not concealed from even the policeman who made the charge, but the bum's frank ingenuity appealed to his sense of humor and he let the joke go through.

PRECIOUS STONES HERE.

The adventurers who came to this country when it was still a novelty expecting to find the streets paved with gold and the dwellings incrusted with jewels were very far wrong, but there was an element of truth in what they had heard, says the N. Y. Evening Post. Gold, of course, has been found in plenty, though not where it was looked for in pre-colonial times. Yet few people realize in what quantity and variety precious and semi-precious stones are now produced in America, and how rapidly the production has been increasing. Doubtless, the supply follows the demand created by the same prosperity which induced our jewelers last year to invent and patent three new ways of cutting diamonds. The production of native gems is insignificant compared with the imports of foreign stones, but the figures in themselves have some interest. According to the government's statistics, the total value of the native precious stones in 1902 was $318,300, an increase from $289,050 in 1901 and $233,170 in 1900. The year was noteworthy for the discovery of new sapphire deposits in Montana, the development of the old beryl localities in North Carolina, the opening of an amethyst mine in South Carolina, and the discovery of deposits of the same stone in Virginia, and the discovery of turquoise in Alabama, besides developments in the mining of less valuable gem stones. The list included in the total estimate already given is as follows: Sapphire, beryl, emerald, phenacite, tourmaline, peridot, quartz, smoky quartz, rose quartz, amethyst, gold quartz, rutilated quartz, agate, moss agate, chrysoprase, silicified wood, rhodolite, garnet (pyrope), Amazon stone, turquoise, chlorastrolite, mesolite, pyrite, anthracite ornaments, catlinite pipestone. Of these the greatest value was turquoise, the year's production being worth $130,000. The native emeralds sold last year were valued at only $1000.

OLD HORSE A DETECTIVE.

"One of the best detecctive tricks I came across in a good while happened in Englewood," said a detective sergeant, to the N. Y. Press. "There had been several robberies in that town The police were hard up against as clever a gang as it was possible to find, when one night a detective stumbled upon the fellows. The burglars were in the act of breaking into a house when he came upon them. The thieves jumped into a buggy, drawn by an old gray mare, and made off as fast as the horse could take them.

"There was some delay before an express wagon and several policemen could be obtained to take part in the pursuit. When the burglars saw they were being overhauled they abandoned their old conveyance and took to the woods, where they disappeared, leaving only the old mare behind.

"It was the old horse which led the detectives to the haunt of the burglars. The animal was captured and put on short rations for a day and then was turned loose to pick her way home. Sure as fate she headed through street after street and into the outskirts of the town, where she drew up in front of a farm house. The detectives followed, only to surprise some lodgers who had taken board with the unsuspecting farmer, and who in this respectable retreat felt secure from interference."

degree the whole social, political and governmental systems of the nation. Who can take note of the hundreds of strikes of the last year, of the many acts of aggression and ruthless violation of principles heretofore held dear by the American people, of the subservient and apologetic tone of many newspapers and public men towards those things, and also of the all too prevalent antagonism toward capital without being impressed with the gravity of the situation? If organized labor had succeeded in getting its two bills enacted into law, more measures of a similar character would have followed close upon the heels, and we should have found socialism stealing upon us at a rapid rate.

"It is well that those who would revolutionize the social order, should at the very inception of their national program meet with organized resistance, and it was fortunate that there was an association strong enough to checkmate the influence of organized labor this last winter, and that at a time when in the full plentitude of its power, it seemed certain to success. This conflict—and it was a conflict, and a very momentous one—deserves to go down in history as the first decisive defeat of the socialistic forces which have of late years had such surprising growth.

"One thoroughly alive to the true nature of this un-American institution of organized labor as at present conducted, the people, I firmly believe, will place their stamp of disapproval upon it, and it will dwindle in power faster than it grew. Perhaps a new form of unionism will take its place—a beneficient unionism—for the right of the workmen to organize within the spirit of the federal constitution is not to be disputed. The employers of this country have no quarrel with the men that work for them, considered as individuals. The welfare of those who toil in our factories calls for our most earnest consideration. But what we must protest against is the unwarrantable usurpation of rights and the disastrous industrial policy which characterizes them in their present associated capacity.

"Organized labor knows but one law, and that is the law of physical force—the law of the Huns and Vandals, the law of the savage. All its purposes are accomplished either by actual force or by the threat of force. It does not place its reliance in reason and justice, but in strikes, boycotts and coercion. It is, in all essential features, a mob-power knowing no master except its own will, and is continually condemning or defying the constituted authorities. The danger is, as it grows, the greater a menace it becomes to the continuance of free government, for which all the people have a voice. It is, in fact, a despotism springing into being in a midst of liberty-loving people.

"In setting itself up as a power independent of the power of the state, it does not regard itself as bound to observe the fourteenth amendment of the constitution of the United States, which declares that no state shall attempt to abridge the privileges or right of life, liberty and property of any citizen.

"It has not hesitated to resort to violence and the destruction of property to compel the acceptance of its demands. Its history is stained with blood and ruin. Many a man whose only fault was that he stood upon his rights has been made to suffer outrage, and even death, and many an employer has been brought face to face with financial ruin. These wrongs cry unto heaven, and yet an unaroused public sentiment too often permits them to go unheeded and unpunished.

"It now demands of the public and of congress the privilege to violate the laws forbidding violence and property destruction that it may continue to maintain its power through terrorism.

"It extends its tactics of coercion and intimidation over all classes, dictating to the press and to the politicians and strangling independence of thought and American manhood.

"It denies to those outside its ranks the individual right to dispose of their labor as they see fit—a right that is one of the most sacred and fundamental of American liberty.

"It holds its bludgeon over the head of the employer, laying down the terms upon which he shall be permitted to do business. It says to him that he must deal direct with the union; that while he shall pay the men who work in his factory, they shall be beholden more to the union than to him for their positions; that he cannot employ or discharge men without the endorsement and consent of the union; and that he must pay them the wage fixed by the union, without regard to their individual worth or the economic ability of the employer to pay.

"It denies to the individual the right of being his own judge as to the length of time he shall work, and as to how much he shall do within the time prescribed. It takes no account of the varying degree of natural aptitude and powers of endurance displayed by individuals and seeks to place all men in each particular trade on the same dead level, as respects his daily output and his daily wage. Thus a premium is placed upon indolence and incompetency and there is a restriction of human effort, reducing the aggregate production and increasing the cost of things produced. This policy amounts to not only a tax upon the consum, the majority of whom do not belong to organized labor, but it reduces the demand for the trade at home and lessons the chances of successful competition by our manufacturer in foreign markets. The eight-hour law, which it demands, is merely the extension of a wider field of the principles it enforces in trades under its domination.

"It drives unwillingly men into ranks by its policy of intimidation. Thousands of its members are such today, not because they sympathize with its purposes, but because they fear the consequences of not yielding to its tyranny. These men are, as a class, the more thrifty and capable of its members. They are men who secretly rebel against the system which places them upon the level with the incompetent and idle, and would gladly have free conditions established, that might prove their superior worth, and thus gain advancement in life. But, they dare not openly express their views, for they feel that their employment and place depend upon their submissive acquiescence to the principles of the union.

"While it seeks to compel men already employed in the trades to enlist under its banner, it at the same time seeks to prevent outsiders from entering the trades. It foists upon employers rules limiting the nmber of apprentices, some unions going so far as to say there shall be no apprentices. The boys from the farm now come to the cities and find the doors of the trades shut against them. While lawyers, doctors and men in other unorganized vocations are glad to teach young men their knowledge the trades unionist refuses to do so, and employers are now forced to enlow technical schools, in the hope of obtaining that supply of new blood for their workshops which is essential to the prevention of dry rot.

"Organized labor is an organization of manual labor, trained and untrained, of men who do as they are told and who depend upon the brains of others for guidance. That wide field of labor in which mental capacity is a greater or less requisite on the part of the workers is not represented by it, and cannot be for the obvious impossibility of organizing brains. The rule that organized labor seeks to establish is, therefore, the rule of the least intelligent portion of labor. A comprehension of this fact explains why its leaders are found to me agitators and demagogues, men who appeal to prejudice and envy, who are constantly instilling a hatred of wealth and ability, and who, in incendiard speeches, attempt to stir up men to seize by physical force that which their merit cannot obtain for them.

"Composed as it is of men of muscle, rather than the men of intelligence, and commanded by leaders who are at heart desciples of revolution, it is not strange that organized labor stands for principles that are in direct conflict with the natural laws of economics. Its first great principle is that an arbitrary division of the production would be better than the division regulated by natural laws, provided, however, that it can dictate what this division shall be. It says to capital and to mental and unorganized labor:

'We shall take this proposition of the products of human industry and you may have the balance. If you do not agree to this arrangement you are 'unfair,' you are enemies of the 'poor workingman,' you are 'oppressors;' and if you do not peacefully submit to our terms we will compel you to do so by force.

"The fixing of arbitrary wage scales by force would result in no benefit to any class of labor if all classes adopted the idea. Suppose that clerks, bookkeepers, lawyers, doctors, managers, businessmen, and, in fact all workers outside of manual labor, should organize and demand say that they must have such and such wages or so much profit, or they would go home and stay there. It is within the range of possibility that their demands might be conceded to. Increased wages and profits would thus be accorded to every one, according to the theory of organized labor, and poverty would be unknown on the earth. What an absurd proposition. Arbitrary enactments and all the resulting and demogogy in the world can never create an atom of wealth. Wealth is created by labor, capital and ability, working together, and there is no other way of creating it. There being a limit to the amount of wealth that can be created, and the needs and desires of men being practically unlimited, there follows a natural conflict as to the relative proportion of this wealth going to each factor in production. When one class of men get a bigger share than they formerly received, then there is less for the remaining classes of men. It is ridiculous to assert, then, that a universal application of the arbitrary wage scale scheme would bring about anything but an advance in nominal wages, or, in other words, a decrease in the purchasing power of the dollar. Real wages would remain practically the same.

"Who can say that any man—made plain for the division of production will be less unjust than the natural law? The artificial division of consumable wealth means despotism, tyranny and slavery. It means the death knell of progress; it means ruin to civilization. The natural division of consumable wealth so long recognized in this country, means freedom, means justice, means progress. We owe everything to the freedom that has characterized our industrial system. Thrown upon his own resources the individual has been spurred on to high effort, and the result has been progress in all directions. The higher the progress we have achieved the greater the benefits that have come to all classes.

"Our organized labor, with characteristic obtuseness, assumes that productive capital has been seized in some piratical manner by those who possess it, and that, therefore, it is legitimate spoils for those who can seize it. It is apparently oblivious to the fact that progress is dependent upon the amount of productive capital in use, for it is capital that multiplies the productive capacity of men, and the more wealth produced the more there is for distribution.

"Organized labor is particularly denunciatory of trusts, but what greater trust is there than itself? It is the grand trust of the times. It is the muscle trust, the trust of men who make their living by manual labor. It is to be hoped that, in accordance with the Nelson amendment to the department of commerce bill, the government in turning the searchlight of publicity on the trusts, will not forget organized labor. If any institution needs to be exposed to the limelight, it is certainly trade unionism. But it is not only a trust itself; it is a creator of other trusts—of capitalistic trusts, as distinguished from laoor trusts. One of the leading causes for the formation of a number of the industrial combinations has been the necessity that the confronted employers to unite, that the exactions of labor might be more effectively dealt with.

"Organized labor and the Socialist party differ in one essential respect. The former seeks to bring about socialism by forcible methods, and the latter seeks the same end through the ballot box. The attempts of organized labor to compel the shortening of the hours of labor without regard to the effect on industrial welfare, its dictation of uniform wage scale, which place the indolent and inapt on the same footing with energy and capability, and the absolute power it arrogates to itself over the individual on the theory that the individual has no rights which the many need respect, are all cardinal principles of socialism. Socialism is a denial of individual and property rights, and so, also, is trades unionism, when reduced to its last analysis.

Mr. Parry then took up the anthracite strike and the municipal condition of Chicago. He pointed out that by the system of joint agreement in force between the coal operators and the United Mine Workers, that the public is not consulted when advances in wage scales are granted and that if the price of coal is to continue to go up that it means the "industrial destruction of the United States," for the high price of coal entering into the cost of manufactured products, will shut us out from the competition with the rest of the world." As to Chicago, Mr. Parry said:

"Chicago, second city of the United States, is the stronghold of unionism in this country. It is in that city that the tyranny of organized labor has reached its greatest oppression; it is there that political chicanery and organized labor have joined hands for the mulcting of the business interests of the city. From the restless elements of Chicago emanates that great stream of socialistic virus, which, if allowed to flow unrestricted, will poison the entire nation. It is there that organized labor holds forth triumphant, successfully defying the law and public opinion. It is there that trades unionism has run madwhere agitators who do no work are lauded as great and useful citizens. Chicago cries for redemption. Will there ever be sufficient crystallization of the majority and decent public sentiment in that city to remove the bonds which shackle its industrial progress?

"Trades unionism in Chicago has reached a point where it has become a menace to all decent and law-abiding citizens. Shocking industrial crimes are committed in that city in the name of organized labor, but such is the paralyzed hand of the law that it is next to impossible to bring about a conviction of the misguided men who seek to better their own condition by destroying the property and lives of others. This condition prevails, and it is needless for Chicago to deny it. The records of her own courts, of her own daily papers, show it. The suppressed yet indignant protests of her citizens have been and are passed by unheeded. The voice of public conscience is hushed from terrorization."

Mr. Parry then recited the murders of five men which took place in Chicago "in the name of organized labor," the victims all being non-union men. He described the inability of the courts of justice to convict any of the murderers, because of the fear felt by jurors that they "in turn might be assassinated." Mr. Parry concluded the Chicago paragraph with the prophesy that Chicago, "will be in the hands of martial law in a very few months," unless there is an awakening of the civic pride of Chicago which shall put an end to the lawlessness now throttling the city."

The American Federation of Labor was denounced as an organization which "breeds boycotters, picketers and socialists and the source from whence proceeds such noxious emanations as the eight-hour and anti-conspiracy bills." The speaker denounced conciliation as a myth and arbitration as a failure, holding that there can be no conciliation or arbitration when a gun is pointed at the head of employers and they are forced to arbitrate whether they will or not. As a cure for the many "evils" confronting employers, Mr. Parry recommended organization among manufacturers and employers which shall embrace the last employer in the United States, the various minor organizations to be combined in one grand national federation.

The rest of the report dealt mostly with the new department of commerce and the question of reciprocity. Mr. Parry recommended the maximum and minimum tariff as a solution of the reciprocity question.

Marshall Cushing, national secretary, read his annual report, showing an increase in membership of 100 per cent during the last year and a satisfactory financial condition. The chairman named his standing committees and at 11 o'clock an adjournment for luncheon was taken. The afternoon session was devoted to the discussion of the annual reports and the offering of resolutions. The delegates are being entertained by New Orleans in royal fashion. Receptions, smokers, river excursions and other events crowd the program for the next three days. Each delegate has been provided with a souvenir watch fob of oxidized silver and handsomely engraved.

SUPPLY OF LOGS

Mills Will Be Well Supplied For Their Sawing Season.

All Northwestern States Said to Show This Situation.

The logging season is now at an end in Northern Minnesota and Wisconsin and the lumbermen claim it is possible to form a fairly accurate estimate of the supply of logs available for the Northen mills the coming sawing season, which some of the plants have already started in upon.

A general claim is made that the mills of Northern Minnesota, Wisconsin and Michigan have logs enough in stock to keep them quite busy the coming summer. The weather conditions have been fairly good in the main during the winter, better in fact than for many previous winters, but other conditions were not so favorable, and some of the loggers went up against difficulties which they say they have not had to contend with before in years. This difficulty is said to have been the supply and quality of labor. Next to it comes the increased cost of supplies and camp equipment. Both of these things have combined to make the cost of production of the log supply higher this past year, and has, therefore, enhanced the price of lumber, according to the prices now being asked.

The estimate placed on the log cut in Northern Michigan is smaller than during a number of previous seasons, principally because of the decreasing timber supply which has reduced the number of mills to be supplied. Northern Michigan timber goes, for the most part, to the mills of Marinette and Menominee and he scattered mills along the Soo and St. Paul and Northwestern lines in that part of the state. Michigan had plenty of snow for logging purposes, and the stock is about as large as the operators started out to procure. The Michigan mills will cut large quantities of hardwood this summer.

In Wisconsin the conditions are said to have been favorable, for the most part. This is especially true of the operations in white pine, and the mills will be stocked. The snowfall was so heavy in Wisconsin the past winter that a good stage of water is assured in the driving streams on which many of the smaller plants depend for their log supply. The larger Wisconsin mills, like those in Minnesota, are depending more and more on rail operations instead of the driving streams.

The output of Hemlock in Wisconsin is claimed to be very large this year, in view of a larger demand for hemlock products, but owing to labor difficulties the stocks at some of the mills are said to be rather disappointing to the manufacturers.

Much has already been said of the log supply in Minnesota during the season just closed. Estimates from various prominent lumbermen of the state place a shortage of from 10 to 20 per cent from the anticipated cut at the opening of the season. Almost the entire blame of the shortage is laid on the poor quality of the lumber supply, the loggers claiming that under conditions which made it practically impossible to hold men in camp they failed to fill their contracts. Lack of dependence in employes has worked serious injury the past year, and the lumber interests claim the conditions will not be different so long as it is possible for the men to draw their pay and quit after working perhaps only a few days or less.

Notwithstanding the discouragements and handicaps which the Northern Minnesota lumbermen have had, the mills are fairly well stocked. Some of the mills may not run throughout the season, and others, which have been accustomed to running on two shifts, will cut down to day runs, but there will be others that will operate day and night, and the prospective heavy demand for lumber this year will insure a large cut, if not a larger production in this district than last year. One of the things which will counterbalance smaller production by the older mills will be the increased production because of the several new mills which have been constructed the past winter.

HOWARD TO PRISON.

Goes to Stillwater to Serve His Time.

Charles Howard, of the Minneapolis "big mitt" gang, who was convicted this term of district court of forgery in the second degree, will be taken to Stillwater today to begin serving his sentence of three and a half years. The commitment papers arrived yesterday, and Deputy Sheriff Wiles will take Howard to the prison.

It is expected that Howard may be subpoenaed as a witness in the Ames case. If so, he will be taken from Stillwater.

There are two other prisoners in the jail under sentence that have not yet been taken to Stillwater, Richard Hannan, who was sentenced to fifteen years' imprisonment for killing Charles Naas, and Theodore Wilson, who was sent up for ten years on conviction of grand larceny.

IN YELLOWSTONE PARK.

It is hard to tell from the published reports from one source and another just what the president is doing in the great Yellowstone Park. One report has it that the party went in without guns; another that frequent shots have been taken at mountain lions, and that the president missed all that he shot at. That there is much game in this national reservation there is no doubt, but it really is not to be hunted. The law prohibits that, and no one, not even the president, should violate it. The large game in the park continues to be one of the most interesting features to the tourist, and during the early part of the season large bands of elk and many deer and antelope were seen by them. Late in the summer, when the tourist travel becomes heavy and the flies and mosquitoes become troublesome, nearly all of the elk and deer move back into the high mountains and are seldom seen by the tourists who travel through the park by stage or wagon; they, however, can easily be found by anyone who knows where to look for them, or who is sufficiently interested in the matter to take a horse and ride out into the mountains for the purpose of finding them.

Bears are said to be increasing in number and are a great source of interest to tourists, for they can be seen at any time during the season, feeding at the garbage piles at the various hotels and permanent camps. They are perfectly harmless as long as they are let alone, and kept in a perfectly wild state, but when they are fed and petted, as some of them have been in the past, they lose all fear of human beings, and are liable to do considerable damage to property and provisions at the various hotels and camp kitchens. They are also liable to frighten tourists by following them, with the expectation of being fed. The black and brown bears are the ones that become most friendly, and consequently give the most trouble. It is a difficult matter to make some of the tourists realize that the bears in the park are wild, and that it is a dangerous matter to trifle with them. The possibility of an accident or injury to some indiscreet individual was anticipated, and in August last a circular was issued and posted at all the hotels and permanent camps, absolutely prohibiting the interference with or molestation of bear or any other wild game in the park. It was also forbidden for anyone to feed them except at the regular garbage piles.

It is not to be believed that the president would shoot any game in the national park, all stories to the contrary notwithstanding. It is against the law to kill there, and it is believed he will strictly follow it.

A MONETARY AGREEMENT.

The effort to establish an international monetary agreement is a most praiseworthy one and it is hoped that it will prove successful. The principal object is to secure an agreement with the countries which use silver as a standard by which some stability may be accorded that metal and prevent the continuous fluctuations which cause great loss to those countries. Unless some action of this kind is taken China will probably become bankrupt, while Mexico will labor under difficulties that will be hard to overcome. Uncle Sam has undertaken the role of missionary in putting China and Mexico on a firm currency foundation as compared with the other nations of the world. The United States government has little or nothing to get out of the arrangement that is proposed, but is assuming all the expense and labor that are involved in order to befriend two other governments that are in sore distress. Both China and Mexico appealed to the United States some months ago to induce the leading powers of the world to agree to some plan that would establish a fixed relationship between the silver moneys used in those two countries and the gold currency of other countries.

If China is forced to the wall financially, the United States as well as the other powers that incurred expenses in sending troops to Pekin at the time of the Boxer troubles, will lose many millions of dollars in the failure of the Chinese government to pay the indemnity. With this selfish motive to fall back on it is believed that the nations of the world will readily assent to a plan which will establish a permanent relationship between the moneys of gold standard countries and silver using countries. The commission that the United States is to send abroad to accomplish this consists at present of H. H. Hanna, of Indianapolis, chairman; J. W. Jenks, of Cornell, and Charles A. Conant, of New York. It is possible that a fourth member may be added—a man of wide and interesting diplomatic experience—and if he is appointed he will serve as chairman. The commission will sail from New York May 15, and will go direct to London. From there it will proceed to Paris, to Berlin and to St. Petersburg. If the fourth member is appointed, one of the commission will probably go to China, while the others visit the capitals of England and Europe. Conferences will be held with the officials of each government that has colonial dependencies using silver moneys. Germany and France have extensive and important trade relations with countries that use silver moneys and are expected to take up the subject of an international monetary agreement without hesitation. After the commission completes its work it will return to Washington and prepare a report for submission to congress. It will outline the proposed agreement and recommend that the secretary of state be authorized to unite with other governments in establishing the needed reforms.

This movement has nothing to do with bimetallism, but is merely to do away with the troubles brought about by the constant fluctuations of silver.

THE NORTHWEST'S GROWTH.

A very interesting article on the growth of Minnesota and the Dakotas, written by Frank N. Stacy, of Minneapolis, filled over four columns of the New York Evening Post last Saturday. It cannot fail to enlighten many people in the East regarding the varied products of this region, the extent of its agricultural resources, the enormous output of iron ore, the great development of manufactures, the extensive building of railroads, and the rapid growth of population.

Mr. Stacy starts his interesting story with the statement that nearly three centuries ago, in the search for the fabled "sea of the West," the French voyageurs traveling by canoes and bateaux westward through the great lakes reached the northeastern point of Minnesota. Over this same lake route in 1902, there passed through the Soo canals 21,437 steamships and sailing vessels carrying nearly 36,000,000 net tons of freight, which was not far from three times the volume of traffic passing through the Suez canal in the commerce between Europe and the Orient. Direct traffic between the Atlantic coast and the Twin Cities may be said to have been opened by Daniel Greysolon Du Lhut as early as 1679, about the time of King Philip's war in New England. Du Lhut that summer went down to St. Anthony falls, over the Mille Lacs trail from Lake Superior, and bought furs from the Indians camped near Father Hennepin at the falls, the site of the present Minneapolis milling district, and at the big marsh, which is now the railway terminal district of St. Paul. By birch-bark canoe up the Mississippi and Rum rivers and thence across portages by the backs of Indian packers, Du Lhut transported his freight to the present site of Duluth-Superior, which today boasts the greatest grain elevators and iron ore docks in the world, and recorded last year the receipt and shipment of 17,505,793 tons of freight valued at $194,444,695—a volume of commerce equalled by no other American port and harbor, except New York and Philadelphia.

Having told the early history of this region, Mr. Stacy takes up the wonderful development that has occurred and with the aid of the latest statistics graphically relates the story of the agricultural, mineral and manufacturing growth of this state and the Dakotas. Particularly noteworthy are the figures relating to the railroad systems of this rapidly-developing region. A region lying at the center of the continent, like the Minnesota-Dakota tableland, finds railroad development an essential factor. Therefore it is not strange that the Northwestern states of Minnesota, Iowa, Nebraska, Wyoming, Montana, North and South Dakota have a greater railroad development than the six New England states of the Union. In 1900 the Northwestern states named showed a total railroad tonnage of 61,411,037 freight tons transported over 23,320 miles of road, as compared with 54,337,876 tons carried over 7825 miles of New England railway. The freight tons carried one mile were, for the Northwestern states, 11,193,594,312, as compared with 4,506,760,217 for the Northeastern states. The barometer of traffic development for Minnesota and the Dakotas is the tonnage that passes the Soo canal. This freight tonnage in 1882 was 2,029,521 tons; in 1892, 8,888,759 tons, and in 1902, 35,961,146. This means that the traffic volume of the Northwest in 1902 was four times that of 1892, and sixteen times that of 1882. Is there, Mr. Stacy asks, any section of the globe or period of the world's history that can parallel this record of growth?

Concerning the rapid growth of Duluth, Mr. Stacy says: "Duluth, which stands at the head of Lake Superior and of lake navigation, with some of the greatest grain elevators and iron ore docks in the world, has 60,000 people in 1903, as compared with 52,969 in 1900; 33,115 in 1890, and 3483 in 1880. Since 1880 Duluth's population has multiplied nearly twenty-fold. When one considers this rate of population growth in connection with the tremendous development of lake shipping, it is not difficult to predict for a town which already has the population of New York in 1800 and of Boston in 1830, a great commercial future. In volume of freight in 1902 Duluth-Superior ranked next after the ports of New York and Philadelphia, and in the mean monthly freight movement during navigation season the harbor of Duluth-Superior was second only to New York. The total freight received and shipped by the head-of-the-lakes port last year was 17,505,793 tons, valued at $194,444,695, an increase of 35 per cent over the year before and of 515 per cent over 1890."

These facts and figures are not new to the readers of The Herald, but they must open the eyes of many Eastern people, who have but a faint idea of the resources of the Northwest and of the immensity of the trade and commerce that is making Duluth one of the greatest cities in the country.

But few people have any idea of the number of inventions, great and small, which have been perfected by Thomas A. Edison. The clerks of the patent office at Washington began several years ago to keep a systematic account of the patents issued to Edison. They have his various inventions tabulated and indexed, so that they can put their hands on each different idea he has protected by patent from the beginning of his marvelous career of invention. When a pending claim is allowed, as it no doubt will be this month, Mr. Edison will have received 791 patents in all. He is not adding to the list as many ideas nowadays as he did some years ago. Up to 1895 he had taken out 711 patents. Since then he has added to the list from three to twenty-three patents each year. Last year he took out nineteen. This year, so far he has received six. In ordinary fees for patents, Mr. Edison has spent over $51,000.

A New York magistrate has refused to issue summonses or warrants for persons concerned in a Sunday Spiritualistic seance, declining to sustain the police contention that seance is a theatrical production. Why do not the police turn their attention to Sunday sales of ardent spirits?

A member of the Prussian diet declared in debate the other day that the modern craving for knowledge is a sign of degeneration. In other words, he believes that "where ignorance is bliss, 'tis folly to be wise."

The New York Evening Post thinks that Americans are too much given to humor. This does not agree with the opinion of a recent lecturer in Duluth, who claimed that the American people do not laugh enough.

The Massachusetts legislature has set a good example to other states by appropriating $2,250,000 for state highways, the sum to be used at the rate of $450,000 a year.

A railroad man in Pueblo, Col., has invented an appliance for seeing around a curve. It should also be valuable to pedestrians nearing crowded street corners.

The St. Louis county senators should work and vote for the passage of Dowling's non-partisan judgeship bill. It is a move in the right direction.

Nearly 6000 railroad men will be needed to operate the cars in the New York subway, and the work of training them will begin at once on the elevated roads.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

Charles J. Johnson, of Grand Marais, came to town this morning on the north shore steamer, and registered at the St. Louis hotel.

Mr. Johnson has been helping out Frank Johnson, of St. Paul, who claims to have the method at hand to make steel from ore of the black or titanic variety.

"I got the ore out before I left Grand Marais and saw that it was started on its way to St. Paul, where the tests are to be made the last part of the week with the new model furnace that Mr. Johnson has erected. I am not interested in this at all, and am only doing it for Mr. Johnson as a favor. I hardly think I will go to St. Paul to watch the tests, as I have very little interest in those things."

A party of Duluth people will go to St. Paul in the company of M. C. Littleworth Friday night, to watch tests to be made Saturday by Mr. Johnson.

The explorers are not piling into the Highland range as yet, though it is expected there will be a large sized rush soon.

"The snow is not off the ground yet," said Mr. Johnson, "and the explorers wouldn't have a chance to do anything. But as soon as the snow leaves I anticipate a rush that will be a big one, to the localities where finds have been reported this winter.

"Up to date I have heard of no finds in the vicinity of Grand Marais, though there are several explorers looking over the ground even this early. About three weeks will start something in that quarter."

Capt. Weeks, who represents a large number of lumber carrying craft which visits these waters, said last night at the Spalding, that he did not believe that the lumber carrying season would open in full blast before April 25.

"There will be some straggling vessels come in and take out lumber, but the lumber fleet out of this port will not be in good working order for more than a week," said the captain.

Attorney M. M. Riley, of Milwaukee, arrived in Duluth last night and is at the Spalding hotel.

Mr. Riley is here on business connected with some mining lands in the vicinity of 55-24 and about Grand Rapids, the fee of which is owned by the Nugents, Dan H. Freeman, some St. Cloud people and Michigan parties. He is in the city to make some arrangement with the steel corporation to either commence some operation of the lands or else consent to a lease to permit someone else working them.

"We have something like 1700 acres of lands in quarter sections and forties in the vicinity of Grand Rapids, and are now trying to have something done with them," said Mr. Riley.

"The mining country is my old stamping ground. For many years before the panic, I was the counsel for the Penokee & Gogebic company, otherwise known as the Wisconsin Central Consolidated Mining company, and resided at Bessemer. I was up in this country when it was first opened up, and selected some properties here, some of which are in the parcels I spoke of in Itasca county.

"Mr. Olcott was a chemist for a mining company when I first knew him, and Duluth is full of men who were in the business over in the iron country of Michigan."

Mr. Riley has achieved some distinction in his work for the creditors in settling the affairs of the defunct Plankinton bank of Milwaukee, which failed ten years ago through lapses by Ferdinand Schlesinger and others in the iron business, unable to pay the amount of deposits made by a large portion of the German workingmen of Milwaukee in Plankinton bank, which was considered a Gibraltar in financial circles there.

"Look out for forest fires the coming summer in Lake and Cook counties," said a well known lumberman at the Spalding this morning. "When that crowd of prospectors and explorers, some old woodsmen and some without any knowledge of the forests, gets digging around the Highland range, there will be fires. It will be all right at the start, but they will get careless with campfires and the first thing we kno wthere will be a spread of fire over a portion of the counties mentioned that will be a caution.

"There haven't been any big forest fires up in this country as yet, and it wouldn't be surprising if a fierce one would get started this summer. There's no way to stop them coming, and no insurance to the owners of the timber."

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: Bachelors are such by selection; old maids by lack of it.

Consistency may be a jewel, but it is not received in any pawn shop.

Every woman would like to have her son go into the ministry if she weren't afraid that might hinder him from being president.

When a woman gets careless about the clothes she doesn't wear in a room with her husband it is because she knows that sort of thing has ceased to interest him.

The man who knows that hundreds of millions of hundreds of millions are spent on rum will argue himself black in the face about the ruinous waste of building battle ships.

All of the Same Religion.

New York Tribune: When the late Charles Godfrey Leland was editing in New York "The Knickerbocker Magazine" he gave a weekly reception that was popular among literary people.

There arose at one of these receptions a noisy argument about religion. To quiet them Mr. Leland cried out in a voice loud enough to be heard above all: "Intelligent persons are all of the same religion."

A lull ensued. Someone said:

"What religion is that?"

"That," answered Mr. Leland, "is what intelligent persons never tell."

THE WEATHER.

United States Agricultural Department Weather Bureau, Duluth, Synopsis of weather conditions for the twenty-four hours ending at 7 a. m. (central time), Tuesday: The center of the eastern storm remains stationary over the Ohio valley. Rains have fallen over most districts east of the Mississippi valley, heavy at Washington City and turning to snow at Milwaukee and Davenport. In the Lake Region the winds are northerly, brisk to high on Michigan and Erie and generally fresh elsewhere. Fair weather is the rule west of the Mississippi, except that showery conditions have developed over Oregon. The barometer is high in the immediate Northwest and another "low" is developing in the Rockies and far Northwest. It is much cooler from the Lake Region southward and warmer over the Rockies and eastern slopes.

Philadelphia Press: "I understood you to say the house was a brownstone front," said the house hunter.

"Oh! no," replied the slick real estate man. "I told you it was a brown front."

"Huh! It's nothing but plaster painted."

"True, but it's all hand-painted."

New York Times: He—Miss Wilmington, as the only daughter of your mother, I suppose you take a keen interest in her happiness?

She—Most assuredly. Why?

He—Oh, I only wanted to know if you would like her to have me for a son-in-law.

"Yes, sir," said the obsequious servant.

"Seems to me that soup I ordered is a mighty long time getting to me."

"Yes, sir," said the waiter with much respect; "but (deferentially) you will pardon me. I trust, if I remind you that you ordered turtle soup."

Washington Star: "You think that negro melodies will afford the inspiration for the American music of the future?" said Mr. Cumrox.

"That is my opinion," answered the eminent composer.

"Well, I'm glad to hear it. I always told mother and the girls they ought to trade off that grand piano for a banjo."

Philadelphia Press: "Father," said the youth, "what is your understanding of the saying, 'The race is not always to the swift?'"

"Practically, my son," replied the wise father, "it means that in the race of life the fast man don't usually come out ahead."

Chicago Tribune: "Let me get at him!" exclaimed the wild eyed man, trying to force his way through the crowd surrounding the president.

"Stop him!" shouted one of the guards. "He's an anarchist!"

"Anarchist be darned!" said the struggling man. "I'm the father of twenty-one children!"

HOW SHE DRESSED.

A blossom of some kind crowned her head
No botany names it, I am sure.
It just grew out of the life she led,
And so it was neat and fair and pure.

'Twas light as a rose-leaf, and as fresh
As a new-blown daisy's dewy eye;
In many a dainty curve and mesh
It held the tints of a smiling sky.

Its beauty I'm tempted to compare
With the honest face it shaded slightly,
But no, I must not, I will not dare
Let comparison make the hat unsightly.

Some texture soft as the finest ruche,
Like a dovelet's down with moonbeams wove,
Lay round her neck in a circling blush
As fair, almost, as the cheeks above.

The gown was light, of medium length,
Not flapping around imprisoned feet,
Not made to ruin the health and strength,
Or sweep the dust and filth of the street.

It blended colors, modest and few,
I liken to bluebird, thrush and linnet;
But, better than all to me, I knew
That herself, her own sweet self, was in it.

In all was the tough of character,
The highest merit in woman's dress,
Its delicate charms were lent by her,
To be but the bloom of loveliness.

Stenography as a Stepping Stone.

Indianapolis Journal: Mr. Roosevelt's Private Secretary, Mr. Loeb, is naturally brought into prominence these days, and it is worth while for boys looking out for a career to remember that he began life as a stenographer and made his way gradually to his present position. Boys are somewhat disposed to give stenograpraphy the go-by, now that girls have entered into the business so extensively, but there is always a demand for male experts in shorthand, and places for them that for various reasons cannot be well filled by women. In fact, skill in the art seems to afford a good stepping-stone for the intelligent wideawake young man. Mr. Cortelyou and Mr. Lamont both served apprenticeship as stenographers, and many men of prominence in the business world started in a similar way.

Good Maxim For All.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: Those are excellent commercial maxims that the late Gustavus F. Swift left behind him—even if they carry with them a somewhat selfish flavor. One of the lot, however, is quite good enough for general use. "The best a man ever did," he says "shouldn't be his standard for the rest of his life." In other words, never have so much respect for your own record that you are afraid to break it.

AT WHITE BUFFALO

By Izola L. Forrester.

(Copyright, 1903, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

Out on the edged of the rolling prairie land lies White Buffalo, and it is neither a picturesque nor a desirable town for habitation, but it has its redeeming qualities, not judged by the standard of the outside world, and the reprieve of Billy Kane was one of them.

Once there was a railroad which thought some day it might take a notion to travel along Buffalo creek. Whereupon, certain enterprising gentlemen anticipated its movements and their own fortunes by laying out the city lots of White Buffalo. They had anticipated as far as a one-story hotel, six saloons and a few pine boxes, when the railroad changed its mind, and went twenty-six miles south at Sylvania.

So White Buffalo failed to prosper, but a few trustful people got stranded there, and went to live in the pine boxes, and on Saturday nights from fifty to a hundred herders and ranchers, and half breed Indians used to stroll in and support the six saloons and the hotel. Things kept moving slowly when Tommy Taylor got the mail route from Sylvania, and White Buffalo became a postal station, and once in awhile a letter came there.

After Billy Kane landed at the Crossbar ranch a letter came every week, and as it was a clean, well-educated looking letter, it went a long way towards establishing Billy in the estimation of White Buffalo.

He was an awfully nice boy. Quiet and easy tempered, and used to answer these letters regularly. Five-Ace Fuller said he looked like the head soprano in the choir. Fuller was a minister once somewhere, and never really got over it. He wore black clothes, and never shot at a man when he wasn't looking.

Billy liked fair play, too. You just couldn't help but like the boy. Slim and blue eyes, and pensive, with brown hair that curled at the edges, and a fair skin that even the range sun never burned to a brick red as it did other boys. And he could sing like a bird at sunrise; one of those little, brown birds that shoot up out of the tall prairie grass from under your pony's feet, and sing their hearts out to the morning light.

Sunday mornings about 5 o'clock Billy would start for home, full of everything that White Buffalo keeps in tap for those it loves. But he would sit his pony like a temperance colonel, and as he rode along the trail from town we could hear him singing. Sometimes it was "Moll Kelly," and sometimes it was "The Holy City," and once in awhile, if he was very full, it was "Rock of Ages." And he'd sing until your heart ached and you wished you were a good boy like Billy Kane.

Once Tommy Taylor asked who the letters were from, and Billy laid his nice, new, shiny, light-weight Smith & Wesson half a yard from Tommy's ear, and asked him to please repeat the question. Tommy didn't. There's no sense rushing in places unless you can see footprints of angels ahead of you.

Then we liked him for the Crossbar sheep killing affair. The sheepmen from Wyoming drove a bunch of sheep down on the Crossbar range, and the Crossbar boys left a few dead sheep around just as a hint to them to clear out. There were over a hundred head of good, sound yearlings died the next week on the range from drinking from a poisoned spring, and the Crossbars said they'd have to shoot the first sheepman that showed up. It was fair play they gaave wrning, but the sheepmen staayed, so one night Billy led the crowd of cowboys against them. There was one man shot, and he was a herder, and his own left him to die, and the Crossbar boys thought it best not to meddle. But Billy put him on his own horse, and took him home and nursed him. And when he went over the state line into Wyoming he told of a man who shot him and then saved his life, and the sheepmen stayed in their own range. But Billy said, as a point of sentiment, he could shoot a herder when he was a herder, but when he was only a man with a bullet in him it was another point of sentiment. So we loved him and let him have his way in little things.

And so he was spoilt somehow. One night he began singing "Moll Kelly," and the chorus wasn't strong enough to suit him, so he started through the town after recruits. One or two strangers from Sylvania, who didn't know Billy, objected and we buried them neatly the next day a quarter of a mile down the creek. We didn't mind it so much, because Billy was sorry about it, and even offered to sing at the funeral, but Sylvania didn't think it ws neighborly, aand they hd a sheriff down there.

We are awfully shorry for the boy. We wouldn't have hurt his feelings for anything, but the sheriff thought the occasion demanded a slight demonstration of justice, as one of the men was a barber and the only one in Sylvania, which made it awkward for some.

The Sylvania stage reached White Buffalo at night, and left at seven the next morning. And the sheriff, finding Billy a polite, well-behaved boy, locked him up in a back room of the hotel for the night, and went out to see what the town was made of. He went through Main street, and didn't miss a thing, and a little after 11 they put him to bed tenderly, as a concession to his office. Billy was singing to himself, "I'm nearer Heaven today, today, than I have been before."

He always seemed to catch the fitness of things. The deceased parties had relatives in Sylvania, and there was a lone cottonwood across the tracks with a bough just the right height from the ground for demonstrations of justice.

When the stage came at 12 some one asked Tommy if there was a letter for Billy. We hoped so. It might be comforting in the last hours.

"There's a whole express package," said Tommy, and he jumped down to help out his passengers. We all got a look at her. She was little, and young, and happy, and she had a baby wrapped up in her arms.

"Is Mr. William Kane here, please?" she asked, and Five-Ace Carter began to cry in a corner over the pity of it all, but the rest of us stood around, and told her he had stepped down the next street, and we could send for him right away.

"You're so good," she said, smiling at us all. "Just say it's Mrs. Kane, and I thought he'd like to see the baby. We came from way down in Ohio."

Badger Smith opened the door for her that led to the room back of the bar, and we held council. Badger said the baby looked like Billy. Five Ace said she wore a wedding ring. We always knew those letters means lots to Billy, and we were glad the sheriff from Sylvania was asleep.

And we talked for as much as ten minutes on the exigencies of the case. We thought of Sylvania, and the handy bow, and the barber's sorrowing friends. We thought of the two neat graves beside the creek, but as Billy said, he didn't mean to hit them. He wasn't shooting at anything in particular. They just happened to get in his way.

When the decision of White Buffalo's court was reached, we found that there was a reprieve due one William Kane, and Tommy and Badger went and unlocked the door of Billy's room. And the sheriff slept under guard while he went to see the baby, and the girl from away down in Ohio. And he told her gently that there was no room for them in the hotel, but that Tommy had kindly consented to drive them to the ranch, and when we took him up a collection in honor of the baby, she thanked us all beautifully, but Billy understood, and we knew he'd make tracks for Ohio.

So we stood out in the street in front of the hotel, and watched Tommy drive them out of sight. It was a clear, blue night, with stars, and deep silence, and a cool breeze blowing from somewhere, and we stood with our hats off, until even the sound of wheels had died away on the road that led northward. But we did not cheer, or shout, for the baby was asleep in Billy's arms, and the sheriff was asleep in the back room.

Influence of Environment.

Baltimore American: Already the demoralizing influence of the United States senate has shown itself in the case of Senator Clark, of Arkansas, who, after a week or two in the national deliberative body, went home to Little Rock and whipped a congressman.

THERE IS NO SUBSTITUTE

THE STAGE.

"In Idaho," a typical drama of Western life, was played by the Ferris comedians last evening to a large and appreciative audience at the Metropolitan Opera house. The production was well costumed and had excellent scenic effects. "In Idaho" is a story that gives to several members of the company an opportunity of showing talent which they have had in few of the productions hitherto put on at the Metropolitan. The story deals with the Golden Giant gold mine at Golden Run, Idaho, and the people who are interested in it. Throughout there is a highly interesting vein of adventure, and sentiment and many thrilling situations, finally ending with the thwarting of a dastardly plot to wreck a home. As Bessie Fairfax, the exuberant Idaho lass, Miss Emily Batlo was very much a favorite last evening. Miss Carrington appeared in the part of Ethel Wayne, who is persecuted until she flees from her home in the East to seek protection with her friends in Idaho. G. A. Forbes played the part of Jack Mason, the gambler whose life is ever at the service of his friends, and who marries Miss Fairfax. Dell Henderson, in the honest character of Alexander Fairfax, nicknamed the "Golden Giant," made a great hit. Will H. White was the heavy villain, in the character of Duncan Le Moyne, who schemes to get possession of the mine. He was ably supported in the plotting by Harry Langdon as Jim Bixley and Albert Dorris as Max Wayne, two unpleasant but necessary adjuncts to the play. William Griggs did the Irish comedy turn as Tom Flynn, the miner, and Josie Haines played the part of Mrs. Boggs, the eccentric landlady, very well.

Meeley and Mullery continue to please with their comedy singing and dancing, and Christy and Willis are still popular with toe dancing and clever juggling.

"In Idaho" will be reproduced this evening and Wednesday afternoon and evening.

This evening charming Marguerita Sylva will delight her Duluth admirers by again appearing before them, this time in "The Strollers." This will be the second time the opera has been seen here, but in the Twin Cities, where it appeared within a few weeks, the papers have pronounced this company as superior to the one that played it here before. Miss Sylva is well known as occupying a foremost place in comic opera.

George C. Boniface, Jr., who plays the leading comedy part of August, is exactly the type of comedian to give artistic expression to the drolleries of that rather exacting role. Neil McNeil has made much of the part of the jailer, and is a clever dancer. D. L. Don, who created the part of the senile prince, may be depended upon for many a laugh. David Torrence, a baritone of splendid reputation, will be seen as the judge, and to him falls the delightful "Lorretto" song in the second act. Miss Dorothy Hunting, a splendid contralto is to be the Anna, and Miss Louise Middleton, a well known stage beauty who can really dance, is cast for the part of Mimi.

"A Trip to Chinatown" did not appear at the Lyceum last evening, the train on which the company was coming from the West being delayed by a wreck on the Great Northern road. The players arrived here this morning and will appear this evening at Superior.

SNAP SHOTS IN EVIDENCE

New Departure Made By the General Land Office.

Washington, Feb. 13.—The general land office is about to establish several striking reforms in its method of doing business.

One of the most radical departures from the old system is the fitting out of special agents of the land office with kodaks of a high grade.

They are to be used in photographing the improvements on homesteads, timber and stone entries, and other land taken by settlers, and the pictures will make the best kind of evidence in the thousands of contested cases pending.

In most of the cases where title is disputed, the original entryman sets up the claim that he has made more or less improvements. The contestee who seeks to oust the entrymen alleges, on the contrary, that there are few, if any, improvements, and that the law has not been compiled with.

On this issue there are lively contests before the registers and receivers of local land offices, and many witnesses are brought to testify on each side.

After the local officers render a decision the case is generally appealed to the general land office at Washington, and passed on by the commission.

This means long delays and much hardship to the settlers, besides considerable expense.

It is proposed now to try the experiment of sending out these special agents, and photographing the houses, fences and outbuildings that have been erected on the lands in dispute.

The land office officials believe that when this method is once adopted there will be fewer contests, for the photographs, accompanied by the sworn affidavits of the special agents and two other witnesses, will be prima facie evidence that cannot be controverted.

It will do away with other witnesses, and the department expects that there will be a more healthy and better tone of business in the contest division of the general land office.

DOWDELL WILL LIVE

And There Will Be a Wedding Soon.

Missoula, Mont., April 14.—It is regarded as probable that Joseph L. Young, who stabbed and severely injured Carl Dowdell, the young postoffice clerk, will not be prosecuted. His hearing is set for April 17, but while Dowdell's condition is such that he cannot leave the hospital, it is generally understood that Dowdell will marry Miss Young and thus settle the matter.

Some one wrote Young that Dowdell had ruined his daughter, with the result that he went to Missoula and calling Dowdell to a room stabbed him six or seven times. Dowdell's condition is still critical, but the physicians say he will recover.

HOTEL AND OPERA HOUSE

At Rome, N. Y., Destroyed By Early Fire.

Rome, N. Y., April 14.—Fire which started in the Washington Opera house early today destroyed the structure quickly and spread to the Arlington hotel.

Nearly every room in the hotel was occupied and many of the guests had narrow escapes.

So far as can be ascertained no lives were lost. It is estimated that the total loss will reach $17,5000.

REPORTS ASKED

Council Wants Franchise Holding Corporations to Obey Law.

Ordinance Proposed to Compel Removal of Garbage.

The council last night:

Requested franchise holding corporations to make detailed reports of annual business as required by the charter.

Received a new ordinance designed to improve health of city by compelling prompt removal of garbage and filth.

Refused to renew a liquor license on the Bowery because of saloon's character.

Received an amendment to patrol limit ordinance, which, if passed, will permit saloons in New Duluth.

Received a recommendation in favor of Carrington for ferry service, but postponed action one week.

Requested an examination of books of Zenith Telephone company in investigating proposed advance in rates.

Received an ordinance prohibiting building of stables too close to streets and avenues.

Re-advertised for sale of $40,000 water plant extension bonds offering four per cent interest.

Received petition from East Michigan street property owners urging postponing of street paving.

Requested the board of park commissioners to beautify and improve Twenty-first avenue East.

Requested the city attorney to co-operate with county in securing compromise of delinquent taxes.

Received an estimate for the paving of Twenty-third avenue East with macadam.

Of all the corporations holding franchises in this city only one has strictly complied with the charter requirements as to the publicity of annual business.

If the charter is held to be constitutional in this respect each franchise holder is liable to either a forfeiture of the franchise or a penalty of $6000 up to date and a fine of $100 a day from now until the charter provisions are properly complied with.

The city is not arbitrary in this matter, and, although the corporations should have made their reports on February 1 the council last night voted to extend the time until April 25, instructing the city attorney to start proceedings against all franchise holders that are delinquent in their reports on that date.

The Killorin Construction company is the only concern that made a report in conformity with the charter requirements. The section under which these reports are to be made is numbered 463 in the charter and says that every corporation or person exercising a franchise in the city of Duluth, shall, on the second Monday in February, annually, file with the city comptroller a sworn statement, setting forth in detail the business of the previous year, the actual cost of the plant or business operated under the franchise, the actual incumbrances, debts and obligations, the amount of stock issued, and the value of the stock and the names of the stockholders, the gross earnings, the expenses, and even the addresses of each stockholder.

Such a statement, when filed, would be open for public inspection. A number of the corporations did make statements during the month of February, but evaded most of the requirements as to detail.

At last Duluth is to have an anti-garbage ordinance that will mean something.

An ordinance was introduced in the council imposing a penalty of $100 on every property owner, or property agent that fails to remove all garbage, rubbish,

rags,
soiled paper,
tin cans,
old shoes,
ashes,
filth,

and all manner of unsanitary dirt within twenty-four hours after receiving a notice from the health department. If it is impossible to pay the fine the offenders may be sentenced to the county jail for a period of not to exceed ninety days.

This ordinance is now in the hands of the ordinance committee, which consists of Aldermen Wing, Walker and McEwen.

The council in voting to reject a liquor license renewal on the Bowery virtually served notice that the new code of high moral endeavor in that district would be strenuously upheld.

The renewal was for a saloon located at 612 West Superior street, from the basement of which two young girls were recently taken by the police.

Alderman Kern suggested that the license be transferred to New Duluth, where there seemed to be an urgent necessity for a saloon run on legitimate principles to do away with the evil effects of a "blind pig" run without restraint on the Wisconsin side.

His motion was ruled out of order, the president announcing that New Duluth was outside the saloon patrol limits.

Alderman Sang remarked that as near as he could see New Duluth was outside the limits for everything except taxes.

Mr. Kern finally introduced an ordinance amendment extending the patrol limits to New Duluth, and the amendment was referred to the ordinance committee.

The bid of the steamer Carrington to furnish the Park Point ferry service for the current year at a cost of $30 a day was strongly recommended.

Alderman Moore suggested that certain hours each day the ferry should run over to the Fifth avenue west dock after stopping at Lake avenue, and Alderman McEwen suggested that the persons holding the ferry contract be compelled to submit a daily trip sheet to the department of public works and that a penalty of $1 be imposed for every trip missed without adequate reason.

For further consideration of these suggestions the matter was allowed to go over for one week.

In view of the recent request of the Zenith Telephone company for an increase of rates, the council decided to investigate the telephone business very fully and as a preliminary, instructed the city comptroller to make a detailed examination of the Zenith company's books.

Alderman Mannheim was the author of an ordinance, which, if passed, would prohibit the building of stables and ice houses within seventy-five feet of any street or avenue unless a majority of the property owners in the immediate neighborhood petition for it. The ordinance committee has this measure under consideration.

An ordinance advertising an issue of $40,000 worth of water and light bonds drawing 4 per cent interest, and issued for water plant extension purposes, was passed.

Four property owners owning 300 feet of the 900 feet of East Michigan street to be improved with sandstone paving, asked that the improvement be postponed for one year. The request was referred to Aldermen Barnes, Moore and Tessman.

The adoption of a resolution presented by Alderman Moore authorized the board of park commissioners to make a parkway out of Twenty-first avenue east from London Road to Fourth street, by embellishing the sidewalk grass plots with trees and shrubbery.

Alderman Olson, secured the adoption of a resolution requiring an estimate for the grading, guttering and otherwise improving of an alley way in the Sixth ward, between Superior and First streets from Twentieth to Twenty-first avenue west.

Alderman Sang secured the adoption of a resolution asking for an estimate of the cost of improving the road from Bay View Heights to Proctorknott.

A resolution by Alderman Sang was adopted, instructing the city attorney to act in conjunction with the county attorney in securing from the state auditor a compromise of old taxes and assessments in order that much Duluth property may be taken off the delinquent list of years' standing and put back on the list of active tax paying property.

In accordance with the recommendations of Mayor Hugo the aldermen elected Henry Folz and Nels O. Nelson, members of the health board.

City Engineer Patton submitted an estimate for the improving of Twenty-third avenue east, as recently petitioned for. He said that it would cost $6592 to pave with tar macadam from Superior street to Second street and $5272 to pave with Telford macadam the same distance.

To pave Twenty-third avenue from Superior street to Fourth street with tar macadam would cost about $12,629 as compared with $10,923 if Telford macadam were to be used.

A combination cement curb and gutter was ordered built on East First street between Twenty-second and Twenty-third avenues at a cost of $1055.

Hints To Advertisers

You have been often struck by an especially attractive ad. in The Herald. That ad. was not set during the last rush hours of the day in which it appeared. It is to the advertiser's own interest to get his copy in early.

Printer's Ink: The water that has gone by will not run the mill. He leans upon a shaky post who rests his business upon a past reputation. Men do not ask what one was, but what he is. The world is marching on and on, and to keep up with the grand procession one must move right along with it. The people have been educated to go to advertisements for information as to where to buy.

"The miller sees not all the water that goes by his mill." Evening Herald want adds bring you business you knew not of.

National Advertiser: The advice given by St. Paul in one of his epistles, "Be instant in season and out of season," applies with peculiar force to business men in every department of their work—advertising especially. The other fellows are always at it—some of them certainly. Competition never ceases. It never relaxes its strength. There should be search for new methods and how to apply them. The "other fellows" should not distress any business man. Every dollar he expends in advertising them is one hundred cents of loss to him. There is business enough for all, and all get a fair share of it—if they deserve it. But they will not get it by cheapening on their advertising, or by fretting because their competitors are getting more business than they. The world's sympathies are with those who have pluck and energy. No one cares to buy goods in stores where the air is lifeless and the salesmen are indifferent. There should be action all the time and one cannot show too much of that commodity.

What makes the evening paper so productive of results is the fact that it is never seen going away from the home. It reaches its readers at the very time of the day when their minds are in a most receptive condition. This accounts for the evening paper's increased advertising patronage the world over.

"To persevere in an evil course makes you unhappy forever." Do not stay out of The Evening Herald advertising columns any longer.

An Evening Herald ad. will help you exchange something you have for something you want.

TWELVE BUSINESS MAXIMS.

The president of the London chamber of commerce gives twelve maxims which he has tested through years of business experience, and which he recommends as tending to ensure success:

1. Have a definite aim.
2. Go straight for it.
3. Master all details.
4. Always know more than you are expected to know.
5. Remember that difficulties are only made to overcome.
6. Treat failures as stepping-stones to further effort.
7. At times be bold; always prudent.
8. The minority often beats the majority in the end.
9. Make good use of other men's brains.
10. Listen well; answer cautiously; decide promptly.
11. Preserve, by all means in your power, "a sound mind in a sound body."
12. Last, but not least, lay aside a certain percentage of your sales for judicious advertising.

The advertiser who keeps abreast of the times has something to sell that is worth buying.

If he can force the public to see the merits of his merchandise, he is a good advertiser.

If he can combine skill in display with a keen knowledge of human nature and has the ability to differentiate between classes, he should be carefully nursed by the business man.

MAN MISSING.

Inquiry For Ephraim Coon of Virginia, Minn.

Vincennes, Ind., April 14.—Andrew M. Lunden, a broker of Chicago, is inquiring here for Ephraim Coon, of Virginia, St. Louis county, Minnesota, who came here March 28 to buy timber land and has been missing since April 2. He was last seen in Pike county, twelve miles from Washington, where he left a liveryman and said he would walk to meet the owners of some land. He had $700.

Married Women

Every woman covets a shapely, pretty figure, and many of them deplore the loss of their girlish forms after marriage. The bearing of children is often destructive to the mother's shapeliness. All of this can be avoided, however, by the use of Mother's Friend before baby comes, as this great liniment always prepares the body for the strain upon it, and preserves the symmetry of her form. Mother's Friend overcomes all the danger of child-birth, and carries the expectant mother safely through this critical period without pain. It is woman's greatest blessing. Thousands gratefully tell of the benefit and relief derived from the use of this wonderful remedy. Sold by all druggists at $1.00 per bottle. Our little book, telling all about this liniment, will be sent free.

A SCIENTIFIC DISCOVERY BY A WOMAN TO CURE WOMEN

Women of All Ages, Attention!

Madame Yale, the famous Queen of Beauty, who has lectured in all of the prominent cities of the world before vast audiences, and has been pronounced by newspapers and critics to be the most perfect woman in form and feature now living, speaks to the women of the world and frankly tells them that the secret of her beauty lies in perfect health—and the secret of her health lies in the use of her own remedies. Among them—Fruitcura—her great and wonderful tonic for curing all female ailments and building up the system. Fruitcura restores all weak organs to perfect health. It cures the many complaints of women that only women know of. It restores the vitality, makes the eyes bright, the step elastic, and brings the bloom of health to the faded cheek. It renews the nerve tone, and makes the flesh firm, hard and velvety. In fact, its use is the royal road to perfect health, and beautiful womanhood. It cures their complaints and nervous troubles of any nature and revives the vitality which is lacking in all such cases. For women of all ages. A discovery by a woman to cure women. Price $1.00 per bottle.

FREE BOTTLE FRUITCURA

In order to give every woman a chance to try this wonderful preparation, Madame Yale will mail, absolutely FREE of charge, a bottle of Fruitcura together with her 96-page book, "Woman's Wisdom," to every woman who will write for it. Address your letter to

SEALING WAX

Poured Down a Boy's Throat Caused Death.

Spokane, Wash., April 14.—Coroner Smith is at present investigating what may prove one of the most heartless and cruel cases of torture yet known in this city, and all as the result of children's pranks. It is said to have caused the death of Frank White, aged 13, son of Mrs. Robert L. White, of 13 North River avenue. The boy has just died at his home after a lingering illness.

The mother is heart broken with grief, and declares that her son's death is the result of violence at the hands of his playmates. She claims that other youngsters poured hot sealing wax in the boy's mouth on one occasion and even now it is claimed hardened wax can be seen clinging to his teeth. The mother also claims that at other times boys tied ropes around her son's legs and draged him along the ground, and on several other occasions the mother claims he was mistreated.

It costs but 10 cents a week to have The Herald delivered regularly at your home either in city or suburbs.

"HELPS HEALTH" FORCE

THE UNITY CLUB

Miss Mogford Reads a Paper on Robert Louis Stevenson.

Henry F. Greene Expresses an Opinion on Modern Novelists.

Miss G. E. Mogford addressed the Unity club last evening on "Robert Louis Stevenson."

Miss Mogford, in her excellent paper, traced the life of Stevenson from early childhood until his death. She pictured him in boyhood with his childish fear of hell and his earnest devotion to religion. His mother, who was delicate in health, left him entirely to the care of his old Scotch nurse, who lavished upon him a mother's devotion and governed him with strict discipline.

"At 14," said Miss Mogford, "Stevenson became possessed of a desire to become an author. He carried a book with him constantly and fell into the habit of describing things that he saw. In this way he trained his mind to transcribe on paper his sensations.

"In his youth Stevenson plunged into all kinds of dissipations. He seemed to have left behind him the traditions of childhood and had not yet found his place among men. That he came out of this conflict without permanent injury to his character is a proof of his manhood and strength.

"Then we see Stevenson after a long struggle for health in all the different countries of Europe, going to Samoa and there taking up so courageously his life's work. He did not look upon his life in Samoa as an exile, although he was separated so far from all his friends and former acquaintances. He lived among the natives and entered into their life as far as possible, gaining their confidence and finally coming to be looked upon as a chief by them. Here we see him showing the qualities of a diplomat and politician.

"Many have accused Stevenson of copying others in his writings. He did draw much from other writers, but his stories were not stolen. They had been absorbed by him and he so loved the practice of his art that he must transcribe all stories that came to him. His sole object is to entertain. He wrote at a time when all the old novelists were dead and his place in literature is unique."

Rev. Harry White, in the discussion which followed, thought the Stevenson type of man was superficial. "It is not natural," he said, "for a man to spend his life in continual enjoyment and appreciation of nature and the good things of life. Men are all subject to fits of despondency and the Matthew Arnold type of man is far higher than the Stevenson type, although it would, perhaps, be better if we were all more like Stevenson."

H. F. Greene questioned whether modern writers rank with the older writers, such as Scott, Dickens and Thackery. "Our modern novelists are not read and known by the entire population of the country as were Dickens and Scott. In England a reference to a character in one of Dickens' novels is recognized by everyone, but that is not the case with our modern novelists. This raises the question whether popularity is a true test of genius."

SENATOR HANNA THE SPEAKER

At Annual Banquet of Syracuse Chamber of Commerce.

Syracuse, N. Y., April 14.—Senator Marcus A. Hanna was the guest of honor at the annual banquet of the Syracuse Chamber of Commerce last night. About 400 covers were laid. Senator Hanna discussed "Capital and Labor," speaking at length. He said that in the great struggles between the two the advantage always was with the employer who is oftimes selfish in maintaining his position. Mr. Hanna then went into the history of the Civic Federation and discussed its work.

"Conciliation, prevention of hostility, is the one object sought by this organization and not once has it failed," declared the speaker.

The senator preached the equality of man. "I stand," he declared, "on the broad platform that in this great brotherhood of man we are all equal. I stand on the platform that every man who has the power to do service to his municipality, state and nation and to his maker owes it to himself to use that power to its fullest extent to do that which will produce the best of humanity."

Senator Hanna asserted his faith in the future of both capital and labor in their individual and mutual relations.

He referred to the prosperity of the country and said with a continuance of a good understanding between the representatives of labor and capital he could see no reason why such prosperity should not continue.

WHY MOTHERS WORRY

Did you ever hear a mother worry over a plump child? There is no better bank of health for a child to draw from than a good supply of healthy flesh.

Scott's Emulsion not only gives a child weight and plumpness, but it feeds the brain, bones and nerves with strength and active power.

Fewer mothers would worry if they knew more about Scott's Emulsion.

JEALOUSY IS DISPLAYED

By Consuelo, Who Refused to Curtsy to Lady Curzon.

Paris, April 14.—Americans returned to Paris from Delhi are telling a story showing the existence of keen jealousy between the duchess of Marlborough and Lady Curzon. The duchess declined to recognize Lady Curzon's claim for recognition and disputed her title as vicereine. English society women of rank and title acknowledged Lady Curzon's claims by curtsying to her at the Durbar ball, preferring not to raise awkward questions of precedence in the presence of the viceroy and the duke of Connaught.

The duchess of Marlborough, however, always a stickler for etiquette, particularly when American women are concerned, declined to curtsy to Lady Curzon at the Durbar ball. Strictly speaking there is no vicereine of India, yet at the Durbar ball all curtsied to Lady Curzon, but rather than kneel to her countrywoman the duchess of Marlborough left Delhi before the ball, taking the duke with her.

The incident is the subject of gossip in the fashionable salons of Paris. It is interesting because the Vanderbilt family is here in force, W. K. Sr., W. K. Jr., Mrs. Vanderbilt and the duchess of Marlborough all are now in Paris. Their presence is delighting the hearts of the shopkeepers. They have a swarm of automobiles.

THIRD MARRIAGE

Of Wealthy Mrs. Pratt, Formerly of Louisville.

New Haven, Conn., April 14.—It was announced here a few days ago that Mrs. Elizabeth F. Pratt, the wealthiest woman in Clinton, Conn., and Sheriff George A. Stevens of this city, would be married soon after Easter.

The romance commenced at the time Sheriff Stevens was seeking to serve papers in the suit brought by George Audley against Thomas H. Pratt, son of Mrs. Pratt, for services as coachman and valet. A few months ago Mrs. Pratt obtained a divorce from her second husband, Robert Kennedy, of Louisville and Kansas City, on the ground of desertion. Her first husband is dead. Kennedy at the time of their marriage was a Mississippi river steamboat captain. Mrs. Pratt came to New Haven when her two sons, Thomas H. and Charles, began their preparation here for Yale. It is stated that the Pratt boys while preparing for Yale were tutored by Arthur Pennell, who was then in Yale. The story is told of the business sagcity of Mrs. Pratt that she made about $500.000 in a gas deal in Kansas City a few years ago. This marriage will also be the third in the career of Sheriff Stevens.

Western North Carolina In the Spring.

Western North Carolina is attractive at any season of the year, but certainly during the spring months, when the trees are budding and the flowers blossoming; what could be more inviting than a trip to this beautiful mountain country.

The months of April and May in the Land of the Sky and Sapphire country, including Asheville and Hot Springs, N. C., are very enjoyable. The climate at this season is delightful, the scenery most beautiful, and the opportunities for the enjoyment of sport, including golf, cannot be surpassed.

The hotels in this region afford the very best accommodations. If you wish to know something of this delightful region, communicate with your nearest ticket agent, or address G. B. Allen, A. G. P. SAYS ANNA HELD

Was Lady's Maid and Was a Very Wild Child.

Mme. Gaugac, Aunt of Actress, a Resident of Milwaukee.

Milwaukee, April 14.—There are at least two Milwaukee women who have not viewed the remarkable triumphs of Anna Held, the famous French actress, with unqualified approval and, strange to say, these two are the ones who would first be expected to speak in her praise, for they are Mlle. Held's own aunt and cousin.

While thousands of people here and in other parts of the country are more than anxious to witness the entrancing art of the graceful, charming French beauty, and fall under the spell of her lustrous eyes, the woman who cared for and reared her until she was old enough to support herself, stands back and smiles knowingly, wondering how such fame was ever achieved by the girl who so often rebelled against her every attempt to bring her up in the paths that had been laid out for her as a fine, aristocratic lady, and whose relationship she now acknowledges with real or feinged reluctance.

Mme. Gaugac, who resides at Forty-eighth and State streets, is Mlle. Held's aunt, and, until a dozen years ago, resided in France, near Paris, and she is still unable to speak more than a few words of English. Her name, before her marriage, was Josephine Held, and, when her sister, the now famous actress' mother, died, leaving her little daughter an orphan, she adopted the girl and took her to her home.

When the lass grew old enough to toddle about, she soon developed a mind of her own and was not willing that she should be dictated to by anyone, and, to such an extent was her independence carried, when she became 14 years old her intention to go to Paris and make her own living was not discouraged. Mme. Gaugac, in telling of her associations with the actress, exhibited the utmost surprise that any one should ever think her niece should have become an object of admiration to the great American nation.

"We have had nothing to do with Anna since she was fourteen years old," she said in broken English, "and that was a great many years ago. I am glad to say. When my sister died of consumption, leaving Anna, then a tiny babe, without a home, I took the girl to my house. I had hoped that she would be the pride of myself and of our city, and all my efforts were devoted to having her become a fine lady, for she was a beautiful child and looked like a princess.

"It is not good to think of it. I could do nothing with her. She was so wild, so determined! She would go out on the streets like a boy. She never cared for what we told her. At last she got so unmanagable that I said I would no more have anything to do with that girl.

"She went to Paris and finally she goes to America as a lady's maid. And then the next we hear of her—she is the great, the popular Anna Held, the famous actress. She has jewels and lovely gowns that are the talk of everybody. She is known and praised everywhere. How did she get that—what you Americans call 'the great boost?' I do not know. I have never seen her since, I say, we have nothing to do with her in our France, so when she comes to America and is a little 'up' in the world, why should I go and witness her.

"Only I would like to know, I do want to find," she added, her woman's curiosity becoming in evidence, "how Anna got such a 'boost up.' Maybe some day I will go and see her just a minute, and talk to her, for, after all, she is my sister's child."

NEW DEVICE FOR DEFENSE

Of Coast and Harbor Invented By Anson Phelps Stokes.

New York, April 14.—Millionaire Anson Phelps Stokes, whose chief vocation has been philanthropy, has just taken out patents on a most formidable floating battery, designed to protect harbors from hostile fleets.

Mr. Stokes describes his battery as circular, with a spherical hull and superstructure. He likens it to a floating apple, with the water line about the middle. The inventor claims that this gives greater strength and safety and greater capacity for the same weight of construction than the floating batteries of Russia, the best in existence.

The battery is to be built of steel, and will carry two guns of large caliber. If desired the battery may carry only one great gun.

The center of gravity of the guns is approximately at the center of gravity of the vessel. They extend through the main decks to the gun deck, from which they are loaded. The guns are held rigidly in place by the framework of the vessel itself. By means of counterpoises of lead the muzzles of the guns may be lifted. The counterpoises are run aft, thus tilting the whole vessel and the guns with it.

One of the chief points of difference between Mr. Stokes' invention and the remarkable Russian vessel, known as the Vice Admiral Popoff, is that the guns in the Stokes vessel are rigid and attached to the vessel itself, thus making it necessary to "trim ship" in order to sight the guns, while in the Russian ships they are mounted in the ordinary disappearing mechanism.

Mr. Stokes' vessel also is not designed to be self-supporting, whereas the Russian vessel moves by its own steam. Then, again, the spherical shape of the whole is decidedly a new thought.

In explaining his invention, Mr. Stokes said:

"By reason of the spherical shape of my battery or vessel considerable weight is saved in construction, and from this, and especially by allowing the guns to extend across most of the vessel, much heavier guns can be carried. Considerable economy in the cost of construction results from the spherical shape of the battery, for the reason that a large number of the parts are mere duplicates of each other.

"Another item of economy results from the fact that no gun carriage is used to hold the large guns. Their omission produces a safer and more secure mount for the heaviest guns."

The inventor also claims additional stability on account of the shape of the vessel.

tais of trying the case, leaving only $6000 to be divided among the attorneys, whose services, as hired servants of the state, are worth more than that. Part of the additional appropriation asked for is to make it right with the attorneys, and the rest is to carry the case up to higher courts.

The sum spent in the trial of the case seems large, and one item of expense accounts for a good deal of it. The proceedings in the case, including the testimony, have been printed and bound into four handsome volumes, with good, substantial, library binding, to be circulated over the country. This little bit of advertising soaked up a large share of the 1902 appropriation.

It is not at all improbable that the committees that are now preparing the omnibus appropriation bill will incorporate this item of $25,000, and give the governor what he wants. The 1902 appropriation was often termed a "campaign fund" before the federal authorities had settled the issue by winning the case in the federal courts. Now that the matter has been adjudicated, it will be interesting to hear what the popular verdict will be on the 1903 appropriation.

THE CHILDREN ENJOY

Life out of doors and out of the games which they play and the enjoyment which they receive and the efforts which they make, comes the greater part of that healthful development which is so essential to their happiness when grown. When a laxative is needed the remedy which is given to them to cleanse and sweeten and strengthen the internal organs on which it acts, should be such as physicians would sanction, because its component parts are known to be wholesome and the remedy itself free from every objectionable quality. The one remedy which physicians and parents, well-informed, approve and recommend and which the little ones enjoy, because of its pleasant flavor, its gentle action and its beneficial effects, is—Syrup of Figs—and for the same reason it is the only laxative which should be used by fathers and mothers.

Syrup of Figs is the only remedy which acts gently, pleasantly and naturally without griping, irritating, or nauseating and which cleanses the system effectually, without producing that constipated habit which results from the use of the old-time cathartics and modern imitations, and against which the children should be so carefully guarded. If you would have them grow to manhood and womanhood, strong, healthy and happy, do not give them medicines, when medicines are not needed, and when nature needs assistance in the way of a laxative, give them only the simple, pleasant and gentle—Syrup of Figs.

Its quality is due not only to the excellence of the combination of the laxative principles of plants with pleasant aromatic syrups and juices, but also to our original method of manufacture and as you value the health of the little ones, do not accept any of the substitutes which unscrupulous dealers sometimes offer to increase their profits. Please to remember, the full name of the Company—CALIFORNIA FIG SYRUP CO.—is printed on the front of every package. In order to get its beneficial effects it is always necessary to buy the genuine only. For sale by all reliable druggists.

The house in committee of the whole yesterday recommended to pass a bill, making important amendments to the so-called McCarthy law, designed to protect lumberjacks and aid them to get their wages whenever they wanted them. The bill, which is by George W. Armstrong, of Minneapolis, is intended to make it a little easier for the loggers, by providing that liens for labor on logs cannot be filed before April 5 of the year in which the work was done, and cannot be filed later than May 1. Under the law as it stood, these liens could be filed at any time, so that a worker in the woods could come out any time and if his employers did not pay him he could immediately file a lien.

The house yesterday afternoon, in committee of the whole, sat down upon the practice of hiring counsel for various state departments, by recommending for passage a bill by Ambrose Tighe, of St. Paul, providing that, except where they are specially provided by law, no state department can hire attorneys to do their work, but must turn it over to the attorney general. If he deems it absolutely necessary he can get assistants temporarily, and he is also allowed to call on county attorneys to do the work, and it is made their duty to heed the call.

The house judiciary committee yesterday afternoon got rid of the trading stamp subject for the time being by recommending for passage the attorney general's substitute for the Jepson bill, prohibiting trading stamp enterprises in this state, which he held unconstitutional. The Jepson bill will die in committee. The substitute bill provides that trading stamp people must stamp the value of their checks over their face, and must redeem them in goods or cash, at the option of the holders. They must also redeem them at any time, instead of requiring the holders to wait until they have a certain amount of them.

The house judiciary committee yesterday afternoon took up three bills by George E. Perley, of Moorhead, designed to permit service of processes upon foreign corporations, and to prevent local corporations from evading the state's juridiction. One bill, which was recommended to pass, provides that foreign corporations owning stock in Minnesota corporations, must establish a resident agent before they can vote any of the stock. Another bill, which was also recommended to pass, provides that Minnesota corporations must hold their stockholders' meetings in this state. A third bill, which provided that foreign corporations owning Minnesota property, or stock in Minnesota corporations, must maintain offices and agents in this state, was referred to a sub-committee, because it was feared that it might destroy the effect of the existing law that it amends.

The first bill, requiring corporations owning stock in Minnesota companies to have resident agents, also provides that if they do not, service and execution can be had upon stock in the company owned in this state.

The house committee on towns and counties yesterday afternoon approved the bill cutting the limit of appeal from the allowance of claims by county boards from thirty to fifteen days, and voted to recommend it to pass.

There is a determined lobby, backed by the railroad and warehouse commission, working in the house against the passage of the Pugh civil service bill. Included in the lobbyists are employes of the grain department, who it is understood, have been directed by their superiors to cease their work for the state long enough to go to St. Paul and fight against the Pugh bill.

W. I. Nolan's bill for the protection of workmen upon high buildings was recommended to pass by the house in committee of the whole yesterday, after it had been amended so as to cut out the provision requiring temporary floors, leaving in the bill only the provision requiring contractors to safeguard elevator shafts with fences.

T. H. Girling's bill providing that where the judges of one district have more than they can attend to the governor may send a judge from another district, was recommended to pass by the house. So was the Taylor bill exempting bullheads from the operation of the fish and game cade and providing that they can be taken with a hook and line at any season and shipped out of the state.

The house yesterday afternoon recommended to pass a bill by Joseph Jacoby, of St. Paul, making it a misdemeanor for anybody to abandon a babe under five years of age, and offering a reward for the conviction of such inhuman parents. The abandonment is to be punished by a fine of $100 to $300 or by imprisonment from one to three years, or both, and the reward offered is $100.

The Shearer bill, making it a crime to publish indecent advertisements, was recommended to pass by the house yesterday.

The senate also recommended a newspaper bill to pass yesterday afternoon. It was the Nyquist bill providing that newspapers cannot collect subscriptions for papers sent after they have been ordered stopped. Another bill favorably acted upon by the senate committee of the whole was the house bill raising the salary of the superintendent of public instruction from $2000 to $3500 a year.

The Perley bill prohibiting the sale of food mixed with any preservative injurious to health or tending to conceal the evidences of decay, was recommended to pass by the senate. So was the Fraser bill creating the Minnesota State Board of Surveyors and requiring surveyors to take out state licenses and subject themselves to state examinations.

Mr. Hugo's bill validating assessments for sidewalks that have not been petitioned for in cities of 50,000 and over was recommended to pass.

The inheritance tax law passed by the house some time ago was on general orders in the senate yesterday, and was recommended to pass.

Mr. Dowling's bill providing for the vacation and alteration of roads running over the iron deposit, in order to permit the owners of the mine to get out the ore, received favorable action at the hands of the senate committee of the whole.

VETERANS' CLAIMS

Under Act of Last Congress Taken Up By Pension Bureau.

Those Who Lost Limbs In Military or Naval Service.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, April 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The pension bureau has taken up claims arising under the act of congress approved March 2, 1903, an act to increase the pensions of those who have lost limbs in the military or naval service of the United States. The full text of the act, the provisions of which are now being carried into effect as rapidly as the claims can be looked into by the officers of the pension bureau, is as follows:

"That from and after the passage of this act all persons on the pension roll, and all persons hereafter granted a pension, who, while in the military or naval service of the United States and in the line of duty, shall have lost one hand or one foot, or been totally disabled in the same, shall receive a pension at the rate of $40 per month; that all persons who, in like manner, shall have lost an arm at or above the elbow or a leg at or above the knee, or been totally disabled in the same, shall receive a pension at the rate of $46 per month; that all persons who in, like manner, shall have lost an arm at the shoulder joint or a leg at the hip joint, or so near the shoulder or hip joint or where the same is in such a condition as to prevent the use of an artificial limb, shall receive a pension at the rate of $55 per month, and that all persons who, in like manned, shall have lost one hand and one foot, or been totally disabled in the same, shall receive a pension at the rate of $60 per month, and that all persons who, in like manner, shall have lost both feet shall receive a pension at the rate of $100 per month. Provided, however, that this act shall not be so construed as to reduce any pension under any act, public or private."

The last annual report of the commissioner of pensions shows that there were upon the pension rolls at the close of the fiscal year of 1902 2358 men of old wars, civil and Mexican, who are drawing a pension of $36 per month for the loss of an arm or a leg and fifty-nine of the same class who lost arms during the war with Spain, making a total of 2417 in this class of pensioners. Each of these men under the act of March 2, 1903, will receive an increase of $10 per month or $120 per year, calling for an increase in pension disbursements of $290,040 on this account.

There were on the pension rolls at the close of the last fiscal year 1944 pensioners of civil or Mexican wars, each drawing $45 per month for the loss of an arm or leg at the shoulder or hip joint or so close to the shoulder joint or hip joint as not to be able to wear an artificial limb and sixteen so wounded during the Spanish war, a total of 1960, and each of these is entitled to receive $10 per month additional or $120 a year, a total of $225,200 annually. It is estimated that there is in round numbers 2500 veterans of all wars upon the rolls drawing pensions for the loss of a hand or of a foot or both. There is no accurate manner by which the department can determine just how many have hands or a hand off, or a similar condition as to pedal extremities. The total disbursements for the first year to carry out the provisions of the "armless and legless increase bill," as it is generally known will, it is believed, approximate a grand total of nearly $750,000 during the first year of its operation, that is during the current calendar year.

Congress, at the session just closed, passed a bill which was approved by the president March 3, 1903, which gives all veterans of the Mexican war an equal pension of $12 per month. There were on the rolls at the close of the past fiscal year 3262 Mexican war pensioners at the $12 per month rate and 3462 receiving $8 per month. The pension bureau is about ready to take up and adjudicate cases growing out of this act. The several pension agencies throughout the country have been called upon for reports and as fast as they are received the cases will be withdrawn from the files, comparisons made and the increase made. To carry into effect the provisions of this act giving an increase of $4 per month, or $48 a year, to 3462 veterans of the Mexican war will cost the government $166,156. In this connection it is interesting to note that there is now on the pension rolls the names of 1306 widows of soldiers of the Mexican war, each of whom receives $12 per month.

And when one turns to the records of the real old, old soldier there is found one man now living and drawing a pension at the great age of 103 years. He is the only living survivor of the war of 1813 now upon the pension rolls. His name is Hiram Cronk, and he resides at Ava, Oneida county, N. Y., and served with New York troops in the war of 1812. He draws a pension of $25 per month, the pension having been given by a special act of congress.

The oldest pension of whom there is a record was Daniel F. Bakeman, the last survivor of the revolutionary war. He was born in Schoharie county, New York, Sept. 28, 1759, and died in Freedom, Chattaraugus county, N. Y., April 5, 1869, aged 109 years, 6 months and 8 days.

The historic Hinman school at Peoria, Ill., made famous by Robert J. Burdette in his story, "The Strike at Hinman's," is being demolished to make room for a row of flats. Burdette was a student at this school before the war and made it famous in his writings. It was erected in 1840.

In the presence of his wife Barris Ichkowski, proprietor of a second-hand store, at St. Louis, was shot and killed by an unknown negro who escaped. The negro entered the store, asked to see some revolvers, which, when shown he fitted a cartridge into one and without warning fired, then fled. The negro was unknown to the couple and there was appaarently no cause for the killing.

CHAMBERLAIN HAS CHANGED

Now Convinced That the Boer War Was a Mistake.

London, April 14.—Colonial Secretary Chamberlain intends visiting New York, Washington and Boston in the autumn. It will probably be Chamberlain's last visit to the United States as a member of the British cabinet. It is believed he is tired of public life, and would resign except that he feels obliged to remain in office and support the tottering Tory government.

Chamberlain has abandoned his personal ambition to be prime minister. His only political ambition now is to help the present government through the perils menacing its existence in order to see his son, Austen Chamberlain, succeed him as colonial secretary, so that the Chamberlain policy may be continued. Chamberlain's health is not robust, and he feels the physical results of the work and worry of the strenuous four years just passed.

Since his return from South Africa his friends have observed that his manner is completely changed. He is no longer bellcose and eager to precipitate quarrels in the commons. He no longer makes satirical taunts at political opponents. It is believed his tour of South Africa opened his eyes to the responsibilities of his share in precipitating the war. Political friends declare the tour convinced Chamberlain that the war was a mistake. Chastened by the knowledge gained on the tour and by diminishing health, Chamberlain apparently is desirous of making peace with all men. He returned from South Africa full of admiration for the Boers and with little respect for the Cape Colonials and mining magnates. He will not lift a finger to aid them to flood the mines with cheap labor. It is reported in the lobby of the house of commons if Chamberlain felt certain the present government could exist two years without his aid he would resign immediately. If he was to resign now the present Tory government could not hold office six months. Each succeeding parliamentary by-election demonstrates its unpopularity with the voters.

CRITICAL SITUATION

Met and Disaster Averted By American Commander.

Washington, April 14.—Quick action and common sense treatment of a critical situation by an American naval officer in China recently saved the foreign residents in the province of Kwon Tung, along the East bank of Canton river from falling victims to a plot which, while directed primarily against the Manchurian dynasty, inevitably would have culminated in an attack on the foreign population. While this attack was averted by the precautionary measures taken by Commander Drake, commanding the U. S. S. Monterey, with the assistance of the English gunboats Sand Piper and Britomac, the French gunboat Avalanche and the German tug Shameen, the coalition said to have fermented the trouble extends to several provinces and official advices received at both the state and navy departments show that reactionary measures on a scale far larger than is admitted either by foreign representatives or the Chinese government have been planned by the rebels.

Hearing that a force of rebels with Hung Chun Fuk, a native of Wai Chow, had planned an attack on the viceroy and Chinese officials of Canton during during the celebration of the Chinese New Year during the night of January 28-29, Commander Drake prepared to defend the foreign residents. An armed force of 3000 men had entered Canton surreptitiously several days before he learned that news, and were hiding with sympathizers. As most foreigners and official representatives of the various nations resided in Shameen, Commander Drake first completed his plan of defense for this section and then to allay the excitement which prevailed, he officially informed the consulates and Chinese officials of his preparations and advised the commanders of the English, German and French gunboats of the line of action to be pursued in case Shameen Island was attacked. The foreign commanders offered their co-operation and plans were perfected to meet any trouble that developed, whether on the island or on water.

Instead of visiting the holy temple in the inner city at midnight to offer incense, the viceroy and officials contrary to long custom remained in their respective yamens securely guarded. Around the viceroys yamen were assembled 4000 armed troops. By 7 o'clock the gates to the Inner City were closed and the streets cleared.

Many arrests were made that night in which some compradors were implicated and large amounts of stores were seized in houses and shops in Fong Chun and opposite Shameen. Many indications of the attack were found and the officials agreed that the rebels abandoned their plot only because of Commander Drake's discovery and his prompt action and the other foreign commanders in taking precautionary measures. Landing of an armed force from each of the foreign men of war had been agreed on by the American, English, German and French commanders at the first evidence of an attack and on the foreign section.

Consular advices received at the state department at Canton call attention to the feeling of insecurity caused by the shortage of the rice crop, the activity of the reformers and the rebellion in Kwang Si.

FURTHER EVIDENCE

That Mrs. Fair Survived Husband In Automobile Accident.

New York, April 14.—At the hearing on the Fair case counsel for Mrs. Nelson called Alfred J. Moranne, of France, who Lucien Mas says, was with him when he witnessed the accident to Mr. and Mrs. Fair.

Moranne said he was with Mas on the day of the accident. He was off his wheel when the automobile with the Fairs and their chauffeur passed him. It was going very fast.

"I had dismounted from my machine," he said, "when the automibile passed to my left. Then I saw it come to a stop with a great noise. My friend preceded me to where the automobile stood. I saw three bodies. The first one I approached was the chauffeur. He was scheming and trying to rise. Next I saw the gentleman. His skull was crushed out of all semblance of humanity. As I was examining the gentleman Mr. Mas said to me, 'The lady is not dead.' I looked around and saw Mas lift the lady and place her head again a tree."

"How near to the lady did you approach?" he was asked.

"I was within a yard of her. I remarked that her nose and eye were wound ed and that a stream of blood trickled across her forhead."

"Did you see the lady move?"

"I saw her lips move; the hands tightened and the chest moved slightly. The lips moved as though she was breathing."

"Do you recollect what you saw after your friend put her down?"

"For about a minute I saw her breathing gently. Her lips were still moving when I turned away from her."

"Did the gentleman move at all?"

"He did not. He was in the same position when I turned away as when I first saw him."

At this point an adjournment was taken.

DEVINE KNOCKED OUT.

Philadelphia, April 14.—Harry Forbes, of Chicago, bantamweight champion, last night knocked out Jimmy Devine of this city in the fourth round of their bout at the Washington Sporting club. It was Forbes' first appearaance in this city and he gave a splendid exhibition. Devine floored him in the first round, but that was the local man's best effort. He was unable to stand the terrible rain of blows administered by Forbes and showed signs of weariness. In the fourth round he was entirely on the defensive and was knocked out by a right hook on the jaw. The bout was scheduled to go six rounds.

HOUSE CAT

Acting as Mother to Three Fox Whelps.

Pierceville, Ind., April 14.—A house cat belonging to William Jordan has adopted three fox whelps. Jordan killed the old fox and took the three young foxes to his home. He had also dispatched a new family of kittens, and he offered the old mother cat the little foxes to atone for her loss. Much to his surprise she adopted them, and is caring for them with all the motherly affection she showed to her own kittens.

Counterfeits.

Read what one of the GREATEST NEWSPAPERS IN AMERICA has to say on this subject:

"The manufacturers of Castoria have been compelled to spend hundreds of thousands of dollars to familiarize the public with the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher. This has been necessitated by reason of pirates counterfeiting the Castoria trademark. This counterfeiting is a crime not only against the proprietors of Castoria, but against the growing generation. All persons should be careful to see that Castoria bears the signature of Chas. H. Fletcher, if they would guard the health of their children. Parents, and mothers in particular, ought to carefully examine the Castoria advertisements which have been appearing in this paper, and to remember that the wrapper of every bottle of genuine Castoria bears the fac-simile signature of Chas. LETTERS FROM LEADERS READ

At the Thomas Jefferson Dinner of Tammany Hall.

New York, April 14.—Letters from Former President Cleveland, W. J. Bryan and Ex-Senator David B. Hill, were read last night at the Thomas Jefferson dinner of the Tammany hall general committee of the thirty-fifth assembly district.

Mr. Cleveland wrote: "In the crowding incidents and constantly changing conditions of our people's life, new issues and new subjects of political though and action must frequently present themselves to the test of Democratic judgment. The only sincere way for our party to deal with these, is to first discover their character and their tendencies for good or evil, and thereupon to treat them in such manner as will recognize constitutional restrictions and the necessity of safe conservatism, while at the same time we keep in sight as our unfailing guide and the object of our political endeavor, a conscientious regard for the best and highest interest of the people of the land, without favoritism or unjust discrimination."

Mr. Bryan in his letter said: "I trust that the banquet will inspire those present to imitate Jefferson in a fight for the application of Democratic principles of government without compromise with plutocracy or concessions to time servers and patronage seekers."

In his letter, Former Senator Hill announced "that a united Democracy can win the great contest of 1904 and route the forces of plutocracy."

Edward M. Shepard, referring to the national administration spoke of President Roosevelt practically as a firebrand who is teaching the nation a desire for war.

CURES CATARRH

"Hyomei the Most Wonderful Cure for Catarrh Ever Discovered," Says Mayor Yard.

Do not try to cure catarrh by taking drugs into the stomach; it cannot be cured in that manner. The only way in which this too common disease can be cured is through a direct application that will kill the bacilli of catarrh and prevent their growth.

Hyomei is the only known method of treatment that accomplishes this. It is the simplest, most pleasant and the only absolute cure for catarrh that has ever been discovered.

Thousands of unsolicited testimonials have been received from the most prominent men and women in the country who have been cured by this remarkable remedy. Ministers, bankers, lawyers, even eminent physicians have sent strong testimonials as to the remarkable powers of Hyomei to cure catarrh.

Former Mayor Emory M. Yard, of Trenton, N. J., writes: "You have my permission to say that I believe 'Hyomei' to be one of the most wonderful cures for catarrh and throat trouble that has ever been discovered. In my case the effect has been marvelous. I enclose you money order for two outfits for friends of mine to whom I have recommended 'Hyomei' and who I am anxious shall have the benefit of this remarkable panacea."

The complete Hyomei outfit costs but $1.00, consisting of an inhaler, dropper and sufficient Hyomei to last over a month. This will effect a cure in ordinary cases, but for chronic and deep-seated cases of catarrh, longer use is necesary, and then extra bottles of Hyomei, (a month's treatment) can be obtained for 50 cents. It is not alone the best (it might be called the only) method of curing catarrh, but it is also the most economical.

S. F. Boyce has so much confidence in the power of Hyomei to cure catarrh that he will, for a limited time, sell this medicine under his personal guarantee to refund the money if the purcasers can say that it did not help them.

SECURED A PAROLE.

Wife Saved Husband From Going to Prison.

Sioux City, Iowa, April 14.—Because Mrs. Charles N. Tenny stood by her husband in his disgrace, he has been paroled by Judge Shiras, of the federal court at Cedar Rapids. Tenney will return here, where for twelve years he was chief mailing clerk in the Sioux City postoffice. He confessed to robbing the mails.

Mrs. Tenny accompanied her husband and the marshal to Cedar Rapids yesterday. She pleaded with the court only as a young wife could, for her husband. Judge Shiras sentenced him to two years, and suspended the sentence during good behavior. The court said he thought Tenny would turn out a better man if not subjected to the ignominity of prison life.

Tenny came here from Sioux Falls, and his parents live in Mitchell, S. D. Mrs. Tenny graduated from the Sioux Falls high school in 1890. She is a sister of Mrs. C. F. Cischo, of St. Paul. Tenney was arrested two months ago, and it was one of the sensations of the year here.

GEORGE J. GOULD

Says the West Is Looking Especially Well.

Lakewood, N. J., April 14.—After a careful survey of conditions in the West George J. Gould, who returned yesterday from a two weeks' trip over the Missouri Pacific and Wabash lines, is convinced that the present prosperity which the West is enjoying will continue for a full year.

"In all my experience in the West," said Mr. Gould, in an interview, "I have never seen it look as well as it does today. It is a bit too early to speak of corn and cotton, but as the soil is well watered, these crops ought to thrive amazingly. The railroads wont have any trouble in moving the great wheat crop but I think we will all be short of cars in the fall if there is a big corn crop."

ALASKA'S BOOM OVER.

Has Now Settled Down to Solid Business.

New Bedford, Mass., April 14.—Lieut. David H. Jarvis, U. S. R. M., of this city, at present serving on special duty for the treasury department as collector of customs for the territory of Alaska, is in New Bedford for a few days preparatory to his return to Sitka. He said today:

"Alaska is over her boom and has settled down to solid steady business. The chief occupation are fishing and mining. As to the gold being all carried out I can safely say that only a small portion of Alaska's 600,000 miles has yet been visited by white men, much less explored and developed. There is plenty of gold there yet to be had for the taking. The salmon fishery is still to receive its fullest development but last season's catch which was exported, amounted to about 2,500,000 cases, each case containing forty-eight cans. Our exports there last year aggregated about $11,000,000."

PATRONAGE PLAN

Of "Uncle Joe" Sibley Which Has Some Good Points.

New Chinese Minister an Abler Diplomat Than Mr. Wu.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, April 14.—(Special to The Herald).—"Uncle Joe" Sibley has some original ideas on the distribution of patronage which, he believes, if strictly followed would relieve two of the greatest officers in the United States of their onerous burdens without in effect depriving them of a jot or tittle of their importance or power—the offices being those of the president of the United States and speaker of the house of representatives. Behind the smooth and smiling countenance of Representative Sibley are concealed a political astuteness which equals his ability as a financier; a faculty for weighing and gauging men and matters and a love of humanity in general, which is scarcely supassed by his love of horse flesh and the good things of the world.

"The presidency of the United States," said Mr. Sibley yesterday, "should be shorn of its terrors. President Roosevelt is just at the age where he can thoroughly enjoy, if such a term is appropriate, being president. But even he, although he devotes considerable time to exercise and recreation, is hampered by the same burden which has dragged down all executives and sapped their vitality, especially in the last forty years. I refer to that hydro-headed dragon, known as the office-seeker. As a common sense proposition, why should the president be compelled to select men for minor offices? The United States is such a great nation that it should be run on strictly business principles, the same as any other corporation. Who, for instance, would approach the president of a large railroad corporation with an application for the post of stationmaster, or trainmaster, or section foreman, or conductor, or any other position of a similar character? And yet that is almost precisely what is occurring every day with the president of the United States. If I were president I would put in force a sort of civil service of my own. When I came to make up my cabinet I would call together the men whom I considered the ablest in my party to fill the positions to which I had assigned them. I would then say to them: 'Gentlemen, appoint to the subordinate positions those men in whom you have the most confidence and hold them responsible for the men whom they in turn will appoint, and I will hold you equally responsible for the men whom you appoint.'

"Then, you see," continued 'Uncle Joe,' "when a senator or member of congress would come to me in behalf of some man whom he wanted appointed to the treasury department I could say to him, 'My dear Senator, nothing would give me greater pleasure than to oblige you, but as I am holding Secretary Shaw to the strictest accountability for the personnel of his department, I am morally bound to make no appointments except on his recommendation, and you will have to see Secretary Shaw.' It would not be very long before the senators and members and others seeking official positions for themselves or their constituents would understand that the place to seek office was from the head of the department under which the office came, and thus the great labor of making the thousands of appointments which are made by each president, would be transferred from the shoulders of the president to those of the members of the cabinet. The president would then be left time to devote himself to the larger questions of internal and international policy and the president would be more than ever the executive.

"Of course," he continued somewhat whimsically, "this would not necessarily deprive the president of all 'say' in the matter of appointments. For should it happen that the president had someone in particular whom he wished to be appointed to a certain position, he could drop a little note to that effect to the secretary of the treasury, or to whatever other official he desired, to the effect that he would like to have Mr. So and So appointed, and I have little doubt that his wishes would be respected.

"I do not think, however, that such a state of affairs will ever be inaugurated by a president during the first term, but in the second term of some president, it will come some day that the president will no longer permit himself to be annoyed with applications for office but will turn all such business over to the heads of departments, where, in my opinion, it properly belongs. And it may come in the first term of some president, for I believe that such a system would secure the appointment of the most capable men available, for each person charged with the duty of making appointments would make it a point of pride to have all his appointments of a first-class character, and the administration would be the case, and the president would properly ask an endorsement of the people through the medium of a re-election.

"Much has been said," continued Mr. Sibley, "concerning the arduous duties of the speaker of the house, and yet the fact that these duties are so burdensome is largely the fault of the speaker. When Mr. Henderson was speaker he considered it his duty to personally examine every bill, with the exception of appropriation bills and other privileged bills, which came before the house, as he thought he would be held personally responsible of all private legislation enacted by that body. Consequently there were many heartburnings and many harsh words used in connection with his course, which was denounced as tyrannical in the extreme. I suggest that if the speaker wishes to avoid placing himself in a position where he will be regarded as a czar he should select a steering committee of from ten to fifteen of the most prominent members of his party, who would pass upon the bills to come before the house. In this manner the responsibility would be shifted from the speaker to the steering committee, and any complaints of unfair treatment would lie against the steering committee instead of against the speaker. At the same time he could be sure his wishes would be respected, for he would have the appointing of the steering committee and would, of course, retain all of his other proper functions as speaker."

When Wu Ting Fang left the United States it was thought that the Chinese government had sacrificed one of its ablest diplomats upon the altar of rotation in office. China has long been looked upon as the ideal nation in the matter of the merit system in the civil service. Mr. Wu was the most successful diplomat ever sent to the United States by an Oriental nation, and one of the reasons for his success was his knowledge of the English language and English idioms. This was demonstrated in 1898 when he was one of a party which visited the trans-Mississippi exposition. On the train going out to Omaha Mr. Wu happened to look over the hand of one of the party who was playing a small game—25-cent-limit poker. It was a jackpot, and the correspondent of a New York paper had passed with a pair of nines in his hand. "Mon Dieu," said Mr. Wu, "with that hand I would have opened the jackpot." "But," responded the correspondent, "that could not be done under the rules of the game." "But you could bluff," said Mr. Wu, thereby demonstrating that he knew something of the American game of poker as well as the game of diplomacy.

Mr. Wu's successor, Chentung Liang Cheng, promises to be even an abler diplomat than his predecessor. This Chinese gentleman has a wider knowledge of American affairs than it was possible for Mr. Wu to have acquired. He was a student of Yale and knows the English language as well as he knows the Chinese. He is a man of imposing presence, with a keen and incisive insight into European and American politics, who has undoubtedly been sent here because of his ability to acquire an inside view of modern affairs, and he is prepared to hold up the interests of China against the world. The importance of that change in the diplomatic representation of the Flowery Kingdom in the United States lies in the fact that within the next year one of the most important treaties ever negotiated between the two countries will be forthcoming. The new minister will make the most of every opportunity to "make himself solid" with the people who shape public opinion in this country. He knows exactly what is before him, and he is doing everything in his power to convince those with whom he comes in contact that the time is ripe for concessions by the United States to China. His mission here promises to be of the utmost commercial importance to this country because of the effect upon the Oriental trade of the United States. Mr. Chentung Liang Cheng is a Chinese diplomat of the new school, who has had instilled into him the twentieth century ideas which promise to build up in the Orient a new order of affairs. He himself knows what American institutions are, and he will undoubtedly use all his powers and influence with the existing dynasty in China to bring about still closer relations with the great republic of the Western hemisphere.

Paine's Celery Compound

Says: "There Is Nothing Else Which So Well Restores Vitality to the System."

"Worn and sick in body and mind" is the unfortunate condition of a vast army of our American people, young and old, in the spring time. The strenuous life of business, professional and literary men and women—their worries, cares and anxieties, all contribute to weakness and physical ailments that manifest themselves to an alarming extent as spring advances. Tired and deathly feelings in the morning, sluggish and poisoned blood, defective digestion, constipation, kidneys and liver unable to perform their functions—all tend to make life a heavy burden. Men and women should commence this very day to exercise the God-given quality of common sense and use Paine's Celery Compound, the one and only reliable spring health builder. Mr. W. H. Peedan, business manager of the Globe-Gazette, Mason City, Iowa, says

"I feel impelled by a deep sense of gratitude to express how much I have been benefited by Paine's Celery Compound: it has made me a new person. There is nothing else which so restores vitality to the system."

The Hon. Edward McKenny, Jefferson City, Mo., says: "Paine's Celery Compound is the great national remedy. I can cheerfully recommend it."

Mrs. M. McGillivray, of 1228 Superior street, says: "I was troubled with my kidneys a good deal for a year or two and had heavy, dull pains through my loins. My back tired easily, especially if I reclined or sat long in one position. In the morning I felt tired and worn out. The kidney secretions were unnatural and I was troubled with persistent headaches. I was advised to try Doan's Kidney Pills, procured a box from the Duluth Drug company's store and began to use the preparation. I received wonderful benefit from the treatment, and since taking Doan's Kidney Pills I have felt splendid."

Miner at Quincy Mine Has His Back Broken.

Houghton, Mich., April 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—J. Deplipp, a miner at the Quincy mine, had his back broken by a fall of rock. He was taken to the hospital at Hancock, where it is said he probably will recover.

Manistique—John Gonyea, aged 65, is in jail pending an investigation of the death of Elmer Lundvall, 7 years old. The boy's companions say they had been throwing tin cans at Gonyea's house and that as they were running away Gonyea fired at them. A bullet hit Lundvall in the temple.

Marquette—One million lake trout fry were planted in the lake in the vicinity of Marquette by Cap. Johnson of the United States fish commission.

Escanaba—Escanaba promises to be the banner union town of the upper peninsula. Nearly all lines of labor are now organized, and the other branches are fast falling into line. Recent additions to the roll were the printers and the electrical workers.

The Escanaba Elks are figuring on having a home of their own and propose to spend about $10,000. A committee is looking over prospective sites for the hall or club house and arranging other details of the proposition. Aside from a large lodge room, it is the plan that the building shall possess a gymnasium, billiard and pool rooms, parlors and other quarters. The lodge has on hand about $3000 of available cash and expects to raise the balance by selling bonds to be taken by the members themselves.

Munising—Mrs. Owen Reilly, living near Munising, believes there is money in raising fruit in the upper peninsula, and she will put the idea to a practical test. This spring she will set out 600 apple trees and in the fall will plant 400 more. Mrs. Reilly is the woman who gained distinction last fall by taking and completing a road contract, clearing up a neat sum on the deal.

Crystal Falls—A flour mill is in sight for Crystal Falls. Senator Moriarty, who recently contracted for the surplus electrical power from the city's new power plant, is said to be in negotiation with parties desirous of obtaining the power for grist mill purposes, and will probably close the deal unless the Illinois Mining company clinches a proposition it made for the power some time ago.

Madrid, April 14.—Advices received here from Fez, Morocco, say the rebel Kabyle tribesmen have left Tasza to attack Fez.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Sioux Falls—Severine Anderson of Rowena was the victim of what is believed to be a sensational suiside here Monday afternoon, being instantly killed by an incoming Rock Island train at the Great Northern crossing, with the city limits. The engineer and members of the train crew saw him near the track at the crossing before the train reached it. When the train struck the crossing Anderson appeared to throw himself deliberately under it. His right foot was cut off and his body was dragged under the train and his life crushed out. In his pockets two twenty dollar bills were found.

Brookings—Emery Mason, formerly a resident of Sac City, Iowa, recently bought John Farrand's barber shop in this city. He did not pay for the shop and when pressed to do so undertook to transfer it to another. Being checked by Farrand, Mason delivered the keys to the sheriff, who turned them over to the owner. Mason then went to Skinner's department store and secured a suit of clothes under the pretext of wanting to try them on at his room. He has not been seen since.

Miller—A man named Spears, who spent the winter here with his 14-year-old daughter, was surprised to have his wife, from whom he was divorced eight years ago, come and take the girl back to Milwaukee with her. He vows to regain his daughter.

Deadwood—David Horn, who was shot by Thomas Hawkyard at Garden City, will recover. The ball of a 38-calibef pistol passed through the lower part of the right lung. Hawkyard is in the Deadwood jail.

Britton—Job Voak, one of the early pioneers of Marshall county, was found dead in bed and is supposed to have had an apoplectic stroke.

Fairfax—Bohemians of this part of the county will gather at this place on the 21st for the purpose of organizing a lodge.

Canton—A noted civil action which has cumbered the docket of the district court for about ten years has been settled. The case involved the ownership of a valuable quarter section in Norway township. The land was taken as a homestead in the seventies by John K. Moen, who died some time afterwards, and the title passed to his brother, John J., who claimed to be the only heir. About a year after there came from Norway a young woman, Johanna Bertena Johnsdotter Moen, who asserted she was the illegitimate daughter of John K. Moen.

After many fruitless efforts to settle the matter, it was finally taken into court where a verdict was returned in favor of John J. Moen. The case was taken to the supreme court, however, and that body reversed the decision of the lower court, deciding that the plaintiff was entitled to the land. And now, to avoid further litigation, the principals have recently perfected a permanent settlement, whereby Johanna Bertena Johnsdotter Moen, who is now Mrs. A. Tvedt, becomes the undisputed owner of the land.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Fargo—Ever since the prohibition law went into effect in this state it has been the custom of the Moorhead saloon men to operate "jag wagons" between that city and Fargo. The rigs were used to transport the thirsty across the Red river, where liquor was in abundance. In addition to that, the "jag wagons" also delivered telephone orders on this side for bottles of the stuff and collected on delivery.

The authorities never disturbed the traffic till recently, when an announcement was made from the office of the state's attorney that the practice would be prohibited. There is to be no interference with the delivery of packages, but the payment cannot be made at the time. The money must either be sent in advance or the goods delivered on credit.

Moorhead saloon men were notified of the order, but some have violated it and three arrests have been made. The cases have not come up for hearing and the saloon men will make a big fight on the ground that the order interferes with interstate commerce.

CHICAGO WOMAN

Has Disappeared and Foul Play Is Suspected.

Chicago, April 14.—Mrs. Ellen Harkins has been missing from her home, 347 Milwaukee avenue, for two weeks, and the police have been asked to locate her. According to her husband, who is a shipping clerk for the American Leather company and who yesterday advised the police of the West Chicago avenue station of the woman's disappearance, says she left home early one morning. She met a neighbor as she was leaving the house, and told her she was going to a near-by grocery store. She has not since then been seen in the neighoorhood, and the husband thinks she may have met with foul play. The husband also says he knows of no reason why she should leave home. His first intimation of her absence was when he returned from his work at night and found his children lying on the floor, crying and hungry. She is 31 years of age.

Local Dredging Concerns Belittle the Chicago Story.

One Duluth Company Denies Membership In the Association.

So far as can be learned, the local dredging concerns are worrying very little over the report from Chicago that the strike of the Chicago dredgemen is likely to spread all over the lakes.

A dispatch from Chicago last evening stated that the strike which was declared by some 600 dredgemen at that port yesterday had brought out the fact that all the great lakes dredging firms are banded together in the Great Lakes Dredge and Dock Companies' Protective association, and that in anticipation of serious trouble the members of the executive committee of the contractors' association have hastened to Duluth, Buffalo and other points to hold conferences.

William Clifford, secretary of the Duluth Dredge and Dock company, which was mentioned with the Lake Superior Contracting and Dredging company as belonging to the protective association, when asked this noon relative to the report, said:

"The statement made that all the dredging concerns on the lakes are connected with the protective association is a misleading one. The list given embraces practically all such concerns doing business on the great lakes, but the Duluth Dredge and Dock company is not connected with it. I believe there are a number of the other concerns mentioned in the list which are not in the association.

"We are not anticipating any trouble among the dredgemen at this port even if they have differences at Buffalo. There is no organized union of dredgemen at the head of the lakes. An attempt was made here last fall to form such an organization, but it failed, and the very few men that did wish to organize joined the Chicago and Buffalo unions.

"I do not know that the Duluth Dredge and Dock company has any union dredgemen in its employ.

"The dredging season at the head of the lakes will open some time between April 15 and 20. One of the local dredges will probably be taken out the latter part of this week."

At the office of the Lake Superior Dredging and Contracting company this noon, it was said that no trouble is expected here. It was asserted that the union of dredge workers was not strong in Duluth, nor among its men, and that it was highly improbable that the trouble in Chicago would reach this part of the lakes.

CORRIVEAU'S CASE.

Lake County's Attorney Returns From St. Paul.

County Attorney M. O. Aubolee, of Two Harbors, returned from St. Paul this morning, where he made an argument before the board of pardons, advocating the carrying out of the sentence of death imposed on Louis Corriveau.

"The members of the board gave no indication of how they felt in regard to the petition for commuting the sentence, and it is not my business to draw conclusions," said Mr. Aubolee at the St. Louis hotel this noon.

"I am not interested in the case at all, aside from my official position. I have no personal feeling in the matter, whatever, but have insisted that the findings and conclusions of the court be carried out.

"It may be a week or more, or the decision of the board may be announced in a day or two. I am inclined to believe it will be several days, though."

RULINGS MADE

Judge Dibell Files Findings In Two Law Suits.

Falconer Suit Against Leland and Sherwood Is Decided.

Two decisions were filed by Judge Dibell today.

In the action of Ebenezer Falconer against Charles F. Leland and Amelia Sherwood, the plaintiff is declared to be entitled to a judgment of $298.58 against the defendant Leland, and the defendant Sherwood, a judgment against the plaintiff Falconer, without prejudice, however, to any right that the plaintiff may have to recover of the defendant for any item of account improperly included in the total sum of $1915.54, which was paid to the defendant Sherwood out of the proceeds of the sale of certain lands.

The case was heard during the present term of district court. The complaint alleged that in 1901 certain lands in section 31 and 32, 68-21, and in section 9, 67-21 were conveyed by the plaintiff and A. Sherwood to C. F. Leland, to hold in trust and to sell within a year, with the consent of the owners, according to his best judgment, the defendant Sherwood to be reimbursed out of the proceeds for money advanced in acquiring title, and Leland to deduct a reasonable commission and the balance to be divided equally between the plaintiff and Amelia Sherwood. The plaintiff is also alleged to have conveyed to Leland an undivided half interest in lands in section 9, 67-21, which he was to sell and after deducting the costs pay Amelia Sherwood $26.50, and the balance of the proceeds to the plaintiff.

The complaint said Amelia Sherwood executed a warranty deed running to a blank grantee and deposited it with the defendant Leland to sell the lands described, he to pay the necessary expenses and retain a reasonable fee out of the proceeds, pay Amelia Sherwood $1100 and the balance to plaintiff, Falconer.

It was alleged that Leland sold certain of the described lands to P. H. Martin, receiving $9125, of which a large balance was due plaintiff, who had no means of knowing the exact amount, as Leland refused to make an accounting. The plaintiff claimed that he never authorized or ratified the sale, and that the lands sold were easily worth $18,000. He claimed Leland and the defendant Sherwood were in collusion to sell the lands, and asked judgment that the defendant Leland be required to render an account of the premises and be charged with the reasonable value of the lands and timber alleged to have been sold by him.

The second decision was an order denying the plaintiff's motion for a new trial in the case of Thomas Kileen against Andrew E. Kennedy and Agnes E. Kennedy. The action was brought by the plaintiff in the general March term of court. In the bill of complaint it was alleged that in August, 1902, the defendant gave E. W. McClure an option to purchase within fifteen days, for $4500, the pine, spruce and other timber on lands in sections 32-58-12 and 26-28-12; that by instrument McClure assigned the option to the plaintiff, notifying the defendants that he had made the assignment and with their consent. The plaintiff alleged that at the expiration of the option he notified the defendants that he was ready to buy the timber, but a warranty deed according to the contract, was refused him. Judgment was asked that defendants execute and deliver a deed to plaintiff.

Judgment was rendered by Judge Dibell in favor of the defendants, and the plaintiff made the motion for the new trial, which the court has denied.

In his memorandum, Judge Dibell says that the option was given for the purchase of the timber at the stated price, with a right to remove it in ten years; that McClure's telegram to Kennedy, stating that he could get the money, and instructing the papers to be made out to Kileen, must be relied on by the plaintiff as an acceptance by McClure, and should be so construed.

The telegram, said the court, substitutes twenty years for the removal of the timber, and the minds of the parties never met on exact terms of a purchase and a sale. To constitute an enforcible contract it must appear from the correspondence that both parties acceded to the same terms of sale, but in this case the parties were continually in controversy as to whether the period of cutting was ten or twenty years.

The court said Kennedey never distinctly agreed, even verbally, to convey to the plaintiff with a right for removal of timber within either period; that the oral testimony offered by the plaintiff, and probably erroneously received, was, in fact, referable to a sale to Kileen under terms of a letter in which Kennedy offered McClure as much as he could ge for the lands in excess of $4500, and a commission of 5 per cent if he could only get $4500.

The court claimed all the talks between the parties, and the telegram, implied that McClure was acting as a broker.

THE HAT AND THE NOSE.

Women afflicted with flat or upturned noses in otherwise perfect physiognomies need not seek the aid of scientific beautifiers to correct the mistakes of nature. All they really have to do is to wear the proper sort of a hat, says the Chicago Tribune.

This is the belief of Mme. Ida Hunt, who addressed the opening session of the convention of the National Milliners' association in room 1201 Masonic temple. Scores of women milliners from the Middle West are in Chicago to attend the meeting.

The prescription of Mme. Hunt for crooked, pug and equiline noses is not of the "kill or cure" type; it is accompanied by none of the dangers confronting the surgeon's knife or the electric needle and yet Mme. Hunt declares it is a most effective remedy. Here it is:

"Women with flat or pug noses and a medium round face should wear a large, round hat, short in the back and uniform in proportion in the front and side. It should be tilted well forward, so as to cast a shadow over the shortcomings of the pug nose.

"Women with pronounced Roman noses are hard to fit in headgear. They should never wear a hat back from the face, but neither should it project too far over the face, as this will make the nose too prominent.

"Women with Grecian or slightly upturned noses may wear 'jaunty' effects. This may be done by those who have even passed the ages of girlhood. They may properly and becomingly wear any extreme style. The hats may be worn well over the face, and the bands should be well raised from side and side front.

POLICE PATROL IN COMMISSION

Non-Union Firemen Will Be Protected at Buffalo.

Buffalo, April 14.—In view of the recent tactics of striking marine firemen in boarding vessels from small boats before they dock, and the alleged intimidation of non-union men resulting therefrom, the police patrol boat Governor Morton was hurried into commission today. It will be the work of the boat and its crew to meet all incoming boats and protect the crews. Several non-union firemen were set upon and beaten early today.

President Livingstone of the Lake Carriers' association arrived today. He is quoted as saying: "Any meetings that may be held today will depend entirely upon circumstances. If the men come to us with any tangible point to discuss I will call a meeting. Until there is some new point to be taken up I cannot quite see the advisability of a conference."

WIND WAS TOO STRONG

For the Run Originally Planned For the Shamrocks.

Weymouth, Eng., April 14.—A race of sixteen miles to leeward from off Weymouth and a beat back was laid out for the Shamrocks today. When the boats got alongside the shelter of the breakwater the wind came in hard from the east and the yachts seemed to have all they could stagger under, and required an occasional luff up to ease them. The strain found a weak spot in the Shamrock III's peak halyard gear. A man was sent aloft, and on his report the yacht fetched into sheltered water and anchored. All her sail was then dropped on the deck. The Shamrock I also anchored and dropped her head sails.

The wind subsequently softened and the boats were sent off on a trial spin to leeward and return. There was no formal start. The Shamrock I led by a length, but the new boat in a few minutes closed the gap and ran clear ahead. The timings after a ten mile run were as follows: Shamrock III, 2:24:03; Shamrock I, 2:26:23. The times at the finish were: Shamrock III, 3:33:39; Shamrock I, 3:39:42.

SHEDS ARE FILLED NOW

Railroads Refuse Flour From Minneapolis Millers For Time Being.

The Northern Pacific and Milwaukee roads have served notice on the Minneapolis millers that they will refuse to accept shipments, rail and water, via Duluth for the East.

The reason given is that the warehouses in Duluth are piled full of flour and if any more is sent here it will have to wait shipment on the boats in the cars, and cars are too valuable to the railroads to let them stand around waiting for navigation to get a good start.

The order will remain in force until the freight boats get to running sufficiently frequent to clean out some of the warehouse room.

UNABLE TO AGREE.

Third Trial of Alleged Murderer Is Ended.

Winfield, Kans., April 14.—The jury in the case of O. W. Coffell, on trial a third time for the murder of George C. Montgomery, a Santa Fe railroad detective, who was assassinated at his home here in October, 1902, reported no verdict today and was discharged. Montgomery had made enemies while working on a case in connection with the famous "101" ranch in Southern Kansas and the prosecution endeavored to prove that Coffell committed the crime at the instigation of others.

WHEAT IS STRONG

Market Holds In Narrow Range Early and Then Bulges.

Flax Trading Fairly Active and Market Advances a Cent.

Duluth Board of Trade, April 14.—The wheat market was rather slow as compared with yesterday, but closed considerably stronger. Armour was fairly active in the Chicago market and mystified the graders somewhat, but was believed to have added to his lines rather than decreasing them. There was some export business that helped the market and the French cables were strong. The weather in the winter wheat country was not as favorable as desired, there being sharp frosts in some sections. Bradstreet reported a decrease of 2,841,000 bus in the world's visible which was rather larger than expected. Chicago contract stocks are reduced to 2,817,000 bus. The European visible supply of wheat last week increased 900,000 bus against an increase of 100,000 bus last year. The Liverpool market closed unchanged to 3/8d lower and Antwerp 3/8c higher.

Primary receipts of wheat were 304,020 bus, against 280,952 bus last year. Shipments 356,455 bus, last year 367,198 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 822,000 bus.

Receipts of wheat at Duluth and Minneapolis 71 cars, and at Chicago 27, a total of 108 cars, against 115 last week and 134 last year.

Corn in the Liverpool market closed unchanged to 1/8d higher. In Chicago May corn gained 1/2c and May also were strong advancing 3/4c. Primary receipts of corn were 325,360 bus, last year 175,987 bus. Shipments 628,072 bus, last year 254,510 bus. Clearances were 146,000 bus. Bradstreet reported a decrease of 2,184,000 bus in the world's visible supply.

Trading in wheat was quiet in the Duluth board. May opened 1/4c up at 75 1/4c, sold at 75 3/8c at 9:42, reacted to 75 1/4c at 10:30 and for more than an hour after that held steady. About half an hour before the close it began to move upward and rose to 75 3/4c at which point it closed. This was an advance of 3/4c. Chicago advanced 1-1/4c and Minneapolis 1/2-3/4c.

Cash sales were 10,000 bus and prices were: Unchanged at 1/4c over May for No. 1 northern and 1 1/4c under for No. 2.

Flax was fairly active and stronger. May sold up 1c to $1.11 and closed there. July advanced 3/4c and September was still stronger closing 1 1/4c up.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat to arrive, No. 1 hard, 78c; No. 1 northern, 76c; No. 2 northern, 74 1/4c; May, No. 1 hard, 77 3/8c; No. 1 northern, 75 3/4c; July, 75 1/4c. Flax, cash, $1.10; to arrive, $1.11; on track, $1.11; May, $1.11; July, $1.12 1/2; September, $1.14; October, $1.14; November, $1.11 1/2. Oats, on track, 32c; to arrive, 32@32 1/2c. Rye, to arrive, 49c; on track, 49c; May, 49 1/2c. Barley, 35@51c.

Cars inspected—Last, 1 hist year, 15; oats, 5; rye, 2; barley, 1; flax, 29.

Receipts—Wheat, 22,154; barley, 3809; flax, 37,493.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Anxiety of Wheat Shorts Caused Good Demand.

Chicago, April 14.—Unfavorable weather, firm Paris cables and decreasing stocks caused considerable anxiety to shorts in the wheat pit at the start today and there was a good demand from that source for both the May and July deliveries. Under these influences opening prices were strong. May being 1 3/8@1 1/2c higher at 75 3/8c to 75 3/4c and July 1 1/8@1 3/8c higher at 70 1/2@70 3/4c. May advancing later to 76 1/8c and July to 70 3/8c. The feature in trading was the lack of offerings and the absence of any evidence of action on the part of the leader of the longs. Minneapolis and Duluth reported receipts of 71 cars, which with local receipts of 37 cars, none of contract grade made total receipts for the three points of 108 cars, against 115 last week and 134 a year ago.

The feature in trading was the selling of July by the Armour interest, it being reported that anywhere from one to two million bushels were disposed of during the day. The local crowd was in the dark, however, as to the exact position of this concern, as it was supposed that buying by commission houses was for that account. Toward the end of the day the market became strong and the close was near the top, May being 1 1/8c higher at 76 1/2@76 3/8c, after selling at 76 3/4c, and July was 3/8c higher at 71c, after touching 71c@71 1/8c.

Corn opened firm on unfavorable weather for planting of the new crop, together with an improvement in the shipping demand and on firm cables. May was up 1/8@1/4c at 43 3/4@43 7/8c and with a good demand for both the nearby deliveries with light offerings. May soon advanced to 44c, but reacted later to 43 3/8c. Reports from the seaboard of the poor condition of corn arriving there was also a strengthening factor. Local receipts were 122 cars, none of contract.

Corn was strong the entire session, May closing 1/2c higher at 43 7/8c.

The strength in other grains caused firmness in oats at the opening and May was 1/4@3/8c higher at 32 3/4@32 7/8c and with a fair commission house demand due to the unfavorable weather the price quickly advanced to 33 1/4c, but sold off again to 32 3/4c. Local receipts were 145 cars.

Provisions were firm on a light run of hogs and better prices at the yards, together with a good demand for pork and ribs. May pork was especially strong and opened with an advance of 25c, at $17.57 1/2. May lard was 2 1/2c higher at $9.92 1/2, and ribs were a shade higher at $9.90. There was some liquidation in pork and prices eased off somewhat, but other products remained about steady.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: One circumstance which makes wheat traders incredulous of any intention on the part of Armour to run a deal in July wheat is the fact that the Texas crop bids fair to be the largest on record. It will be harvested early and must be marketed early, as there are no facilities for storing wheat in that state. Unless export demand is prodigeous a good part of 25,000,000 bushels and more of red winter wheat would be attracted here by any unnaturally high premiums. A great deal of Texas wheat was brought here by Richardson two years ago when there was no such incentive and most of it graded contract. It is claimed new Texas wheat will be clearing from Galveston in May on prospect of an early harvest. A Dallas grain firm wrote a local correspondent: "Conditions of growing wheat crop remain about perfect and unless some disaster happens, Texas will harvest a bumper crop of wheat. Am advised that considerable of wheat is now in boat and that harvest will begin in some places by middle of May. If this is correct, do not doubt it, Texas will begin to handle new wheat first days of June."

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—The market here was extremely dull during most of the day, but closed strong. Armour was selling early and buying later, but undoubtedly added to his line by the day's trading. Much of the larger percentage of his purchase is in July. Traders are getting cautious. Pretty fair export business was reported at the close. The small stocks of wheat at the seaboard also considered a rather bullish factor. It is difficult to have a very satisfactory opinion on a manipulated market, but inasmuch as Armour has a line of wheat which he cannot sell under present conditions, we are inclined to think the safer way is to buy the July wheat on soft spots. Estimated cars, 10.

Corn—Market here was strong. A little better cash situation was an influenced and continued cold wet weather also. A good deal of the buying was covering of shorts, particularly in the May. Estimated cars, 50.

Oats—Market was firm. Strength in oats was on continued cold wet weather, together with the Illinois state report which says some of the acreage intended for oats will be re-planted in corn, owing to the wetness of the ground, were the chief causes. There were no large features to the operations and a good deal of the buying was covering of shorts. We still think that unless something more unfavorable appears in respect of the new crop July oats should be sold on rallies. Estimated cars, 50.

REMARKS.

Copious rains fell over all except the Minneapolis, Omaha and Kansas City districts, where the showers were light and scattered. It is cooler over the Ohio valley, southern states, South Dakota, Nebraska, Kansas and Missouri, with killing frosts in central Kansas. Cool temperatures continued over Minnesota and the Dakotas.

CROP CONDITIONS.

Winter Wheat Outlook Most Promising For Years.

Washington, April 14.—The Weather Bureau today issued the following weekly summary of crop conditions:

In the districts east of the Rockies during the week ending April 13 the temperature has been highly favorable for growth of vegetation, but farm work was very generally retarded by rains in the lake regions, central valleys and Atlantic coast districts, while complaints of lack of moisture are received from portions of the central and west gulf states. In the central and northern Rockies districts and on the north Pacific coast, the season is very backward. Washington and Oregon have suffered from cold, wet weather. In California the conditions have been generally favorable with the exception of some damage by frost.

The condition of winter wheat is generally excellent and it has made splendid progress since the first of the month; in the upper Ohio Valley; however, the freeze of the fourth and fifth caused some injury.

On the whole the condition of the crop for the winter wheat belt east of the Rockies, is more promising than for years.

Spring wheat seeding is nearly completed in Iowa and Nebraska, and is progressing well in South Dakota, none as yet has been sown in North Dakota and northern Minnesota but in southern Minnesota some has been sown on rolling lands.

FIRMER IN STOCKS

Prices Bid Up Determinedly as Often as They Fell.

Recovery of Northern Securities Had a Good Effect.

New York, April 14.—The stock market was feverish and unsettled again this morning as an after effect of yesterday's severe shaking down. Influential support, however, was accorded at the start today and the heavy offerings of stock went absorbed and prices bid up determinedly as often as they fell. This had the effect of restoring confidence and checking the flood of liquidation. The market was much steadier in the second hour when prices for leading active stocks such as Pennsylvania, New York Central, Baltimore & Ohio, Reading, St. Paul and Union Pacific were a point or more over last night. Northern Securities on the curb opened at 97, compared with yesterday's last price of 95 1/8, advanced to 97 3/4 and then relapsed to 95 1/4 on light sales.

A recovery of Northern Securities on the curb to above the opening level helped to reassure sentiment on the stock exchange and the market became quiet and dull, but decidedly firm. The level of prices for the majority of active stocks ruled between 1 and 2 points above last night. The bear party was inclined to cover and caused a hardening tendency on the market, but the volume of dealings were much diminished on the advance and buyers were not disposed to follow prices upward with any eagerness.

New York, April 14.—Reports by cable that the higher prices for Americans in London had attracted selling for New York account caused hesitation in the opening dealings here. Trading was active and in large blocks, with the majority of stocks showing fractional gains, which were partly yielded on secondary quotations. A number of important stocks showed initial losses. The opening gains reached about a point in Baltimore & Ohio, Kansas & Texas preferred, Texas Pacific and Manhattan. Rock Island, Norfolk & Western and United States Steel stocks were again the weak features.

The contest for control of the market by the bull and bear factions waged fiercely for the first half hour with prices moving violently upwards and downwards. Some leading stocks sold below yesterday's level, notably Missouri Pacific, Wabash preferred, Texas Pacific, St. Louis & San Francisco and Illinois Central. Opening advances were all wiped out. Supporting orders met every break, but enormous offerings had to be absorbed. By 10:30 the market was on the mend and at 11 o'clock advances of a point over last night had been established in Pennsylvania, Baltimore & Ohio, New York Central, Reading, Union Pacific, Northwestern, St. Louis & San Francisco and Amalgamated. Missouri Pacific recovered its loss. Lackawanna rose 5 and relapsed 2. New York, Chicago & St. Louis second preferred dropped 7, Des Moines & Fort Dodge 4 1/2 and Pittsburg, C. C. & St. Louis 3 1/4. On the curb Northern Securities opened at 97 a recovery of 2 1/4 from last night, advanced to 98 3/4 and then relapsed to 96 1/4.

The determined support of the market put a stop to the wholesale liquidation. The buying diminished at the higher level, but the hardening tendency continued. During the second hour gains had reached 1 to 1 1/2 for St. Paul, Atchison, St. Louis Southwestern preferred, Denver & Rio Grande preferred, Delaware & Hudson, Erie first preferred, Sugar, Leather, General Electric, Consolidated Gas, North American and American Car. St. Louis & San Francisco rose 2 1/4 over last night. Bonds were irregular.

Buying proceeded with more confidence during the noon hour and a number of representative stocks increased their gains decidedly. The earlier unsettled feeling gave way to a more cheerful view as the rally met no later effective opposition. Room shorts reduced their lines.

The market fell into dullness and then sold off a good fraction when the demand showed signs of exhaustion. Stocks soon met support from all quarters and prices were rushed up again. Sugar, Copper, Manhattan, United States Steel preferred and some of the eastern trunk lines sold to the highest of the day. Hocking Valley preferred advanced 3 3/4, with a recession of 2 1/4 and Des Moines and Fort Dodge rallied 2. Smelting preferred gained 1 1/4.

Prices were well-sustained during the latter part of the day. The average level was lifted further except in a few inactive stocks. Southern Pacific, Missouri Pacific and Norfolk & Western, the Rock Island stocks, Chicago Great Western, Erie, Kansas City Southern, Union Pacific, United States Steel preferred, and Lead attained a level a point or more above last night. Union Pacific, Soo preferred, Canadian Pacific, Reading, Smelting, Manhattan and Copper 2 or more above, and Northwestern and Consolidated Gas 3 1/4. United Railway Investment lost 1, the preferred 6. Pacific Mail 1, Minneapolis & St. Louis 1 1/2 and Buffalo, Rochester & Pittsburg 5. A rumor that the Northern Securities suit would be comprised, sent prices upward with a rush at the last, making the closing active and strong.

COPPER GOSSIP.

Boston to W. H. Laidley & Co.: On account of the heavy calls for margin over night there was a good deal of liquidation at the opening but buying was better than selling. Utah and U. S. M. were very strong and all the stock offered was well taken. The United Metal selling people advanced the price of their coppers to 15 1/4 cents. With metal at this price and coppers at present low prices we feel bullish and expect to see higher prices soon.

TREASURY BALANCES.

Washington, April 14.—Today's statement of the treasury balance in the general fund, exclusive of the $150,000,000 gold reserve in the division of redemption, shows: Available cash balance, $221,483,146; gold, $119,547,952; silver, $17,892,511; United States notes, $2,947,852; treasury notes of 1890, $80,819; national bank notes, $8,401,225; total receipts this day, $949,127; total receipts this month, $19,423,732; total receipts this year, $442,517,193; total expenditures this day, $1,240,000; total expenditures this month, $20,420,000; total expenditures this year, $400,684,177; deposits in national banks, $155,715,121.

LONDON STOCK EXCHANGE.

London, April 14.—Business on the stock exchange today opened with a strong decline in Americans, which, however, remained above parity. There was no excitement and only small transactions. Pending the arrival of the New York quotations the leaders took but little part in the market and there were plenty of buyers of such shares as were offered. The general market opinion here is that the Northern Securities decision will not seriously affect values. The leading argo American houses says London was not a large seller in yesterday's New York transactions.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, April 14.—The cotton market opened steady at a decline of 3 points to an advance of 1 point. Later May sold up from 10.57 to 10.60; July from 10.15 to 10.17; September from 8.83 to 8.85 and October from 8.54 to 8.57. The early improvement was strictly due to manipulation by the bull pool in order to secure a better selling basis and from the later figures the market broke 6 to 12 points on the old crop positions while the new crop months made a sympathetic decline of 2 to 3 points; these changes all occurring within the first hour. The market was due to active realizing by the bull pool following a great surprise in the way of English cables this morning. The Liverpool market having been closed since Thursday had an advance of 3 1/2 to 5 points only, instead of an advance of about 14 points on the near positions and 4 to 5 points on late months, necessary to match the advance which had occurred in the apparatus illustrated. This mechan-

AMUSEMENT CENTER.

Of the moving of the amusement center up to Fifty-ninth street there seems to be no manner of doubt, says the Brooklyn Eagle. Already there are several theaters up there doing a good business and far-sighted managers see in Fifty-ninth street the "Rialto" of twenty years hence. They admit that building on Long Acre square, as most of them are, they are building merely for the present, but they are not ready as yet to lead the procession, which will eventually line up at the lower end of Central Park. Twenty years hence property in the present theater district will be too valuable for business purposes for theaters to be able to hold it, and with the establishment of better rapid transit facilities the residence district will extend further and further Bronxward, and the center of evening acessibility for purposes of pleasure must follow it at a respectful distance. It is probably the moving of the Metropolitan Opera house that will mark the epoch of that final hegira.

HE SAW TOO MANY THINGS

An Addled Brain Gets Sixty Days For John Senholm.

With several moist mixtures murmuring through the corridors of his being, John Senholm began catching pink and green brook trout in his hat and without a license.

He defied the game laws and even violated the rules and regulations governing the conduct of one with the "delirum triangles." When officers informed him that the trout season did not open until tomorrow he would wink wisely and begin catching trout on the jail floor.

He would see a particularly big fellow swimming up one of the iron posts in the tier room, and he would make a flying leap for it, catching the fish in his hat with unerring judgment.

The fish were so plentiful that he killed many with his feet, and some of them were evidently flying about the jail like butterflies, judging from the way Senholm was chasing them.

Aside from remarking that it was the biggest day's fishing he ever enjoyed, Senholm was not very talkative. Once, just after landing a purple and green trout that weighed over fifteen pounds, he remarked that they were getting too big to catch with his hat and thought he would like to bait his hook with a stick of dynamite.

He figured that when the fish swallowed the dynamite there would be an explosion and the detonation would ruin the appetite of the trout and properly interfere with the action of their heart throbs.

So enthusiastic did Senholm become that he refused to give up fishing when arraigned in the municipal court and succeeded in landing several big ones right in the box of sorrows.

Judge Windom concluded the "bait" he had been using on this particular fishing expedition was too much for Senholm and sentenced him to the county jail for sixty days.

Arts and Crafts.

The Arts and Crafts exhibits grows more interesting with every addition. Within the last two days a number of interesting exhibits have been added. The mission furniture in its severe and rich style is shown by George C. Steele and French & Bassett, and an interesting corner is shown by the Silberstein & Bondy company, among which is some of the furniture of the United Crafts company. Thursday evening an exhibit of Mississippi and Wisconsin river pearls will be shown by F. D. Day & Co., and an explanatory talk will be given by C. H. Bagley, which will be interesting. This exhibit will be there for that one evening.

commission and a tax commissioner. The passage of the Smith bill is due, however, to the certainty that the senate will kill the Haugland bill.

The board of control bill, which was referred back to the committee on education, was reported out again this morning with a compromise amendment. It provides that the board of control shall have charge of the erection of new buildings, though it must co-operate with the local boards. As it stood before, it provided that the board of control should also have charge of maintenance and repairs of buildings, and it did not provide for any co-operation with the local boards.

The appropriations committee reported a substitute for the bill, providing for a tax of 1-5 mill for four years for the agricultural department of the university. The substitute authorizes the state auditor to levy a tax that will raise $250,000 in two years. The original bill would have raised $600,000 in four years. This bill was made a special order for Thursday after the omnibus appropriation bill.

The Armstrong bill, amending the McCarthy law so as to make it impossible for lumberjacks to file liens for labor except between April 5 and May 1 passed the house by a narrow margin this morning, getting 61 votes, while there were 33 against it.

The senate this morning reconsidered its vote defeating the anti-vaccination bill and adopted an amendment which practically puts things where they are now. The amendment adds a proviso that while vaccination shall not be compulsory and a necessary incident to school attendance, this shall not apply during epidemics of small-pox. The bill was placed on the calendar, and will be voted on this afternoon.

The senate put in most of the morning fighting over committee reports and did not reach either the calendar or general orders.

The house passed sixteen bills before it adjourned to this afternoon, among them being the following:

Relating to the publication of delinquent tax lists, providing for the temporary transfer of district court judges from one district to another, prohibiting the employment of special attorneys by state departments, giving a reward of $100 for the conviction of people abandoning infants, prohibiting the publication of indecent advertisements, requiring contractors to protect hoisting shafts in buildings under construction.

Both houses adjourned to this afternoon.

DEAL IS OFF.

Rock Island Will Not Purchase St. L. & S. F.

New York, April 14.—A leading interest in the Rock Island company announced today that the proposed purchase of the St. Louis & San Francisco road had been abandoned for the present. Negotiations have been dropped but may be resumed. This same authority declares that the failure of the plan has nothing to do with the recent decision in the Northern Securities case. It was simply a question of price and the parties concerned failed to come to terms.

Gossip in Wall street has it that those in control of the 'Frisco road asked more cash than the other side saw fit to give.

Officials of the 'Frisco road now in this city decline to discuss the matter at all.

JAIL BREAKERS CAPTURED.

MASHED A "MASHER."

She Used Her Umbrella on a Scoundrel.

Chicago, April 14.—In sight of scores of pedestrians in front of the Palmer house, State and Monroe street, last evening Miss Anna Hamilton, 257 Michigan avenue, administered a whipping to Joseph Reikoff, the Hungarian chef of the Press club, who, she says, insulted her.

After ignoring the persistent efforts of the man, the young woman finally turned on him, using her umbrella. A large crowd gathered and a cheer went up.

Policeman Crowley broke through the crowd and arrested Reikoff. He was locked up in the Harrison street police station.

Miss Hamilton is 25 years old. Early in the afternoon she donned her new Easter gown and hat and went to the South Side to spend the day with friends. At 9 o'clock in the evening she left a car at Clark and Monroe streets, walking east on the way to her home.

Reikoff, flashily dressed, was standing at State and Monroe streets, near the Palmer house.

"Good evening," he said, jauntily lifting has hat.

Miss Hamilton paid no attention. The man followed her and continued his advances.

"You are a very pretty girl and I'd like to know you. Come, now, let's go take dinner together."

This last remark was more than the young woman could endure. She turned on Reikoff fiercely, striking him again and again with her umbrella. The man cowed under her blows and attempted to escape, but the plucky girl followed him, and the crowd made retreat impossible. The arrest of Reikoff followed. Miss Hamilton says she will prosecute him in police court.

Many complaints have been made to Chief O'Neil of "mashers" at State and Monroe streets.

NO FUNDS

On Hand For the Fargo Public Building.

Washington, April 14.—Supervising Architect Taylor has discovered that there are no funds available for constructing the addition to the public building at Fargo, although congress authorized it in the omnibus public building bill passed near the close of the last session. The fault is at the door of the office of the treasury, who prepared an estimate of appropriations necessary to carry out this act, and not to any oversight on the part of the North Dakota delegation when they were pushing the bill through. Mr. Taylor will not delay work, however, but will go ahead and prepare plans and call for proposals, and the $80,000 will be provided in the deficiency bill at the next session.

HIS SKULL FRACTURED.

Great Falls, Mont., April 14.—Robert Dorcey, who came from Brooklyn, N. Y., to superintend the placing of steel work in the new court house, had his skull fractured in two places. A steel stairway beam was being hoisted into place when the false work collapsed. The beam fell and struck Dorcey on the head. Physicians entertain but little hope of his recovery.

MAKING NO TROUBLE

Striking Freight Handlers Quietly Watching Non-Union Men Work.

Contractors Claim to Have All the Men They Want.

Order prevails along the harbor front, and the first fear of trouble in the strike of the freight handlers seems to have been without cause.

The three hundred or more members of the union affected by this strike are quietly watching a gang of Austrians and Italians try to do their work, and apparently are getting lots of fun out of it.

An Italian not accustomed to trucking on the docks was unable to manage a load and truck and all went off the dock and into twenty-two feet of water, nearly taking the strike breaker with it.

Another of the crew fell down a hatchway and was injured some, but not seriously. Not one of the crew can understand English but despite that the strikers seem to have a way of communicating their opinions to the men working in a way that the authorities fear may ultimately cause trouble.

All night and all day special police officers guarded the docks, particularly those docks where the non-union foreigners were unloading iron and cement from the steamer Wyoming.

The strikers have issued hand bills published in all languages warning men to stay away from the docks. This morning an excited man fairly broke his way into police headquarters, saying that the strikers just begun distributing literature that looked dangerous to him. He carried one of the hand bills, which read as follows:

"HALUTAAN!

Miehet pysymaan poissa Jauhotokilta. Alkaa ruvetko lakkopetturkeiski Rahdin kasittelijain Unio Paikallis—numero 64."

The police soaked this notice in water as they would a bomb and then had it interpreted. It simply means in Finnish that all persons are requested not to go to work handling package freight. Similar notices in English, Swedish, Polish and Italian have been sent out by the union.

"We are doing business and have all the men we want," said W. A. Eden this morning at No. 6 dock, where the Wyoming is being loaded with flour, after having discharged a cargo of cement last night. "We have another force of men at No. 5 dock at work, and all the men we need to carry on the work will be on hand when we need them. We are not going to stop work on account of the strike."

Pickets from the Freight Handlers' union were stationed throughout the railroad yards near the Northern Pacific docks at the East End of the bay, and they were stopping all the men who looked as if they were coming down to go to work.

Not a bit of trouble has occurred, and Mr. Eden said the strikers were "behaving like gentlemen." The special police are kept on duty, however.

The Northern Pacific company ran a short train of box cars in on the spur track reaching the docks this morning, and two of them were cook cars. The rest were hurriedly fitted up inside with rough pine boarding and will be turned into sleeping quarters by this evening.

The contractors do not propose to let the men be laid open to a chance of injury at the hands of the strikers or a chance of being talked out of holding the job. Thirty cents an hour is being paid.

Two "Artistic" and Beautiful Show Windows.

The Silberstein & Bondy company are displaying in their show windows pieces of fine furniture and artistic things that are attracting more than passing notice from admirers of lovely things for the home. Their right window contains beautiful pieces of mahogany furniture artistically arranged, a very fine Davenport table, chairs, writing desk, etc. The left window represents a library, and contains fine specimens of furniture made by the "united arts," for which the firm are the sole representatives in Duluth; a library table, chairs, old clock, bachelor's cabinet, screen, together with many beautiful and artistic Holland pictures, antique brass pieces and candlesticks, and a carved India brass lamp, help make a very artistic and beautiful window and one worth seeing.

TRANS-ATLANTIC LINERS.

Germany Expects to Hold Her Ocean Supremacy.

New York, April 14.—Germany is not likely to lose her trans-Atlantic record for some time to come, says the London representative of the Tribune. The contracts for the new Cunard liners have not yet been placed, and the new North German Lloyd steamer Kaiser Wilhelm II, which will leave Bremen today on her maiden trip across the Atlantic, will it is confidently expected, wrest from the Kron Prinz Wilhelm the honor of being the fastest trans-Atlantic liner afloat, and as she is over 706 feet long, she will be the longest. Some idea of the magnitude of the new steamer may be judged from the fact that she has eight decks and four sets of quadruple expansion engines, an aggregate of 40,000-horse power. There is accommodation for 775 first-class, 340 second-class and 750 steerage passengers, and the crew will number over 600.

LIND AND OTHERS

Looking Up Land For a Scandinavian Colony.

Miles City, Mont., April 14.—Congressman John Lind and C. J. Swanson, of Minnesota, and M. L. Fox, of Aberdeen, S. D., started yesterday from Miles City to work their way down the Yellowstone river on the north side to look up land favorable for the location of a colony of Scandinavian immigrants. Room is wanted for about 3000 settlers.

BELATED EXPLOSION

Caused Death to Two and Injury to Others.

Pittsburg, April 14.—Two men were killed and two injured in a belated explosion of dynamite at the new Mount Washington tunnel of the Wabash road.

A blast had been prepared, but failed to explode and the men returned to learn the cause, when suddenly it went off with terrific force, hurling rocks in every direction. Two men were killed outright, their bodies being terribly mangled, two others were seriously but not fatally hurt and a number of others had narrow escapes. The men were Hungarians and as they were known by numbers their names could not be learned.

YOUNG CHASE ARRIVES.

Came Over on the Kron Prinz Wilhelm.

New York, April 14.—Moses Fowler Chase, the wealthy young man of Lafayette, Ind., who was recently found in a sanitarium near Paris, by Consul-General Gowdy, reached here today on the steamer Kron Prinz Wilhelm from Cherbourg. A tug met the steamer at quarantine and took Chase to Jersey City. The young man came over under an assumed name and was met by a number of friends, who were armed with a permit from the collector, and accompanied by customs officials to facilitate the landing of Chase. From Jersey City he took a train for the West. Chase, who was taken abroad by relatives without, it is alleged, the knowledge of his father, had been in a sanitarium four years when discovered by Mr. Gowdy. The Associated Press Paris correspondent on Sunday cabled that there was reason to believe that Chase was on his way to the United States, but Mr. Gowdy declined to discuss the matter.

FIRE AT NEW ORLEANS.

Considerable Property at the West End Destroyed.

New Orleans, April 14.—An early morning fire swept the east side of the West End, the summer recort on Lake Ponchartrain, destroying considerable property today. The blaze started in the Capitol hotel, which was destroyed along with a number of smaller business establishments and boat houses. A large number of sloops, catboats and yachts were at anchor in the pen when the fire started and many were burned before they could be saved. The loss is about $75,000.

GERMAN TOURIST ROBBED.

Thieves Snatch Wallet on 'Frisco Street Car.

San Francisco, April 14.—August Lange, a German tourist from the West Indies, is the victim of highwaymen, who robbed him on a street car in front of the Palace hotel, of which he was a guest. As he stood on the rear platform two men snatched his wallet, containing a letter of credit for £250 sterling currency amounting to $270, his railroad ticket to the East and other papers. The thieves jumped from the car and made their escape.

Uncle Reuben's Opinion.

"They may say what they please, but listen—hear me: I've taken all kinds of laxatives, purgatives and catharties, but when it comes to one that is easy and pleasant to take, mild and gentle in its action, and that makes one want an extra slice of bacon for breakfast, just give me Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets, and you may have all the laxative syrups, dyspepsia medicines and pills, little or big, there is in this country. Them Tablets surely do make you feel joyful." For sale by Boyce's Drug store.

American Medical Association New Orleans May 5.

May 1st to 4th the Northern Pacific railway will sell tickets, account above meeting, at one fare, $36.55, for the round trip, good returning ten days from date of sale, or by depositing ticket final return limit will be extended until May 30th. Tickets good either via Chicago or Kansas City. Four trains daily. For tickets and full information, call City office, 332 West Superior street, or Union depot.

Washington, April 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—The following patents have been issued: John M. Birtels, of Cass Lake, stirrup; Fred O. Starr, of Deer River.

LABORERS STRIKE.

Ironton, Ohio, April 14.—A strike of a of money. Forty-five unopened letters work on the Detroit Southern extension through this county today. The men refused to work for $1.50 a day.

AN ORGANIZER KILLED.

Keystone, W. Va., April 14.—George M. Reed, of Indianapolis, a national organizer of the United Mine Workers of America, was waylaid at Norfolk last night and in the encounter which followed his skull was crushed with a stone, causing probably fatal injuries. Reed was en route to a conference at Huntington when the assault occurred.

Gets Contract For Keeping the Post Lights.

Washington April 14.—(Special to The Herald.)—James Magee, of Duluth, Minn., was today awarded the contract for keeping the post lights in Superior and St. Louis bays, Wisconsin and Minnesota, during the fiscal year to the end June 30, 1904. The compensation is $1200. Magee some days ago was also awarded the contract to tend the buoys in those waters.

Say, Brown, you and Mrs. B. look as young as the day you were married—twenty years ago. That's a fact. Smith—We take Rocky Mountain Tea every spring. It's like a dip in the fountain of youth. S. F. Boyce.

COLLECTOR ARRESTED.

Detroit, April 14.—Andrew P. Ducqu, a night collector for the Detroit postoffice was held to the grand jury today under $1000 bail, having confessed the theft of a number of letters containing enclosures of money. Forty-five unopened letters were found in his possession.

A NEGRO HANGED.

Media, Pa., April 14.—Albert West, a negro, was hanged here today for the murder of Mart W. Allen, a policeman, of Chester, Pa. The drop fell at 10:15 a. m. The crime for which West paid the death penalty was committed in Chester Saturday, Feb. 1, 1902. The negro was quarreling with a colored woman, whom he threatened to shoot. Policeman Allen interfered and was shot and killed by West.

Dealers are especially invited to visit our establishment and inspect as complete a stock of high grade nuts as is shown in the Northwest.

SENATE AND HOUSE DIFFER

On the Tax Amendments to the Constitution.

Senate Kills Non-Partisan Judiciary Bill.

FROM A STAFF CORRESPONDENT

St. Paul, April 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The senate and house are at a deadlock over the tax amendments to the constitution. The senate yesterday afternoon passed the house bill relating to tax amendments, but in a very much modified form. The senate tax committee several weeks ago amended the bill so as to make it a practically new measure. The house bill provided an absolutely wide open set of provisions, while the senate substitute which The Herald published at the time, was much more restricted in its provisions, and barred the doors against radical experiments in matters of taxation. When the bill as amended came into the house this morning, the house refused to concur in the changes that had been made by the senate, and adopted a motion to appoint a committee to confer with a similar committee from the senate to see if it was possible to agree upon a compromise measure. Messrs. Stevenson, Wells and Armstrong were appointed members of this committee on the part of the house. The two branches are far apart at present upon this matter, and as the time is short in which to agree, it is possible that no tax amendments will be submitted next year. Still, a strong effort will be made to get together and it may be effectual.

The senate this morning killed Mr. Dowling's non-partisan judiciary bill on the report of the judiciary committee, which recommended it for indefinite postponement. Senator Gjertsen, of Minneapolis, moved as a substitute for the report of the committee that the bill be placed upon general orders, but this motion was voted down by a very decisive majority.

The bill permitting state banks to organize savings departments, which the house has passed, had a close shave in the senate this morning. The committee to which it was referred reported it for indefinite postponement, but the report was reversed and the bill placed on general orders by a vote of 27 to 22.

The bill by Senator Morgan, providing that congressmen and district court judges should be removed from the operation of the primary election law, was another bill that the senate disposed of this morning. The committee on elections reported it for indefinite postponement, and the senate accepted the report, an attempt to rescue it on the part of its author meeting with failure.

Senator E. E. Smith, of Minneapolis, introduced a bill providing that anybody that appears as an attorney who has not been admitted to the bar may be punished for contempt of court, as well as for a misdemeanor.

The house put in a very talkative session this morning, but managed to pass seven bills before the noon recess. An attempt to revive the bill providing for an immigration commision and a commissioner of immigration failed and the bill is finally killed. It was voted down the other day, and this morning Mr. Hugo, of Duluth, moved to reconsider the vote by which it was lost. This motion was defeated quite largely.

Frank Minnette, of Stearns county, wanted to have a committee appointed to investigate the cost of printing and supplies furnished to the house during the session, but the house laid the resolution to that effect on the table, on motion of W. A. Nolan, showing its confidence in Chief Clerk Schmahl, who has charge of this work.

The Armstrong bill amending the McCarthy law so that lumber jacks can only file log liens between April 5 and May 1 was reconsidered this morning and placed on general orders. It passed the house yesterday with only two votes to spare, and this morning Henry McColl, of St. Paul, moved to reconsider the vote by which it was passed. The motion was carried by a vote of 54 to 28, and from the temper of the house it seems very likely that the bill will be killed. McColl said that the bill was introduced in behalf of the lumbermen and that its passage yesterday was due to a persistent lobby in its behalf.

The house passed the Shepard bill to stop election grafting in cities over 50,000, also the Chimnock bill allowing cities over 50,000 to acquire land for park purposes. The Nelson bill taxing freight line companies was passed. This is the bill to replace the old law on the subject which the supreme court held unconstitutional because it imposed a flat, arbitrary rate. The new bill makes the rate the average rate of taxation throughout the state.

The Schroeder bill, authorizing county boards by a unanimous vote to transfer money from one county fund to another, was passed.

ONE BOARD OF CONTROL BILL WAS PASSED BY THE SENATE

Perley Bill Takes University and Normal Schools From the Direction of the Board—Items of the Appropriation For Duluth School.

FROM A STAFF CORRESPONDENT

St. Paul, April 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The house yesterday afternoon passed the board of control bill, introduced by George E. Perley, of Moorhead, the fourth bill of that nature acted upon by the house, and the first one passed by that body.

When the bill came up on general orders yesterday afternoon there was a fight over an amendment by J. A. Anderegg, of Le Sueur county, who tried to get the Faribault schools for defectives included in the bill along with the State university and the normal schols. His motion to that effect was voted down, after which the amendments by J. H. Burns, of Lanesboro, giving the board of control authority over the construction of new buildings for the educational institutions in co-operation with the local boards, was adopted.

The bill was then recommended to pass, though Mr. Anderegg moved to indefinitely postpone it because his amendment was voted down. When the committee rose, Mr. Burns asked unanimous consent to have the bill placed at the head of the calendar, where it could be acted upon speedily today. There was some opposition to this, so Mr. Burns moved that the rules be suspended and the bill given its second and third reading and placed upon its final passage. Greatly to the surprise of the few opponents of the bill, the motion carried, and the house proceeded at once to vote upon the bill. The result of the vote was that the bill got 79 votes and there were but 19 votes against it. A motion to reconsider the vote was made and lost, and that permits the bill to go at once to the senate to be acted upon there.

While some of the friends of the minor educational institutions that

BRAVE MEN OF KINCARDINE, ONT., PRESENTED WITH GOLD MEDALS

President Roosevelt Recognizes the Heroism of Hardy Canadians Who Nearly Lost Their Lives In Saving Crew of American Schooner Last Fall.

Chicago, April 15.—A dispatch to the Record-Herald from Kincardine, Ont., says: Before President Roosevelt left Washington for his Western trip, he took the first step in a kindly act of international courtesy which was completed here last night. Eight gold medals, given in recognition of their bravery in saving the lives of the crew of an American schooner, were presented in the name of the president by United States Consul Shirley F. Goderich to citizens of Kincardine.

On the night of Oct. 7 last, in a terrific gal , the schooner Ann Maria, bound from Cleveland to Milwaukee with coal, was wrecked off Kincardine. Citizens gathered on the lake shore, determined to attempt a rescue. Four men entered a small boat, and after great exertion took the crew aboard. Just as the boat started to return a wave filled the rowboat and its occupants were thrown into the water.

Then followed a long, hard struggle with the storm. William Ferguson, one of the rescuing party, and four of the schooner's crew were lost. Thomas, John and Walter McGraw, the remaining rescuers, succeeded in regaining the wrecked vessel, dragging two American sailors with them. Another boat was sent out, and rescuers and rescued were brought ashore. The eight principals in the rescue were given Humane society meadls, but not until recently was it known that President Roosevelt had given attention to their efforts.

NEW HEAD TAX CAUSING TROUBLE

San Francisco, April 15.—The new immigration law, imposing a head tax of $2 on all aliens coming into this country, is causing trouble for the local immigration bureau. The Oceanic Steamship company refuses point olank to pay the tax and Commissioner of Immigration North thereupon made a ruling that no alien passengers should be landed from a ship in this port until the tax has been first paid by the steamship company bringing such aliens. The steamship companies claim that the new law is in conflict with the regulation of the immigration bureau requiring the payment of a deposit on aliens, which they say is virtually paying the tax. A test case will probably be made.

NON-UNION FIREMEN FROM DULUTH TERRIBLY BEATEN BY CLEVELAND UNION MEN

George Smith and Walter Sigler Were Stabbed, Bruised and Then Thrown Into the Lake.

Fifty Striking Firemen, Armed With Knives and Clubs, Boarded Steamer On Arrival.

Cleveland, April 15.—Fifty striking union firemen, armed with knives and clubs, boarded the steamer Howard L. Shaw when she arrived in the harbor today from Duluth, and attacked and terribly pounded three non-union firemen employed on the vessel. A riot call was turned in, but when a patrol wagon loaded with officers arrived on the docks, the attacking party dispersed. The names of the injured men are:

ADOLPH PEARO, Gladstone, Mich.
GEORGE T. SMITH, Duluth.
WALTER SIGLER, Duluth.

Smith, after being stabbed and beaten almost into insensibility, was thrown into the river. He was rescued by sailors from the steamer. Pearo was cut in the side, in addition to receiving severe bruises. Sigler's nose was broken and his head badly cut. All the injured men were taken to a hospital.

Pearo's condition is serious. The police are looking for the men who made the attack and expect to apprehend some of them before the day closes.

HEAVY LOSS IN TEXAS OIL FIELDS

Fire on Spindle Top Burned Two Hundred and Sixty-Five Derricks, Causing Great Loss.

Beaumont, Tex., April 15.—A fire on Spindle Top, which started early today, did damage estimated at from $800,000 to $1,000,000. Two hundred and sixty-five derricks were lost. Two hundred rigs were on the producing wells. The fire started from a lantern at the Caldwell Oil company's well. The flywheel of the engine struck the lantern and ignited the derrick, and the flames spread with tremendous rapidity, three blocks, Nos. 36, 37 and 38, being in ashes by 3 o'clock.

No effort was made to extinguish the fire, for it was impossible to get within 100 feet of the flames. No one was injured. It is estimated that two-thirds of the companies in the burned district will be unable to recover from the damage done by the fire.

EUROPEAN ZOLLVEREIN

Against United States Not Practical, Says Popolo Romano.

Rome, April 15.—The Popolo Romano, commenting on yesterday's proposition before the international agricultural congress to establish a European zollverein against America, says:

The difficulties in the practical accomplishment of such a grandiose project are so grave and complex as to render it almost Utopian. The further discussion of the question has been postponed until the next session of the congress, which will probably postpone it still further. It is the best that could be done as the movement intended to shut off Europe from the countries over the sea and has already aroused in the United States, which is sensitive on the subject, a reactionary current thereby further embittering the commercial relations between the old and the new world.

JOHN MORLEY

Talks on Effect of Irish Land Bill.

London, April 15.—The Rt. Hon. John Morley, M. P., formerly chief secretary for Ireland, in a speech to his constituents at Montrose, said that some persons seemed to be fondly dreaming that they were done with Ireland, and need expect no more embarrassment there. He listened to that sort of talk with calm and affable, but slightly grim, composure. His reading of the history of the Irish relations to British parties was that Ireland fixed her own place in their party programs.

Historians would look back upon the present Irish land bill as a new and great chapter in Irish evolution.

The government confessed by this gigantic and wise effort not only that their whole Irish policy for seventeen years had been an abject failure, but that England's policy for a century had been completely wrong. Whatever consequences would follow, the transfer of the soil of Ireland to its people would be the strengthening of the people for self-government.

SALMON SEASON OPENS.

Astoria, Ore., April 15.—The spring season for salmon fishing from the Columbia river will open today, and the prices for fish will be the same as last season, 5 cents for cannery fish and 6 cents for cold storage fish weighing over 25 pounds. There will be seventeen canneries and ten cold storage plants in operation on the Lower Columbia river.

REPORT IS DENIED.

New York, April 15.—The report that ex-Crown Princess Louise and Crown Prince Frederick Augustus of Saxony were to be reconciled and remarried this week is denied, according to a World dispatch from London. It is asserted in Dresden that such a thing would be impossible.

THE CELTIC DAMAGED.

Liverpool, April 15.—The White Star liner Celtic and the British steamer Heathmor, collided in the Mersey today. The Celtic was damaged amidships, but it is expected that she will be able to sail for New York tomorrow as scheduled.

PENSIONS GRANTED.

Washington, April 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The following pensions have been granted: Increase—Robert J. Hogue, of Kelsey, $10. Widow—Frances Newcomb, of Anoka, $12.

NEW POSTMASTER.

Washington, April 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Frederick Nubbe has been appointed postmaster at Shepards, Crow Wing county, Minn., vice William M. Stinson, resigned.

PRESIDENT LOUBET WARMLY WELCOMED AT CITY OF ALGIERS

North African City Dressed In Gala Attire to Receive First Visit of French Chief of State Since Time of Napoleon III.

Algiers, April 15.—Algiers was in gala attire in honor of the coming of President Loubet, the first chief of state, since Emperor Napoleon III to visit the French North African possessions. The picturesque streets of the ancient city were elaborately decorated. Arches and stands had been erected on the principal thoroughfares, and these, with the principal buildings, were gay with flags and streamers of the national colors. Vast crowds filled the boulevard of La Republique, and the streets leading to the wharves, and many Arabs in quaint costumes mingled with the throngs which awaited the arrival of the great white sultan, as the French ruler is known among the natives. In the harbor were the Russian, British and Italian squadrons sent to extend international greetings to the president, also the French cruiser Du Chayla, having on board the Moroccan mission, and the Spanish battleship Pelayo, with the special envoy of Spain on board. The Portuguese cruiser Don Carlos I is on the way. Throughout the morning there was a continuous cannonading from the warships and forts, as ceremonious calls between the visiting naval commanders and resident officers were exchanged.

At 10 o'clock the semaphore signalled the approach of the French squadron escorting President Loubet. The warships advanced in perfect order, with the armed cruiser, Joanne D'Arc, bearing the president, ahead, followed by the battleship Saint Louis, with Marine Minister Pelletan on board, and the battleship and cruisers Charlemagne, Gaulois, Iena and Bouvet and a flotilla of smaller craft. It was an imposing naval spectacle, the beauty of which was enhanced by brilliant sunshine.

COURT TAKES A HAND AT DENVER

Denver, April 15.—District Judge Mullins has issued an injunction restraining Governor Peabody's appointees as members of the fire and police board of Denver from attempting to take possession of their offices or interfering in any manner with the old board in the discharge of its duties until the legality of the appointments is determined by the courts. It is claimed on behalf of the old board that by the Rush home rule constitutional amendment the power of appointment to these places was taken away from the governor, and that present commissioners will continue in office until a new charter for the city is adopted and an election is held thereunder. The case will be taken to the supreme court.

A LAKE LINDEN YOUNG MAN SHOT

Houghton, Mich., April 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Theron Elliott, 20 years old, of Tamarack City, near Lake Linden, is at the Lake Linden hospital with a bullet lodged in his head near the brain. His condition is critical and his physicians fear that he may not recover. Whether the wound was self inflicted or not is not known. While relatives believe that Elliott accidentally shot himself while celaning his revolver in his room, circumstances are suspicious. J. S. Elliott, station agent at Mineral Range station at Tamarack, Osceola Mills, and a brother to Theron, was awakened at 10 o'clock last night by a shot and the fall of a body. He found his brother prone on the floor with a wound just above his temple. The brother says he knows of no reason why Theron should take his life.

PORTAGE LAKE GIVES UP ITS DEAD

Houghton, Mich., April 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The body of Charles Helberg, who disappeared from Hancock mysteriously last November, was found floating in Portage lage, near Copper Range dock yesterday by workingmen. Helberg was 65 years old and a fisherman at Portage Entry on Keweenaw bay. He marketed his fish in Hancock and came up one day last November to sell his wares. He tied his smack to the wharf and disappeared. The lake was dragged and diligent search was made, but no trace was found until yesterday. He is survived by a widow, who is blind, and eight children, one daughter also being blind.

SHOOTS HIMSELF WHILE ASLEEP

Sh. Paul, April 15.—A Helena, Mont., special to the Dispatch says: While walking in his sleep in his cabin at Opsir, Christopher Marbason, a miner, picked up a revolver from its accustomed place and placing it to the back of his head, pulled the trigger. The bullet crashed into his skull and he was at once rendered unconscious. Marbason was discovered some hours later by neighbors and at once brought to Helena and placed in the hospital. He is in a critical condition. Marbason stoutly denies that anyone could have shot him, and when asked concerning the shooting, said that he must have done it while having a nightmare.

INCREASE IN THE CARRIERS

At the Duluth Postoffice Is Recommended.

Offices at Superior to Be Consolidated.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, April 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Assistant Superintendent William G. Edens, of the city free delivery division, who recently visted Duluth and made a thorough investigation of that office, has submitted his report to the department recommending the rearranging of the carriers' and collectors' routes with a view to improving the same. He recommends the restoration of six deliveries in the business district, and to accommodate these improvements and meet the growth of the postal business he finds that the Duluth office will require six additional letter carriers. It is probable that the six carriers will be allowed by the dedepartment, to take effect early in the next fiscal year.

Assistant Superintendent Edens also visited West Superor and recommends that the postoffices at Superior, South Superior, Allouez and Itasca be abolished and that station services be given these offices, and that the city free delivery service be extended to include the entire territory, to become effective July 1. In lieu of the postoffice at Superior there shall be established a station to be known as "Station A." Superior being the oldest office of the group named. To enable free delivery service to be established within the territory of Superior or station A, and to give equally as good service as that enjoyed by West Superior, it is recommended that four letter carriers will be required. Mr. Edens also recommends that two carriers be stationed at South Superior, or station B, to be effective July 1; also that one mounted carrier be domiciled at Itasca to serve the territory about that office and Allouez, to become effective at the beginning of the next fiscal year. Superintendent Eden's recommendations will be allowed.

NEW YORK WOMAN IS DRUGGED AND ROBBED OF HER JEWELRY

Mystery Surrounds the Case of Mrs. Clarence Graham Who Found Herself Taken to a Hospital In a Semi-Conscious Condition.

New York, April 15.—Considerable mystery surrounds the case of Mrs. Clarence V. Graham, of this city, who was left at Bellevue hospital yesterday suffering from what the doctors say was the effect of knockout drops or some other drug. In a handsome cab, which was driven rapidly to the hospital, was Mrs. Graham, who is about 30 years old. She was semi-conscious, and had the appearance of being drugged. On her fingers were a number of valuable rings. Two of the rings, however, had had jewels extracted. The woman was assisted out of the hansome by the attendans, and a physician attended her. As soon as she had left the hansom the driver drove rapidly away without saying a word. The case was diagnosed as one of knockout drops or some other drug.

Mrs. Graham became unconscious after being put to bed. After two hours she regained consciousness and was able to tell her name and that of her husband. Later the woman's husband visited the hospital, and she told him she had left her home about noon on Monday to go shopping. She visited a department store in Broadway and afterward went to a restaurant nearby. She said she did not remember what happened after that, except that she recollected being placed in a cab and drive up Madison avenue. The two rings that had been tampered with, Mr. Graham said, had been set with a diamond and a ruby. The stones were worth, he said, about $600 all told. Mr. Graham said he had received a telephone message from his wife about 3:30 p. m. on Monday, when she told him she would meet him at his place of business at 5 o'clock. That was the last he had heard from her until yesterday.

Mrs. Graham was later taken to her home. Besides the missing jewels, Mr. Graham said his wife had lost $50 in money.

TO FINISH CENTRAL AMERICAN ROAD

Chicago, April 15.—A dispatch to the Tribune from New York says: Plans have just been consummated for the immediate completion of a line of railroad in Central America, extending from the Atlantic to the Pacific coaste which it is believed will have the effect of diverting a large share of the Central American exports from foreign ports to those of the United States. The coffee output alone averages 1,000,000 bags annually, of which almost the entire amount is shipped to Hamburg and other European ports, due to the difficulties in transportation to the Atlantic seaboard. Alexander Hollander, who has for several weeks been in Central America in the interests of an American syndicate of which James McNaught, former counsel for the Northern Pacific railroad, is president, has just returned to New York. The new railroad is to have its terminal at Puerto Barrios. The freight will be carried by way of the Gulf of Pensacola or New Orleans, and it will reduce the time of transportation from two months to two weeks. Already 140 miles of the road are completed.

PINKNESS DUE TO GOOD HEALTH

Chicago, April 15.—A dispatch to the Record-Herald from Washington says: Officials of the department of agriculture familiar with the food tests being conducted by Dr. Wiley say the pink complexion taken on by the young men who are the subjects of the experiments are not due to chemicals in the food, but to the complete elimination of all impurities from the blood brought about by eating pure food alone. No drugs have been mixed with the food for the last few weeks in order that Dr. Wiley might observe the contrast in the effect of the pure food and that adulterated with borax and other chemicals. Up to date, it is said, the chemicals have been shown to be absolutely harmless, and in several cases they have been found beneficial. The subjects only eat at stated times, with the greatest regularity as to amount, drink nothing alcoholic and smoke only with the greatest moderation.

MAY SOON TELEGRAPH TO JUNEAU

Seattle, April 15.—Within a month the telegraph system of Alaska will be complete, and by fall the cable connecting Seattle with Juneau and the far North will be in operation. These announcements were made here by Gen. Greely, chief officer of the United States signal corps. The cable ship Burnside will reach Sitka about June 15, and after running cable from Skagway to Haine's mission, will lay the big cable southward 1300 miles in two sections to Seattle. The cable, it is believed, will be in working order by Nov. 15.

A gap of but fifty miles exists between the eastern and western branches of the Alaska system. The line extends up the Yukon from St. Michaels to the mouth of the Tanana, and 200 miles above on that river. The other line is from Valdez, across to Eagle City, near Dawson, a branch of which extends down the Tanana to meet the other. A month, in the opinion of Gen. Greely, will see the two joined.

TO ORGANIZE THE CHINKS AND JAPS

Denver, April 15.—The News today says: The Western Federation of Miners is contemplating a movement quite new in the way of labor unions. They may organize the hosts of Chinese and Japanese employed in the mines and smelters of the Northwest and British Columbia. W. D. Haywood, secretary of the federation, says they are willing to become organized and affiliated with the federation and that the American miners, who, he says, refuse to work with non-union men of their own nationality, have concluded that there is no reason why they should forego their principles in the case of the Chinese and Japanese. Besides, Secretary Haywood says, these foreigners have frequently shown themselves to be in sympathy with unionism and have sacrificed their own interests in aid of a cause where there was nothing to influence them other than their sympathy.

Great Northern Power Company Determining Upon Machinery.

Contract With Street Railway System Is Agreed Upon.

This is a busy week in the offices of the Great Northern Power company, one of the busiest since the development was undertaken. Consulting engineers from various parts of the country are here conferring with the resident engineers and making the final determination of the character of the machinery to be installed in the power house upon the St. Louis river near Fond du Lac. As soon as all these matters are settled, and that will be within a few days, orders will be placed with the different manufacturing concerns for the entire equipment.

On behalf of the company the visiting engineers are J. T. Fanning, the eminent hydraulic engineer of Minneapolis, who has been consulting engineer of the company from the first; M. H. Gerry, Jr., of Helena, and E. P. Birch, of Minneapolis, consulting electrical engineers. Mr. Gerry is chief engineer and general manager of the Missouri River Power company, which furnishes power for Helena and Butte, and the copper mines in the vicinity of those places. He built and for a time had charge of the South Side Elevated railroad in Chicago, was with the Twin City Rapid Transit company in Minneapolis, and is recognized as one of the foremost electrical engineers of the country.

Besides these engineers representing the company, the manufacturing concerns have engineers here and the great importance of the proposition is shown by the character of the men these concerns are sending here, their best talent is coming. Arthur Giesler, of Dayton, Ohio, superintendent and chief engineer of the Stillwell-Bierce-Smith-Valle company, of that city, manufacturers of the Victor water wheel is here today, accompanied by George Bervinger, another of the company's engineers. This company is anxious to have its water wheel adopted and has a good chance of being successful. Mr. Giesler is familiar with water power propositions all over the world, having investigated almost everyone of any consequence in this country and many of them in other lands. He pronounces the Duluth development to be one of the greatest known, a power proposition that will attract world-wide interest among engineers.

James W. Johnson, of Chicago, chief Western representative of the General Electric company, will be here the latter part of the week and writes that Mr. Hanscom, the chief engineer of the factory at Schenectady, N. Y., will come with him. Mr. McGill, of Minneapolis, general Western agent of the Westinghouse concern, was here yesterday. A representative of the American Steel and Wire company was here yesterday in connection with the large order for copper wire which the company will have to place. Representatives of two or three bridge companies will also be here the latter part of the week to present plans and figures for building the big dam.

Altogether there is much doing. Those who have never visited the offices of the company can have no realization of the amount of work that is going on in connection with the development of the water power. Twelve offices on the third floor of the Providence building are now occupied, that number being required to accommodate the various departments.

The power house which will be installed at the foot of the great fall of 205 feet on the St. Louis river, will be the largest generating station in point of capacity to be found under a single roof anywhere. It will be designed for a capacity of 100,000 horse-power.

The size of the units of power to be installed was finally determined upon by the engineers yesterday. They will be of 5000 horse-power generator capacity each, directly connected to 6700 horse-power water wheels of 214 revolutions per minute on horizontal shaft, under a working head of 365 feet. The first installation will consist of six of these units, giving 30,000 horse-power. This will be increased up to 100,000 horse-power, the capacity of the station.

A much larger available water supply exists which can be utilized later under new power house designs.

All of the machinery men assure the company that there is no question but that the equipment can be on the ground in ample time to allow the furnishing of power on July 1, 1904, the date upon which the company is contracting to furnish it.

An important step which the company has taken is the practically closing of a contract with the Duluth-Superior Traction company for supplying the street railway systems of Duluth and Superior with power. General Manager C. C. Cokefair, Chief Engineer Francis A. Cokefair, and M. H. Gerry, consulting engineer, were in Minneapolis Monday in conference with C. G. Goodrich, president of the company, and his electrical experts, and the terms were entirely agreed upon. All that remains is the formal drawing of the instrument and its signature.

Under the agreement the Great Northern Power company is to ultimately furnish the street railway company with 10,000 horse-power. At the start 4000 horse-power is to be taken by the company. The life of the contract is ten years and it is to begin upon July 1, 1904, upon which date the company agrees to begin service of power.

The power will be served to the lines of the street railway system from the sub-station that will be erected in the city of Duluth by the power company.

INNER TUBE

Of a Bicycle Tire Saved a Youth's Life.

Sandusky, Ohio, April 15.—A bicycle tire saved the life of Theron Streeter, aged 18, of Perry, N. Y., who left home because of an alleged quarrel with his father and fell under a freight train near here.

He was discovered, unconscious, by a bicyclist, who, having no other means at hand, used the inner tube of his tire to bind the injured man's leg, thus stopping the flo wof blood. One foot had been cut off.

Physicians at the infirmary where the man is being cared for say that this act saved the boy's life.

I CAN NOW WORK THROUGH THE SPRING MONTHS

Without Feeling Fatigued --- Peruna Has Given Me Perfect Health.

Rosalie O. Goulding, Washington, D. C., is chief vice templar, Acme lodge, No. 3, I. O. O. F., Birmingham, Ala., also secretary of the Pan-American History company, writes:

"Continued literary work and close application at my desk last spring seemed to affect me. I soon found my usual mental and physical force giving way and realized that my brain did not act with its usual wonted activity, and my general tone showed me that I needed a change which my busy life would not allow at that time.

"I decided to take a tonic and asked a friendly druggist what he considered the best, and he answered, Peruna is the one that never fails.

"For three weeks I used it faithfully and was very much pleased to find that it brought me strength.

"I can now work for hours without feeling fatigued and am enjoying perfect health, and am thoroughly convinced that Peruna is a perfectly reliable remedy."

ROSALIE O. GOULDING.

Any one can escape entirely the ill effects of spring weather, and instead of dragging drearily through weeks of bad feelings and perhaps acquiring a fatal disease can find themselves in as excellent spirits and health as at any other time of the year.

Get a bottle of Peruna when the first languid feelings make themselves apparent in the spring. Take it according to the directions on the bottle. Continue this treatment through the first months of spring. This course of treatment is not experiment. It is as positive in its results as any fact of science can be.

After you have tried it you will say Peruna is positively the best spring medicine you have tried.

A great many years of extensive trial of this remedy in this class of derangements have demonstrated that there are no failures.

If you do not derive prompt and satisfactory results from the use of Peruna, write at once to Dr. Hartman, giving a full statement of your case and he will be pelased to give you his valuable advice gratis.

FAILED TO APPEAR

Joseph Couture Caused a Friend to Lose $100 Bail Money.

Did Not Show Up In Municipal Court on Time.

A defendant in a rather sensational municipal court case escaped from custody yesterday, securing his liberty at a cost of $100 put up by a friend as a guarantee that he would be produced in court.

The man that escaped is Joseph Couture, of 2429 West Seventh street. He was arrested last week charged with beating his wife and threatening the lives of his family.

The time for the trial was set for yesterday, and Joseph Andre, a friend of Couture's, was prevailed upon to go his bail for $100 in order to save the man from several days' imprisonment.

The understanding was that Mr. Andre should produce Couture in the municipal court for trial, delivering him to the court officers. When the hour for the trial came Couture walked down to the court with Andre, and just about the time the case was called the defendant made an excuse to go out for a few moments, and he has not been seen since.

Judge Windom has reason to believe that friends of Couture could produce the missing man in court if they had a mind to, and in view of the fact that Andre had not delivered him over to any of the court authorities, the court held that the $100 guarantee was still binding, and gave several hours in which the man should be produced in court. At the expiration of the time limit the $100 of Andre was declared forfeited to the city.

Ely Candidates.

City Clerk Peter Schiefer, of Ely, was in the city today and filed with the county auditor the affidavits of expenses of the candidates for the various offices at the municipal election held in Ely, April 7. The expenses were, in the main, for cards, printing and band music. The total amounts spent by various candidates were as follows:

Mike Weinzierl, for mayor, $35; John Cosgrove, for municipal judge, 22; David Brown, for special municipal judge, $7.75; James H. White, for alderman, $4; John E. Porthon, for alderman, $8.75; Olof Knutson, for alderman, $3.40; F. L. Cowen, for treasurer, $8.75; Thomas Jury for assessor, $6.75.

COWBOY BREAKFAST

Feature of President's Entertainment at Hugo, Col.

Hugo, Col., April 15.—The suggestion that President Roosevelt be given an opportunity to partake in a genuine cowboy breakfast as a feature of entertainment during his brief stop at this place May 4, will be carried out. A letter has just been received from Secretary Loeb saying that the presidential party will stop here long enough to greet the people early in the morning of that date and the final decision of the arrangements committee only awaits the receipt of this information. It is expected that stockmen and cowboys from all over the range in this vicinity will participate in true cowboy fashion, with a chuck wagon and all the rest of the paraphernalia common to such a feast.

CRACKSMEN AT IRETON, IA.

Safe Blown and Small Sum Was Secured.

St. Paul, April 15.—A special to the Dispatch from Ireton, Iowa, says: Cracksmen blew open the safe of the postoffice here last night and secured $150 in money and $50 worth of stamps. They got all their tools but their drill from Henry Braak's blacksmith shop. About midnight two men were arrested by Marshal Thackeray, of Hudson, S. D., eighteen miles away, after a big fight. They were locked up and set fire to the jail and were rescued with difficulty. They threatened to kill the marshal. They could hardly have got to Hudson after operating, as a school board meeting was held in the postoffice until 11 o'clock. But Postmsater Carr thinks they are doubtless members of the same gang. No clew to the cracksmen has yet been found.

Decision of Court In Falconer vs. Leland Case.

In the decision of Judge Dibell of district court, in the case of Ebenezer Falconer against Charles F. Leland et al, which was filed yesterday, and was published in The Herald, a wrong impression was given relative to portions of the decision.

The court finds that the trustee, Charles F. Leland, disposed of the land in question as directed and divided and paid out all of the proceeds according to his instructions except $238.55, which should have been paid to the plaintiff Falconer. This amount was repeatedly tendered to Falconer, but he refused to accept it, claiming a much larger amount was due. Leland admitted in his answer that Falconer was entitled to exactly the amount the court finds he is entitled to recover and alleged that he was willing to pay the sum at any time. The plaintiff gets only what he could have gotten without a law suit.

The court further finds that the land was sold for what it was reasonably worth and that there was no collusion or fraud in the transaction. The plaintiff recovered nothing against the defendant Amelia Sherwood.

GOT OFF THE TRAIN

And Were Married on the Way Westward.

Canton, Ohio, April 15.—Rev. C. G. Schaub tied a nuptial knot in a love chain which Cupid had fashioned in one of his most romantic moods. The groom was Anton Jackson, of Wisconsin; the bride Miss Anna Aronson, of Norway. Several years ago Jackson left the Scandinavian land to go to America after home and fortune. He succeeded, and the only thing lacking to make home perfect for the young Norwegian was a wife. The girl of his choice was Miss Aronson, in far-off Norway, whom he sent for, and the first person to greet her in America was Jackson.

They proceeded westward for Jackson's home in Wisconsin, but the desire to be married became stronger as each mile slid behind the train which carried them. Finally Jackson and his bride to be got off the train at Canton, and the ceremony was performed. After the ceremony they took their departure for Wisconsin, where they will make their home. They had been lovers before Anton came to this country.

A CUTTING SCRAPE

Two Men Have a Lively Time In a Lake Avenue Saloon.

Occurred In Early Morning and Proprietor Is Fined.

In a knife fight on South Lake avenue, at an early hour this morning, Victor Hill and August Ebock were stabbed in the face and hands.

The cutting was done by Louis Carlson, and like all knife parties in that vicinity, those that saw the event are unwilling to discuss it or enlighten the authorities as to Carlson's motives.

The two victims are in St. Mary's hospital having their wounds attended to, and are rather weak from excessive loss of blood. It is said there is not the slightest danger of their lives, but they will be unable to leave the hospital for some time.

As near as can be ascertained, Carlson had been working in the woods with Hill and Ebock during the past winter, and in the camp they frequently quarreled.

About 3 o'clock this morning Carlson went into the saloon of Jacob Mattson, on Lake avenue, and when he saw Hill and Ebock sanding near the bar, he did not stand on ceremony, but jerked out a knife and began slashing.

The knife pierced Hill's cheek to such an extent that Dr. Norton had to put nine stitches in it. Ebock, in an effort to get the knife away from Carlson, received a very ugly cut through the hands. Others present overpowered the fighting Finn and turned him over to the police.

Mr. Mattson, the proprietor of the saloon where the fight occurred, was arrested, and in the municipal court he entered a plea of guilty to the charge of keeping open after hours. He was fined $30 and costs.

SIXTY DAYS SENTENCE.

Al Nichols Punished For Robbing on Train.

Duncan Cowan and his money was disconnected yesterday afternoon on a Great Northern train by Al Nichols, a pickpocket.

Nichols went through Cowan's pockets while he was asleep, but members of the train crew and passengers saw him and kept him under close watch intending to report the matter to the local police.

At Sunny Brook Nichols jumped off the train and tried to escape, but the members of the train crew were his superiors in sprinting and he was taken back on the train.

This morning Judge Windom sentenced him to sixty days labor on the chainless gang, and, judging from the poor sprinting form he exhibited at Stony Brook, the indications are that he will even be unable to beat a gang guard.

NO SUMMER SCHOOL

Duluth to Have None For the First Time In Five Years.

Superintendent Olson's Reason For This Not Known.

The teachers of St. Louis county will not have a training school this coming summer. For the first time in five years Duluth has been cut off the list of summer schools by the state superintendent of schools. Inquiries have been coming to County Superintendent of Schools Park from all parts of the county relative to the date when the summer school for teachers will be opened, and he is now preparing to send out notices that St. Louis county teachers will not be so favored this season.

No reason has been assigned by State Superintendent J. W. Olsen why St. Louis county should be cut off from the list of summer schools, but there is a rumor to the effect that the omission will be partly in retaliation because of the opposition from this part of the state to the bill now pending in the legislature relative to the creating of the office of state inspector of rural schools, a measure which is said to have the sanction of the state superintendent of public instruction, and was at his request introduced in the house by Representative Nyquist of Blue Earth county.

The fight against the measure dates back to two years, when the annual meeting of the county superintendents of the state was held in St. Paul, during the Christmas holidays. The bill now pending was then brought forward by W. E. Freeman, of Mankato, superintendent of schools of Blue Earth county, who asked the indorsement of the county superintendents.

Superintendent of Schools A. T. Park of this county says that in asking for indorsement to the measure Mr. Freedman made the statement that nineteen-twentieths of the county superintendents in the state were dishonest, and intimated that an inspector was needed as a sort of police agent to keep them straight. Mr. Park says that he led in the opposition to the proposition, and that a heated discussion followed between himself and Mr. Freeman, the association finally turning the measure down by a practically unanimous vote, and passing a resolution reprimanding the latter for his statements and expunging them from the records.

Last December, says Mr. Park, the measure was again brought forward for indorsement, State's Superintendent Olsen appearing before the association of county superintendents and personally asking for their endorsement, which was refused, very few voting in its favor.

Mr. Park claims that the legislative committee of the County Superintendents' association, which is comprised of Eric Erickson, of Olivia, chairman, A. T. Park, of Duluth, secretary; J. F. Keefe, of Ortonville; D. C. Mackenzie, of Minneapolis, and L. F. Harrington, of McLeod county, have opposed the proposed bill at every turn, but that in spite of the sentiment against it, the bill has been introduced by the state administration of school affairs in the legislature at a time when it is known that the county superintendents of schools are busy closing up their work of the year and cannot be in St. Paul to lobby against it.

The opposition to the bill is said to be based on the belief of the county superintendents that it is a political measure and brought out expressly for the purpose of providing a place for a man who is said to be a possible formidable candidate for the position of state superintendent of public instruction two years hence, against the present incumbent, J. W. Olsen. Rumor has it that the man is S. J. Race, of Redwood county.

The county superintendents of the state, says Mr. Park, feel that they are the local representatives of the state department, and that the appointment of a rural school inspector would mean the cutting down of their duties, making their office an honorary rather than an active one. He says that the county superintendents indicated at their association meeting that they would favor the appointment of a second assistant superintendent of public instruction who should pay a visit to the county superintendents of schools, but they do object to a sort of police surveillance on the part of the state superintendent of public instruction.

"The schools of Duluth," said Mr. Park this morning, "are every year turning out teachers for the country schools of St. Louis, Cook, Lake, Carlton, Itasca and even Pine county. Many of the young men and women are inexperienced, and depend a great deal on the training they get in the summer school here, for the reason that there is no other summer training schools maintained within a long distance of this city. The normal school is not yet ready to turn out teachers, and we should by good rights have something in St. Louis county in the way of a school for the training of teachers. Great interest has been taken by the young teachers in the summer schools held here in the past five years, and it will be a matter of disappointment to them when they find none will be held this year."

IN MARINE CIRCLES

Possibility For the Lake Seamen to Become Involved.

Last of Pittsburg Fleet Get Firemen and Leave.

The clause in the contract of the lake seamen which allows them to quit work should they be placed under police protection may yet cause complications in the strike of the marine firemen, oilers and water tenders. On both sides of the bay the non-union firemen are being escorted to their vessels by squads of police. Yesterday a crew of twenty firemen hired by the Pittsburg Steamship company for the vessels loading at Two Harbors was escorted to the Union depot by a detail of patrolmen.

The Pittsburg Steamship company is the chief opponent of the firemen, and against it all the efforts of the men are aimed. The different vessels of the fleet are closely watched and every means within the power of the men is used to prevent crews for them being obtained.

At the Oneota ore docks yesterday a number of delegates from the union crossed 400 feet of thin and rotten ice in order to reach the steamer J. H. Hoyt and persuade the non-union firemen on board to leave the boat. They were unsuccessful in their endeavors and left quietly when police were summoned to put them off.

Ten or twelve boats of the Pittsburg fleet have been successful in getting away from the port with non-union crews, and a number of others are now loading at the Missabe docks. Of the other vessel lines, however, the majority of the boats which have cleared from Duluth have carried union men.

PITTSBURG BOATS OUT.

Last of the Fleet Get Their Firemen.

Lake firemen and oilers are being secured in Duluth without any particular trouble and the Pittsburg Steamship company has sent out all its boats but four of the thirty-five or thirty-six which wintered here.

This morning a party of firemen and oilers camped out in the front hall at the Wolvin building with their baggage, and shortly before 11 o'clock were sent to Two Harbors to help make up a crew there.

The last four boats of the Pittsburg fleet that wintered here, excepting the ships in dock, will be moved out of Duluth and headed on their way to Lake Erie before tomorrow night, unless something unexpected happens.

FITTING OUT RECORD.

The work of fitting out the Record will be commenced Monday. A new boiler has been put in and the tug will be in as good condition as before the accident which disabled her last year. Capt. Martin Cole wil be in command and Len McNamara will have charge of the engines.

POSITION IS DEFINED

Manufacturers Put Themselves On Record In Labor Matters.

Opposed to Many Principles and Practices of Unions.

New Orleans, April 15.—Interest in today's session of the National Association of Manufacturers centered in the report of the resolutions committee, which was expected to result in a definite understanding as to the attitude the association will take towards organized labor. The committee held three short sessions last night and began its labors again early this morning, but the announcement was made that it would be unable to complete its report at the agreed hour, 11 a. m., and the chairman expressed the belief that the report could not b made until late in the afternoon. When the forenoon session was called to order by President Parry, the Hon. Carroll D. Wright was introduced and was given a hearty reception. President Roosevelt had been invited to attend the convention and in declining named Mr. Wright to represent him. Mr. Wright said in part:

"The combination has in it all the elements of the corporation, for it is simply an enlarged corporation, embracing more elements, more factors, and therefore, it is more powerful for good or evil than the corporation of a quarter of a century ago. But it recognizes in its development an effort to demoralize industry. Its evils are those of management and not of constitution. These evils may be handled by law and by society and we need not fear them.

"Conversely, the single working man, working by the side of his employer, was his employer's personal asociate, but as the employer developed into the firm, and the firm into the corporation and the corporation into the combination, the single working man has developed along similar lines. Now he is grouped as the fellow employe of thousands and thousands under the great combination where he is still farther removed in a personal way from his empolyer.

"On the whole, the remuneration to capital is constantly decreasing and that of labor constantly increasing. This is the result so far as capital is concerned of the accumulation of all which may be turned into active and productive capacity and so far as wages are concerned, to the increased standard of living resulting from education and the culture which follows it.

The working man has risen from ignorance to intelligence, and as he has reached intelligence he has become more or less a greater complication in industrial affairs. In his ignorance he did not strike; in his intelligence he does strike. The next step in the development of his intelligence will be that he will not strike; that he will be able to accommodate himself to conditions, because he will know them and understand them better.

"Some of the methods of the laoor union are to be condemned. So are some of the methods of the capitalistic organization to be condemned, but because they cannot get on together does not mean that either or both should be destroyed. They must get on together. That is the necessity of the time, and it is to the intelligence of the leaders of both interests that society at large looks for the development of industry on a basis of social progress."

At noon the resolutions committee announced its report ready. The labor question immediately came to the front in the shape of a resolution embodying a declaration of principles against boycotts and lockouts, recognizing the right of labor to organize, but "without interfereing with the liberty of employers or employe," denying the right of unions to fix wages and pledging the association to oppose all legislation not in acord with the foregoing principles. A motion to adopt the resolutions brought a protest from James F. Taler, of Cincinnati, who demanded that the resolution be printed and held over until tomorrow. Mr. Taler was supported by Mayor Jones, of Toledo, and a rising vote was demanded. The motion to defer action was lost by a heavy vote and the resolutions were adopted as follows:

We, the members of the National Association of Manufacturers, United States of America, in convention assembled at New Orleans, do hereby declare the following principles which shall govern this association in its work in connection with problems of labor:

1—Fair dealing is the fundamental and basic principle on which relations between employe and employers should rest.

2—The National Association of Manufacturers is not opposed to organizations of labor as such, but it is unalterably opposed to boycotts, blacklists and other illegal acts of interference with the personal liberty of employer and employe.

3—No person should be refused employment or in any way discriminated against on account of membership or non-membership in any labor organization, and there should be no discrimination against or interference with any employe who is not a member of a labor union by members of such unions.

4—With due regard to contracts, it is the right of the employe to leave his employment whenever he sees fit, and it is the right of employer to discharge any employe when he sees fit.

5—Employers must be free to employ their work people at wages mutually satisfactory, without interference or dictation on the part of individuals of organizations not directly parties to such contracts.

6—Employes must be unmolested and unhampered in the management of their business, and in the use of any methods or systems of pay which are just and equitable.

7—No limitation should be placed upon the opportunities of any person to learn any trade to which he or she may be adopted.

8—This association disapproves absolutely of strikes and lockouts and favors an equitable adjustment of all differences between employers and employes.

9—The National Association of Manufacturers pledges itself to oppose any and all legislation not in accord with the foregoing declaration.

"Past, Present and Future!"

Did you notice some very stylish clothes Sunday—or the past day or two, worn by women you met at church or passed on the promenades?

No doubt you did, and if you had been favored with a "private view," you would have found that a good many of the handsomest bore the Silberstein & Bondy label.

Our business is flourishing—not because it is ours, but because of the great merit of our clothes and the Dry Goods that we sell!

We claim to have the brightest and best stock of Women's Tailored Suits, Costumes, Coats and Wraps of every sort in this city—or for many hundred miles around—and, judging from its patronage, the public agrees with us!

This only stimulates us to further effort for improvement!

It stimulates us to keep our stock up to a higher and higher level. Not only is this true of the Dry Goods end, but it is also true of the Fine Furniture, Oriental and Domestic Rugs, Lace Curtains, Draperies and the beautiful Decorations for the home.

We shall continue to sell Tomorrow, Thursday—

Tailored Suits.

Ones and twos from here and there throughout our stock—(lines which cannot be reordered on account of the cloth being entirely sold out.) Suits that have sold at $45, $47.50, $52.50 and $57.50, at $35.00 each. Most of them are silk lined throughout.

We've adopted the same principles in handling these lines as have made the rest of our house so successful in its particular field.

We do business only with manufacturers and importers whose wares have an established reputation—and maintain it. Our Fine Furniture is made by the most representative firms of Grand Rapids and other first-class furniture markets, and we fully guarantee every piece that leaves our floor. We do not dabble into every part of the furniture business, but confine ourselves to high grade lines only—and pay strict attention to this particular branch—that is why you can find the finest and choicest furniture pieces in Duluth right on our floor.

We are the sole Duluth representatives of the "United Crafts" Mission Furniture—made by a community of workmen—(by hand)—at Eastwood, New York—a furniture that has practically revolutionized the furniture business for these quiet unassuming styles are being put into the best homes of the land and very little of the other different kinds of oaks—are being used—we lay particular stress upon the kind made by the "United Crafts" because of a common error which confuses the "United Crafts" with the "Arts and Crafts"—the "United Crafts" is made by hand at Eastwood, New York—the "Arts and Crafts" is factory made at Grand Rapids, Mich., and is considerably less in price. We can easily show you the difference between the two if you visit our Third Floor. The new lines are complete and we should be very happy to have you make comparisons with any lines about the city.

The "Craftsman" published in the interests of art in the home and sold for 25c a copy is here for our patrons—with our compliments.

PITTSBURG BOATS OUT.

Last of the Fleet Get Their Firemen.

Lake firemen and oilers are being secured in Duluth without any particular trouble and the Pittsburg Steamship company has sent out all its boats but four of the thirty-five or thirty-six which wintered here.

This morning a party of firemen and oilers camped out in the front hall at the Wolvin building with their baggage, and shortly before 11 o'clock were sent to Two Harbors to help make up a crew there.

The last four boats of the Pittsburg fleet that wintered here, excepting the ships in dock, will be moved out of Duluth and headed on their way to Lake Erie before tomorrow night, unless something unexpected happens.

FITTING OUT RECORD.

The work of fitting out the Record will be commenced Monday. A new boiler has been put in and the tug will be in as good condition as before the accident which disabled her last year. Capt. Martin Cole wil be in command and Len McNamara will have charge of the engines.

LAUNDRY WAGON

Not Place For Honest Man, Says a Judge.

Chicago, April 15.—Judge Neely does not regard the occupation of driving a laundry wagon as respectable. He so said in passing upon the case of George W. Dickman, who had been arrested and after much persuasion had entered a plea of guilty of having stolen a suit of clothes, and placed himself at the mercy of the court.

"What is your business?" asked the judge of the prisoner.

"I drive a laundry wagon, Your Honor," meekly answered the defendant.

"No wonder you steal," said the court sharply. "Any man who would go around and gather up the soiled garments of other people would be liable to steal a suit of clothing; it would come natural to him. Why don't you get a respectable position? If you will change your work I will release you."

Good for children. The pleasant to take and harmless One Minute Cough Cure gives immediate relief in all cases of cough, croup and la grippe because it does not pass immediately into the stomach, but takes effect right at the seat of the trouble. MAX WIRTH.

$5.75 St. Paul-Minneapolis and Return.

FUND IS GROWING.

More Than $3000 Will Be Realized Here.

The Duluth and St. Louis county famine fund for the sufferers in Norway and Sweden will reach over $3000. This statement was made by Dr. Eklund, local treasurer of the fund, today. He says that the subscription list has been growing very fast this week in view of the announcement made that the collections would be closed up, if possible, by Saturday. Among the receipts of this week was a check for $100 from Marcus L. Fay, and another from Mrs. Fay, of $50. The checks were sent from Virginia and were received this morning.

BASEBALL MATTERS.

Auburn, N. Y., April 15.—Secretary Farrell today gave out the decision of the national board of arbitration in the matter of dispute of the New Orleans Baseball club and the Binghamton club in regard to services of Manager Charles Campau. The board is practically unanimous in its award to Campau's services to the Binghamton club. The appeal of the Helena, Mont., club for a reopening of the Carisch case was denied and the players services awarded to the Denver club.

TEAMSTERS JOIN STRIKE

Of the People's Gas Company Employes.

Chicago, April 15.—Teamsters joined the strike of the People's Gas company emploes today. Meter setters, repairmen and other classes of workers also walked out and leaders in the strike movement predict a gas famine unless their terms are acceded to. Officials of the Teamsters' union, however, say the striking drivers have violated their rules and must return to work.

Two non-union firemen were captured from the steamer Lycoming by striking marine firemen and were held captives for several hours at the strikers' headquarters. The police department has been called upon to guard the steamer from acts of violence when non-union men attempt to board her. Outside the police lines fifty strikers await the coming of the strike breakers.

PRESBYTERY IN SESSION

Rev. E. S. Axtell, of Sandstone, Is Chosen As Moderator.

At the first session of the annual meeting of the Duluth presbytery, held in the First Presbyterian church last evening, Rev. E. S. Axtell, of Sandstone, was the unanimous choice for moderator during the coming year. Neil Gilbert was elected temporary secretary. Rev. Axtell succeeds Rev. J. M. Todd, of Virginia.

One of the principal matters of interest at the meeting last evening was a paper by Rev. Axtell on the text, "By this shall all men know that ye are my disciples, if ye love one another."

Devotional exercises were held this morning and a business session this afternoon. The evening session will be held at 7:45 o'clock, when there will be a communion service.

It is expected that Rev. Charles Steizle, pastor of the Markham Memorial church in St. Louis, Mo., will be present to deliver the address at the evening meeting.

Following is the list of the delegates present last evening: Ministers—Rev. E. P. Crane, Cove; Rev. T. H. Cleland, Duluth; Rev. S. A. Jamison, West Duluth; Rev. David Campbell, Hinckley; Rev. W. J. Palm, Grand Rapids; Rev. H. B. Sutherland, Duluth; Rev. H. F. Gilt, Two Harbors; Rev. R. Ames Montgomery, Duluth; Rev. S. M. Marsh, Ely; Rev. James M. Todd, Virginia; Rev. F. E. Higgins, Bemidji; Rev. E. S. Axtell, Sandstone; Rev. Neil A. Gilchrist, Carlton; Rev. H. A. Leaty, Mora.

Laymen—Thomas Thorman, M. McGilvray, Andrew Gibson and J. H. McCullum, Duluth; F. A. Watkins, Carlton; John Gluesing, Wilton River; John B. Siemar, Barnum; Louis Nelson, Mora; G. S. Lowe, Two Harbors; James May, Eveleth.

THE STAGE.

Miss Marguerita Sylva is unfortunate this season in appearing in "The Strollers," for it offers her nothing that is commensurate with her ability. Those who saw her for the first time last evening were doubtless pleased, for she is a most charming stage beauty and sings sweetly and with considerable evidence of cultivation—something rarely found in the women appearing in the musical comedy and comic opera successes recently—but those who saw her in "Miss Bob White" a year ago were greatly disappointed. In that she had a daintily pleasing part, some good music to sing and altogether made a most decisive hit. In the production last evening she sang but one song that showed her voice to any advantage and that was a French song, which was interpolated. Her song, with a male chorus in the second act, is the most fetching thing she does, but its success lies not so much in the music as in the effect that a very clever and fascinating woman can give it. Miss Sylva should cast "The Strollers" aside as quickly as she can.

The production, in general, is good, though not such as to carry one away with enthusiasm. The music of "The Strollers" is tuneful, rather more so than most of the similar productions and there is ample comedy. There is too much of nonsense introduced in the "Dream Book" song by Miss Sylva, Mr. Don and Mr. Boniface, however, and the introduction of chestnuts grew tiresome.

George Boniface appears with good success as August Lump and Neil McNeill as the jailer, the parts that were taken upon the previous visit by John Henshaw and Eddie Foy. D. L. Bon is still playing the very eccentric part of the Prince de Bonsky. David Torrence sings pleasingly. Miss Dorothy Hunting's solo in the closing act was one of the excellent things, her voice being rich, fresh and resonant.

This afternoon the performance was repeated and tonight will again be given.

For the picturesque enframement of Augustus Thomas' "Arizona," to be presented at the Lyceum theater Friday and Saturday and Saturday matinee, the artists have painted a series of scenes which they own, to have been copied from nature and man's handiwork as it exists in the Aravaipa valley, in the picturesque Southwestern territory. The red tiled adobe building of Canby's ranch, the heavily beamed and embrasured living rooms of the colonel's quarters by the clever artists who went especially to Arizona to make their color sketches. For the decorations, uniforms and groupings, Thomas is happy to thank Frederick Remington, the incomparable black and white delineator of far Western scenes and people.

The Ferris comedians will present for the last time tonight at the Metropolitan the great Western drama, "In Idaho." Harry Bubb, manager of the Ferris comedians, is preparing to give the public a big double show in a short time, when the Ferris comedians, in addition to giving three plays, will be augmented by an indoor circus. Many sensational and startling features will be presented during the week of the indoor circus. The big circus acts will be given before the regular show starts, between the acts and after the show. The date of this big event will be announced shortly.

SHORTAGE IN ACCOUNTS

Charged Against Former Secretary of the Foresters.

Chicago, April 15.—Claims for supposed shortage in his accounts, amounting to between $50,000 and $60,000, have been filed against Theodore B. Thiele, until recently national high secretary of the Order of Foresters, by the officers of the order. Hope that all alleged shortage would be made good by the brothers and friends of Mr. Thiele have kept the members of the organization from taking any action against him that would make the matter public.

The Rev. Aloysius J. Thiele, of St. Aloysius' church, and the Rev. Dennis M. Thiele, of St. Francis' church, are the brothers. When seen last night both acknowledged that claims for a large amount had been made by the Foresters against their brother. As to the truth of the charges, they were unwilling to believe that he had used the funds of the order for his own benefit. They were willing to help him in his trouble, they said, but the extent of the alleged shortage made it almost impossible for them to accept the statement rendered by the Foresters without a careful investigation.

St. Louis and Return $22.30.

The Northwestern line, Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha, will sell excursion tickets to St. Louis, Mo., April 26 to May 1, inclusive, at $22.30 for the round trip. Tickets limited to May 4 for return passage. City ticket office, 405 West Superior street.

MONEY SEEMS NO OBJECT

Many Women Would Marry Lloyd, Whose Income Is Small.

New York, April 15.—Edward William Lloyd, of 421 Adams street, Hoboken, has an income of only $150 a year, but says he is willing to support a wife.

"A ham sandwich once a week ought to keep any woman," he says, and the 800 or so letters he has received in reply to an advertisement he placed in a paper would indicate that many of the fair sex are willing to try the experiment.

"Anon" writes Lloyd that she is willing to make any man happy. In the absence of particulars he says he will have to strike "Anon" off the eligible list. "Hazel" tells him he can smoke a pipe, but cigarettes never.

"Rebecca," of Mount Vernon, writes: "I fear to lose you by writing a lot of yams, so call on me next Sunday evening."

Then there is "New York," who does not drink, dance, smoke or go out in society.

From Garfield, N. J., comes a letter which says the writer has been paddling about in the old boat of single blessedness that Lloyd has cruised in. She has received innumerable proposals, she says, but being of a very sensible turn of mind, has refused them all. Still, she is willing to marry Lloyd.

Best of all is "Loretta," who could perhaps make a living by writing poetry, if the following effusion can be taken as a criterion:

"I want a man, I want a man,
I'm so sick of this old dishpan.
If you'll be true, then me for you,
Be you of plain or fancy plan."

Says Lloyd, in speaking of these letters: "Since so many want to marry me, I think I'll run my price up a little. Money, you know, is not a bad thing to have around the house. It matters not whether the girl is country or city bred, just as she doesn't shy at the cars and get afraid that the tall buildings will topple over on her."

MADE A BAD MISTAKE.

Struck Man For Making Eyes at Own Wife.

New York, April 15.—John T. F. Young, a photographer, was in the police court for assaulting John Caddle, a builder, on a Third avenue elevated train. Near the Sixty-seventh street station the photographer stood up and struck the builder in the face. They had been sitting alongside each other.

"Yes, I struck him, judge; any gentleman would have done the same thing. He was making goo-goo eyes at a woman passenger and I did not propose to let a man insult a woman who happened to be without a male escort," the prisoner said.

"I didn't insult any lady. This fellow struck me without a word of warning. We had no dispute whatever. He just stood up and landed a blow on my face," responded the builder.

"I saw him ogling a woman who sat in a cross seat some distance away. He chirped to her to attract her attention and acted like one of those mashers you hear about," went on the photographer.

"It was my wife who sat in the cross-seat, and I was trying to call her attention to one of the pictures in the car," Mr. Caddle explained.

"I don't believe she is your wife," Young responded.

"Here she is," rejoined the builder as he beckoned to a woman who stepped upon the bridge and said she was Mrs. Caddle.

"Well, I only wanted to act the part of a chivalrous gentleman and protect women from insult," the photographer declared.

Magistrate Zeller said he thought the photographer had acted hastily on good intentions, and suggested that an apology would be sufficient punishment. Young apologized, and the case was dismissed.

A PREACHER BECOMES IDOL

Of People By Attending Two Cases of Smallpox.

Westchester, Pa., April 15.—Rev. J. D. C. Hanna, a Baltimore preacher, now serving in the Methodist Episcopal church here, has become the idol of the people. The town was panic-stricken when it was found that smallpox had invaded the home of a prominent family, and the patients, two young ladies, Misses Mary and Annie Taylor, were hurried to the pesthouse. Both cases were found critical, and the fair patients sent for their pastor. He declined most emphatically to come, it is said, as did all the other preachers summoned until Rev. Mr. Hanna was called. The latter went to the pesthouse.

His ministrations were so acceptable to the fever-stricken patients that both were converted to his church and were baptized by him. Upon Hanna's return home he was immediately called upon by the town officials and ordered into quarantine. Mr. Hanna immediately returned to the pesthouse, where he continued his ministrations until one of the young ladies died. None of her friends would serve as pallbearers, and so Mr. Hanna, with the doctor, a Catholic; the nurse, Miss Cronin, an Episcopalian, and the colored cook, carried the coffin to the grave. The grave digger fled on their arrival and the discovery was then made that the grave was six inches too short. Mr. Hanna and the cook jumped in and completed the job. Then the minister returned to the pest house and remained there till his quarantine was removed. Now his congregation is nearly twice as large as it was.

HINKLEY'S BONE LINIMENT FOR INTERNAL AND EXTERNAL USE.

For Rheumatism Apply freely to the parts affected, and bandage with flannel, keep the bandage moist by frequent applications of Liniment, and take internally a small teaspoonful twice a day in half a cup of hot water.

For Inflammation It acts like magic, and there is no doubt of the immediate relief. For fifty years this grand old medicine has been the cure for every pain, wherever and whenever it has been used. Should be in every home. Sold everywhere, 25c, 50c and $1.00 per bottle.

WHITE SUPREMACY.

The Slogan of the Democrats In Baltimore.

Baltimore, April 15.—"White supremacy," is the Democratic slogan in the campaign for mayor and control of the city council. In Baltimore the Negro vote has been steadily increasing. The new ballot law intended to confuse the Negro voter no longer has that effect. Political schools conducted by the Republicans in every precinct have taught the black man how to read and mark his ballot. While the Republicans when in control did not place any Negroes in important state or municipal offices, the Democrats are now telling the voters that Wachter is under such obligations to them that he will have to appoint them on the school board and in other positions.

RELIANCE DIPS FORWARD.

Presents Different Appearance From Former Defenders.

Bristol, R. I., April 15.—With the main mast and most of its rigging in place, and the bowsprit attached, the bow of the cup defender Reliance has settled and she floats now with the bow much lower than the after part. Even when the main boom is on board, and the boat attains her designed balance, it is thought that she will still be distinguishable from the other 90-footers at a distance by a dip forward. It seems certain that she has a lower free board than the Constitution by at least si inches.

The riggers are at work rigging up a double bobstay which is somewhat of an innovation in cup defenders.

An extra set of spars, including the gaff, boom and mast, exact duplicates of the ones now aboard are being made for the yacht.

CHICAGO EMPLOYERS

Tell of the Organization They Have Formed.

Chicago, April 15.—Frederick W. Job, secretary of the Employers' Association of Chicago, set at rest the speculation which has been indulged in for months in labor circles regarding the objects and personnel of the association. He announced the names of the officers and the objects of the organization. Regarding its membership he was reticent, although he said it included practically every association of employers in the city.

The officers are: President, John G. Shedd, Marshall Field & Co.; first vice president, Robert W. Thorne, Montgomery Ward & Co.; second vice president, Frank H. Armstrong, Reid, Murdock & Co.; treasurer, William E. Clow, James B. Clow & Sons; secretary, Frederick W. Job. Some of the objects of the association as set forth in the constitition are:

To secure for employers and employes freedom of contract in the matter of employment, irrespective of whether or not an employer or employe is a member of any organization.

To oppose restriction of output, sympathetic strikes, and boycotts, which, through their frequency in the past in Chicago, have been a constant menace to its industrial progress.

To prevent any interference with persons seeking to work and earn a living.

To avert industrial disturbances; to harmonize difficulties between employers and employes, so that justice may be done to both sides; to favor arbitration of serious differences between employers and employes.

Lakesiders Not Pleased With Changed Street Car Schedule.

Forced to Ride on Small Cars—Last Car Earlier.

The Lakesiders are not satisfied with the street car service under the schedule which went into effect Sunday.

Some people will smile and ask if the Lakeside people were ever satisfied with their street car service, but there may be something in their complaint, nevertheless.

Under the new schedule they have twenty-minute service, but claim that the big cars take forty minutes for a trip, where formerly they took but thirty, and that, therefore, they are forced to ride more on the single cars, and having tasted of the delights of riding on double-truck cars, the Lakesider strenuously objects to riding on the antiquated vehicle with which the East End resident is forced to be content. They would rather have the old half-hour service and ride on double truck cars altogether.

Another complaint is that the time of leaving Third avenue West of the last car out at night has been placed at 11:45, where is was formerly 12:00. They believe that a properly regulated schedule would provide for the last car to leave later in summer than in winter, instead of earlier. In summer down town pleasures are apt to be more attractive than in winter, and the people will want to stay down town later in that season.

SENSATIONAL TESTIMONY

Given By Frank Cecil at the Howard Trial.

Frankfort, Ky., April 15—Frank Cecil, who has been away from Kentucky since his indictment last year as an accessory to the murder of Governor Goebel, and who recently surrendered, gave sensational testimony in the trial of James Howard today. Cecil corroborated Culton, Broughton, Golden and others as to the alleged conspiracy. He also said that Caleb Powers, then secretary of state, told him that a man had been secured to come here from the mountains to kill Goebel. If this man failed to arrive, Powers told him, he (Cecil) would be paid $2500 if he would fire the shot. Cecil says he declined. Governor W. S. Taylor, he testified, called him into his private office and told him the same thing. Governor Taylor said he had saved $2500 from his campaign fund and that he would pay immediately. Governor Taylor also mentioned Youtsey to the witness, and referred witness to him.

CORONER CALLED

To Investigate a Tragedy at Mount Kisco, N. Y.

White Plains, N. Y., April 15.—The coroner has been summoned to Mount Kisco to investigate a report that Isaac Erogstrom, a stableman, had killed his wife by cutting her throat, attempted to kill his stepdaughter, who fled, and then tried to commit suicide by cutting his own throat. The man may recover.

The killing is said to have been the result of a recent quarrel between the man and his wife.

LAKE SHORE TRAIN WRECKED.

Cleveland, April 15.—A westbound Lake Shore passenger train ran into a freight at Conneaut early this morning. The passenger engine was demolished. Two men, Arnold Kentley and Ed Dennis, machinists, of Syracuse, N. Y., who were riding in the freight caboose, are said to be badly hurt. It is believed that no passengers were hurt.

Girls, now is the time to take Rocky Mountain Tea. Clears the complexion, cures pimples, blackheads; makes the skin soft and fair; bright eyes, rosy cheeks and sweet breath. 35 cents. S. F. Boyce.

BALL GAME POSTPONED.

Philadelphia, April 15.—Owing to inclement weather for the opening game of the National league baseball season, scheduled for today between Philadelphia and Boston, was postponed.

RACING BILL KILLED.

Harrisburg, April 15.—The Phillips' racing bill was killed today by orders of the senate. The bill had been introduced for the purpose of legalizing betting on race tracks in Pennsylvania, and had been passed by the house.

PRICE OF COPPER

Walker Finds the Market In an Unsettled Condition.

Scarcity of Money Affecting Prices of Copper Shares.

Walker in his copper letter says:

The copper market is in an unsettled condition. Lake is offered at 15¼ cents, electrolytic at 15¼ cents and casting at 15 cents. At the moment is it not known that there are bids for more than small lots at anything near these prices. The continued decline in stock market prices has affected confidence in the metal trade as it is doing in all other departments of industry, and no one is buying more goods of any character than he requires for immediate use. Consumers are dumbfounded by the crash in security prices; but the very fact that the decline threatens to undermine confidence in the general business situation gives promise that the strongest financial interests will soon come to the rescue of the stock market. The worst in that direction is undoubtedly over.

There is not likely to be any material decline in the prices of copper. Practically all of the producing companies are sold out two to four months in advance, and therefore will not be disposed to offer the market down. As soon as confidence is restored by a turn in the course of security prices buying of copper for future delivery will likely be resumed. The developments of the past three weeks should remove the last vestige of doubt as to the legitimacy of the advance in copper prices. It is now very plain that had the price been advanced by manipulation it would have been carried up in a manner more favorable to the stock market, and also that the metal would have been offered down as soon as its influence on stocks was spent. Everything relating to the metal situation bespeaks health and strength.

Discussing Metal Exchange quotations for copper, the American Metal Market, a leading journal of the trade, declares that "the Metal Exchange has not yet risen to the dignity of a factor in the copper market, hence the absurdity of treating its quotations as representing the real copper market is manifest." In relation to the sensation caused last week by an offer of 3,000,000 pounds of Lake at 14½ cents per pound, it says that not as much copper as this has been sold on the Metal Exchange in the past thirteen months, all told.

COPPER SHARES.

The movement of prices in the copper share market continues to be controlled by external forces. The copper situation is sound, and the market for the metal is high enough and strong enough to warrant a good advance in copper mining stocks. Everything pertaining to the industry itself is in a most healthy condition, and those who have been persistently bullish on the coppers cannot, therefore, blame themselves and should not be blamed by others. No one has been fooled by false quotations or misrepresentations, for none have been made. The metal market is all that has been claimed for it; and the failure of the stock market to respond to its influence is wholly due to disaster in other lines of activity.

The selling of coppers during the past three or four weeks has been due to the scarcity of money and to the fear of unfortunate developments from the struggle for supremacy going on in Wall street between two financial giants. I do not believe that the banking and general business interests will be allowed to feel the pinch of monetary stringency much longer. The country was never in a more prosperous condition than now; the affairs of government were never in the hands of better business men; wiser heads never presided in Wall street and State street; and greater plans for financial and industrial developments never engrossed the attention of leading banking interests. There has been heavy liquidation of securities. Prices have declined almost steadily since last September, and the leading railroad stocks average something like $.0 per share lower now than last fall. Things have been going one way long enough, and precedent and reason dictate that the time for improvement must be very near at hand.

All markets have to pass through these long periods of decline and liquidation. Coppers passed through the house-cleaning period a year ago. The copper industry literally collapsed, and the prices of mining stocks dropped more than 50 per cent on the average. It was declared at the time by the timid and the pessimistic that over-production had ruined the copper mining business and that the coppers would never recover what they had lost. The market, however, passed through the "slough of despond," the business revived and the future outlook for copper mining was never brighter than it is today. Now the railroad and industrial stocks have also had their decline. Weak accounts have been liquidated and all of the security markets are therefore on a firmer basis. Bear speculation in railroad stocks cannot much longer continue to drag down the coppers. The very weakness that the market has passed through has strengthened its position. I believe that we shall see higher prices for coppers this year than have been recorded during the past three months, and also that an with money to buy good copper stocks excellent opportunity is afforded the man at current prices and secure large profits.

SEVEREST IN YEARS.

Hard Northeaster Is Raging at Atlantic City.

New York, April 15.—At Atlantic City and Asbury Park, the severest northeaster that has visited that part of the Jersey coast since 1895 has been raging for twenty-four hours. The tide at 9 o'clock last night was the highest that has been known for eighteen years. Huge breakers are crashing against the piling beneath the piers and pavilions and heavy timbers from the board walk have been ripped up by the incessant bombardment of the waves and carried out to sea.

UP GOES SUGAR AGAIN.

New York, April 15.—All grades of refined sugar were advanced 5 cents per hundred pounds today.

BOOT AND SHOE HOUSE FAILS.

Chicago, April 15.—The wholesale boot and shoe house of N. Greenfelder & Co., one of the largest concerns of the kind in the city, has assigned, and Frederick T. Ryder, Boston, has been appointed receiver. An inventory of the stock is being taken and it will be impossible to estimate the assets until it is finished.

IMMENSE TRAFFIC

Through the Sault Canals Shown By Last Year's Report.

Traffic Was Greatest In the History of Lake Commerce.

Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., April 15.—Just at the opening of the season of navigation the report of last year's work on the Sault Ste. Marie canals is of particular interest.

The annual statistical report of the lake commerce passing through the American and Canadian locks at Sault Ste. Marie has been compiled and issued by Maj. W. H. Bixby, United States engineer in charge of the public works and improvements in this district.

The following is a resume of the amount of tonnage and aggregate cargoes which passed through these great waterways between Lake Superior:

The total freight traffic of 35,961,146 net tons for the navigational season of 1902 is the maximum so far known for any one year in the history of the canals. It exceeds the traffic of the preceding year by 7,558,083 tons, or 2 7per cent; such yearly gain being the largest yet known in amount, although not in percentage, and being 3,536,925 tons more than the previous largest yearly increase of 4,021,146 tons in 1889, and 12 per cent less than the 39 per cent yearly increase in 1886.

The increased tonnage was general for all the principal items of freight, with the exception of hard coal, manufactured iron, salt and building stone.

The total number of passengers was 59,377; a decrease of 286 from season of 1901.

The season of navigation was the longest yet on record, and continued for a period of eight months and twenty days, during which time the average monthly traffic was 4,149,363 tons.

The American canal passed 31,232,095 net tons of freight, being a yearly increase of 5,650,757 tons, or 22 per cent, and passengers, 22,778, a yearly decrease of 6923, or 23 per cent, as compared with the season of 1901.

The American canal passed 87 per cent of the total freight and 38 per cent of the total number of passengers.

The American canal opened April 5 and closed Dec. 16, 1902, making the length of its season 256 days.

The Canadian canal passed 4,728,351 net tons of freight, being a yearly increase of 1,907.34 tons, or 68 per cent; and 36,599 pasengers, a yearly increase of 6637, or 22 per cent as compared with season of 1901.

The Canadian canal passed 13 per cent of the total freight and 62 per cent of the total number of passengers.

The Canadian canal was opened April 1 and closed Dec. 29, 1902, making the length of its season 264 days.

Vessel passages through both canals numbered 22,659, showing a yearly gain of 2618 passages, or 13 per cent as compared with the 20,041 passages of 1901. The total lockages numbered 1846, showing a yearly gain of 1525 lockages, or 13 per cent.

The forty-five new vessels put in commission for the Lake Superior trade were large steam freighters, ranging from 225 to 436 feet in length, and designed for economical speed of 12 miles per hour on a draft of 19 to 21 feet.

The depth of water in entrance channels and through the canals and locks permitted a safe draft of 17½ to 19 feet.

The growth of the Lake Superior commerce during the past half century has been phenomenal. The estimated amount and value of articles which crossed the portage at Sault Ste. Marie in 1851, to and from Lake Superior, was 1600 net tons, valued at $1,675,000.

In 1861, a decade later, the traffic through the state locks was 88,000 net tons, valued at $5,600,000.

In 1871, 585,000 net tons, valued at $13,000,000.

In 1881, through the state and Weitzel locks, 1,567,741 net tons, at $30,000,000.

In 1891, through Weitzel lock, 8,885,759 net tons, at $128,178,208.

In 1901, through Weitzel, Poe and Canadian locks, 28,403,665 net tons, at $289,906,895.

Thus, the percentage of increase in tonnage of each year's traffic over that of the preceding year have averaged as follows:

1851-1860	21 per cent
1861-1870	21 per cent
1871-1880	19¼ per cent
1881-1890	19 per cent
1891-1900	12¾ per cent
Average, 1851-1900	16 2-5 per cent

The American canal postoffice delivered 162,684 pieces of mail during the season of 1902, consisting of 144,368 letters, 6424 postals, 12,057 newspapers; 835 parcels; also returned 1097 pieces to the city postoffice after being held thirty days uncalled for, and forwarded 3859 pieces to new addresses. This shows an increase over the previous year of 44,414 pieces of mail. The carrying, distributing and delivering of marine mail was done by the office employes in addition to their regular duties of receiving masters' reports and keeping the traffic records.

AT WEST DULUTH

The successful conclusion to which the negotiations between the Zenith Furnace company and the city authorities have been brought is the chief topic of discussion in West Duluth today. The business men of the town are almost unanimous in their approval and enthusiasm over the plan, and believe the company has made a very generous proposition.

"If the agreement between the Zenith Furnace company and the city is signed, as it doubtless will be," said Alderman Barnes, "it will be one of the best things that ever happened to West Duluth. It will mean the expenditure of hundreds of thousands of dollars in West Duluth this summer, the founding of an industry that will employ hundreds of men, and the furnishing of gas to this end of the city, for which we have been striving for years, at a greatly reduced price. And, further, there will be no long delay. The plans are all prepared, and the company will commence supplying the gas before the first of next January."

J. Allyn Scott, secretary of the West Duluth Commercial club, said of the plan: "I have not studied the details, but on the face of it, it looks to be the best thing that ever happened to West Duluth."

Other merchants and business men expressed the same views, and all appear to desire the early signing of the contract.

MILL OPERATIONS

Not Likely to Begin Before Next Week.

The opening of the Merrill & Ring mill has been delayed on account of repairs to the machinery and the thickness of the ice in the bay. The mill will commence operations Monday morning with a full day crew.

It is probable that Monday and Tuesday of next week will see the opening of the four mills in West Duluth.

The Alger-Smith mill will also be ready to commence sawing and will probably open with two shifts, running night and day.

The Lesure Lumber company has completed the repairs to its mill and will reopen during the early part of next week.

The repairs on the St. Louis mill are about completed and it will resume operations Monday.

The ice is still of considerable thickness in the upper bay, although it is much honeycombed, and is proving a greater obstacle than was expected to the mills without ponds.

HOUSE PARTLY BURNED.

Defective Chimney Causes Fire on Sixtieth Avenue.

A defective chimney at 516 South Sixtieth avenue was the cause of a bad fire at an early hour this morning. The house, which is occupied by Charles Rossiter, was badly damaged, the top story and roof being destroyed. No. 518 was also badly scorched, the roof and some of the siding being blackened.

A delay in turning in the alarm caused the fire to be much more serious than it might otherwise have been. It is claimed that the alarm was not turned in until the residents of 518 were aroused by the flames, and that by the time the department was notified of the fire all of the furniture had been removed from the top story of Mr. Rossiter's house and the place was given over to the flames. One of the firemen claimed that the house must have been burning fifteen minutes before the alarm was sounded.

BALL TEAM AT IT.

The West Duluth baseball team is holding practices every evening on the ball grounds at the head of Fifty-second avenue. Thursday afternoon is the regular practice day and a full turn out of the men is held on that day.

The new men are showing up well Williams at third being an exceptionally good infielder. His throwing to first is perfect and he is very fast upon his feet.

The old players are all up to their mark and are improving with every practice. The game Sunday with the Big Duluth team is expected to be a close and well-contested match.

LA FAVRE-COBURN.

Miss Jeanette La Favre, of Fiftieth avenue west, and William Coburn were married last evening by Rev. Father Feehely.

Mr. Coburn has charge of the shingle mill of the Merrill & Ring Lumber company, and is well known in West Duluth. The bride is a popular young West Duluth lady.

Miss Isabelle McDonald acted as bridesmaid and Oliver Buell assisted the groom.

The service was performed at the residence of Father Feehely in the presence of a few of the intimate friends of the young couple.

Mr. and Mrs. Coburn will make their home in West Duluth.

LARGEST CIRCULATION IN DULUTH.

TO SUBSCRIBERS:

It is important when desiring the address of your paper changed, to give both old and new address.

THE MERGER APPEAL.

According to well authenticated dispatches from Washington, two things have been decided upon in connection with the decision of the circuit court in the Northern Securities case. One is that the argument on appeal before the United States supreme court will not be heard during the present term of the court. The other is that until the supreme court renders a final decision on the appeal, definitely upholding the opinion of the circuit court judges or rejecting the same, the attorney general will not file new suits to dissolve other mergers in alleged violation of the Sherman anti-trust law. The counsel for the Northern Securities company have announced their intention of filing an appeal as soon as they can get hold of the complete court record. It is estimated by that the supreme court will have adjourned before the necessary steps in the filing of records and preparation of arguments can be taken. The court will adjourn the first week in June, and, following the custom of years, will decline to hear arguments after May 1. The period between May 1 and adjournment will be consumed in writing and handing down decisions. It is believed that three weeks or a month will be required for the counsel on the two sides to get into shape the ponderous records in the case, which would leave only about two weeks for the hearing of argument, provided, of course, that the court would be willing to listen to arguments after May 1.

If the court were to make this very unusual concession is would be a matter of much surprise, and the old attorneys on duty at the attorney general's office say it is exceedingly unlikely that this will happen. The best they look for is the granting of an application for the advancement of the case, so that it may be heard early in the fall term of the court. The government officials say that it is up to the other side to push further proceedings, and that advancement or expedition of the appeal before the supreme court will depend on the railroads. The government is now prosecuting suits against shippers of grain and the beef trust for violations of the anti-trust law and the interstate commerce act. These suits will naturally be pressed to a conclusion, regardless of the recent decision, but, as before stated, there is good authority for the statement that the attorney general will not file additional suits to dissolve mergers of corporations until after the decision of the supreme court is handed down on the appeal that is about to be taken.

There are many railroad combines of two or more roads that are particularly anxious to know the outcome of the merger case. They do not know now whether they are to be affected by the decision or not. For that reason they are awaiting the decision of the supreme court. It seems certain at present that if the supreme court sustains the circuit court decision there will be a great shaking up of the smaller combines.

THE GENERAL STAFF.

In selecting the general staff corps, the records of 790 officers were studied, and the selections a few days ago were made therefrom and includes, as was announced, Capt. D. D. Gaillard, of this city. The staff corps does not begin operations until Aug. 15, at which date the law creating it become effective. Gen. Miles retires Aug. 8, and it is no mere coincidence that the staff corps does not become a vital agency of administration until after he has ceased doing active service. The date was fixed at the suggestion of Secretary Root himself, who stated as his reason for the request, the opposition to his staff ideas entertained by Gen. Miles. The secretary very naturally did not desire to have the new organization start its career in an atmosphere of antagonism. As it was, Secretary Root did not get from congress all he asked, for that body resolutely refused to abolish the inspector general's department, whose chief pleaded strenuously and successfully for its retention. All officers serving on the general staff are detailed for four years only. This shortness of detail is in response to the purpose of the project, which is to make line officers practically acquainted with staff duties, and staff officers with those of the line. The hope of the war department is that by this means new blood will constantly be infused in the staff organization. Whether this desirable result will be attained in practice remains to be seen. The fact that out of the 4000 or more officers of the army only forty-nine applied for service in the general staff corps suggests either a languid interest in the project or positive disbelief in its efficiency. The shortness of the detail deters many officers, and the expensiveness of residence in Washington others. But the staff corps is new and with demonstration of its usefulness by accomplishment may prove more attractive to that element the government desires to attract.

It is hoped that the general staff will do all that is expected of it. It is true that the old army organization was antiquated and sometimes ineffective. If this new organization can prove its usefulness then it will be just what is wanted, not only for the army, but for the navy.

The German naval critics will take note that on a recent trial the gunners on the Iowa made 30 hits in 30 shots with 6-pound guns.

CHEAP GAS FOR DULUTH.

The agreement betweeen the city and the Zenith Furnace company, under which the city will be furnished with gas from a mammoth by-product coke plant to be located by the company at West Duluth, has been ratified by the city council, and the arrangement may now be regarded as definitely settled. The arrangement is of very great importance to the people of Duluth, because it assures to them a supply of gas for illuminating, cooking, house heating and manufacturing purposes at prices that are not duplicated in any other city in the country. According to the deal that has been consummated, gas for cooking and illuminating purposes will sell next fall for 90 cents per 1000 feet, which is a reduction of 10 cents from the present water and light department price. Gas for house heating and manufacturing purposes will be furnished for 75 cents per 1000 feet, a reduction of 25 cents on the current rate. It is claimed that at this rate, houses can be heated with gas at the same price it would cost to heat with coal, if the latter could be purchased for $7 a ton. The contract entered into between the city and the company covers a period of ten years, and if the gas consumption reaches the figures expected bfore the life of the contract ends the cost to consumers of gas for cooking and lighting purposes may be reduced to 60 cents per 1000 feet and for power and heating purposes to 55 cents per 1000 feet. The city will receive a revenue of 15 cents on every 1000 feet of gas sold, while it is guaranteed a revenue of $5000 annually from manufacturing and heating gas sales alone. An important feature of the contract is that the company will build all necessary pipe lines connecting with the city's system and will lay all the mains and service connections in West Duluth. The valuable privilege is also reserved to the city to lay water mains in the trenches opened by the company for gas mains, at no cost to the city for excavating. The contract has been so carefully drawn to guard the interests of the city that there does not appear to be any reason to doubt that the arrangement will be satisfactory from every point of view. It should also be remembered that with this contract the establishment of a valuable industry giving employment to many men is assured and the profitable and continuous operation of the blast furnace is made a certainty.

The last census reports shows that the average price of gas in the United States in 1900 was $1.035 per 1000 cubic feet. The price varied from $0.832 in Pennsylvania to $4.50 in Nevada. These averages represent the price of all manufactured gas, both fuel and illuminating, as the quantity of each kind was not separately reported. The quantity of gas sold in New York city was 18,108,821,125 cubic feet, at an average price of $0.905 per 1000. This represents 27.1 per cent of the total quantity sold in the United States during the census year. In this connection it is interesting to note the quantity, value and average price obtained in Chicago, Philadelphia, St. Louis and Boston, which, after New York, are the largest cities in the United States, in the order named. The quantity sold for public use in Chicago reached 8,367,801,115 cubic feet, valued at $7,288,187, an average of $0.871 per 1000 cubic feet. In Philadelphia, 7,055,539,210 cubic feet sold for $5,372,774, an average of $0.761 per 1000. This is the lowest average price reported in any city. St. Louis consumed 1,607,230,800 cubic feet, valued at $1,494,616, an average of $0.93 per 1000 cubic feet. In Boston there were 2,510,635,235 cubic feet of gas burned, with a value of $2,594,852, or $1.034 per 1000 cubic feet.

All these are cities where the consumption of gas reaches very large totals, yet in nearly every case the average price is much greater than it will be in Duluth; where the consumption is many times smaller. In St. Paul, the consumers pay $1.35 per 1000 cubic feet. The people of Duluth may consider themselves fortunate in securing such cheap gas for illuminating, cooking, heating and manufacturing purposes.

SPANISH TREATY CLAIMS.

The people of the United States who have claims before the Spanish claims commission are wondering if that august body will ever hand down its decisions. It has been more than two years now since the commission was established by special act of congress. One case has been heard and settled. The commission has taken up most of the time since its creation in long recesses and in wordy warfare with the lawyers who have filed claims before it. It has been one bitter wrangle between commissioners and the attorneys. Both sides have appealed to congress for help, but that body ignored all demands. However the claimants are now a little more hopeful, for the commission has promised decisions in a few days which will have a direct bearing on the 500 or more claims on file, and which aggregate about $60,000,000. Some of the attorneys interested in the cases do not believe that the decisions will be made right away as promised. According to their idea the commissioners are merely maneuvering to continue the official life of the Spanish claims commission, realizing that as soon as all the claims are paid off they will have to hunt new jobs. While the attorneys have been frantically clamoring for adjudication of their cases, the commission has insisted on setting up principles of law on which those interested have been invited to submit arguments.

The whole course of the commission has excited adverse comments and even ridicule. While the commissioners are still wrestling with academic questions, death and old age are gradually taking off the claimants. One attorney originally had twenty-five claims before the commission. In four of these cases the claimants have died since their papers were filed, and in a fifth, which involved a father and two sons, all three are now dead. The commission was established in March, 1901, to run for two years, with authority vested in the president to extend its official life for periods of six months at a time, without limit on the number of extensions. The two years are up, and President Roosevelt has made the first extension of six months. It is supposed that when congress meets the warring factions will renew their appeals to that body. The attorneys want the right to carry appeals to the United States supreme court, and the commission proposes to retaliate by establishing a limit of fees. A bill was passed at the last session giving to the commission the power to punish for contempt now enjoyed by the circuit and district courts of the United States; consequently, lawyers arguing before the commission are very guarded in what they say about the commissioners. It seems even to a layman that there has been unnecessary delay and the sooner some definite results are accomplished the better opinion the people will have of the commission.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"They're filling up a lake now, all the available property for drilling purposes apparently having been exhausted in the neighborhood of Hibbing," said J. J. Stuart of that city while at the St. Louis hotel. "It isn't much of a lake, probably a half mile long or so, and as wide, practically the only sheet of water in close proximity of the place, and called Carson Lake.

"When the land is all filled in and the location is dry, the earth will be stripped. Drills are working on the lake now, and the ore that is being taken out is of an excellent quality. Butler Bros. have been given the contract of stripping the mine when the time comes, and it is expected they will get to work in a few weeks now, as the filling in is going on rapidly, and the drilling is almost through."

"The little town of Nashwauk is fairly bursting under the pressure of its growth," said a resident of that city at the St. Louis hotel this morning. "The people are crowding in by the score, and it will be impossible to house them within a week, now. Lumber simply can't be secured in quantities large enough to build the structures that are required for residences and places of business today.

"The village has grown double since last fall, and you can bet all the money you want to that there will be 4000 people there in the course of two years.

"The mines that are being found in the vicinity, the Crosby mine, for instance, are bringing in all kinds of men, and many are bringing their families with them. This is causing a large increase, and to a place without the necessary accommodations, it is something that will cause a lot of bother in its immediate growth."

"A BIG STICK" NEEDED.

Washington Post: "Speak softly and carry a big stick; you will go far." The president quoted this old adage at Chicago the other night in connection with our naval policy and the Monroe doctrine. "If the American nation," he said, "will speak softly and yet build and keep at a pitch of the highest training a thoroughly efficient navy, the Monroe doctrine will 'go far.' That doctrine," he added, "is not international law, and though I think one day it may become such, this is not necessary as long as it remains a cardinal feature of our foreign policy and as long as we possess both the will and the strength to make it effective."

It is advisable, for many reasons, to have "a thoroughly efficient navy," and that seems to be the settled purpose of the American people. Since the work of constructing modern ships was begun under President Arthur and Secretary Chandler by the building of Chicago, Boston, Atlanta and Dolphin, there has been no halting. We have gone as fast and as far as we should in that space of time, and we shall move steadily forward. The nation that would have a good navy must not pause in construction and remodeling. It is one of the most expensive of all national necessities. It is, however, less expensive and safer to keep a navy strong and efficient all the time than to let it fall off from concert pitch and bring it up again in an emergency.

But the bigness of our "big stick" consists less in fighting apparatus and fighting men, essential as they are, than in other elements of greatness that have given this republic its indisputable primacy in the family of nations. Our material resources and our ability to make the best use of them, coupled with our traditional policy of fair treatment of all countries, make us strong alike in war and peace. There are few spectacles more absurd and, to the moralist, more pitiful than that of a nation with third-class resources posing as a first-class power and maintaining a comparatively strong navy by the most cruelly oppressive taxation. The latest power of the United States, its known ability to raise and equip armies and to buy or build ships and guns at short notice, is the greatest factor in our defenses.

Safe Paths to Follow.

St. Louis Globe Democrat: The employes of the Wabash can cordially recommend peaceful methods, obedience to law and arbitration to labor organizations generally.

Awful to Contemplate.

Detroit Free Press: A shudder of horror goes over the entire country at the thought of Mr. Keene trying to hold up Mr. Harriman on Southern Pacific. Can it be possible that Wall street has abandoned its former exalted standard of ethics?

Government Revenue.

Springfield Republican: Government fiscal operations during March contrast peculiarly with those of the month last year. Customs revenues is some $2,000,000 larger and internal revenue $3,000,000 smaller, leaving a total income $1,000,000 smaller; but expenditures are larger by nearly $7,000,000, leaving a surplus of less than $500,000, contrasted with $34,000,000 in March of last year. Expenses on account of war and navy were 50 per cent larger than a year ago. Previous surplus calculations for the fiscal year have been a little upset by the March experience, though the latter months maw serve to right them again.

THE WEATHER.

United States Agricultural Department Weather Bureau, Duluth, Synopsis of weather conditions for the twenty-four hours ending at 7 a. m. (central time), Wednesday: The Ohio valley storm has moved to Middle Atlantic states, causing copious rains over the greater portion of the Lake Region, upper Mississippi and Ohio valleys and North Atlantic states, and brisk to high winds in North Atlantic states and over most of the lake region. The winds in the latter region are fresh to brisk northeast this morning. Pressures continue high and the weather fair and cool in the northwest. It is much cooler in South Atlantic states and warmer over the Rockies and eastern slopes. The "low" that was developing Tuesday morning in the extreme Northwest has moved its center to Utah and caused rains over Oregon, Washington and British Columbia.

LINES TO A LAUGH.

Somerville Journal: Perhaps you have seen a woman suddenly stop weeping at a funeral when she has taken out her handkerchief and noticed that there is a hole in it.

American Hebrew: "Drop me a line!" cried the excursionist who had fallen overboard.

"What's the use?" calmly rejoined the alleged funny man of the party. "There isn't any postoffice where you are going."

Washington Star: "Don't stan' aroun' tellin' how much yoh would have won if yoh hoss had come in rust," said Uncle Eben. "It's jes' de same as braggin' 'bout a dinner yoh didn't git a chance to eat."

Chicago Tribune: Mrs. Woodby Ruyter—What does your husband do for a living?

Mrs. Kaution (haughtily)—He's an author.

Mrs. Woodby Ruyter—I know, so is mine; but I say what does your husband do for a living?

Chicago News: "Are you the man that sells tickets in the box-office?" queried a stranger in the playhouse.

"Do I look like I put on airs?" replied the other man, in an offended tone. "Why, I am only the owner of the theater."

Philadelphia Press: Major Burbon—I really don't know, suh, how old this whiskey is; had it in mah cellah for twenty weahs, but—

Colonel Kaintuck—Mah land, majah, how did that happen, suh; did yo' mislay it?

New York Times: Bings—How do you cook that new breakfast food you manufacture?

Bangs—Just add hot water and serve.

Bings—But how do you manage to place it before the public?

Bangs—Just add hot air and nerve.

Chicago News: He—I suppose you are aware of the tender feeling I have for you?

She—No; I'm quite in the dark.

He—That being the case, permit me to suggest that we strike a match.

Philadelphia Press: "Gracious!" exclaimed Lady Sybel Britton, "another member of our nobility is to marry an American concert hall singer. Isn't it terrible?"

"It is so," replied Miss Gotham, "but really, the average soubrette doesn't deserve much sympathy."

Believes the Jonah Story.

Frank Talmage, son of the famous T. De Witt Talmage, is more satisfied today than he was two months ago. Frank is a clergyman, and like all preachers, must answer at least once in his life certain stock questions. Among these questions are the "evolution of man," "eternal fire" and "Jonah's whale."

The question, propounded at a literary society composed of embryo orators and statesmen, was as follows: "Mr. Talmage, do you believe that the whale swallowed Jonah?" Without a moment's hesitation, Mr. Talmage said: "What proof you have, I have. Why the same facts should make me believe and you disbelieve, I cannot say. In order to come to a decision let me say that the whale did swallow Jonah. For Jonah was a preacher, and the whale has been spouting ever since."

Purpose of Labor Unions.

Minneapolis Journal: The labor unions aim at industrial democracy; they seek to change the present standards by which the laborer's share of production is decided. They frankly dispute the claim of the employer to have the sole right to determine what fair treatment shall be. Those paternalistic employers who build clubs for their workmen and erect model cities for them sometimes feel that there is no gratitude in workmen. But the workmen does not ask philanthropy or coddling; he asks for the recognition of what he conceives to be his rights, and one of these is participation with the employer in determining the manner in which the fruits of production shall be divided.

Sweet Morsels For Consumers.

Philadelphia Press: A new war of rates has broken out among the great sugar refiners, and as a result the prices of this great household staple have been suddenly lowered. While the strife of the monopolists shall continue life will be sweetened for the mass.

TIRZY'S CHOOSING

By Frank H. Sweet.

(Copyright, 1903, by Daily Story Pub. Co.)

The last rays of the sun softened the girl's red hair into a golden halo as she sat upon the log, her bare feet showing beneath the hem of her cheap print. On the log beside her was a sunbonnet, and pressing against the sunbonnet was the heive of an ax, such as only a very strong man was accustomed to wield.

The girl was evidently resting after a day of hard labor, for deep around her were scattered the still odorous pine chips, and on the other side of the log rose a huge pile of wood, cue into two feet chunks to fit the regulation fireplace of the mountain log and mud cabin.

A handsome, powerfully built man had come down the mountain path, bare foot, and, as he seemed to think, unnoticed, for he stopped a few yards away and regarded the girl for some time with an air of admiring ownership. She was leaning forward wearily, her chin in her hands. In the sunlight her hair was beautiful, and her form—even in its dejected attitude—was graceful and pleasing. The only appearance of feminine ornamentation was a pitiful attempt at a ruffle on the sunbonnet.

"Don't stan' thar gawkin' all day, Hoke," at last called the girl pettishly. But without turning or raising her head. "Ye ain't no skeered rabbit to patter along over the leaves an' stop with one paw up; an' I ain't no great to look at. How's all?"

"Toler'ble," answered the man, as he came forward sheepishly. "But I wa'n't skeered; an' ye needn't say ye ain't no great to look at, Tirzy, for 'taint so. I've come clear from B'ar Lick to ast ye what I ast ye last week. When ye goin' to marry me?"

Dunno's ever," shortly.

"But yo' paw's done dead," earnestly; "an' yo' cabin's plumb two mile from ary other. Ye can't live hyer all by yo'se'f, Tirzy. 'Tain't proper."

"An' why not?" lifting her head defiantly. "Ain't I got a bigger truck patch than any man on the mountain, an' ain't I kept hit worked better? An' didn't I he'p paw build the cabin, cuttin' an' totin' the logs an' mixin' the mud myself? An' did ary man on the mountain ever cut mo' fireplace wood in one day than that?" rising suddenly to her feet and flinging out one hand toward the day's work.

Hoke surveyed the wood critically, appreciatively.

"N—no, I don't reckon I ever did see so much cut in one day, Tirzy," he acknowledged; "though I ain't sayin' but lots o' men could if they set out."

"Yes, that's jest hit," scornfully, "if they set out. But men folks roun' hyer don't set out to do nothin' but hunt coons an' drink still whisky an' smoke corncob pipes. Hit's the wimmen who work truck patches an' chop wood an' milk cows, an' do everything else that's sure 'nough work. But what all use talkin'," dropping her arms again listlessly. "Thar's no difference 'tween you men folks. I think a heap o' you, Hoke, like I said last week. You're big an' good natured, an' the han'somest man roun'; but all ye've got in the worl' is a rifle an' four dogs, an' a tumble-down cabin that's scarcely fit to live in; an' I've heered ye say yo'se'f that ye could drink mo' corn whisky than ary man on the mountain an' not show hit. An' ye go barefoot, too, Hoke. I 'low mebbe I'll have to marry somebody, some time; but I did ust to say when a gal that I'd never marry no man as didn't wear shoes."

Hoke looked down at his feet reflectively. "I don't reckon thar's but one man on the mountain who w'ars shoes stiddy," he observed sarcastically. "Mebbe he'd marry ye if ye ast him."

"Ye mean Ground Hog," flashed back the girl instantly. "Well, he ast me last Chuesday, an' I tole him like I did you, I'd study hit over a spell."

Hoke looked at her incredulously for a moment, then threw back his head in a roar of laughter that echoed through the forest. "Told—him—you'd—study—hit—Tirzy," he ejaculated, between his bursts of merriment; "told Ground Hog that. Ho, ho! I'll shore have to let all the boys know." Then instantly he became sober. "Why, Tirzy," he remonstrated, "hit's sca'alous! You're the mat'somest an' peartest gal on the mountain, an' the best worker. Any man would be glad to have ye. An' he," contemptuously, "he's jest an outside onstepper, comin' hyer an' fencin' in land an' diggin' in the dirt the whole endurin' day; an' he totes his truck down into the valley on his own back an' peddles hit roun'. Huh! He couldn't hit a b'ar ten foot off with a shotgun, an' he don't chaw an' don't know the taste o' whisky—why, I 'low one spoonful would set him plumb crazy. But he does w'ar s-h-o-e-s," prolonging the word derisively; "an' you're goin' to—study—'bout—him."

"Yes, I am," quietly. "He knows how to work, an ain't skeered of hit. An' up whar he comes from wimmen folks don't milk an' cut fireplace wood—up thar the men folks looks out for the wimmen. If Ground Hog—I mean Mr. Allen—marries me, hit won't be jest 'cause he alms to be mo' comf'table. But h'sh, here he comes now."

A man had suddenly emerged from the woods and was approaching them rapidly. Hoke was still standing several yards away. As the stranger came to about the same distance, an idea seemed to strike the girl, for she raised her hand warningly.

"Don't come any closer, either of you," she called; "I was down to Back Creek yesterday."

"Back Creek!" echoed Hoke, recoiling a few steps. "Why, that's whar they have the smallpox, an' they say hit's turrible this season—everybody ketches hit that goes near."

"Yes, I've heered so," calmly—

"Oh, Tirzy, how could ye?" and Hoke make a few more involuntary backward steps.

"I was 'bleged to, Hoke. I heered a gal I ust to know was down thar, an' I wanted to find out for shore."

The stranger was now at her side, and Tirzy had noticed with an odd look in her eyes that he had not shown the least hesitation at her startling announcement.

"Well, I'll see ye ag'in, Tirzy," Hoke called from a still greater distance. "An' I hope ye won't ketch hit, but I'm mightily afeared."

"I don't reckon thar's much danger, Hoke," the girl retorted; 'for I didn't git acrost the creek. I jest hollered, an' a woman answered that 'twa'nt the gal I knew at all."

Hoke paused abruptly and was turning to come back when something in the attitude of the two, who were now seated upon the log, made him grind out a few words between his teeth and swing savagely into the woods.

Youth's Companion: A pretty story is told of the way in which Nathaniel Hawthorne, when he was consul at Liverpool, tested a Yankee boy. The boy had gone to the consul's office to beg for a passage back to his home. He had gone abroad to seek his fortune, and, not finding it, had become almost penniless.

He told a clear story, but the clerk who heard it doubted its truth.

"You're not an American," he said to the boy; but the applicant for a passage to America persisted in waiting at the office until he saw Hawthorne himself.

At last the consul appeared, gave a quick glance at the boy and began to question him.

"You want a passage to America?" he asked.

"Yes, sir," said the boy, eagerly.

"And you say you're an American?"

"Yes, sir."

"In what part of America were you born?"

"The United States, sir."

"What state?"

"New Hampshire, sir."

"What town?"

"Exeter, sir."

Hawthorne waited a moment, and then bent toward the boy.

"Who sold the best appless in your town?" he asked.

The boy's eyes shone, and the homesick longing in them deepened.

"Skim-milk Folsom, sir!" he cried.

"It's all right," said Hawthorne to his clerk. "Give him his passage." And he shook the boy's hand and bade him Godspeed on his homeward way with much heartiness.

Generally one who has a good opinion of himself needs it.

The only thing that slanderers hate worse than the truth is the adage that every story has two sides.

Philadelphia Press: "The printing press shall be free," says the constitution of the state. Were it not for that safeguard the freedom of the press would be in great peril at the present time. The Salus bill might justly be denominated "a bill to encourage shysters and blackmailers against newspapers." In some respects it would entirely fail to reach the object at which it aims, but it has enough looseness of construction to be a mischievous and malicious measure, and it ought to be beaten.

GAS DEAL MADE

Council Ratifies Proposition Submitted By Water Board.

Long and Thorough Discussion of Its Effect.

An important Duluth industry is encouraged, municipal ownership is advanced and the cost of living reduced through the gas deal between the city and the Zenith Furnace company, consummated yesterday by the council.

The prime object of the proposition is the manufacture of pig iron in Duluth at a price sufficiently low to compete with the product of the Pittsburg district furnaces.

In order to cater into this competition the Zenith Furnace company, which has a plant at West Duluth, valued at about $300,000, finds it necessary to manufacture its own coke and sell the by-products, such as gas and tar, thus making sufficient money to put the highest grade of pig iron into the Western market at prices that will compel the attention of pig iron buyers.

The coke ovens to be built under this plan will not be like the coke ovens now operating at West Superior. The ovens across the bay are known as the Lehigh style of construction, and cost about $1200 each, while the West Duluth ovens will be of the bee hive style and will cost $8000 each.

The gas to be furnished from the new system will, it is claimed, be much superior to the gas now furnished from the municipal plant on Garfield avenue—the superior heat unit of coal gas over water gas being acknowledged by all experts, and in point of actual heat or light the gas which will be furnished at 90 cents and 75 cents per 1000 feet, under the new arrangement, would be equivalent to $1.15 worth of water gas now being used by the consumers of Duulth.

When the new arrangement becomes effective Duluth gas consumers can boast of a substantial reduction in cost over the gas consumers of other cities. As an instance of this, the people of St. Paul consume about 425,000,000 feet of gas annually at a net price of $1.35 per 1000 feet. When Duluth's consumption equals that amount of gas the net price to consumers here will be 60 cents per 1000 feet, or less than half the amount St. Paul consumers are paying.

The work of building the new coke plant will be well underway within sixty days. A. B. Wolvin of the company is now in New York and others interested will be there on Friday. The promoters of the Zenith company are all men of excellent financial standing in Duluth, Cleveland and Chicago. The sum of $600,000 will be expended in giving Duluth a thoroughly modern blast furnace and by-product coking system, and when these improvements are completed not later than next spring the West Duluth plant will represent an investment of practically $1,000,000.

The terms of the Furnace company for furnishing gas to the city struck several of the city officers and disinterested business men as being so liberal that they were in favor of a much longer contract than that agreed on, but the state law prohibits such a contract for a term of more than ten years.

The contract does not become operative until the furnace company is ready to actually furnish the city with a gas supply of 200,000,000 cubic feet a year, and this is guaranteed not later than Jan. 1, 1904.

The company also agrees to refrain from furnishing gas for any purpose that would compete with the municipal ownership business, except at the same price as allowed the city.

Some of the aldermen and strict friends of municipal ownership were in favor of having the agreement ironclad as to furnishing gas to the city alone, but the provision allowing prices to corporations or individuals at the same price as the city was finally decided on in view of the recent court decisions and anti-trust legislation against monopolies in any business.

As the contract stands, city officials believe municipal ownership is fully protected. There is only one gas franchise in the city of Duluth, and the city officers do not acknowledge the existence of this. The franchise referred to is known as the Prindle franchise, and under it several unused mains are laid in West Michigan street.

To those who feared possible competition it was pointed out that it would be impossible for this company to get a supply of gas from the Zenith Furnace company at a less cost than the city. There would be the great expense of building a system out to West Duluth, and in view of the fact that such an expenditure, with gas selling at such low rates as it will be offered by the city, there would be no chance for a competing corporation to make even interest on its investment, and that therefore municipal ownership seems amply protected in the contract.

A feature of the company's offer that has excited a great deal of favorable comment is that all extensions of gas mains desired by the Zenith Furnace company will be made by the water and light department at the Zenith company's expense. In other words, the company pays the cost even to the refilling of the ditches and putting streets back in condition, but the city maintains supervision of the work.

This removes the necessity for the city's issuing bonds connecting the western terminus of the municipal system at Twenty-eighth avenue west with the coking plant located on the St. Louis bay front at Fifty-fifth avenue west. It also arranges for the building of a thoroughly modern gas supply system throughout West Duluth. If the city had to build the West Duluth system the people of that part of the city might not be supplied with gas for a year or two years longer than it will take with the Zenith company building the lines itself.

These extensions of the Zenith company will ultimately become the property of the city, as there is a provision in the contract which says that the city shall reimburse the company at some future time, and without interest, when the income from the sale of gas for lighting and cooking purposes shall equal 10 per cent of the cost of such extensions.

The contract was gone over very thoroughly by the council and water and light commissioners yesterday afternoon, and each provision agreed on finally at another meeting of the council last night.

PREJUDICED JUROR

Talked Too Freely and Trial Was Stopped.

Rochester, N. Y., April 15.—The trial of Dr. Leland Kent for manslaughter, in driving Miss Ethel Dingle to suicide, came to a sudden close yesterday afternoon, when Judge Sutherland charged one of the jurors, David W. Conklin, with talking about the case, and ordered a new jury sworn in next Monday Conklin told different people that he would not convict Kent if he had to rot in the jury room. The peculiar nature of the case led some of the jurors to be especially bitter against Dr. Kent, whom they regarded as plainly to blame for Miss Dingle's suicide.

TORMENTED AN OLD MAN

Tony Stefano Lies at Eveleth Near Death as Result.

Marko Luiji, an Italian, was brought down from the range yesterday and lodged in the county jail, charged with shooting Tony Stefano, at Eveleth. Luiji claims that Stefano and another boy were tantalizing him at his boarding house and refused to stop when he warned them. He says he secured a gun and shot Stefano.

The charge of buckshot struck the boy in the chest and neck and his condition is serious.

Stefano's friends are said to have assaulted Luiji after the shooting. He bears the marks of the encounter, his eye being blacked, face cut and clothes torn.

Luiji is over 60 years old and says they can hang him if they desire to, that he is old enough to die, anyway.

CHICAGO OFFICIALS

Likely to Be Censured But Not Dismissed.

Washington, April 15.—Secretary Shaw has arranged to meet President Roosevelt at Des Moines April 28, to talk over the proposed changes in the office of assistant treasurer and collector of customs at Chicago. It is expected that a definite policy will be decided upon at this meeting.

The treasury department has not heard anything, either favorable or unfavorable, concerning Messrs. Williams and Nixon for several weeks. In fact interest in the matter seems to have died out, and it is probable that neither Mr. Williams nor Mr. Nixon will be dismissed, though they may receive official censure.

TO IMPORT COLORED HELP

Movement In Superior With That End In View.

A movement is under way by a large number of the women of West Superior, to secure through the Free Employment agency of that city and N. L. Smiley, of the West Superior hotel, colored girls from the South to supply their demand for servant girls. It is claimed that the servant girl problem at the head of the lakes is a serious one and that the girls are difficult to find.

The proposition made by Mr. Smiley is that he will guarantee to bring to the head of the lakes competent and trustworthy colored girls for general housework providing the housekeepers will enter an agreement to give them a fair trial at wages which they have been offering to white help.

It has been suggested that if the Superior housekeepers do not take readily to the importation of colored help there are many Duluth women who would enter into the agreement proposed if they could be included in the list of applicants.

Secretary Stewart, of the Superior Free Employment Bureau is receiving the applications in which is stated the name and address, wages paid, number of children, number of grown persons, number of rooms in the house and character of the work the girl is expected to do.

WAGES INCREASED.

Voluntary Action of the Walter A. Wood Company.

Hoosick Falls, N. Y., April 15.—The following notice has been posted in every department of the Walter A. Wood Mowing and Reaping Machine company's works:

On and after April 15 the price of all piece work in this department will be increased 10 per cent and all day wages will be increased 10 per cent per day."

The increase is attributed to a greater demand for labor in other places and the general prosperity.

FORMER BALL PLAYER

Ordained as an Evangelist By Chicago Presbytery.

Chicago, April 15.—William A. Sunday, ex-baseball player, faced the members of the Chicago presbytery Monday and answered many questions on creed, doctrine, church government, church history and theology. Sunday's answers scored a hit, and the ministers voted to ordain him a regular evangelist. A few of the questions were too much for Sunday, and he would answer, "That's too deep for me."

Afterward Sunday told the story of his conversion. "I used to go out nights with the boys of the ball club," he said. "One night we went down in State street and visited a number of saloons. As we came out of one of the places I was attraced by a small band of men and women praying and singing at the edge of the sidewalk. I listened and in a few minutes thoughts of mother, Sunday school and home came to me, and I sat down on the curb and cried. A moment later I arose and walked away, saying: 'Boys, I'm through with all this kind of business.'"

Sunday will be ordained at the Jefferson Park Presbyterian church tonight.

EMPLOYERS OF LABOR

Form a National Union For Mutual Protection.

Indianapolis, Ind., April 15.—Definite steps were taken here yesterday for the organization of a national union of employers of labor and non-union men when articles of association were filed incorporating the American Association of Independent Mechanics. The purpose is to protect non-union men who do not care to affiliate with unions, to encourage industry, economy, thrift and honesty among members, to maintain amicable relations between employes and employers, to assist its individual members in obtaining the highest wages consistent with the general good, to promote all forms of productive energy, to prevent all unjust discriminations against any person to furnish favorable conditions for apprentices, to provide trade educations for members, and to compel labor unions to observe and respect the laws. Members are required to take the following obligations:

"I do sincerely pledge my word and honor as a man to uphold and abide by the constitution and bylaws of this organization and to use all honorable means to further and strengthen the principals and cause of this organization and that if I have any work to be done that can be done by a member of this organization, I will give such member the preference, and I will at no time try by foul and unfair means to wrong a member of this organization and should I at any time violate this obligation it is to brand me as a man devoid of principle and destitute of honor, so help me God."

Similar articles will be filed in a number of states, and non-union unions formed at Anderson and Munice.

PROFESSOR PICKERING

Finds That There Is Frost on the Moon.

Cambridge, Mass., April 15.—Professor Pickering, of the Harvard observatory, will not make known the results of the observation of the recent eclipse of the moon until Tuesday. No photographs were taken, but a close observation was made to strengthen Professor Pickering's theory of the presence of hoar frost. That the spot is a deposit of hoar frost and not light reflected from rock is shown by the enlargement and increase of light. If the spot were stone, as had been supposed previously, no light would have been reflected while the earth's shadow was upon the moon.

DO NOT DOSE THE STOMACH.

Cures Catarrh by Nature's Own Method—Every Breath of Hyomei Brings Relief.

Nearly every one who has catarrh knows how foolish it is to try and cure it by drugging the stomach. Temporary relief may be given, but a cure seldom comes.

Until recently our physician would have said the only way to cure catarrh would be to have a change of climate; but now with Hyomei you can carry a health-giving climate in your vest pocket and by breathing it a few minutes four times a day soon cure yourself.

The complete outfit of Hyomei costs but $1.00 and consists of an inhaler that can be carried in the vest pocket, a medicine dropper and a bottle of Hyomei. The inhaler lasts a lifetime, and there is enough Hyomei for more than a month's treatment of catarrh. If one bottle does not cure, an extra bottle of Hyomei can be obtained for 50 cents. It is the most economical of all remedies advertised for the cure of catarrh, and is the only one that follows nature in her method of treating diseases of the respiratory organs.

S. F. Boyce has sold hundreds of Hyomei outfits and the more he sells, the more convinced he is that he is perfectly safe in guaranteeing to refund the money if Hyomei does not cure.

Those who are subject to catarrh or catarrhal colds will do themselves an injustice if they do not purchase a Hyomei outfit at once, so as to be prepared for the sudden changes of the season.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

Arthur Stiers Sentenced to Thirteen Months In the Pen.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

De Smet—At a special term of the circuit court, Judge Whiting sentenced Arthur Stiers to thirteen months in the penitentiary. On account of his previous good standing the state's attorney, C. P. Warren, asked for clemency, and the charge was changed from theft to grand larceny by the bank officers from whom he took the money. Stiers said he did not realize that he was doing wrong until after he had been gone several minutes, which was the reason he did not try to get away. His family is highly spoken of and his mother is almost prostrated over his act.

W. M. Zink was sentenced to fourteen months for adultery. He for a time ran a hotel here, but got into trouble with his wife and they separated. Before coming to De Smet he lived at Okeboji, Iowa, where he also kept hotel. While there he had some family trouble and tried to end his life by taking poison.

Bonesteel—E. H. Stone, one of the oldest citizens of this county, dropped dead of heart failure. He had been sick for about two months, but on the day of his death was apparently much better than usual and able to walk around the room. He was formerly one of the first jury which sat on a murder trial in Charles Mix county, when Millard Bailey was tried for the murder of his father and acquitted.

Canton—W. B. Sherrard, superintendent of the children's home at Sioux Falls has taken legal charge of five children belonging to William Thistle. Thistle's wife died about a year ago leaving him with six children. Soon afterwards Thistle disappeared. The children were turned over to the home, the authorities of which have secured places for them among respectable families in this county.

Huron—Rector F. W. Maccaud, in charge of Grace Episcopal church, for two years, has resigned and will remove to Flandreau about May 1, to become rector of an Episcopal church there.

Watertown—This city received a shock when the death of Mrs. J. D. Gayman was announced. She was one of the prominent ladies of the city. She was a member of the Degree of Honor and also of the Rebekahs. The funeral was held today from the Methodist church.

The Vienna roller mills were sold by the receiver, into whose hands they went about a month ago, to a company composed of W. A. Sharp and Walter M. Bail, of Clark, and E. C. Yeamans, of Volga. The consideration was $6500.

Judge Bennett has issued an order postponing the session of circuit court which was to convene in this city on April 15, to April 19. A special sitting of the court will be held next week to consider court cases.

Sioux Falls—As the result of a horse stealing raid among the herds of their brethren, two Sioux Indians named Samuel Big Wolf and Alexander Two Two will each serve terms of nine months in the Lawrence county jail at Deadwood. They appeared before Judge Carland and pleaded guilty to three indictments charging them with the theft of horses on the Pine Ridge reservation.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Fargo—There are reports of some clever stunts being done by new settlers in North Dakota. But R. A. Fox of McHenry county tells one that shows the newcomers are not so slow. The other day he sold a team to a settler from Minnesota on which a mortgage was to be taken. The purchaser went into the office and Fox was so busy closing another deal that he asked the buyer to come in again in half an hour. The man agreed and in the meantime purchased a harness and gave a mortgage on the team, afterwards returning to execute the mortgage for the horses. When Fox went to file his mortgage and found it was a second one, he said things, but was so struck with the purchaser's enterprise that he never made a kick.

Lisbon—The 5-year-old son of Oswald Ohme, a farmer, was kicked in the forehead by a colt. His skull was crushed and some of the bones were removed by the physician. The boy is still alive but very little hope is entertained for his recovery.

The contract has been let for the new Methodist church and work will be begun by the middle of May. The old church will be sold.

Belle Fourche—The first annual meeting of the Northwestern Stock Growers' association was a magnificent success. Over 2000 were in attendance. The following officers were elected: President, Russell Uhler; vice president, Ted Ackerman, secretary, George A. Ross; treasurer, David R. Evans.

Cooperstown—At a mass meeting of citizens a vote was taken favoring the granting of a franchise for an electric light plant to the Northwestern Electric company at Fargo.

Washburn—One hundred and fourteen cars of immigrant movables and their stock have been unloaded at Washburn this spring.

Grand Forks—Ole Dumaas, a Norwegian, who for seventeen years has been a resident of the Red River valley, was drowned about four miles north of this city. Dumaas' companion is a good swimmer and managed to hold him up for about ten minutes. The body has not been recovered. His companion came to the city and notified the authorities, and a search was started late in the afternoon. Dumaas was a well known character in Grand Forks and East Grand Forks. For twelve or fifteen years he had fished and peddled about town. He came to this country twenty-five years ago from Aalesund, Norway, where he is well connected. His mother is still living there and he has one brother at Seattle. He was about 50 years of age.

Boat Club Makes Aggressive Plans for the Future.

Professional Trainer to Be Employed—The Annual Meeting.

The annual meeting of the Duluth Boat club was held at the Spalding last evening and was the largest and most enthusiastic in the history of the organization. Out of a membership of 210 there were 117 present.

One of the most important measures decided on last evening was the engaging of a professional trainer at the club the coming year. The names of several such trainers were mentioned and discussed, but no selection was made, as the club desires to enter into correspondence with some of them first.

It was also decided to expend about $1000 in new boats, which will include ten rowboats, six canoes and one big war canoe that will accommodate about twenty paddles. The last named craft will be used exclusively for pleasure parties.

The new club house on Minnesota Point is nearing completion and will be ready for occupancy by the middle of May. It is expected that the formal opening of the new building will be attended by a party of great brilliancy early in June.

The club is making arrangements to employ music and give weekly dancing parties during the boating season, and perhaps during the late fall and winter season.

The election of officers last evening resulted as follows: President, George Spencer; first vice president, G. G. Barnum; second vice president, F. A. Patrick; secretary, W. L. McLennan; treasurer, Julius H. Barnes; captain, J. D. Mahoney; lieutenant, Norman L. Leach; ensign, George E. Gibson; directors, Captain Alexander McDougall, Fred H. White and A. W. Frick.

The only change in the list is that Mr. Patrick succeeds C. D. Shepard as second vice president and Messrs. White and Frick succeed E. N. Bradley and G. C. Stone on the board of directors.

MAY BE PAROLED.

George Daugherty Has Chance to Get Out.

George Daugherty, who was sent to Stillwater in 1900, from this county to serve a seven-year penitentiary sentence for rape, is likely to be paroled by the state board of pardons. Daugherty's friends have been very active in his behalf and the board has intimated that may commute his sentence and parole him. Evidence is said to have been introduced with his application for a parole, to show that Daugherty was not entirely to blame.

The crime of which he was accused and which he pleaded guilty occurred July 12, 1900. Court Officer John Cameron while making a short cut across the ball park to serve some papers ran across Daugherty in the act. The girl in the case was but 13 years old at that time. She is the same girl who was recently taken out of a saloon basement at 612 West Superior street.

UNWASHED MOB

Excluded From Egg Rolling at White House.

Washington, April 15.—An innovation likely to be distorted for political purposes was introduced in the egg rolling on the South front lawn at the White House Easter Monday, but which, if carried out, will entirely change the feature of the great Easter Monday event. Policemen stationed at the gates of the East and West side lawns were instructed to make a close inspection of children who presented themselves for admittance and to stop the unclean and untidy from entering, especially those unaccompanied by older people.

Since the custom of egg rolling on the White House lot was first instituted it has been the rule to admit all who presented themselves, with the result that year by year the throng grew more dangerous to public decency and good taste. Children came up from the river front out of the alleys and gutters, and were allowed to wander about the yard at will.

Frequently they raised disturbances, disagreeing over the "picking" of eggs on which pickaninnies who had contracted the betting habit had put their pennies, or "licking" the fellow who first broke his egg. It was proved that disease was rife in the public schools about ten days after the egg rolling each year and in tracing the matter it was decided by leading physicians that the whole source of the trouble lay in the unwashed mob who crowded in among the children of the better class at this once beautiful event.

MAX WIRTH.

HAY PROVES HIS WISDOM

Refuses to Fall Into the Trap Set By Germany.

Chicago, April 15.—Walter Wellman in a Washington special to the Record-Herald, says:

The neat manner in which Secretary Hay avoided the trap set for him by the allied powers of Europe was disclosed when the state department made another public installment of the foreign relations and correspondence.

April 3, 1902, Dr. Von Holleben, the German ambassador, addressed a note to this government sounding the United States as to its willingness to join Germany and Great Britain in an arrangement for securing settlement of the foreign debt of Guatemala.

Dr. Von Holleben said it seemed to be eminently proper that three powers most interested in an adjustment of the foreign debts of Guatemala—Germany, Britain and the United States—should act together in measures designed to secure a settlement of these claims. "And my government will be glad to learn if the government of the United States is willing to join in the proposed arrangement," concluded Dr. Von Holleben.

Secretary Hay did not walk into the European parlor. "While the government of the United States is indisposed to join any collective arrangement to bring coercive pressure to bear upon Guatemala," said Secretary Hay in reply, "this government would reserve for its citizens equal benefits with those which might be secured for the subjects of any other country. And the United States minister to Guatemala will be instructed to so inform the Guatemalan government."

If the United States had joined the alliance for securing the claims against Guatemala, it would have been difficult for the United States to avoid doing the same thing with regard to the claims against Venezuela. This doubtless was the objective which the European powers had in view. They wanted to take Uncle Sam as a partner in regard to the comparatively unimportant Guatemala claims and thus establish a precedent as to the larger affair in Venezuela. But Mr. Hay knows a hawk from a handsaw when the wind is southerly.

PLAN TO MERGE BOOK HOUSES

Methodists Incorporate Publishing Houses Under One Head.

Chicago, April 15.—Brain, brawn and bullion, referred to as the magic trinity of forces in this age, will result in the concentration of Methodist publishing interests, valued roughly at $3,600,000. That is the forecast which a special committee sends broadcast in a report to the members of this religious denomination and which will be up for approval at the general conference next year. Unification of the printing interests is written large throughout the document which was made public.

The plan proposed is, in brief, to have one publishing house which shall be incorporated under the corporate name of the Book Concern of the Methodist Episcopal church, which shall be the successor of the Western Book concern in New York city, and of the Western Methodist Book Concern. Provision shall be made for the establishment of principal depositors of the book concern located in New York city, in Cincinnati and in Chicago, for the sale and distribution of the publications and auxiliary depositors at such other points as the general conference may from time to time direct.

The general conference shall quadrennially elect one publishing agent, who, under the supervision of the book committee and the book cabinet, shall have authority to regulate the departments of the publishing business as the interests of the church shall require, excepting those which belong to the editorial departments.

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Company to Furnish Power For Ishpeming and Negaunee.

Ishpeming—It has developed that, as a result of investigation in the territory south of here by civil engineers in its employ, the I. Stephenson company of Marinette has decided to put to practical use at least two of the water powers owned by it. One, at Swanzy, on the Escanaba river, is sufficient to develop 1100 horsepower, which it is proposed to utilize in generating electricity to be disposed of to mining companies operating at Ishpeming and Negaunee.

At Wells, twenty-five miles distant from Swanzy, the company is the possessor of a large waterfall that is capable of developing 3500 horsepower. At this point the company has determined on the construction of a large pulp mill.

Marquette—The Michigan Press association, which will hold its annual outing this year at Sault Ste. Marie, in the latter part of June, has arranged to extend its visit to a large portion of the Upper Peninsula. The Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic railroad will place a special train at the disposal of the editors.

Two days will be spent at the Soo, a half day or more at Marquette, and a day in the copper country. On the return from Houghton and Calumet, a stop of several hours in the iron mining field at Ishpeming and Negaunee will be made, following which the party will be taken to Menominee, where the car ferry will be boarded for the return to lower Michigan.

Calumet—Solomon Katkuri has left on his return to Finland to serve in the army of the czar. He has lived in dread of the iron hand of his royal master ever since he emigrated, fearing he would never be permitted to go back to his native land without being subject to arrest unless he served the required time in the army.

Munising—While demolishing an old frame house at East Munising, John Griffith found paper currency and gold coin amounting to several thousand dollars. The house was built many years ago and was occupied by an eccentric man who is said to have committed suicide by hanging.

Menominee—The Menominee police have arrested fourteen boys ranging between the ages of 8 to 14 years for throwing stones through the windows of passing trains, cutting the air brakes in freight trains and putting sand in the oil boxes of the cars. A few days ago a woman sitting in a car was struck in the face by one of the stones thrown by a boy, and was badly injured. A freight conductor was also struck on the head by a stone.

Escanaba—After holding out for ten days for an advance in wages, the ore dock employes at Escanaba have started to work at last season's wages. A meeting of the union was held and it was decided to begin work and leave the question of wages to be adjusted by President Keefe, of Cleveland. In the contract drawn up by the dock workers and presented to Superintendent H. A. Barr, the men demanded a raise in wages from $2 to $2.15 to $2.25 and $2.50 per day and double time for overtime. This the Northwestern railway refused to sign for the reason that it was already paying as much as any other lake port and more than is paid at Marquette and Ashland. The differences will, no doubt, be settled amicably upon the arrival of President Keefe. The ore trimmers are ready to go to work at last season's wages.

SHE SHOT HER TORMENTORS

Old Woman Long Bothered By Boys Takes Revenge.

New York, April 15.—Old Mrs. Margaret Lorenz, who fired birdshot into a gang of tormenting boys on Friday, lives in a tumbledown cabin at the foot of a rocky hill that forms the western boundary of what was once known as Hoboken swamp, in Hoboken. But the swamp has been filled in all around in recent years, so that little remains of it except shallow ponds on each side of the old woman's dwelling. The place is now designated as "Eighth street and the mountain." Mrs. Lorenz has been tormented by tribe after tribe of Hoboken boys for thirty-eight years.

When she fired her shotgun on Friday three boys were wounded and four others ran leaping up the side of the hill with loud cries of fear and dismay. Recorder Stanton held her for the grand jury under $1000 bonds, which Mrs. Lorenz easily furnished.

When visited after her liberation Mrs. Lorenz was at work upon her slender peninsula in the swamp formed by dumping rubbish.

She paused in her work long enough to give a description of the shooting to a reporter for the Sun.

"Those boys have called me 'Old Dutchy' for thirty-eight years," she began. "During all these years they have stood on that hill right in front of my house, calling me names and breaking my windows. Because of them I haven't had a glass window in the front of the house for fifteen years. Yesterday they called me names and threw stones at me until they drove me frantic. My husband is sick.

"So I ran out and shot my gun at them. I had warned them long before what I was goin' to do.

"None of the bad boys who disturbed me ever came to a good end," continued Mrs. Lorenz, folding her arms grimly. "Nearly all of them that stood on that hill thirty years ago are dead. Just as fast as one crowd grew up others came along. They were so mixed that you could never tell when one lot went away and the others came. Big ones and little ones, they were forever with me.

"When I first moved here that hill, now so bare and rocky, was covered with trees and green grass, and there were big purple spots made by the violets that grew there by the thousands. They are there no longer. The boys have tramped the life out of them. They have just lived on the hill all these years, leaving scarcely a green thing upon it.

"The swamp was then a green pasture where I kept my cows. Fillin' in land for houses and factories caused the water to stand, so that the grass would not grow, and I was forced to sell my cows.

"Once I had a dog that scared the boys away. He's been dead fifteen years. He knew more than most men. One day a boy fell into the water near my house.

"Dodie jumped in and dragged him out. Then he poked the boy with his nose until the little fellow ran home, dripping wet, to get some dry clothes. was that boy grateful? No! He came back the next day from the hillsides and threw stones at poor Dodie and me. That boy was around here for years. Then he grew up and disappeared. I suppose he went to jail."

Mrs. Lorenz is 68 years old, and Joseph, her husband, is 78.

"Joseph is failing," said she, "but I was never in better health. Barring a toothache twelve years ago, I never was sick."

Louis Hanna, Charles White, and Louis Gobbiosi, the boys who were wounded by the old woman, were not seriously injured. Her sick husband, who was disturbed by the stone which entered the house, and which was the immediate cause of the shooting is said to be near death.

ROBBED THE GRAVE.

A startling incident is narrated by John Oliver, of Philadelphia, as follows: "I was in an awful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides, no appetite, growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Then I was advised to use Electric Bitters; to my great joy the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50 cents, guaranteed, at Abbett's drug store.

EFFECT OF PROSPERITY.

Vermont Farmer Cannot Get Help on Farm.

Springfield, Mass., April 15.—A Vermont farmer writes to the Republican in botterness of spirit to complain that he is unable to get hired help, and has been driven to a position where he must work himself to death or give up his farm. All the comfort that the Republican can give him is that similar cases are to be counted in New England by thousands.

Western farmers are in the same plight. Their agencies in the cities are finding it hard to fill their orders, and while in the region tributary to Chicago a farm hand's wages usually are from $15 to $18 a month, with board and lodging, this year $25 a month is being offered, with extra inducements as to hours and privileges.

The explanation is that the farmer is paying the penalty of the abounding prosperity of the country. Industrial institutions are so extremely active that there is work for able-bodied men almost anywhere. Moreover, no eight or nine-hour day is possible in farm work. No union can prescribe how big a job of reaping a man shall do, or can hinder him from being called upon to hustle through long hours to get in hay before a threatened rain.

Yet farm life has attractions of its own to sensible men, who are not afraid of hard toil under the most healthy conditions, and it would be an infinite pity if Americans were to be drawn away from the soil to fill factories and shops and counting rooms.

A LUCKY PAINTER.

How He Became Favorite of the Sultan.

London, April 15.—The London Times says that Signor Fausto Lonaro, a Venetian painter, who was starving at home, went to Constantinople in search of work. He was caught in the streets of the Turkish capital taking sketches of the Oriental wayfarers, a crime contemplated in the koran which prohibits the reproducton on canvas of the features of the faithful.

After several days spent in prison he was summoned to explain his conduct to the sultan, who was so pleased with his drawings that he appointed him there and then court painter, gave him money and a palace to live in.

The lucky Venetian is now busy covering the walls of the Yildiz kiosk with his pictures.

MAKES SKIN PINK.

The Effect of Borax on the Complexion.

Chicago, April 15.—Young women who desire a pink complexion can have it without the aid of cosmetics. All that is necessary is to eat food in which borax has been used for preserving purposes. That has been the experience of a number of department clerks in Washington, who, in the interest of Dr. Wiley's cured food experiments, have been kept for several months on a diet of foods in which borax has been used.

Dr. Adolph Gehrmann, chemist for the Columbus Laboratory company, believes he has the explanation.

"A steady diet on food in which boracic acid has been used would have a tendency to reduce oxidation," said he. "It would prevent the blood from being properly combined with air, and the effect would be to produce internal strangulation. The blood, instead of being normally red, would be of a bluish tinge and would show through the skin as pink. I should not call this a healthy condition. I believe anything that would prevent decomposition would have a bad effect on the digestive organs."

City Chemist Derward B. Bisbee acknowledged that the proposition was a new one so far as he was concerned. Borax taken into the system may form a reddish pigment in the skin," said Dr. Bisbee. "It would not be necessarily an indication of an unhealthy condition. Unless large quantities of the preserved food were eaten there would be no bad effect."

W. A. Converse does not believe borax is a cumulative poison.

Western North Carolina In the Spring.

Western North Carolina is attractive at any season of the year, but certainly during the spring months, when the trees are budding and the flowers blossoming; what could be more inviting than a trip to this beautiful mountain country.

The months of April and May in the Land of the Sky and Sapphire country, including Asheville and Hot Springs, N. C., are very enjoyable. The climate at this season is delightful, the scenery most beautiful, and the opportunities for the enjoyment of sport, including golf, cannot be surpassed.

IS AT ITS LOWEST

Not Much Hope of Cheaper Prices For Coal.

Amount Coming Is Not As Large As Expected.

"The prospects are that the price of coal will not go much lower this year," said D. B. Smith general agent of the Ohio Coal company today. The price of hard coal at present is $7.25 per ton and of soft coal $5 per ton. This is just fifty cents per ton higher than it opened at last spring. The plan in former years has been to raise the price 10 cents per ton per month, until the first of September. This will probably be done this year, making the price $7.75 by September 1.

Several carloads of soft coal have been received and some hard coal is en route, which will arrive here within a few days. The shipments of hard coal from lower lake ports have not been as heavy as was expected and it is not likely that any great surplus will be accumulated this year. Soft coal is being shipped more freely, but probably never in the history of the city was there such demand for it as at present. Orders are coming in almost as fast as the coal, and the surplus is not piling up very fast.

The raise in prices this year is partly explained by the increased freight rates both by the all rail route and the lake and rail route. Thus, with the increased wages of the miners, would account for a large part of the increase in the price.

HANAN'S FIANCEE

Came Near Breaking Bank at Monte Carlo.

Providence, R. I., April 15.—Mrs. Edith Griggs Smith-Thompson, who will be married to John H. Hanan, the Brooklyn millionaire shoeman, caused great interest at Monte Carlo, which she visited on her recent trip to Europe, by her fortunate play at the tables.

For a time, according to report, Mrs. Smith-Thompson had the croupiers very nervous, but just as it seemed that she would break the bank she stopped playing. Her winnings, it was said, were heavier than those of any other woman during the season.

The wedding will take place at Shoreacres, Mr. Hanan's splendid villa at Narragansett Pier. It will be very quiet, only the immediate relatives of the bride and a few intimate friends having been invited.

The honeymoon trip will be in Southern waters on Mr. Hanan's yacht White Star, and it will probably not be concluded before the end of spring.

PLAYS OF THE SENIOR CLASS

Production This Week Eagerly Anticipated By All Students.

Only three days more remain before the senior plays by the high school graduating class are given and the entire student body is extremely interested in the production which will take place on Saturday evening.

The pieces selected for the class to give this year are better than any that have been staged by high school students for a long time and the longer one, "A Regular Fix," is an extremely funny comedy.

All of the parts are well in hand and the production will be extremely funny. Many of the students who take part will have to wear makeups. Some of these are unusual and considerably interest in the appearance of their histrionic classmates is evinced by the members of the senior class.

No effort is being spared to make the affair as thoroughly successful and as the class has some very promising amateur Thespians among its members, the play will be very good as high school plays go.

A. F. M. Custance, who is training those who take part, has had a very busy week and there will be no relief in the nervousness which precedes the performance until the curtain falls Saturday evening.

INTERESTS OF NEGRO

Considered at a Largely Attended Meeting In New York City.

Former President Grover Cleveland Was the Principal Speaker.

New York, April 15.—Former President Grover Cleveland was the principal speaker last night at a meeting held in the Concert hall of Madison Square Garden in the interests of the Tuskegee Normal and Industrial institute. Among those on the platform with Mr. Cleveland were Mayor Low, who presided; Booker T. Washington, Edgar G. Murphy, Dr. Lyman Abbott, President Nicholas Murray Butler and Dean J. Van Amringe, of Columbia; W. H. Baldwin, Chancellor McCracken of New York university; John De Witt Warner and George F. Peabody.

Mrs. Cleveland sat in the gallery with Mr. and Mrs. Andrew Carnegie, who are Mr. Cleveland's hosts while he is in the city.

Mr. Cleveland, who was greeted with prolonged applause when introduced by Mayor Low, said:

I have come here tonight as a sincere friend of the negro, and I should be very sorry to suppose that my good and regular standing in such company needed support at this late day either from certificate or confession of faith. Inasmuch, however, as there may be difference of thought among those who profess to be friends of the negro, I desire to declare myself as belonging to the Booker Washington-Tuskegee section of the organization. I believe that the days of Uncle Tom's cabin are past. I believe that neither the decree that made the slaves free, nor the enactment that suddenly invested them with the rights of citizenship, any more purged them of their racial and slavery-bred imperfections and deficiencies than it changed the color of their skin. I believe that among the nearly 9,000,000 of negroes who have been intermixed with our citizenship, there is still a grievous amount of ignorance, a sad amount of viciousness and a tremendous amount of laziness and shiftlessness. I believe that these conditions inexorably present to the white people of the United States, to each in his environment and under the mandate of good citizenship, a problem which neither enlightened self-interest nor higher motive of human sympathy will permit them to put aside. I believe our fellow-countrymen in the Southern and late slave-holding states, surrounded by about nine-tenths, or nearly 8,000,000, of this entire negro population, and who regard their material prosperity, their peace and even the safety of their civilization, interwoven with the negro problem, are entitled to our utmost consideration and sympathetic fellowship. I am thoroughly convinced that the efforts of Booker Washington and the methods of the Tuskegee institute point the way to a safe and beneficent solution of the vexatious negro problem at the South, and I know that the good people at the North who have aided these efforts and methods have illustrated the highest and best citizenship and the most Christian and enlightened philanthropy.

I cannot, however, keep out of my mind tonight the thought that, with all we of the North may do, the realization of our hopes for the negro must, after all, mainly depend—except so far as it rests with the negroes themselves—upon the sentiment and conduct of the leading and responsible white men of the South and upon the maintenance of a kindly and helpful feeling on their part toward those in their midst who so much need their aid and encouragement.

I need waist no time in detailing the evidence that this aid and encouragement has thus far been generously forthcoming. Schools for the education of Negro children and institutions for their industrial training are scattered all over the South, and are liberally assisted by the Southern public and private funds. So far as I am informed, the sentiment in favor of the largest extension and broadest influence of Tuskegee institute and kindred agencies is universal, and I believe that without exception, the Negroes who fit themselves for useful occupations and service find willing and cheerful patronage and employment among their white neighbors. The man who is beyond doubt the best authority in the world on the prospects of the Negro race, he who founded and is now at the head of the Tuskegee institute, and is the most notable representative of Negro advancement, said at the Atlanta exposition in 1895:

"And in this connection it is well to bear in mind that, whatever other sins the South may be called to bear, when it comes to business, pure and simple, it is in the South that the Negro is given a man's chance in the commercial world, and in nothing is this exposition more eloquent than in emphasizing this chance. Our greatest danger is that in the great leap from slavery to freedom, we may overlook the fact that the masses of us are to live by the production of our hands and fail to keep in mind that we shall prosper in proportion as we learn to dignify and glorify common labor, and put brains and skill into the common occupations of life, shall prosper in occupation as we learn to draw the line between the superficial and the substantial—the ornamental gewgaws of life and the useful."

I do not know how it may be with other Northern friends of the Negro, but I have faith in the honor and sincerity of the respectable white people of the South in their relations with the Negro, and his improvement and well-being. They do not believe in the social equality of the race, and they make no false pretense in regard to it. That this does not grow out of hatred of the Negro is very plain.

It seems to me that there is abundant sentiment and abundant behavior among the Southern whites toward the Negroes to make us doubt the justice of charging this denial of social equality to prejudice, as we usually understand the word. Perhaps it is born of something so much deeper and more imperious than prejudice as to amount to a racial instinct. Whatever it is, let us remember that it has condoned the Negroes' share in the humiliation and spoilation of the white men of the South during the saturnalia of reconstruction days, and has allowed a kindly feeling for the Negro to survive the time when the South was deluged by a perilous flood of indiscriminate, unintelligent and blighting Negro suffrage. Whatever it is, let us try to be tolerant and considerate of the feelings and even the prejudices (or racial instinct of our white fellow countrymen of the South, who, in the solution of the Negro problem must, amid their own surroundings, bear the heat of the day and stagger under the weight of the white man's burden.

There are, however, considerations related to this feature of the Negro question which may be regarded as more in keeping with the objects and purposes of this occasion. As friends of the Negro, fully believing in the possibility of his improvement and avancement, and sincerely and confidently laboring to that end, it is folly for us to ignore the importance of the ungrudging co-operation on the part of the white people of the South in this work.

Labor as we will, those who do the lifting of the weight must be those who stand next to it. This cooperation cannot be forced; nor can it be gained by gratuitously running counter to firmly fixed and tenaciously held Southern ideas, or even prejudices. We are not brought to the point of doing or overlooking every good that may come when we proceed upon the theory that before reaching the stage where we may be directly and practically confronted with the question of the Negro's full enjoyment of civic advantages or even of all his political privileges, there are immediately before us and around us questions demanding our immediate care and that, in dealing effectively with these, we can confidently rely upon the encouragement and assistance of every thoughtful and patriotic citizen of the land—wherever he may live and whatever may be his ideas or predilections concerning the more remote phases of the negro problem. These questions that are so immediately pressing have to do with the practical education of the Negro and especially with fitting him to compete with his white neighbors in gaining a decent, respectable and remunerative livlihood. Booker Washington, in speaking of the conditions and needs of his race, has wisely said: "It is at the bottom of life we must begin and not at the top. Nor should we permit our grievances to overshadow our opportunities."

In summing up the whole matter, there is one thing of which we can be absolutely and unreservedly certain. When we aid Tuskegee institute and agencies like it striving for the mental and manual education of the Negro at the South we are in every point of view rendering him the best possible service.

Whatever may be his ultimate destiny, we are thus helping to fit him for filling his place and bearing its responsibilities. We are sowing well in the soil at "the bottom of life," the seeds of the black man's development and usefulness. These seeds will not die but will sprout and grow; and, if it be within the wise purpose of God, the hardened surface of no outward sentiment or prejudice can prevent the bursting forth of the blade and plant of the Negro's appointed opportunity into the bright sunlight of a cloudless day.

At the conclusion of his address Mr. Cleveland introduced Edgar C. Murphy, who said:

I think that wise men everywhere are recognizing in the principal of Tuskegee one of the greatest moral assets in the life of our assets of our country today. The South has not applauded him with undiscriminating agreement, or with monotonous, thoughtless, profitless aclaim. The South has sometimes blamed him. But the South is too fair to him and to his race to allow these occasions of disagreement to distort the broad perspective in which she has viewed and appreciated that arduous patience and unaffected modesty, he has labored for the upbuilding of his humble and untutored fellows. He has greatly done a great work in response to a great need.

North and South there have been those who have seen peril in the negroes' progress. But, if the progress of the negro bring peril with it that peril is nothing in comparison with the perils attendant on the negro's failure.

Mr. Cleveland in introducing Booker T. Washington, the last speaker of the evening, said:

"I have to introduce you to a man too well known by every man in the United States, a man who has been spoken of too frequently and too favorably for it to be necessary for me to say more than—here is Booker T. Washington."

Mr. Washington then spoke as follows:

The Tuskegee Normal and Industrial institute at Tuskegee, Ala., is the outgrowth of the efforts of Gen. S. C. Armstrong, of the Hampton institute in Virginia. Gen. Armstrong was one of the great seers and prophets who realized that the task of the nation was not fulfilled when the shackels of physical slavery were struck from the limbs of the millions of slaves of the South. He realized that nine millions of human beings steeped in ignorance, minus experience, could be but half free. He foresaw that the nation must have a new birth and a new freedom and that this regeneration must include the industrial, intellectual, and moral and religious freedom of the ex-slaves. Further, in refusing to return to his comfortable Northern home after the surrender at Appomattox and in deciding to remain South to help in fighting for freedom in the larger and higher sense, Gen. Armstrong appreciated as few Americans have, that the North owes an unfilled duty to the South.

Gen. Armstrong said by word and action that it was uniust to leave the South with its industrial system disorganized and overturned in the midst of a poverty that forbade the proper education of the white youth—to say nothing of the millions of recently emancipated black children.

In this connection I am glad that we have another great American and Christian statesman in the person of Hon. Grover Cleveland, who is manifesting by his presence and words here this evening that he too is conscious of the fact that the lifting up of the negro is not alone Tuskegee's problem, not alone the negroes' concern, not alone the South's duty, but is the problem of the nation, because the whole people were responsible for the introduction and perpetuation of American slavery. In behalf of our struggling race I want to thank you, Mr. Cleveland, for your deep interest, and to say to you that because of your interest and faith in us we shall see to it that the nation is not disappointed in our progress nor in our usefulness.

"I had suffered for three years with terrible pains at the time of menstruation, and did not know what the trouble was until the doctor pronounced it inflammation of the ovaries, and proposed an operation.

"I felt so weak and sick that I felt sure that I could not survive the ordeal. The following week I read an advertisement in the paper of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in such an emergency, and so I decided to try it. Great was my joy to find that I actually improved after taking two bottles, and in the end I was cured by it. I had gained eighteen pounds and was in excellent health." — Miss Alice Bailey, 50 North Boulevard, Atlanta, Ga. — $5000 forfeit if original of above letter proving genuineness cannot be produced.

The symptoms of inflammation and disease of the ovaries are a dull throbbing pain, accompanied by a sense of tenderness and heat low down in the side, with occasional shooting pains. The region of pain sometimes shows some swelling.

ONE BOARD OF CONTROL BILL WAS PASSED BY THE SENATE

The itemized statement of the allowance for the Duluth normal school in the omnibus appropriation bill is as follows: For 1903-4, laboratory supplies, $2000; repairs, $1500; furniture and equipment, $750; library, $1000; improving grounds, $1000; addition to president's salary, $500; current expenses, $25,000. For 1904-5, laboratory supplies, $2000; repairs, $500; furniture and equipments, $750; library, $500; addition to presidents salary, $500; current expenses, $27,000.

One of the items in the omnibus unanimous consen to have the bill ficiencies in the state's bill for printing, advertising and binding during the fiscal year ending July 31, 1903.

The house railroad committee yesterday afternoon agreed to report without recommendation the Rosenwald bill, prescribing maximum freight rates on grain in this state, and the Johnson anti-rebate bill. Senator Du Toit's bill, prohibiting railroads from removing stations or agents without the consent of the railroad and warehouse commission, was recommended for passage.

All the senate did yesterday afternoon was to pass three bills, but they were amongst the most important bills passed this winter. They were all house files, and they were a special order for yesterday morning, but were not reached until yesterday afternoon.

The most important one is the Fryberger gross earnings bill, increasing the railroad tax from 3 per cent to 4 per cent.

Another important bill was that by the house committee on judiciary, presenting to the people for their votes at the next general election amendments to the taxation provisions of the constitution. These are on the wide-open order, and simply provide that taxes shall be uniform upon the same class of subjects and shall be levied and collected under general laws for public purposes. This will permit a wide scope of tax legislation for future legislatures.

The third bill was one by the house committee on elections, providing that hereafter constitutional amendments, when submitted to vote shall be printed upon a separate ballot, colored pink, instead of being placed on the state ballot.

The Shephard anti-grafter bill, which was killed in the house last week, was revived yesterday and recommended to pass yesterday afternoon with numerous amendments. The principal amendment makes it apply to counties of more than 50,000 inhabitants. Another amendment cuts out the term "public officer," and makes it apply only to contestants for and holders of state, city and county offices. A third amendment provides that punishment shall be dealt out only to those who ask not and to those who receive aid. The bill provides punishment for anybody asking gifts from candidates or office-holders.

The Fryberger bill increasing the salaries of the justices of the supreme court was killed by the house in committee of the whole yesterday. It proposed to increase the chief justice from $5000 to $6500, and the other justices from $5000 to $6000.

A bill by Dr. Graham, of Duluth, doing away with personal bonds from state depositories and requiring surety bonds was killed by the house in committee of the whole yesterday, but after the committee arose its action was turned down and the bill was placed back on general orders. Dr. Graham, in explaining the bill, said that the researches of the committee on public acounts and expenditures had showed that the state had lost about $30,000 through personal bonds, and the bill was introduced because it was thought that it was a necessary protection to state funds to have depositories give surety bonds.

There was a fight in committee of the whole yesterday between members of the Ramsey county delegation over a bill by Mr. Gregory, of St. Paul, authorizing city councils in cities of 50,000 and over to give property owners time in the payment of assessments. The bill provides that one-fifth shall be paid within sixty days, and the balance in four equal annual installments. Owing to the opposition of Mr. Tighe, of St. Paul, the bill was sent to the Ramsey county delegation. During the afternoon Capt. Lewis, who had sent the bill to City Attorney Mitchell, of Duluth, received a telegram from that officer to the effect that the bill would be a serious injury to Duluth, and Capt. Lewis informed the Ramsey county members, who want the bill, that it would have to be amneded so as not to apply to Duluth. This change will be made.

The house, yesterday afternoon, recommended for passage a bill requiring people that want to change their names to file with the register of deeds a declaration setting forth what property they own and other information.

A bill permitting county boards to transfer money from an overflowing county fund to an overdrawn fund was recommended to pass by the house yesterday afternoon, with an amendment by the author, J. D. Schroeder, requiring a unanimous vote of the county board to permit such a change.

Senator Laybourn's bill proposing an amendment to the constitution that will permit future legislatures to abolish the grand jury system in this state was recommended to pass by the house in committee of the whole yesterday afternoon.

ALL DISPUTES ARE SETTLED

Northern Pacific Officials and Men Reach an Agreement.

St. Paul, April 15.—All matters in dispute between the officials of the Northern Pacific Railway company and the conductors and trainmen have been settled to the satisfaction of both officials and men, and the negotiations, which began early in January, are now ended. The agreement was reached yesterday afternoon after a conference which had lasted less than two hours.

The men will get an advance of 15 per cent for freight conductors and trainmen and 12 per cent for passenger. Yardmen in all yards were granted the new Chicago scale, which is a half cent an hour higher than the rate which the Northern Pacific men secured last fall.

The company agreed to discontinue the practice of running "double header" trains, except on two districts, where they will be run on a low tonnage restriction and made an agreement with the men as to the locations where helper engines may be maintained. With one or two exceptions the helper districts are along the Yellowstone and in the Rocky Mountain divisions. This agreement with the Northern Pacific is similar to that made with the Southern Pacific, the Santa Fe and the Union Pacific.

The increase in pay will affect about 1800 men, scattered between St. Paul and Duluth and the Pacific coast.

The grand officers, Messrs. Garretson and Newman, will remain in St. Paul until the return of President J. J. Hill and will then broach the subject of a settlement with the Great Northern.

HEAVY LOSS OF LIFE

Caused By Fierce Tornadoes Near Evergreen, Ala.

Evergreen, Ala., April 15.—News has reached here by telephone confirming rumors of heavy loss of life and property in the neighborhood of Peterman and Burnt Corn, wrought by the tornado which passed near there yesterday.

Ten persons are known to have been killed and numerous barns, residences, fences and outhouses were swept away, entailing a loss that will reach high into the thousands. On account of the bad condition of the wires communication is difficult and the only name that could be obtained of the dead is Henry Salter, a well-known planter.

Several residences were completely demolished, the timber falling on the occupants, killing and injuring all within the buildings. Peterman is in Monroe county, just across the line from Conecuh, and is not within twenty-five miles of a railroad or telegraph station. All news so far received has come over telephone lines which are several miles from the path of the storm.

CLEW DISCOVERED

Which May Solve Mystery of Dennison's Disappearance.

Buffalo, April 15.—An important clew has been discovered in the case of Charles Dennison, member of the firm of Sidney Shepard & Co., of New York and Chicago, who mysteriously disappeared from a hotel here about six weeks ago.

William Watts, who has charge of the detective work in the case, has learned that Mrs. Mary Chapman, now living at Elma, twelve miles from here, has knowledge of a man who talked with Dennison the day he disappeared, and to whom Dennison confided the place to which he expected to go.

The man saw Dennison either in Buffalo or Niagara Falls. In the conversation Dennison told his friend he was about to go to Staten island for a visit and rest.

STUDY OF BOTANY

And Horticulture Should Be Taught In Elementary Grades.

Secretary Wilson Discusses the Importance of This Theory.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU

Washington, April 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Three times a week a class of forty girl pupils from the Washington normal school, with their teacher, Miss Sipe, go to the agricultural department to receive instructions under several of Secretary Wilson's experts in plant life. This is an idea which originated with Secretary Wilson, and these embryo school teachers are being instructed in elementary agriculture and horticulture. They are taught the elements of grafting, how properly to plant seeds, to pot plants, handling of soil, to so mix soil as to attain the best results. Mr. Wilson's theory is that the study of botany and horticulture should be taken up by pupils in the elementary grades, as in early years the mind of the child is in its most receptive mood, and a love and knowledge of plant life and the out-of-door work necessary to cultivate plants once formed is never forgotten, and would tend to lead the men and women of the future to turn more readily toward contented lives in the pursuit of agriculture rather than to seek employment in the great cities. He intends to see that the selected class of forty from the local normal school shall be thoroughly taught practically the elements, and has set apart a small greenhouse for the exclusive use of these pupils. Aside from this, each girl is provided with seeds and cuttings, and is encouraged to establish a small garden at her home for further practical experiments. When these pupils receive their diplomas and take situations as teachers in the public schools of Washington, Mr. Wilson expects that they will be thoroughly well acquainted with all the essential elements of practical agriculture and horticulture to be able to diffuse their knowledge to their young pupils in a manner which will be greatly beneficial in many ways.

"What we need most of all things just now is teachers who are competent to teach the great lessons of plant life to the classes in the elementary grades," said Mr. Wilson; "to inculcate in the minds of our boys a love and knowledge of growing things which tend to lead more young men to complete the elementary studies thus begun in the great agricultural colleges which now nearly every state in the Union maintains. The tendency has been too alarmingly marked of a growing tendency of our young men and women in the rural districts to forsake their homes and seek pursuits in our cities. The backbone of our prosperity is in reality in agriculture. Upon the former we depend for our food products, and should not drift into a purely commercial nation dependent upon others for our breadstuffs, as is the case with England, for instance. I am thoroughly convinced that the only plan lies through teaching the young in our elementary schools in a practical manner the use of the hoe, to use an expression which covers the point I am endeavoring to make.

"Take my own state—Iowa. How could she, one of the gerat agricultural states of the Union, better expend money than in diffusing practical knowledge in the minds of the boys and the girls on agricultural and horticultural matters? At the great school of Cedar Falls, for example, the teachers there can be taught upon agricultural subjects, and they in turn, when they go forth to teach, could diffuse their knowledge among the very young pupils. I know of no money that Iowa, or any other state for the matter of that, could possibly expend which would produce such returns as to train all teachers in a practical way the elements of agriculture and horticulture. They would thus be equipped in an important branch of knowledge. The agricultural colleges of the country could supply competent instructors to the normal schools, and it would also be well to have such instructors in the secondary schools. The university of Missouri now holds summer schools for the instruction of teachers in primary and secondary schools in agricultural matters. Alabama appropriates money each year for the instruction of those in the elementary grades in every congressional district in the state, thus making feeders for their agricultural college."

In addition to the classes from the normal school of this city which are being taught under the direction of the agricultural department, Secretary Wilson will cause a class of twenty-three boys to be chosen from the public schools to be taught practically truck gardening during the coming summer. The class will be in charge of one of the practical gardeners of the department and each boy will be given a plot of ground to sow and cultivate. These miniature "farms" will be located at the experiment station in this city and the boys for their labor will be permitted to carry home or sell what they raise. It is believed that the sight of these boys from the public schools to be selected through some method of competitive examination will encourage other boys to endeavor to do something along the same line and many a waste backyard may, during the summer, as a result bloom into a miniature truck farm.

In speaking of his forthcoming Southern trip a few days ago, Secretary Wilson said that his department is doing all it can to encourage the culture of the silk worm in such localities where it can be accomplished. "The culture of the silk worm," he said, "has become quite a profitable industry in many sections of the South and we are willing to encourage and foster it in every way possible. We have recently received a consignment of eggs and are now engaged in distributing them where they will do the most good. We are also sending out quite a number of slips of the white mulberry tree the species of mulberry best adapted for the silk worm. The department has also taken another important step to aid the silk culturalists. We are importing the latest improved reeling machine from Italy and will have people trained to use it and then they in turn will teach others. We expect upon the arrival of the new reeling machine to secure a young woman from the Tuskegee institute in Alabama, Booker T. Washington's school, and she will be taught the art of silk reeling here in the department. As soon as she becomes proficient in the workings of the machine, or an expert, in other words, we will send the reel and the operator to Tuskegee and there others will be taught."

The secretary is very enthusiastic over the future of the silk culture industry in the South and during his Southern trip will personally investigate the whole subject, visiting the various places where the raising of the silk worm is being tried.

IS NOT YET FOUND.

Louis Stit, Hibbing Murderer, Still at Large.

The authorities have not yet apprehended Louis Stit, who is alleged to have shot and killed Dominic Jilot in a saloon fight at Hibbing the other evening. County Attorney McClintock has been in Hibbing and after investigating the case put a warrant in the hands of Deputy Sheriff Bates for Stit's arrest.

Deputy Sheriff W. B. Hartley, of this city, has also joined in the search, and the officers will spend several days in the vicinity of the Stevenson mine, where Stit is supposed to le in hiding. Feeling at Hibbing is said to be strong against Stit and many of the citizens have joined the officers in the search for him.

During the search yesterday Deputy Sheriff Bates met and recognized a man, known as Sivert Iverson, who is wanted on a warrant sworn out over a year ago by a young woman residing on Garfield avenue. He was arrested and brought to Duluth.

REALTY TRANSFERS.

Several of Good Size Have Been Filed.

The consummation of several large realty deals in this city, some of which have been negotiated a long time, was been effected and the deeds have been filed with the register of deeds. A transfer went on record yesterday of lots 9 to 34 inclusive, Boston pier, in Oneota, from Duncan & Brewer to Frederick L. Gilbert and E. T. Buxton, the latter from Superior. The consideration was $52,000. The transfer is practically in connection with the transfer of the Duncan & Brewer company's property to the Red Cliff Lumber company's interests.

Another transfer filed was a warranty timber deed running from Fred Merrill and William Orr to John McAlpine, covering timber in several townships, for a consideration of $26,000, of which amount $10,000 is paid on delivery of contract and the balance in one and two years.

John T. Horgan has sold to Fred J. Voss, lots 1, 2, 11 and 12, block 24, East Duluth, for $7000.

FISH COULD NOT GET AIR

Lake Near Solon Springs Has Tons of Dead Ones.

Residents at Solon Springs, Wis., a popular picnic and fishing resort about thirty miles from West Superior, have discovered that all the fish in one of the Twin Lakes, near that locality, have died since last fall. It is claimed that there are tons of dead fish in the lake. The matter has been investigated by Deputy Game Warden P. E. Wacerbury, of Wisconsin, on the suspicion that somebody had been dynamiting the lake, but there is nothing to show that such has been the case. The theory is being advanced by some of the old fishermen that the lake was frozen over so solidly this past winter that they could get no air and were smothered. There are said to have been similar instances on smaller bodies of water which bear out the theory.

BABY'S FUTURE

Something for Mothers to Think About

Lives of Suffering and Sorrow Averted

And Happiness and Prosperity Assured by

Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Pills When All Else Fails.

Every child born into the world with an inherited or early developed tendency to distressing, disfiguring humours of the skin, scalp and blood, becomes an object of the most tender solicitude, not only because of its suffering, but because of the dreadful fear that the disfigruration is to be lifelong and mar its future happiness and prosperity. Hence, it becomes the duty of mothers of such afflicted children to acquaint themselves with the best, the purest and most effective treatment available, viz., The Cuticura Treatment.

Warm baths with Cuticura Soap, to cleanse the skin and scalp of crusts and scales, gentle applications of Cuticura Ointment, to allay itching, irritation and inflammation, and soothe and heal, and mild doses of Cuticura Resolvent, to cool the blood in the severer cases, are all that can be desired for the speedy relief and permanent cure of skin tortured infants and children, and the comfort of worn-out parents.

Millions of women use Cuticura Soap, assisted by Cuticura Ointment, for preserving, purifying and beautifying the skin, scalp, hair and hands, for annoying irritations and weaknesses, and for many sanative, antiseptic purposes which readily suggest themselves.

AFRAID TO ENFORCE

Laws That Gave Colored Men the Right of Suffrage.

John S. Wise Declares Republican Party Lacks the Inclination.

New York, April 15.—John S. Wise, to whom millions of negroes all over the United States look for deliverance from disfranchisement in the Southern states, father of the negro suffrage resolutions reported favorably by the political reform committee of the Union League club, which precipitated the most violent debate on the negro question in the history of the club last week, and associate counsel with former Secretary of the Treasury John G. Carlisle in the cases against the recently adopted constitution of Virginia, has given a letter for publication, in which he advises the negro to abandon all hope of immediate political recognition in the Southern states, and advises those who wish their claims recognized to come North. Mr. Wise is also president of the West Side Republican club, the largest Republican organization in New York city.

The letter, after summarizing the position of the negro under existing legislation, says:

Thirty-five years ago the Republican party committed itself to negro suffrage, and framed and enacted measures imposing it upon the states and assuming federal guardianship of its honest recognition by the states and the power to enforce it.

It were idle to speculate to what extent this series of enactments was prompted by a desire to humiliate the Southern whites under the influence of war passions, and to what extent it was prompted by the elevated humanitarian conviction that it was justice to the negro. The fact stands that, whether from high motive or low passion, the Republican party assumed responsibility for the law, and pledged itself, without any condition or qualification, to its full enforcement by all the power of the government. An abandonment of its pledges, an evasion of its obligations to the negro now is no whit less flagrant or inconsistent than if it announced a change of view upon the right of secession or upon a protective tariff. If any individual intrusted with power had given the pledges which were given to the negro, he would be already ruined in the respect of men of integrity by his long and indifferent acquiescence in the open violations of laws to the enforcement of which he was pledged, and which he had the power to enforce. The outrage is all the more heinous if the party, after voluntarily exciting the hopes of the negro and making him a target, does not redeem the promise of freedom or even protect him from the storm of its own raising.

But we are dealing with the thing called a party, which, at best, has composite and changing heads and changing conscience, with a distributed responsibility for inconsistency or faithlessness.

The question I have asked unhesitatingly, in the light of this knowledge of human nature and party nature, and with no fear that my clients will misapprehend me, is:

Is the Republican party of 1903 true to its pledges of 1867 concerning negro suffrage? If so, its duty it too plain for argument. Does it dare to enforce the laws it enacted in the reconstruction period, according to their plain meaning, to their logical conclusion?

If it does the method is plain, and it has the power. We shall see. I need not express an opinion.

But I see too plainly to deceive myself, or to seek to deceive you, however it may distress you to hear the truth, the following powerful influences at work, which have made the Republican party acquiesce in the evasion of law in the past, and are making it evade the issue now.

War passions have subsided. Race prejudices have not. The sympathies of the whites in the different sections of this country for each other are less disturbed than ever before. The idea of disunion is dead; slavery is but a tradition which none would restore. Railroads, telegraphs, telephones, mail, migrations from North to South and from South to North; investments in distant sections; intermarriages; a thousand influences unknown in 1867 or theretofore have brought the whites of all sections into closer racial sympathy than ever before. Any party which would now attempt to enforce a federal law or series of laws or constitutional provisions which seemed to imperil white domination, even in the most violent of the Southern states, would arouse an antagonism among the whites in the North that would not be reconciled by reason, and would imperil the existence of the party itself. The Republican leaders, with friendly feeling to the negro nevertheless, are shrewd, calculating politicians who will not risk defeat knowingly.

Now, race prejudice is the strongest and most unreasoning prejudice. We cannot ignore it, or can we conquer it, and I have invariably found in my discussions with the party leaders that while ready to assist in the tests in the courts, and willing to demand a reduction of representation, they are all chary of any other coercive measures under the constitutional amendments through the fear of arraying race antagonism against the party. There is where the matter stands.

I see at present little prospect of any other solution. I have said, and I repeat, that if, as I believe, this is the state of party leadership, the laws should not be left as they are. The constitutional provisions unenforced as they are, do the negro no good. They irritate the Southern whites, accustom them to regard the government as threatening without enforcing measures, so breeding enmity and contempt, and they present the government to all people at home and abroad as either hypocritical or impotent.

The only alternative of non-enforcement by the government of the suffrage laws in the states is virtual if not actual recession of suffrage to the states and reduction of their representation to the basis of their real instead of their fictitious suffrage.

This is a nusillanimous attitude for the party to assume, but it is more respectable than its present relation to the subject.

Scrofula, salt rheum, erysipelas and other distressing eruptive diseases yield quickly and permanently to the cleansing, purifying power of Burdock Blood Bitters.

NEITHER MAN GOT A FALL.

Baltimore, April 15.—Harvey Parker, of Brockton, Mass., the champion welterweight wrestler of the world, and Gus Schoenlein "Americus" of this city, were on the mat two hours and forty-five minutes last night, neither man gaining a fall. The match was for the championship of the world in the class, two falls in three. Throughout the battle "Americus" was on the defensive, while Parker worked hard to pin his opponent to the floor. Both men seemed strong when the referee at 12:45 a. m. called the bout a draw.

is endorsed and recommended by thousands of mothers.

Read what Mr. Geo. E. Cody, of 133 South Sixth West St., Salt Lake City, says about the cure of his daughter. Mr. Cody writes:

My little girl, 4 years old, was greatly troubled with worms. I called in three different doctors, bought several different kinds of worm medicine, but she got no better. Finally I was advised to use Kickapoo Indian Worm Killer, and bought a package at the drug store. She immediately passed great quantities of both stomach and pin worms. She now eats and sleeps well, and has gained many pounds in weight.

BRITISH PIG IRON

Is No Longer Needed In the United States.

New York, April 15.—Indications are multiplying that America is no longer in need of British pig iron, and has, indeed, ceased to be a buyer, says the Tribune's London representative. It is now a number of weeks since the Cleveland market booked an order for the United States, and though occasional shipments continue to be made, they are invariably in fulfillment of old orders or of prolonged contracts secured last year.

NORTH WILL ACCEPT.

Boston, Mass., April 15.—S. N. D. North, of this city, has decided to accept the directorship of the United State's censsu bureau, the position recently offered him by President Roosevelt. The matter was left to the executive committee of the National Association of Wool Manufacturers, to which association Mr. North thought he owed prior allegiance, and they released him from his obligations as secretary.

LOATH TO FORGET

Language Used Toward Him When He Was In Army.

Gen. Humphrey's Promotion Forced Down President's Throat.

Washingon, April 15.—An interesting story is going the rounds with regard to the relations between Gen. Charles F. Humphrey, who has just been advanced to the grade of brigadier general, and President Roosevelt. The intimates of the White House are quite frank in admitting that the appointement was forced down the president's throat, and are waiting to see what will be the relations between the new quartermaster general of the army and the executive mansion. The difficulty dates back to the time when Col. Humphrey was the quartermaster of Shafter's army and Roosevelt was a lieutenant colonel of volunteers. Roosevelt did not forget that there was a man in the army who had told him in plain language to "go to h—," and waited the time when he could return the compliment. Humphrey went to China and the Philippines. Roosevelt returned home, was elected governor of New York and vice president of the United States, and finally became president. Last winter it was determined that Gen. Ludington would be retired in April and Humphrey was first in line for his place. Secretary Root called at the White House to discuss the selection and was told he might have any one he wanted with one exception. Humphrey might go to any old place, but not up higher.

This attitude of the "administration" leaked out and made Gen. Humphrey's friends, which include the entire army, feel very badly, and they proceeded to get busy and bring pressure to bear. One of the best of them said last Monday that they would put it up to the president so he could not help but appoint him. And they did. An indorsement was drawn up and presented to the president, signed by every general officer in the army, active or retired, urging Humphrey's appointment. Miles and Corbin headed the list. Shafter, Otis, Chaffee, MacArthur and Wood, and the others followed. This was the first time many of them had ever agreed on any issue. Last week it was announced that Humphrey would be appointed.

Veterans of the Santiago campaign tell the story of the dispute between Col. Humphrey and Lieut. Col. Roosevelt about as follows: The First division of the army was landed at Daiquiri on April 22. Two days later it was found practicable to land the balance, which was the "Rough Riders" regiment, at Siboney, a point several miles nearer to Santiago.

The troops were accordingly landed and they hustled to prepare themselves for the march. If they got ready before the division came up they would naturally head the line and get the glory of the first shot. Humphrey was in charge of the unloading. As usual he was attending to it himself, and a hot job it was, with fifteen transports to unload, which had been packed helter-skelter at Tampa with everything he wanted at the bottom. "Teddy" and a ahlf dozen regular regiment commanders were standing with their men on the beach impatiently waiting their turn to receive their plunder. Things became a little slow for the future president, so he borrowed a boat and rowed out to Shafter's boat and registered a kick that the Rough Riders were being neglected. Shafter told him to go to Humphrey, as he was in full charge. He saw Humphrey and asked him if some of the regulars could not be asked to wait a while as he was very, very anxious to get into a fight very quick. Humphrey is a regular, and he is also quick tempered. He didn't know that he was talking to a future president, but his friends say he wouldn't have minded if he had. He did not explain in detail his system of unloading, which was the simple one of taking every ship as it came along, but he just told Lieut. Col. Roosevelt to go to h—, which was shorter and saved time, but the remark has made several of his friends gray haired in the last five years trying to smooth down Lieut. Col. Roosevelt's ruffled fur.

MAKING OF FUEL

From Coal Dust, Lignite and Peat In Germany.

Dakota Lignite Molded Into Briquettes With Entire Success.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, April 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—The state department has made public an interesting paper written by Consul General Frank H. Mason from Berlin, giving further particulars on the methods of manufacturing fuel briquettes from coal dust, lignite, and peat in Germany. Mr. Mason says that since writing his last report (December 23, 1902); which was published in The Herald, two experienced engineers—one from New York, the other from Minnesota—have come to Germany to make careful scientific studies of the subject for the purpose of assisting to transplant the industry, or such of it as may be adaptable to American conditions, to the United States. Both these experts have declared themselves astonished by the proportions of the fuel-briquette manufacture in Germany the size and the number of factories engaged, the amount of capital invested, the technical excellence of the machinery employed, the permannt fireproof buildings, and the modernized methods of handling materials and product. One of these engineers said:

"Of all this, we have at home not the faintest conception. We read in a consular report that there are in this country 286 brown-coal-briquette factories with 691 presses; that they work up annually 44,211,000 tons of lignite; and that the 12 coal-dust-briquette factories of the Dortmund syndicate alone turn out 2,100,000 tons of "industry briquettes" per annum, but such figures leave no definite impression. We haven't got beyond the stage where a more or less experimental machine press under a wooden shed is considered a briquette factory."

Meanwhile, each American mail continues to bring inquiries from owners of lignite, peat, and coal properties in many states and territories, all asking for further details concerning German processes, the cost, capacity and productiveness of machinery, thermal values and market price of the various kinds of briquetted fuel, and other information which it is difficult to condense into ordinary correspondence. With a view of answering more fully these inquiries—which at present relate more especially to the utilization of lignite and peat deposits—the present supplementary report is submitted.

It has been repeatedly stated that the outward cleanliness of Berlin and other German cities is principally due to the general consumption of brown-coal briquettes for household and steam fuel; further, that they are made from ordinary German lignite without the use of tar or other artificial binder, that they are compact to store, clean to handle, easy to kindle, burn with a clear, strong flame, are cheaper than good bituminous coal, and are made practically smokeless. Lignite varies in its value and adaptability for briquetting purposes according to its geologic age, hardness, and the percentage of water contained. A lignite with less than 20 per cent of water is very difficult to work by the usual processes, and it is for this reason that Austria-Hungary, which has an abundance of very old and hard brown coal that contains from 26 to 28 per cent of moisture, has practically no supply of briquettes from that source. German lignite, on the other hand, is of much more recent formation; it contains from 46 to 52 per cent of water, and is usually so soft that it can be cut with a spade. Many lignite beds in this country are filled with logs and pieces of wood, so well preserved in the matrix of partially carbonized material that they burn readily and form a cheap and abundant fuel for steam and other heating at the briquette factories. The part played by the water contained in lignite forms the key to the whole economic briquetting process. The crude brown coal is brought from the mine, crushed and pulverized, and then run through a large revolving tubular cylinder, heated by exhaust steam from the driving engine, and hung on an inclined plane so that the powdered material runs downward through the tubes by gravity, and is carried into the machine press that stamps it into briquettes. During this passage through the cylinder, it is dried and heated until there remains the right proportion of moisture, combined with the proper temperature to develop the latent bitumen in the lignite and make the powdered mass plastic and easy to mold under heavy pressure between heated iron jaws into a hard, clean, briquette, with a glistening surface and sufficient firmness of structure to stand weather, transportation, and other contingencies. To do this perfectly and economically, the natural lignite should contain, as it comes from the mine, approximately enough water so that heating to the proper temperature for pressing will evaporate out just sufficient water to leave it at the proper degree of moisture. The ideal proportion is about 15 per cent of water, so that German lignite contains rather too much, while Austrian contains much too little, though this latter difficulty has lately been partially overcome by steaming. The important question to be now decided is how American lignite will fulfill these requirements.

During the past six weeks, samples of lignite from near Bismarck, N. D., and from Trost, Ala., have been received at this consulate, turned over to the syndicate mentioned in a previous report, and molded experimentally into briquettes with entire success. The Dakota lignite is old and hard, contains 28 per cent of water, but crushes and pulverizes easily and forms without binder briquettes of firm structure, which burn readily, are practically smokeless, and leave only 4 per cent of ash, while the best German brown-coal briquettes yield from 9 to 12 per cent of inorganic residue. The percentage of water contained is rather low, but by adapting the heating-drying process to that proportion of moisture, this obstacle, such as it is, can be easily met, and the reduced task of evaporation will be an economy in the general process.

The Alabama lignite, on the other hand is an ideal material, and from the one sample submitted is conceded here to be even superior to the standard brown coals of Germany. It contains the correct percentage of moisture, crushes easily, and molds readily into firm, shining, black briquettes, so clean that, as one of the experts at Magdeburg said, "They might be used for paper weights."

The importance of these simple demonstrations will be inferred from the fact that, according to a recent state geological report, there are 55,000 square miles of lignite beds in the Dakotas and Montana, all near the surface of the ground, and ranging in thickness from 20 to 80 feet. The extent of the lignite deposits in the Gulf states is perhaps less exactly known, but they certainly cover a large area. There are also lignite in Missouri, Iowa, and several other Western states and territories, and it is from all those hitherto practically neglected deposits that an inexhaustible future supply of smokeless domestic fuel will be derived. It will, therefore, be of interest to state concisely what constitutes a first-class, up-to-date lignite-briquette factory in Germany, where the industry has reached, after many years experience, its highest development. A typical example is the factory at Lauchhammer, about eighty miles south of Berlin, on the direct line to Dresden. This establishment, which is of the latest and most approved construction, has eight presses, with the necessary pulverizing, heating, and drying plant, run by electric motors with current generated by steam evaporated with wood from the mines, the whole under handsome, substantial buildings of brick, stone, and iron; and cost, with tracks, switches, and full equipment for handling raw material and loading the briquettes into cars, $471,000, of which $178,599 was paid for machinery. Each press weighs thirty-two metric tons and stamps out 100 to 120 briquettes per minute, or seventy tons in a double-turn day's work of twenty hours. The heating and drying apparatus for each press weighs eighteen tons. The power required for each press and dryer is 125 horsepower, and both the dryer and jaws of the press between which the briquettes are squeezed at enormous pressure are heated by exhaust steam from the Corliss engine in the powerhouse, the whole supply for the eight machines being equivalent to about 150 horsepower.

Thus equipped, the plant at Lauchhammer turns out from 500 to 600 tons of briquettes per day, which sell on cars at the factory for from 7 to 9 marks ($1.66 to $2.14), according to season and market, with an average of eight marks ($1.90) per 1000 kilograms, or metric ton of 2204 pounds. Profits depend on the usual varying conditions, location, management, demands, etc., but it is common to read in the Berlin papers official notices announcing dividends of brown-coal-briquette companies ranging from 15 to 20 per cent of their capital. So enormously has the industry been developed in recent years that there is now an overproduction, and it is said that 100,000 carloads (1,000,000 tons) of briquettes will be carried over to the fuel supply of next summer and autumn.

CORNERED THE MARKET

Germans Bewail Skillful Work of American Tobacco Company.

Berlin, April 15.—The manner in which the American Tobacco company cornered the market for cigarette tobacco is reported upon by the Berlin chamber of commerce to the Prussian minister, Herr Moeller, as follows:

The American Tobacco Trust in a skilfull, well planned manner, secured the output of cigarette tobacco in order to meets its increased demand for raw tobacco by buying not only in the markets of producing countries, but in the chief staples markets. The warehouses are at present empty and prices for the cheaper qualities have risen 25 to 50 per cent. It cannot, however, be asserted that the American purchases were made for purposes of speculation or for controlling the market of the world. They appear on the other hand merely to have been to cover the trust's enormous demand. So far as the German product is concerned the cheaper qualities were bought but of the American crop, the dearer kinds were purchased. While it is hardly planned to make the German raw tobacco market dependent upon American interests, still the domestic industry feels keenly the deficiency in raw material and the enhancement of prices. The market for cigar tobacco has felt the influence of the trust to a lesser degree. Of course the trust completely controls the raw tobacco supply for Havana cigars. The trust began operations in the German cigar market with the purchase of the factory of George A. Jasmatzi, of Dresden, at the beginning of 1901. Since then it has succeeded in increasing its business fully 50 per cent. In order to create a large market for its product the trust operates with liberal rebates, but there is nothing unusual in this method of doing business, apart from the part that rebates are given even for small quantities. Furthermore, it has developed a system of bounties which is strongly disapproved in German business circles.

We believe the trust intends to try to secure control of the entire German cigarette market, but there is nothing to indicate that it will soon succeed. The German cigarette industry is strong enough in capital and technical equipment to take up the fight against the trust.

OLD BOND CASE.

State of South Dakota Sues North Carolina.

Washington, April 15.—The United States supreme court yesterday heard arguments in the case of the state of South Dakota vs. the State of North Carolina involving the legality of bonds issued by the latter state in 1866 to aid the construction of the North Carolina railroad. Originally the bonds amounted in the aggregate to $2,500,000, but all but $250,000 of them, which were owned by New York parties, were compromised. Of the bonds which were not thus settled, $10,000 worth were presented to the educational fund of South Dakota, for the purpose, it is claimed by the legal represenatives of North Carolina, of giving the federal supreme court original jurisdiction. The case was argued for South Dakota by Wheeler H. Peckham, and for North Carolina by George Rountree, J. H. Merriman and Joseph E. Shepherd. North Carolina contests the suit on the ground that the bonds were not legally issued and also challenges the jurisdiction of the court.

SENT FREE TO MEN

A Most Remarkable Remedy That Quickly Restores Lost Vigor to Men.

A Free Trial Package Sent By Mail to All Who Write.

Free trial packages of a most remarkable remedy are being mailed to all who will write the State Medical Institute. They cured so many men who had battled for years against the mental and physical suffering of lost manhood, that the Institute has decided to distribute free trial packages to all who write. It is a home treatment and all men who suffer with any form of sexual weakness, resulting from youthful folly, premature loss of strength and memory, weak back, varicocele, or emaciation of parts can now cure themselves at home.

"No Man Is Lost—There Is a Cure for Every Man."—Dr. Robinson.

The remedy has a peculiarly gratful effect of warmth and seems to act direct to the desired location, giving strength and development just where it is needed. It cures all the ills and troubles that come from years of misuse of the natural functions and has been an absolute success in all cases. A request to the State Medical Institute, 2739 Elektron Building, Ft. Wayne, Ind., stating that you desire one of their free trial packages will be compiled with promptly. The Institute is desirous of reaching that great class of men who are unable to leave home to be treated and the free sample will enable them to see how easy it is to be cured of sexual weakness when the proper remedies are employed. The Institute makes no restrictions. Any man who writes will be sent a free sample, carefully sealed in a plain package so that its recipient need have no fear of embarrassment or publicity. Readers are requested to write without delay.

SSS THE OLDEST AND BEST BLOOD PURIFIER

THE GREATEST OF ALL TONICS.

A Spring Medicine that adds vigor and strength to the system, purifies and enriches the Blood, and lays the foundation for a strong constitution and good health during the hot sultry summer.

Most everybody feels bad in the spring. Some have no particular ailment but are just tired, worn out and totally unfit for work or anything else that requires energy or effort. They mope around upon the border-land of invalidism, irritable, peevish, hysterical and unreasonable.

A good appetite in the spring is a rarity, and we sicken at the sight of food, or thought of eating, and what little we do eat is a burden to the stomach and a tax upon the digestion.

Warm weather is sure to bring out the hidden poisons, germs and seeds of disease that have been collecting in the blood and system during winter, and you may look for some old chronic trouble to make its appearance. It is a time, too, when boils and carbuncles, and pustular or scaly skin eruptions like eczema and tetter, pay their annual visits and make life miserable by their intense pains and intolerable itching and burning.

The fight for health should begin before any warning symptoms of physical collapse are felt, or before the seeds of disease have time to germinate if we would avoid the usual spring sickness; and with S. S. S., the acknowledged king of blood purifiers and greatest of all tonics, you can put your blood and system in such perfect condition and so strengthen the constitution that one may be as free from sickness and as vigorous and strong during the trying months of spring and depressing summer season as at any other time.

S. S. S. not only builds you up, but searches out and destroys any poisonous germs or impurities that may be lurking in the blood. The benefits derived from the use of S. S. S. are permanent because it acts directly on the blood and purifies and cleanses it of all impure matter, leaving nothing to cause fermentation and deterioration of this life-giving fluid.

In selecting your blood purifier and spring tonic get one that long experience and thorough test have proven the best. In S. S. S. you will find a remedy whose purifying properties are unquestionable, and just such a tonic as your system needs. Ask your druggist for S. S. S.—there is nothing else just as good.

For the past 40 years we have had a standing offer of $1,000 for proof that S. S. S. contains the least particle of any mineral whatever, and this offer is still open.

Gentlemen: For over four years I suffered with general debility, causing a thorough breaking down of my system, so that I was unable to attend to my household duties. I had tried other medicines, which did not relieve me. Seven years ago my cousin, who had been benefited by S. S. S., told me about it. I tried it and it cured me. I have been able to attend to my household duties ever since, experiencing no inconvenience whatever; in fact, I am able to work in the garden as well as my house.

I heartily recommend S. S. S. to all who may feel the need of a thoroughly good blood tonic, feeling sure they will be benefited thereby.

Yours truly,
MRS. JOSIE A. BRITTAIN,
44 W. Ninth St., Columbia, Tenn.

SSS NATURE'S REMEDY PURELY VEGETABLE

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

Dr. Adolf Lorenz, who during his last visit to the United States performed a number of bloodless surgical operations, arrived at New York Tuesday on the steamer Lahn from Genoa. He goes to Chicago to remove the cast from the hip of Lolita Armour, daughter of J. Ogdon Armour, to operate upon whom he made his first visit to America.

The match race between the two American derby candidates, Witful and Claude, at Memphis Tuesday resulted in an easy victory for the Hildreth mare, which won by two lengths in a canter. Witful opened favorite and was well backed. Claude was never dangerous and although he received a good ride by Bullman, he was no match for the speedy daughter of Mirthful.

The boiler of the Charles Bevans sawmill at Ruby, O., exploded Tuesday, killing Clarke Bevas, Richard Houck, Rufus Houck and two boys named Houck and Gottridge. Several others were badly injured.

The Philadelphia schooner George C. Thomas, which sailed from Grand Constable Island Feb. 5 for New York, has been given up for lost. She was commanded by Capt. Morris and manned by a crew of ten men. No tidings of the vessel have been received since she sailed. The trip under ordinary conditions should have been made within two weeks. The schooner was owned by Geo. C. Thomas of Drexel & Co., and was valued at $30,000.

Policeman C. Leslie was shot and instantly killed at Joplin, Mo., Tuesday night while trying to capture several negroes suspected of theft. The negroes riddled the officer's body with bullets and fled. A posse is in pursuit and more trouble is feared.

Prompt and effective work arrested the threatened destruction of Waterloo levee about 70 miles above New Orleans on the east bank of the river. A crawfish hole had developed near its base and widened to a diameter of 18 or 20 inches. Timely warning was given and after a day of hard work a run around was completed and the source of the trouble made reasonably secure.

George Smith, aged 50 years, and his two sons of West Fairview, Pa., who were employed at the Harrisburg Foundry and machine works, were drowned in the Susquehanna river while on their way home from work. The men attempted to cross the river in a small rowboat which struck a rock and capsized, throwing them into the water.

William Phillips, a young farmer, living near Arlington, Tex., shot and killed his wife and then killed himself Tuesday. It is said the couple had not lived contentedly, although but recently married.

Justice Blanchard in the New York supreme court handed down a decision, that the $20,000 legacy left by the late Charlotte A. Mount to Bishop Daniel S. Tuttle of the Protestant Episcopal diocese of Utah for the purpose of erecting a church within the boundary of his Episcopal jurisdiction is void and cannot be sustained. By the decision the $20,000 must be divided in accordance with the distribution of the residuary estate as provided in the will.

WHEAT HAS BULGE

Strength In Foreign Markets Brings a Rise Here.

Export Demand Is Fair—Flax Is Quiet and Higher.

Duluth Board of Trade, April 15.—The wheat market started firm this morning and made a strong advance during the morning. The opening strength was due to the strong French market which was up 1¼ to ½c. Northwestern receipts were also small. The first advance met large offerings and the market reacted. Later there was good export business. New York reported 40 loads of wheat worked, and the market again advanced and to a higher point, holding it to the close which was practically at the top.

The Liverpool market closed ⅜ to ⅝d higher. Paris ½ to 1½c higher and Antwerp unchanged.

Primary receipts of wheat were 240,000 bushels, last year 253,000 bushels. Shipments 522,000 bushels, last year 297,000 bushels.

Receipts of wheat at Duluth and Minneapolis, 134 cars, and at Chicago 4, a total of 138 cars, against 199 last week and 144 last year.

Corn in the Liverpool market closed with an advance of ⅛ to ⅜d and in the Chicago market was also higher, closing ⅝c up. May oats advanced ⅝-½c. Primary receipts of corn were 207,000 bus., last year 155,000 bus. Shipments 356,000 bus., last year 249,000 bus.

The Duluth market opened with a bid of 75⅝c for May, but the first sale was two minutes later at 76¼c. It sagged off to 75⅝c at 9:43, and then bulged to 76⅝c. A reaction to 76¼c at 11 followed and it again turned stronger, selling at 76⅝c at 12:15 and closed at that price. This was an advance of ¾c. Chicago ¾-⅞c and Minneapolis ⅝-¾c.

Cash sales were 10,000 bushels. Cash prices were the same, ¼c over May for No. 1 northern and 1¼c under for No. 2.

Flax was quiet and firmer. May selling ½c up to $1.11½ and closing there.

There was an advance of 1c in oats to arrive and no track and 1c in the May option.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat—To arrive, No. 1 hard, 78¼c; No. 1 northern, 76¼c; No. 2 northern, 75¼c; May, No. 1 hard, 78½c; No. 1 northern, 76½c; July, 76¾c. Flax—In store, $1.10½; on track, $1.11½; to arrive, $1.11½; May, $1.11½; July, $1.13; September, $1.14½; October, $1.14; November, $1.12. Oats—On track, 32½c; to arrive, 32½c. Bay, 33½c. Rye—On track, 48c; to arrive, 49c; May, 49½. Barley, 35@51c.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Opened Strong With Good General Demand.

Chicago, April 15.—Wheat opened strong on higher cables and small receipts. May being ⅜@½c to ⅝@¾c higher at 77c to 77¼c. July was ⅛c to ⅜c higher at 71⅛c to 71⅜c. There was a good general demand at the start, together with active covering by shorts, but commission houses had plenty for sale round 77c, and after selling down to 76⅞c, May steadied at 77c. July held firm at 71c. Minneapolis and Duluth reported receipts of 134 cars, which, with local receipts of four cars, one of contract grade, made total receipts for the three points of 138 cars, against 199 cars last week and 144 cars a year ago.

A good export demand coupled with active buying by commission houses caused a strong market the latter half of the day and closing prices were near the top. May sold up to 77½, and closed ⅜@⅝c higher at 77⅜c. July was up ⅜@⅝c, closing at 71⅜@⅝c after touching 72c.

Corn opened active with an urgent demand from shorts, the May option being especially strong at an advance of ¼c to ⅜c, at 44½c to 45c. The continued wet weather was the principal bull factor, although the strength in wheat was also a strengthening influence. Local receipts 54 cars, with none of contract grade.

The close was strong with May ⅝c higher at 44½c.

Wet weather and strength in other grains caused firmness in oats at the opening, May being ¼c to ⅜c higher at 33½c to ¾c. Commission houses and scalpers were good buyers early in the day, but later the demand slackened and with some liquidation the price declined to 33¼c, but rallied again to 33½c. Local receipts were small, 54 cars.

Provisions opened quiet and featureless with prices steady. May pork being 5c higher at $18.05; May lard unchanged at $9.50 and ribs 2½c lower at $9.87½. There was some selling of pork by locals, which caused a slight decline in that product, but the balance of the list was steady.

Close: Wheat, May 77⅜c; July 71⅜@⅜c; Sept. 68c. Corn—April 44½c; May 44½c; July 44½c; Sept., 43⅝@¾c. Oats—April 34c; May 33⅜@⅝c; July 30⅜c; Sept., 27⅞@28c. Pork—May $17.97½; July $17.37½; Sept., $17.05. Lard—May $9.50; July $9.80; Sept. $9.77½. Ribs—May $9.87½; July $9.70@72½; Sept., $9.65. Rye—May 50c; July 50c. Barley—Cash, 42@54c. Flax cash N. W. $1.11; S. W. $1.09; May $1.11. Timothy April $3.60; Clover—April $12.00. Cash wheat 2 red 71; 3 red 68@74; 2 hard winter 71@73; 3 hard winter 68@71; 1 northern spring 79@81; 2 northern spring 78@80; 3 spring 70@79. Corn—2, 44; 3, 39½@40. Oats 2, 31½c; 3, 31c.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

Chicago Record-Herald: It seemed to be altogether an Armour wheat market up to noon but in the last hour of the session the speculator who had kept his eye fixed on the Armour manoeuvre noticed that St. Louis had moved up 1½@ and the New York 1¼c, and that both markets had gained on Chicago. The Armour plans were suddenly dropped for the consideration of outside markets. The local professionals who had been radically bearish during the early hours of trading began to cover. The market closed with as strong an appearance as it has had been weak early. The leading export interest at New York, Fowler is credited with the marking up of New York and St. Louis May prices yesterday the move which caused the closing strength in the wheat here. It is said Fowler has been buying the deferred futures in the chief winter wheat markets and offering wheat for new crop shipment abroad on the basis of these purchases. It is not a spread that everyone would care to make, but Fowler has the money to make the bet. The effect yesterday was to increase the May premium at New York over the Chicago by ½c and to lessen the discount at St. Louis under Chicago by ¾c. New York May closed 3⅜c over Chicago. St. Louis 7¼c under Chicago. There is an idea in the trade the next thing in wheat will be an improvement in the outside prices while the Chicago market is simply held steady.

Harris, Gates & Co., Chicago: Our Antwerp friends write us under date of April 3 about as follows: "Wheat is firmer on good consumptive demand. Chicago has overdone the decline and in the meantime Europe has picked up many good bargains. Europe wants a good deal more and we think it will be rather difficult to get it all at present prices. France must import heavily before her new crop begins to move. Germany also will remain a steady buyer till next harvest. Although it is too early to say anything definite about growing crops, it is safe to say the Roumanian and Russian crop prospects are far from being favorable and the importing countries like France and Germany will raise no big crops either. Admitted the United States will raise a crop of 700,000,000 bus., the present prices do not look high to us. India has sold very little as yet, simply because the price of new Kurachee is in proportion with new red winter wheat, still 4 cents too high. Broomhall's news on March 1 which he claims India was underselling America fully seven cents a bushel, was without foundation. Argentina does not press her wheat offers and the rush there tends to be over. We know of a large European house which cables to Buenos Ayres to buy up wheat freely, and they were only able to buy a quarter of million bushels and that at 2 cents a bushel advance. Russia has old the larger portion of her surplus to England and especially Liverpool. Manitoba wheat is a luxury to the continental millers this year, being 5 cents over red winter. As far as the new American crop is concerned we dare say that the United States with 68 cents in Chicago is up to now without competition and will remain so in the near future. Prof. Ruhland, of Berlin, in his Journal of April speaks very unfavorably of the growing wheat crop in Germany. In some provinces 60 to 75 per cent were winter killed and had to be re-plowed."

Logan & Bryan Chicago: Wheat—The market here was rather more active and strong. Continental markets were all higher and New York and the Southwest reported quite a good deal of inquiry for wheat from exporters. There was also some talk of probable removal of decrease of the French duty. Reports from Nebraska on the growing crop were also somewhat conflicting. Armour was not doing very much apparently, but possibly may have sold a little wheat. The buying was by commission houses. Michigan crop reports makes condition 91 with 17 per cent of the old crop still in farmers' hands. We are inclined to think that unless Armour takes the notion to fill up the market prices may work higher, particularly on July, and that it should be bought on soft spots. Estimated cars, 20.

Corn—Market here was again strong. The continued cold, wet weather, with small receipts and delayed planting in some sections, were the causes. There was a free covering by local shorts and a fair commission house buying. The strike among vesselmen has practically been settled and the cash situation should be more in evidence. While the situation is not sufficiently clear for a bull market we think that purchases made on breaks of the July option will not do any harm. Estimated cars, 385.

SELLING OF STOCKS

Caused Many of the Early Gains to Be Wiped Out.

There Were Some Rallies But the Close Was Unsettled.

New York, April 15.—Opening price changes in the stock market were very much mixed and were generally restricted to within a half either way. A sagging tendency developed after the opening on active trading. Opening prices showed gains of ⅞ for Northwestern and Ice preferred and a loss of as much for Canadian Pacific. Prices did not ease off much before a large demand sprang up which lifted the entire list above yesterday's close. Steady buying of Pennsylvania, Baltimore and Ohio, Copper and Sugar in large blocks had a beneficial effect on trading. United States Leather advanced 1 and the preferred 2 with the preferred stock unusually active. Rubber Goods, Kansas City Southern and Pacific Mail also gained a point each. General Electric rose 2¼. Baltimore and Ohio's rise was stimulated by the large increase in the net earnings for March. Dealings were on a larger scale all around and the improvements were well maintained up to 11 o'clock. Northern Securities on the curb was a fraction below last night's close.

The buying movement was continued in the second hour, lifting a number of prominent railroads and industrials a point or more over last night. Northwestern gained 2⅝. Reading first preferred 2, Delaware and Hudson 1¾ and a number of the Gould stocks, Baltimore and Ohio, Sugar, Amalgamated, Tennessee Coal, and some less prominent stocks 1 to 1½. In the inactive list Fort Worth and Denver City stamped scored a decline of 15, Evansville and Terre Haute preferred 3 and Kansas City, Forth Scott and Memphis preferred, Snuff preferred and Westinghouse Electric 2. Prices receded slightly when the buying diminished and trading became dull. Bonds were firm at noon.

Western stocks and some of the coolers were pushed up resolutely again, but there was not much of a following in the general market, which was quieter and hung back. Union Pacific and Baltimore & Ohio were marked above 89, and Atchison and Rock Island also advanced strongly. Realizing sales forced the leaders down a trifle at 1 o'clock and dealings became dull.

St. Paul met large selling orders when it touched 161 and yielded all its advance. All other stocks sagged a good fraction but there was no aggressive selling at any point. The market hardened later to about the top. St. Louis Southwestern preferred advanced 2¼, while Chicago Great Western preferred 1 lost 1¾.

When the shorts desisted from their covering operations the market became very dull and prices drifted downward. There were advances of 3 in Lake Erie & Western, 1⅞ in Metropolitan and a point or over in Norfolk & Western, Evansville & Terre Haute, and United States Rubber preferred. A single sale of Westinghouse Electric preferred made a decline of 27 points from the preceding sale. Manhattan sold off rapidly when it became known that the demands of the employes had been refused. The stock lost 2 and the local tractions reacted in sympathy. The selling movement became general and gains in many cases were wiped out. Union Pacific, Southern Pacific, St. Paul & Louisville were carried ¾ to ⅞ under last night and Consolidated Gas, 2½. There were some rallies but the close was unsettled.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Waldorf to Coe Commission Co.: It is impossible, accurately, to estimate total purchases of stocks by investors in the past two days, but some very conservative observers believe that at least 200,000 shares have been paid for and taken out of the Street. In the financial circles here the absorption of such a large amount of securities is regarded as a most favorable feature, and together with heavy buying by the foremost financial interest in Union Pacific, Missouri Pacific, Atchison, St. Paul, New York Central and the Steel stocks is taken to mean that the character of the stock market has changed for the better and that while it may be for a time characterized by irregularity and feverishness stocks should be bought on all drives. The rumor that Morgan and Hill will abandon the Northern Securities suit has had much to do with influencing a favorable change in sentiment, but it is current comment that at the present range of price and in view of the heavy declines that have taken place more dependence is to be placed on those who believe in improving markets and higher prices as the big factors in the situation than on those who urge the worn out arguments of deals and consolidations. The heavy increase in March exports, the unprecedented winter wheat crop, weakness in sterling exchange and easier monetary conditions are influences which are expected to cut more of a figure speculatively for some time to come than any others. It is unquestionably true that the buying of stocks yesterday and Monday by leading banking interests, some of which have been against the market for two or three months past, was prompted by the above factors mainly.

Ridgley to W. H. Laidley & Co.: Evidences of comparative ease in the money market, an unprecedented wheat crop, a highly promising export trade and steadily increasing railway earnings are all lost sight of under the hysterical fright which has come over Wall street as a result of the Northern Securities decision. The popular impression is that the decision will be used against combinations bearing some resemblance to Northern Securities. I am quite sure that this view is wrong. Every case differs from every other case and each if judged at all must be judged separately. The Northern Pacific merger has been a menace ever since it was first mooted and from an investment standpoint, the market will be in a much stronger position by having it wiped out of existence. In my judgment stocks are a purchase from now on. I think Monday saw the end of the three months bear campaign.

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market is closing a little irregular and soft, although prices are in the main without material change from yesterday. It showed a steady tone throughout most of the day, but weakened at the close on a probable strike by the employes of the Manhattan Elevated. It is such events as this that are likely to keep the holders of stocks at a disadvantage. Labor everywhere is organized, never satisfied, and will follow out the logical purposes of their organizations. The tendency of all reactions is against the price of stocks. A sustained bull market is, therefore, we think, unlikely. On fair rallies we would sell stocks.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, April 15.—The cotton market opened firm at an advance of 3@7 points, cables being better than expected, while the bull party continued to hold the key to the position. Following the opening call the market improved 1@2 points, chiefly on covering but showed a good undertone, owing to the presence of manipulation. Interest seemed to be centering more in July with an increasing interest in August as well. May contracts while still fairly active as compared with the general list was less a leading factor than heretofore. The new crop positions held their own with the crop months as to fluctuations to the general market, with the close of the first hour.

Cotton spot closed quiet; middling uplands, 10.50; middling gulf, 10.75. Sales none. Cotton futures closed steady. April, 10.43; May, 10.49; June, 10.30; July, 10.10; August, 9.86; September, 9.01; October, 8.54; November, 8.41; December, 8.40.

NEW YORK MONEY.

New York, April 15.—Money on call steady; lowest, 3@5 per cent, closing offered at 3. Time money easier; 60 days, 5@5¼; 90 days, 5@5¼; 6 months, 5@5¼; prime mercantile paper, 5½@6¾. Sterling exchange firmer, $4.86.70 for demand and $4.83.60@4.83.70 for 60 days; posted rates $4.84½ and $4.87½; commercial bills, $4.82⅝@4.83⅝. Silver, Bar silver, 60c. Mexican dollars, 48c. Government bonds irregular; railroad bonds firm.

A FAMOUS ALIBI.

What to this day is one of the most remarkable cases of identification in the history of the law courts happened nearly 100 years ago in Europe, says the New York Press. In the year 1803 there arrived in Florence a traveler, accompanied by a servant. They took quarters in the best hotel. The stranger asked the proprietor how he could amuse himself during several days' stay in town. The proprietor regretted exceedingly that there was but little choice in amusements, the season being nearly over. But a trial for murder and arson, he said, was going on, and if the honorable visitor would but attend the court doubtless he would be interested to the same extent as was the populace for miles around.

The stranger took the advice, and managed to get a seat in the front row of the spectators' benches in the courtroom. The defendant protested his innocence, and asserted that at the time the crime was committed he was not in Florence, but in Rome.

Circumstantial evidence piled high against him, however, and his case seemed h

GOT MEN AWAY

G. A. Tomlinson Has Lively Time With Strikers In Superior.

Firemen Engaged to Go on Penobscot Taken From Here.

President G. A. Tomlinson, of the Duluth Steamship company was hounded by a howling herd of angry union boatmen over in Superior last night.

His companions couldn't concentrate and several suffered serious rout as a result of a charge on the little band, which was bound for the steamer Penobscot to get that boat out.

Mr. Tomlinson lost the six or seven men he went after, but there were a few contusions created first.

The list of casualties is:

Mr. Tomlinson, struck in the back by a gas pipe.

Unknown man, struck in the solar plexus by Mr. Tomlinson and knocked down.

Mr. Tomlinson kicked in the shins by unknown man.

Several unknown, struck and bruised by Mr. Tomlinson.

Other unknown men, non-union firemen, lost their baggage.

The scarcity of firemen and oilers for the boat service caused Mr. Tomlinson to start out looking for men to take the union men's places last evening, so that he could get the Penobscot, which he had chartered to carry grain east, off for her destination.

Early last evening, seeing no chance of getting the men through advertisements, he went over to a boarding house district near the barge works at Superior and after using an interpreter and some calisthenical persuasion, secured a half dozen of the men, all Finns, to sign for the round trip.

"Come, follow me, jolly lads," shouted the gallant steamboat line president, as he stepped out in the dark night from the well lighted boarding house. They all followed, carrying their "kits" and talked in their own language.

But alas! Mr. Tomlinson had not reckoned that this portion of the settlement across the bay was where the hotbed of the striking union oilers and firemen was situated. He discovered it however, before proceeding far, for a mob of about 200 men, women, children, goats and dogs swooped down upon the little band.

"Avast there," shouted a striker as he rolled along on his sea legs.

The crowd closed down on the smaller party, apparently with the intention of firing a broadside of bricks and other missles.

"Biff," said the fist of Mr. Tomlinson, who is no slouch with his Terry McGoverns. One man dropped, and then someone hit Mr. Tomlinson with a piece of gas pipe.

While this interesting performance was going on there was trouble in the rear guard, which had been left unprotected.

The Finns all had their baggage in hand grips, and the union strikers saw a great chance for strategy.

They didn't touch the Fins, but grabbed the baggage from the hands of the would-be firemen and oilers, and ran down the street, keeping just far enough ahead, so that the excited foreigner would follow on.

In this way all of the men Mr. Tomlinson secured were enticed away, and his work was set as naught.

"I can whip you all in a bunch or individually," said Mr. Tomlinson to the crowd, which was now giving him the laugh.

"We are peaceable citizens and never fight," said the leader and Mr. Tomlinson had to retire for want of words to express his views on life in general.

Enough men were secured today and the Penobscot cleared this morning.

SESSION OF PRESBYTERY

Business Meetings Held —Popular Meeting This Evening.

The morning session of the Duluth presbytery opened this morning at 8:45, with devotional exercises, led by Rev. W. W. Read. The business portion of the meeting began at 9:15, with Rev. E. S. Axtell in the chair.

An application was entered by Rev. David Campbell to be released from his pastoral relations at Pine City and Hinckley. The matter was referred to an adjourned meeting of the presbytery.

The committees of work were appointed, the chairmen of which are: Bills, overtures and judicial business, J. M. Todd; leave of absence, E. P. Crane, finance, T. H. Cleland; resolutions, H. B. Sutherland.

Rev. I. I. Gorby was received into the presbytery from Vincennes, Ind. The remainder of the morning was given over to the discussion of the report of the committee of home missions and the apportionment of money given by the general assembly. There is given by the assembly $3100 for old work and $750 for new work.

Recommendations were received to organize churches at Hibbing and Scanlon. The church at Hibbing is prepared to organize with a membership of thirty-eight. The matter was referred to a committee consising of T. H. Cleland, W. A. Gilchrist, S. I. Jamison and the church at Scanlon to a committee of C. W. Lowry, S. I. Jamison and S. A. Blair.

At the afternoon session commissioners to the general assembly were elected.

At 7:45 there will be a popular meeting with Rev. R. A. Montgomery presiding. The program is as follows:

Communion service, conducted by Rev. H. F. Gilt and Rev. C. W. Lowry.

"Importance of Hearing the Gospel," Rev. S. M. Marsh.

"Evangelistic Work in the Logging Camps," Rev. F. E. Higgins.

"The World-Wide Work," Rev. W. J. Palm.

BRIDGE GIVES WAY.

Fortunately Train Was Saved From the River.

Grand Rapids, Mich., April 15.—As a freight train was crossing the Grand Trunk bridge over Grand river today, the west span of the bridge sagged, taking fifteen cars with it. The frame work held together and saved the cars from going into the river. No one was injured. The spring flood and present high water weakened the bridge.

WISE HUSBAND

Suggested a Food Cure.

All of the medical skill in the world is powerless to cure certain diseases unless the patient is put upon pure, scientific food. Then the disease seems to cure itself in many cases, proving that nature was demanding proper food to build a healthy body from.

In this simple way the use of Grape-Nuts in place of bad food has worked many cures when medical skill has been exhausted. A lady of Plainfield, N. J., who had been an invalid for over 10 years, says: "I have been treated by eminent physicians of New York, Brooklyn and Newark, besides taking innumerable proprietary remedies of a cathartic nature to regulate the bowels.

"My last physician advised a sanitarium, but my husband who had been reading one of your articles said, 'Not until we have tried the boasted virtues of Grape-Nuts.' So we got some, and I have now used Grape-Nuts for 8 months. When I began its use I weighed 85 pounds, now I weigh 105½; my stomach has grown strong and normal, my bowels are so regular that I have thrown cathartic physic to the dogs, the vertigo has left me and my whole system has gained vigor and tone. I can now take a 25-mile ride on my bicycle and enjoy it.

"I am convinced that the chief cause of my ill health was improper food that neither digested nor nourished. Since I have been fed right I feel right." Name furnished by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

IMPORTANT THINGS

A Number To Be Brought Before Commercial Club.

Opening of the Excursion Season Is Near At Hand.

The indications point to a very interesting session of the Commercial club this evening, it being the regular monthly meeting of the organization. Secretary A. L. Preston has a large number of important matters that have been accumulating to call to the attention of the membership and on which early action will have to be taken.

The season is approach when the annual conventions of improvement and municipal leagues, etc., will be held and it is particularly desired that steps be taken to have Duluth represented at all of these that it is impossible to reach. The Commercial club had delegations at a number of the big international congresses and conventions last year and much advantageous advertising was done for the city. The project is to do even more along that line the coming year.

The excursion season will soon be opening and the railway officials on the lines entering Duluth are planning on doing an even heavier business than in former seasons. The Commercial club has given assurance that the visitors to the city will be taken care of and now active steps must be taken to carry out the promises made. To do this a thorough canvass of the boarding houses, hotels, restaurants and even private houses where visitors may be accommodated, will have to be made and compiled for handy reference, a work that must necessarily be completed during the coming month.

Another matter of great interest to the membership of the club will be the part that Duluth and St. Louis county will take in the coming state fair and the St. Louis Louisana Purchase exposition. As the great possibilities which these two events will open to the northern county of Minnesota are more and more realized, the sentiment is growing stronger for a large and complete representation of the resources and industries of this part of the state, where it will be advertised to practically the whole world.

It is expected that the Commercial club will be an active factor in pushing these propositions forward this summer.

Much interest is being manifested in the address which will be given the club this evening by C. S. Mitchell, of Alexandria, superintendent of the Minnesota board of managers for the St. Louis exposition.

PLANS FOR BASEBALL

Meeting In Superior and All Arrangements Being Concluded.

A meeting of the board of control of the Northern baseball league is being held today at West Superior.

It was definitely decided that Duluth should be represented with a strong team managed by L. Van Praagh. The local manager gives up his two crack colored pitchers, Wilson and Holland, but the indications are that he will be able to get other pitchers just as good who will not infringe on the color line drawn by the northern organization.

The complete schedule of games will not be announced for several days, but Duluth will open the season at Fargo on May 20. Superior will play Winnipeg on that date and Crookston will iplay Grand Forks.

One hundred and twelve games will be played with the season closing about September 15.

Duluth will have a new baseball park just west of the Jenswold street subway, and the local team will not be scheduled for any Sunday games at home, though Sunday games will be played in all other cities of the circuit with the exception of Winnipeg.

Yesterday the Duluth club formally organized with M. J. Bryan, president; L. Van Praagh, vice president and manager; H. E. Pierce treasurer and W. A. Speedy, secretary.

GOVERNMENT SUPPLIES.

A Number of Small Contracts Are Awarded.

Several contracts have been awarded by the United States government for supplies which will be needed the coming season in connection with harbor work and pier construction at the Superior netry. The bids were opened by Capt. D. D. Gaillard, government engineer of this district. N. H. Witt has the contract to supply meats, milk and ice to the government launches; R. H. Rathbun will furnish the groceries and the Acme steam laundry will do the laundry work from the government boats.

April 20 bids will be opened for 47,000 pounds of steel plate to be used at the Superior entry pier. The coal bids will be opened April 24 and bids for 500,000 feet of Washington or Oregon fir will be opened April 30.

Billiard Tournament.

Play in Hatley's 3-cushion billiard tournament will commence tomorrow afternoon at 3 p. m. Games will be played every afternoon and evening. The first prize is a challenge cup presented by W. F. Hatley. The second prize is a billiard cue given by the Brunswick-Balke-Collender company, and the third prize is a set of gold sleeve buttons, presented by the Barrios Diamond company. The fourth prize is a box of cigars, given by J. F. Lanigan.

The following is the list of players and handicaps: Washburn, 30 (scratch); Pringle, 30 (scratch); Howard, 25; Cudo, 25; Doe, 25; Flynn, 23; Phillips, 23; Schofield, 21; Upham, 21; Brown, 21; Howenstein, 20; Stevens, 18.

Two games will be played tomorrow afternoon between Upham and Howard, and Stevens and Brown. A game between Flynn and Cudo will be played in the evening. Each player will meet every other player during the course of the tournament.

IS SHOWING WELL

Standard Ore Company Will Take the Arcturus Mine.

To Put In a Washing Plant To Try the Ore.

The exploring at the Arcturus mine has been about finished and it is said that 30,000,000 tons of high and medium grade ore have been proved up.

The Standard Mining company will take the leases provided for in the options, it is said, within a very short while.

Before the final step is taken an experimental washing machine will be put up at the mining property and worked for some time. The ore will have to go through this process on account of the sand mixture in many places.

The terms of the leases are $200,000 in advance royalties and 15 cents a ton royalty on all ore taken out.

Although Mr. Jarchow, who is conducting the explorations, has nothing to announce at this time, it is understood that John Coates, of St. Cloud, who has been up looking over the property for the past few days, and who returned today to St. Cloud, is well satisfied, and the ore deposits are figured up into the millions of tons.

The Standard company will put in the experimental machine within the week, and it will be working by the early part of next week.

There is no doubt as to the Standard Mining company's determination to work the Arcturus mine, and it is all but officially announced that the leases will be taken at once.

It is practically certain, according to the statements of men deep in the mining vortex, that the Great Northern company will not operate the Missabe Chief for a long time, probably not for a great many years. The ore body was said to have been 10,000,000 tons, but those acquainted with the property and other facts concerning the explorations, stoutly maintain that the ore body is of infinitely smaller volume and is hardly a feasible proposition for mining at the present time. Later, however, it may be operated.

A meeting of the directors of the Calumet & Arizona, Lake Superior & Pittsburg and Calumet & Pittsburg companies was held the day before yesterday at Bisbee, Ariz. Duluth was not represented at the meeeting and no news regarding what action was taken has been received here. It is probable that only the routine order of business was done. T. F. Cole is away on a vacation and C. A. Congdon is just returning from the West, neither having been able to arrange matters to attend.

FINED FOR TRESPASS

Richard Wright, a Freight Handler, Brought Into Court.

Richard Wright, a prominent member of the Freight Handlers' union and said to be one of the leaders in the strikers' picket system, was arrested this afternoon for trespassing on Northern Pacific property.

Mr. Wright was fined $10 and costs, and simultaneously with the pronouncing of the sentence several strikers began digging down in their pockets for money to pay the fine, but he did not need their assistance.

The arrest of Wright is said to be simply as a warning to strikers not only to keep away from the Northern Pacific sheds, but also off that company's right-of-way. The complaint was made by Private Detective Baker, of the Northern Pacific force.

In court Mr. Wright admitted that he had been on the Northern Pacific property, as had several hundred other men, but said that he had moved off when ordered to.

Aside from this incident there has been little excitement along the water front as a result of the strike of the freight handlers. Very few package freighters were loading or unloading at this port today, and that probably accounts for the general quietness.

The package freight contractors, Knudsen and Eden, brought in a few men from other cities today, and these were accompanied to their work by officers, and there was not the slightest demonstration against them.

The local employment agencies are reaping something of a harvest as a result of the strike. Workingmen that do not follow current events very closely come in from the camps and country and pay the agencies $1 for jobs without knowing that there is a strike on. As soon as many of them discover the situation they apply to the police to get their fee money back, but the police are powerless as long as they have hired out to do a certain piece of work and then refuse to do it, despite the fact that the job is there waiting for them.

No new special policemen have been sworn in by the Northern Pacific today, and the situation is generally described as quiet and satisfactory.

NEW YORK CENTRAL.

Albany, N. Y., April 15.—At the annual meeting of the New York Central directors here today no proposition for the consolidation of the road with any other was made and but one change in directors noted, that of Edward E. W. Rossiter, to succeed Samuel D. Babcock, deceased. No increase of capital stock was alluded to.

DENIED BY STEL TRUST.

New York, April 15.—The officers of the United States Steel corporation say there is no truth in the report that further mergers of the various subsidiary companies are still being considered. They say also that the report that they have decided to hasten a greater merger of all the iron ore mines, steel mills, furnades, coke ovens, etc., into a single ownership with a parent corporation is entirely without foundation.

SHORTER HOURS GRANTED.

Appleton, Wis., April 15.—The threatened strike of Wisconsin paper mill employes was partially settled today when the Kimberly and Clark company, of Neenah, operating nine mills, granted shorter hours in their book paper plants. The print and fibre mills are still on long hours and the men say they will walk out on Saturday night.

BALDWIN WAS MISQUOTED

General Sets Himself Right Regarding Negroes and Filipinos.

Denver, April 15.—Gen. Franklin D. Baldwin, commander of the department of the Colorado, who has been asked by the war department at Washington to explain an interview, in this city recently, in which he was quoted as speaking disparagingly of the Negro as a soldier, says that his statements were misunderstood. In an interview printed today the general is credited with the following statement:

"The inference from the interview in question, by which I am made to appear as disregarding the lives of the Negro and Filipino soldiers is ridiculous, as my past record will sustain. As to the portion of the interview relative to the Filipino and Negro soldier being disparaged, I was entirely misquoted, for the wording was of the harshest character.

"What I intended to say was to express an entirely opposite sentiment as to my feelings regarding the Filipino and Negro, as I class both as second only to the American soldier, and I would venture any military enterprise with either one of those nationalities. I consider the Filipino as susceptible to the highest estate of discipline, and that when brought to the test would make magnificent fighting material. I would trust my chances for success and my reputation alone with the Filipino or the Negro soldier."

PRINTING OFFICE RAIDED.

Proprietor Is Charged With Conducting a Lottery.

Chicago, April 15.—The police today raided the printing office of J. J. Jacobs, 76 Sherman street, and placed the proprietor under arrest, charged with keeping a common gambling house and conducting a lottery. The police claim Jacobs is manager of the Montana Mining, Loan and Investment company, the offices of which concern were raided Monday. A wagon load of printing material used in the manufacture of stock certificates of the Montana company was seized by the police. Jacobs was afterwards released in bonds of $600.

WISCONSIN LEGISLATURE.

Petitioners Ask Passage of Railroad Commission Bill.

St. Paul, April 15.—A Madison, Wis., special to the Dispatch says: Twenty more petitions for the passage of the railroad commission bill were presented to the assembly at today's session.

The bill extending the term of the labor commissioner to six years was killed in the assembly, 57 to 32. No bills of general importance were acted on in either house. The conference committee on the primary election bill meets tomorrow.

THREE TRUNK LINES

To Be Built Across State of Nebraska.

Beatrice, Neb., April 15.—The boldest stroke in railroad construction in the history of Nebraska has just been decided upon by the Gould interests as represented in the Missouri Pacific system. The plan is the construction of three trunk lines in as many different directions across the state of Nebraska.

The starting point will be Virginia, Neb., a town of 150 inhabitants on the prairies in the southeastern part of the state, and one of the present terminals of the Missouri Pacific in Nebraska. The construction of a line from Virginia to Beatrice is now under way. The title of the road as incorporated under the laws of Nebraska is the Kansas City, Beatrice & Northwestern. Beatrice is the first junction point on the new trunk lines. One line will be built due west to Denver.

CONFESSED TO MURDER

Three Boys Connected With Killing of Owatonna Man.

Minneapolis, April 15.—(Special to The Herald.)—Charles Nelson, Henry Nelson and William Sutton, three Owatonna boys, were arrested today in Minneapolis by Detective Brown, on Washington avenue South, upon suspicion of being connected with the murder of H. H. Krier, the Owatonna saloonkeeper, who was found dead on the railroad track in that city Monday night.

The boys were taken to police headquarters, where they were "sweated." The officers say that Sutton broke down and confessed the affair, but that the Nelson boys maintained a sullen silence.

Charles Nelson says he is 21 years old and his brother is only 20. Sutton is 17 years old.

CANAL TREATY.

Private Dispatch Says Its Ratification Is Doubtful.

London, April 15.—A private cable dispatch from Bogota, Colombia, received here today, says that the ratification by the United States of Colombia of the Panama canal treaty is extremely doubtful.

WAS TOO FAMILIAR.

Berlin, April 15.—A court martial has been ordered to try Ensign Hussner, of the German navy, who, on Good Friday, killed an artilleryman named Hartman, with his sword at Essen, for not saluting him properly, according to Hussner's version of the affair. Hartman was a former schoolmate of Hussner and the latter avers that the artilleryman attempted gross familiarity in trying to shake hands with him.

THOSE WHO HAVE DIED

Chicago, April 15.—Lester Legrand Bond, a prominent lawyer and politician and one of the pioneer citizens of Chicago, died at his home here early today. Mr. Bond had been ill with a complication of diseases only a few days and it was not until the last few hours that his case was regarded as hopeless. In Chicago and throughout the United States he was best known as a patent lawyer, although a general practioner. He came of an old English family which settled at Ipswich, Mass., ten years after the landing of the Pilgrims.

Marshalltown, Ia., April 15.—Moses Waterman, a pioneer Iowa journalist and for many years asociate editor of the Times-Republican is dead, aged 50.

Ansonia, Conn., April 15.—Carlos French, a millionaire manufacturer and ex-congressman, is dead at his home in Seymour of heart disease.

MISTAKEN IDENTITY.

Man Thought to Be Corpse Suddenly Appears.

New York, April 15.—The body found in a barrel in East Eleventh street yesterday was today identified as that of a man named Quatrocchi, who had come to New York from Barcelona. The identification was made by Guisseppe Bonjiorno, a Sicilian, who said he had often seen the man in a barber ship in First avenue. Quatrocchi was married, Bonjiorno said, and had been a member of some secret society.

While the police were trying to confirm Bonjiorno's identification Quatrocchi whom he supposed to be the murdered man, walked into the morgue. He was almost an exact counterpart of the murdered man. The identity of the dead man is still unknown.

APPOINTMENTS.

Great Northern Issues Circular Announcing Two.

The circular announcing the appointment of E. L. Brown as assistant general superintendent of the Eastern district of the Great Northern railway was issued yesterday, the appointment being effective today.

At the same time the Eastern district has been changed to include all that part of the Great Northern system except the Eastern division, formerly embraced in the Eastern Railway of Minnesota.

D. M. Phillbin has been made assistant general superintendent in charge of the Eastern division, with headquarters at West Superior. He will report directly to the general superintendent.

REVOLUTION SUCCESSFUL.

Tegucigalpa, Honduras, Has Surrendered to Bonilla.

Washington, April 15.—The state department today received a cablegram from United States Consul Moe at Tegucigalpa, Honduras, dated the 15th, saying that the revolution had been successful and that Tegucigalpa had on that day surrendered to Bonilla. Later the navy department received a dispatch from Commander Wilson, of the Panther, dated Puerto Cortez, confirming the capitulation of Tegucigalpa to Bonilla and saying that peace was assured.

KINDERGARTNERS

Holding an International Association at Pittsburg.

Pittsburg, April 15.—Two hundred delegates were in attendance at the opening session of the International Kindergarten association held in Carnegie music hall in this city today. The convention was called to order by Mrs. Alice Putnam of Chicago and Mrs. W. A. Herron of Pittsburg delivered the address of welcome. The reports of the delegates followed, during which letters were read from Germany and England in which it was stated that the work was progressing nicely. Mrs. Putnam then appointed committees on resolutions, selection of next place of meeting, necrology and nominations. The election of officers will take place Friday. The afternoon was devoted to an inspection of the Carnegie plants at Braddock.

PEOPLE DELIGHTED

To See a Warship Up the Ohio River.

Evansville, Ind., April 15.—The United States monitor Arkansas arrived here today. Her coming was followed by a great demonstration. The Arkansas will remain in port two days. She is en route to St. Louis to take part in the World's fair dedication. The Arkansas is the first modern warship to come up the Ohio as far as Evansville, and is the first of any kind of warship that has visited port since the civil war.

STEAMER OVERDUE.

New Haven, April 15.—The Sound line steamer John H. Starin, of the Starin Transportation company, plying between this city and New York, at 1 o'clock this morning was nearly twenty-four hours overdue. The officials of the line, however, are confident that nothing has happened to her. The Starin is an old wooden craft. She was built in 1868 and was originally used as a revenue cutter.

BAYER INDICTED.

Circleville, Ohio, April 15.—The grand jury today returned three indictments against G. C. Bayer, the alleged defaulting Building and Loan association secretary, who has disappeared and recommended that a reward be offered for his capture.

BENT ON A LYNCHING.

Joplin, Mo., April 15.—Several hundred men and boys, intent upon a lynching, are believed to be close on the trail of the negro who last night shot and killed Officer Leslie. The negro was refused breakfast at a farm house two miles north of Joplin, and is believed to be in hiding in the bushes.

FALSE, SAYS TAYLOR.

Indianapolis, April 15.—Ex-Governor Taylor, of Kentucky, this afternoon characterized the story that he had offered Frank Cecil $2500 to shoot Goebel as "infamously false." He did not know Cecil, he said, and had never seen him that he knew of.

TAFT IS BETTER.

Washington, April 15.—Secretary Root today received the following cablegram from Governor Taft, who recently went from Manila to Benguet to recover his health: "Stood trip well. Rode horseback twenty-five miles to five thousand altitude. Hope dysentery cured. Great province. This is only 150 miles from Manila with air as bracing as Adirondacks or Murray bay. Only pines and grass lands. Temperature—this is the hottest month in the Philippines in my cottage porch at 3 in the afternoon, 68 degrees. Fires necessary at night and morning."

STATEMENT

Given Out at Berlin Concerning Native Students.

Berlin, April 15.—A semi-official statement was given out to the German press today regarding the complaint of the American board of foreign missions to the state department at Washington on the subject of the harsh treatment which a number of native students of the American missionary establishment, on the island of Ruk, of the Caroline group, were subjected to by the captain of a German warship, who deported them to the island of Ponape, of the same group. The arrest of four pupils is admitted, as is their transportation on board the German cruiser Cormorant to Ponape. Immediately upon receipt of this news in Berlin, an investigation was ordered, but owing to the great distance of the islands from here, the result of the inquiry has not been reported. Hence it is impossible to judge the merits of the case. The statement further asserts that Ambassador Tower has not yet made representations in the matter to the foreign office. The latter assumes that the pupils have already been liberated.

Regardless of the German official version, it is understood that Secretary Hay's inquiry in regard to the case was lodged with the foreign office here yesterday.

HABEAS CORPUS WRIT

Granted In Case of Chicago Election Commissioners.

Springfield, Ill., April 15.—The supreme court today, in the Lorimer-Durborrow contested election case, granted the motion for a writ of habeas corpus made by Isaac N. Powell, clerk of the election, and Thomas Judge and William C. Malloy, commissioners of election of the Sixth congressional district, sentenced to jail by Judge Hanccy for refusal to comply with his injunction restraining them from producng the ballots for a recount in accordance with a sub-final ducee tecum. The writ was made returnable at once and was served at once on Sheriff Barrett, Cook county. The case was set for hearing April 20.

KERR GETS TWO YEARS.

Minneapolis, Kan., April 15.—Ervin Kerr, son of a Methodist minister, who was yesterday found guilty of manslaughter for having killed A. B. Popham, was today sentenced to two years in the penitentiary.

FOURTH LANDSLIDE.

Ogden, Utah, April 15.—The fourth landslide on the Union Pacific at Aspen tunnel occurred at 9 o'clock this morning. It is now estimated that seven days will be required to clear the track at that point. All passenger trains and fast freights will be sent around by Pocatello, and the mails from the East will be delayed from eight to twelve hours.

THE WICKEDEST CITY.

Percentage of arrests to population:
Washington, D. C.	9.30
Buffalo	8.06
Chicago	4.14
New York	3.86
Milwaukee	1.69

A table of comparative statistics which shows that Chicago is not quite so bad as it might be was issued by Hugo S. Grosser, city statistician, says the Chicago Record-Herald. Of the arrests made in New York Mr. Grosser shows 19.9 per cent are women, whereas in Chicago this percentage is only 18.5 per cent. In New York 65.7 per cent of the arrests were unmarried persons, this figure being reduced to 49.5 per cent here. Chicago's American-born population forms 65.5 of its total and New York is close up with 63.1.

Mr. Grosser concedes that the percentages are against us in the matter of arrests for murder, robbery, burglary, larceny, forgery, aggravated assault, malicious mischief, immorality, violation of ordinances and other offenses. But he shows that New York has the greater percentage of persons charged with assault and battery, intoxication and disorderly conduct, vagrancy and being "suspicious."

Apparently the worst of the country's big cities is the national capital, Washington, followed closely by Buffalo. In Washington nearly one in ten gets into jail every year.

The Chicago figures show that after thirty years of age our citizens are in trouble less often than New York's but before that time the Westerners are the more frequently in the patrol wagon.

Mr. Grosser also went into the pay roll. He found that Chicago pays 15,910 persons $14,675,847 a year, of which 6936 were board of education employes at $5,722,669.

In every city there is one paper favored by local advertisers. In Duluth it is The Herald.

APPROPRIATION BILL PASSED BY HOUSE IN QUICK ORDER

Items For Public Examiner's Expenses Cut Down to $12,000.

Bill For Municipal Ownership of Telephone Plants Killed.

FROM A STAFF CORRESPONDENT

St. Paul, April 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The house this morning passed the omnibus appropriation bill with only a few minor amendments offered by the committee on appropriations. The bill is a special order in the senate for this afternoon and is likely to pass as easily there. The amendments offered by the committee, and adopted by the house, add $58,001.94 to the appropriations carried by the bill, making the total $5,163,167. Most of the changes were to rectify errors made in the preparation of the original bill. The appropriation for additional expenses of the legislature was increased from $15,000 to $20,000, and the appropriation for the public examiner's office for two years was cut from $20,000 to $12,000. All of the other changes were small and unimportant.

Some of the members of the house wanted to take the bill up section by section and amend it, but Ambrose Tighe, of St. Paul, chairman of the appropriations committee, made a talk against this proposition. He said the committee had had a hard task to fix out all the state institutions and still leave the tax levy low enough to maintain the rate of one mill, the lowest in the history of the state. The committee was entitled to much credit for what it had done, and it was due to it that the bill should be passed without amendment. If the house started to amend there would be no end of it.

Mr. Clague spoke along the same line as I said that while he would like to see some changes, if one member got amendments through all of them would have to be suited, and that would be impossible.

On motion of Mr. Wells, of Breckenridge, the bill was given its third reading, which took half an hour, and placed on its final passage.

Mr. Dowling then wanted to amend by cutting out an appropriation of $25,000 for the completion of the school of mines building at the state university, because he said it was already completed, but at that stage it took unanimous consent to introduce an amendment, and this could not be secured, so the amendment fell by the wayside and the bill passed, 96 to 6.

That was about all the house did this morning.

The committee report killing the bill to cede Barron island to Wisconsin came in, and George W. Armstrong, of Minneapolis tried to save the bill, but his motion to overturn the committee's report was voted down.

The legislature this morning pased a joint resolution providing for the sending of a telegram of congratulations to James J. Hill, on the occasion of the launching of the big new freighter Minnesota, at New London, Conn. The senate originated the resolution, and it was concurred in by the house by a rising vote.

The senate also had a quiet session this morning putting in all its time on committee reports, few of which were important, but several of which took much time. Senator Petersen's bill providing for municipal ownership of telephone systems was killed on the committee's report for indefinite postponement, which the senate adopted after a fight. The senate passed a number of bills, including the following:

Providing for the payment of postage and other expenses of county attorneys, by Representative Clague; requiring hotels to have fire escapes, by Armstrong; prohibiting the use of railroad velocipedes except by railroad men or by written authority of railroad men, by Bouck; abolishing days of grace except on sight drafts, by Deming; providing for the vacation and re-location of roads over iron deposits, by Dowling; to regulate the publication of articles of incorporation, by Hellwell. Both houses adjourned to this afternoon.

PUGH CIVIL SERVICE BILL KILLED BY HOUSE COMMITTEE

Anti-Vaccination Bill as Passed By Senate Makes Little Change In Existing Law—Bill Amending McCarthy Lumberjack Lien Law Defeated.

FROM A STAFF CORRESPONDENT

St. Paul, April 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The house committee on general legislation yesterday afternoon voted to recommend the Pugh civil service bill out for indefinite postponement. This justifies the faith that the enemies of the bill had in this committee when they had the bill sent to it instead of to the grain and warehouse committee, to which it was sent in the senate and to which it was first sent in the house.

The committee wasted no time about killing the bill. Representatives of the grain and warehouse commission were there to talk against the bill, but it was unnecessary. The bill was voted down without any discussion whatever.

This probably disposes of the bill for this season at least, as the house will probably accept the report. While the bill has friends in the house, very effective work has been done against it, and undoubtedly a majority of the house is against it.

The senate passed the anti-vaccination bill yesterday, with the amendments by Senator Dunn which make it wholly innocuous, and which place conditions about where they are now. As the bill stands, it provides that vaccination shall not be compulsory, and that it shall not be a necessary precedence to school attendance, except where there are epidemics of smallpox. As the rule on vaccination is never enforced now except when there are epidemics, there is not much left of the bill. The house will have to pass on the amendments before the bill becomes a law.

Monday is the last day on which bills can be passed, and as there will be a lot of bills then still unpassed, the chances are that the legislature will work overtime Monday night. The session ends, technically, at midnight, but according to an ancient practice the clock is either stopped or turned back, so that midnight does not come until the work is all done or everybody is too tired to keep going.

The money appropriated at the beginning of the session to provide for legis-

ENGLISH GIRL HELD AS A THIEF

Chicago, April 16.—A dispatch to the Tribune from New York says: Resplendent in jewels, wearing a rich cloak of sable, worth $2500, Minna Williams, a handsome young woman, aged 27, was put in Ludlow street jail last night. She is accused of having stolen the cloak and other furs and jewels, to the aggregate value of between $25,000 and $30,000 from the family of Albert Reittinger, a wealthy Englishman, by whom she had been employed as governess for his children. Miss Williams' arrest was made under a warrant issued by Commissioner Shields, on application of Charles Fox, counselor for the British consul general at this port. She will have a hearing before the commissioner today, after which she probably will be recommitted to the Ludlow street jail to await extradition proceedings, the arrest being made on information from the English authorities.

POLICE PROTECT DULUTH FIREMEN

Cleveland, April 16.—The steamer Empire City, ore laden from Duluth, arrived here from Duluth today and tied up to her dock under the protection of a large detail of police and detectives. A number of the striking firemen and oilers were on hand when the steamer came in, but there was no attempt made to molest the non-union men on her.

FATAL SHOOTING AT IDAHO SPRINGS

Idaho Springs, Col., April 16.—Frank Hallock, superintendent of the Torpedo mine, at this place, was shot and killed by his neighbor, Edward Rowse, a bookkeeper, for an alleged insult offered by Hallock to Rowse's wife. When Rowse went to the Hallock home and demanded an apology from Hallock, the latter angrily denied the charge. A short time afterwards as Rowse was conversing with a friend in the street, in front of Hallock's house, the latter appeared at the front door with a shotgun in his hand. Rowse opened fire on him, wounding Hallock. As he fell Hallock fired one shot from his gun, wounding Rowse in the arm. Rowse has been placed under arrest.

DERELICT SIGHTED.

Fannie Kerr Was Abandoned Six Months Ago.

Honolulu, April 16, by Pacific cable.—Advices from Japan received here on the Pacific mail steamer China state that the derelict British ship Fannie Kerr was sighted on March 22 by the British ship Heathdene. When sighted the derelict was in latitude 21.54 north, longitude 123.14 west. Smoke was issuing from the hull of the vessel and all her masts were gone.

The Fannie Kerr, bound from New Castle, Australia, for San Francisco, was abandoned off Honolulu nine months ago, and this is the first time that the vessel has been sighted since her crew deserted her. The ship was on fire when she was abandoned, and that she is still afloat is due to the fact that she has a steel hull.

THE LARGEST STEAMSHIP

Ever Built In America Successfully Launched at New London.

Hill's Magnigicent Ship, the Minnesota.

Ten Thousand People Witness the Event.

New Vessel Christened By Miss Clara Hill.

The Legislature Sends Congratulations.

THE MINNESOTA, THE LARGEST SHIP EVER BUILT IN AMERICA.

CONGRATULATIONS BY THE LEGISLATURE.

St. Paul, April 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—In view of the launching of the steamship Minnesota at New London, Conn., the following resolution, introduced by Senator Horton, was unanimously adopted by the legislature today:

Whereas, the largest steamship ever built in America, and the largest freight carrier in the world, the new and splendid "Minnesota," intended to form a part of the great system of commerce between the Pacific coast and the Orient, is launched today at New London, Conn., therefore be it

Resolved, by the senate and house of representatives of the state of Minnesota, that the following telegram be sent to Hon. James J. Hill, at New London, Conn., the scene of the launching:

"The legislature of the state of Minnesota expresses its appreciation of the honor done this state in the naming of your new steamship and extends its hearty congratulation on this further evidence of your enterprise in developing the commerce of this country."

New London, Conn., April 16.—In the presence of thousands of spectators, including many visitors from New York, Boston and other cities, the steamship Minnesota, the largest vessel ever built in this country and the greatest cargo-carrier in the world, was launched today at the yards of the Eastern Shipbuilding company at Croton. The sponsor of the mammoth ship was Miss Clara Hill, daughter of J. J. Hill, president of the Great Northern Steamship company, for whom the vessel was built to become a part of the company's Pacific and Oriental carrying service. As the last restraining link that held the ship to its place on thy ways was severed, Miss Hill broke a bottle of wine over the steel bow and named the craft the Minnesota. With a gliding movement, barely perceptible at first, the vast mass of steel, weighing thousands of tons, started down the ways, and gathering speed rapidly, plunged into the water with a wave under her stern that seriously threatened the safety of the hundreds of small craft in the harbor. Although her momentum seemed sufficient to carry her far over to the other side of the wide harbor, the precautions taken to slacken her speed were sufficient to bring her to a standstill within a mile of the Croton shore. Tugs then took her in tow, and she glided to a dock, where she will be fitted up for service. After the launching, luncheon was served to the employes of the shipbuilding company.

New London, Conn., April 16.—Final preparations for the launching of the Minnesota were begun early today at the yard of the Eastern Shipbuilding company in Groton, the entire force being busied in knocking away the heavy blocking and getting every last detail in readiness for the initial plunge of the big ship into the water. While the preliminary work was going on thousands of people from various vantage points watched the labors of the men and viewed the immense proportions of the Minnesota and her sister vessel, the Dakota, which is to be launched a few months hence. Every trolley car from Norwich, vehicles from the suburban districts and special trains on the New York, New Haven & Hartford road brought loads of spectators, and by 11 o'clock the streets bore the appearance of a university boat race day. The weather was cloudy. A stiff northeast gale was blowing and the air was chilly enough to make heavy coats desirable.

It was estimated that there were fully 10,000 visitors in town during the morning. The steam yacht Wacouta, bearing President James J. Hill of the Great Northern Steamship company and party, arrived early in the day after a tempestuous sound trip from New York. Miss Clara Hill, daughter of President Hill, was one of the party. President Hill's party were taken to the shipyard and passed a large part of the morning there.

KILLED BY BARTENDER

New York Driver Is Shot In a Bowery Resort.

New York, April 16.—Obed Paddock, a driver, was killed in a Bowery resort early today and the bartender in the place, James Carter, was locked up. The police say he confessed that he did the shooting. Paddock's body was found in the hallway of the place with a bullet hole in the back of his head and the officers who arrested Carter say they found him standing behind the bar with the revolver in his hand and that he readily confessed he had shot a man and that his body was in the hall. The bartender's explanation, according to the police, was that the driver had tried to rob a man in the place, and, when interfered with had tried to draw a revolver. Besides Carter, four other men were taken into custody. The police say the driver did not have a revolver in his clothes and they think he was running away when shot.

TWO WERE BURNED

In the Junction Hollow Boarding House Fire.

Pittsburg, April 16.—Last night's Junction Hollow boarding house fire was responsible for the loss of two lives instead of one, as reported shortly after the destruction of the building. The incinerated remains of another boarder, John Zisco, was found this morning in the ruins. The body found last night was identified as that of Michael Dinardi. Four others who were asleep in the house when the fire broke out were seriously injured by jumping from the windows. Their names are: Angelo Marino, aged 19, back broken, injuries believed to be fatal; Nichola Ohangesa, aged 45, hurt internally, may die; Steve Buscio, back of head crushed; John Burrilli, aged 82, hands and arms burned while rescuing a baby.

The property loss was about $2500.

NEGRO CAUSES RIOT IN NEW YORK

New York, April 16.—One man was shot and seriously wounded and a small riot caused here last night when a negro, John D. Tross, fired four shots, it is charged, at Otto Richter, a picture fram manufacturer. Only one bullet took effect. It struck Richter in the left breast above the heart. His condition is serious. The negro was locked up. Tross came out of a saloon, where, he said, he had been trying to get work for a friend. He asserts that as he left the place men insulted him. Then he drew his revolver, the police charge, and fired at Richter. The wounded man says he was merely an onlooker. The shots attracted a crowd of 200 or 300 men and boys. They pursued Tross, still holding the revolver in his hand, who took refuge in a grocery store, where he was captured by a policeman. A crowd fought to get at Tross and besieged and nearly wrecked the store before help arrived.

BAKING POWDER BOODLE CASE

Grand Jury Calls For Bank's Books and Checks.

St. Louis, April 16.—The grand jury today continued the baking powder investigation. One of the most important moves yet made in the legislative boodle case is the issuance of a subpoena on the cashier of the Steelville, Mo., bank, requiring him to bring books and checks before that body. It was in this bank that funds supplied by the baking powder trust are said to have been kept for disbursement. In this connection Circuit Attorney Folk has wired Attorney General Crow to subpoena State Senator F. H. Farris, who is supposed to know considerable about the funds.

Among the witnesses to be examined today is Speaker James Whitecotton, presiding officer of the last house, who made the first charge of boodling. Lieutenant Governor Lee will be the star witness here today if he arrives from Jefferson City. Owing to his physical condition it is not certain that he will leave the capitol. In case he does not, Circuit Attorney Folk says he will issue an attachment for him to appear Friday.

Kansas City, April 16.—Lieutenant Governor John A. Lee arrived in the city early today from Jefferson City where he testified yesterday before the grand jury. To a reporter Mr. Lee said that he intended to take a rest and that he would leave the city during the day. He declined to say where he would go. "I have told all I know," said he. "I am free now, and they cannot want me further." It was evident that Mr. Lee was no physically strong and that he was badly in need of a rest.

DIVIDEND DECLARED.

New York, April 16.—The directors of the Amalgamated Copper company declared a quarterly dividend of half of one per cent today, he last quarterly dividend also was half of one per cent.

FAST MAIL TRAIN

On Louisville & Nashville Road Badly Wrecked.

Castleberry, Ala., April 16.—The fast mail on the Louisville & Nashville, due in New Orleans this morning, ran into an open switch early today and was wrecked. The engine plowed through a freight car and with the mail and baggage cars was entirely demolished. Mail Clerk Donovan was killed and the negro fireman also met death. Engineer Wright was badly hurt, but it is not believed fatally. Mail Clerks Byers, Eaton and Stratton were painfully injured. The passengers on the train escaped injury.

BOILER EXPLODES.

Marion, Ind., April 16.—A boiler in the Big Four pumping station here exploded early today, wrecking the building and probably fatally injuring George Shadron, the engineer. The boiler was lifted from its foundation and soared upward 200 feet. Shadron was blown through the door.

VOTING ON STRIKE.

New York, April 16.—Employes of the Manhattan Elevated railway, numbering about 4000, are voting today whether they shall strike to enforce their demand for a nine-hour working day. President Pepper of the employes' union said today there would be no strike. The decision of the men will not be known until tonight, when the vote is counted.

THE DUKE IS PLEASED.

Rome, April 16.—The duke of Aruzzi has expressed the highest appreciation of the fact that the Cullum gold medal was recently conferred on him by the American Geographical society for what he terms "my modest efforts in ascending Mount Elbas in 1897 and exploring the Arctic regions in 1899." The duke said he was charmed to find himself in such distinguished company as that of the wearers of the Cullum medal.

BLOWN UP BY OFFICIALS.

London, April 16.—A special dispatch from Hong Kong says the arsenal at Canton, which was destroyed by an explosion last week was blown up by officials, whom the viceroy had charged with selling powder to rebels in order to hide their defalcations.

IRISHMEN MEET TO CONSIDER THE IRISH LAND BILL

The Most Momentous Occasion In the History of the People.

John Redmond Impressively Asks Acceptance of the Bill.

Dublin, April 16.—The national convention of the United Irish league was held today in the historic round room of the Mansion house. About 2000 delegates assembled in the crowded rotunda which was incapable of holding all who had come from every part of Ireland to discuss the Irish land bill. On the platform sat almost every Nationalist member of parliament, with a scattering of prelates. In the body of the rotunda was a gathering seldom equalled in representative capacity. Farmers from Clare in top boots, laborers from Dublin county, landlords from Cork and priests from all parts, the latter's sombre clothing and tall hats contrasting pleasantly with the bright homespun apparel of the majority. Well dressed women filled the galleries.

Lord Mayor Harrington and Michael Davitt inducted John Redmond into the chair and the delegates rose to their feet, cheered and waved their hats.

Cable messages were read from various Irish organizations in New York, Baltimore and other cities, wishing the convention success.

The notable absentees were John Dillon and Edward Blake, who are both ill. John Redmond opened the proceedings with an impressive speech.

"This convention," he declared, "is the most solemn, the most momentous event in the history of living Irishmen, with the exception of the introduction of the home rule bill. There are in the lives of nations, as there are in the lives of individuals, opportunities which once lots can never be regained. Such an occasion I believe the present to be."

Mr. Redmond begged his hearers to remember their tremendous responsibility. If they rejected the bill it was dead forever, and the greatest prospect of freedom since the "infamous act of union was passed" would disappear. Continuing, he said: "Whatever defects Mr. Wyndham's bill has, and I am inclined to minimize them, its object is the complete and final abolition of landlordism in all its essentials. Ireland is united as she never was before. Each man must well nigh weigh his words, and remember that the whole future of his country and the welfare of his children and that of unborn generations may depend upon the convention's decision. I hope no man will advocate renewing the struggle of the land war without knowing what that renewal means—the indefinite delay of industrial and economic welfare, and even of political freedom. No man must dare to do that unless he is willing to take his share in the terrible fight which would be involved by a refusal of the bill."

Mr. Redmond deprecated carping criticism, and advocated a friendly discussing of the amendments. He hoped the convention would pass Mr. O'Brien's motion, welcoming the bill and amending it in various particulars, and entrusting the amendments to the decision of the Irish parliamentary party. "And," concluded Mr. Redmond, "let us give the world, which is watching us, by our orderliness, wisdom and restraint, proof of our capacity for self-government."

Early in the morning Lord Dunraven, who is [illegible] private meeting of the landlords' committee, sent word to John Redmond, the Irish leader, suggesting that the land conference reconvene Saturday, after the opinion of the national convention on the land bill is known, so that both landlords and tenants may then discuss their mutual objections. Mr. Redmond will be unable to decide on the proposition until after today's proceedings, for which lengthy adenda have been provided. These consisted of many proposed amendments to the details of Secretary Wyndham's proposals. The chief movers were William O'Brien and Michael Davitt. The former, while congratulating Ireland on the fact that the British ministry had introduced a bill accepting in principle, after centuries of struggle, that the land should be restored to the people of Ireland, urged the delegates to press amendments enlarging the financial scope of the bill. Mr. O'Brien, however, asked the convention to entrust to the parliamentary party the power and responsibility of eventually dealing in committee stage with the amendments. While begging the delegates to let their parliamentary representatives settle the matter, Mr. O'Brien attacked the landlords, Irish judges and British rule with the same virulence as has always marked his speeches, to the intense delight of the audience, which, swayed by his eloquence, hissed and cheered alternately. He concluded with saying that if properly amended, Mr. Wyndham's bill would "make the peasants as safe as the king on his throne in the possession of their land." They would never again have to stand trembling in the rent office. Mr. O'Brien added: "If we go on, it is not too much to say that in the next generation it will be as hard to find a man who has witnessed an eviction as it is now to find a man who has not witnessed an eviction."

Pleading for a friendly spirit in the discussion, Mr. O'Brien remarked: "If all goes well, it will be the greatest resurrection of hope, joy and happiness as has ever visited this country in a thousand years. It is the biggest thing English statesmanship has ever done toward restoring the soil of Ireland to Irishmen."

Mr. O'Brien concluded with saying that while Mr. Redmond himself did not want to entangle the land question with home rule, they might as well "try to turn honest Irish blood into red ink as to allay his own and Ireland's desire for eventual home rule."

One of the results might perhaps eventually be to kill the English opposition to a parliament of College green, where all Irishmen without distinction of creed and politics might meet and legislate for Ireland's good.

A motion to reject Secretary Wyndham's Irish land bill as not meriting support was defeated by an overwhelming majority. This insures the conference approving the bill in principle.

The convention unanimously adopted O'Brien's motion to entrust the parliamentary party with the power and responsibility of eventually dealing in committee stage with the amendments and adjourned until Friday.

NEW YORK POLICE WEAVING NET AROUND SUSPECTED ITALIANS

Officers Are Making Every Effort to Run Down the Murderer of the Man Whose Body Was Found In a Barrel.

New York, April 16.—Vite Laduca, who was supposed to have been the proprietor of the butcher shop in Stanton street, where nine arrests were made last night in connection with the murder of the man found in barrel in East Eleventh street last Tuesday morning, surrendered himself at police headquarters today and was held as a witness. Nikola Testro, 19 years old, who lives with Laduca, also went to police headquarters and was detained for the same purpose.

At the place in Elizabeth street, kept by Guiseppe Morello, who was one of the men arrested last night, the police have locked the doors and placed heavy padlocks on them. Through the windows can be seen several large barrels that bear a resemblance to the barrel in which the murdered man was found. The barrel in Eleventh street had two wooden hoops and a wire hoop at both top and bottom. The barrels in the store appear as if they had nothing but wire hoops.

In the store was found a quantity of sawdust and burlap and Detective Petrosino took some of it to police headquarters today for examination and comparison with that found in the barrel and about the murdered man's neck.

LOUBET ENTERTAINED AT ALGIERS

Algiers, April 16.—President Loubet today witnessed the grand military maneuvers in which 10,000 troops took part on Mustapha field. This force had been drawn from all parts of the colony and was reinforced by sailors and marines from the visiting fleets and by many native organizations. The Algerian sharpshooters and the Zouaves made an imposing display, and the whole furnished a brilliant spectacle. A number of native chiefs and a troop of Saphis escorted the president's carriage. M. Loubet's arrival on the parade ground was the signal for a great demonstration from the military and the thousands of civilian spectators. During the evolutions of the troops the president occupied a superbly decorated reviewing stand and was surrounded by the members of the special missions, the envoys, the foreign naval commanders and native chiefs. The president devoted the rest of the day to visits and banquets and to witnessing various other features of the elaborate festivities. He will leave Algiers tonight for Oran.

ENTOMOLOGIST MAKES DISCOVERY

Berkeley, Cal., April 16.—Warren T. Clark, of the university of California, is pursuing in the case of insects whose habitat is on lands certain lines of research which may be regarded as parallel to the other experiments with marine forms of life in which Dr. Jacques Loeb has been so successful. Mr. Clark has demonstrated that the wings of the rose aphis can be developed or modified by chemical exeitation, and that their growth is not due to causes hitherto assigned. As a result of his experiments Mr. Clark has shown that by changing the food he can alter and control the growth and development of the insect.

APPROPRIATION BILL PASSED BY HOUSE IN QUICK ORDER

Items For Public Examiner's Expenses Cut Down to $12,000.

Bill For Municipal Ownership of Telephone Plants Killed.

FROM A STAFF CORRESPONDENT

St. Paul, April 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The house this morning passed the omnibus appropriation bill with only a few minor amendments offered by the committee on appropriations. The bill is a special order in the senate for this afternoon and is likely to pass as easily there. The amendments offered by the committee, and adopted by the house, add $58,000.94 to the appropriations carried by the bill, making the total $3,165,167. Most of the changes were to rectify errors made in the preparation of the original bill. The appropriation for additional expenses of the legislature was increased from $15,000 to $20,000, and the appropriation for the public examiner's office for two years was cut from $30,000 to $12,000. All of the other changes were small and unimportant.

Some of the members of the house wanted to take the bill up section by section and amend it, but Ambrose Tighe, of St. Paul, chairman of the appropriations committee, made a talk against this proposition. He said the committee had had a hard task to fix out all the state institutions and still leave the tax levy low enough to maintain the rate of one mill, the lowest in the history of the state. The committee was entitled to much credit for what it had done, and it was due to it that the bill should be passed without amendment. If the house started to amend there would be no end of it.

Mr. Clague spoke along the same line and said that while he would like to see some changes, if one member got amendments through all of them would have to be seized, and that would be impossible.

On motion of Mr. Wells, of Breckenridge, the bill was given its third reading, which took half an hour, and placed on its final passage.

Mr. Dowling then wanted to amend by cutting out an appropriation of $25,000 for the completion of the school of mines building at the state university, because he said it was already completed, but at that stage it took unanimous consent to introduce an amendment, and this could not be secured, so the amendment fell by the wayside and the bill passed, 95 to 0.

That was about all the house did this morning.

The committee report killing the bill to cede Barron island to Wisconsin came in, and George W. Armstrong, of Minneapolis tried to save the bill, but his motion to overturn the committee's report was voted down.

The legislature this morning passed a joint resolution providing for the sending of a telegram of congratulations to James J. Hill on the occasion of the launching of the big new freighter Minnesota, at New London, Conn. The senate originated the resolution, and it was concurred in by the house by a rising vote.

The senate also had a quiet session this morning putting in all its time on committee reports, few of which were important, but several of which took much time. Senator Peterson's bill providing for municipal ownership of telephone systems was killed on the committee's report for indefinite postponement, which the senate adopted after a fight. The senate passed a number of bills, including the following:

Providing for the payment of postage and other expenses of county attorneys, by Representative Teague; requiring hotels to have fire escapes, by Armstrong; prohibiting the use of railroad velocipedes except by railroad men or by written authority of railroad men, by Bouck; abolishing days of grace except on sight drafts, by Deming; providing for the vacation and re-location of roads over iron deposits by Dowling; to regulate the publication of articles of incorporation, by Hellwell. Both houses adjourned to this afternoon.

PUGH CIVIL SERVICE BILL KILLED BY HOUSE COMMITTEE

Anti-Vaccination Bill as Passed By Senate Makes Little Change In Existing Law—Bill Amending McCarthy Lumberjack Lien Law Defeated.

FROM A STAFF CORRESPONDENT

St. Paul, April 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The house committee on general legislation yesterday afternoon voted to recommend the Pugh civil service bill out for indefinite postponement. This justifies the faith that the enemies of the bill had in this committee when they had the bill sent to it instead of to the grain and warehouse committee, to which it was sent in the senate and to which it was first sent in the house.

The committee wasted no time about killing the bill. Representatives of the grain and warehouse commission were there to talk against the bill, but it was unnecessary. The bill was voted down without any discussion whatever.

This probably disposes of the bill for this season at least, as the house will probably accept the report. While the bill has friends in the house, very effective work has been done against it, and undoubtedly a majority of the house is against it.

The senate passed the anti-vaccination bill yesterday, with the amendments by Senator Dunn which make it wholly innocuous, and which place conditions about where they are now. As the bill stands it provides that vaccination shall not be compulsory, and that it shall not be a necessary precedence to school attendance, except where there are epidemics of smallpox. As the rule on vaccination is never enforced now except when there are epidemics, there is not much left of the bill. The house will have to pass on the amendments before the bill becomes a law.

* * *

Monday is the last day on which bills can be passed, and as there will be a lot of bills then still unpassed, the chances are that the legislature will work overtime Monday night. The session ends, technically, at midnight, but according to an ancient practice the clock is either stopped or turned back, so that midnight does not come until the work is all done or everybody is too tired to keep going.

The money appropriated at the beginning of the session to provide for legis-

ENGLISH GIRL HELD AS A THIEF

Chicago, April 16.—A dispatch to the Tribune from New York says: Resplendent in jewels, wearing a rich cloak of sable, worth $2500, Minna Williams, a handsome young woman, aged 27, was put in Ludlow street jail last night. She is accused of having stolen the cloak and other furs and jewels, to the aggregate value of between $25,000 and $30,000 from the family of Albert Reittinger, a wealthy Englishman, by whom she had been employed as governess for his children. Miss Williams' arrest was made under a warrant issued by Commissioner Shields, on application of Charles Fox, counselor for the British consul general at this port. She will have a hearing before the commissioner today, after which she probably will be recommitted to the Ludlow street jail to await extradition proceedings, the arrest being made on information from the English authorities.

POLICE PROTECT DULUTH FIREMEN

Cleveland, April 16.—The steamer Empire City, ore laden from Duluth, arrived here from Duluth today and tied up to her dock under the protection of a large detail of police and detectives. A number of the striking firemen and oilers were on hand when the steamer came in, but there was no attempt made to molest the non-union men on her.

FATAL SHOOTING AT IDAHO SPRINGS

Idaho Springs, Col., April 16.—Frank Hallock, superintendent of the Torpedo mine, at this place, was shot and killed by his neighbor, Edward Rowse, a bookkeeper, for an alleged insult offered by Hallock to Rowse's wife. When Rowse went to the Hallock home and demanded an apology from Hallock, the latter angrily denied the charge. A short time afterwards as Rowse was conversing with a friend in the street, in front of Hallock's house, the latter appeared at the front door with a shotgun in his hand. Rowse opened fire on him, wounding Hallock. As he fell Hallock fired one shot from his gun, wounding Rowse in the arm. Rowse has been placed under arrest.

DERELICT SIGHTED.

Fannie Kerr Was Abandoned Six Months Ago.

Honolulu, April 16, by Pacific cable.—Advices from Japan received here on the Pacific mail steamer China state that the derelict British ship Fannie Kerr was sighted on March 22 by the British ship Heathdene. When sighted the derelict was in latitude 21.54 north, longitude 123.14 west. Smoke was issuing from the hull of the vessel and all her masts were gone.

The Fannie Kerr, bound from New Castle, Australia, for San Francisco, was abandoned off Honolulu nine months ago, and this is the first time that the vessel has been sighted since her crew deserted her. The ship was on fire when she was abandoned, and that she is still afloat is due to the fact that she has a steel hull.

THE LARGEST STEAMSHIP

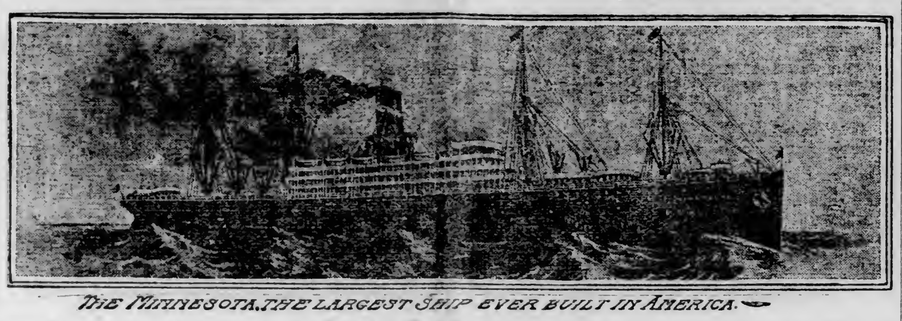
Ever Built In America Successfully Launched at New London.

Hill's Magnigicent Ship, the Minnesota.

New Vessel Christened By Miss Clara Hill.

Ten Thousand People Witness the Event.

The Legislature Sends Congratulations.



THE MINNESOTA, THE LARGEST SHIP EVER BUILT IN AMERICA.

CONGRATULATIONS BY THE LEGISLATURE.

St. Paul, April 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—In view of the launching of the steamship Minnesota at New London, Conn., the following resolution, introduced by Senator Horton, was unanimously adopted by the legislature today:

Whereas, the largest steamship ever built in America, and the largest freight carrier in the world, the new and splendid "Minnesota," intended to form a part of the great system of commerce between the Pacific coast and the Orient, is launched today at New London, Conn., therefore be it

Resolved, by the senate and house of representatives of the state of Minnesota, that the following telegram be sent to Hon. James J. Hill, at New London, Conn., the scene of the launching:

"The legislature of the state of Minnesota expresses its appreciation of the honor done this state in the naming of your new steamship and extends its hearty congratulation on this further evidence of your enterprise in developing the commerce of this country."

New London, Conn., April 16.—In the presence of thousands of spectators, including many visitors from New York, Boston and other cities, the steamship Minnesota, the largest vessel ever built in this country and the greatest cargo-carrier in the world, was launched today at the yards of the Eastern Shipbuilding company at Croton. The sponsor of the mammoth ship was Miss Clara Hill, daughter of J. J. Hill, president of the Great Northern Steamship company, for whom the vessel was built to become a part of the company's Pacific and Oriental carrying service. As the last restraining link that held the ship to its place on the ways was severed, Miss Hill broke a bottle of wine over the steel bow and named the craft the Minnesota. With a gliding movement, barely perceptible at first, the vast mass of steel, weighing thousands of tons, started down the ways, and gathering speed rapidly, plunged into the water with a wave under her stern that seriously threatened the safety of the hundreds of small craft in the harbor. Although her momentum seemed sufficient to carry her far over to the other side of the wide harbor, the precautions taken to slacken her speed were sufficient to bring her to a standstill within a mile of the Croton shore. Tugs then took her in tow, and she glided to a dock, where she will be fitted up for service. After the launching, luncheon was served to the employes of the shipbuilding company.

New London, Conn., April 16.—Final preparations for the launching of the Minnesota were begun early today at the yard of the Eastern Shipbuilding company in Groton, the entire force being busied in knocking away the heavy blocking and getting every last detail in readiness for the initial plunge of the big ship into the water. While the preliminary work was going on thousands of people from various vantage points watched the labors of the men and viewed the immense proportions of the Minnesota and her sister vessel, the Dakota, which is to be launched a few months hence. Every trolley car from Norwich, vehicles from the suburban districts and special trains on the New York, New Haven & Hartford road brought loads of spectators, and by 11 o'clock the streets bore the appearance of a university boat race day. The weather was cloudy. A stiff northeast gale was blowing and the air was chilly enough to make heavy coats desirable.

It was estimated that there were fully 10,000 visitors in town during the morning. The steam yacht Wacouta, bearing President James J. Hill of the Great Northern Steamship company and party, arrived early in the day after a tempestuous sound trip from New York. Miss Clara Hill, daughter of President Hill, was one of the party. President Hill's party were taken to the shipyard and passed a large part of the morning there.

KILLED BY BARTENDER

New York Driver Is Shot In a Bowery Resort.

New York, April 16.—Obed Paddock, a driver, was killed in a Bowery resort early today and the bartender in the place, James Carter, was locked up. The police say he confessed that he did the shooting. Paddock's body was found in the hallway of the place with a bullet hole in the back of his head and the officers who arrested Carter say they found him standing behind the bar with the revolver in his hand and that he readily confessed he had shot a man and that his body was in the hall. The bartender's explanation, according to the police, was that the driver had tried to rob a man in the place, and, when interfered with had tried to draw a revolver. Besides Carter, four other men were taken into custody. The police say the driver did not have a revolver in his clothes and they think he was running away when shot.

TWO WERE BURNED

In the Junction Hollow Boarding House Fire.

Pittsburg, April 16.—Last night's Junction Hollow boarding house fire was responsible for the loss of two lives instead of one, as reported shortly after the destruction of the building. The incinerated remains of another boarder, John Zisco, was found this morning in the ruins. The body found last night was identified as that of Michael Dinardi. Four others who were asleep in the house when the fire broke out were seriously injured by jumping from the windows. Their names are: Angelo Marino, aged 19, back broken, injuries believed to be fatal; Nichola Ohangesa, aged 45, hurt internally, may die; Steve Buscio, back of head crushed; John Burrilli, aged 82, hands and arms burned while rescuing a baby.

The property loss was about $2500.

SAULT PAPERS COMBINE.

NEGRO CAUSES RIOT IN NEW YORK

New York, April 16.—One man was shot and seriously wounded and a small riot caused here last night when a negro, John D. Tross, fired four shots, it is charged, at Otto Richter, a picture fram manufacturer. Only one bullet took effect. It struck Richter in the left breast above the heart. His condition is serious. The negro was locked up. Tross came out of a saloon, where, he said, he had been trying to get work for a friend. He asserts that as he left the place men insulted him. Then he drew his revolver, the police charge, and fired at Richter. The wounded man says he was merely an onlooker. The shots attracted a crowd of 200 or 300 men and boys. They pursued Tross, still holding the revolver in his hand, who took refuge in a grocery store, where he was captured by a policeman. A crowd fought to get at Tross and besieged and nearly wrecked the store before help arrived.

BAKINGPOWDER BOODLE CASE

Grand Jury Calls For Bank's Books and Checks.

St. Louis, April 16.—The grand jury today continued the baking powder investigation. One of the most important moves yet made in the legislative boodle case is the issuance of a subpoena on the cashier of the Steelville, Mo., bank, requiring him to bring books and checks before that body. It was in this bank that funds supplied by the baking powder trust are said to have been kept for disbursement. Lieutenant Governor Lee will be the star witness here today if he arrives from Jefferson City. Owing to his physical condition it is not certain that he will leave the capitol. In case he does not, Circuit Attorney Folk says he will issue an attachment for him to appear Friday.

Kansas City, April 16.—Lieutenant Governor John A. Lee arrived in the city early today from Jefferson City where he testified yesterday before the grand jury. To a reporter Mr. Lee said that he intended to take a rest and that he would leave the city during the day. He declined to say where he would go. "I have told all I know," said he. "I am free now, and they cannot want me further." It was evident that Mr. Lee was not physically strong and that he was badly in need of a rest.

DIVIDEND DECLARED.

New York, April 16.—The directors of the Amalgamated Copper company declared a quarterly dividend of half of one per cent today. The last quarterly dividend also was half of one per cent.

FAST MAIL TRAIN

On Louisville & Nashville Road Badly Wrecked.

Castleberry, Ala., April 16.—The fast mail on the Louisville & Nashville, due in New Orleans this morning, ran into an open switch early today and was wrecked. Marion, Ind., April 16.—A boiler in the Big Four pumping station here exploded early today, wrecking the building and probably fatally injuring George Shadron, the engineer. The boiler was lifted from its foundation and soared upward 200 feet. Shadron was blown through the door.

VOTING ON STRIKE.

New York, April 16.—Employes of the Manhattan Elevated railway, numbering about 4000, are voting today whether they shall strike to enforce their demand for a nine-hour working day. President Pepper of the employes' union said today there would be no strike. The decision of the men will not be known until tonight, when the vote is counted.

THE DUKE IS PLEASED.

Rome, April 16.—The duke of Aruzzi has expressed the highest appreciation of the fact that the Cullum gold medal was recently conferred on him by the American Geographical society for what he terms "my modest efforts in ascending Mount Elias in 1897 and exploring the Arctic regions in 1899." The duke said he was charmed to find himself in such distinguished company as that of the wearers of the Cullum medal.

He hoped the convention would pass Mr. O'Brien's motion, welcoming the bill and amending it in various particulars, and entrusting the amendments to the decision of the Irish parliamentary party. "And," concluded Mr. Redmond, "let us give the world, which is watching us, by our orderliness, wisdom and restraint, proof of our capacity for self-government."

Early in the morning Lord Dunraven, who is supposed privately presiding at a private meeting of the landlords' committee, sent word to John Redmond, the Irish leader, suggesting that the land conference reconvene Saturday, after the opinion of the national convention on the land bill is known, so that both landlords and tenants may then discuss their mutual objections. Mr. Redmond will be unable to decide on the proposition until after today's proceedings, for which lengthy adenda have been provided. These consisted of many proposed amendments to the details of Secretary Wyndham's proposals. The chief movers were William O'Brien and Michael Davitt. The former, while congratulating Ireland on the fact that the British ministry had introduced a bill accepting in principle, after centuries of struggle, that the land should be restored to the people of Ireland, urged the delegates to press amendments enlarging the financial scope of the bill. Mr. O'Brien, however, asked the convention to entrust to the parliamentary party the power and responsibility of eventually dealing in committee stage with the amendments. While begging the delegates to let their parliamentary representatives settle the matter, Mr. O'Brien attacked the landlords. Irish judges and British rule with the same virulence as has always marked his speeches, to the intense delight of the audience, which, swayed by his eloquence, hissed and cheered alternately. He concluded with saying that if properly amended, Mr. Wyndham's bill would "make the peasants as safe as the king on his throne in the possession of their land." They would never again have to stand trembling in the rent office. Mr. O'Brien added: "If we go on, it is not too much to say that in the next generation it will be as hard to find a man who has witnessed an eviction as it is now to find a man who has not witnessed an eviction."

Pleading for a friendly spirit in the discussion, Mr. O'Brien remarked: "If all goes well, it will be the greatest resurrection of hope, joy and happiness as has ever visited this country in a thousand years. It is the biggest thing English statesmanship has ever done toward restoring the soil of Ireland to Irishmen."

Mr. O'Brien concluded with saying that while Mr. Redmond himself did not want to entangle the land question with home rule, they might as well "try to turn honest Irish blood into red ink as to allay his own and Ireland's desire for eventual home rule."

One of the results might perhaps eventually be to kill the English opposition to a parliament of College green, where all Irishmen without distinction of creed and politics might meet and legislate for Ireland's good.

A motion to reject Secretary Wyndham's Irish land bill as not meriting support was defeated by an overwhelming majority. This insures the conference approving the bill in principle.

The convention unanimously adopted O'Brien's motion to entrust the parliamentary party with the power and responsibility of eventually dealing in committee stage with the amendments and adjourned until Friday.

NEW YORK POLICE WEAVING NET AROUND SUSPECTED ITALIANS

Officers Are Making Every Effort to Run Down the Murderer of the Man Whose Body Was Found In a Barrel.

New York, April 16.—Vite Laduca, who was supposed to have been the proprietor of the butcher shop in Stanton street, where nine arrests were made last night in connection with the murder of the man found in barrel in East Eleventh street last Tuesday morning, surrendered himself at police headquarters today and was held as a witness. Nikola Testro, 19 years old, who lives with Laduca, also went to police headquarters and was detained for the same purpose.

At the place in Elizabeth street, kept by Guiseppe Morello, who was one of the men arrested last night, the police have locked the doors and placed heavy padlocks on them. Through the windows can be seen several large barrels that bear a resemblance to the barrel in which the murdered man was found. The barrel in Eleventh street had two wooden hoops and a wire hoop at both top and bottom. The barrels in the store appear as if they had nothing but wire hoops.

In the store was found a quantity of sawdust and burlap and Detective Petrosino took some of it to police headquarters today for examination and comparison with that found in the barrel and about the murdered man's neck.

LOUBET ENTERTAINED AT ALGIERS

Algiers, April 16.—President Loubet today witnessed the grand military maneuvers in which 10,000 troops took part on Mustapha field. This force had been drawn from all parts of the colony and was reinforced by sailors and marines from the visiting fleets and by many native organizations. The Algerian sharpshooters and the Zouaves made an imposing display, and the whole furnished a brilliant spectacle. A number of native chiefs and a troop of Saphis escorted the president's carriage. M. Loubet's arrival on the parade ground was the signal for a great demonstration from the military and the thousands of civilian spectators. During the evolutions of the troops the president occupied a superbly decorated reviewing stand and was surrounded by the members of the special missions, the envoys, the foreign naval commanders and native chiefs. The president devoted the rest of the day to visits and banquets and to witnessing various other features of the elaborate festivities. He will leave Algiers tonigh for Oran.

APPROPRIATION BILL PASSED BY HOUSE IN QUICK ORDER

Items For Public Examiner's Expenses Cut Down to $12,000.

Bill For Municipal Ownership of Telephone Plants Killed.

FROM A STAFF CORRESPONDENT

St. Paul, April 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The house this morning passed the omnibus appropriation bill with only a few minor amendments offered by the committee on appropriations. The bill is a special order in the senate for this afternoon and is likely to pass as easily there. The amendments offered by the committee, and adopted by the house, add $58,991.94 to the appropriations carried by the bill, making the total $5,165,197. Most of the changes were to rectify errors made in the preparation of the original bill. The appropriation for additional expenses of the legislature was increased from $15,000 to $20,000, and the appropriation for the public examiner's office for two years was cut from $20,000 to $12,000. All of the other changes were small and unimportant.

Some of the members of the house wanted to take the bill up section by section and amend it, but Ambrose Tighe, of St. Paul, chairman of the appropriations committee, made a talk against this proposition. He said the committee had had a hard task to fix out all the state institutions and still leave the tax levy low enough to maintain the rate of one mill; the lowest in the history of the state. The committee was entitled to much credit for what it had done, and it was due to it that the bill should be passed without amendment. If the house started to amend there would be no end of it.

Mr. Clague spoke along the same line and said that while he would like to see some changes, if one member got amendments through all of them would have to be voted, and that would be impossible.

On motion of Mr. Wells of Breckenridge the bill was given its third reading, which took half an hour, and placed on its final passage.

Mr. Dowling then wanted to amend by cutting out an appropriation of $25,000 for the completion of the school of mines building at the state university, because he said it was already completed, but at that stage it took unanimous consent to introduce an amendment, and this could not be secured, so the amendment fell by the wayside and the bill passed, 95 to 0.

That was about all the house did this morning.

The committee report killing the bill to cede Barron island to Wisconsin came in, and George W. Armstrong, of Minneapolis tried to save the bill, but his motion to overturn the committee's report was voted down.

The legislature this morning pased a joint resolution providing for the sending of a telegram of congratulations to James J. Hill, on the occasion of the launching of the big new freighter Minnesota, at New London, Conn. The senate originated the resolution, and it was concurred in by the house by a rising vote.

The senate also had a quiet session this morning putting in all its time on committee reports, few of which were important, but several of which took much time. Senator Peterson's bill providing for municipal ownership of telephone systems was killed on the committee's report for indefinite postponement, which the senate adopted after a fight. The senate passed a number of bills, including the following:

Providing for the payment of postage and other expenses of county attorneys, by Representative Gague; requiring hotels to have fire escapes, by Armstrong; prohibiting the use of railroad velocipedes except by railroad men or by written authority of railroad men, by Bonck; abolishing days of grace except on sight drafts, by Deming; providing for the vacation and re-location of roads over bad, by Dowling; to regulate the publication of articles of incorporation, by Helliwell. Both houses adjourned to this afternoon.

PUGH CIVIL SERVICE BILL KILLED BY HOUSE COMMITTEE

Anti-Vaccination Bill as Passed By Senate Makes Little Change In Existing Law—Bill Amending McCarthy Lumberjack Lien Law Defeated.

FROM A STAFF CORRESPONDENT

St. Paul, April 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—The house committee on general legislation yesterday afternoon voted to recommend the Pugh civil service bill out for indefinite postponement. This justifies the faith that the enemies of the bill had in this committee when they had the bill sent to it instead of to the grain and warehouse committee, to which it was sent in the senate and to which it was first sent in the house.

The committee wasted no time about killing the bill. Representatives of the grain and warehouse commission were there to talk against the bill, but it was unnecessary. The bill was voted down without any discussion whatever.

This probably disposes of the bill for this season at least, as the house will probably accept the report. While the bill has friends in the house, very effective work has been done against it, and undoubtedly a majority of the house is against it.

The senate passed the anti-vaccination bill yesterday, with the amendments by Senator Dunn which make it wholly innocuous, and which place conditions about where they are now. As the bill stands it provides that vaccination shall not be compulsory, and that it shall not be a necessary precedence to school attendance, except where there are epidemics of smallpox. As the rule on vaccination is never enforced now except when there are epidemics, there is not much left of the bill. The house will have to pass on the amendments before the bill becomes a law.

* * *

Monday is the last day on which bills can be passed, and as there will be a lot of bills then still unpassed, the chances are that the legislature will work overtime Monday night. The session ends, technically, at midnight, but according to an ancient practice the clock is either stopped or turned back, so that midnight does not come until the work is all done or everybody is too tired to keep going.

The money appropriated at the beginning of the session to provide for legis-

ENGLISH GIRL HELD AS A THIEF

Chicago, April 16.—A dispatch to the Tribune from New York says: Resplendent in jewels, wearing a rich cloak of sable, worth $2500, Minna Williams, a handsome young woman, aged 27, was put in Ludlow street jail last night. She is accused of having stolen the cloak and other furs and jewels, to the aggregate value of between $25,000 and $30,000 from the family of Albert Reittinger, a wealthy Englishman, by whom she had been employed as governess for his children. Miss Williams' arrest was made under a warrant issued by Commissioner Shields, on application of Charles Fox, counselor for the British consul general at this port. She will have a hearing before the commissioner today, after which she probably will be recommitted to the Ludlow street jail to await extradition proceedings, the arrest being made on information from the English authorities.

POLICE PROTECT DULUTH FIREMEN

Cleveland, April 16.—The steamer Empire City, ore laden from Duluth, arrived here from Duluth today and tied up to her dock under the protection of a large detail of police and detectives. A number of the striking firemen and oilers were on hand when the steamer came in, but there was no attempt made to molest the non-union men on her.

FATAL SHOOTING AT IDAHO SPRINGS

Idaho Springs, Col., April 16.—Frank Hallock, superintendent of the Torpedo mine, at this place, was shot and killed by his neighbor, Edward Rowse, a bookkeeper, for an alleged insult offered by Hallock to Rowse's wife. When Rowse went to the Hallock home and demanded an apology from Hallock, the latter angrily denied the charge. A short time afterwards as Rowse was conversing with a friend in the street, in front of Hallock's house, the latter appeared at the front door with a shotgun in his hand. Rowse opened fire on him, wounding Hallock. As he fell Hallock fired one shot from his gun, wounding Rowse in the arm. Rowse has been placed under arrest.

DERELICT SIGHTED.

Fannie Kerr Was Abandoned Six Months Ago.

Honolulu, April 16, by Pacific cable.—Advices from Japan received here on the Pacific mail steamer China state that the derelict British ship Fannie Kerr was sighted on March 22 by the British ship Heathdene. When sighted the derelict was in latitude 21.54 north, longitude 123.14 west. Smoke was issuing from the hull of the vessel and all her masts were gone.

The Fannie Kerr, bound from New Castle, Australia, for San Francisco, was abandoned off Honolulu nine months ago, and this is the first time that the vessel has been sighted since her crew deserted her. The ship was on fire when she was abandoned, and that she is still afloat is due to the fact that she has a steel hull.

THE LARGEST STEAMSHIP

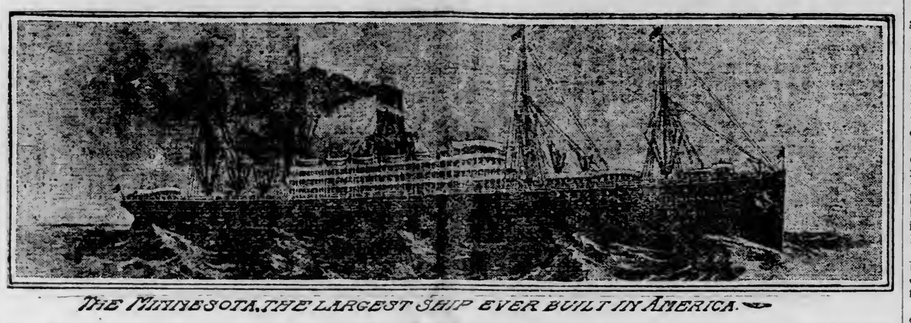
Ever Built In America Successfully Launched at New London.

Hill's Magnigicent Ship, the Minnesota.

Ten Thousand People Witness the Event.

New Vessel Christened By Miss Clara Hill.

The Legislature Sends Congratulations.



THE MINNESOTA, THE LARGEST SHIP EVER BUILT IN AMERICA.

CONGRATULATIONS BY THE LEGISLATURE.

St. Paul, April 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—In view of the launching of the steamship Minnesota at New London, Conn., the following resolution, introduced by Senator Horton, was unanimously adopted by the legislature today:

Whereas, the largest steamship ever built in America, and the largest freight carrier in the world, the new and splendid "Minnesota," intended to form a part of the great system of commerce between the Pacific coast and the Orient, is launched today at New London, Conn., therefore be it

Resolved, by the senate and house of representatives of the state of Minnesota, that the following telegram be sent to Hon. James J. Hill, at New London, Conn., the scene of the launching:

"The legislature of the state of Minnesota expresses its appreciation of the honor done this state in the naming of your new steamship and extends its hearty congratulation on this further evidence of your enterprise in developing the commerce of this country."

New London, Conn., April 16.—In the presence of thousands of spectators, including many visitors from New York, Boston and other cities, the steamship Minnesota, the largest vessel ever built in this country and the greatest cargo-carrier in the world, was launched today at the yards of the Eastern Shipbuilding company at Croton. The sponsor of the mammoth ship was Miss Clara Hill, daughter of J. J. Hill, president of the Great Northern Steamship company, for whom the vessel was built to become a part of the company's Pacific and Oriental carrying service. As the last restraining link that held the ship to its place on the ways was severed, Miss Hill broke a bottle of wine over the steel bow and named the craft the Minnesota. With a gliding movement, barely perceptible at first, the vast mass of steel, weighing thousands of tons, started down the ways, and gathering speed rapidly, plunged into the water with a wave under her stern that seriously threatened the safety of the hundreds of small craft in the harbor. Although her momentum seemed sufficient to carry her far over to the other side of the wide harbor, the precautions taken to slacken her speed were sufficient to bring her to a standstill within a mile of the Croton shore. Tugs then took her in tow, and she glided to a dock, where she will be fitted up for service. After the launching, luncheon was served to the employes of the shipbuilding company.

New London, Conn., April 16.—Final preparations for the launching of the Minnesota were begun early today at the yard of the Eastern Shipbuilding company in Groton, the entire force being busied in knocking away the heavy blocking and getting every last detail in readiness for the initial plunge of the big ship into the water. While the preliminary work was going on thousands of people from various vantage points watched the labors of the men and viewed the immense proportions of the Minnesota and her sister vessel, the Dakota, which is to be launched a few months hence. Every trolley car from Norwich, vehicles from the suburban districts and special trains on the New York, New Haven & Hartford road brought loads of spectators, and by 11 o'clock the streets bore the appearance of a university boat race day. The weather was cloudy. A stiff northeast gale was blowing and the air was chilly enough to make heavy coats desirable.

It was estimated that there were fully 10,000 visitors in town during the morning. The steam yacht Wacouta, bearing President James J. Hill of the Great Northern Steamship company and party, arrived early in the day after a tempestuous sound trip from New York. Miss Clara Hill, daughter of President Hill, was one of the party. President Hill's party were taken to the shipyard and passed a large part of the morning there.

KILLED BY BARTENDER

New York Driver Is Shot In a Bowery Resort.

New York, April 16.—Obed Paddock, a driver, was killed in a Bowery resort early today and the bartender in the place, James Carter, was locked up. The police say he confessed that he did the shooting. Paddock's body was found in the hallway of the place with a bullet hole in the back of his head and the officers who arrested Carter say they found him standing behind the bar with the revolver in his hand and that he readily confessed he had shot a man and that his body was in the hall. The bartender's explanation, according to the police, was that the driver had tried to rob a man in the place, and, when interfered with had tried to draw a revolver. Besides Carter, four other men were taken into custody. The police say the driver did not have a revolver in his clothes and they think he was running away when shot.

TWO WERE BURNED

In the Junction Hollow Boarding House Fire.

Pittsburg, April 16.—Last night's Junction Hollow boarding house fire was responsible for the loss of two lives instead of one, as reported shortly after the destruction of the building. The incinerated remains of another boarder, John Zisco, was found this morning in the ruins. The body found last night was identified as that of Michael Dinardi. Four others who were asleep in the house when the fire broke out were seriously injured by jumping from the windows. Their names are: Angelo Marino, aged 19, back broken, injuries believed to be fatal; Nichola Ohangesa, aged 45, hurt internally, may die; Steve Buscio, back of head crushed; John Burrilli, aged 82, hands and arms burned while rescuing a baby.

The property loss was about $2500.

NEGRO CAUSES RIOT IN NEW YORK

New York, April 16.—One man was shot and seriously wounded and a small riot caused here last night when a negro, John D. Tross, fired four shots, it is charged, at Otto Richter, a picture fram manufacturer. Only one bullet took effect. It struck Richter in the left breast above the heart. His condition is serious. The negro was locked up. Tross came out of a saloon, where, he said, he had been trying to get work for a friend. He asserts that as he left the place men insulted him. Then he drew his revolver, the police charge, and fired at Richter. The wounded man says he was merely an onlooker. The shots attracted a crowd of 200 or 300 men and boys. They pursued Tross, still holding the revolver in his hand, who took refuge in a grocery store, where he was captured by a policeman. A crowd fought to get at Tross and besieged and nearly wrecked the store before help arrived.

BAKINGPOWDER BOODLE CASE

Grand Jury Calls For Bank's Books and Checks.

St. Louis, April 16.—The grand jury today continued the baking powder investigation. One of the most important moves yet made in the legislative boodle case is the issuance of a subpoena on the cashier of the Steelville, Mo., bank, requiring him to bring books and checks before that body. It was in this bank that funds supplied by the baking powder trust are said to have been kept for disbursement. In this connection Circuit Attorney Folk has wired Attorney General Crow to subpoena State Senator F. H. Farris, who is supposed to know considerable about the funds.

Among the witnesses to be examined today is Speaker James Whitecotton, presiding officer of the last house, who made the first charge of boodling. Lieutenant Governor Lee will be the star witness here today if he arrives from Jefferson City. Owing to his physical condition it is not certain that he will leave the capitol. In case he does not, Circuit Attorney Folk says he will issue an attachment for him to appear Friday.

Kansas City, April 16.—Lieutenant Governor John A. Lee arrived in the city early today from Jefferson City where he testified yesterday before the grand jury. To a reporter Mr. Lee said that he intended to take a rest and that he would leave the city during the day. He declined to say where he would go. "I have told all I know," said he. "I am free now, and they cannot want me further." It was evident that Mr. Lee was not physically strong and that he was badly in need of a rest.

DIVIDEND DECLARED.

New York, April 16.—The directors of the Amalgamated Copper company declared a quarterly dividend of half of one per cent today. The last quarterly dividend also was half of one per cent.

FAST MAIL TRAIN

On Louisville & Nashville Road Badly Wrecked.

Castleberry, Ala., April 16.—The fast mail on the Louisville & Nashville, due in New Orleans this morning, ran into an open switch early today and was wrecked. The engine plowed through a freight car and with the mail and baggage cars was entirely demolished. Mail Clerk Donovan was killed and the negro fireman also met death. Engineer Wright was badly hurt, but it is not believed fatally. Mail Clerks Byers, Eaton and Stratton were painfully injured. The passengers on the train escaped injury.

BOILER EXPLODES.

Marion, Ind., April 16.—A boiler in the Big Four pumping station here exploded early today, wrecking the building and probably fatally injuring George Shadron, the engineer. The boiler was lifted from its foundation and soared upward 200 feet. Shadron was blown through the door.

VOTING ON STRIKE.

New York, April 16.—Employes of the Manhattan Elevated railway, numbering about 4000, are voting today whether they shall strike to enforce their demand for a nine-hour working day. President Pepper of the employes' union said today there would be no strike. The decision of the men will not be known until tonight, when the vote is counted.

THE DUKE IS PLEASED.

Rome, April 16.—The duke of Aruzzi has expressed the highest appreciation of the fact that the Cullum gold medal was recently conferred on him by the American Geographical society for what he terms "my modest efforts in ascending Mount Elias in 1897 and exploring the Arctic regions in 1899." The duke said he was charmed to find himself in such distinguished company as that of the wearers of the Cullum medal.

BLOWN UP BY OFFICIALS.

London, April 16.—A special dispatch from Hong Kong says the arsenal at Canton, which was destroyed by an explosion last week was blown up by officials, whom the viceroy had charged with selling powder to rebels in order to hide their defalcations.

IRISHMEN MEET TO CONSIDER THE IRISH LAND BILL

The Most Momentous Occasion In the History of the People.

John Redmond Impressively Asks Acceptance of the Bill

Dublin, April 16.—The national convention of the United Irish league was held today in the historic round room of the Mansion house. About 2000 delegates assembled in the crowded rotunda which was incapable of holding all who had come from every part of Ireland to discuss the Irish land bill. On the platform sat almost every Nationalist member of parliament, with a scattering of prelates. In the body of the rotunda was a gathering seldom equalled in representative capacity. Farmers from Claire in top boots, laborers from Dublin county, landlords from Cork and priests from all parts, the latter's sombre clothing and tall hats contrasting pleasantly with the bright homespun apparel of the majority. Well dressed women filled the galleries.

Lord Mayor Harrington and Michael Davitt inducted John Redmond into the chair and the delegates rose to their feet, cheered and waved their hats.

Cable messages were read from various Irish organizations in New York, Baltimore and other cities, wishing the convention success.

The notable absentees were John Dillon and Edward Blake, who are both ill. John Redmond opened the proceedings with an impressive speech.

"This convention," he declared, "is the most solemn, the most momentous event in the history of living Irishmen, with the exception of the introduction of the home rule bill. There are in the lives of nations, as there are in the lives of individuals, opportunities which once lots can never be regained. Such an occasion I believe the present to be."

Mr. Redmond begged his hearers to remember their tremendous responsibility. If they rejected the bill it was dead forever, and the greatest prospect of freedom since the "infamous act of union was passed" would disappear. Continuing, he said: "Whatever defects Mr. Wyndham's bill has, and I am inclined to minimize them, its object is the complete and final abolition of landlordism in all its essentials. Ireland is united as she never was before. Each man must well nigh weigh his words, and remember that the whole future of his country and the welfare of his children and that of unborn generations may depend upon the convention's decision. I hope no man will advocate renewing the struggle of the land war without knowing what that renewal means—the indefinite delay of industrial and economic welfare, and even of political freedom. No man must dare to do that unless he is willing to take his share in the terrible fight which would be involved by a refusal of the bill."

Mr. Redmond deprecated carping criticism, and advocated a friendly discussing of the amendments. He hoped the convention would pass Mr. O'Brien's motion, welcoming the bill and amending it in various particulars, and entrusting the amendments to the decision of the Irish parliamentary party. "And," concluded Mr. Redmond, "let us give the world, which is watching us, by our orderliness, wisdom and restraint, proof of our capacity for self-government."

Early in the morning Lord Dunraven, who is supposed to be privately presiding at a private meeting of the landlords' committee, sent word to John Redmond, the Irish leader, suggesting that the land conference reconvene Saturday, after the opinion of the national convention on the land bill is known, so that both landlords and tenants may then discuss their mutual objections. They would never again have to stand trembling in the rent office, Mr. O'Brien added: "If we go on, it is not too much to say that in the next generation it will be as hard to find a man who has witnessed an eviction as it is now to find a man who has not witnessed an eviction."

Pleading for a friendly spirit in the discussion, Mr. O'Brien remarked: "If all goes well, it will be the greatest resurrection of hope, joy and happiness as has ever visited this country in a thousand years. It is the biggest thing English statesmanship has ever done toward restoring the soil of Ireland to Irishmen."

The convention unanimously adopted O'Brien's motion to entrust the parliamentary party with the power and responsibility of eventually dealing in committee stage with the amendments and adjourned until Friday.

(Swamp-Root is pleasant to take.)

Doctors Prescribe Swamp-Root.

Gentlemen:—"I have prescribed that wonderful remedy for kidney and bladder complaints, Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, with most beneficial effect and know of many cures by its use. These patients have kidney trouble, as diagnosed by other physicians, and treated without benefit. Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root effected a cure. I am a liberal man and accept a specific wherever I find it, in an accepted school or out of it. For desperate cases of kidney and bladder complaint under treatment with satisfactory results I turn to Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root with most flattering results. I shall continue to prescribe it, and from personal observation state that Swamp-Root has great curative properties."

L. Barton Smith M.D.

276 9th St., Borough of Brooklyn, N. Y.

Weak and unhealthy kidneys are responsible for more sickness and suffering than any other disease, and if permitted to continue, much suffering with fatal results are sure to follow. Kidney trouble irritates the nerves, makes you dizzy, restless, sleepless and irritable; makes you pass water often during the day and obliges you to get up many times during the night. Unhealthy kidneys cause rheumatism, gravel, catarrh of the bladder, pain or dull ache in the back, joints and muscles; makes your head ache and back ache, causes indigestion, stomach and liver trouble, you get a sallow, yellow complexion, makes you feel as though you had heart trouble; you may have plenty of ambition, but no strength; get weak and waste away.

The cure for these troubles is Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, the world-famous kidney remedy. In taking Swamp-Root you afford natural help to Nature, for Swamp-Root is the most perfect healer and gentle aid to the kidneys that is known to medical science.

If there is any doubt in your mind as to your condition, take from your urine on rising, about four ounces, place it in a glass or bottle and let it stand twenty-four hours. If on examination it is milky or cloudy, if there is a brick-dust settling, or if small particles float about in it, your kidneys are in need of immediate attention.

No matter how many doctors you have tried—no matter how much money you may have spent on other medicines, you really owe it to yourself to at least give Swamp-Root a trial. Its stanchest friends today are those who had almost given up hope of ever becoming well again.

If you the already convinced that Swamp-Root is what you need, you can purchase the regular fifty-cent and one-dollar size bottles at the drug stores everywhere. Don't make any mistake, but remember the name, Swamp-Root—Dr. Kilmer's Swamp-Root, and the address, Binghamton, N. Y., on every bottle.

Sample Bottle of Swamp-Root Sent Free by Mail.

EDITORIAL NOTE—If you have the slightest symptoms of kidney or bladder troubles, or if there is a trace of it in your family history, send at once to Dr. Kilmer & Co., Binghamton, N. Y., who will gladly send you by mail, immediately, without cost to you, a sample bottle of Swamp-Root, and a book containing many of the thousands upon thousands of testimonial letters received from men and women cured. In writing, be sure to say that you read this generous offer in The Duluth Daily Herald.

TO RECOVER TIMBER.

Gust Olson Alleges It Was Wrongfully Taken From Him.

G. Olsen has begun an action in district court, through his attorney, H. B. Fryberger, to recover from Bates & McDonald a large quantity of pine timber which he claims they wrongfully obtained from him. In his bill of complaint the plaintiff sets forth that he is the rightful owner of 68,840 feet of long square pine timbers, located on the north shore of Lake Superior, in Cook county, east of Devil's Track river, and west of the homestead of Col. William Colville, which the defendants took from him. He alleges that he demanded its return, but was refused.

Plaintiff asks judgment that either the timber be returned or that the defendants pay him its value, $3060, and an additional sum of $500 for damages.

Renning Arrested.

Ole Renning, who tried to commit suicide rather than live without his wife, was released from the hospital yesterday and immediately arrested on a warrant sworn out by his wife, charging him with threatening to do her great bodily harm.

He was committed to jail pending his hearing, but Dr. Boyer, who had been summoned to attend Renning, appeared in court this morning and said that it would probably kill Renning to be locked up. He was accordingly released and taken back to the hospital until the day set for his hearing.

NEW TRIAL DENIED.

Judge Cant's Ruling In Suit Involving Ore Land.

Judge Cant field an order this morning denying the defendant's motion for a new trial in the case of the Buffalo Exploration company against Hugh P. Strong et al. The motion was argued before the court in February and March, the grounds being that the decision was not justified by the evidence, and was contrary to law, also that errors occurred at the trial duly excepted by the defendants. Exceptions were taken to the ruling of the court denying the motion.

The suit was an important one and was in litigation for several years, the contention being over iron ore lands secured on half breed scrip. Judgment was rendered for the plaintiff in the January term of district court.

Board of Pardons Asks Information of Convict.

County Attorney McClinock has received a letter from he state board of pardons asking him for details relative to one Oscar L. Cook, whose true name is Herbert Richey, who was sent to the penitentiary from St. Louis county in 1900 to serve a 7-year term for forgery. Richey has made application for parole. A search of the records disclosed neither the name of Cook or Richey, nor of any other person sent up for forgery from this county in 1900, and the county attorney is inclinde to think a mistake has been made by the board in stating that the applicant was from this county.

SENTENCE PASSED

Albert Green Given One Year In Stillwater Prison.

Case Will Now Be Taken to Board of Pardons.

Albert Green, of Carlton, who was tried and convicted in this county for perjury, was sentenced yesterday afternoon by Judge Ensign to one year at hard labor in the state penitentiary at Stillwater. Green made a false affidavit in connection with his taking out a marriage license in this county after being refused one in Carlton county, because the woman he married had not then been divorced six months, an interval required by the state law before she could legally contract another marriage.

Green was tried and convicted during the January term of court, but sentence was suspended pending the efforts of his attorney to have the state board of pardons act in his client's behalf. The board could not act until there was an actual sentence imposed, and today Attorney McPherrin, of Cloquet, is arguing before the board to have the sentence commuted to a fine or that Green be pardoned.

A great deal of sympathy has been expressed for Green since his conviction, despite the fact that the evidence showed he knew the law on the subject of procuring a marriage license, and the state has not inclined to interpose serious objection to efforts in his behalf before the pardon board.

It is understood that when Mr. McPherrin first took the matter up with the board, inquiry was made as to whether his client was able to pay a fine. This is taken to mean that there is a probability that he will have his sentence commuted to a fine, in which case the money will be forthcoming and he will be released.

The prosecution of the case against Green is said to have served a good purpose in warning others against attempting to evade the law under similar circumstances, and it is not expected that any others will again attempt to swear falsely when they make application for a marriage license.

BIG SUCCESS.

Johnson & Moe's Big Department Store Crowded Yesterday.

Yesterday's concerts, afternoon and evening, given by Johnson & Moe, to celebrate the resumption of the West Duluth car service by way of Superior street, were enjoyed to the utmost by the largest crowds that were ever before assembled in the big store. Four chartered cars conveyed the West Duluth contingent, and for two hours Flaaten's orchestra rendered a delightful program. The ladies present were presented with cut roses and carnations. In the evening the orchestra rendered another fine program, and to say that again the store was literally packed is but putting it mildly. On every side were heard expressions of appreciation to the firm for the treat given. The Third Regiment band accompanied the West Duluthians and rendered catchy music all along the line.

PRESBYTERY CLOSES WORK

Delegates to General Assembly Chosen—Other Matters.

The afternoon session yesterday of the Duluth Presbytery was devoted to the election of the commissioners to the general assembly. Rev. Samuel I. Jamieson, pastor at large, and Elder I. H. McCulluni, of Lakeside, were elected delegates to the assembly at California with Rev. H. E. Gilt, of wo Harbors, as alternate.

The evening meeting was conducted by Rev. R. A. Montgomery. Rev. Alexander Milne, of Pilgrim Congregational church, opened the service and talks were given by Rev. F. E. Higgins, Rev. S. A. Marsh and Rev. W. J. Palm. The meeting closed with a communion service conducted by Rev. H. F. Gilt and Rev. C. W. Lowry.

This morning the session opened with devotional services and at the business session the work of the presbytery was finished. Reports from the several committees were given showing the work to be in a flourishing condition. New standing rules and a reorganization of the permanent committees were arranged and the place of meeting of the next session was decided upon. The next meeting will occur at Ely, September 28 of this year. A set of resolutions were drawn up thanking the people of Duluth for their hospitality and kindness in entertaining the visitors.

Every Man Is a Critic When the Question Is Clothes.

It is our place in the clothing world to "bring out" the styles—we have brought out so many new things—we've improved so many fundamental ideas that Burrows' form-fitting clothing never has its style questioned.

The SPRING SUITS—nothing you ever saw is quite like them—many fabrics that have been specially imported and made our exclusive property—other fabrics of home production whose weaves and colorings are equally exclusive. The style of making and fashioning is distinctly Burrow's. The garments are built with a thoroughness and care of detail that must tell an effective story of worth to every man who sees them.

Prices Start at $10 and Range to $30.

The SPRING OVERCOAT—$10 to $35—just heavy enough to cut off the chill—not heavy enough to interfere. Light-colored labrics and dark ones are dividing honors.

LEPROSY FROM EATING FISH

Dr. Hutchinson Finds Support of This Theory In India.

London, April 16.—Jonathan Hutchinson, F.R.S., has returned to England after a tour of investigation in India as to the cause and prevention of leprosy, especially in reference to the hypothesis which assigns the foremost position among the causes of the disease to the use of unwholesome food.

Twelve years ago the prince of Wales' committee, which was sent to India, rejected this hypothesis, but Dr. Hutchinson's latest investigations have convinced him that the committee, if it had pursued its researches more deeply would not have rejected it. Dr. Hutchinson's general conclusion is that the facts do not controvert the hypothesis, while some of them afford unassailable support of it, the truth of which his inquiries in South Africa last year convinced him.

Dr. Hutchinson's tour of India included visits to Colombo, Madras, Lahore, Calcutta and Bombay, where he held public meetings and discussions, and also visits to the leper asylums at Colombo, Madras, Calcutta, Purula, Asonsal, Agra, Tarantaran, Jullundur and Bombay.

He visited in Ceylon all the lepers who had been fish eaters. In Madras and Calcutta each of he lepers with the single exception of a high-caste Brahmin, denied that they had ever eaten fish. In Bombay there was one doubtful exception. In Agra, Tarntaran and Jullunder there were several exceptions. Of the 500 inmates of the Purulla asylum, all had habitually eaten of fish, and many believed that this had caused the disease. Some had left off eating it on that account. The majority of those who had not eaten fish were patients who had contracted the disease in early life.

In acounting for these, Dr. Hutchinson suggests commercial communication" spreads the disease to a slight extent in a community where it has once originated, without it becoming contagious in the ordinary sense of the word. Commensal or mouth communication, conveyed the disease by eating food directly from the hands of a leper, or otherwise receiving the bacillus by the mouth.

The prevalence of the disease in the whole population of India is not greater than 5 in 10,000, which is about the same percentage as in Norway, but not a single district is entirely free from the disease. It is always more prevalent in or near the fishing places. In Ceylon, where the fisheries are so unproductive that the greater portion of fish consumed must be imported, the incidence of leprosy is less than 2 per 10,000. In Minicoy, the adjacent fish-exporting island, where the inhabitants eat fish four times a day, the perecentage is 150 in 10,000. In the Bombay asylum there are 409 inmates, the majority of whom are from the great fishing district of Konkan. During eight years there have been no Jains and only one Parsee patient. The Jains are strict vegetarians. During the same period the island of Salsete, which has a population of 50,000, was the only Christian community which sent patients to the asylum. The Salsetters are all Roman Catholics, who observe all fast days and the majority of them are actually engaged in the fishing trade.

AT WEST DULUTH

A goat of the William gender was the cause of no little excitement last evening near the corner of Fifty-fourth avenue west and Ramsey street. The animal belongs to a well-known veterinary surgeon of West Duluth and his headstrong nature has made him feared and respected in the community. When he is known to be loose small boys carry stones when passing in the neighborhood and their elders avoid it altogether. Last evening he gained his freedom in a manner known only to himself and started out to enjoy himself.

Two elderly matrons, well known in West Duluth, were the first to come within the range of his vision, and upon them he bestowed his best attentions. One of the ladies succeeded in scrambling over a fence which, by a fortuitous chance, happened to be at hand. The other took to the tall timbers and climbed the nearest telegraph pole, mounting by means of the iron spikes. The goat mounted guard.

From their perilous positions they were soon rescued by some kindly passers-by and the goat was again confined within bounds.

PAVING PETITION.

Six More Names All That Are Required.

Several signatures to the paving petition have been secured during the past week. The list now contains enough names to authorize the paving of Central avenue from Nicollet to Cody, but it is the desire of those who have been agitating the question to extend the pavement to Main street.

"Six more names is all we require," said J. J. Frey, who has charge of the petition. "The outside property owners have been keeping up their end well and we will probably secure the property owners who have not yet signed and who refuse to add their names to petition in spite of the fact that the property which they hold is some of the best paying property on Central avenue and would receive the greates benefit from the paving."

FIGHTING FOR HIS PROPERTY

Relatives of Young Chase In Legal Contest For Wealth.

Lafayette, Ind., April 16.—There is much interest here in the expected arrival some time today of Moses Fowler Chase, a wealthy young man, alleged to be mentally incompetent, for whose custody Mr. and Mrs. Deuhme, of Clifton, Ohio, uncle and aunt, and Frederick S. Chase, the father, have been contesting for several years. The father declares that his son is insane, while the uncle and aunt maintain he is sane.

Young Chase has been living for the past three years in Europe, and lately in Paris, where he was taken by the Deuhmes. The father alleges that the young man was placed in a madhouse in Paris, while Mr. Deuhme says it was merely a villa or retreat, to which Chase went voluntarily, and from which he was free to go at his pleasure.

The interest in the custody of the young man is accentuated by the fact that he has an estate of $750,000, which he inherited from his mother, who was Mrs. Deuhme's sister.

When Mr. and Mrs. Deuhme arrived here today, Judge Hammond, one of their attorneys, announced that he had positive evidence that young Chase had made a will disinheriting his father and giving his entire estate to Mrs. Deuhme.

A number of attorneys have been engaged on both sides and the first legal battle here will be fought to determine the jurisdiction of Indiana courts to pass on the mental condition of the young man. The Deuhmes claim that their nephew became a resident of Hamilton county, O., when he petitioned the probate court there in 1899 to change his name from Moses Fowler Chase to Moses Fowler. The young man will be accompanied on his arrival here by his father and attorneys.

Moses Fowler Chase arrived here at 1 o'clock in company with his father. A big detail of policemen was at the station. Young Chase declared piteously: "I am just as sane as any one. I am not crazy." His father held one arm tightly and a lawyer held the other as they hurried the young man to a carriage awaiting them. "Let me go. Let me go. I am not crazy," the young man pleaded. He recognized several old friends in the crowd and tried to stretch out his hands to them. There was almost a riot when two attorneys tried to speak to Young Chase. Attorney Kumler pushed through the crowd from behind and said: "Moses, your aunt is here."

"Take me to my aunt. Take me to my aunt," pleaded Moses.

The young man was finally taken to a law office.

THE GRAND TRUNK.

President Reports Financial Results as Satisfactory.

London, April 16.—Sir Charles Rivers Wilson, president of the Grand Trunk railroad of Canada, presiding at a crowded meeting of the shareholders today said the financial results of the past half year had been entirely satisfactory, except the abnormal increase of the working expenses, due to the American coal strike, which had nearly doubled the company's fuel bill, and the increase of $500,000 in the pay roll, besides the considerable amount expended on new buildings, which was imperative to cope with the increasing business of the road. President Wilson also referred to the importance of the project-Pacific, which would give the Grand Trunk an adequate share of the business arising from the development of the Northwest. The new line would ultimately extend eastward from Quebec. The report was adopted.

NO TARIFF TINKERING

Will Be Recommended By National Association of Manufacturers.

New Orleans, April 16.—Delegates to the convention of the National Association of Manufacturers were an hour late in assembling for business today. The interest today centered in the election of officers, there having been some talk of opposition to the re-election of President D. M. Parry, of Indianapolis. The nominating committee's report named all of the officers of last year except Hamilton Carhart, of Detroit. Carhart declined to again serve as national treasurer.

The convention was addressed by Senor De La Portella, Mexican consul, and Senor Yzaguirre, of Cuba. The delegates then took up in detail questions of change in by-laws, devoting much time to discussing fees and dues, Secretary John Maxwell, of Indianapolis, making a strong fight for a graded instead of a flat fee. The matter was referred to a committee. A resolution was adopted recommending the use of pneumatic tubes for the distribution of United States mails in large cities. Charles Norman Fay, of Chicago, addressed the delegates in support of his resolution, urging the national administration through the department of commerce and labor to prepare for general tariff revision. The resolution was also supported by D. B. Farquhar, of York, Pa.

S. O. Bigley, of Massachusetts, opposed action, declaring that the association had "no business with tariff tinkering." A lengthy debate was in prospect, when John Kirby, of Ohio, moved that the resolution be laid upon the table, and it prevailed.

The association this afternoon elected the following officers: President, D. M. Parry, Indianapolis; secretary, Marshall Cushing, New York; treasurer, F. H. Still, New York.

English Coal In Demand.

The American demand for English coal is again in evidence, and many large vessels are being loaded and started for our country as rapidly as possible. The demand for the celebrated Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is also largely increased, because more people are learning of its wonderful curative powers in cases of stomach, liver, kidney and bowel disorders, and having tried one bottle they have been convinced of its value, and won't accept anything else in its place. This will be your experience, to, if you will only give it a trial. It will build up the run-down system in the spring, overcome that tired, depressed feeling, purify the blood and cure loss of appetite, indigestion, dyspepsia, constipation, biliousness and la grippe. Don't fail to ry it.

THE KING AT MALTA.

Valetta, Island of Malta, April 16.—The royal yacht Victoria and Albert, with King Edward on board, arrived here today from Gibraltar and was saluted by the warships and shore batteries. Immense crowds of people assembled on the sea front to witness the king's arrival. The city was gay with flags. The king landed at noon.

SIR OLIVER MOWAT VERY LOW.

St. Paul, April 16.—A Winnipeg, Man., special to the Dispatch says: Sir Oliver Mowat, lieutenant governor orf Ontario, is not expected to live through the day.

BASEBALL TEAM

Maroon Uniforms With Green Caps and Hose For Duluth.

Manager Van Praagh Has Signed Shortstop---New Men Likely.

Green millinery and hosiery, with maroon uniforms, will constitute the Duluth colors in the Northern league.

These colors are supposed to be fast, and so is the team, for in addition to the players signed recently by Manager Van Praagh, it is announced that a number of other clever and experienced men are to wear the maroon and green.

Today Manager Van Praagh signed a short-stop named O'Connor from Detroit, and will give him a try-out with a bunch of about fifteen or twenty candidates that will report here within the next few weeks.

There may be but very few old faces in the local team when the season opens. The policy of the present management, it is understood, is to have new blood in the game. This seems to meet with the approval of the fans, but they do want to see "Loole" Kline behind the bat when the race for the pennant begins.

Kline has refused to sign up to the present time, but may affix his signature to a contract a little later on. His heavy stick work and ability to stand all kinds of hard work behind the bat would make him a valuable man, and probably bring him to the attention of the big league magnates, who are watching the Northern league very closely for new players.

Work on the new ball grounds will begin within a week or two, and when finished will be one of the finest ball parks in the Northern league circuit.

The meeting of the board of control came to an end yesterday, and the various managers returned to their homes well pleased with the result of the West Superior conference. Winnipeg won the pennant last year, and Manager R. J. Smith, of that city, is confident that he will be able to land the bunting again. Even Tim Keefe says that Superior will be very much in the race, but it seems a certainty that any club beating Duluth out at the end of the season will have to strike its speed early in the season and keep right on hurrying.

The management of the baseball club began today the preliminary steps toward raising the necessary funds to get the organization started on a good financial basis. Up to this noon it was reported that the efforts were being attended with success and that several of the large wholesale and jobbing concerns have subscribed liberally. It is figured that about $2500 will be needed at the outset to get the new grounds in condition and the team fitted out and the management feels assured that no trouble will be encountered in raising the amount.

Duluth has secured some very good dates for the home games during the season, including July 4 and Labor day. The Duluth team will probably play in Winnipeg on the queen's birthday anniversary.

Arrangements are already being made by the local management for the sale of privileges at the local athletic park, including refreshment stands, score cards and fence advertising.

THOSE WHO HAVE DIED

Washington, April 16.—John A. Chisholm, member of a business firm of Suspension Bridge, N. Y., and recently president of the Canners' association, died here yesterday. His remains have been taken to his former home at Oakville, Can.

New York, April 16.—Gustav Gottheim, Rabbi Emeritus, of Temple Emmanuel, a foremost and liberal exponent of the Jewish church in New York, died of apoplexy yesterday after an illness of several weeks. He was 75 years old and had been connected with the temple for thirty years. In many instances he took a leading part in movements for the betterment of the people of all races and creeds, and was frequently a speaker in gentile churches, some of the leading pastors in which held him in high esteem.

Salt Lake, Utah, April 16.—Before a throng that taxed to the utmost the great tabernacle yesterday afternoon, solemn and impressive funeral services conducted by the highest officials of the Mormon church were held over the body of the late Brigham Young, president of the quorum of the twelve apostles. The interment was in the city cemetery.

REGULAR DIVIDEND

To Be Declared as Usual By Great Northern.

St. Paul, April 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Concerning the report from the East that the Great Northern directors will meet in this city in a few days to take action on a dividend which might be prevented by the government suit, one of the board today said to the Associated Press: "The Great Northern declares a dividend payable the first of May and has done so for years. It will be done this spring as usual, as far as I know. This is the only reason for a meeting that I know of."

As to possible action bearing on the Northern Securities situation, he stated that the Great Northern had no jurisdiction and could not do anything.

HOT TIME ON THE BOWERY

John McCarthy Tastes High Life In Chinese Restaurant.

Shar Lie. Soo Gang. Gem Swat.
Hung Yin.
Bot Boo Tune Yeu Bum Lung.
Fong Wong Chee.
Hong Uon Bak Upp Sen Gi.
Mor Gwoo Gi Pane.
Hell Geeo Ghe Hah Yin Biff.

This is what caused a tremendous palpitation in the razzle dazzle whirl of Bowery society yesterday afternoon.

It is not a new Kipling poem, but a serious gastronomic business that John McCarthy ordered and ate in a Chinese restaurant.

When it came to paying for the meal there was a melee, the Oriental cashier imagining the Irishman was trying to disconnect the house from its hard-earned yen with a liberality in inverse ratio to the usual custom.

The Celestial further imagined it was incumbent on him to swat McCarthy over the head with a club, and McCarthy calmly decided it was his mission to stop the action of the Chinaman's heart.

The cashier was Li Auk and his would have been a brief and joyless tenure of life if Wong Ack and Hor Fong had not come to the rescue. McCarthy was fighting all three of the Chinamen, dodging plates, side-stepping cups, distributing sundry little jolts when he tripped over a chair and fell.

Instantly the Chinese Boxers were on him and if he had been a missionary they could not have handled him worse. The affair was getting so hot that a member of the fire department finally broke into the restaurant and rescued McCarthy.

The three Chinamen and McCarthy were arrested and the details of the mix-up were given full publicity before Judge Windom in the municipal court today.

When the case was called there was a sudden burst of vivid color from the depths of the court room and a pretty brunette waitress, with a red shirt waist and an annoyed expression, took the stand.

She told of the fight in a way that excited admiration. Not one good point in the fight had she missed and she told it in a way that would have put an expert prize fight reporter out of business. Even the court in speaking of her testimony commented on Miss St. Charles' description of what occurred in terms of unconscious compliment.

McCarthy was found not guilty of disorderly conduct and released from custody. Li Auk was fined $20 and costs or thirty days in the county jail, and Hor Fong was sentenced to pay a fine of $10 and costs or go to jail for fifteen days. The fines were paid.

There was considerable dispute as to the part that Wong Ack took in the fight. One side maintained that he was a peacemaker and the other that he was a pacemaker. The court finally decided that he was a peacemaker until McCarthy, in his excitement, being unable to reach any other Chinaman, permitted a flashing left hand jab to linger against Ack. The case against Wong Ack was then dismissed.

Uncle Reuben's Opinion.

"They may say what they please, but listen—hear me: I've taken all kinds of laxatives, purgatives and cathartics, but when it comes to one that is easy and pleasant to take, mild and gentle in its action, and that makes one want an extra slice of bacon ror breakfast, just give me Chamberlain's Stomach and Liver Tablets, and you may have all the laxative syrups, dyspepsia medicines and pills, little or big, there is in this country. Them Tablets surely do make you feel joyful." For sale by Boyce's Drug store.

HAVE MEN ENOUGH

Rumored Scarcity In North Dakota Apparently Unfounded.

Few Localities May Be Short But Not Seriously So.

In some sections of North Dakota there is a scarcity of men just now, which is seeding time, and the impression has gained some ground that it is serious. This does not seem to be so, however, from what grain men whose connections with the Western wheat fields are close say. Certain localities are having trouble in getting men, but in eneral there are enough. A few days' delay in seeding is not at all fatal to the success of the crop, and in fact has very little effect upon it one way or another.

That the situation is not serious is shown by the fact that the wages offered for farm hands are rather low.

"Up to as late as last Friday," said William Dalrymple, of the local grain commission house, whose connection with the famous Dalrymple farm in North Dakota keeps him in touch with the situation, "there were plenty of men. We heard from the farm Friday, and they said they had all they needed for the seeding, which was to have begun the next day.

"There may be a temporary scarcity of men, if all the farmers began seeding at once, but the scarcity would be spasmodic, and if more men are needed they can be easily secured. We begun seeding earlier than most of the farmers, and it may be possible that we rounded up most of the men."

W. J. McCabe has just been to his farms in the central portion of the state and says there is no scarcity of men there.

The first of the crop reports issued by the climate and crop service section of the weather bureau was issued from South Dakota this week and is as follows:

The season is backward and farming operations are retarded by unfavorable conditions for early work.

Because of general and generous rain and snow in the second decade that, together with alternate freezing and thawing weather, kept the soil in the southern portion of the state too wet to work, and the absence of sufficient warmth elsewhere to free the fields of frost, no seeding and but little preparatory field work was done in March. Fall-sown rye generally came through the winter in good condition, and there was no report of any injury to fruit trees or bushes by cold weather.

During the past two weeks field operations were somewhat retarded by fairly general rain or snow the first week, and to some extent by subsequent light to moderate rains that kept considerable low and flat land too wet to work, more especially in northern districts. Considerable wind during the past week has, however, been favorable for drying these lands.

Wheat sowing is now well advanced toward completion in the extreme southeastern counties and is in progress on high land in the most northern counties.

A considerable acreage of oats, barley and speltz has been sown in the southeastern and some Black Hills counties.

Considerable spring plowing has been done, and in some southeastern and Black Hills counties preparation of ground for corn is in progress.

Fall-sown rye is generally reported in thrifty condition and showing very good stand.

Grass has started well, but has made slow growth, except in the extreme southeastern counties.

With seasonable warmth the outlook for prompt germination of spring-sown small grains is very flattering, as the soil is generally amply moist for this purpose. In the extreme southeastern counties and also some Black Hills localities the earliest sown wheat is now nicely sprouting.

Had to Walk Again.

To the Editor of The Herald:

Fifty residents of Duluth Heights had the privilege of walking home again last evening. The car on the electric line from the Incline to Highland avenue jumped the track again, at 6:30 p. m. This is the fourth time within a week, this time right within sight of the incline.

The track is in a deplorable condition; you can pull the spikes out of the ties with the fingers; while the trolley wire is hanging loose from the support bars, broken away for hundreds of feet.

A proposition was made to call an indignation meeting, and appoint a committee to wait on the council, and see if the street railway company cannot be forced to provide better service than is given to the residents of Duluth Heights. It is an imposition on good nature, to tax patrons of the road for service, and then to make them walk one and a half miles to get to their homes.

THE HEIGHTS.

Duluth, April 15.

THE SENIOR CLASS PLAYS

Rehearsals Promise Great Things For Saturday Evening's Audience.

With a piercing shriek the young woman fell fainting into his arms.

"So now I've found you out, sir, have I? With your cook and bull story about this, that and the other, when your real object in coming here was to make love to my wife?" bellowed the tenuous, emaciated person, insanely mad with jealousy as he rushed into the room gesticulating wildly.

Out of breath he paused; a moment's intensely painful silence followed.

"I presume then, sir, that you don't like it," remarked the cheeky individual as he struggled to support the frightened matron.

"Of course not, sir." Again the awful roar.

"Neither do I, so take her." The flirtatious wife went spinning like a ping pong ball in the direction of her irate lord and master. Consumed with anger, he sent her from the room.

"Now, sir, we must fight," he hissed fiercely through his teeth.

War followed.

"Police, police," shouted some one out on the lawn. The cry was tken up far down the street. A fat man rang in a riot call.

A crowd rushed in to see that no murder was done, and then it was discovered that it was only a funny joke after all.

It was the daily rehearsal of the senior play which will be given by the high school students Saturday evening at the Assembly hall of the high school building.

That the presentation should have reached that point of realism where such a commotion could be caused by a mere rehearsal is a matter of elation with the seniors, who hope to make enough financially out of the production to pay all of the many expenses which annually harass the graduating class of the high school.

Many of the students are working hard to advertise the play and sell a sufficiently large number of tickets to make an assured monetary success. Great interest is manifested by every one interested in the high school and the big auditorium will be filled to overflowing on the evening of the entertainment.

Two excellent, fanciful, farce comedies will be produced. "Lamb and Mint Sauce" and "A Regular Fix" are the titles of the pieces. Fourteen well known seniors are in the casts of the comedlettas, and the entire class and school is interested in the production.

POTTER, JR., HAS GONE

Members of Spokane Club Mulcted In Various Ways.

Spokane, Wash., April 16.—Spokane clubroom is agog over the sudden departure of William J. Potter, Jr., formerly of Amsterdam, N. Y., the scion of an aristocratic family. He was discharged as manager of the Sloan-Payne company's large grocery house because of the persistent overdrawal of his salary coupled with large debts due to living beyond his means. He lived in fine apartments at the Spokane club and left owing sums ranging from $50 to $400, mostly borrowed from fellow club members.

SHOCK KILLED HIM.

Hokah, Minn., Farmer Found Dead In His Bed.

La Crosse, Wis., April 16.—William Arenz, a prominent farmer residing a few miles from Hokah, was found dead in bed yesterday, caused, it is thought, from fright. A few days ago while in bed his house was struck by lightning and part of the roof torn off. For several hours he was unconscious, and it is thought that the shock hastened his death. He was 59 years of age, unmarried, and lived alone on his farm. He is said to have accumulated some wealth.

YOUNG WOMAN DESERTED

Also Robbed of Her Money and Jewels.

St. Cloud, Minn., April 16.—H. P. Denrose, who represented that he was a post-office inspector and lived at Syracuse, N. Y., deserted a young woman named Emma Anderson, of Joy, Douglas county, at Cold Springs, in this county, this week. Denrose took $130 of the girl's money, also a gold watch valued at $50, two diamond rings, two band rings and two brooches.

Miss Anderson is 22 years of age and is the daughter of a well-to-do farmer who advanced her the money with which to get married. She was enticed from her home by Denrose, who said they would go to Minneapolis to get married. Instead they came to St. Cloud, and after staying here several days, went to the little town where the girl was deserted.

MISS TAYLOR IN LUCK.

Washington, April 16.—Miss Rebecca J. Taylor, who recently sought unsuccessfully in the district courts to compel her reinstatement as a clerk in the war department from which Secretary Root dismissed her on account of articles published by her sharply criticising the administration's Philippine policy, has received information that she has been left about $300,000 by the death of an uncle in San Francisco Sunday night. Her case will be heard in the court of appeals in October.

PERFECTLY SANE

Is Mrs. Margaret O'Laughlin, Say Five Physicians of Dubuque.

Was Placed In an Asylum Without Warrant of Law.

Dubuque, Iowa, April 16.—The alleged illegal confinement of Mrs. Margaret O'Laughlin, of Wabasha, Minn., in St. Joseph's Mercy hospital for the insane, in this city, may lead to the indictment of her son, Frank O'Laughlin, on the charge of kidnapping. Attorneys for the aged woman, who have been trying to secure her release from the asylum for three weeks, threaten to begin proceedings against her son. After a long-drawn-out fight in the district court three weeks ago, in wchh much expert medical testimony was introduced, Judge O'Donnell remanded Mrs. O'Laughlin to the charge of the asylum authorities, as her attending physician declared that she is insane and that it would require several months' treatment to restore her mental strength.

A week after Judge O'Donnell remanded Mrs. O'Laughlin to the asylum, a habeas corpus proceeding was brought against Frank O'Laughlin in Minnesota and he was at once ordered to produce his mother in court. He refused and undertook to justify his refusal by contending that she was physically and mentally unable to travel.

Monday Dr. Bond, of Wabasha, and Dr. Adnas, of Lake City, Minn., the latter being her physician for twenty years, arrived here, and accompanied by Mrs. O'Laughlin's sister, went to the asylum to see the latter and ascertain whether she was able to travel. L. G. Hurd, Mrs. O'Laughlin's attorney, accompanied them, but they were denied the privilege of seeing the patient, except by permission of Dr. McCarthy, the house physician. He declined to give his permission. The sister in charge showed Mr. Hurd the rules of the state board of control governing asylums, which state that a patient cannot be communicated with except by the permission of the person in charge or the attending physician. Mr. Hurd informed the sister that under the rules she could give permission, but she would not do so.

The party then returned to the city and Attorney Hurd called on Judge O'Donnell and stated the situation to him and he at once made an order that the state permit the Minnesota doctors and those with them to see the patient.

The Minnesota doctors examined Mrs. O'Laughlin at length and found her perfectly able, physically and mentally, to travel. The doctors will testify before the Minnesota court that she is able to return home.

Mrs. O'Laughlin's attorneys will make every effort to secure her release from the asylum and the fight in the courts promises to be very interesting.

Six months ago Mrs. O'Laughlin's son, Frank, brought her to Dubuque and placed her in the sisters' asylum without warrant of law. The Iowa law provides that no person shall be committed to a private asylum unless under a commitment by the commissioners of insanity, or on a certificate signed by two reputable physicians.

Soon after her arrival at the asylum, Dr. McCarthy, of Dubuque, and Dr. A. M. Pond, of Webster City, made an examination and issued a certificate to the effect that she was insane. Five local physicians have declared Mrs. O'Laughlin to be perfectly sound of mind, while two, the asylum doctors, say she is insane.

FOUGHT AN INSANE MAN.

Passengers on a Train Thrown Into Panic.

Chicago, April 16.—Passengers on the Great Western train were thrown into panic near Sycamore, Ill., by the attempt of Alva Hayes, an insane man, to leap from a window. Hayes became violent just after leaving the buffe tcar, and rushed through the train, knocking down women and children and screaming at the top of his voice. He was overcome by Conductor Frank Asham, the brakeman, and several passengers just as he was plunging through a window.

Bleeding from wounds inflicted by the broken glass, Hayes was dragged to a smoking car. Here he again attempted escape, and succeeded in pushing his head through a window. He was finally tied to a seat with a bell cord, and when the train reached Chicago was taken to the county hospital in the patrol wagon from the Harrison street station.

Hayes was accompanied by his brother, A. S. Hayes, a well-to-do farmer of Fargo, N. D. While visiting in Fargo the man became deeply interested in religion, and finally lost his mind. It was decided to take him to an asylum at Otsego, Mich.

ANOTHER VALUE

Tar By-Product of Coke Ovens Is Important Feature.

Use of Macadam Foundation For Pavement Finding Favor.

City Engineer Patton is of the opinion that the building of by-product coke ovens by the Zenith Furnace company will do much to give Duluth a good bitulithic street paving at a reasonable cost and possibly manufactured in a municipal ownership street paving plant.

One of the principal elements in bitulithic paving is tar and one of the leading by-products of the proposed West Duluth coking plant will be a very high grade of coal tar.

With the best rock for macadam and bitulithic paving manufactered right in the heart of the city and tar also right here in Duluth, the city engineer says he can see no reason why Duluth should not have the best of street paving at a very low cost as compared with that of other cities and is strongly in favor of a municipal ownership plant.

Mayor Hugo, too, is enthusiastic over the prospects of the municipal ownership and operation of a municipal bitulithic paving plant and regards the tar by-product proposition of the Zenith ovens as being equally important as the gas by-product from which the city is to receive its supply of illuminating, heating, cooking and power gas for the next ten years.

There is also a possibility that macadam may be used as a substitute for cement foundations where sandstone, or in fact paving material of any nature, except bitulithic materials, are used. The question of whether or not macadam furnishes a more substantial foundation than concrete is creating a great deal of discussion among paving experts, and a recent editorial in the Engineering News says:

"There is every reason to believe that precedent is the chief reason for the preference shown concrete in the past. In the city of Buffalo there are miles of asphalt pavements laid on concrete, much of which is like the waves of the sea. One street is exceptionally free from such irregularities, and there, we are informed, the asphalt was laid on a macadam foundation.

"Macadam carefully laid and compacted by a ten-ton roller will certainly uphold as heavy loads as an equal thickness of concrete, and it possesses the advantage, due to the use of the heavy roller, that the subsoil is more thoroughly consolidated than where concrete is laid. Moreover the surface of well-made macadam has fewer pronounced irregularities than has ordinary concrete, which is to be the wearing coat. Under the summer heat asphalt softens, and some experiments made by a member of the editorial staff of this journal indicate that, when in this soft state, wagon wheels tend to roll and push the plastic asphalt in such a way as to make its surface parallel with all the irregularities of the surface of the concrete beneath. Concrete has a greater transverse strength than macadam, to bridge over depressions; but the better consolidation of the sub-grade effected in the process of making a macadam foundation in itself offsets this greater transverse strength of concrete, and insures a more even surface of the pavement after traffic comes upon it.

"Where there are car tracks in a street, macadam placed between the rails can be rolled only with difficulty. Concrete seems to be the preferable base between the rails for this reason.

"The inspection of macadam construction is far more easily carried out than that of concrete. Moreover, there are no cement tests to be made. Another point, not unworthy of consideration in these days of labor troubles, is the very small force required to lay fifty cubic yards of macadam per day as compared with the force required to lay an equal amount of concrete. It takes about eighteen men to lay fifty cubic yards in ten hours, whereas three men dumping and spreading stone, a sprinkling cart and a steam roller will do the same work on macadam. In fact, where fire hydrants are close together the sprinkling cart may be replaced by a man with a hose.

"Turning now to the comparative first cost of the two materials, it may be noted that in some localities gravel is cheap while broken stone is expensive, due to the absence of outcropping ledge rock. In such places a gravel concrete may be cheaper than macadam of equal thickness. Again, in some of the smaller cities it would be difficult to get the steam roller which is a necessity for making a good macadam foundation, and if the job is a small one it may not pay to rent a roller and pay transportation charges both ways.

"These, however, are exceptional conditions. In most localities macadam can be laid for much less cost than concrete, and, if the preceding discussion is well founded, it has been used far less than its low cost and its efficiency warrant."

MINNESOTA EDITORS

To Be Royaly Entertained By Washington People.

Washington, April 16.—Arrangements for the entertainment of the Minnesota Editorial association in Washington next month are well under way. Frank A. Day, president of the association; C. P. Stine, Charles C. Whitney, and F. J. Meyst, members of the executive committee, are here looking over the field.

The excursion will travel from Chicago to Washington on the Baltimore & Ohio road. S. B. Hare, passenger agent of that line in Washington, today submitted a four-day program for the visitors, including a shad bake at Marchall hall, a trip to Mount Vernon, Alexandria and other points of historic interest.

The headquarters of the association while at the capital will probably be at the Riggs house or National hotel.

FOOLISH MISS PRINDLE.

Took Chloroform Because Lover Did Not Write.

Pender, Neb., April 16.—Because she did did not receive a letter from her lover, Miss Mable Prindle, a waitress at the Palace hotel, took chloroform yesterday afternoon. Two doctors restored her to consciousness just as the lover, William Nels, of Omaha, walked into the room. He had not written to her because he knew he would be in Pender and wanted to surprise her.

LADY ON EDITORIAL STAFF OF LEADING RELIGIOUS WEEKLY

Sends the Following Grand Testimonial to the Merits of Cuticura Remedies in the Treatment of Humours of the Blood, Skin and Scalp.

"I wish to give my testimony to the efficiency of the Cuticura Remedies in what seems to me two somewhat remarkable cases. I had a number of skin tumours—small ones—on my arms which had never given me serious trouble; but about two years ago one came on my throat. At first it was only about as large as a pinhead, but, as it was in a position where my collar, if not just right, would irritate it, it soon became very sensitive and began to grow rapidly. Last spring it was as large, if not larger, than a bean. A little unusual irritation of my collar started it to swelling, and in a day or two it was as large as half an orange. I was very much alarmed, and was at a loss to determine whether it was a carbuncle or a malignant tumour.

"My friends tried to persuade me to consult my physician; but dreading that he would insist on using the knife, I would not consent to go. Instead I got a small bottle of Cuticura Resolvent and a box of Cuticura Ointment. I took the former according to directions, and spread a thick layer of the Ointment on a linen cloth and placed it on the swelling. On renewing it I would bathe my neck in very warm water and Cuticura Soap. In a few days the Cuticura Ointment had drawn the swelling to a head, when it broke. Every morning it was opened with a large sterilized needle, squeezed and bathed, and fresh Ointment put on. Pus and blood, and a yellow, cheesy, tumorous matter came out. In about three or four weeks' time this treatment completely eliminated boil and tumour. The soreness that had extended down into my chest was all gone, and my neck now seems to be perfectly well.

"About five or six years ago my sister had a similar experience. She had two large lumps come under her right arm, the result of a sprain. They grew rapidly, and our physician wanted to cut them out. I would not listen to it, and she tried the Cuticura Remedies (as I did a few months ago) with magical effect. In six weeks' time the lumps had entirely disappeared, and have never returned.

"I have great faith in the Cuticura Remedies, and I believe they might be as efficacious in similar cases with other people, and thus save much suffering, and perhaps life. I have derived so much benefit from the use of them myself that I am constantly advising others to use them. Recently I recommended them to an office boy for his father, who was disabled with salt rheum. The man's feet were swollen to an enormous size, and he had not worked for six weeks. Two bottles of Cuticura Resolvent and two boxes of Cuticura Ointment worked a perfect cure. You never saw a more grateful man in your life.

"I am very much interested in another case where I have recommended Cuticura just now. My housemaid's mother has a goitre which had reached a very dangerous point. The doctors told her that nothing could be done; that she could live only two or three weeks, and that she would die of strangulation. She was confined to her bed, and was unable to speak, when her daughter, at my suggestion, tried the effect of the Cuticura Ointment and Cuticura Resolvent. Strange to say, she was very shortly relieved of the most distressing symptoms. The swelling seemed to be exteriorized, and she is now able to be around her house, and can talk as well as ever.

"It seems to me that I have pretty good grounds for believing that Cuticura Remedies will prove successful in the most distressing forms of blood and skin humours, and if you wish to use my testimonial as herein indicated, I am willing that you should do so, with the further privilege of revealing my name and address to such persons as may wish to substantiate the above statements by personal letter to me."

NOTICE OF MORTGAGE SALE.

Whereas default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage, which was duly executed and delivered by Michael Sullivan, bachelor, mortgagor, to William G. Hinman, mortgagee, bearing date November fourth (4th), 1890, and which was duly recorded in the register of deeds' office for St. Louis county, Minnesota, on November fifth (5th), 1890, at four (4) o'clock p. m., in book sixty-seven (67), of Mortgages, on page one hundred ten (110) thereof; which mortgage, with the debt thereby secured, was thereafter duly assigned by said William G. Hinman to William Joseph Corcoran, by an instrument of assignment which was duly recorded in said register of deeds' office on July twenty-fourth (24th), 1891, at ten (10) o'clock a. m., in book seventy-three (73), of mortgages, on page four hundred eighty-four (484) thereof; said William Joseph Corcoran having thereafter died, and the undersigned having been, by his last will and testament, duly appointed as executors of his estate, and a duly authenticated copy of the letters testamentary issued to the undersigned, as executors of his last will, upon the probate thereof, by the Judge of Probate of Suffolk county, Massachusetts, having been thereafter, and prior to the date of this notice, duly recorded in the register of deeds' office for St. Louis county, Minnesota, such default consisting in the non-payment of the principal sum thereby secured, with interest thereon from November 4th, 1890, and also in the non-payment of taxes upon the premises described in said mortgage for the year 1891, and subsequent years, which said mortgagor had covenanted to pay in said mortgage, but which became delinquent and which said assignee of said mortgage was compelled to pay, and did pay, as follows: On February 20th, 1892, the sum of $6.46; on October 29th, 1896, the sum of $26.30; on August 1st, 1899, the sum of $41.15; on December 23rd, 1901, the sum of $13.71; on December 26th, 1901, the sum of $10.88; and on February 10th, 1902, the sum of $12.22; no part of which has ever been paid.

And whereas, there is therefore claimed to be due and there is actually due, upon said mortgage debt, at the date of this notice, the sum of five hundred ten and 99-100ths ($510.99) dollars, principal, taxes paid, and interest.

And whereas, said mortgage contains a power of sale in due form, which has become operative by reason of the defaults above mentioned, and no action or proceeding, at law or otherwise, has been instituted to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of said power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made, said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described therein, situate in St. Louis county, Minnesota, described as follows, towit: Lots numbered three (3), four (4) and five (5), in section two (2), township fifty-four (54) north of range twelve (12), west of the fourth principal meridian, containing one hundred twenty-five (125) acres, more or less, according to the government survey thereof, which premises will be sold by the sheriff of said St. Louis county, Minnesota, at the front door of the court house, in the city of Duluth, in said county and state, on the twenty-third (23rd) day of May, A. D. 1903, at ten (10) o'clock a. m., at public auction, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt and interest, and said taxes and interest thereon, and $25 attorney's fees, stipulated for in said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law; subject to redemption at any time within one year from the day of sale, as provided by law.

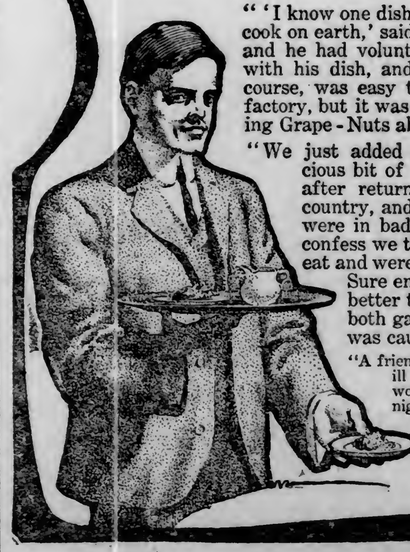
Grape-Nuts

Handy Husband

Knew How to Get Part of the Breakfast, Anyhow



"'I know one dish I can prepare for breakfast as well as any cook on earth,' said my husband one day when the cook was ill and he had volunteered to help get breakfast. He appeared with his dish, and I discovered it was Grape-Nuts, which, of course, was easy to prepare for it is perfectly cooked at the factory, but it was a good illustration of the convenience of having Grape-Nuts about.

"We just added a little cream and, of course, had a delicious bit of food. We took up Grape-Nuts immediately after returning from a five years' sojourn in a hot country, and our stomachs were in a bad condition and we were in bad health generally. When we first tried it I confess we thought there were other and better things to eat and were told we must acquire a taste for this new food. Sure enough, in a day or two we liked Grape-Nuts better than any other kind of food on the table. We both gained steadily in health and strength, and this was caused by Grape-Nuts and Postum Food Coffee.

"A friend of ours had a similar experience. She was seriously ill with indigestion and could find nothing to eat that would not give her heartburn and palpitation, especially at night. She found that a small dish of Grape-Nuts with cream made her a satisfactory supper and gave her a comfortable night's rest. In a short time she has gained several pounds in weight."

KILLING OF REIDER

Admitted By Zeitmer But Makes Plea of Self Defense.

Daughter Betrayed and Wife Driven to a Suicide's Grave.

Livingston, Mont., April 16.—Martin Zeitmer, who is charged with the murder of George Reider, of Traill Creek, on April 10, 1901, was yesterday placed on trial for his life. In opening the case Attorney Stark, for the defense, declared that no attempt would be made to deny the killing of Reider, but it would be shown that Zeitmer acted in self-defense.

Mr. Stark's outline of the defendant's case was very dramatic. In ringing tones he told of alleged abuses heaped upon Zeitmer by the dead man that were without a parallel. At the request of Reider, Zeitmer was induced to permit his 14-year-old daughter to cook at Reider's sawmill. Reider took advantage of her youth and ruined her. Worry and sorrow over the girl's shame caused her mother to become insane and commit suicide, shooting herself with a rifle which hung in Zeitmer's cabin.

Jack Held, who is charged with being an accessory after the fact, was the first witness for the state. He told of the shooting following a quarrel in which Zeitmer had charged Reider with theft of farm implements. He met Zeitmer immediately after the tragedy and with him went to where Reider was lying. The dead man clutched the reins of his horse in his hands so firmly that Zeitmer could not remove them. Zeitmer then, according to the witness, with the words that he would soon make him leave go, stepped back and fired another bullet into the corpse.

While on his way to Livingston to give himself up, Zeitmer met Andy Widenbauer, who persuaded him to bury the body and say nothing about it. Widenbauer declared to Zeitmer that he had done the right thing, and that it would save him (Widenbauer) $200, which he owed the murdered man.

The three men went back to the scene of the murder and, taking the remains, buried them in an adjacent sawdust pile. They then shook hands and declared they would ever keep it a secret.

The story told by Zeitmer to the two men, as testified by Held, was that when he accused Reider of stealing, Reider resented it and came at him with an ax, and he had shot Reider just in time to save his own life.

Testimony was submitted by the state to show that the day following the killing the defendant had gone to the murdered man's cabin and taken everything in the way of furniture and personal effects and carried them to his own house, even before burying the body. He took the watch carried by Reider, and has ever since used it as a timepiece. Zeitmer broke down during Held's testimony and wept bitterly.

ST. LOUIS FAIR

Commercial Club Hears From Supt. Mitchell of Commission.

Committee Arranged For to Carry on Public Affairs Work.

The regular monthly meeting of the Commercial club was held last evening, with Vice Pesident E. L. Millar presiding, in the absence from the city of W. A. McGonagle, the new president of the club. The attendance, while not as large as had been expected from the importance of the matters to come up for consideration, was a representative one and much interest was taken by the various members in the discussions.

One of the most important acts taken by the club was the passage of a resolution, introduced by A. A. Farrington, that the board of directors be requested to appoint a committee of as many as may be deemed advisable to confer and co-operate with the Minnesota commission of the St. Louis fair, with power to act. The resolution was as requested by C. S. Mitchell, superintendent of the board of commissioners, during a talk to the members of the club, in which he set forth the reason of his visit to Duluth. Mr. Mitchell said:

"The commission has but one desire in spending the appropriation which the state legislature has provided, and that is that it may obtain a practical result. We not only desire to have an attractive exhibit at the St. Louis fair, but we want exhibits from which Minnesota will feel the benefits and get back many times the money spent by the state on the exposition.

"Minnesota is erecting a building at the fair to be paid for out of the appropriation, and the balance will be spent on exhibits in agricultural, industrial, educational, metallurgical and various other departments, in such proportion as the commission shall deem of the most importance.

"Duluth is particularly interested in the metallurgical and game and fish exhibit which is to be made. Hitherto the fish from Minnesota waters have been dumped into a national aquarium at expositions, but at St. Louis Minnesota will have an aquarium of her own.

"We will make a splendid exhibit of the iron mines of St. Louis county. Duluth is the receiving and distributing point for the mining regions, and is, therefore, the center of this district. We would like to know how we can spend that part of the appropriation to be used in showing up the mines in such a way as to be satisfactory to you. We wish to consult with you, ask your advice and your plans. If we carry them out with the money available, well and good, but if we cannot, then you will be asked to indicate where the cut shall be made.

"I have been greatly surprised in looking over the wholesale district of Duluth to note its magnitude. I have been here before but never before noted how great were your wholesale interests. I believe that the average Minnesotan does not know the volume of your commerce. The people in the state have been talking that some day Duluth will be a great city, but they really do not know how large your are. It has not been brought home to them in detail. They do not know the extent of your harbor, the volume of your commerce, the immensity of the ore and grain traffic, the method of economy in handling grain and ore, nor of the territory reached by the wholesale houses.

"When a city like Duluth excels all other cities even in one thing you have a right to stick feathers in your hats and crow.

"It is of no use to attempt to tell the people who attend the fair, by pamphlet, regarding Duluth and St. Louis county, for they will throw such literature away before they get to their homes. You must give them an object lesson so novel and yet so practical that the impression will be left on their minds even after seeing all the other interesting things.

"We want to show the people that you are going to have the largest city on the continent here at the head of the lakes, and that it will happen before some of us are dead and gone."

Mr. Mitchell complimented the Minnesota iron ore exhibit at the Pan-American exposition, which he said was one of the best of the kind ever planned and carried out for the money that was available.

Mr. Mitchell's talk was well received by the members of the club, and expressions of appreciation were frequent relative to the spirit shown by the commission in bringing the matter home to Duluth in the way that it has. Resolutions expressing the thanks of the club to the Minnesota commission for the courtesies extended through Mr. Mitchell were unanimously adopted.

Among those who spoke of the splendid advantages to be given the state and particularly St. Louis county, at the coming exposition in St. Louis, were W. B. Silvey, C. L. Twohy, I. Freimuth and S. H. Jones. Mr. Twohy suggested that prominence should be given the lumber industry of Duluth at the exposition, and proposed the idea of running an excursion from Duluth to St. Louis and arrange for a "Duluth day" at the fair, if such a thing is feasible.

The Commercial club has been extended an invitation to send a delegation to the national and international convention of the Good Roads association, which is to be held in St. Louis April 27 to May 2, in connection with the dedication ceremonies of the exposition. On motion of Mr. Twohy a resolution was passed requesting the president to appoint a committee of four, including the secretary of the club, to accompany Mr. Silvey and represent the club at the convention.

Mr. Silvey gave a very timely and pertinent talk along the line or making Duluth a greater convention city, and on his motion resolutions were adopted asking the president to appoint a committee of three to investigate the matter and make such plans as they may deem best to draw the convention business to Duluth.

Mr. Mitchell called attention to the fact that if any of the Duluth interests wished to secure space for display at the St. Louis fair the matter could be arranged with the Minnesota commission.

A. C. Volk called the attention of the club to the increased manufacturing interests at the western end of the city and inadequate means of transportation to and from the city for the workmen employed. He said the matter of a short line train service to Fond du Lac had been taken up with the Northern Pacific company, and while the passenger department seemed to favor the idea, some of the higher officials had turned the proposition down.

On Mr. Volk's motion the president was requested to appoint a committee of three members to confer with the railway officials and urge the matter of improved service if it is deemed practicable.

The matter of taking care of excursionists the coming year provoked a long discussion relative to how far the public affairs work of the club should be carried. Secretary Preston explained that no steps have yet been taken toward scheduling places of accommodation for prospective visitors that will come in on the many big excursions to be run here the coming summer. He thought some place should be provided outside the club rooms as a bureau of information.

A resolution finally passed that the president appoint five members, to be known as the public affairs committee, to raise funds for the entertainment of excursionists and carry on the public affairs work of the club the coming year.

Secretary Preston explained that the public affairs work referred not only to the care of excursionists, but the giving of proper publicity to the excursions, expenses of correspondence and the matter of locating or attempting to locate new manufacturing or business enterprises in this city.

IS ESSENTIAL VULGARITY

Says London Mail of Features of Vanderbilt Wedding.

London, April 16.—Exhaustive accounts of the Vanderbilt-Neilson wedding at Newport, which were cabled to London, giving the most detailed description of the ceremony, gifts and incidents, have been too much for the Daily Mail, which, under the caption of "Vulgarity and Wealth," deals with the matter in the following manner:

"Circumstances attending the marriage of Reginald Vanderbilt at Newport, whether they be regarded as admirable or deplorable, are remarkable enough to be worthy of passing comment.

"A thorough understanding of their significance is, perhaps, impossible unless one is born an American and a millionaire, but people who possess neither of these advantages may find a little that is interesting in contemplation of this surprising effort at ostentation and display.

"Extravagances of taste, the essential vulgarity of the idea which seeks to make of an intimate family festival a show for the whole world, a strange perversion that makes the office of the priest subservient to that of the dressmaker, and requires a dress rehearsal for religious ceremony—these are in themselves merely the symptoms of a state of affairs that is expressed in many other ways. Its basis is a very old and simple one, inseparable from any state of society in which wealth is unevenly distributed. It is a constant fever to escape from equality and it is a marked characteristic of democratic communities.

"There is, theoretically, no social distinction of birth in America, but social distinction is sought and found by the expenditure of money in all kinds of fantastic ways. With a little ingenuity, much money, and an absence of shame, the social ladder may be scaled in America, so that the host who invites his friends to meet a monkey at dinner may supersede him who could think of nothing better than a picnic in gilded traction engines.

"The one things is to escape from the commonplace, usual, conceivable, always to be a length ahead; always, in native expression, to 'go you one better.'

"Enormous material wealth which is central in this group of American society, renders competitions of fashion extreme and fantastic, and it is remarkable that those millionaires who have put forth the most convulsive efforts to attract attention and to outdo their neighbors in these orgies of vulgarity have been among the loudest in complaining that American newspapers have robbed them of their privacy.

"Carloads of flowers, fountains of scent, opposing armies of thieves and detectives, ranks of policemen guarding the treasure, while equal treasure is being profusely wasted, are merely somewhat sordid incidents in the struggle to spend as much money as possible.

"To sensible people is is not an attractive picture, and it is with gratification that we remember that it is a picture distasteful to the mass of plain American citizens, in whose minds it excites the same sense of reprobation as in our own."

Inflammatory Rheumatism Cured.

William Shaffer, a brakeman, of Dennison, Ohio, was confined to his bed for several weeks with inflammatory rheumatism. "I used many remedies," he says. "Finally I sent to McCaw's drug store for a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm, a which time I was unable to use hand or foot, and in one week's time was able to go to work as happy as a clam." If troubled with rheumatism, give Pain Balm a trial. One application relieves the pain. For sale by Boyce's Drug store.

SHOT AT LUNCH.

Jealous Cook Fires at Woman Three Times.

Des Moines, Ia., April 16.—Arthur Perry, a cook, followed Mrs. Louise Bruce, wife of W. C. Bruce, of Sioux City, into a restaurant here yesterday and shot her three times, one ball striking her in the mouth. Perry then shot himself in the head and died within a short time. The woman was taken to the hospital where it is stated her condition was critical. The woman said she had come here from Sioux City two years ago, having separated from her husband and that she had been living with Perry.

Perry, who was jealous, had followed Mrs. Bruce to the restaurant and shot her as she was eating her lunch. The place was crowded at the time and a panic ensued.

PIMPLES

"I tried all kinds of blood remedies which failed to do me any good but I have found the right thing at last. My face was full of pimples and blackheads. After taking Cascarets they all left. I am continuing the use of them and recommending them to my friends. I feel fine when I rise in the morning. Hope to have a chance to recommend Cascarets."

HANGED TO A POLE

Infuriated Mob Lynches a Negro at Joplin, Mo.

Every Colored Person Is Then Driven From City.

Joplin, Mo., April 16.—An infuriated mob took an unknown tramp negro from the city jail last evening and hanged him to a telegraph pole at the corner of Second and Wall streets, two blocks from the jail. The negro was charged with having murdered Police Officer C. Leslie, who was found dead Tuesday night in the Kansas City Southern railroad yards, while endeavoring to arrest several negroes suspected of theft.

Officer Leslie had ordered several negroes, who had taken refuge in a box car, to surrender, and when they failed to do so, he fired several shots at the car. During the shooting a negro slipped from the car and coming up behind the officer shot him through the head. The negro then fled and within a short time posses were after him.

About 3 o'clock yesterday afternoon Lee Fullerton, aged 21, located the fugitive in a slaughter house just east of Joplin. The negro was armed with a rifle and defied arrest. Fullerton slipped into the structure unobserved and crept up behind the negro. Suddenly he sprang at the unsuspecting fugitive and before resistance could be made he had the negro on his back with a knife at his throat. The negro then surrendered his rifle to Fullerton. The latter, pointing the weapon at the colored man, marched him out of the building.

With the assistance of another man, the negro was brought to Joplin and placed in jail. News of the capture spread rapidly and the jail was speedily surrounded by hundreds of people. There were cries of "Lynch him!" on all sides and City Attorney P. H. Decker mounted the jail steps and made a strong plea in behalf of law and order. This served to temporarily stay the mob, but not appease it and a short time after Decker's speech the mob started to batter in a section of the jail. Every effort was made to prevent the entrance of the mob, but without avail and within fifteen minutes the infuriated men had gained an entrance to the jail and secured the trembling negro. As he was dragged out City Attorney Decker again interfered and urged that the negro be given a trial. For half an hour he talked and the mob listened to him with the negro in their custody. At one time it seemed that the city attorney would win, as members of the mob began dispersing, but suddenly a rush was made for the spot where the negro was being held and he was dragged two blocks from the jail, a rope fastened around his neck and after the rope had been thrown over the cross bar of a telegraph pole, a score of men attempted to pull the negro from the ground. As many more seized the negro and pulled to prevent him from being hanged. For some moments it was a veritable tug-of-war, but reinforcements on the free end of the rope proved the stronger and the negro, despite his protestations of innocence, was finally swung into the air and strangled to death, while shouts of satisfaction went up from the mob. The name of the negro was not known and he was a stranger in Joplin. As soon as the negro was dead the mob dispersed in the twilight and later the body was cut down and taken in charge by the coroner.

The lynching of the negro served only to temporarily satisfy the indignation of the mob and later hundreds of men again assembled and rioted through the negro section of the city, burning houses and stoning negroes, and finally drove every negro from the confines of Joplin. The police were powerless.

The first act of the mob after hanging the negro was to demand the release from jail of a local character known as "Hickory Bill," who was under arrest on the charge of assaulting a negro. In the hope that this would appease the mob, the prisoner was set free.

But the mob did not disperse. Instead, a rush was made through Main stheet, the principal street of Joplin, and every negro was frightened off the street and fled to the north part of the city, where the colored population resides. In this way the negroes were driven from all parts of the city to the negro section. Then the mob charged down on the section. Stones were thrown, doors and windows of negro houses were broken in and finally several were fired. The fire department responded, but many of the houses were burned to the ground. The mob made endeavors to prevent the fire department from extinguishing the flames, and was partially successful. All the officers of the city, township and county were called out, but the mob swept them aside and proceeded with the rioting.

Mayor Trigg ran from corner to corner and, mounting boxes, made earnest appeals to the mob to cease, but beyond cheering the mayor loudly the mob swept on and the depredations continued. The saloons were hurriedly closed by the mayor. After the hundreds of frenzied men composing the mob had vented its wrath in the north end of the city, they rushed to the south end where lived a number of negroes. Their houses were vacant and not a negro could be found. Three more houses were fired and two were consumed.

All efforts to reason with the rioters were futile. The streets were thronged and at 11:15 o'clock the whole city was in an uproar. So far as was known at that hour no fatalities had occurred, although many persons had received minor injuries.

HOUSE BURGLARIZED.

St. Louis, April 16.—While the family was eating supper last night, burglars ransacked the second story rooms of the residence of Philip Stock, secretary of the English Brewery syndicate, securing nearly $2000 worth of jewelry and valuables. Considerable other jewelry was overlooked. James Pierson, the coachman, has been arrested on suspicion of being implicated.

STADKOPEVTSEV ARRESTED.

St. Petersburg, April 16.—A political malcontent named Stadkopevtsev has been arrested at Moscow, where the czar is staying. The prisoner was found to have a revolver on his person.

DISTRIBUTION OF POPULATION.

About one-half of the population of the United States is found in a strip of land embracing four degrees of latitude, having the northern edge of its water front at Portsmouth, N. H., and its southern edge about Cape May in New Jersey, and extending westward across the country to the Pacific coast. This section of the country has experienced the most constant growth of any and is still growing rapidly. This strip is about 270 miles wide and seems to offer advantages which naturally appeal to people looking for a new location. Of the advantages offered, probably that of climate has the controlling influence. In this strip that is referred to, the greatest condensation of population is through the center, between 40 and 42 degrees of latitude. It is well known that east of the Rocky Mountains the climate north of this belt of country is rather too severe in winter to be inviting, while that south of the southern edge of the same strip is so warm in summer, with numerous unsanitary characteristics, that it also exerts a somewhat repelling influence. The natural resources of soils, minerals, timber, water powers, etc., are probably north of this popular area, but the cold winters present a disadvantage that diverts the movement of population to a line farther south. In the matter of longitude the narrow lines of the measurement of population cannot be so readily laid down. The density of population is obviously moving westward. The strips of country extending north and south, which show the greatest condensation of population are between 74 and 75 degrees of longitude and again between the 87th and 88th. In the former is located the city of New York and in the latter the city of Chicago. It is contiguous to these cities that population has experienced its greatest increase.

The tables showing these figures are prepared by the census office and they also present a few figures showing the migratory tendency of the negro population of the Southern section of the country. There is also shown a disposition on their part to follow latitudinal lines. Their greatest condensation is between the parallels of 32 and 35 degrees, leaving a strip between their northern edge and the southern edge of the strip followed by the Caucassian of about four degrees, which may be termed a neutral strip between the lines of development of the two races. The movement of the foreign-born population and its tendency to follow well-defined lines, seems to be more erratic. There is a disposition of foreign immigrants to locate in the longitudinal strips in which New York and Chicago are located, but there are also six strips, of one degree each, between these two that show a less foreign population in 1900 than the same area showed in 1890. It is also notable that the increase in the foreign population for the region west of the Mississippi was less for the decade of the '90s than for the decade of the '80s, showing that the later immigrants to the United States are less disposed to distribute themselves over the country in such great numbers during the two decades that followed the closing of the civil war.

It is not as well probably, for the country to have this colonization of immigrants as it would be to have a general scattering of the people. However, it is only a question of time when these localities will be filled and then a broadening of location must necessarily follow.

PORTO RICO'S PROSPERITY.

There are many advantages to be found in Porto Rico not apparent in any other country on the globe. James S. Harlan, who has been attorney general of the island, has recently returned to this country, and brings flattering tales of the condition of affairs on the island. Porto Rico not only has no debt, but has a surplus of $500,000 in the treasury. Mr. Harlan says he knows of no other state or territory in a similar position, though Kentucky at one time had $400,000 or $500,000. The amount in the treasury has often been exceeded in many states, but there are few states out of debt.

The fortunate position of Porto Rico in this respect, however, is due to exceptional favors. All that the people pay on taxes stays in the island instead of being paid into the federal treasury. The total income of the island is $2,300,000, of which $1,800,000 are derived from the federal revenues. It is evident, therefore, that but for the federal revenue turned over, the island would be good deal of paying its way. Undoubtedly, free trade with the United States has done much to promote the prosperity of the island.

It is difficult to tell what will be the outcome of the trouble in the Balkans. The Bulgarian newspapers express dissatisfaction with the Austro-Russian schemes of reforms for Macedonia. In Sofia public opinion has turned against Russia, who is denounced for sacrificing the Slav peoples of the near east in order to gain advantages elsewhere. The Vetcherna Poshta says: "The reforms give nothing to Macedonia, but they bring reflection to Bulgaria. We shall gather from them a lesson for the Bulgarian nation. Their worthlessness is a warning against the principle of putting faith in foreign assistance. It has been a disillusion, which, coming in time, may save the people. It is to be noted that, in not modifying by one iota the present regime, Russia and Austria believe reform to be feasible under the existing system and under the existing official element. Have they been bewitched by a phantom?"

The Cassini family is decidedly fussy. First Count Cassini objects to the Chinese minister's use of his honorary title "Sir," and the the Countess Cassini objects because the name of Miss Langham, of Kentucky, sister of the wife of the German minister, is included in the diplomatic list.

UNION LABOR AND VIOLENCE.

Non-union firemen who arrived at Cleveland on a steamer from Duluth were brutally assaulted by fifty striking union firemen, armed with knives and clubs. The men were pounded into insensibility and thrown into the river, but were rescued, after their cowardly assailants had fled to avoid arrest by the police.

What offense had these non-union firemen committed?

None whatever. They had simply exercised their right as free men and American citizens to take positions which were offered to them and to earn their living in a strictly law-abiding manner. They had done nothing which in any way justified the brutal treatment they received from a lawless gang of toughs who are banded together as a labor union and are a disgrace to organized labor.

But will any labor union in the country pass resolutions denouncing the brutal miscreants who committed this unprovoked assault upon inoffensive men? Will the Firemen's union at Cleveland expel from its organization these fifty or more members who have disgraced the union? It is safe to say that no such condemnatory resolutions will be passed and that these toughs will be retained in the firemen's union as members in good standing. It is cause for regret that this is true, because by the failure to condemn these things the cause of union labor is seriously injured and brought into disrepute with all law-abiding people.

Last summer acts of violence of a similar character were committed in Duluth while the tugmen's strike was on, and this spring there have been indications of violent outbreaks that may have a serious ending.

Is it not time to call a halt to these deeds of lawlessness? Can organized labor afford to arouse public sentiment against it? Yet that must be the inevitable result, if this sort of lawless conduct be continued. The Herald has always been friendly to the labor organizations and has approved their principles and applauded their aims and purposes as set forth in their constitutions, believing that the workingmen, through united action, can do much to improve their condition. But it cannot give its endorsement to acts of violence and lawless conduct resulting from the denial of the right of every man to sell his labor to whom he pleases on such terms as to him seems best. Union workmen have a right to quit work if they are dissatisfied with their wages or hours of labor, but they have no right whatever to interfere with men who take their places or desire to continue at work on the same terms. When trades unionists try by force and violent conduct to interfere with these men, they are exceeding their rights, violating the law and defying public opinion. It is not true that public opinion supports the acts of those who mistakenly seek to better their own condition by assaulting non-union workers and destroying life and property. Decent and law-abiding citizens condemn these methods, and while they have hitherto remained passive and suffered in silence the perpetration of crimes against the personal liberty of the employer and employe, the time is fast coming when, unless the respectable and intelligent members of the labor unions succeed in suppressing the agitators and lawless men who are dragging the cause of organized labor in the mire, there will be an uprising that may prove disastrous. The true interests of organized labor will be advanced by taking heed of the impending storm and using the great power of the unions themselves to uphold the laws and protect the rights of all men.

THE TWELVE-INCH GUNS.

The awful accident on board the battleship Iowa last week, may result in the condemnation of all the old 12-inch guns now in use. These embrace some of the largest and most expensive in the navy and to throw them out, would be to throw away a large sum of money. Still if it can be shown that they are a menace to the lives of the officers and men, the quicker they are removed the better. Thus far no satisfactory explanation of the accident to the Iowa's gun has been offered. A searching inquiry has been ordered by the department into every feature connected with the disaster, and it is hoped that when this report comes in it will throw some light on the problem. In the meantime Admiral O'Neil has directed Professor Alger, the powder expert of the navy, to look into the question of the life of modern guns and the influence upon them of the use of smokeless powder of high pressure. If a theory which has been advanced to account for the explosion should prove to be true it would result in consigning to the junk heap all the 12-inch guns of the type that was destroyed the other day. There are twelve of these guns on the Oregon, Indiana and Massachusetts, and their aggregate value is in the neighborhood of $1,000,000.

When these guns were placed in use a quick-firing powder was used. In the use of powder of this sort the entire strain is centered about the chamber, for the powder is burned out almost instantly. The guns of the 12-inch type on the Iowa are made very strongly about the powder magazine where, under the use of quick-burning fuses, the strain is concentrated. Later a slower burning powder has been used in order to develop greater velocity. This is accompanied by graduating the burning of the fuse so that gases will form in the barrel throughout almost its entire length. This naturally distributes the strain along the course of the gun instead of over the chamber, as was the case when the quick-burning fuse was used. Latterly guns have been constructed with a view to withstanding the tremendous pressure on the barrel, which is strongly reinforced right out to the muzzle.

Old guns without this reinforcement will not stand this powder and it ought not be used in them. It is evident that there is negligence somewhere which should be remedied. It is certain that guns made for one kind of powder should not be used with another, if the thing can be avoided.

The Madrid Imparcial takes the Spanish government severely to task for announcing a reduction of $40,000 in the budget of 1904 for public education. This reduces the total appropriation for this purpose to $7,000,000. The Imparcial asserts that the country is already so backward in education and means of culture that all hope of progress has almost disappeared. For this reason the paper says that the appropriation for schools should be greater than that for any other purpose. The percentage of illiteracy in Spain is 70, while the average for Europe ranges from 14 to 25.

The story that Senator George F. Hoar is addicted to the dime novel habit is denied by his son. It did seem a strange story that the venerable Massachusetts senator had formed such a habit.

Some of the Republican politicians have been fearful that the inquiry into the postoffice department scandal would hurt the party. They forget that concealment of scandals is what injures.

Hail to the Minnesota!

HOTEL GOSSIP.

There are bills of green,
And some folks feel blue—
Some yellow backed-up bank notes—
Yellow streaked people, too.
But when you lose a hundred—
Twenties, with the yellow back—
Be careful you remember where,
Or put "coppers" on their track.
—Tales from Alcoholian Nights.

Another "scandal" in high life" is about closed, and another of the gilded younger generation has recovered his money and from an agueal agitation that threatened to relieve him of his shoes for a day or two.

The brutal lobbyists at the Spalding are talking it over and say it is a great joke. Not so. There were some anxious moments for Willie, before he found out whether he would get his hundred back or no, without giving his name. And he was ashamed to give that, because his standing might be undermined, and that would be awful.

One evening late last week there walked into the Spalding office a young man. He had apparently had two beers and been struck with a damp bar cloth, for he was "really, you know, quite soused."

For a while it was not quite certain whether or not everyone in the lobby would know about it, but the young man dispelled all fears on that ground by pulling out his money and slapping it down on the counter or desk, or whatever they call it, and demanding in a loud voice that he wanted it taken care of.

"I can't take care of it," he shouted. "Can't you see how terribly a: I toughly inebriated I are? Take it. Take it."

He then placed his head on the register, hummed a little tune about home and mother, and lulled himself to sleep.

After which he went out to see whether or not he had missed anybody in town up to that time, and if he had, show them the collection he had been making. He read a few more summer drink signs and then all trace was lost for a couple of days.

The day before yesterday a young man with a suicidal expression on his face and his hands in empty trousers pockets, called at the police station.

He told the police that he at one period of his joyous celebration, by which he was celebrating the glorious fact that there was nothing in particular to celebrate, he had possessed five yellow-backed twenties—the kind that are used around the race tracks in large quantities to show to the man who is betting the short end of a 200 to 1 shot.

Now he was puzzled. He was sure he hedn't spent those twenties, for he had them in his hat band, and then he kept an account of what he spent otherwise, anyway.

He told the officers that he had a faint recollection of leaving it in either a bank or a drug store on Superior street, but he couldn't tell when; why, where or how.

Wishing to stimulate the newspaper business, the police told him to advertise in the papers of his loss. The advertisement was inserted in a morning publication, but it produced no desired results.

Then came some active work by the police, for the young man is a "good fellow," and he "needs the money." He wanted the money back, but he did not want to give up his name to publicity. In other words he believed his name worth more than $100, exclusive of its value at the southeast corner of a check.

So yesterday morning two policemen were started west along Superior street, from headquarters, with instructions to go into every business house and make inquiry.

This was necessary, for in the luminous glorification of the hero of the story, he had refused to take a receipt, but wrote his own name for identification.

If he can duplicate that signature he can get the money, but it is doubtful if there is anyone on earth who can make a duplicate of it.

The sturdy minions of the law trudged from door to door, each place receiving no encouragement. At the Spalding a clue was found. The clue was the bundle of the goods with the name on the outside.

The clerk who had received it, believed that the hero was only four flushing when he appeared so frightfully befuddled, paid no attention to the "ads" and that accounted for no reply to the notice.

The police were informed of the presence of the package, and now all that remains is for the young man to come around and sign "J. L——" well it doesn't make any difference what as long as he can duplicate that signature.

Now, just because you know, don't go around tipping this off, because it ain't fair. And then nobody cares only the embarrassed one.

Here's another one that Jim Clute tells about, and says it happened down at Naperville, Ill., where he came from:

There was an old man around the town for a lot of years wi ohad a peg leg, and he used to hobble into all kinds of prominence because he was the only one who was luck enough to have lost a leg.

But he never said a word about it to anybody, and no one in the town knew how he came to lose the leg, and he wouldn't tell a soul. Whenever he was asked about it he made an evasive reply and pegged away.

There was another character in the town, an Irishman, and the most curious man imaginable, or at least in Naperville.

The latter hadn't been in town three days before he wanted to know how his friend lost his leg.

The Irishman began cultivating the society of the one-legged man and they were warm friends for a long time. But whenever the Irishman broached the subject of the leg, the peg leg man would hold his peace and move his piece of limb to another locality.

The nervous and curious little Terrier was getting on the verge of mental collapse and could stand it no longer. He simply had to know. So one day he got the man in the corner and said:

"Now look at here. I'm burning up with curiosity about how you lost your leg. It don't amount to much, but I have got to know. It's bothering me, and if you're a friend of mino you'll tell me."

"You won't tell anyone if I tell you," admonished the man.

"On my honor," sighed the Irishman.

"And you will promise not to ask me one more question if I tell you. I tell one I must insist that no more questions come up. Now if you will promise me that, I will tell."

"I'll promise anything, if you'll tell. I know I've been asking a lot of questions, and if you'll only tell me I'll never ask another question. Now how did you lose your leg?"

"It was bit off," said the member-shy man——.

"But, ——," started the Irishman.

"Not a question. You promised," said the man with the secret and walked away.

The Irishman was in a worse fix than ever, and being unable to endure it any longer left town that night, and never found out how the leg was bitten off or by what.

Local forecast for twenty-four hours, ending at 7 p. m. (local time), Friday: Duluth, West Superior and vicinity—Fair tonight. Partly cloudy Friday with possibly showers. Fresh and brisk northeasterly winds.

H. W. RICHARDSON,
Local Forecast Official

Chicago, April 16.—Forecasts for the twenty-four hours ending at 7 p. m. Friday: Wisconsin and Minnesota—Fair tonight and Friday.

The Dakotas—Partly cloudy tonight and Friday. Warmer in east and central portions tonight.

Upper Lakes—Fresh and brisk northeasterly winds. Fair tonight and Friday.

LAUGHING REMARKS.

Chicago Tribune: Miss Fraish—I wish you would tell me how I can break into society.

Miss Blahzey—I wish you would tell me how I can break out of it!

New York Sun: "You shall never leave this house until you pay what you owe me!" shouted the irate landlord.

"All right," said the boarder, "just put that in writing and I'll sign it."

New York Weekly: First Dame—How do you like the new neighborhood into which you have moved?

Second Dame—It's perfectly lovely. I don't know a soul within a mile!

Atlanta Constitution: "Why, judge," said the colored witness, "though dat boy ain't three foot high, he kin cuss jest ez good ez you kin!"

Chicago Tribune: Visitor—O, what a nice parrot you've got! Pretty Polly! Polly want a cracker?

Parrot—Oh, come off! I'm not as green as I look.

Fourth Estate: An editor of a small American paper recently stated that he had been kissed by one of the most beautiful married women in the town. He promised to tell her name in the first issue of his paper next month. In two weeks the circulation of his newspaper declined. But when he gave the name of his wife he had to leave town.

Philadelphia Press: "My boy tells me you discharged him," said the late office boy's father. "You advertised for a strong boy and I certainly thought he was strong enough."

"Madam," replied the merchant, "he was too strong. He broke all the rules of the office and some of the furniture in the two days he was with us."

Your Uncle's Gold Pile.

St. Louis Globe-Democrat: The total of Uncle Sam's gold funds stands at $832,000,000, an increase of $7,000,000 last month and of $96,000,000 over the showing a year ago. Mr. Bryan must confess to a large capacity for guessing wrong.

Massa Henry's Merriment.

Louisville Courier-Journal: The North Dakota Indian who expressed to President Roosevelt the "hope that he will again be Great Father" could hardly have pleased him better. It is a well known principle of Mr. Roosevelt's philosophy that a man cannot be a father too often.

Good Place to Shun.

Chicago Chronicle: If visitors in Rome these days follow the historic maxim and do as the Romans do they are likely to get shot or find themselves in jail. In some respects the modern Roman plebeian is quite as volcanic and uncertain a proposition as he was when Antony stirred him up.

Come Down of Railroad Officials.

Springfield Republican: As soon as the New Haven railroad officials receded from the "high and mighty" attitude early adopted toward their complaining employes and began to talk and confer with the latter on a common level the the trouble at once began to disappear. So also of the Wabash officials. Now that they have found an appeal to the courts in vain and have begun to confer with the men in a really serious effort to reach a peaceful adjustment the difficulty rapidly yields to treatment. Not always can this method of dealing with dissatisfied employes be made effective within the bounds of reason in averting a strike, but as a rule it will prove so.

Spreading Labor Troubles.

Springfield American: It will be observed that strikes are not confined to America this spring. Rome is in the agonies of a labor trouble, affecting particularly street transportation, while Holland seems entangled in a mesh of strikes that hit various industries besides that of railroading. A decade ago the annual May-day was anticipated with foreboding by employers of labor throughout Europe, since on that day strikes were very liable to break out. But there has been no waiting for May 1 in Europe this year. The world is having an early spring.

Departed Glories.

The family is feelin' blue
Sence Silas cut his hair.
Our hopes have grown distressin' few
Sence Silas cut his hair.
We used to think that he would play
The fiddle extry fine some day;
Seeh dreams have faded clean away
Sence Silas cut his hair.

Nobody asks him to recite
Sence Silas cut his hair.
Nor read the poems he used to write
Sence Silas cut his hair.
His head's an ordinary dome,
Ambition now has ceased to roam,
There ain't no genius in our home
Sence Silas cut his hair.
—Washington Evening Star.

Keeping In Practice.

Philadelphia Press: Senator Clarke, of Arkansas, who has been pummeling a congressman on the streets of Little Rock, evidently has so much pugilistic talent that he does not feel it necessary to keep it all for use in the United States senate.

"Ha! Ha! Ha! The drinks are on you this time," roared Jack Rollins to his old friend and former college mate, Will Walton, as they stood at the bar of the club, just as I entered. Jack was in famous good humor, and laughed heartily as he called me over to tell me what he declared to be the best and most laughable thing he had ever heard in his whole life.

And Jack's life had been almost one round of good and laughable things. One surfeit of what the world, or at least that portion of the world to which Jack belongs, calls fun and pleasure. He had always been well supplied with wealth, which he had used prodigally in pursuit of what a young and handsome fellow regards as "a good time." Even although he had married the reigning beauty of a couple of seasons ago, on his return from a prolonged honeymoon, spent in Europe, he had plunged into much the same sort of life as had earned for him the nickname of "Jack the Lady Killer" in his bachelor days.

His bosom friend and constant companion, Will Walton, was of a much quieter disposition. Of late he had often remonstrated with Jack for his conduct, especially when he had such a sweet young wife awaiting him at home.

This time Jack had got back at Will. Caught the saint red-handed, as he expressed it, and it was with much mirth that he related the cause of his companion's evident discomfiture.

"Greatest joke in the world, old man," said he to me. But I noticed that Will Walton did not seem to enjoy the situation at all. Indeed, he abruptly turned as if about to leave the bar, but Jack took him by the arm and made him listen while he told me the following story:

"I dropped in to see little Dolly Dimples, the pretty girl in the —— theater chorus, this afternoon," he said, "and I found her bubbling over with delight because she had just found on the sidewalk a well-filled pocketbook. There was just thirty-nine dollars and thirty-nine cents in it. Odd sum, wasn't it! Maybe more than ample to pay Dolly's salary for two weeks at the theater. But that's not where the laugh comes in. The joke of the thing is that there was a lot of scraps of paper in the purse, such as a woman loves to carry about with her; and Dolly and I amused ourselves by reading these over:

"Hold on there, Will. You don't escape until I've fully unmasked your villany," said Jack, as his friend again uneasily endeavored to break away.

"What do you think of this saint, this Joseph," he continued. "Look at him. The preacher of morality, the man who lectures me because I'm on speaking terms with two or three footlight fairies!

"Among those scraps of paper was a love letter from him to some unknown charmer. To the owner of the lost pocketbook. It was one of the most sugary things you ever read, my boy. It began, 'My own sweet love. My queen among women.' Ha! ha! Look at him! Why, he's positively blushing!"

This was true. I never saw a man look more embarrassed at a joke against himself than Will Walton did at that moment. With a sickly smile he endeavored to break away, but there was no escape from Jack, who seemed determined to have the full amount of fun to be derived from his friend's evident agony.

"In this note the sly young rascal made an appointment to meet his 'poor, neglected darling,' as he indentedly called the fair unknown, at the same old place,'" roared Jack, digging his victim in the ribs, and laughing boisterously.

"And what do you think he signed himself? 'Ever yours in the links of love and by the law of hearts. Will Walton.' There's poetry for you! By Jove, Will," he siad, "you can't deny that the drinks are on you this time. "Ha! ha! ha!"

The drinks were brought. Will slipped away after paying, leaving his drink untouched.

I was going into the newspaper office where, for my sins, I am compelled to work, an hour later; when a young and lovely woman stepped out of a cab. As I stood aside for her to pass I recognized her. She was Mrs. Jack Rollins. Seeing me, she bowed and stopped, as it seemed, in some embarrassment. Then approaching, after a timid greeting, during which I found myself wondering how a man with so fair a wife could waste his time with such a Dolly Dimples, she flatteringly said:

"Would it be too great a favor to ask you to render me a little assistance? I want to put an advertisement in the newspaper, and I don't quite know how to word it.

"The fact is, I lost my pocketbook this morning. It contained just thirty-nine dollars and thirty-nine cents. I don't care so much about the money as for some—some scraps of paper which—which were in the purse. They are merely little odds and ends, of no value to any one but me, but I am most anxious to get them back again," she said with a bewitching smile.

I advised her not to advertise, and, above all, not to let her husband know of her loss. She looked at me a long time, in silence. Then she murmured, "Thank you. I think perhaps you are right," and went back to her cab.

And I thought—well, I thought that perhaps the drinks were not on Will Walton, after all.

Fell In Love With "Pretty Peggy."

New York Times: All the comforts of home have not been able to keep Grace George from starring—did not even when starring meant to her a succession of dreary one-night stands. "Her Majesty," the first of the stellar ventures, took the young actress into towns of which she had not even heard before.

"My route," she declares, "resembled nothing so much as a schedule of the Long Island railway. Every time a train stopped we would get off and give a performance. Once we got off when it didn't stop—or wouldn't, if it hadn't been flagged.

"The place was Milltown, Mass. It consisted of about thirty houses, bunched together so far from the station that I wondered why someone didn't build another railroad from the station to the village. The company stood on the platform watching the working crew unload our scenery, and in turn was watched by a considerable gathering of yokels. One of these approached me when the red tanks containing gas for the calcium lights were handed out of the car.

"'Say,' he inquired, pointing at these receptacles, 'are ye goin' ter give away sody water with this show?'

"'No,' I replied, 'we're going to give gas—and I think you'll need it!'"

It was in this town that Miss George had the only proposal of marriage she has had since she became Mrs. Brady. It read:

"I seen you tonite and your just my stile. I fell in luve for the first time, if you think you cudd marry me you can. Sined ——. p. s. I got the following: ait-room house, nine akers farm, thirtyto cows, thre horses, a cook."

Miss George actually answered the epistle, thanking the man for the honor conferred, but explaining that she already had a husband.

AFTER THE BATTLE.

Wow!
Look at me now!
I am a candidate, see!
Whee!
Last night
I went right
Throught a grist-
Mill; whist!
Whisper now—
Wow! Wow! Wow!
Who killed Cock Robin?
Who stopped his little throbbin'
Heart like a cop
Would stop
A runaway,
Anyway?
Oh! what a head!
Nearly dead,
But still kicking, see!
I'm a rip-roaring thingamareo
From Ripsville,
Zipsville
County—wow! wow! wow!
My aching brow.
It jumps like thunderation,
And I've got a hallucination
That I'd a won if they hadn't packed
Together and side-tracked
My boom!
Gimme room!
Gimme air!
Gimme something, anywhere!
Gimme a hot towel and a bath,
And a soft answer turneth away wrath—
Gimme a soft answer! I need
Something to satisfy the greed
Of them that swore
I'd get more votes
Than the whole push together,
Whether
Anybody voted or not!
What?
What!
What?
Wow!
Look at me now!
I am the candidate!
I am a disappointed thingumbob!
I got no job!
I'm tired. I'm going to bed;
Oh! my poor head!

His "Character."

New York Sun: There was an opening for a butler in the family where Bridget was cook, and she promptly applied for the position in behalf of her brother.

"I take it that his reputation morally is all that could be expected," suggested madame.

"'Xuse me, but would you min' saying that question over ag'in?" asked Bridget.

"I say," repeated madame, "doubtless he is a man of moral character."

"Sure, mum, sure—but I don't know if I'm after un'erstandin' you."

Madame waxed slightly impatient. "Oh, is he a good man, Bridget?"

"Good, is it? Sure, he could lick th' eyes out of any shpalpeen from Cork to Kilkenny!" was the enthusiastic reply.

A Senator's Grief.

Brooklyn Eagle: Many years ago, before Billy Mason became a United States senator, he was called from Chicago to New York on a very important matter. Just at that time the railroads were having so bitter a rate war that the fare between these two cities was reduced from $22 to $2.

On his way to the train Mason was met by Lorin Collins, then speaker of the Illinois house of representatives.

"What's the matter, Billy?" the speaker asked. "You look as if you had lost your last friend."

"No," said Mason, "I haven't lost my friends, but this infernal railroad war has cost me $20."

"How's that?"

"Why, I've got a pass to New York and it saves me only $2 instead of $22."

Mysterious Disappearance.

A boy stood on the quarter deck
And spied a ten-inch gun,
Which, barren of the slightest speck
Was glittering in the sun.

With curious, eager eyes the boy
Into the gun did peep,
And then he clambered in—oh, joy!
And soon was fast asleep.

For target practice came along
Five jolly tars—oh, ho!
And with a mighty boomty-bong
The ten-inch gun let go.

Now in the town of Aintohum
The papers want to know
In glaring headlines what's become Of little Tommy Snow.

CLEANING DAY

Saturday the Time Fixed For Purification of the City.

Let All Good Citizens Get Busy In Their Back Yards.

Clean up!

Saturday is purification day.

Mayor Hugo has designated it as a day on which all citizens shall join in a general cleaning movement, ridding yards, alleys and vacant lots of garbage, rubbish, rags, soiled paper, tin cans, old shoes, ashes and filth of all descriptions that has acumulated during the winter months.

Every person is invited to join in the purification ceremony and help make a city sanitary and beautiful. Neighborhood cleaning clubs will be organized in certain parts of the city, and in all probability there will be a general and generous response to the mayor's call.

Teachers will dwell on the theme of municipal cleanliness in all the public schools, ministers have preached on it from the pulpits and everything is being done to work up the proper amount of enthusiasm which the occasion seems to merit.

The city officers are hoping that the present fine weather will hold over until Saturday, not only for the cleaning work of that day, but for the reason that it will do much to thaw out piles of garbage still frozen and generally make the work of cleaning up easier and more successful.

The department of public works and the health department have not waited for the general cleaning day, but for the past week have had crews of men busy with shovels and teams and fixing up the streets and alleys in a general way.

ASSOCIATION'S NEW ROOMS

Y. W. C. A. to Move Into Its New Quarters Next Week.

The Young Women's Christian association will move into its new rooms at First avenue west and Superior street next week. The long wait which the association has had for its home is more than made up in the beauty of the rooms. The rooms have been planned especially for the association and for convenience and beauty could not be better.

The front rooms, which are the reception room and secretary's room, are finished in weathered oak and the walls in green. The rest room, the dining room and the small pantries and closets off these rooms are in golden oak with the walls a soft brown. The gymnasium walls are in a soft mauve shade and the wood in golden oak. The lockers and baths are joys to the hearts of the "gym" girls.

The board of directors is planning for the furnishing of the rooms and when completely finished will present an artistic and beautiful appearance. The lunch room will fill the greatest want in the lives of many girls who are forced to take their lunch down town. The lunches will be simple and wholesome.

Beginning with next Monday evening, the gymnasium classes will not meet for one week.

The shorthand class in the educational department will meet tomorrow evening. A number who have not known of the class and who may wish to enter may enter tomorrow evening. By becoming a member of the association a girl may join this class. The instruction in this department is very good and it is expected that much will be accomplished.

CURES WEAK MEN FREE.

Insures Love and a Happy Home For All.

Insures love and a happy home for all. How any man may quickly cure himself after years of suffering from sexual weakness, lost vitality, night losses, varicocele, etc., and enlarge small, weak organs to full size and vigor. Simply send your name and address to Dr. Knapp Medical Co., 78 Hull building, Detroit, Mich., and they will gladly send free receipts with full directions so that any man may easily cure himself at home. This is certainly a most generous offer, and the following extracts taken from their daily mail show what men think of their generosity.

"Dear Sirs—Please accept my sincere thanks for yours of recent date. I have given your treatment a thorough test and the benefit has been extraordinary. It has completely braced me up. I am just as vigorous as when a boy and you cannot realize how happy I am."

"Dear Sirs—Your method worked beautifully. Results were exactly what I needed. Strength and vigor have completely returned and enlargement is entirely satisfactory."

"Dear Sirs—Yours was received and I had no trouble in making use of the receipt as directed, and can truthfully say it is a boon to weak men. I am greatly improved in size, strength and vigor."

All correspondence is strictly confidential mailed in plain, sealed envelope. The receipt is free for the asking and they want every man to have it.

GARFIELD CLUB MEETS.

Will Revise Constitution, Present One Being Outgrown.

At a meeting of the Garfield Republican club in Hunter's hall last evening, it was decided to amend or revise the constitution and by-laws adopted by the club over four years ago. The club started with a small membership, but now, with over 500 members, a revision of its operating rules is found necessary.

The committee on revision consists of J. H. Norton, W. E. Weld, J. O. Molin, H. C. Fulton and C. P. Earl.

The receipts from the Garfield club banquet were $411.50 and the expenditures were but $500, leaving a small balance in the treasury. A vote of thanks was extended to the management of the Spalding. The evening ended with a smaker.

Arts and Crafts Exhibit.

The Arts and Crafts exhibit it attracting much attention this week at the club room of the library. One interesting exhibit is that of some hand embroidery. The work was done by a nun in the Good Shepherds' convent at Chicago, Sister St. Joseph, and the work is exquisite. The pieces shown are from the trousseau of a Duluth woman which was made by this sister, who has not left the convent for eighteen years. The waist of the wedding gown in white crepe de chene, which is most bautifully smocked in white silk and a few of the handkerchiefs in beautiful drawn work are all that are shown. The work is attracting much attention because of its exquisite daintiness.

This evening C. H. Bagley, of Day & Co., will exhibit a collection of Mississippi and Wisconsin river pearls and will give a short explanatory talk. This exhibit will be shown for tonight alone.

UNEASINESS IN TURKEY

Over Report of General Bulgarian Uprising on April 20.

Constantinople, April 16.—It is now understood that the commission sent by the sultan to appease the Albanians, failed to secure their adhesion to the reform scheme of the powers, except on the condition that the Albanians be allowed to choose their own governors and civil officials and that other minor concessions be granted them that the porte has decided to establish a military camp at Berizovitch and has ordered nineteen batallions to concentrate there in view of possible eventual operations against the Albanians.

Great uneasiness has been aroused in Turkish government circles by the reports that the Bulgarians in Macedonia are preparing for a general rising April 20, the second day of the Easter festivities of the orthodox church.

FAMINE IN FINLAND

Pictures of Misery That Are Almost Beyond Comprehension.

Sufferings of Peasants Living Among Snow-Clad Hills.

Uleaborg, Northern Finland, March 20.—Out of the great forest regions of Northern Finland tonight came the members of the Christian Herald Finland relief expedition, including Dr. Louis Klopsch of New York and the writer. They struck the railroad, at a little town called Leminka, about an hour's ride south of Uleaborg, and were welcomed to this most northerly city in the world by virtually its entire populace. At Leminka and at every station on the short journey to Uleaborg, the people massed and in song and oratory and gifts of flowers expressed their gratitude through Dr. Klopsch for the aid sent from America to their famine-stricken people.

It is possible that the name and existence of this city lying on the edge of the Arctic circle is wholly unknown to American readers. Uleaborg, nevertheless, has existed for 400 years, and is today one of the chief cities of the Russian empire, having a hotel as good as any in St. Petersburg, Moscow or Helsingfors, together with all the appointments and even luxuries of people of education and refinement.

From Uleaborg the American relief party will proceed northward to the terminus of the railway at Kemi, and thence by sled to Tornea, the frontier town, where they will enter Northern Sweden.

The journey accomplished by this expedition across Northern Finland, is cited by the Finnish and Swedish press as the most remarkable in all history of the grand duchy; first because the party included the first Americans to traverse this section in winter, and second because of the heart of hope given to the Finnish people, who sigh and sigh for political liberty, by the interest taken in their home troubles by free America.

The members of the relief party declare that the trip through Santa Claus-land was like the play of Hamlet without the prince of Denmark. For there was the setting—the endless reaches of ice fields, the reindeer and the sleds, and the snow shrowded trees, but no Santa Claus and the abundance which the name represents. In every village and in every lonely hut,—and even in farm houses—there was everywhere evidence of destitution and genuine suffering from lack of the elements of sustenance.

It would seem that the pictures of misery presented in previous reports could not be surpassed. But there are thousands of homes in Northern Finland wherein the gure of famine has sat so long at the family board gripping at the very throats of parents and children that the resulting state of suffering is incomprehensible to the mind of the prosperous. The story of one such home, of the many that we have visited, may serve to convey an idea of the conditions existing in all. It was a rude hut, called by courtesy a cottage. Here we found the entire family at home. The father, an intelligent peasant who had had schooling and could read and write and figure, was splitting wood. The mother carrying a year-old child in her arms and bearing also evidence of approaching maternity, was heating the salt water wherein to dip the black bread for the evening meal. Parenthically, conceive if you can the manner of child brought into the world under such conditions. This mother had eaten nothing but black bread and frozen potatoes for months. For the child it might be possible to secure a little sour milk from a neighbor—perhaps. A single window not larger than two loaves of hunger bread admitted light to this home. On a bench by the window sat three non-descript children. On a low stool sat another child, a girl peeling potatoes. The potatoes were frozen, their sustenance gone, but never mind, they were something to put into the stomach. So the little girl peeled and peeled, taking no notice of our entrance, as if she had peeled potatoes all her life and would continue peeling for years to come. It was upon this girl that our eyes, our interest, our sympathy, was focussed. Was she 8 years old, or 12, or 15? It was hard to say. Here was such a tiny body with such an old sad face. She embodied in our eyes the misery of the entire family. She looked up at us a moment with her great eyes, just a glimpse, in which she seemed to assert her belief that we were new apparitions, wholly apart from any connection with her life, that we were beings so beyond the pale of her comprehension as to require none of her attention. Without the least sign of emotion, without a movement of the body save the mechanical scraping of the jackets from the frozen potatoes, she surveyed us for a moment and then again lowered her eyes to what seemed to her life work. Here was an unconscious resignation to a condition, a patience so thoroughly sublime, that we removed our caps as of one accord and stood silent in sheer respect to a personification of the suffering of all the North land. Incidentally should be added, that this living symbol of a stricken people, bore prominently one little touch of humanity that touched our hearts more deeply than all else, because, perhaps, it was more definite. Her right cheek was swollen, she had been suffering for days with a violent toothache. Here was the intimate one touch of humanity of the kind that helps to make all the world akin. Deep down in his pocket sunk the hand of the head of our party and out came that wherewithal in abundance unknown for many a day in that home. In another moment the mother held the fortune in her own hands as she looked at her wealth, the great burden of misery fell away from her wearied soul, she wept. Silently the father came and shook us by the hand, the Finn's most profound form of gratitude.

I have still another picture, darkest of all. It typifies the suffering of those peasants who live far from the highways, in almost inaccessible nooks among the snow-clad hills. To reach one such peasant home required a half day's tollsome travel; first by horse, which, up to his flanks in snow, dragged us to the edge of a frozen lake; then over this still softer covering of snow on skis to our destination. We found in this home a family of fifteen members, all living, sleeping, eating in one room, three generations being represented. The grandparents were both idle and lying in rags on heaps of straw. They had had no medical attendance, for the doctors were far away and there were only two physicians, anyway, for a great district of 500 population. Each of the two sons of these old people lived with his wife and children under the roof of what was to them the old homestead. And here we chanced for the first time upon a family subsisting actually on hunger bread. Concerning this hunger bread, much has already been printed in American newspapers. Intimate acquaintance with this unhealthy food makes it possible for me to add a word or two concerning it. In the first place it would seem unfit even for the stomach of the common goat. It is made of a little rye flour, and great deal of straw and birch, or pine bark. Of course there is nothing of nutrition value in straw, and the amount of nutrition contained in birch or pine bark is so small that one must eat a pound of bark to get one grain of sap. The peasants told us that the straw and bark are mixed with the rye flour merely for the sake of putting something into the stomach, on the plan adopted by the shipwrecked when they resort to a diet of boots rather than suffer the pangs resulting from an utterly empty stomach. It is hardly necessary to add that all who subsist for many days on hunger bread, suffer excruciating pains, followed by fever, and, if the diet is not changed, by death. When we entered the hut now under consideration, several members of the family were scraping the white of the bark from twigs, while others baked bark in an oven preparatory to grinding it into meal. Every morning in this solitary cottage, far from neighbors and the great world, family prayers were offered, the head of the house repeating "Give us this day our daily bread." We carried away the little store of "daily bread," the only kind that had been vouchsafed them for weeks, and left in exchange a great bag full of good bread. I have heard since that the operations of the local committees have reached out to all the famine stricken in the remote parts, so that the necessity for hunger bread has now become the exception rather than the rule, even in the most isolated districts.

SWIFT CURE OF MORPHINISM

Used In the New York State Reformatory For Women.

New York, April 16.—Dr. Margaret S. Halleck, of the New York State Reformatory for Women, reports in the Medical Record her success in treating victims of the morphine habit in cases where she cut off the drug at once. Not long ago medicine taught that the morphine habit must be broken off by degrees and that the cure was always attended with untold suffering, and current text books still teach that severe symptoms will follow the sudden withdrawal of the drug.

The first case Dr. Halleck treated was an American girl, 24 years old, who said she had contracted the habit while under a doctor's care for a broken leg. The patient was taking six to ten grains of morphine daily besides smoking a dollar's worth of crude opium. On the day that she was deprived of the drug she was seized with much pain. Her pupils were dilated, she vomited, was extremely nervous and said that she ached all over. The doctor administered one-sixtieth of a grain of strychnine sulphate, one two-hundredth of a grain of hyoscine hydrobromate and one-fourth of a grain of codeine sulphate. This is the prescription she used in other cases, except that sometimes she doubled the quantity of hyoscine hydrobromate.

Next morning the patient reported that she had not slept well, but vomiting had ceased and she was free from pain. The same dose was administered morning and evening for a week. At the end of that time the patient left her room and did light housework. She was still somewhat nerveous, but her pains were gone and her appetite good. Strychnine in quantities of one-sixtieth to one-thirtieth of a grain was continued for a week and then all treatment was stopped. In six months she gained thirty pounds. She has been out of the reformatory now for eight months and has not relapsed.

The second case was a German girl, 23 years old, who, when she was 15 years old, was induced by an older girl to go to live in Chinatown. She learned to smoke opium and used it daily for eight years. When she came under the doctor's care she was smoking from $1 to $1.50 worth of opium a day. She was emaciated, her pulse was slow, she had no appetite and she was subject to muscular tremors. She received the same treatment as the first patient for four days and the strychnine was continued for a while. Her weight went from 109 to 142 pounds. She is, Dr. Halleck reports, a good member of society.

An American girl, 23 years old, who had used morphine in increasing doses for ten years, was the third patient. Today she is the picture of health and weighs 190 pounds. She says she has no desire for morphine, her feeling is rather an aversion.

The fourth was a girl of 24, who had taken morphine hypodermically for seven years. Her daily dose being from fifty to sixty grains; in addition she took cocaine. She entered Bellevue three times to be cured of her habit, but relapsed each time. She weighed only ninety pounds and her body was covered with lesions left by the hypodermic. After ten days' treatment she received no more medicine. She gained over twenty pounds in six weeks.

None of these patients received any morphine from the time the treatment was begun and each professes to have lost all craving for it. Dr. Halleck says the combination of strychnine, hyoscine and codeine form a perfect antidote.

ORDER IN FINLAND.

Measures Prescribed In a Decree Just Issued.

Helsingfors, Finland, April 16.—A decree has been published here prescribing measures for the maintenance of order in Finland. Under this decree the governor general is empowered when he deems it necessary to close hotels, shops and factories, to prohibit meetings, dissolve private associations and expel from Finland all persons who are considered undesirable. Expulsions, however, except in cases which do not permit of delay, must receive imperial sanction. Persons expelled may be ordered to reside in certain places within the empire. The decree becomes operative in three years.

PIN TAKEN FROM STOMACH.

Albany, N. Y., April 16.—A surgical operation has been performed on a child at the hospital for the removal of a pin from the stomach. The child, a ten months old baby, was placed under the X-ray and the pin was found in the throat. The surgeons forced it into the stomach and then that organ was opened and the pin removed.

THE CELTIC REPAIRED.

Liverpool, April 16.—The White Star liner Celtic, which collided in the Mersey yesterday wit hthe British steamer Heathmore and had a small hole stove in her port side amidships, has had the damage repaired and today proceeded on her voyage to New York.

STIRLING LEAVES NAVY YARD.

Seattle, April 16.—Rear Admiral Stirling has formally retired from the Puget Sound navy yard, being temporarily succeeded as commandant by Captain Bleckeer, U. S. N. Admiral Stirling proceeded at once to the battleship Wisconsin, which will be his flagship while he is in command of the Philippine gun boat fleet. The Wisconsin sails in about two weeks.

SOME OF THE WONDERS OF YELLOWSTONE PARK, WHICH THE PRESIDENT IS VISITING.

YELLOWSTONE PARK covers about 3,000 square miles and is filled with wonders—picturesque water falls, mammoth geysers that spout boiling water, boiling springs, great terraces of matters thrown up by the geysers, towering mountains and herds of buffalo and elk. Fishermen, standing on a hot spring cone in one of the park's lakes, catch fish in the lake and then cook them on the hook in the spring that boils within the cone beneath their feet.

DULUTH'S FUTURE

M. H. Gerry Thinks Water Power Means Great Things.

Line of Industrial Development Is Impossible to Predict.

M. H. Gerry, Jr., of Helena, Mont., consulting electrical engineer of the Great Northern Power company, who is here this week consulting with the resident engineers of the company regarding various phases of the development of the power on the St. Louis river, is as enthusiastic over the Duluth water power proposition as is any Duluthian. By the Duluth water power proposition it should be understood, too, that not only the St. Louis river proposition between Thomson and Fond du Lac is meant, but the project back of Duluth, under which the waters will one day be brought to the brow of the hill and dropped to the bay near Garfield avenue. That proposition is as much alive as ever and is regarded by the company and its engineers as much the greater of the two. Its building is certain when the capacity of the St. Louis river power has been reached.

The company of which Mr. Gerry is chief engineer and general manager, is the Missouri River Power company in Montana. It furnishes power for the cities of Helena and Butte and for the mines, but beside the Duluth power it is a small affair, for it has only 12,000 horse power.

"The Duluth water power proposition is a totally different one from ours," says Mr. Gerry. "This is an immense affair, one that requires a large expenditure of money to develop and that must sell its power in large quantities. It must be a wholesale power plant, selling its power in wholesale lots, not depending on retailing it. It must seek large consumers.

"Duluth will develop wonderfully in an industrial way upon the introduction of this cheap power. Manufacturers everywhere are looking for cheap power and especially for electrical power, for its advantages over others is great, the manner of its application and use being so economical. The rates made by this company will certainly be attractive to industrial enterprises.

"Duluth is finely situated for such an enterprise as this. There is already in use a sufficient quantity of power to give the project a fine basis and the location of the place is such as to readily attract new enterprises, for here is already established the great distributing point for the West with an immense territory tributary to and drawing upon it. Cheap power alone is a great attraction to industrial enterprises and will draw them to places which would not otherwise be considered as locations, but Duluth not only will have the cheap power, but has a location that is naturally attractive. Duluth has reason to look for great things when this power is developed.

"As to just what line of industrial development you should look for it is impossible to say. You cannot map out now what it will be or what you may want it to be. It may be something you do not in the least suspect at this time. It may be something you never heard of before. Take the Niagara power. All along the river are great industries that have sprung up suddenly almost like mushrooms and there are industries the advent of which was not dreamt of when the power development was begun. Enormous quantities of power are consumed and yet the manufacteries of New England and other portions of the East that one might expect to see hurt have not been affected. Instead of their lines being cut into, we find new things made, carborundum, aluminum, carbides and other things. The industries using air as their raw material and extracting their product from it by the use of electricity are examples of the unexpected that has come to Niagara and when Duluth has its power something as wonderful may come here. No man knows now what may come.

"The manufacture of fertilizing products is a considerable industry at Niagara and why should not such products as that find a great field in the West? We have great agricultural fields west of here, but we do not yet know the possibilities of the soil and what it can be made to produce.

"Yes, Duluth has reason to hope for much and I believe the day will come when all of the capacity of the immense water power that is available here will be none too much for the demands made upon it."

Senior Dramatic Entertainment.

Two funny, fanciful farce comedies, "Lamb and Mint Sauce" and "A Regular Fix," by high school seniors. At Assembly hall, Saturday, April 18. Management of A. F. M. Custance. Admission 25 cents.

THE STAGE.

Tonight the Ferris Comedians will present the beautiful costume play, "A Celebrated Case." Especial care has been taken as to the costuming, and something excellent in that line is promised for tonight. "A Celebrated Case" is a French military drama, and had a long run in New York and London. It will be given in its entirety at the Metropolitan. The specialties will also be completely changed. Great preparations are going on for the indoor circus to be given by the Ferris Comedians in addition to the regular plays for a week in the near future. The much-talked of bread contest will take place next Wednesday afternoon.

"Arizona", the Augustus Thomas play of which the public seems never to tire, will be the attraction at the Lyceum tomorrow and Saturday evenings and Saturday afternoon. The story of "Arizona" is interesting throughout the entire four acts and there is not a moment from the rise to the fall of the curtain when the interest of the spectator flags. The characters are all taken from life and are a correct imitation of the people who go to make up the inhabitants of the state from which the play takes its name. The scenes and incidents are laid in the beautiful Aravaipa Valley, the center of interest being the ranch of a well-to-do cattleman and the home of Col. Bonham and the Eleventh United States cavalry at Fort Grant.

LABORER HURT.

Don Pedro Hit By Elevator at a New Building.

Don Pedro, a laborer at the building being erected for the Duluth Paper and Stationery company at 26 West Michigan street, was caught under the elevator yesterday afternoon and seriously injured, his nose being broken, face mutilated and eyes injured.

Pedro was engaged in hoisting gravel to the roofers on top of the building and was bending over when the elevator suddenly descended and caught him. His head was so securely held that the elevator had to be raised to release it.

While going to the scene of the accident the ambulance from St. Mary's hospital failed to make the corner when the driver attempted to turn down First avenue west, and the rig collided with a telephone pole, breaking the tongue and causing a delay in service until another ambulance could be sent for.

A LACROSSE CLUB.

Organization Is Completed—M. S. Burrows Is President.

A lacrosse club was organized last evening at 205 West Superior street, with the following officers: President, M. S. Burrows; vice president, Archi Kenney; secretary, A. Cargill; captain and coach, William Cattenach; manager, Jack Foreman; field captain, James Grant.

The new club has ordered sticks from Port Arthur, and another meeting will be held Saturday evening, when a name will be selected. The Duluth club expects to play several games this coming season with lacrosse clubs from outside cities. A letter has been received from W. J. Elliott, secretary of the St. Paul team, asking for a game. Houghton has a club and is one of the possibilities that the Duluth aggregation may tackle. Arrangements are under way to get a game here on Decoration day.

Seeks a Divorce.

Mrs. Roseanna A. McLay has begun an action in district court for a divorce from Kenneth McLay. In her bill of complaint the plaintiff says that she married the defendant in Sault Ste. Marie, Mich., March 23, 1893, and that they moved to Houghton, where their troubles began. She alleges cruel and inhuman treatment, including blows, neck twisting, etc., and states a specific assault when she was struck by a tin dipper. It is further alleged that the plaintiff was deserted in August, 1899. Plaintiff is 24 and defendant 31 years of age.

LINEMEN STRIKE.

Omaha, April 15.—About 200 linemen employed by the Nebraska Telephone company and the Western Union and Postal Telegraph companies in this city and throughout the state, went on strike today for an increase of wages and a recognition of their union. Construction on the new lines of the Postal Telegraph company along its transcontinental route is at a standstill.

HOME NEWS

Of Interest to Everyone In Duluth.

In every newspaper in he country you will read statements made by people living in out-of-the-way places, who are supposed to have been cured or derived great benefit from some wonderful remedy or "cure all." But here in Duluth we only publish statements made by Duluth people—the testimony of your friends, neighbors and fellow-townsmen.

Engineer James Root, better known as "Jim" Root, the heroic engineer of the St. Paul & Duluth limited, says: "For many years I was troubled with my kidneys and had pains and soreness across the small of my back. The kidney secretions at times presented an unnatural appearance, and I was run down. I saw Doan's Kidney Pills advertised and procured a box at W. A. Abbetts' drug store and used them. From the prompt and satisfactory results obtained I can speak of them only in the highest terms of praise. Doan's Kidney Pills are all and more than they are represented to be. I can also say a word for Doan's Ointment. I used it for itching hemorrhoids and it gave me prompt and permanent relief."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-Milburn Co., Buffalo, N. Y., sole agents for the United States.

DULLNESS IN IRON

Little Is Being Done For Second Half of Year.

Consumption Continues on a Very Large Scale, However.

New York, April 16.—The Iron Age, in its review of the iron and steel market, says: Surface indications are adverse in the foundry iron markets of the country, and there is a weak feeling. Sales are largely confined to spot lots and to early delivery, little being done for the second half. The volume of these transactions is large, considering the circumstances. The fact remains that the consumption continues on a very large scale, and that our increasing production will be compensated for to a considerable extent by the cutting off of imports. Our prices for domestic iron now have reached a figure where it is unprofitable to import foreign iron for distribution in small lots or to ship larger blocks any distance into the interior. It is likely, too, that American furnacemen will in the future meet foreign prices on large transactions in coast markets.

In the Central West practically the whole foundry industry was covered for the first half of this year late in 1902, and relatively few of the foundries have taken care of their requirements for the second half. This the course of events has justified. The fact that leading Southern makers have openly established a price of $1 per ton lower for Eastern business than for sales to consumers west of Pittsburg does not impress consumers favorably. They argue that they are entitled to as low a price as is made in other sections of the country, and will probably wait until they are satisfied that they are not being discriminated against.

The steel situation is peculiar in that it looks as if our producing capacity is inadequate. It is understood that the pressure upon the steel works of the leading interest is such that some of the plants are facing the alternative of switching off from steel rail manufacture to the rolling of billets. The pressure for deliveries of finished material as the spring trade opens and as outdoor construction work becomes general puts exceptional pressure upon all the plants.

Although a little more billet-producing capacity is in sight from Eastern steel works, the opportunities for importing foreign steel continue, and some round sales have been made of slabs, billets and sheet bars.

The structural trade is somewhat hampered by labor troubles, but a very large tonnage is in sight.

The bar trade is rather quiet. The Western makers of steel bars have reaffirmed prices, as have also the manufacturers of shafting.

BENEFITS OF KINDERGARTEN

Are Made Clear By Commissioner of Education Harris.

Pittsburg, Pa., April 16.—At 8 o'clock last evening, in Carnegie Music hall, Edwin H. Lemare gave a brief organ recital at the session of the International Kindergarten union, which was followed by addresses by Dr. N. C. Schaeffer, state superintendent of education, and Dr. William T. Harris, United States commissioner of education. Mr. Harris said in part:

There are two classes of children in our American community which need the kindergarten more than other children. The first class includes the children of the slums and the children of three weakling classes of society, the weakling in thrift, the moral weakling and the weakling in intelligence. The kindergarten with its powerful system of nurture makes easy the path of one of these weaklings to come to self-respect, to come to moral ideals, to industry, and to perseverance which conquers its natural obstacles. Another important work for the kindergarten is to prepare the precocious children who are born into families of the newly rich for a life helpful to civilization. The fathers and mothers of such children rise from comparatively low positions in society to high and influential positions. But in the change of social position the child of the family suffers. The child is apt to become willful and capricious, slothful and uncertain in his habits of study, and altogether an unmanageable pupil in school. Later on he comes to ruin in his early manhood. The kindergarten is exactly adapted to the training by mild means of such children into a helpful interest in civilization. The kindergarten does well when it teaches gifts and occupations, for it deals with the external world and helps the child to the conquest of nature. But the kindergarten is a much higher thing, as it deals with plays and games, because these are thoroughly humane in their nature and offer in a symbolic form the treasures of experience of the human race in solving the problem of life. They make children wise without the conceit of wisdom.

The child from 4 to 6, the proper age for the kindergarten, has not yet hardened himself through the influence of the slums or through the influence of a too indulgent education in the nursery so as to be beyond hope of cure through the school. The kindergarten is, for this reason, the most promising of all the instrumentalities used to overcome the influence of the slums which exist in our cities.

As a matter of self-preservation each city should organize a strong force of kindergartens throughout all precincts where the weaklings of society come together.

Froebel's kindergarten is a great blessing to civilization, and his name should be celebrated as one of the great apostles of humanity.

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

Eric Heikala Bound Over on the Charge of Murder.

Houghton, Mich., April 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Eric Heikala was bound over to the circuit court in $5000 bonds on the charge of shooting his brother-in-law, Jacob Pekola with intent to commit murder. Heikala could not furnish bail and will remain in jail pending his trial. Pekola lies in a critical condition at the Atlantic location with a bullet in his lung. Attending physicians say that recovery is doubtful, and if he dies Heikala will have to stand trial on charge of murder.

Work on the extension of the Copper Range railway from Houghton to Calumet will be finished in time to permit the first passenger train to run about May 1. All that remains of the construction work is the ballasting, and that is being rushed by a large force of men. Satisfactory freight rates have already been established. The Copper Range connects with the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul at Mass City, and with the Flint & Pere Marquette at Milwaukee, and also has connections with all points East, West, North and South. The road was built principally to haul the rock from the south range mines to the mills and smelters, and is a constituent company of the Copper Range Consolidated Mining company, of which William A. Paine, of Boston, is the president.

Lake Linden—The Houghton County Street Railway company will soon open negotiations with the council for the right-of-way through Lake Linden. The company was refused the last fall, the council demanding that it pay the whole cost of removing the snow from the streets used by it.

Ontonagon—One of the interesting factors in the three-cornered fight for the office of county commissioner of schools of Ontonagon county was the candidacy of Miss Ella A. Chamberlain, of Ontonagon, who defeated A. C. Adair, of Rickland, by four votes. She is the first woman to hold the position.

Dollar Bay—The Dollar Bay Land and Improvement company will place on exhibition a fire tug that it fitted out during the winter. The boat is designed to protect property of the Dollar Bay concern, but will also be at the disposal of other towns along Portage and Torch lakes in emergencies.

Calumet—John Goddard, timber boss at the Trimountain mine, was found dead on the county road, near Baltic mine. There were no marks of violence on the body, and death evidently resulted from heart failure. Goddard left a wife and several children.

Hancock—Frank Blackwell, a graduate at the Michigan college of mines, has been appointed superintendent of the Northwestern Development syndicate's mines in British Columbia, vice H. Z. Brock, dismissed. Mr. Blackwell will leave April 20.

MRS. LYDICK'S BRIDLE.

Only Woman Harness Maker's Present For Roosevelt.

Hartington, Neb., April 16.—Mrs. Mary D. Lydick, who says she is the only woman harnessmaker in the world, has completed after months of work a bridle which she will present to President Roosevelt. It is made of russet leather, and is complete with martingale, silver port bit, United States rosettes and spots, nickel buckles and stitched with silk and linen.

ALEXIS GOES ABROAD.

St. Petersburg, April 16.—The Grand Duke Alexis, head of the Russian navy, is suffering from nephritis and has been ordered abroad. It is expected that his successor will be the Grand Duke Alexander Michaelovich, husband of the Grand Duchess Xenia.

BOBRIKOFF TO RESIGN.

St. Petersburg, April 16.—It is announced that Gen. Bobrikoff will shortly resign the governor generalship of Finland. It is probable that his successor will be Prince Oblensky, governor of Kharkof.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

Ministers Take Part In Hot Springs Municipal Contest.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Hot Springs.—The city election will be held April 21, and already there are two tickets in the field. No party lines are drawn. The ministers are asking the citizens to support their friends who stand for the enforcement of state and municipal laws. There is also something of a strife over the election of the school board. One of the ministers is a candidate for aldermen and says he proposes to find out just what the sentiment is relative to the enforcement of the law.

Word has been received of the death of Mrs. J. I. Sanford at Denver, as the result of an operation for the removal of a tumor. Mrs. Sanford was the wife of a former pastor of the Congregational church of this place. They came here from Minneapolis.

Deadwood.—The Deadwood Hotel company has taken steps towards the furnishing of the Franklin, and has awarded the contract to an eastern firm.

Word has been received of the death of Miss Helen Florence Keith, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. J. G. Keith, at their home, near Hot Springs.

Lead.—Colonel A. Patriquin, assistant adjutant general, has recommended that troop A, calvary, at Deadwood, be changed to infantry and transferred to the Third regiment. Adjutant General Conklin approves of the change, and it is likely it will be made as quickly as possible.

Centerville—An average of about twenty cars of stock is being shipped from this place every Saturday. Seventy-five cars were shipped in March. It is said this point is to become a division station, making three division from Eagle Grove, Iowa, to Huron, in place of two.

Sioux Falls—The United States grand jury returned thirteen indictments, one of them against Adam Jensh, a farmer living near Lake Preston, the charge being that he mailed an objectionable letter and drawing to the daughter of a neighboring farmer.

Aurora—Mrs. H. Fort, recently appointed substitute carrier on one of the routes out of this place is the only woman rural mail carrier in the state.

Lake Campbell—It has been discovered that all the fish in the lake near here, which gives this place its name, are dead.

Aberdeen—No socialists outside of Aberdeen appeared Wednesday for the state referendum convention, which was called to order by S. H. Cranmer. No other socialist being present, he acted as chairman, secretary and delegates, and adjourned until the middle of the afternoon.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Fargo—The Commercial club has adopted resolutions urging the government officials to proceed with the work of the preliminary survey in the Red River valley to prevent a recurrence of floods. The members of congress from North and South Dakota and Minnesota secured an appropriation of $10,000 for the purpose, but the officials have made an effort to have the work done.

An effort will be made to secure the erection of several new residences by local capitalists. The matter has been taken up by the Commercial club on complaint of persons who would like to make their permanent homes here, but are unable to find houses.

Devils Lake—Mercy hospital was formally opened Tuesday, dedicatory services being conducted by Bishop Shanley, of Fargo, assisted by twenty priests. A reception followed, attended by over 500 people. The hospital is built of pressed brick, cream colored. It is three stories high, besides basement, and is 50x100 feet in size. It cost $45,000, most of the money being furnished by the Sisters of Mercy, the remainder being private contributions. There are over fifty private rooms, and four large wards—a fever and surgical ward each for men and women. The hospital will be under the charge of Mother Genevieve, to whom the credit for completing it is due.

NO WORD YET

Of the President's Arrival at Fort Yellowstone.

Cinnabar, Mont., April 16.—Secretary Loeb has not yet received word of President Roosevelt's arrival at Fort Yellowstone. He expects, however, to hear from him during the day. The president has accepted an invitation to lay the cornerstone of the new gate at the northern boundary of the Yellowstone park. The ceremony will occur during the afternoon of April 24, the last day of the president's stay here, and will be conducted by the grand lodge of Masons of Montana.

RIGHT MAN LYNCHED.

Bullet In Negro's Leg Makes Identity Complete.

Joplin, Mo., April 16.—After the coroner's inquest the body of Thomas Gillard, the young negro lynched last night, was buried early today at the city's expense. The bullet in Gillard's leg corresponded with that missing from Officer Leslie's revolver, which fact makes the identity of the dead man sure. There was no excitement today and all fear of further trouble in the negro district has been dispelled.

GAME AGAIN POSTPONED.

Philadelphia, April 16.—The opening game of the National League baseball season in Philadelphia, between Boston and Philadelphia postponed yesterday on account of rain was again deferred today because of the unfavorable condition of the grounds.

MULEY ARAFA CAPTURED.

Madrid, April 16.—People who have arrived at Tangier, Morocco, report that the rebels have captured Muley Arafa, the sultan's uncle. They add that Arafa, afterwards on the promise of being appointed to an important post gave his adhesion to the pretender.

THE STRAY DOGS

The Work Done By the S. P. C. A. In New York.

An Authentic Case of Hydrophobia Is Exceedingly Rare.

New York, April 16.—Many complaints have recently been received by the board of health in regard to the great number of homeless, strayed and abandoned dogs which are allowed to run loose on the city streets. Some of the dogs are styled as "ferocious," "vicious" and a menace to the public safety and health. Sometimes the health department is informed of a "mad dog scare," and that several persons have been bitten. How many such cases actually occur is hard to determine, but the fact that they do happen is reason enough to make a great many persons alarmed.

Health Commissioner Lederle said to a Sun reporter that he was gathering facts upon the subject and was going to have a conference with President Haines, of the Society For the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals. The view expressed by President Haines as to the danger which the dogs afford differs from opinions that were gathered in the health department. The matter of complaints of this nature was brought to the attention of the Society For the Prevention of Cruelty to Animals, and President Haines expressed himself upon the subject in a reassuring manner. He said:

"All this talk of mad dogs and loose dogs is an annual inconsistency. It comes and goes with the seasons, and so do the homeless dogs; that is, the very few of them which we are unable to capture and retain or dispense with. I fear as long as we have such a thing as a Pasteur institute we will have mad dog scares and reported cases of hydrophobia. Not one case out of a hundred of the so-called mad dog is really a dog with the rabies, and the reported cases of deaths as a result of actual hydrophobia is exceedingly rare. There is much more danger of blood poisoning from the scratch of a cat than from the bite of a dog, and where persons die as a consequence of such injuries it is almost invariably from blood poisoning and from no other cause.

"Since our society, in July, 1894, has had sole charge of humanely destroying the surplus dogs of the city our men have taken and disposed of 218,612 dogs, and in handling them have often been bitten. We have had cases among our men where the bones have been crushed by a dog bite and hands have been lacerated innumerable times, but never have we had a case of hydrophobia or a man die of blood poisoning. A dog with rabies does not run around in a circle, froth at the mouth, and rush about biting people, as is sometimes popularly believed; quite the contrary, he becomes morbid, sulks away by himself and wants to be let entirely alone. He will not bite unless he is molested.

"But I am not defending the bad dog. I think he is a great public pestilence and the S. P. C. A. are doing all in their power to rid the city of such nuisances. We are better equipped for such work today than ever before, and our usefulness is continually increasing. In 1901 the society destroyed 25,388 dogs; in 1902 the number reached 29,648, an increase of over 15 per cent, and this year we are doing still better. This includes only loose and homeless dogs, and not those we have disposed of at the request of their owners. Look at the figures for three days of this week: On the 16th, seventy-six homeless and neglected dogs picked up; on the 17th, eighty-two and on the 18th eighty three. This is 50 per cent more than the average last year, and stands for more than 100 per cent more work, for the number of loose dogs is decreasing each year, and our working facilities grow better.

"Most of these dogs are found in the outlying districts of the city, in Queens, the borough of Brooklyn and Richmond. There are very few stray dogs to be found in the central part of the city."

Mr. Haines said that the work of dealing with the diseased, starving and homeless dogs and cats had become greatly handicaped in recent years by the custom of the society in calling for and removing cats and dogs from owners and houses where they were not wanted. Some days 300 or 400 such calls would come in and be met by the society. This work required very many long trips, and became such a source of expense to the society that it was discontinued last fall. The discontinuance of this custom allows the society to expend much more money and pursue a system of very much broader and more thorough application to the work of dispensing with the homeless animals on the city's streets.

During the year 1902 the society prosecuted in the courts 520 cases of cruelty to animals; through its interference 4539 disabled animals were temporarily suspended from labor; 3801 horses, mules and other large animals disabled past recovery, were humanely destroyed and 509 disabled horses and other large animals were removed from the streets in the society's ambulances; 29,648 diseased, starving and homeless dogs and 61,000 cats were taken to the shelters; 1846 lost dogs were restored to their owners and homes were found for 37 dogs and 242 cats. During the year 1902 53,093 cases were investigated.

"In addition to its permanent headquarters, Madison avenue and Twenty-sixth street, the society maintains an ambulance house at 111 East Twenty-second street, and a shelter for animals at One Hundred and Second street and East river, New York; an office at 13 Willoughby street, an ambulance house at 1140 Lawrence street, and a shelter for animals at the corner of Malhone street and Nostrand avenue, Brooklyn, and a shelter for animals on Wave street, Stapleton, borough of Richmond. In the greater city of New York it maintains a uniformed force of twenty salaried special agents. In the prosecution of its work, the society has in constant use three large ambulances for the removal of disabled animals and eight smaller ambulances, two tricycle carriers and two motor ambulances especially constructed for the removal of sick, injured and homeless small animals. Twenty horses and a large corps of men are employed in this service. Each man is under a $1000 bond."

Dealers are especially invited to visit our establishment and inspect as complete a stock of high grade oats as is shown in the Northwest.

VANDALISM DEFACES

The Marble of the Historic Buildings of the Capitol.

Memorials on Washington Monument Hacked and Maltreated.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, April 16.—(Special to Herald.)—Fools are ever prone to inscibe their names in public places, and more instances of this predeliction crop out in Washington than almost anywhere else. The scribbling of one's name on the marble of the historic buildings of the capitol is a daily occurrence, but now and then such vandals are caught in the act and arrested and fined. The Washington monument, which towers skyward some 550 feet, and is an excellent "observation tower" from which a comprehensive view of the national capitol may be obtained, is the Mecca for the tourist. This monolith is visited by thousands annually, and unless the most strict watch was taken by its custodians many of the beautiful memorial stones which ornament its interior, with their raised letterings, inscriptions and symbolic figures would be chipped off and carried away in small pieces as souvenirs. In fact, despite the vigilence of the guardians of the monument many of the memorials in marble have been hacked and generally maltreated by visitors seeking mementoes of their visit so that the original inscriptions have become almost indecipherable. When it is recalled that these stones, which are set in the interior structure of Washington monument, almost from base to summit, were contributed by nearly every potentate of the earth living during the years of its building, the defacement of these historic stones is a matter of most serious regret.

The craze of "tourists" to secure mementoes is not confined at all to the Washington monument. Evidences of their presence is ubiquitous. In statuary hall, at the capitol, many of the statues of the great men who have helped to make the history of the nation have been defaced, and only a few days ago a man was caught endeavoring to hack off a button from the coat of a bronez figure representing Charles Carroll, of Carrolton. His attempt at this act of vandlism cost him $20 in the police court the next day, and the judge, at his conclusion of his lecture prior to imposing the fine, stated that his only regret was that he was not permitted under the law to impose a greater punishment.

The closing of the grounds to the general public in the rear of the White House, which are now only opened once a year, Easter Monday, to the children of the District of Columbia, who gather there by the thousands to roll their Easter eggs, was ordered during the second administration of Grover Cleveland, because of a piece of vandalism almost incredible. This portion of the White House grounds had been open to the public from time immemorial, but the act of a vandal, in the form of a woman, elderly, well gowned and of apparent refinement, caused Mr. Cleveland to order the gates of the rear park closed to the general public, and recent presidents have not seen fit to rescind the order. During the second Cleveland administration there were children in the presidential household, lovely little girls, and it was the custom to daily give them an airing in the grounds to the rear of the executive mansion. One pleasant day while the children, with their nurses, were enjoying themselves on the green sward a well dressed "lady" approached the group of children and nurses and engaged them in conversation. She petted the children, jollied the nurses, and after she had left it was discovered that one of the long curls which should have been on little Miss Ruth's head was missing. Of course Mrs. Cleveland was informed of the circumstances, and the head of the family, the president, became acquainted with the circumstance. He was wroth beyond expression for publication, but when he calmed down he did the wisest thing possible, and that was to close and lock the south park against the public, and they still remain locked and are now the private play and pleasure grounds of the Roosevelt children.

There is a penalty in the shape of a fine in store for such as may be caught defacing government structures in Washington, and the young man or woman who desires to write his or her name where all may behold it had best think twice before scratching up the walls of the historic buildings of the capitol. An arrest was made a few days ago which was duly chronicled in the local press of the fate of a youth from Maryland who was caught in the act of pencilling his name upon the stones of the historic Washington monument. As a warning to future tourists the paragraph and the fate of the young man may serve as a lesson to those who may contemplate visiting Washington:

"James Garner, who lives at Easton, Md., will be entertained at the expense of the District of Columbia for the next four months, but it is doubtful if he will apreciate the hospitality. Garner came here Friday to see the city. He thought this could best be accomplished from the Washington monument. On his way down the great marble shaft he attempted to gratify the rural predelection for inscribing his name. He was interrupted in the act and placed under arrest.

"While waiting for the patrol wagon it was discovered that Garner was carrying a revolver. When arraigned in the police court yesterday, Garner refused to make any explanation. He was fined $50 for carrying concealed weapons and $10 for the disorderly use of his lead pencil. In default of the money to pay his fines, he was sent to jail."

Washington is famed for its beautiful streets and avenues, and over many of them rumble surface cars propelled by the underground electric system as well equipped as any in the country, possibly. The motormen are cautious to a degree, and the percentage of accidents is thereby reduced to a minimum. Visitors from the more crowded cities marvel at the extreme politeness and courtesy of the conductors. The conductors are most Chesterfieldian in their consideration in aiding passengers to board or alight from the cars. There is none of the hurry witnessed in other cities; no one ever thinks for an instant of running brakeneck for a car. You just signal and then walk as leisurely toward it as though you were walking alone with your best girl in the moonlight. The street car service here is really ideal—unless one happens to be in haste to keep an appointment, or catch a train, then one comes pretty near exhausting his vocabulary of profane words. A little incident to indicate the leisurely manner of those controlling the movements of Washington "tram" cars will suffice. It occurred on a rather crowded car moving northward through Connecticut avenue, one of the fashionable thoroughfares of the city. On the rear platform beside the conductor stood a young man clad in his glad clothing, a colored youth, who apparently didn't care whether the car went forward or backward, and a newspaper man on a disagreeable assignment, and in haste at that. The conductor, it being near the end of the route, was casting up his accounts, when a smothered oath escaped his lips, and he jerked the bell suddenly and the car came to a stop. The conductor had swung off, and slowly, with bowed head, walked backward between the tracks, evidently in search of something. The young man in evening clothes and the reporter surmised he had dropped his pocketbook containing tickets and money and accounts of the day's business, valuable to him and to the company, and therefore curbed their impatience, while the conductor wandered up and down the car tracks for the space of about a block. The car was held a full ten minutes by the stop, and though late at night, a car behind had time to catch up, but still the conductor persisted in his search. Everybody aboard was now interested, and the men were about to alight and assist in the search, when the conductor gave a glad shout, hurried to his car, rang the bell and the car forged ahead. "What did you lose?" was the query of the young man in gala garments. "Only my lead pencil," calmly replied the conductor, "but I found it, thank you."

MORTGAGE FORECLOSURE SALE.—Default has been made in the conditions of a certain mortgage, duly executed and delivered by Thomas S. Carlton, mortgagor, to Julia S. Lovejoy, mortgagee, bearing date the sixth day of June, 1894, and with a power of sale therein contained, duly recorded in the office of the register of deeds in and for the county of St. Louis and state of Minnesota, on the eighth day of June, 1894, at 8:20 o'clock a. m., in Book 121 of mortgages, on page 8. Said mortgage being given to secure a part of the purchase money of the premises covered thereby.

Which said mortgage, together with the debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said Julia S. Lovejoy, mortgagee, to Kenneth A. McDonald, by written assignment dated the ninth day of February, 1903, and recorded in the office of said register of deeds, on the 24th day of February, 1903, at 9:30 o'clock a. m., in Book 183 of mortgages, on page 231.

Which said mortgage, together with said debt secured thereby, was duly assigned by said Kenneth A. McDonald, the assignee and holder thereof, to John McAlpine, by written assignment dated the 24th day of February, 1903, and recorded in the office of said register of deeds, on the 17th day of March, 1903, at 11:45 o'clock a. m., in Book 189 of mortgages, on page 81, said assignee being now the owner and holder and owner and holder of record thereof. Which said default consists in the failure of said mortgagor to pay the sum of $400.00 principal and $345.00 interest, which is claimed to be due and is due at the date of this notice, upon said mortgage, and also in the failure of said mortgagor to pay the taxes on the premises covered by said mortgage, for the years 1896, 1897 and 1898, which said taxes, penalties and interest thereon amounting to $37.76 the undersigned paid on March 17th, 1903, and now holds receipts of the county treasurer of St. Louis County, Minnesota, therefor, making a total for principal, interest and taxes due at the date of this notice, $781.76, and no action or proceeding having been instituted, at law or otherwise, to recover the debt secured by said mortgage, or any part thereof.

Now, therefore, notice is hereby given, that by virtue of the power of sale contained in said mortgage, and pursuant to the statute in such case made and provided, the said mortgage will be foreclosed by a sale of the premises described in and conveyed by said mortgage, viz:

South half of the southeast quarter, (s½ of se¼) of section twenty-one (21), the southwest quarter of the southwest quarter (sw¼ of sw¼) of section twenty-two (22), and the northwest quarter of the northeast quarter (nw¼ of ne¼) of section twenty-eight (28), in township sixty-seven (67) north, of range eighteen (18) west, according to government survey thereof, said premises being situated in St. Louis County and state of Minnesota, with the hereditiaments and appurtenances; which sale will be made by the sheriff of said St. Louis County, at the front door of the court house, in the city of Duluth, in said county and state, on the second day of May, 1903, at ten o'clock a. m. of that day, at public vendue, to the highest bidder for cash, to pay said debt, amounting, for principal, interest and taxes at this date, to $781.76, together with interest on said principal sum and said sum paid for taxes from the date hereof, and $25.00 attorney's fees, as stipulated in and by said mortgage in case of foreclosure, and the disbursements allowed by law, subject to redemption at any time within one year from the date of sale, as provided by law.

SMUGGLING CASES

Against Prominent Officers at Porto Rico Ordered Dropped.

Grand Jury Goes Ahead In Spite of Instructions.

San Juan, P. R., April 16.—The grand jury yesterday called many witnesses in the smuggling cases in which officers of the United States navy and other prominent men are involved, and secured from the court commissioner who presided at the former hearings a copy of the testimony taken.

The prisoners who are confined in the penitentiary for smuggling have presented a petition requesting that they be pardoned and released unless others guilty of the same offenses are punished.

Two more officials were arrested at Mayagüez in connection with the municipal frauds there. The bail of Superintendent of Public Works Bates, of Mayagüez, arrested April 8, charged with frauds amounting to $10,000 to $20,000, has been fixed at $35,000. Bondsmen were not secured.

The insular police sent April 1 3by Governor Hunt to take possession of Mayagüez and supplant the municipal police there for the greater protection of good government, has not reached Mayagüez owing to the bad state of the roads and will be unable to take possession of that city until Thursday noon, when probably many arrests will follow.

Washington, April 16.—The attention of the officials of the department of justice was called to the published dispatch from San Juan, P. R., to the effect that the United States attorney there had declined to prosecute criminally a number of army and navy officers for alleged smuggling, explaining his action by the statement that he was acting under instructions from Washington. The following statement was made by the department:

"The facts are that the treasury department approved a settlement in one of the pending cases, on the basis of relief from the criminal liability upon payment of a fine equal to double the amount of duties. Instruction to this effect was given to the United States attorney at San Juan by the solicitor of the treasury and upon inquiry by the United States attorney of the department of justice for confirmation of this instruction the subject was brought before the cabinet and it was directed by the president that Secretary Moody and Postmaster General Payne should investigate the entire subject upon their arrival at Porto Rico, and that the cases should be dealt with in accordance with their recommendation. The recommendation was that all criminal proceedings should be dismissed and discontinued upon the payment of the civil obligation, as above indicated. In accordance with this recommendation the attorney general directed the United States attorney for Porto Rico to dismiss pending cases and to present no more cases to the grand jury until he was otherwise instructed. The cases involve certain officers of the army and navy, and certain civilian employes of the government of Porto Rico."

Postmaster General Payne, when his attention was called to the matter, dictated the following statement: "These cases were called to the attention of the cabinet because they involved officers of the army and navy, and, at the request of the attorney general, the secretary of the navy, and the postmaster general, who were about to visit Porto Rico, were asked to make a personal investigation into the facts of the case.

"It seems that certain officers had brought to San Juan articles for personal use which were subject to customs duties, especially cigars and some liquors, and it was said that a present of some of the cigars was made to a local clerk in San Juan. There was no charge of importing anything upon which it was proposed to make money, or to sell for profit—simply personal effects for personal uses, some of which, it seems were given away.

"We were advised by the secretary of the treasury, such cases coming under his jurisdiction, that in cases of this character where there was no intention to import for profit, meaning by that where goods were not brought in for sale, it is customary not to prosecute criminally, but to settle such cases by the payment of the penalty. This was done in this case and the officer or officers in question have paid the penalty imposed by the treasury department, which is twice the amount of the original duties.

"A settlement on this basis having been approved by the secretary of the treasury, it seemed to the secretary of the navy and to the postmaster general that criminal prosecution would be persecution and we felt entirely justified in recommending that no further action be had in these cases."

The department of justice today received a dispatch from the United States attorney at San Juan stating in substance that the judge having jurisdiction of the smuggling cases had instructed the grand jury to proceed with the investigation notwithstanding the order of the department of justice to the United States attorney not to prosecute them. He asked for further instructions, to which the department has sent the following reply:

"Department of Justice, Washington, D. C., April 15, 1903.

"United States Attorney, San Juan, P. R.: Your duty is to obey my instructions to dismiss pending smuggling cases and present no new cases until otherwise directed. Considerations of moment not confined to Porto Ricans or individuals involved have moved administration after full investigation and deliberation, to course directed, which will be adhered to. But if judge calls upon you or court requests, you will perform your usual functions before grand jury. The fact that government may not or will not prosecute if indictments are found, does not prevent consideration by grand jury."

San Juan, P. R., April 16.—District Attorney Pettingill has issued the following regarding a intervention of the Washington authorities in the so-called smuggling cases:

"I am reluctant to make a statement, but in view of the discussion the local press and after yesterday's action by the grand jury, which is a matter of record, it seems advisable to make a dispassionate statement as to how the matter stands. It has been current rumor for some time past that the defendants have made strenuous efforts to settle with the treasury. The authority to make a settlement in these cases is claimed under section 376 of the statutes, and Mr. Griggs, when attorney-general, decided that he had such authority. The latest instructions received from Attorney-General Knox by cable April 13, were as follows: 'Dismiss the pending proceedings in the smuggling cases and present no new cases to the grand jury unless otherwise directed. Hereafter report fully by mail on the nature and status of the said cases.'

"While I did not advise the course which is being pursued, it is not for me to criticise the action of a superior. Doubtless the course seemed proper to the wise officials at Washington under the circumstances. It will be observed that Mr. Knox's cable does not finally dispose of the cases. The actual effect of the instructions is to carry the cases over the term for such other disposition as may seem proper then."

No Uncertainty About It.

PAINES' CELERY COMPOUND

The Wondrous Spring System Cleanser and Health Builder Makes Sick People Well.

It Is a Heaven-Sent Blessing to Disease-Burdened Men and Women.

There is nothing doubtful or uncertain about the working and effects of Paine's Celery Compound. It stands supreme as a spring system cleanser and health builder. It reaches, without loss of precious time, the cause of sickness and disease in a way that no other remedy can do. Its first and most important mission is the purification of the life stream, increasing its volume and quality. It then stirs all the organs that work sluggishly. It restores strength, renews vitality, regulates the kidneys, liver and bowels, and makes people well and strong. For these reasons Paine's Celery Compound as a spring medicine stands far above all other prescriptions and remedies that promise so much and accomplish so little. Mrs. R. O. Starkey, Jackson, Mich., says:

"For many years I suffered more than tongue can tell from eczema and blood troubles. In the spring season my agonies and distresses were increased, and I often wished to die. Boils and pimples added to my sufferings, and for weeks I was not fit to be seen. Doctors afforded me but small relief. I spent scores of dollars for advertised medicines, but got no cure from them. I got hold of one of your books and read about a lady who had been afflicted as I was and cured by Paine's Celery Compound. I procured a bottle of your Compound without delay and began to use it. After I used the third bottle I experienced a blessed change, the eczema and eruptions were disappearing. So happy was I that I continued with the medicine till my face and body were clear and smooth. I am a new woman in every respect. I am now well and strong, and believe the cure is a permanent one. May heaven bless you in your work of doing good to suffering humanity."

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

Because they took time for lunch at the noon hour, fifteen drivers were discharged at Primrose colliery of the Lehigh Valley Coal company at Mahanoy City Wednesday. A general strike of drivers, patchers, door boys and loaders followed, forcing the plant to suspend operations. Seven hundred men and boys are affected.

The schooner Bertha Louise is supposed to have foundered with all her crew. She sailed from New Orleans Feb. 1 and from Port Eads Feb. 13 for Frontera, Mex. Her cargo consisted of coal and lumber. The schooner has not been seen or heard from since sailing from Port Eads.

The Amalgamated Association of Tin & Steel Workers refused to endorse woman suffrage. The annual report of the membership committee shows that the organization enlisted 35,000 new members during the fiscal year just closed and 200 new lodges were organized.

Mrs. Ellen G. White, a prophetess of recognized standing among the Seventh Day Adventists, has decreed that the Review and Herald Publishing office, recently destroyed by fire, must not be rebuilt at Battle Creek. She says the Lord is displeased because the office had been doing commercial work, instead of de nominational work, and declares that the Adventists, numbering 10,000, living in Battle Creek, must scatter.

Six men are reported to have been killed and several others seriously injured in an explosion at the mines of the Peerless Coal & Coke company at Vivian, W. Va. A small, shanty containing a large amount of powder near the mine caught fire and an explosion followed.

Adolph Heinz, a native German employed at a Memphis brewery, was shot and killed by George Morgan, a negro, because he refused to honor an order presented by the negro for a pail of beer.

To prevent the carrying out of the American League schedule of Sunday baseball games for Detroit this year is the avowed purpose of the Sabbath Observance association, the organization of which was announced Wednesday night. It was stated that Mayor Maybury had agreed to have the police prevent Sunday games. The association will take up the question of Sunday theaters.

All but one of the fifteen members of the faculty of the state school of mines at Golden, Col., have presented their resignations, to take effect next September. This step has been taken in consequence of the friction between the faculty and President Charles S. Palmer. The professors allege that the president's policy relative to scholarships is lowering the standing of the school.

lative expenses is all gone. Yesterday was pay day, but those that went to the treasurer's office to get their money were informed that there were no funds available for paying off legislators. The omnibus appropriation bill carries an appropriation of $15,000 to complete the session, and the legislative ghost will not walk until the bill is passed. This fact may have something to do with hurrying the bill along.

While the session ends Monday night, there will be a meeting Tuesday. All it is for is to approve the journal, and as no other business can be done, the day does not count in the ninety that the legislature is allowed.

* * *

The house yesterday afternoon killed the bill amending the McCarthy law in order to help the lumbermen out a little. It was passed by the house Tuesday, but a motion to reconsider and place the bill on general orders yesterday passed, and when the measure was reached yesterday afternoon it was indefinitely postponed by a vote of 35 for postponement and 27 against. The bill provided that lumberjacks could not file liens for labor except at the close of the season, between April 5 and May 1. Under the McCarthy law they can file any time, and the attorneys that do the work are allowed $20 for their trouble.

* * *

The judiciary committee and the towns and counties committee of the house held a joint session yesterday and voted to recommend for indefinite opposement the bill ceding Barron island in the Mississippi river opposite La Crosse, to Wisconsin. The island is a beautiful one, 200 acres in extent, and the La Crosse people wanted to make a park out of it with money donated by a local philanthropist.

* * *

The medical practice bill by Renville Chinecock, requiring all applicants for physicians' licenses to take the same examination, was killed by the house committee on general legislation yesterday. So was the McGregor bill prohibiting horse-racing for cash prizes in this state.

* * *

The house yesterday took action on the two bills taxing the property of freight line companies and sleeping car companies. These bills were both introduced in place of the existing laws, which have been declared unconstitutional. The freight line bill was passed, and the other was taken away from the tax committee, placed on general orders and there recommended to pass.

* * *

The house in committee of the whole yesterday recommended for passage the bill by A. F. Brainerd, establishing a Minnesota sanitarium for consumptives at Walker. The bill had been amended by the appropriations committee, cutting out the appropriation of $50,000 that had been placed by the senate. The understanding was that the omnibus bill should carry an appropriation for this purpose, but as the bill had not passed no such item was inserted. A. B. Cole, of Walker, therefore secured the adoption of an amendment to the bill appropriating $25,000 for the purchase of the site and the construction and maintenance of a building.

* * *

Dr. Graham's bill requiring surety bonds for all state depositories, which was killed on Tuesday in committee of the whole and then put back on general orders, was killed again yesterday afternoon in committee of the whole.

* * *

The house recommended for passage yesterday afternoon the bill already passed by the senate repealing the law which prohibits divorced people from remarrying within six months.

* * *

Senator Hawkins' bill amending the law regarding labor liens for work in mines to provide for liens for skill, materials and machinery, was recommended to pass the house in committee of the whole yesterday afternoon.

* * *

A bill requiring surveyors general of logs and lumber to survey cedar posts and poles was recommended to pass yesterday afternoon by the house in committee of the whole. The surveyor is to handle them just as he now handles logs, and he is to be paid for his work at the rate of 20 cents per hundred pieces for small sticks and 10 cents per 100 lineal feet for large ones.

* * *

The house in committee of the whole yesterday afternoon recommended for passage a bill by Mr. Yoerg, of St. Paul, providing that interurban lines may run into the center of cities over the lines of street railway companies. The latter are to be paid, of course, and if the companies cannot agree the district court is to decide. An amendment which was adopted provides that such interurban companies may do no local business within the city limits, and cannot use more borrowed track than they have of their own.

* * *

A bill that the house recommended to pass yesterday afternoon provides that after the sheriff has exhausted his resources in the collection of delinquent personal property taxes the county board may hire outside help to do the work, providing the cost does not exceed 25 per cent of the amount realized.

* * *

Another bill that was recommended to pass is designed to aid the passage of constitutional amendments. It provides that the attorney general must prepare synopses of the amendments, and that the secretary of state must publish these in the daily papers at the state capitol and in one paper in each county, twice. Pamphlets containing the same matter are also to be distributed by the secretary of state, who is to use mailing lists composed the the names, addresses and nationalities of all the legal voters in each county, furnished by the county auditors.

* * *

Ministers of the gospel are to be exempted from poll taxes, road work and jury duty by a bill which the house yesterday afternoon recommended to pass. Mr. Hickey, of St. Paul, wanted to add an amendment making it apply to doctors and lawyers as well, but the house voted it down.

* * *

Probate judges that linger with their decisions will not be able to draw their salaries if a bill which the house recommended to pass yesterday gets through. It provides that they must render decisions within ninety days, and that when they call for their salaries they must file affidavits that they have cleared up all the cases left with them more than sixty days prior, or else they get no money.

IRRIGATION IN NORTH DAKOTA

Engineers of Geological Survey Studying the State's Topography.

Washington, April 16.—The engineers of the United States Geological Survey are rapidly taking the field in order to continue field work in the various irrigation projects authorized by the irrigation law of June 17, 1902.

North Dakota, is one of the states included within the provisions of the law, and as it has at present a considerable fund at its disposal for the construction of works, plans have been made to take up active field work in immediate future. A number of engineers are in the state, studying the general topography and investigating any irrigation projects that may come to their attention. If the preliminary examination warrants taking action, field parties will be organized and active survey work prosecuted in order to obtain data for estimates of cost. If these estimates show that any particular project is feasible, that is, that the water supply is adequate, that there is a sufficient area of land available for irrigation, and that the cost of bringing water to it is reasonable, recommendations for construction will be submitted to the secretary of the interior for his approval.

The present investigations will be largely confined to the western part of the state and will consist of examinations for the diversion of the main Missouri river, although they will also include examinations of its tributaries in the northern and southern parts of the state.

BOOM FOR FAIRBANKS

For Vice Presidential Nomination to Be Started.

Indianapolis, April 16.—The name of Senator Charles W. Fairbanks will be the subject of great discussion at West Baden Springs this week, where a big conference of political leaders is arranged to formally set afoot his vice presidential boom. Senator Hanna, who has always regarded Fairbanks as a suitable exponent of the McKinley policy, will be there, as will be Governor Durbin, Governor Nash, of Ohio; Graeme Stewart, the defeated Republican candidate for mayor of Chicago; Mayor Fleischmann, the successful Republican candidate for mayor of Cincinnati; Harry S. New, national committeman from Indiana, and possibly some others.

FORTY GERMAN SCIENTISTS

Will Arrive In May to Study American Agricultural Methods.

Washington, April 16.—Inspection of meat packing, dairying and other matters relating to agriculture and the marketing of its products is the object of the visit of forty German scientists, students and large landed proprietors, who will arrive in New York on May 2. The party will be met by J. I. Schulte, an expert of the agricultural department here, who will accompany them West. They will go to California, stopping at numerous places on the way, and return via the Northern route and sail from New York on June 24.

Particular attention will be paid to Chicago, where two days will be spent by the party studying the conditions at the stock yards and the methods of the great packing houses and agricultural implement manufacturers. Stops will be made at Elgin, Ill., where the dairying industry will be inspected; also at Wayne, Ill., for the purpose of investigating the methods employed in the horse breeding establishment of Dunham, Fletcher & Coleman.

Close attention will be paid in the Northwest to the growing of wheat and other grain and its transportation to market, and to beet sugar raising. It is the intention of the delegation to gather much interesting data regarding agricultural and kindred questions in this country, which will be embodied in a report which will be published in the journal of the German Agricultural society, with a view to informing Germans of conditions and progressive methods employed in this country.

YALE STUDENTS SAFE.

Riverhead, L. I., April 16.—Two young men, said to be Yale students, came ashore at a late hour Monday night from a catboat at Roanoke Landing, four miles from this village. They refused to give their names, but one of them spoke of coming from Chicago. The young men left the Trimble Islands, New Haven, Monday morning, for a pleasure sail. Before they had been out very long a stiff gale came out of the north and the rudder became jammed. The little boat was then at the mercy of the wind and was driven diagonally across the sound. Yesterday afternoon they started for New York.

STRONGEST EVIDENCE OF FAITH

S. F. Boyce Guarantees That Hyomei Will Cure the Worse Case of Catarrh in Duluth.

When one of the most reputable concerns in Duluth guarantees that a medicine will effect a cure or he will return the money, it speaks volumes as to the merit of that remedy. It is in this way that S. F. Boyce is selling Hyomei, the treatment that has made so many remarkable cures of both acute and chronic cases of catarrh in Duluth and vicinity

Hyomei is not a pill nor is it a liquid that has to be taken with a tablespoon or kineglass. Just breathe it by the aid of an inhaler that comes in every outfit and benefit will be seen from the first treatment.

It destroys all germ life in the air passages and lungs and enriches and purifies the blood with additional ozone. It cures catarrh of the head and throat, or of the stomach, liver and kidneys. Wherever mucous membrane contains catarrhal germs, that Hyomei will do its work of healing. When using this treatment, the air you breathe will be found like that on the mountains high above the sea level, where grow balsamic trees and plants which make the air pure by giving off volatile antiseptic fragrance that is healing to the respiratory organs.

Remember that if Hyomei does not cure you S. F. Boyce will refund your money. This is a good time to cure catarrh by this natural method and prevent catarrhal colds that are so common at this season.

COLLAPSE OF A BIN

Break In Peavey Concrete Annex on Rice's Point.

John Nyberg Has Tremendous Drop But Escapes Unhurt.

The extreme southwest bin of the Peavey concrete elevators on Rice's Point gave way at 11:10 o'clock this morning.

There was a rumble, a roll, a crash, and a big cloud of dust, and 50,000 bushels of flaxseed slipped and scattered itself over the area of almost a city block on the sand.

The rush of the slippery seeds under the railroad tracks, which are on trestles at the side of the bins, lifted the structure out of its foundation and threw it up against the elevator proper, crushing in the train shed like an egg shell.

The loss will be over $10,000 on the bin, and the seed will all be saved.

One of the most remarkable things in connection with the unexplained breaking of the bin was the miraculous escape from injury of John Nyberg, a laborer, whose home is at 2114 West Fourth street.

Nyberg was in the seed-carrier bridge, fifty feet above the ground, when the crash came. The bin, bridge and mass of iron construction work fell, with Nyberg inside. As the bridge crashed into the slowly-rising railroad trestle and the train shed, Nyberg rolled out. He was bruised some, but walked across the approach to the elevator and to the other side, where he sat down a while, and then went home.

There was no one who saw the bin collapse or witnessed the scene that immediately followed. Nyberg was in the little covered bridge and couldn't see out.

The accident or collapse cannot be explained by the elevator men. The force behind the break must have been terrific, for it broke the hundreds of iron bands that encircle the bin, half way sunk in the concrete, with a snap.

The outside of the bin went down first, and the back of the cylindrically shaped structure turned inside out before anyone could get around to see it.

All there is left of the southwest bin, is a piece of concrete and bent iron work, hanging from the top fastenings, fifty feet in the air, and on the other side another smaller piece, with the iron and steel bands hanging out. Several smaller chunks of the concrete string along to the ground.

The gearing and carrying system at the top of the building is utterly ruined, and a tangled mass of iron, belting and ladders marks the place where the machinery was working so smoothly yesterday.

"The first the men knew of the break around here," said Manager Harry Harding of the elevator, this afternoon, "they heard a terrible crash, and saw a huge cloud of dust arise outside the elevator doors. Then came a crushing and crashing, and a piece of the train shed caved in and the bridge at the top of the bins gave way and came tearing its way down through the debris.

"When the men ran out they found Nyberg sitting on a pile of flax seed, and the grain was smoothing itself down over almost an acre of ground. The elevator must have broken at the bottom, for the grain ran out and underneath the trestle work of the railroad, pulling up the piling, and turning the trestle work almost entirely over. It would require the pressure from above to do this, for the flax seed is like quicksand and the particles move on one another easily.

"Not a man saw the break. It came so suddenly that none had time to run out and see it fall. The outside wall must have fallen under the grain, and the back wall must have been pulled out by the steel bands that held the material together.

"I attribute the breaking of the bin to the pressure of the intermediate bin, though I have nothing excepting conjecture upon which to base the opinion. There are 3,500,000 bushels of grain in the concrete storage elevators, or was until the collapse of this one. Nyberg was in the corrugated iron bridge, and fell to the ground without being hurt to speak of.

"The damage will be about $10,000, as we will rebuild the bin, but there will be no loss on the grain for we will have that cleared up at once. The bridge and carrier machinery can be replaced at a cost of from $500 to $1000."

This is the second collapse the Peavey people have suffered at the Rice's point concrete storage elevators. Three years ago the middle bin on the west side collapsed in much the same manner. It was rebuilt that season.

The construction of the concrete bins is such that it would seem almost impossible for such a break to occur. The concrete is built nine inches thick at the base, and six inches thick at the top. Steel bands run through the concrete at intervals of every few inches to hold the structure firm, and the steel itself would seem strong enough to hold the weight placed in the bins. This is the construction of the bins in the old section.

In the new section on the east end of the elevator, the concrete is built around the steel bands and besides wire is wound from the base to dome, so that the newer bins are considered absolutely safe and immune from danger no matter what pressure might be applied. The concrete, too, is twelve inches at the base and nine inches at the top.

Work will commence at once on the cleaning up of the grain, and the building will be replaced as soon as the material and plans can be secured.

BRIEF CITY NEWS

Parlor theater—Great program specialties.

Employes of the city pumping station at Lakewood caught a deer yesterday. A number have been seen in that vicinity lately and appeared to be quite undisturbed when any person passed close to them. The deer caught yesterday was held long enough to photograph and when released lost no time in making for the woods. As it ran the man with the camera took a snap shot at close range.

MRS. HAMLIN'S LECTURE.

Commercial Club Extended an Invitation to Attend.

The Women's council of Duluth is seeking to interest the Commercial club in the work of the council for civic improvement and as a preliminary step along that line has extended to the commercial organization an invitation to attend the lecture to be given in the high school next Monday evening by Mrs. Conde Hamlin. The lecture is to be illustrated with stereopticon views of improved and unimproved places in Duluth and other cities.

The invitation has been received by the club and an effort will be made to notify, as far as possible, the membership, so as to get out a good attendance Monday evening. There will be no admission charged to the lecture.

BURNED TO DEATH.

St. Paul, April 16.—A Little Falls, Minn., special to the Dispatch says: Mrs. Rose Poissant, a widow who had resided in this county nearly twenty-five years, was accidentally burned to death at the home of her daughter, Mrs. Ludger Plant, in Ripley township, this county, yesterday. A prairie fire threatened the destruction of the Plant farm buildings, and she started a back fire, near the farm, to check the approaching fire. Her clothing became ignited and she was burned to death. When found the face was burned beyond recognition and the body burned to a crisp. The unfortunate woman was 78 years old and leaves six grown children.

FAVORITES LOSE

Live Bird Shooters Not Good at Inanimate Targets.

Grand American Handicap the Feature at Kansas City.

Kansas City, April 16.—The Grand American handicap at inanimate targets was shot at Blue River park today. It was the principal event of the Interstate's Association's fourth annual tournament and proved one of the biggest in the history of the sport. There are 191 entries, including such well known marksmen as W. R. Crosby, H. C. Hirschy, J. A. R. Elliott and Fred Gilbert, and crack shots from every part of the country. Keen rivalry was displayed by the contestants who were followed by a large gallery of spectators. Weather conditions were favorable in the morning and high scores are expected.

The conditions for the Grand American handicap was 100 flying targets at unknown angles, $10 entrance, targets included, handicaps 14 to 25 yards, high guns, not class shooting, $200 added to the purse. In addition to first money, the winner will receive a silver trophy, presented by the Interstate association. Before the big event opened, the preliminary handicap at 100 targets, unfinished from yesterday, was completed. In this event only 115 of the 160 men entered had shot at dusk last evening. The preliminary handicap was finished shortly before 10 o'clock. Five men had made scores of 84 or better, as follows:

Louis E. Moyne, S. Joseph, Mo., 88; C. Dixon, 87; F. E. Rogers, Bucklin, Mo., 87; Frank C. Riehl, Alton, Ill., 87; H. S. McDonald, Gravette, Ark., 84.

The grand American handicap was called at 10 o'clock and four traps were soon actively engaged. The weather conditions were the best since the tournament began and in fact were almost perfect. However, some of the 19-yard handicap men did the best work and exceeded the scores of crack shots national reputation.

H. C. Hirschy, of Minneapolis, winner of the grand American live bird handicap last year, with a 23-yard handicap, broke but 86 targets out of a possible 100 and Charles G. Spencer, of St. Louis, runner up man last year, scored but 85. Others among the first high men to finish follow: L. J. Squier, Wilmington, Del., 19 yards, 92; J. M. Hughes, Palmyra, Wis., 23 yards, 91; H. Sconce, 20 yards, 91; A. J. Stauber, Streater, Ill., 19 yards, 91; E. C. Ford, Fostoria, Ohio, 19 yards, 91; Chauncey M. Powers, Decatur, Ill., 19 yards, 90; C. W. Budd, Des Moine., 19 yards, 90; Rolla O. Heikes, Dayton, Ohio, 21 yards, 89; Fred Gilbert, Spirit Lake, Iowa, 23 yards, 88; W. R. Crosby, O'Falons, Ill., 23 yards, 81; E. D. Nike, Dayton, 19 yards, 88; J. A. R. Elliott, Kansas City, 21 yards, 86; F. M. Faurite, Dallas, Texas, 21 yards, 85; Ben Elek, Sterling, Ill., 19 yards, 84; S. C. Watson, Sewickley, Pa., 19 yards, 87; A. C. Conner, Pekin, Ill., 19 yards, 81; L. I. Wade, Nacodoches, Texas, 19 yards, 87. At noon fifty men had shot in the grand American handicap.

Max E. Hensler, Battle Creek, Mich., 17 yards, broke 93 targets, the highest score, with half the shoot over, and C. B. Adams, Rockwell City, Iowa, 18 yards, broke 92, tieing the next highest score. T. A. Marshall, Keithsburg, Ill., 18 yards, the only man who has twice won the grand American shoot at live birds, broke but 81 targets.

THE KILLING OF GOEBEL

Frankfort, Ky., April 16.—Henry E. Youtsey today for the first time told on the witness stand his story of the killing of the late Governor Goebel. He named James Howard, the defendant, as the man who fired the shot. Youtsey said he saw Howard for the first time a few minutes before the shooting. Howard had a letter sent him several days before by the witness at Governor Taylor's dictation. Youtsey says he took Howard into the office of Caleb Powers, then secretary of state, which had been especially arranged for the shooting. He showed Howard the Marlin rifle, the bullets and the window from which the shooting was to be done. He says Howard asked what he was to get for doing the shooting. "What do you want for it?" Youtsey says he asked, and that Howard said he wanted a pardon for killing George Baker. "I told him he could have that and more, too, said Youtsey. "About that time," said the witness, "Goebel came in the gate and I pointed him out to Howard and then ran from the room. A I disappeared down the steps to the basement I heard the crack of Howard's rifle."

The forenoon session of court in the trial of James Howard was taken up until 11 o'clock with hearing minor witnesses. At that hour Henry Youtsey, the star witness, was called. Youtsey said that after the shooting he passed through the statehouse basement and a few minutes later came back into the executive building, from the east side entrance. "I stayed in the office of Assistant Secretary of State Matthews," said he, "for a few moments, and saw Matthews break open Caleb Powers' office and find the guns that had been left in there." Youtsey said that at the time of the shooting he was private secretary to Auditor Sweeney, but that while his political status was not definitely fixed it was understood he was to have a good place under the Taylor administration. "Governor Taylor," said Youtsey, "directed everything we did. He regarded him as our leader and he was morally responsible for all we did. We knew we had the governor and the pardoning power behind us and we were not afraid of punishment for killing Goebel."

During Youtsey's testimony Howard sat with eyes riveted on the witness. His wife sat behind him. Howard did not change expression. Youtsey, on cross examination, said that after he was arrested and later sent to the penitentiary, he still had hope of gaining his liberty. He thought Yerkes would be elected governor and would pardon him. Yerkes was defeated, however, and about a year ago he decided to talk and did tell his story to Prison Physician Tobin. Youtsey said further that he had an additional incentive to tell the story, as Taylor, Powers and others had used him as a catspaw and scapegoat and then deserted him when he got into trouble.

TEAMSTERS MUST RETURN

Chicago, April 16.—President Albert Young of the Teamsters' National union telegraphed an order today from Boston to the teamsters who are striking in sympathy with the employes of the People's Gas Light and Coke company to return to work or suffer expulsion from the union. The Chicago board of arbitration, which brought into existence all the contracts under which the 25,000 Chicago teamsters are working, met at noon and issued an ultimatum to the Teamsters' National union. This ultimatum says that the gas teamsters must return to work by 1 o'clock tomorrow, or all contracts between the teamsters and their employes, represented by the associated teaming interests and the Chicago board of arbitration, will be considered violated and cancelled.

COLUMBIA COUNTY

Is Knocked Out By Supreme Court Decision.

St. Paul, April 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—In a decision filed this morning, the supreme court knocks out the organization of Columbia county. Three propositions were submitted to name the county of Columbia, Nelson and Starr, respectively. Different county seats and different county commissioner were suggested. The court holds that the propositions are competing and the election therefore is illegal and that the county will have to be reorganized.

QUIT AND EAT.

Some Coffee Tales.

Show a woman an easy, comfortable and healthful way to improve her complexion and she is naturally interested.

Coffee is the one greatest enemy of fair women, for in the most of cases it directly affects the stomach, producing slight, and sometimes great congestion of the liver and therefore causing the bile to be absorbed into the system instead of going its natural way. The result is a sallow, muddy skin and a train of diseases of the different organs of the body which, in all too many cases, develop into chronic diseases.

A lady speaking of how coffee affected her says: "I was very fond of coffee, but while drinking it was under the care of the doctor most of the time for liver trouble, and was compelled to take blue mass a great deal of the time. My complexion was bad and I had a pain in my side steadily, probably in the liver.

"When I concluded to quit coffee and take Postum Food Coffee I had it made carefully and from the very first cup we liked the taste of it better than any of the old coffee.

"In a short time the pain left my side and my friends began to comment on the change in my complexion and general looks. I have never seen anything equal to the good I got from making this change.

"A young lawyer in Philadelphia named ——, whose life was almost a burden from indigestion and its train of evils, quit coffee some months ago and began on Postum Food Coffee. He quickly recovered and is now well, strong and cheerful and naturally loud in his praises of Postum.

"Another friend, an old gentleman of seventy, named ——, who for years suffered all one could suffer and live, from dyspepsia, and who sometimes for weeks could eat no bread or solid food, only a little weak gruel or milk, quit coffee upon my recommendation and took up Postum. He began to get better at once. Now he can eat rich pastry or whatever he likes and is perfectly well."

ARMOUR A BUYER

Heavy Buying In May at Duluth Attributed to Him.

This Holds May Price Well—Flax Slightly Higher.

Duluth Board of Trade, April 16.—Heavy buying in the May option appeared in the Duluth market during the latter part of the session this morning and it was attributed to Armour. About 400,000 bushels was believed to have been taken. The May option increased its premium over July ¼c and is now ⅝c. The Armour buying is believed to be for the purpose of preserving a relation between this and the Chicago market that will prevent shipments from here to there. There is no danger of any such thing as that at present prices, but taking on a line of about a half million he could probably make his position certain so far as this market is concerned. The effect of Armour buying was shown by an advance of ⅛c in Chicago and a decline of only ⅛c in Duluth, while Minneapolis fell ½-⅝c.

Duluth shippers have been finding a good export demand this week. New York reported this morning 96 loads of wheat worked including that at Duluth. As near as could be learned the amount worked here was fifteen loads. Yesterday twenty loads were worked. This includes both Duluth and Manitoba wheat. St. Louis wired good sales of wheat for export.

The market opened lower and ruled irregular with fair trading until about noon after which it stiffened up. Crop advices are all excellent, the Southwest reporting good weather everywhere. Minneapolis millers reported good demand for flour. The Liverpool closed ½d lower for new wheat and ⅛-¼d lower for old. The meaning of this new desination "new" and "old" is that Liverpool has established a new contract grade which includes Argentine wheat at a reduced difference in price. The lower market in Liverpool was attributed to the influence of better crop conditions in France. Paris closed ½c lower and Antwerp unchanged.

Primary receipts of wheat were 236,000 bushels, last year 297,000 bus. Shipments 526,000 bus., last year 403,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 582,000 bus.

Receipts of wheat at Duluth and Minneapolis, 111 cars, and at Chicago 14, a total of 125 cars, against 224 last week and 207 last year.

Bradstreet cables that Argentine shipments this week will probably be 2,400,000 bus. and that weather there is improving. A private cable received in Chicago estimates the shipments at 1,665,000 bus.

Corn in the Liverpool market closed unchanged to ¼d lower. May corn in Chicago weakened, closing with a decline of ⅜c. May oats were also lower declining ¼-⅜c. Primary receipts of corn were 178,000 bus. Last year 116,000 bus. Shipments 767,000 bus. last year 215,000 bus. Clearances were 562,000 bus. Argentine shipments this week are estimated at 240,000 bushels.

In the Duluth market trading was active. May opened ⅛c off at 76c, sold at 76¼c at 9:37, reacted to 76c at 10:15. From that it bulged to 76⅜c at 12:45, sold at 76⅜c at 1:10 and closed at 76⅜c, a decline of ⅛c.

Cash sales were a very few cars and prices were unchanged at ¼c over May for No. 1 northern and ¼c under for No. 2.

Flax was fairly active. May sold ¼c up to $1.11⅜ after the opening and then fell off to $1.11, but rallied and closed at $1.11⅜. July was unchanged and September declined ¼c.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat to arrive, No. 1 hard, 78⅝c; No. 1 northern, 76⅝c; No. 2 northern, 75⅝c. May, No. 1 hard, 78⅜c; No. 1 northern, 76⅜c; July, 75¾c. Flax in store, $1.10⅝; on track, $1.11⅜; to arrive, $1.11⅜; May, $1.11⅜; July, $1.13; September, $1.11¾; October, $1.14; November, $1.12½. Oats on track, 32½c; to arrive, 32¼c; May, 32½c. Rye, on track, 49c; to arrive, 49c; May, 49½c. Barley, 35@45c.

Cars inspected—Wheat, 1; last year, 22; oats, 2; barley, 4; flax, 88.

Receipts—Wheat, 7141; oats, 1405; rye, 859; barley, 1125; flax, 40,122.

Shipments—Wheat, 181,325; barley, 59; flax, 92,590.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Wheat Opened With Light Demand, Rally Following.

Chicago, April 16.—Wheat opened weak on different cables and improved weather conditions. There was a general selling movement and the start and May was off ½c to 1⅛c, opening at 76¾c to 76⅞c with July 1¼@1⅜c to 1⅜@⅝c lower, at 71¼c to 71½c. The early trading was rather light, owing to poor support, but later a fair demand developed from local traders and a rally followed. May advancing to 77⅜c; but the firmness was not maintained, the price again declining to 76⅞c. July was relatively stronger and held steady around 71½c. Duluth and Minneapolis reported receipts of 111 cars, which with local receipts of 14 cars, none of contract grade, made total receipts for the three points of 125 cars, against 224 cars last week and 207 cars a year ago.

Trading was rather quiet later in the day and prices held fairly steady, but during the last hour a sharp rally occurred on good buying by the leading long and on an excellent export demand May advancing to 77⅜c and July to 71⅝c. The close was strong with May ⅛c higher at 77⅛c. July was up ¼c, closing at 71⅜@⅝.

Corn opened weak on better weather and weakness in wheat together with disappointing cables and there was a general desire to get rid of the May delivery which was off ⅛c to ⅜c at 44¼c to 44⅜c. Commission houses were heavy sellers of May and some of yesterday's local buyers were also on the selling side. Under these influences May declined to 43⅝c where a better tone was manifested on a good cash demand with small receipts only 62 cars being received with none of contract grade.

Closing prices were weak, May being ⅜c lower at 43¾c.

Oats opened weak along with other grains and on more favorable weather. Offerings were not heavy and the demand was light which resulted in May declining to 33¼c, after opening ⅛@⅜c lower, at 33⅜c but later there was a rally to the opening price. Local receipts were small at 88 cars.

Provisions were dull with prices somewhat easier due to lower prices at the yards. Brokers were fair buyers early in the session and the decline in prices was small. May pork opened 2½c lower at $17.95. May lard was down 5c at $9.85 and ribs were off 5c at $9.82½.

Close—Wheat: May 77⅝@¾c; July 71½@⅝c; September 68¾c. Corn—April 43¼c; May 43⅜; July 44⅛; September 43⅝. Oats—April 33¾c; May 33¼c; July 30½c; September, 27½c. Pork—May $17.95; July $17.32½; September $17.02½. Lard—May $9.82½; July 9.72½; September $9.70@72½. Ribs—May $9.82½; July $9.65; September $9.60. Rye—May 50c; July 49¾c. Flax—Cash N. W. $1.11; S. W. $1.09; May $1.10@1.11. Timothy—April $3.60; Clover, April $12.00; Barley—Cash, 42@54. Cash wheat 2 red 77c; 3 red 68@74c; 2 hard winter 71@74c; 3 hard winter 68@73c; 1 northern spring 80@81; 2 northern spring 78@80; 3 spring 70@79c. Corn—2, 43½@¾c; 3, 39¼@40c. Oats 2, 31½@32c; 3, 31½c.

GRAIN GOSSIP.

Chicago Record-Herald: Last summer and all the season the Armour bull operations in wheat were an extraordinary success. It begins to look as if there was an Armour back in the market. The French and German crops are having trouble just in time to make Armour's efforts in the May and July very much easier than they would have been with everything progressing auspiciously for the crop raiser on the continent. The foreign news was bullish enough yesterday to almost make the Armour attitude secondary and up to a few days ago it was felt only the argument for higher prices for wheat was that Armour had more bought for May and July than could be delivered to him. Yesterday's foreign crop reports of damage had the more influence because enforced by large foreign buying in all the American market. Fowler, of New York, appears to have struck the wheat situation as right as Armour, although his operations have been as a shipper rather than as speculator, and on no such scale as the packer's. New York reported 57 loads sold of July and said sales from there direct would be about 50 loads more. There was additional export business here in rye about as significant of the situation as sales of wheat. The sales were four loads with the same bids for 100 more.

Cincinnati Price Current: No material change in promising position of wheat crop. Oats seeding further hindered by rains early sown starting well. Owing to delayed plowing much corn will likely be late planted. The grass crop is favorable. Grain movement moderate.

• • •

Kalb, of Chicago: Our Berlin cable received this morning reads: "The condition of the growing rye crop is good, but a good portion of the winter wheat crop was winter killed and had to be re-seeded with spring wheat or barley."

Logan & Bryan, Chicago: Wheat—The market here was moderately active and irregular. Opened weak on lower Liverpool, but later sold up on good export business. Armour was again an active trader and accumulated considerable wheat, both for May and July. The indications are that he is buying wheat in the Northwest markets. Broomhall cabled much needed rains have fallen in France, and estimates Argentine shipments for the week at 2,400,000 bus. Minneapolis reports a better export demand for flour. Southwest advices are still very favorable on the growing wheat crop. This is confirmed b the Price Current. The cash situation is on the whole rather better, and the continent seems disposed to buy wheat quite freely. The Armour operations, however, unsettles the feeling in this market and not only prevents short selling, but makes holders afraid to carry over lines. While the situation does not seem to us urgently bullish, we are inclined to think the only thing to do is to buy July wheat on a sharp break. There seems to be the Armour policy to prevent any material decline. Estimated cars, 26.

Corn—The market was easier early, but rallied and closed steady. The better weather throughout the pit was disposed of take the short side for a turn. There is no change in the cash situation, receipts are small and demand moderate. The Price Current says owing to delays in plowing, corn will be late in planting. We still are inclined to feel that we would buy July corn on weak spots. Estimated cars, 70.

Oats—The market was quiet and a little easier on the fine weather. Operations in this market were uninteresting and on a small scale. The Price Current says seeding of oats has been further delayed by rains, but early sown oats are starting well. We are still inclined to the short side of July oats on hard spots. Estimated cars, 90.

BADEN-POWELL CALLS.

Washington, April 16.—Gen. Baden-Powell, of the British army, who gained distinction during the war in South Africa during the Mafeking campaign, called on Secretary Root today to pay his respects. He is traveling quietly through the country and is registered at a local hotel under the name of Col. Stevenson.

STRENGTH SHOWN

In Stocks and Absence of Any Pressuse to Liquidate.

Favorites Made Gains But the General List Was Quiet.

New York, April 16.—Stocks started to move in an irregular manner this morning, but the majority were lower. Metropolitan street railway lost a point and Southern Pacific and Brooklyn Transit ⅝. Manhattan opened down ⅜, but immediately recovered. There was small gains by Missouri Pacific, Norfolk & Western, Reading, Sugar and a few minor stocks.

Business was active during the early dealings but the price fluctuations for a time were very narrow. The steadiness of Manhattan had a reassuring effect and the market shook off its opening hesitancy and rose sharply. Pennsylvania, New York Central, B. & O., Missouri Pacific, St. Louis & San Francisco, St. Paul, Amalgamated, Sugar and Leather preferred developed the most strength and gained 1@1½. Buying of Pennsylvania was in large blocks after it crossed 135. Metropolitan street railway recovered nearly all of its loss, but Metropolitan securities advanced almost a point. The demand slackened at the advance and prices receded a fraction.

Little stock was offering on recessions and recoveries were easy. St. Louis & San Francisco rose nearly 4 points and Sugar, Copper and New York Central 1⅝ to 1⅞. Railroads in eastern territory including the trunk lines and coalers seemed to be the favorites, but the Atchison stocks, Northwestern and Kansas City Southern were lifted a point. The buying diminished and prices sagged slightly again before noon. Bonds were firm, but dull at noon.

A few active speculative favorites such as St. Paul, Union Pacific, Baltimore & Ohio and Reading made additional small gains, but the general list was quiet and uninteresting. Sentiment was quite cheerful owing to the broad character of the day's strength and the absence of any pressure to liquidate. American Telephone and Telegraph dropped 10¼. Consolidated Gas, Erie second preferred, Louisville & Nashville and a few others were included in the 1 point gains. Traders sold Copper down a point from the best on the announcement of the declaration of only the usual dividend. The stock then rallied. Anaconda lost a gain of 3¼ and other stocks yielded fractions. Business then became semi-stagnant, but the tone was better at 2 o'clock. Consolidated Gas rose 2¼.

After another period of hesitation the market turned strong again and rose to the best of the day. Baltimore & Ohio, Pennsylvania, Norfolk & Western, St. Paul, Northwestern, St. Louis & San Francisco second preferred and Sugar extended their gains to 1⅝@2. U. S. Steel rose 1⅝, People's Gas 1¾ and Colorado Fuel jumped rapidly 4⅜. St. Louis & San Francisco first preferred sold 6 points below the preceding sale. Colorado Fuel relapsed 3. There were slight recessions in a few cases, but the closing was active and strong near the best.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Ridgeley to W. H. Laidley & Co.: Wall street took a saner view of things yesterday. Easier money, continued increase of railroad earnings and an unprecedented crop outlook, all of which were forgotten Monday came in for their share of attention yesterday. There seems to be something doing in leather issues. Distillers common, a dividend payer selling around 50, is a good investment. I think many industrials will have some boom this summer. Amalgamated is not dear below 62. The general railroad list ought to be a buy on moderate recessions.

Waldorf to Coe Commission Co.: Belief that the market is a purchase on reactions is strengthened by the better tone it displayed yesterday in the face of strike rumors and resultant attacks by operators for the decline. Comment is made that the speculative situation is improving, while the general outlook is considered better than for weeks. Easier money is responsible for a more confident feeling regarding both railroad and industrial securities. It is important to know that bankers of high standing have information which points to very heavy shipments of grain to Europe this year as a result of good crops this country and poor abroad. Apropos of this the point is made that as merchandise exports are already very large and are the country's foreign indebtedness has been greatly reduced gold imports near autumn are not unlikely, particularly if the continent and London continue to buy American securities in the volume in which they have bought them lately. Brokers who were on the floor of the stock exchange throughout the day yesterday say that the buying of stocks during most of the session was much better than the selling. It is now known that the disappointing net earnings reported for February by the Pennsylvania and other roads was due to the freight blockade which added greatly to the cost of operation.

• • •

Town Topics: We believe today will test the vulnerability of the general stock market. Bearish stock traders believe a reaction is due from the high recovery prices, and will, no doubt, sell a few stocks this morning encouraged by the possibility of a Manhattan strike and its unsettling influence. The market is technically weakened by the elimination of a large part of the short interest and the sale of stocks bought during demoralization to support the market. We do nto see that the movements will be more than those coincident with a trader's market for the time being. We don't expect to see any serious decline from these prices under present conditions and we do look for gradual improvement within the next few weeks barring unexpected unfavorable developments.

• • •

Logan & Bryan to Paine, Webber & Co.: The market closed up strong. It was dull during the early part of the day, but with no pressure from liquidation, and improvement began which continued up to the close. With easy money, fine crop prospects and the merger question in the background for the moment there is a covering of shorts and scattered buying of long stocks. Wall street feeling seems to be rather more confidently bullish than for some time past. There is a good deal of activity in the Boston copper stocks and a sharp advance in prices pretty much throughout the whole list.

COPPER GOSSIP.

Hayden, Stone & Co. to W. H. Laidley & Co.: We have had a strong and active copper market today, which resulted in an advance from 2 to 3 points in Amalgamated, Copper Range, U. S. M. and Mohawk. On the advance very little stock came out, for the coppers are very cheap at ruling prices. The regular one-half dividend on Amalgamated was declared and while it was expected an increase was looked for. We think the coppers are a purchase and look for more activity than we have been having. Mohawk, U. S. M., Utah, Centennial and Copper Range will be leaders.

Dow-Jones to W. H. Laidley & Co.: John Stanton is sold two months ahead at 15 cents and better. United Metal Selling company sold over 80 per cent of its production up to July 15. John Stanton believes it to 16 cents will be about the average price for copper during 1903. American Metal company predicts copper will not sell below 15 again this year. United Metal Selling company predicts average price this year will be above 14 cents. Consumption according to the three above mentioned producers, is still much in excess of production.

• • •

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: The London visible supply of copper April 15 was 1585 tons, an increase of 1481 tons since April 1, 1902.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, April 16.—The cotton market opened steady at unchanged prices to a decline of 3 points with the decision of prices subsequently directed by local influences until May had made a decline of 9 points, July a decline of 6; August and September 2, and October 10. The bull pool operated to check any further upward movement at this time, the New York market of late having worked a level calculated to attract cotton here from all parts of the country and even from Liverpool. A private cable stated that shipments from Liverpool to New York were already in progress. The local market had a weak undertone all forenoon, cables being in the main disappointing. Houston estimated receipts at 5000 to 5500 against 11,173 last year, while for the day port receipts are estimated at 9000 against 8830 last year. Weather and crop news was generally sized up as rather bearish.

Cotton spot closed dull; middling uplands 10.50; middling gulf 10.75. Sales 37 bales. Cotton futures closed barely steady. April, 10.27; May, 10.22; June, 9.25; July, 9.23; August, 9.45; September, 8.50; October, 8.49; November, 8.37; December, 8.36.

NEW YORK MONEY.

New York, April 16.—Close: Money on call, steady, 3¾@4¾ per cent; closing offered 4 per cent. Time money, steady, all periods, 5@5¼ per cent. Prime mercantile paper, 5½@5¾c. Sterling exchange, firm, with actual business in bankers' bills at $4.86.75 for demand, and $4.83.60@4.83.70 for sixty days; posted rates, $4.84½ and $4.87½; commercial bills, $4.82¾@4.83¾. Bar silver, 49⅝c. Mexican dollars, 39c. Government bonds, steady; railroad bonds, steady.

TREASURY BALANCES.

Washington, April 16.—Today's statement of the treasury balances in the general fund, exclusive of the $150,000,000 gold reserve in the division of redemption shows: Available cash balance, $221,041,504; gold, $118,397,283; silver, $17,865,033; United States notes, $3,186,262; treasury notes of 1890, $81,209; national bank notes, $8,854,938; total receipts this day, $1,882,395; total receipts this month, $23,187,733; total receipts this year, $446,251,131; total expenditures this day, $1,970,000; total expenditures this month, $24,560,000; total expenditures this year, $431,824,177; deposits in national banks, $15,367,826.

TO SETTLE STRIKE

Meetings In Progress at Different Points Along the Lakes.

Seamen Certain to Quit If Police Become Necessary.

The lake carriers in Duluth expressed themselves this morning as convinced the lake firemen and oilers' strike would end before many hours.

There was a mass meeting of the striking men at Superior last night, and word brought from the meeting was to the effect that the men are anxious to ascertain if their positions are still open in case the strike is declared off.

The general sentiment of the meeting, it was reported to several of the boatowners, was that the men were considering taking immediate steps toward calling the strike off if they could see where they got off at.

It was also said that there were to be meetings all up and down the lakes today by the firemen and oilers to vote on the question. There was a gathering at Superior this afternoon, though what action will be taken could not be told at a late hour this afternoon.

Advices were received at the offices of several of the steamship offices before noon time that there were meetings called in Cleveland, Detroit, Buffalo and other lake cities by the strikers to consider the question of making an effort to arrive at a settlement.

Several firemen and oilers who were traveling to Superior from Duluth at about 1:30 o'clock this afternoon on an interstate car said they were not going to recede in any event.

Advices from the Superior meeting of today are being looked for every minute by the boatowners, and they seem to feel confident that the strike is nearing an end.

SEAMEN'S POSITION.

Will Go Out If Police Protection Becomes Necessary.

"If the non-union firemen are placed under police protection on board the boats," said Frank Howard, agent of the Lake Seamen's union, "nothing can prevent our men from going out on strike. Our contract binds us not to go out on a sympathetic strike, but a clause in it provides that our men shall not be forced to work under police protection. Our men are naturally on the side of the firemen in their trouble, and would willingly do anything in their power to aid them providing it does not require the breaking of our contract. Up to the present time I have not heard of any of our men being forced to work under police protection on board the boats. There has been considerable police protection furnished the non-union firemen on shore, and some watchmen set around the various docks, but that does not affect us.

"The assault on the non-union firemen at Cleveland yesterday was an unfortunate affair and will not help the men any. In such cases, however, when the men become enraged they get beyond control and do things they may regret in their cooler moments."

The Pittsburg Seamship company continues to engage non-union firemen and forward them to Two Harbors. The majority of them are being sent from Minneapolis by an employment agency of that city. The Minneapolis trains are being met by large bands of union men, who endeavor to dissuade the new arrivals from going to work. In some cases they are successful and at other times they fail. From twenty to twenty-five men were sent to Two Harbors yesterday and twelve or fifteen others who were brought up from Minneapolis refused to go to work after the arguments of the union men had been heard.

PORT OF DULUTH.

Arrived: Sonora, Yosemite, Bransford, coal, Lake Erie.

Departed: Robert Fulton, La Fayette, Cambria, ore, Lake Erie; Mataafa, Corliss, Manilla, light, Two Harbors; Chili, Nottingham, Midland Queen, grain, Buffalo.

GRATWICK BREAKS ICE.

Houghton, Mich., April 16.—After nearly six hours of ice bucking, the steamer Gratwick, assisted by the tugs, yesterday broke out of the upper end of Portage Lake into Lake Superior. Ice sixteen inches thick was turned up during the steamer's struggle, the steamer filling its after compartments so that the boat was out of water in front and rode on the ice. The ice in the other end of Portage Lake is too solid to be broken for several days.

ICE SOLID AT PORT ARTHUR.

Winnipeg, Man., April 16.—The opening of navigation has been delayed for a wek. W. B. Lanigan, general freight agent of the Canadian Pacific, returned from Fort William yesterday and says the ice is solid for three miles out, and there is no clear water for at least a mile further.

The weather at Fort William has been very unfavorable of late, and all calculations as to the date on which the boats would be able to get through the ice have been upset. It was expected the Canadian Pacific railroad steamer Alberta would leave Owen Sound yesterday, and official notification was given to this effect; but now Lanigan says the boat will not leave until April 20. Speaking in regard to the work on the new elevators, he said:

"We expect to have about 10,000,000 bushels elevator capacity at Fort William by the time that this coming season's navigation closes, or about twice as much as we had in 1892.

"Another fact in connection with the grain movement that may be noted is that nearly 5,000,000 bushels of wheat were moved all rail during the past winter, which is more than five times as much as was moved in any previous year."

VESSEL MOVEMENTS.

Conneaut—Cleared: Light—Fairbairn, Neilson, Duluth.

Huron—Cleared: Coal—Bermuda, Duluth.

Cleveland — Cleared: Coal — Mather, Cuckamauga, Duluth.

UNPRECEDENTED HARVEST.

Argentine Republic Corn Crop Is Very Large.

Washington, April 16.—United States Consul Ayres at Rosario reports to the state department that this year's harvest in the Argentine Republic is unprecedented, the best estimates placing the corn crop at approximately 3,500,000 tons.

OPERATION SUCCESSFUL

Dr. Lorenz Removes Plaster Caste From Armour's Daughter.

Chicago, April 16.—Dr. Adolph Lorenz, the Australian specialist, arrived in Chicago today for the purpose of removing the cast from the leg of Lotita Armour, the young daughter of J. Ogden Armour, upon whom an operation for congenital dislocation of the hip was performed last October. Upon removing the cast the limb was found to be in perfect condition and the patient was able to walk around the house without difficulty.

"The operation was a complete success," said Dr. Lorenz. "but I shall have to be in constant attendance upon the little lady for three or four weeks before I can be certain of a positive cure." After his sojourn in Chicago, Dr. Lorenz expects to make a short Western tour.

NOTE—In preliminary Report submitted to stockholders at the First Annual Meeting, February 17, 1902, the accumulated surplus of all subsidiary companies to November 30, 1901, was shown as $174,344,229.32. This total, however, included the surplus of the subsidiary companies at the time of the original acquisition of their stocks by United States Steel Corporation in 1901, which surplus in this balance sheet is stated in diminution of Property Account.

INCOME ACCOUNT FOR THE YEAR

The total net earnings of all properties after deducting expenditures for ordinary repairs and maintenance (approximately $21,000,000), also interest on bonds and fixed charges of the subsidiary companies, amounting to		$133,308,763 72
Less appropriations for the following purposes, viz.:
Sinking funds on bonds of subsidiary companies	$ 624,091 43
Depreciation and extinguishment funds (regular provisions for the year)	4,834,716 28
Extraordinary replacement funds (regular provisions for the year)	9,315,614 76
Special fund for depreciation and Improvements	10,000,000 00	24,774,389 47
Balance of Net Earnings for the year		$108,534,374.25
Deduct:
Interest on U. S. Steel Corporation bonds for the year	$15,187,850 00
Sinking fund on U. S. Steel Corporation bonds for the year	3,040,000 00	18,227,850 00
Balance		$90,306,524.25
Dividends for the year on U. S. Steel Corporation stocks, viz.:
Preferred, 7 per cent	$35,720,177 50
Common, 4 per cent	20,332,690 00	56,052,867 50
Undivided Profits or Surplus for the year		$34,253,656.75

*The actual expenditures for ordinary repairs and maintenance were $21,220,218.13. It cannot be stated, however, that this specific sum was taken out of the net earnings for the year, because in the manufacturing and producing properties the expenses for repairs and maintenance enter into and form a part of production cost. And as the net earnings of such properties are stated on the basis of gross receipts for product shipped, less the production cost thereof, the income for the year is charged with outlays for repairs and maintenance only to the extent that the production during such period was actually shipped. But as the shipments in 1902 equalled practically the year's production, approximately the entire amount of the expenditures in question has been deducted before stating the net earnings as above.

ORDERS ON HAND.

The tonnage of unfilled orders on the books at the close of 1902 equaled 5,347,253 tons of all kinds of manufactured products. At the corresponding date in preceding years the orders booked equaled 4,497,749 tons. In many of the classes of heavier products, like rails, plates and structural materials, practically the entire capacity of the mills is sold up until nearly the end of the year 1903.

PURCHASE MONEY OBLIGATIONS, BILLS PAYABLE AND SPECIAL DEPOSITS.

The unsecured liabilities of the Subsidiary Companies of the above character were reduced during the fiscal year of 1902, and also during the period from April 1, 1901 (date of organization of U. S. Steel Corporation), to December 31, 1902, by the following respective amounts, viz:

	Paid Off Between April 1, 1901, and December 31, 1901.	Paid Off During Year of 1902.	Total Reduction April 1, 1901, to December 31, 1902.
Purchase money obligations and bills payable	$8,678,836 01	$12,884,558.85	$21,563,394 86
Special deposits	2,369,134 56	767,809 09	3,136,943 65
Total	$11,047,970 57	$13,652,367 94	$24,700,338 51

The funds for the payment of the above liabilities were provided entirely from the surplus net earnings of the organization—no new capital or bonded or other liability has been created in lieu thereof, although practically all of such payments might properly be funded, as the liabilities were those of the Subsidiary Companies prior to or at the time of the organization of U. S. Steel Corporation for the acquirement of additional property or for moneys borrowed, which were in turn used for purchase of property and construction expenditures.

As shown by the General Balance Sheet, the amount of these liabilities outstanding on December 31, 1902, is as follows:

Purchase Money obligations	$6,689,418 53
Bills payable	6,202,502 44
Special deposits	4,485,546 58
Total	$17,377,467 55

PROPERTY ACCOUNT.

The expenditures made during the year by all the properties and charged to Property Account equaled, less credits for property sold, the total sum of $16,486,531.77. These outlays were made for the completion of construction work at manufacturing properties under way when the U. S. Steel Corporation was organized, also for necessary additions and extensions authorized since its organization, for the acquirement of additional ore and coal property, the opening and development of new mines and plants, for additional equipment and facilities demanded by the growing requirements of the business of the transportation properties, to secure material reduction in cost of manufacture, transportation of raw and unfinished materials, and distribution of finished products, etc.

The outlays as above are classified by properties as follows:

Expended by
United States Steel Corporation, on account of acquirement of stocks of subsidiary companies	$258,473 31
Manufacturing properties	9,743,125 78
Ore properties	1,971,542 08
Coal and coke properties	2,043,163 61
Transportation properties	2,741,452 51
Miscellaneous Properties	Cr. 171,420 52
Total	$16,586,531 77

EMPLOYES AND PAY-ROLLS.

The average number of employes in the service of all properties during the entire year was	168,127
The aggregate amount paid during the year for salaries and wages of employes was	$120,528,343

The following shows the classification of the number of employes and pay rolls between the several departments named:

Employes of	Number.
Manufacturing properties	125,326
Coal and coke properties	16,519
Iron mining properties	13,465
Transportation properties	11,160
Miscellaneous Properties	1,657

GAME COMMISSION FULLY EXONERATED

All Charges Found Without Foundation.

A New Game and Fish Code Is Presented.

FROM A STAFF CORRESPONDENT

St. Paul, April 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The special committee appointed several days ago to investigate the accounts of the state game and fish commission this morning presented a report exonerating the commission from all charges against it. The report says that special pains were taken to advertise the investigation, and numerous charges and complaints came in from various parts of the state, charging malfeasance in office and asserting that property confiscated had been taken by the commission or its executive agent for their own use. The investigation showed that with one exception all the property confiscated had been properly accounted for. This exception was three boats and 200 decoy ducks seized Oct. 23, 1902, and left by Executive Agent Fullerton with an exmember of the commission, who was then its vice president, at Fairmont, Minn. The property had neither been returned nor accounted for. Mr. Fullerton informed the committee that he would investigate the matter and compel the ex-member referred to to produce the goods. Reports had been circulated that fish from the state hatchery had been sold for the benefit of the commission. It was found in this case that fish that were kept there for breeding purposes, mostly rainbow trout, had been sold when they were no longer useful, and the money used to get new stock fish. Private sales of confiscated stuff have often been made by the commission, and this practice is condemned by the committee, which

LIPTON'S NEW CUP CHALLENGER LOSES MAST, SAILS AND RIGGING

Serious Accident Occurs to the Shamrock III.

Sir Thomas Lipton Hurt and One Man Drowned.

Weymouth, Eng., April 17.—Sir Thomas Lipton's new challenger for the America's cup was dismantled in a squall today, shortly after leaving this harbor preparatory to another trial spin with the Shamrock I. Her mast, as it fell over the side, carried several of the crew and all the gear and canvas oberboard. One man was drowned and several persons, including Sir Thomas Lipton, who was knocked down a hatchway, were bruised or otherwise injured. The man who was drowned was a brother-in-law of Capt. Wringe. He was handing a binocular glass to Sir Thomas at the time he was swept overboard. One of Sir Thomas' hands was injured, but not seriously.

The yachts were maneuvering in the roadstead under mainsails, jibs, foresails and gaff topsails prior to the start. A strong northeast breeze was blowing, but it was not of the nature of a gale. The boats seemed to carry their racing sails well as they fetched out from the shelter of the breakwater, the Shamrock III leading on a tack out seaward, apparently with the intention of testing the strength of the wind outside. The breeze had just weight enough to keep her lee rail tipping. Before the start Sir Thomas Lipton, Ratsey, the sail maker, and Col. Sharman Crawford, vice commodore of the Royal Ulster Yacht club, boarded the challenger, which made a magnificent picture as under her cloud of canvas she drove past Nothead.

The Erin had taken up a position to send the boats away, round a triangualr course, and everything seemed to promise a fine race. The Shamrock III then made a short board on the port tack, dragging through a heavy squall with her lee decks awash.

At about 10:40 a. m., when nearly a mile off shore, she went about on the starboard tack to stand up to cross the line, when a sudden gust of wind sweeping out of Weymouth bay struck the yacht and completely dismantled her. The weather rigging screws of her main shrouds and her mast were carried away close to the deck and with them went her spars, sails and gearing in a confused mass of wreckage. The yacht's decks were crowded with Sir Thomas Lipton's guests, officers and men and it seemed impossible that the disaster was not attended by a serious loss of life. Deprived of its chief support, the immense steel tubular mast swayed for a fraction of a second, crumpled up like a tube of paper and went overboard, creating havoc as it fell.

So sudden was the calamity that the yacht lay wrecked and helpless before those on board of her well realized what had happened. Fortunately most of the tremendous weight of the gear fell clear of the deck, as otherwise the disaster must have been multiplied threefold. As it was, only one life was lost, that of a member of the crew named Collier, a brother-in-law of Capt. Wringe. Collier at the moment of the accident was handing a binocular glass to Sir Thomas, and still had the glass in his hand when he was struck by some of the tumbling gear and knocked overboard. The rattle of blocks and wire ropes on the metal deck of the boat drowned all other sounds for the time. The lull which followed was broken by a sharp order from Capt. Wringe to get away a boat. The captain's self-possession spurred the crew to instant action, and a boat was shot overboard, manned and started to search for Collier. Boats were also dropped from the Shamrock I and Erin, and in a couple of minutes these were all heading for the scene of the accident. Collier, however, never reappeared. A number of others were injured by falling gear, but none was seriously hurt. Sir Thomas was knocked down a hatchway and one of his hands was injured, but not seriously. Clearing away the wreckage was quite a difficult task owing to the nature of the spars and gear.

The Erin passed a line to the wrecked yacht and stood by her to give all the aid necessary. Sir Thomas, who was extremely distressed by the fatality and the injury to the yacht, said in an interview that the accident occurred absolutely without warning and much quicker than when the Shamrock II was similarly dismantled in the Solent.

The hull of the Shamrock III was not damaged. The mast, when it went overboard, went solid. There was at that time only one break, which was about seven feet above the deck. As the big spar with its weight of canvas became heavier owing to the water in it, the mast again buckled its head easy to repair the mast, but a whole suit of canvas is irretrievably ruined. going down till it rested on the bottom. It is believed it will be comparatively Barges with a crane were soon on the spot to raise the broken mast, after which the Shamrock III will be taken to her moorings inside the breakwater. Sir Thomas had a narrow escape. He was thrown down the hatchway with a sailor and fell with such force as to break the board flooring covering the tank.

Just as a race between the Shamrock II, the Shamrock I and the Sybarita was being started in the Solent, off Southampton, England, May 22, 1901, a sudden squall struck the yachts broadside on. The topmast of the Shamrock II was carried away and then her mainmast went by the board, carrying all her sails with it and leaving her practically a wreck. The Shamrock I was also considerably damaged. No one was injured on board either of the yachts, but King Edward, who was on the Shamrock II, had a narrow escape.

COURT IS ASKED TO SUSPEND DECREE IN THE MERGER CASE

That the Railroads May Pay Dividends to Something Over Nineteen Hundred People.

St. Paul, April 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Circuit Judge Sanborn this afternoon set Monday morning, April 20, as a time for hearing arguments on a request by attorneys for the Northern Securities company that the decree recently handed down be suspended in so far as it prevented the payment by the Great Northern and Northern Pacific roads of dividends to the Northern Securities company since these dividends would ultimately reach the same people anyway. Judge George B. Young appeared for President J. J. Hill, M. D. Grover for the Great Northern and General Counsul Bunn for the Northern Pacific. Under instructions from Attorney General Knox, Attorney Haupt appeared to oppose any motion for a modification of the decree. The attorneys for the railroads explained that the regular dividend had nearly arrived, but that under the decree it was impossible for the companies to close their books and pay and dividend, a matter affecting something like 1900 individuals many of them dependent on these dividends for the necessities of life. No modification of the decree was asked, all such matters being left for the formal appeal, which was sure to come in the course of time.

Judge Sanborn preferred that the whole matter be left over until all four of the circuit judges could hear it, which would be on May 4, but owing to the urgency of the matter on which a suspension was desired, finally agreed to hear and decide as to the required suspension on next Monday morning. District Attorney Haupt said he would present the case to Attorney General Knox in the meantime and learn his wishes. The attorneys for the Northern Securities company and for the two roads said they only wished permission to pay the regular dividends, which is impossible under their understanding of the decree of the court. Before the case can be finally passed on by the supreme court over $14,000,000 would be paid in dividends in case this part of the decree could be suspended, but otherwise that immense sum would be tied up and the people to whom it was properly due could not receive it.

OLD AND YOUNG DIE ON THE SCAFFOLD

Dr. Gartrell, Aged 68, and John Taylor, Aged 20, Are Executed.

Butler, Mo., April 17.—Dr. James L. Gartrell, the aged murderer of D. E. Donegan, a Colorado miner, was hanged in the county jail yard here today. About 1500 persons witnessed the execution, many coming to town from the surrounding country. The Rev. Williamson, of the Christian church, addressed the crowd from the scaffold before the condemned man was brought in. Dr. Gartrell displayed remarkable nerve and he talked briefly to the spectators before the black cap was adjusted. He stated that he had only one enemy he could not forgive, but would not mention his name.

In March, 1901, D. B. Donegan, a gold miner from Gunnison county, Col., came here to provide himself with an outfit to drive overland to Oklahoma, where he intended to buy a ranch. He met Dr. Gartrell and the latter's son William. An arrangement was made that the three should drive to Oklahoma together. When about 100 miles from Kansas City the party stopped to spend the night in a deserted cabin. The three men lay down to sleep, but only the two younger men slept. When the younger Gartrell awoke, he saw that his father had killed Donegan by splitting his head open with an ax. The man said to his father, "What did you kill him for?"

"Because, son, we needed the money," answered the old man. The two men carried Donegan's body to a nearby creek and dropped it in. The spring freshets soon washed the body on the banks, where it was found about two weeks later. Suspicion was directed towards the Gartrells, and when upon investigation it was learned that Dr. Gartrell had sold the team of horses in the neighborhood where the crime was committed, the father and son were arrested. Dr. Gartrell later confessed that he killed Donegan, entirely exonerating his son, but insisted that he did it in self-defense. Dr. Gartrell was the oldest man upon whom the death sentence has ever been pronounced in Missouri. He was 68 years old. He was six feet tall, very erect, despite his age, and wore a long, flowing beard. He was once a member of the Texas legislature. He was once probate judge of Refugio county, Texas.

Kansas City, April 17.—John "Bud" Taylor, aged 20 years, was hanged at the county jail here this morning for the murder, on March 2, 1901, of Ruth Nollard, his former sweetheart. Taylor was baptized into the Catholic church last night. He talked calmly of the approaching execution, slept well and walked to the scaffold bravely. Taylor expressed sorrow for his crime, but added: "I loved her and I was not willing to live without her."

Taylor's crime was prompted by jealousy because Miss Nollard, a working girl of 19, had jilted him. He planned the murder most deliberately. He lay in wait for his victim for several days and fired the matal shot at her with a rifle from a second story window in West Ninth street as she was passing by on the opposite side with her sister. Taylor formerly was a baseball player, having gained some prominence in minor leagues.

Shortly before the march to the scaffold Taylor handed his brother a small package of strychnine. The murderer said that he had had the powder for several months and intended to commit suicide last night. After being converted yesterday, however, he had decided to meet his fate. Taylor was probably the coolest man that was ever hanged in Jackson county.

St. Joseph, Mo., April 17.—Charles May, who shot and killed Robert Martin on Dec. 15, 1900, at a country dance, was hanged in the jail yard here today. His neck was broken. May has had three trials. He embraced the Catholic religion a week ago and was accompanied to the scaffold by the priest, who had previously baptised him.

THE BOARD OF CONTROL WINS COMSTOCK BILL IS KILLED

All Prospect of Getting University and Normal Schools From Board of Control Is Over—No Minneapolis Building For Grain Department.

FROM A STAFF CORRESPONDENT

St. Paul, April 16.—(Special to The Herald.)—Practically all hope of getting the state university and the normal schools away from the board of control has fled.

The senate yesterday afternoon killed the bill by Senator Comstock puting these schools back under the local boards. It came up in committee of the whole, and it was first amended so as to read just like the house bill passed the other day. Then the senate killed it. It was recommended for indefinite postponement in committee of the whole, and after the committee rose Senator E. B. Hawkins had the bill excepted from the report of the committee, and then moved that it be recommended to pass. There was a roll call on this motion, and it was defeated. The vote for indefinite postponement stood 25 to 18.

The only thread on which the last vestige of hope now rests is the house bill. It was reported out by the senate education committee yesterday with the recommendation that it pass. It will be taken up by the senate, but if the disposition of the senators remains as it was shown to be yesterday it will probably be killed.

This will be about the last chance the legislature will have to do something worth while. When one pauses to look back over the session and recall what important legislation has gone through, one is confronted by a difficult task, for it is impossible to remember anything of particular import to the state. Most of the time has been spent in killing bills. One house would pass a bill and the other would kill it. Most of the bills have been dull and tame, and most of those that were interesting

CHICAGO FINANCIER PROMOTES A SHARK KILLING ENTERPRISE

Proposes to Feed Loaded Dogs to the Man Eating Monsters and Then Collect the Bounty Offered By City of Havana.

New York, April 17.—A Chicago financier who spent eight weeks in Cuba investigating the island's opportunities is, according to a Herald dispatch from Havana, the promoter of a scheme for the killing of sharks in Havana waters that would result in immense financial returns to its backers.

An ordinance recently passed by the municipal council provides for the payment of a bounty of $3 for each female shark killed and of $2 for every male of the species slaughtered. The Chicago man was here when the ordinance was passed, and he at once interested friends in Chicago and here in his plans and a syndicate was formed. A large quantity of a high explosive was ordered shipped to Havana at once. At the same time fifty men were put to work capturing and corralling all the stray dogs to be found in the city and country adjacent, which were to be used as bait to draw the sharks into the harbor.

The syndicate proposed first to feed a few dogs to the sharks, and after a few days of this sort of baiting, the animals are to be sent adrift with an explosive cartridge tied to each of them. The supply of dogs in Cuba and the supply of sharks in the ocean being practically inexhaustible, the pecunlary outlook for the syndicate is considered promising.

OLD MAIDS CALL ROOSEVELT DOWN

New York, April 17.—The Western New York Old Maids' convention opened yesterday in the village of Pittsford, says a Rochester, N. Y., dispatch to the Herald.

Miss Amelia Higginson, the president in her opening address said: "President Roosevelt believes in the rearing of large families. He has a right to his opinion, but when he places childlessness in the same category with criminal acts he goes too far. The president is the father of what we Americans would call a large family. He is not the mother of a large family. We have heard nothing about race suicide from the mothers of America and we never shall.

"Let the president grapple with the trusts, the tariff, and the coming election. They are more in his line. He can safely leave the question of babies in the hands of the women of this great republic."

CONEY ISLAND LOOKS DESOLATE

New York, April 17.—Tide-battered and wind-swept, Coney island presents a picture of desolation. The beach is strewn with driftwood and debris, and cellars in the low-lying parts of the island are filled with water and the overflow of sewerage. Gangs of laborers are busy repairing the damage to the bulkheads in front of the Brighton Beach hotel and the old concourse. The high tides burst through the Brighton beach bulkheads, and the inrushing waters flooded the cellar and destroyed the work of the gardeners. At Brighton Beach the waves rose as high as twenty feet.

SULLIVAN ROSS CASE

Is Finally Settled After Years of Costly Litigation.

St. Paul, April 17.—A Marquette, Mich., special to the Dispatch says: Costly litigation of a dozen years' standing was finally compromised here last night when T. G. Sullivan, of Munising, accepted $125,000 in full settlement of his claim against the Ross estate. Payment was made by Frank Ross, of Quebec, one of the heirs, and the numerous suits involving the estate will now be summarily dropped. The litigation had its inception in the business relations between the Rosses and Sullivan, who claimed damages in connection with land and timber deals, and for an extended period the matter has been carried back and forth in the circuit supreme courts. The settlement will be followed by the closing up of the estate and the transfer of the property, consisting of an extensive timber acreage, to the heirs.

DUG UP HIS GOLD.

Deposited In Bank After Being Buried Years.

Woodbury, N. J., April 17.—Officials of the National bank are authority for the statement that a man has brought for deposit in the bank $18,500 which had laid buried in his backyard for years. They decline to give the name o fthe man, but say the money was nearly all in $20 gold pieces. The same bank received also a box full of gold, silver and nickels from another man, who had to take it to the bank on a wheelbarrow because it was too much of a load for two men to carry.

OPERATOR SUICIDES.

Seattle, April 17.—In a fit of despondency Jesse McCurdy, a telegraph operator on the military line to the interior from Valdes, committed suicide April 3, shooting himself through the heart.

THE PROMOTION SYNDICATE "WORKED" MANY P. O. CLERKS

New York, April 17.—Three postoffice inspectors from Western divisions have been busily engaged in the federal building here examining employes regarding the alleged promotion syndicate. More than a dozen clerks in the general postoffice were called before the inspectors and questioned closely.

What answers the men made cannot be learned, nor will the clerks so questioned even admit that they were called upon in connection with the syndicate. It is evident all have been cautioned against talking. While none of the postal officials will admit it, it is learned from a reliable authority that the method of the syndicate was as follows:

One of two or three men in the general postoffice in this city would approach a clerk who was on the list recommended for promotion. This clerk would be informed it was known he was not on the list of 1616 men recommended by Postmaster Van Cott, the promotions to take effect on July 1. The agent would say, through certain Washington connections, he was able to promise that the clerk would be placed on the list.

Usually, unless the clerk was satisfied his record was so good his promotion practically was assured, an agreement was entered into whereby money was paid to the agent, the understanding being that if promotion was not made the money was to be refunded.

It was evident that the "syndicate" had access to the list, as recommended by the postmaster and sent to the division of salaries and allowances, for a comparison is said to have been made between this list and that of men employed in the postoffice. All of the men whose names really had been left off the list were approached and informed they had not been recommended for promotion, but it could be "fixed." This was accomplished, it is said, by dropping some of the men recommended by the postmaster. It is understood, also, that the list as recommended by the Washington department differed in many respects from that sent in by the postmaster. The amount paid to the agents is said to have been from $25 to $50 a man.

To keep the men from talking to one another about the scheme, it is said the agents represented to the employe approached that his friend in Washington, "who had the pull," could get only one or two men on the list. This "friend" was represented as occupying a position so close to the chief officials that the addition of one or two names would be made a personal favor. Each clerk was cautioned he must not say anything or the plan would get to other ears and the clerks in Washington would be overwhelmed with applications from New York friends to get them on the list of recommended employes, the result being that none of them would get an advance. It is said nearly 1000 clerks paid their money to the agents of the syndicate in New York.

In addition to the three inspectors at work examining clerks, six others are known to be in the city, detailed on other ends of the scandal.

THOUSAND POUND STATUE STOLEN

Chicago, April 17.—The big bronze statue of Atlas, which has stood on the fourth floor of the old Times building for more than a third of a century, and which was placed in the structure by Wilbur F. Storey, has been stolen, and the police were notified last night to make careful search for it. The statue weighed more than a ton, and how it was carried from the building without attracting the attention of occupants or the police is a mystery. The statue came into the possession of Carter H. Harrison, father of the mayor, with the purchase of the Times building and newspaper about twelve years ago. With the death of Mr. Harrison it went to the estate. Mr. Storey bought the statue in Europe, it is said, paying $1500 for it.

SKULLS OF THE FAIRS TO BE USED TO REFUTE MAS' STORY

Heirs of Charles Fair Expect to Show That Statements of Frenchman Were Prevarications By Means of the Heads of the Victims.

San Francisco, April 17.—The Call this morning says that startling developments are promised in the Charles L. Fair case now before the New York courts. It is alleged that facts have come to light here most damaging to the testimony given a few days ago in New York by Lucien Mas and Alfred J. Morane, the Frenchmen, who were called to recount certain incidents attending the death of Charles L. Fair and his wife in France, which, if true, would strongly tend to establish as a fact that Mrs. Fair survived her husband and thus left her own relatives the direct heirs to the fortune inherited under these circumstances to her husband.

It has been learned, continues the Call, from one of those who is deeply concerned in the Fair case that the skulls of the late Mr. and Mrs. Fair, whose bodies were shipped back to San Francisco after they had been relinquished by the French authorities, have been preserved and are now in the custody of responsible persons here, ready to be produced when the times comes for refuting the evidence given in New York. Whether they will be sent to New York or remain here is a matter that is to depend wholly upon a move that is to be made shortly to have the case transferred to the courts of this city.

When the bodies of the Fairs were received in New York from France, they were discovered to be in such a decomposed condition that it was deemed advisable to hasten the funeral in San Francisco. It is now stated that the funeral was followed by an autopsy, that included the decapitation of both bodies—an operation that was made by Drs. Gallawy and Robinson.

The testimony of Mas and Morane that Mrs. Fair was living when they approached the bodies, and that blood was streaming down one side of her face, is contradicted by concrete evidence—the woman's skull. It can be shown by the skull that such would have been an impossibility, it is claimed. The skull of Charles Fair, now in the safe keeping of his friends, was not crushed in the manner described by the French witnesses. In fact, it remains instact, although showing a depression caused by a forceful contact, which resulted in concussion of the brain and the death of the man.

THE STAGE.

A well filled house greeted the first night performance of "A Celebrated Case," by the Ferris comedians, at the Metropolitan Opera house, last evening. The production while much different than the class of entertainments that the company has been putting on seemed to find favor. The story is a French one and includes a murder and robbery in the first act which forms the basis for the rest of the plot. G. A. Forbes took the part of John Renaud, the soldier who was falsely accused of the murder of his wife and who spent twelve years in the galleys while Lazarre represented by Will H. White, the real murderer lived in peace and plenty. Miss Carrington appeared in the prologue as Madeline Renaud, the wife of John Renaud, and in the rest of the story as Adrienne, Renaud's daughter. Harry Langdon represented the Duke D'Aubeterre, who adopted Adrienne after her father's conviction, and Josie Haines played the duchesse. William Lang appeared as Dennis O'Rourke, the Irish sergeant and Albert Dorris, was Raoul de Langy, the betrothed of Adrienne. Miss O'Neil represents Valentine de Mornay, the friend of Adrienne, who finally denounces her supposed father, Lazarre, as the murderer of Madeline Renaud.

In Winnipeg where "Arizona" appeared a few days ago, the papers termed it the strongest company seen there this season. The same company will appear at the Lyceum this evening and tomorrow afternoon and evening. The scenic embellishment is said to be one of the striking features of the production. The pictures are all painted from sketches of the original made on the spot by the eminent painter. Frederick Remington, and such has been the success of the painter to reproducing the same that one can almost feel the aroma of the cactus and sage bush and imagine the inhaling of the dry choking alkali dust.

THE MATINEE HERO.

Giddy Girls Lose Courage at Wrong Moment.

A story is being whispered around among the friends of two or three young women in this city who have become quite "soft" over a popular young actor whose sojourn in Duluth has extended over a period of many weeks. These fair young damsels have attended many performances and every time have found a new charm in their hero—"such lovely hair," "such expressive eyes," and "oh, such a sweet, melodious voice." Of course they knew he was married, but what did that matter; they were positive he did not love his wife; anyway he was too good for her.

A few evenings ago, after a series of particularly warm spasms over their favorite, the young ladies decided to call him up by 'phone, at his hotel, and tell him how delighted they were with his acting, and several other nice things. One with more courage than the rest asked for the hotel at which the actor was stopping, and then for him, but when "that sweet, melodious voice" inquired "Well, what is it?" several foolish little hearts almost stopped beating, and all the nice things each miss had planned to say fled so far from her mind that she did not find them again for twenty-four hours.

Again the inquiry came as to what was wanted, but not one of the fond admirers could muster up courage to answer, and with an expletive of disgust because of the trouble he had been put to, the hero actor hung up the receiver and lighted a cigar.

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

Andrew D. Wright, former ambassador to Germany, has declined to serve as one of the United States commissioners at the forthcoming monetary conference, thus confining the delegation to the three persons already named, Messrs. Conant, Jenks and R. H. Hanna.

Two large stables belonging to Joseph B. Vandergrift were destroyed by fire at Wellsburg, W. Va., entailing a loss of $75,000. Thirteen of his blooded horses were burned, including his prize driving horse, Edna Cook, valued at $5000. The fire was undoubtedly of incendiary origin. The insurance, it is thought, will almost cover the loss.

The superintendents of the mines on the "Mother Lode," Co., now tied up by a strike, met and issued a statement to the public stating that unless afforded protection the mines would be closed indefinitely. A formal notice was issued to the sheriff that if non-union miners were not protection he would be held responsible for all damages.

The postoffice at Arcola Station, Manitoba, was robbed Wednesday night by parties who entered the back door. They cut open the Winnipeg mail pouch and secured over $2000 in cash and valuable papers amounting to about $6000. There is no clue to the robbers.

Martin Zidmayer was convicted at Livingstone, Mont., of the murder of George Reider on Trail Creek, April 10, 1901. Zidmayer said Reider wronged his (Zidmayer's) daughter and taunted her parents with the fact until Mrs. Zidmayer committed suicide. Later when they quarreled over the matter, Zidmayer says Reider attacked him with an axe and he shot Reider in self-defense.

A gas explosion in a mine of the McAlster coal and mining company today at Buck, I. T., resulted in the death of Thomas Fife and serious injury to Lawrence Buckley. Injury to Lett Frank, John Johnson and Henry Johnson. Forty miners were working in the pit but all others escaped. The mine was not injured.

M. Deifonderfer, of Wood River, Neb., won the Grand American handicap at inanimate targets at Kansas City, breaking 94 out of a possible 100 targets, second Max Henster, of Battle Creek, Mich., 93; third, C. B. Adams, Rockwell City, Ia., 92. Difenderfer has been shooting at targets for about four years, but never before had entered the Grand American handicap.

IT WAS A FAKE.

Romantic Story of Mathilda Youngquist Not True.

Kalispell, Mont., April 17.—Careful inquiry fails to reveal any trace of Mathilda Youngquist, who was said to have been a Swedish heiress, and was found among the Indians. The name of Youngquist is not known in the county and the story is believed to be a myth.

MORE HEAT UNITS

Coke Oven Gas to Run Twenty-Five Per Cent Higher.

Expectation That It Will Be as Cheap as Coal.

"I believe there is little doubt but that the gas to be made as a by-product by the Zenith Furnace company's coke ovens," said Manager Case of the city light and water department, "will contain one-fourth more heat units to the 1000 feet of gas than that made by the city.

"That is, if the Otto system is what is claimed for it. The city's gas, so-called water gas, contains between 600 and 650 heat units in 1000 feet. The coal gas to be made at the coke ovens, by trying out the gas from the coal, will have probably 800 or more. This I do not know, but it is what has been claimed."

Mr. Case spoke in regard to his statement last fall that for heating and fuel purposes in furnaces the city gas would cost the consumer about twice as much as coal at $7.50 a ton.

The reason for this is that the city gas is made for illuminating purposes, and the perfection in incandescence is the object for which the effort is made. In acquiring perfection in this direction, the heat unit is reduced in volume in the gas, and while it is a fine illuminating substance, it does not do as well for heating and cooking as it would otherwise. It is for that reason the cost of heating gas is so much.

An actual test was made this winter when a prominent citizen of Duluth heated his home with gas. Mr. Case was anxious to ascertain what the results showed and made some inquiries. It was shown that it took 30,000 feet of dollar gas to run the house a month. It would have taken two tons of coal to do the same work, and the cost of the latter would have been $15 at $7.50 a ton, just one-half of the cost of the gas.

The new company now comes in and claims that with the reduction of one-fourth in the cost of the gas, and an increase of one-fourth in the number of heat units offered, it will be able to reduce the excessive cost to the real cost of coal, or make gas to be used in heating for the price it would cost to get the same heat out of the coal, and was infinitely less bother and dirt. Says Mr. Case:

"The situation of the new company is this: It cannot get out of a ton of coal as many heat units as there are in the coal and transfer it without losing any in the operations. That is not the idea; but it can deliver the heat units for the price of a ton of coal because it will have the coke left, and there will be tar and ammonia also. The coke is wanted for the use of the furnace, and the greater the amount of by-product sold the cheaper to the company will be the cost of the coke, and that is what it is striving for.

"The process to be used is not one that has been long in use. There are six plants in existence, I believe. The proposition has always been a serious one. Either the coke was good and the gas suffered, or vice versa. The coke from the general run of gas plants is a very inferior fuel, and the gas from coke ovens is usually not worth anything for consumption like that of a city. The perfector of this process says he has solved the question of getting both the elements in a good form, and destroying neither while creating the other.

"We make water gas. Formerly we used anthracite coal to generate this commodity. It has been made of soft coal latterly, however, because the hard coal played out. From all appearances there will be plenty of coal this year, and we will have 90 cent gas, whether we make the contract with the Zenith people or not. It costs so much to make gas, but that is not where the prices receive their government. The interest on bonds and the system in distribution are responsible for the prices to the consumer.

"So you see we will get gas at what it would cost us to make it, and our plant will lie idle, in readiness, however, for operation at an instant's notice. All we need is a pair of pants at any time. The fires will be all laid and a match ready to strike.

"We will receive a gas that is made up of more heat units than that made by the city, and will probably be more adaptable to heating and cooking. It will be made by a different process, and will be as strong in its incandescence as the water gas we have been making.

"The proposition simply amounts to the fact that under this process more heat units to the 1000 feet can be secured than in the water gas process. They can't get more out of a ton of coal, but it is prepared more quickly and is not treated as much, which causes it to retain more heat units than that made by the water process."

IT BROKE A SPEECH.

A Legislator Was Beaten at His Own Game.

"Senator Morgan's speech will break the record, you say? Well, what if it does?" sniffed the professional patriot from the West, says the New York Sun.

"Record-breakin speeches ain't nothin'. They happen every time the local newspaper goes to press. Now if 'twas a speech-breakin' record you had in mind, that'd be something uncommonly uncommon; something worth talking about.

"A speech-breakin' record? Yes, I heard one once. 'Twas when I was state senator out in Texas or Washington, or some of them states around there. I've forgotten just which. 'Twas the one where they allowed unlimited debate just like they do in the United States senate. Maybe that'll help you place it.

"'Twas old Senator Snitcher's speech that the record broke. He was a Democrat; or was he a Republican? Anyway, he belonged to the minority party, whichever that was.

"Well, he'd introduced some bill near the close of the session, either to abolish or establish some committee on agriculture or something in order to block the interurban bill of some sort which the majority party of which I was part of the majority, had hoped to squeeze through. And he'd 'a' been successful, too, exceptin'—but now I'm getting ahead of my story.

"Caleb Snitcher was a raw-boned old farmer-feller with one of them long wind-refinery beards. His lips were so thin that when he talked you held your breath for fear they'd cut each other, and his voice buzzed out flat and monotonous as if all the kinks had been smothered out of it with a steam roller.

"When Caleb rose to introduce his pro-anti-agriculture resolutions the sergeant-at-arms lowered the shades, and the other senators, after wishing each other pleasant dreams, settled themselves down as comfortably as the seats to which they had been elected would permit.

"'Mr. Speaker,' began Caleb, when the speaker had yawned him recognition, 'in connection with this bill I would like permission to read a few extracts from the state records pertaining to agriculture for the last twenty-five years. I have here—'

"Snitcher raised the lid of his desk and began fumbling round among its contents. He finally drew forth a pamphlet, and as soon as the breathing in the senate chamber had become even and regular, started to drone forth its contents.

"'Bzz—for the year ending 1886—brr—bushels of corn—br—wheat—brr—8407 acres under cultivation—bzz—yielding 205,972 bushels—brr—total value of $191,554, which under nor-r-mal conditions—'

"After buzzing along in this manner for a few minutes Caleb said he would like to read from the records for the year 1887, and he fumbled in his desk until he found another pamphlet. He started droning off from that one in much the same way.

"When that one wrs finished he went to his desk for a third, and a fourth and so on. His supply seemed inexhaustible.

"The senator from Jones county seemed to take exception to something in the ninth pamphlet and turned over a couple of times in his sleep. But the speaker quickly snored him to order and the reading went on without further interruption.

"That evening, when the sergeant-at-arms called us, Senator Snitcher announced that his speech would probably last two days longer until the close of the session. But it didn't. And that's where yours truly takes the center of the stage.

"About the middle of the second day o Caleb's speech I was rudely awakened by the Senator from Squeejeega county (Dem.) who was shouting in his sleep that the senator from New Siam (Rep.) had taken more than his share of the bedclothes. I was just about to roll over for another forty sly winks when I happened to gaze over in Senator Snitcher's direction.

"What I saw made me start. Senator Caleb Snitcher was drinking a glass of water and speaking at the same time!

"I blinked a little and looked again. He had either set the glass down or else I had been mistaken. Probably the latter, I thought.

"I was just dozing off again under the soothing influence of his monotonous buzz-buzz when I again saw something that made me start. I rubbed my eyes and looked hard. This time there could be no mistake. Senator Snitcher was tiptoeing his way out through the door, and his voice was still delivering a speech from his desk!

"I was wide awake in an instant. My first impulse was to rouse the whole senate, but my better judgment restrained me. I stole softly over to Caleb's desk. The senator seemed to be talking through the ink well. I gently raised the top, and there found—you'll scarcely believe it, gentlemen—a full-sized phonograph and about three dozen records.

"I closed that desk and tiptoed to the rear of the room, where the sergeant-at-arms slept. I shook him gently and then told him of my discovery. He was for waking up the speaker right then and there and telling him about it. But I said no.

"'It's Snitcher's voice that's on them records,' said I, 'and there ain't nothin' in the rules that keep a man's body from goin' wherever it wants to, as long as the man speaks from his seat. Snitcher's speakin' from his seat all right, so we can't shut him up on that score. But I'll tell you what we can do.'

"I whispered what we could do in the ear of the sergeant-at-arms and thrust a half dollar into his hand.

"'Remember,' I cautioned him before sneaking back to my seat, 'get the loudest one you can, and be sure that you put it where he'll use it first.'

"My excitement over the day's events put further sleep out of the question and I could only feign slumber the rest of the day.

"On the morning of the third day the senate opened as usual. Senator Caleb took the floor and announced that he would spend the morning in reading extracts of beef and other matters pertaining to agriculture.

"He lifted his desk and began fumbling around in it. Finally he drew forth the customary thin pamphlet and assumed an oratorical attitude. The senators were just about to settle for the day when to the amazement of all, a sweet, clear soprano voice that filled the chamber, soared forth from Senator Snitcher in this wise:

"'Blr-z-r-In the good old summer time—br-r—'

"'Order, order!' shouted the speaker thumping with his gavel.

"'Strolling through the shady-br-r-lanes,' persited the sweet soprano.

"'Order, sir! This has nothing to do with agriculture or—'

"'With your baby mine,' suggested the melodious voice.

"'Seize him! Put him out!'

"'Hold her hands—z-rr—and she holds yours—z-r-rr—and that's a very good sign—br-r—'

"'Twas at this point that the inkstands began to fly. The rest of the painful incident is best described by the New Siam Sentinel.

"'Senator Snitcher,' according to that esteemed journal, 'while delivering a set speech in the senate unfortunately set the wrong speech. This badly upset the senate, who only after the hottest kind of a physical debate succeeded in setting down the Hon. Caleb. The close of the session was marked by the peaceful passage of the interurban bill.'

"And that," concluded the professional patriot from the West, "is all I know about the record that broke a speech."

WANTS SHARE OF MONEY.

Uncle Dan Winters Earned on Gov. Thompkins.

The story of how Daniel Winters, gunner of the bold brig Governor Thompkins, saved his ship from capture by a British sloop of war early in the war of 1812, is a part of the history of the United States navy. There may be some records of the achievement in the archives of the British admiralty, but the student of history would probably have to dig to find it. In the war of 1812 the Governor Thompkins, Capt. Smith, played a part somewhat similar to that of the Bonhomme Richard, Capt. John Paul Jones, in the revolution. She was a privateersman and sailed the seas to prey upon British shipping; and rich was the treasure which she captured. So far as the records have been examined, however, there is nothing to show that the spoil that came to the privateersman's chest was ever divided. At least the descendants of Gunner Winters never heard of any division, and for that reason they are about to and for that reason they aer about to put in a claim to the United State's government for Daniel's share of the treasure.

The nearest living lineal descendants of Daniel Winters are James Winters, his great-great-grandson, who lives at Sag Harbor, L. I.; John W. Winters, superintendent of the gas lamps in Jersey City, and his brothers, George and William Schuyler Winters, of Brooklyn. It is John W. Winters who is thinking about putting in a claim to the government for his great-great-uncle Daniel's share of the Governor Thompkins' prize money. But he won't do it, he said yesterday, until he gets over an attack of a cross between the grip and pneumonia, which has confined him to his house, 108 Mercer street, Jersey City, since the last day of February.

Mr. Winters is something of a celebrity himself. He says he is 80 years old, but his wife insists that he is younger by just ten years. She is her husband's second wife and many years his junior. Whenever Mrs. Winters contradicts her husband as to his age, Mr. Winters remarks:

"Have it your own way, my dear, have it your own way, but all the same I was born in 1882, at five minutes after 12 o'clock, and if that don't make me 80 years old, then I'm so old I've forgotten how to cipher.

Mr. Winters has held his job for forty years. Before he got it he was a member of the old municipal police of New York and of the successor to that body, the metropolitan police. He was also a member of the old Brooklyn volunteer fire department of the Thirteenth regiment. In speaking of his Uncle Daniel yesterday afternoon and of Governor Thompkins, Mr. Winters said:

"All the Winterses, so far as the family records show, were fond of the sea. When the war of 1812 broke out Uncle Dan wanted to have a hand in it and finally he got a chance to ship with Capt. Smith on the Governor Thompkins as a gunner. His job was to load and fire the ship's Long Tom as often as he could when the occasion required. That same Long Tom, by the way, was exhibited at the World's fair in Chicago. The Thompkins scouted the Atlantic from the Capes to New England, and whenever she came across a British merchantman that looked like she was worth tackling, the Thompkins made for her and, I believe, the record is that she never missed the treasure, gold or goods, or the treasure and merchantman both.

"Well, she was returning from one of these scouting expeditions early in the war, her chests chock-a-block with spoil, Capt. Smith intended to put in at New York, but when he got off Sandy Hook he sighted some British ships of the line and he concluded New York harbor wouldn't be a real comfortable place in which to drop anchor. So he bore off to the southeast, rounded Montauk Point and was thinking of putting in at some point along the sound when a British sloop-of-war was sighted. Smith thought he'd take a chance with her, and when he got within nice shooting distance he opened fire. They had it hot and heavy for a while, but near sundown Smith saw that he'd made a mistake in mixing up with the Britisher. The Thompkins was not pretty well full of holes, and he deck got pretty well spilled with blood.

"Finally, Uncle Dan spoke up and said he could take the brig through Plum Gut if Smith would let him, and if the Britisher followed she would go to the bottom or get stuck on the rocks. 'Go ahead,' said Smith, and Uncle Dan took the Thompkins through the Gut as easy as you please and found a harbor further down the coast.

"The treasure was unloaded and the brig went off on another cruise. Later she was sunk. The survivors put in a claim, I suppose, for their prize money, but to whom I don't know. I can't find that the claim ever got to Washington. At any rate, Uncle Dan never got his share, and when I get better I'm going down to Sag Harbor, where my uncle lived, and get all the records I can, and then I'm going to write to the president to recommend some good, honest senator to me who'll take up the claim and put it through."

EGGS ARE RISING

Deciding Stiffening In Price In the Past Week.

Meats Also Take Upward Turn—Strawberries By Carload.

The past week has seen a decided stiffening in the price of eggs. They are now selling at 14 and 14½ cents per dozen.

"Large quantities of eggs are being placed in cold storage," said the manager of one of the Michigan street produce houses. "This in part accounts for the raise in price. The Minneapolis and Chicago markets have also experienced a raise in egg prices from the same reason.

"Another cause for the stiffening is the large export trade that is being done. Minnesota eggs are being shipped East in very large quantities. The Minnesota eggs are the finest eggs in the country and always find a ready sale in the New York market. The winters are so severe here that the farmers are compelled to build substantial poultry barns, and the consequence is that their hens are in better condition in the spring than those in more southerly states which are allowed to go without proper protection from the cold during the winter months. The farmers in this state also make more of a business of poultry raising and are more particular as to the breed of hens they raise."

The first carload of strawberries was received in Duluth last week. They were from Mississippi and of a very high grade, being the first pickings.

Beef has followed mutton in is upward flight during the past week. Dressed beef is now selling at 7 and 8 cents and muton at 11. Lamb is quoted at 13 cents.

"The raise in meat prices is, so far as I know, due merely to the scarcity of the meats," said the manager of one of the branch packing houses. "Some people may see in it the work of a 'trust,' but I believe it comes merely from the fact that the farmers are not sending in their stock to the packing houses. If there were a similar raise in the price of silks, or whisky, or any of the luxuries, nothing would be said of it, but as soon as you touch the stomachs of the people you hear a howl about combinations and butchers' associations."

The meat dealers report a busy week. The end of Lent caused a noticeable increase in trade, and the retailers, both on the ranges and in the city, are buying freely.

No change has been reported in poultry prices. They remain at the high figure which has been maintained during the winter and show no signs of a weakening.

TAKE FARMS IN CANADA

Large Number of People Leave During Present Week.

Sixty-seven people, mostly the heads of families, left St. Louis county and the head of the lakes last week for Canada, over the Northern Pacific railroad. The destinations were Duck Lake, Wetaskison, Davidson, Stavely and other points in the vicinity of Winnipeg, where the Canadian government is making many inducements for settlers.

The families which left were represented by John Trombley, Maggie Brooks, Fred, Florence and Edward Trombley and Joseph Trombley, of Aitkin; John Sleveo, Ed Erickson, Mrs. F. J. Patenaude, John Darcey and Martin Erickson, of West Duluth; John Rude, Gust Johnson, Joseps Burns, Eric Langdon, Ed Lofgrein, L. W. Prankey, John Larkin, Paul Murphy, E. G. Thrums, Dona Parent, John Savon, Renm Vanderpovenier, Leon Hewett, Milon D. Cradison, William Broomfield and Thomas Hale; Hans Larson and W. J. Kennedy, West Superior; Albert Terman, Alonzo Mudge, H. E. Yearick and Fred W. Weller, of Wrenhasset; John Boves, Virginia.

The party expects to remain and take up farms. Another party almost as large left Tuesday night for the same territory.

HIGH GRADE HEMATITE.

James J. Hill's New Mine Near Valley, Wash.

Spokane, Wash., April 17.—Thirty-two feet of the highest grade of hematite ore ever mined in the United States have been opened on the Iron Hill mine in operation under Great Northern management for several months.

The mine is ten miles west of Valley, Wash., on the S. F. & N. railway. The property can be connected with a branch of the Great Northern at Valley by a spur over an easy grade. The railway people have begun to acquire the right-of-way.

Louis W. Hill, son of J. J. Hill, has been in Spokane in consultation regarding the discovery and deeper working machinery will be put in.

THE BOARD OF CONTROL WINS COMSTOCK BILL IS KILLED

have been killed, which is perhaps in most cases just as well.

* * *

The senate also killed Senator Gjertsen's proposition to appropriate $50,000, to be used by the railroad and warehouse commission in erecting a building in Minneapolis for the use of the grain inspection department. When the bill came up before it was amended so as to give Duluth a similar building, and then, for fear of killing the bill, the Duluth senators withdrew the amendment. The outcome of the bill shows that that consideration was unnecessary, as the bill died anyway.

* * *

The omnibus appropriation bill took up most of the time of both houses yesterday, but it went through without any changes, except those suggested by the appropriation committees. The senate put in nearly all of yesterday afternoon on the measure, taking it up section by section, but all it did was to adopt the committee amendments that had already been adopted by the house, and then passed the bill, sending it on to the governor for his signature. This action puts the state in position to continue in business another year, and permits the legislature to draw their pay again, as the bill carried an appropriation of $20,000 to complete the session, making $170,000 in all that this session has cost the state.

Practically the only important legislation left is the tax amendments to the constitution, and it is yet to be seen whether or not the deadlock between the senate and house on this proposition is dangerous enough to defeat any legislation along this line. The house is for wide-open amendments, and the senate is for restricted amendments. A conference committee from both houses is now engaged in trying to patch up a compromise bill that will please both sides.

* * *

The senate, after passing the omnibus bill, passed a resolution offered by Senator Wilson, thanking and complimenting the work of the sub-committee of the finance committee that assisted a similar house committee in getting up the bill. As a matter of fact, the committees did nobly. While the bill carries a large appropriation, larger than that of two years ago, still it has been held down where there will be a low state tax rate. The number of bills calling for appropriations that came in during the session was appalling. Besides, this committee had to shoulder the burden of deficits left by the committees of which J. F. Jacobson, of Lac Qui Parle, had charge, which prunde things down, in the interests of a good record, so as to make it impossible to avoid deficits. This committee has had to make up these deficits, and to cut down the calls for cash so as to make the bill reasonable.

* * *

Duluth fares very well in the appropriations. The normal school gets $63,000, which is the amount asked by the normal school board, and which will do the Duluth school very nicely. Besides, the old bills against the building that have been hanging fire are cleaned up, outside of this appropriation.

* * *

Senator Dale tried yesterday to get a motion through the senate calling the Haugland tax bill from the committee on taxes and tax laws, but the motion failed. Senator E. E. Smith, chairman of the committee, explained that there were people who wanted to be heard on the bill, and the committee did not wish to hurry it out without consideration. Senator Dale said that it was simply a scheme to throttle the bill in committee. He was probably correct, but this action is not of such a nature as to blacken the record of the members of the committee. The bill is a foolish one, in most respects, and the state will be nothing loser from its defeat.

* * *

The house yesterday passed a bill that will give the agricultural department of the state university $250,000 within the next two years to make needed additions that are called for by the growth of the institution, which is keeping pace with the development of the state. The senate also passed the bill, which provides that the state auditor shall levy a sufficient tax to raise this amount. As there was some doubt whether the bill removing the university from the board of control would pass, the bill was amended so as to provide that the money should be spent under the direction of the authorities "designated by law."

* * *

Senator Somerville's bill providing for referees to adjust fire insurance losses was given a new lease of life in the house yesterday. The insurance committee had recommended it for indefinite postponement, and the house had accepted the report, but yesterday Frank Clague, of Redwood county, moved a reconsideration and got the bill on general orders.

* * *

J. F. Rosenwald, of Lac Qui Parle county, made an ineffectual effort yesterday to get his maximum freight rate bill made a special order for Saturday morning. The railroad committee reported it without recommendation, with a written report on it condemning it as utterly impracticable. Naturally it would go on general orders Saturday, but Mr. Rosenwald wanted it made a special order. Speaker Babcock ruled that this would require eighty votes, and it got only fifty-four, there being thirty-six against it, so the motion was lost. The bill will have to take its regular course which will leave it at the third quarter stretch at the finnish of the session.

* * *

The house yesterday concurred in the amendments made by the senate to the anti-vaccination bill, and repassed it by a vote of 64 to 4. The amendments make the term "anti-vacination" exceedingly incongruous, as the bill as it stands simply provides that vaccination shall not be compulsory, except in epidemics of smallpox, which is the custom at present.

* * *

H. E. Fryberger, of Minneapolis, tried to revive his bill increasing the salaries of the supreme court justices yesterday afternoon, but his attempt was unsuccessful. When the bill was killed the other day, he moved to reconsider, but his motion was laid on the table. Yesterday he moved to have his motion taken from the table and it was voted down, 35 for and 66 against.

THOMSON'S "GLOVE-FITTING" CORSETS.

In many styles—for many figures—at prices from $1 to $25—but all alike in the one vital particular, they are all "GLOVE-FITTING" and gowns fit like a glove when worn over them. Leaders for thirty-five years, THOMSON'S "GLOVE-FITTING" CORSETS still represent the acme of style and perfect fit for every figure.

GEO. C. BATCHELLER & CO.
SOLE M'F'RS
345-347 BROADWAY, NEW YORK

James R. Hickey, of St. Paul, yesterday introduced a bill amending the law against jumping board bills. The changes in the law are designed to make it effective, as the old law is framed in such a manner that convictions are difficult and sometimes impossible. The bill makes it a misdemeanor to jump a board bill, to smuggle baggage out without paying, to attempt to do so or to secure credit under false pretenses.

* * *

The house yesterday passed only three bills, all house files. The only important one was that of Anthony Yoerg, of St. Paul, permitting interurban railways to run into cities over the tracks of city street railway companies. It was passed by a vote of 68 to 16. STILLMAN H. BINGHAM.

VILLAGE IS CLEAN

Buhl Adopts Plan of Making Petty Criminals Work.

President W. J. West Is Responsible For the Innovation.

The vilage of Buhl, one of the hustling range towns, has inaugurated a system of civic improvement in the way of cleaner streets and better roads that is said to be a fine example for the other range towns, and even Duluth.

Buhl has a "chainless gang," the same as Duluth, but in the range village there is yet to be reported an instance where one of the gang has made his escape.

It will be a matter of no small interest to people of this vicinity to know that the changed condition of affairs at the neighboring town has been brought about through the efforts of its new village president, W. J. West, manager of the Sharon Ore company, and formerly chief deputy clerk of the district court when John Owen was in charge of that office.

President West has the very able backing of the village marshal, Edward LeBeau, and together those officials have planned and are carrying out a very aggressive scheme of public improvement and practically without cost to the village. Like many of the other range towns, Buhl has at times been overrun with vags and drunks and on their conviction for minor offenses, the county has been put to the expense of having an officer bring them to Duluth to serve a short term in the county jail. In cases where they were confined in the local jails, the villages were put to an expense for which they got no return.

President West conceived the idea of making the drunks and vags that struck Buhl work for the village and Marshal LeBeau has carried out his orders to the letter. A Duluthian who was recently in Buhl says that Marshal LeBeau has a gang of about ten men under short term sentences for vagrancy or drunkenness, working on the streets and Buhl has become one of the cleanest villages on the range. The roads have been repaired within the village limits and the place has been given a noticeable air of cleanliness and prosperity. President West's plan is receiving the enthusiastic approval of the citizens of Buhl and they are delighted with the change in the appearance of their town.

Marshal LeBeau is an effective officer and not only does he see to it that the prisoners do their full share of work, but when any one of them tries to break for liberty, he is quickly brought back to his work in a manner which takes away a desire for the second attempt.

The citizens of Buhl are recommending the tactics of their village president to the executive officials of the other range towns.

FIBS AND GETS HOLIDAY.

Story By Precocious Child Gives School a Fright.

Philadelphia, April 17.—Because a little girl told a fib several pupils and nearly a score of teachers in the Pierce school were given a bad fright, also a holiday.

They all hurried home and fumigated themselves to escape smallpox contagion. Meanwhile, one innocent-looking little girl was laughing up her sleeve as she enjoyed herself sledding up and down on the front pavement, conscious that she had occasioned all the trouble. The little girl had come to school late and when asked to account for her tardiness replied most unconsciously: "Oh, aunt has the smallpox."

"Get out of here," ordered the teacher, as she opened the door and showed the tardy maid to the steps.

"Throw open the windows," directed the principal, and in a few moments the signal gongs were ringing and hundreds of children were filing down fire escapes and stairways. The cause of all the commotion went home alone that day, severely shunned by her companions when they heard the smallpox story. Meanwhile the board of education and bureau of health were notified and precautions were made for the disinfection of the school and the removal of the afflicted "aunt" to the municipal hospital. When the health officials reached the house they found there was no smallpox case there at all. The little girl was called in for an explanation. All she had to say was:

"Oh, I thought we'd get a vacation if aunt had the smallpox."

FIST FIGHT IN COURT ROOM

Lawyers In Chase Case Put Up a Good Exhibition.

Lafayette, Ind., April 17.—There was a fist fight in the circuit court room yesterday afternoon between Attorneys Dan Simms, representing Fred Chase, father of Moses Fowler Chase, and A. L. Kumler, representing Mr. and Mrs. Charles Duhme, of Cincinnati, who are fighting for the possession of young Chase, the millionaire. The attorneys had met for a conference with the judge to determine what should be done with Moses Fowler Chase, pending the hearing of the guardianship case. Kumler denounced the attorneys on the other side and also Chase's father and declared that Moses Fowler Chase had been brought to Indiana from France by force and fraud. He had further asserted that the unfortunate young man was put on exhibition at the law offices of Chase's attorneys when Former Judge E. P. Hammond shouted: "That's an absolute falsehood."

Attorney Simms jumped up from his seat and approached Kumler, who tried to ward him off. Simms then landed a fierce right swing on Kumler's jaw and followed it with a left hook. Both blows landed. Kumler protecting himself as best he could.

The court room was crowded and lawyers, court officers and spectators sprang toward the combatants and dragged them apart. The judge fined Simms $25 for striking the first blow and this quieted matters. Simms then apologized and Kumler asked the court to remit the fine, as he said he felt sure that Simms struck in a moment of temper. The court remitted the fine and directe dthat Moses Fowler Chase remain in the court's jurisdiction with the understanding that Mr. and Mrs. Durhme, who are his aunt and uncle, are not to interfere with him. They have the privilege of applying to court for authority to see him, however.

The guardianship application served on the young millionaire is returnable April 27, for which day the case is set.

A big detective, William Weinhart, was placed on guard at the offices of Chase's attorney, and barred out everybody but the sheriff.

Drs. M. M. Lacy, C. D. Davidson and W. W. Vinnerge, of Lafayette, and Dr. C. B. Burr, of Flint, Mich., examined young Chase this afternoon and pronounced him insane. They declare his answers to the most simple questions were incoherent, although he appeared perfectly sane when taken off the train.

Duhmes attorneys have decided not to file application for a writ of habeas corpus or any other paper to bring young Chase into court in his present excited condition. Newspapermen were admitted to see Moses Fowler Chase last evening and he appears to be a gibbering idiot. He speaks in a low tone of voice, looking down toward his right hand which he keeps stretched out at length. His attorneys say he has never recognized his father from the time the latter saw him on shipboard to the present time.

The young millionaire was taken to a hotel by his father after the court proceedings. Three attendants are with him constantly.

THE SAWMILLS OF ASHLAND

Chequamegon Bay Season Will Be Busy and Profitable.

Ashland, Wis., April 17.—A busy season lies before the numerous mills of Chequamegon bay. Some have already begun work, despite the fact that the ice is still in the bay. Usually the mills never begin operations until the ice is gone; but this season is exceptional.

The Barker & Stewart mill began day and night operations several weeks ago and has had but little difficulty in getting logs into the mill. The example set by this company caused several other mills to start, and today the Ashland Lumber company and Murray Lumber company steamed their boilers and commenced sawing. Next Monday the East End Lumber company and the Keystone mill will start. The Schroeder & Mowatt mill will begin about Tuesday.

The Bigelow mill at Washburn, which is owned and operated by the Edward Hines Lumber company, began operations today. The Barker & Stewart mill of this city and the Cook mill, also others in this vicinity, will saw all season for the Hines company. The Murray Ashland Lumber company plant, East End mill, Schroeder and one or two of the smaller mills will operate on company stock, of which they all have an ecellent supply. All of the mills will operate day and night except the Mowatt Lumber company. All of the planing mills have begun work.

"The Ashland mills will have bus seasons," said F. P. Nester, head of the Nester estate. "All of the logs which the East End mill will cut this season will be towed across Lake Superior from the north shore. Our cut will be about 60,000,000 feet, and most of these logs are in the water being rafted. In a few days our tugs will begin towing and it is expected that some record-breaking rafts will be hauled across Lake Superior.

"All the logs at the Schroeder Lumber company's mill will also be towed across the lake from the north shore. The company has large timber holdings in Lake and St. Louis counties in Minnesota and has sufficient timber to keep its mill in operation for years."

The Murray mill will saw stock for W. H. Gilbert. Most of this timber was cut in Douglas and Bayfield counties and railroaded to this city.

The Keystone Lumber company will receive its logs from Bark bay, where it owns a great deal of timber.

F. S. Robbins of Rhinelander, who has been logging in this region for several years for the Rittenhause & Embree Lumber company, will begin summer operations this week. His camp outfits and horses have been brought to this city and will be shipped to the mouth of Sioux river, where Mr. Robbins will bank 4,000,000 feet for Rittenhouse & Embree and 10,000,000 feet for the Ashland Lumber company. Mr. Robbins has built a logging road in Bayfield county which will bring the logs to the bay shore, where they will be rafted.

Convinced by Printed Testimony of the hundreds of the cured, Mrs. Benz, of 418 East Eighth street, New York, who was for years a great sufferer from catarrh, procured two bottles of Dr. Agnew's Catarrhal Powder and it effected absolute cure in a very short while. One puff through the blower will clear the head and stop headache. Sold by Max Wirth, 13 West Superior street.

DOINGS IN MICHIGAN

The New Blast Furnace at Marquette Is In Operation.

Marquette—The new blast furnace of the Cleveland Cliffs Iron company, said to be the largest in the world, went into commission Thursday. It has been more than two years in building and has cost $1,000,000. Its daily product will be 150 tons of pig iron, aside from important by-products. It will give employment to 200 men.

The work of completing the reconstruction of the breakwater of the breakwater with concrete has been started and will be prosecuted during the season with a force of about fifty men.

Munising—Great indignation has been caused here by the passage of a bill by the legislature which prohibits commercial fishing in the waters of Lake Superior for an area of about 300 square miles east and west of Munising. It was signed before an inkling of the proposed legislation reached here.

Manistique—Manistique is the home of one of the surviving members of the ill-fated Delong Arctic expedition. The man is Frank Manson, and as a result of his hardships he has long been in a helpless condition.

Hancock—Members of the Iron Moulders' union have presented a petition to foundry owners along Portage lake for a 10 per cent increase in wages and a 9- hour day.

Houghton—The Houghton County District Agricultural society of Houghton and the Houghton Agricultural society of Lake Linden have been consolidated.

Ironwood—Capt. Thomas Oliver, mining captain at the Newport mine for six years, has resigned, and will leave for his old home in England for an extended visit.

N. O. Lawton, who has been general manager of the Iron Belt iron property at Hurley, has resigned.

Menominee—Estimates prepared by the company officials show that 11,000 or 12,000 acres sown to beets will be necessary to supply the sugar-making product required by the big plant now being constructed here at a cost of $6,000.

FOR ORIENTAL TRAFFIC.

James J. Hill is justly entitled to the gracefully worded resolution adopted by the state legislature, congratulating him upon the launching of the monster steel steamship Minnesota, which stands as another evidence of the enterprise which has characterized the career of this great master of transportation. The people of Minnesota will take special pride in this great ship for the Pacific freight and passenger trade, not only because it bears the name of the North Star state, but because it is constructed of steel manufactured from Minnesota iron ore, is built with Minnesota capital, represents the ideas of one of Minnesota's greatest business men, and is to be operated as a part of a Minnesota transportation system stretching from Duluth to China and Japan. Nothing emphasizes more strikingly the immensity of the volume of traffic between the Puget sound ports and the Orient to which Mr. Hill is looking forward than the gigantic size of the Minnesota and her sister ship, the Dakota, which will be ready for launching two months hence. These boats are the largest vessels ever built in the United States and are the greatest cargo carriers in the world. When it is said that each of these vessels will be able to carry 125 train loads of merchandise with twenty cars in each train, some idea may be gained of their enormous carrying capacity. Each has a dead weight cargo capacity of 28,000 long tons, which is one-half more than the capacity of the famous Celtic and Cedric, the other largest vessels afloat. That the Minnesota and the Dakota will be great factors in building up the Oriental trade cannot be doubted. Mr. Hill has for several years been dwelling in his public addresses and private talks upon the great importance that the Oriental trade will reach in the near future, and the building of these monster ships shows that he intends to be in a position to handle it.

BEAUTIFYING WASHINGTON.

There is no doubt that in the course of time Washington will be the finest city in the world as far as buildings and general appearance is concerned. The plans for the beautification of the capital have been arranged and accepted and the work will gradually be done. In the way of buildings, the necessities of the government institutions have been understood and the improvements accepted, and time also will see them completed. One of the features in the building line will be the National Museum, and plans have already been completed for a structure to cost $3,500,000. The work on this building will soon be commenced. The regents of the Smithsonian institute are superintending this work, and it is their idea when the new building is completed to have a complete rearrangement of the exhibits now in the National Museum and the Smithsonian Institution buildings.

The new structure is to be devoted to the scientific collections of the government, the present National Museum building to the industrial arts and the old Smithsonian building to the Smithsonian and national museum library and art collections. The regents propose that the scientific collection in the new building shall be the finest in the world, and an officer of the institution makes the statement that already many of the branches to be covered have reached a perfection that is not equalled in any other museum in the world, even the great British museum. The chief subjects to be covered are biology, anthropology, geology, zoology, botany and American history. The present National Museum building will be given up to a great exposition of industrial art, including the already immense and unique collection of the museum, and many additions that the regents are planning to secure as rapidly as possible. The museum will be modeled in its scope and general plan after the Victoria and Albert Museum of Great Britain. Among the chief departments will be those of land transportation, boat models, implements of war and electrical apparatus, of which the museum already has rich collections.

The plans for the Smithsonian building contemplate the creation in time of a magnificent library and art gallery. The scientific library of the institution is already one of the finest in the world. Its scope will be broadened and it will become a much more important unit in the general scheme of the institution. The plans for the art gallery are as yet tentative. The new structure will be 486 feet long and 345 feet broad, with a height of four stories. The United States is fast taking its place as the leader of the world in practically every line, and in this department its supremacy will stand from the first without question.

The Boston Globe suggests that there is a chance for Mr. Carnegie to do something for the boys whom the Ledger Monthly sent to college as a reward for getting 2000 subscriptions each for the publication, and who must now leave for lack of funds, because the magazine failed. The boys have shown their quality, and they deserve to have the education they have earned.

On the new Kaiser Wilhelm II there are two "imperial" suites, each with a breakfast room, a drawing room, a bedroom and a bathroom, for which the price per voyage to the happy occupants will be $2000. But you can cross the ocean just as quickly and comfortably for one-twentieth of that amount.

Frank Sallen, of Marlboro, Conn., won a prize of $50 by sawing 17 cords of hard wood in five hours. This is believed to be the record, but anyone who doubts can get a woodpile and a saw and try it.

MORE HOTELS NEEDED.

Duluth is in dire need of more hotel accommodation. At the present time, when the winter season has hardly passed away, the hotels are filled to overflowing nearly all the time and they are unable to properly accommodate the traveling public. The growth of hotels in the city has not kept pace with the rapid increase of the resident population and of the transient visitors to the city. The result is that the hotel accommodations are entirely inadequate to meet the demands, and the question of taking care of the people who come here on business or on pleasure bent is a serious problem. As the summer season advances and the rush of summer travel sets in, the situation will be even more serious. The indications are that travel by the passenger boats on the lakes will be greater this year than ever before, and something must be done to take proper care of the summer visitors. But what can be done, when the hotel accommodation is now inadequate and the better class of boarding houses are also crowded with residents who find it impossible to get houses?

This is a subject that the Commercial club might properly take under consideration. It was agreed that if the big passenger boats, the North West and the North Land, were put on the Duluth route again, good hotel accommodations would be furnished to the people who come here on them. Only one of these steamships will run to this port this year, and arrangements may be made with the hotels to provide for the passengers she carries here. But there will be thousands of other visitors during the summer. The attractions of Duluth and vicinity as a summer resort are becoming well advertised all over the country, and many tourists will come this way. The growing importance of Duluth as a commercial center is bringing an increasing number of people here daily on business, and if the tourists monopolize the hotel accommodations, how shall the others be cared for, and what can be done to accommodate large excursions?

It is indeed a serious question. If some person or company would erect a good summer hotel here it would undoubtedly prove a paying investment. But in addition to a summer hotel there should be at least one more first-class hotel open all the year. There is a splendid opening here for such a house, and it will be strange if some hotel men who can command the necessary capital do not take advantage of the opportunity that is presented.

BRITISH CONSOLS.

It is interesting to note that the drop in British consols, occurring recently through the attempts of bears to hammer them down, has ceased, and the stock has practically recovered its normal value. The variations in the price of consols make an interesting financial study. Thirty years ago a £100-share of consolidated stock of the public funds, bearing interest at 3 per cent, was worth, in the open market, about £92. During the five years ending 1879 the average price of the same shares was about £95¼. During the succeeding five years the average price was about £100 1-6. During the four succeeding years, 1885-88, the average price was £100¾. Then the rate of interest on the stock was lowered to 2¾ per cent, the lowered rate becoming operative at the beginning of January, 1889. The average price of the 2¾ per cents in 1889 was £98; in 1890, £96⅛; in 1891, £95¾; in 1892, £96 11-16; in 1893, £98½; in 1894, £101 1-16; in 1895, £106 1-6; in 1896, £110¾; in 1897, £112 13-32; in 1898, £110 15-16; in 1899, £106⅞; in 1900, £99⅝; in 1901, £94¼; in 1902, about £94. At the latter average price or probably a little less they could be bought during the past months of the present year.

It is noteworthy to observe the steady upward advance of consols during the years of comparative peace. Even when the rate of interest had been decreased, when the direct earning power of the stock was lessened by one-quarter of 1 per cent in 1889, although it dropped temporarily in price, it soon recovered and advanced by 1895 to a point considerably higher than it ever attained to before. During the three years immediately preceding the Boer war the 2¾ per cent consols were worth from £110 to £113. But the conquest of the little South African republics cost the enormous amount of £223,000,000, a considerable portion of which has been added to the national debt, and as a consequence the price of consols has fallen to the figure it was at when the Crimean war closed in 1855.

It may be discouraging to the British national financiers to see their securities fluctuate in such a striking manner, but all know that the imperial credit is unimpaired and that it will recover fully in market values. Peace is necessary to secure results and the present indications are for a long term for Great Britain.

BUILDING OF CHURCHES.

Rev. Dr. Erskine N. White, secretary of the Presbyterian board of church erection, asserts that there are built and dedicated every day in the year fifteen church buildings in the United States. Other men say the number per day will not exceed twelve, but the consensus of opinion places the number between twelve and fifteen.

Churches in the United States, according to the best figures, spend between $35,000,000 and $40,000,000 annually for new church buildings. This includes not only new buildings erected by old parishes, but chapels for newly organized congregations, and, in the case of some religious bodies, where it is found impossible to divide the figures, church buildings erected on the foreign field. Accurate and authoritative figures have been difficult to get, and conclusions have to be based on the opinions of those who have made long study of church building conditions in the several bodies.

As to the part played by each denomination in the result, authorities agree that the following figures, based on the smaller total, are substantially correct: Methodists build three churches a day; Baptists, two; Lutherans, one and one-half; Roman Catholic, one and one-half; Presbyterians, one; Episcopal, one; Congregationalists, three-quarters, and miscellaneous, which would include the Reformed, United Presbyterian, Disciples of Christ, United Brethren and Southern Presbyterian, Baptist and Methodist bodies, one and one-half. The same ratio, acording to Dr. White, is not maintained in the cost of the buildings erected, although he admits that average costs are harder to determine than are the number of buildings. His opinion, agreed by the authorities, is that Episcopal and Roman Catholic churches will average in cost slightly higher than those of other bodies. The average cost per church building, including all bodies, based on the best obtainable statistics, is $7000.

Sir Thomas Lipton will receive the sympathy of the American people on account of the serious mishap to the Shamrock III, which has been dismasted in a heavy squall. The hope will be general that the cup challenger has not been injured so as to impair her speed.

Rev. Dr. Parkhurst is a success financially, if not as a reformer. The Easter offering at his church was $41,000.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

John D. Porter, of Porter Bros., railroad contractors, returned today from North Dakota, where he has been looking over some surveys and ground preparatory to bidding for a construction contract on the new canal road that is being put through from Bismarck to Great Falls.

"We haven't taken any contracts yet, but it is likely the work will be let in a few days and the building will commence within a remarkably short time.

"The piece of the line to be constructed this summer is fourteen miles, from Washburn to Coal Creek. The line from Bismarck to Washburn is all in good shape, and a daily train each way is being run. The principal object of the road is to transport the lignite coal which is found in large fields in that vicinity, but it has proved a profitable road, what there is of it, for the transportation of passengers and regular freight.

"There are several bids for the work, and it is likely that the construction will be done for a very low figure, as the ground is level and easy to run a line across, though not so easy as they seem to think when they make offers for having the work done.

"This was my first trip out this spring. I haven't been up along the line of the Rainy Lake road this year at all.

"Out in Western Minnesota and the Dakotas there is going to be lots of railroad construction this summer. I understand the Soo line will start within a few weeks on its new line, north and south, in the western central part of the state, though there have been no advertisements for bids nor any word tipped as yet to the railroad contractors regarding the proposals for construction.

"Men are scarce for every kind of work up in North Dakota, but it is probable that when the work commences up in that country in earnest, and there are offers being made for men that will attract them, the country will fill up."

George E. Challis, of Toronto, Can., a representative of one of the big Canadian sulphite manufactories, is at the McKay hotel today.

"I have just completed the trip from Philadelphia to Grand Rapids, Minn.," he said. "The paper manufactories in all localities are booming, though it would seem strange after the narrow escape they had from closing down this winter, especially in the Fox River valley, in Wisconsin, owing to the scarcity of cars and motive power on the part of the railroads, which could not transport the pulpwood logs with sufficient promptness to keep up with the mills. Just when it looked as if there would have to be a shut down, the lake navigation opened up and the deliveries began to pour in and the day was saved.

"I have given the reciprocity question between the states and Canada considerable thought in regard to our business. At present there are shipped into Wisconsin for nothing practically about 35,000 cords of Canadian pulpwood, to the Green Bay Lumber company. Now this is necessary to make up the total of the pulpwood consumed, and it doesn't take very much one way of another to affect a market of that kind.

"What I mean to show is that the wood in the states is getting more scarce, and the paper mills will have to import before long, and the states are foolish to continue the tariff proposition. Another thing that is happening is the great movement of American people to the Canadian territory, where trade conditions are better.

"Today he United States sends into Canada about $120,000,000 worth of manufactured goods a year, upon which a heavy duty is charged. Canada sends to the states hardly $60,000,000 worth under a smaller duty. Who loses? The United States is paying a heavy tax to Canada and is getting nothing for it, comparatively. Our sulphite is charged with duty, but we would prefer the duty to indefinite competition on our side, for the duty is always the same and we can figure a way to overcome it. Competition can't be handled that way.

"I think there is little doubt but that the next few years will see the reciprocal treaty in force, for all interests are becoming so closely allied, and the measure would be so valuable to each country that it must be done.

"I understand now that the King Edward hotel will not be opened until the first of May. It was to have been opened April 15, but it was not completed at the time, and Toronto will wait to see everything properly in place before indulging in the celebration that goes with auto opening.

"The city of Toronto has not had a new hotel since she was about 100,000 in population, and there was plenty of room for the big $1,000,000 improvement to the city. The hotels had been old and small, and the immense tourist business in the summer time makes the hotel problem a serious one for the city.

"Last summer there were 35,000 Americans in Toronto looking at the sights and going to the lakes above. The summer was chilly and cool. This year it is epected there will be 50,000 come, and there must be some way to take care of them.

"The house is a fine one, probably as good a hotel as there is outside of New York city in the states."

Walter Fitch, manager of the Clairdon Steel company's interests in Minnesota, has moved his family to Duluth and will make his home here in the future. Mr. Fitch, who comes from Beacon, Mich., was a little disappointed about his transfer, at first, but after he remained in Duluth for a short length of time, he discovered all his old time Michigan friends and acquaintances in the mining business up here, and is feeling very much at home.

Excepting the Corrigan-McKinney and the Cleveland Cliffs company, every big mining company in the Superior or Michigan country has offices in Duluth.

A broad plateau edged with sparse and withered grasses and crumbling limestone slabs and blocks where the brawling river had deeply gashed it. Boiling and raging against the obstacles to its progress, hurling itself against them with terrible and ceaseless energy, through the ages, the river had worn its way through limestones, sandstones, quartz and granite, until now it lay, a mere silver filament, a thousand feet below, the thunder and crash of its waters silenced by the distance, save when some eddying wind lifted it up through the canyon in a dull roar to the listening ear.

Near the margin of the stupendous chasm two men lay in the scanty shade of a gnarled and dwarfed pine tree, while their horses, with loosened girths and trailing bridles, cropped at the thin herbage. The younger of the two was carelessly dressed in the blue flannel shirt, sombrero and leather "chaps" of the cowboy; the other wore a rather natty tourist costume, and was obviously a tenderfoot.

"Well," he said, raising himself from his recumbent position, "what do you say if we move back to the ranch, Gerris?"

"You're a dandy," remarked the young fellow. "Here you ride twenty miles to see this canyon, and when you get to it you just peek over the edge and then guess it's about time to pull your freight home. Where's your appreciation of the beauties of nature? I haven't heard a dog gone adjective out of you. Don't you like it? Isn't it deep enough for you? Say the word, and I'll get the boys out with shovels and we'll try to improve it."

"It's too deep," said the other, with a laugh and a slight shudder. "It makes me sick to look down. I can't and that's all about it. It's tough on you, old man, to give you all this trouble—but I've enjoyed the ride."

Gerris laughed. "That's all right, Marshall," he said. "I don't understand it, but I take your word for it. See here!"

He got up and ran lightly to the brink of the canyon, stopped abruptly within an inch of it, and then turning and running along the extreme edge. He finished the performance by standing on one foot with an outstretched leg overhanging the chasm, and then returned to his friend.

"Hello!" he said, "you look white about the gills."

"You damned fool!" exclaimed Marshall with deep conviction. "A slip of the foot, and where would you have been?"

"There isn't any danger," said Gerris. "When a man fails, it's because of excess of imagination. I haven't any imagination. I don't fall. They used to tell me at home that I'd never go to my grave with a whole bone."

"They were right," said Marshall. "Your time's coming. What are you going to do now?"

"There's an eagle's nest around the point there," replied Gerris, moving off. "Don't be alarmed. I'm not going to try and get it. I just want to see if I'm not right."

He sat down and dangled his feet over the edge, and then obtaining a foothold in a ridge of the rock's incline, cautiously worked his way downward. A moment later Marshall heard a sharp cry for help, and, looking over the edge of the plateau, saw his friend clinging desperately to a root of a scrub cedar, ten feet below, the rocks dislodged by his fall clattering from ledge to ledge with an ever increasing speed, bounding and shooting out into space in their swift flight to the river.

"The root started with the jerk and God knows how long it will hold," called Gerris. "Quick with a rope!" Then he closed his eyes, and Marshall saw his face working and the dew of sweat on his ashen forehead break and stream down in tiny rivulets.

A tenderfoot as he was, Marshall knew what to do, and did it on the instant. With a bound he was by his horse's side, and with a jerk at the latigo string loosed the lariat. His eye fell on the slack saiche, and he tightened it with a wrench that made the pony groan, and then, making fast one end of the tough rawhide rope to the saddle horn, seized the ready noose and ran back with it.

Gerris was looking up now, with a fear and horror in his eyes beyond words. "Drop it!" he cried, and the loop fell over his head and shoulders. With a swift and desperate effort he throust one arm through it and regained his hold on the cedar. Then he seemed to rest for a moment, but at a splitting and rending sound from the root he quickly thrust the other arm through, and Marshall drew the rope taut. Three long minutes more and Gerris got his knees upon the turf and pitched forward in a swoon.

Some years passed before the two friends met again. Then it was by chance and in a crowded street. They greeted each other heartily, for they were really friends, and Gerris asked Marshall to his room, where they were presently seated with a siphon of soda and a bottle of whisky between them, and pleasant mist of fragrant cigar smoke around them.

"Well," said Marshall, in an interval, "it's good to see you, but it's as well you spoke first, for I wouldn't have known you. You look ten years too old, Gerris, and you haven't a black hair in your head. Are you reconciled to the effete East by this time, or do you ache to leave your clients to settle their own disputes and go back to the old, free life?"

Gerris shook his head. "That experience settled me," he said. "I left for the East a week after you went back, and I've been here ever since. My nerve was broken. I'm a wreck to this day. A picture in a book or a magazine of a man in peril as I was then sets me off. The sight of a window cleaner sickens me. My bowels drop from me and my backbone turns to ice. Let me tell you another thing that's strange. For three nights now I have dreamed that thing over. I have hung to that infernal root, with the roar of the Redwater coming hungrily up to me, sweating blood for the eternity that you were getting the lariat. Three times I have dreamed that running just as I was getting to sleep. That's what makes me look tough, I suppose, for I couldn't sleep after that. And now you come. Odd, isn't it?"

"You are pretty high up here, it seems to me," said Marshall, meditatively. "A sort of a city canyon, isn't it?" He rose and walking to the open window leaned and looked out.

"For heaven's sake, come away!" cried Gerris. "I'm going to get out of here on the first. I believe I'd feel better and sleep better on the ground floor somewhere."

"You need sleep," said Marshall, coming back. "Insomnia plays the devil with a man, and that experience——"

"Let's talk of something else," said Gerris. "Tell me what you have been doing."

They talked until late, and when Gerris showed his visitor into his bed-room, which he insisted he should occupy, he was like his old cheerful self. "And I'm going to sleep all right," he said. "I'm dead now. No insomnia tonight."

"Pleasant dreams to you, old fellow," said Marshall.

This time, however, it was Marshall who did not rest. He tumbled and tossed about the bed feverishly, and twice rose and drank. Once he looked into his host's room. Gerris was sleeping heavily, with deep, quiet breathings, and Marshall stole back softly to bed, where he presently dropped off into an uneasy slumber. It was near morning when he awoke with a start. It seemed that Gerris' cry for help was again ringing in his ears. His heart thumped against his ribs, and he half sat up in bed and listened. But there was no sound, and with waking realization his fears vanished, and he heard the elevator door clang in the hall, and then heavy footsteps and a loud and peremptory knocking. He shouted for Gerris, and receiving no response, went to the door and opened it to two police officers, the elevator man and two excited strangers.

"Is anybody here with you?" asked one of the policemen.

"Mr. Gerris," replied Marshall. "He seems to be—Wait a moment." He looked into Gerris' room, but the bed was empty.

"It must have been him," said the policeman who followed. "There's been an accident. This man saw it."

He pushed forward one of the excited strangers.

"Yes, I seen it," said the man. "I was on my way to work when I happened to look up an' seen him gettin' out of the winder in his night shirt. I shouted at him, but he didn't pay no attention, and clambered over the fire escape. Next thing he was hanging to the rail by both hands. All he had to do was to put his feet off, but he hung there—just hung. And he yells out: 'Help, Marshall! A rope!' and the next moment he dropped."

"He is dead!" gasped Marshall, staggering back.

"There ain't a whole bone in his body," said the policeman.

POINTED REFLECTIONS.

Columbia Jester: If you have a good temper, keep it; if you have a bad one, don't lose it.

Yonkers Statesman: Church—Do you think he is a well-proportioned man?

Gotham—No; his lungs are away out of proportion to his brains.

Philadelphia Press: Casey—Don't say "Oi ain't done nothin'."

Cassidy—An' why not?

Casey—Because it's not good English.

Cassidy—Shure, Oi'm glad to hear it, fur nayther am Oi.

Cleveland Plain Dealer: "Our butcher has run away from his creditors."

"Dear, dear, that's too bad! How he will be missed. Such steaks! Such chops!"

"Yes, he leaves a very tender memory behind him."

Baltimore Herald: "It's a good thing that the doctors do not send in their bills until the patient has recovered."

"Why?"

"Well if a man knew he was really as sick as the size of the bill would indicate the shock of it would certainly cause a relapse."

Kansas City Journal: "There is never any uncertainty where I stand," said the pompous speaker at the ward meeting; "I'm a stalwart!"

Whereupon the little man with a squeaky voice half arose and, putting his hand to his ear, inquired: "What kind of a wart?"

Chicago News: "John," asked the lawyer's wife, who had recently taken up the health culture fad, "is it best to lie on the right side or the left side?"

"My dear," replied the legal luminary, "if one is on the right side it usually isn't necessary to lie at all."

New York Weekly: First Dame—How do you like the new neighborhood into which you have moved?

Second Dame—It's perfectly lovely. I don't know a soul within a mile.

Washington Star: "Do you think that cigarette smoking causes a deterioration of mentality?"

"I am not clear on that point," said the man who makes a specialty of profound opinions. "The impression to that effect may be due to the fact that people with brains naturally avoid them."

Pinching the Keene Pool.

Springfield Republican: The Keene pool in Southern Pacific railroad stock expired Friday by limitation, and gains and losses are being counted up. It proves to have been all loss—at once the largest and the most disastrous pool ever organized in Wall street. It set out to acquire 400,000 shares, and actually did acquire 244,000 shares at an aggregate cost of $16,669,937, or an average of $68.20 a share. At $56.75 a share, the closing price of Southern Pacific stock on Thursday, the value of the pool holdings amounts to $13,869,700—showing a loss of $2,800,237, divided among twenty-four men.

WITH A RAZOR

Lieut. Howard Ends His Life at a Sanitarium.

St. Louis, April 17.—Lieut. Thomas Howard of the United States army and a graduate of West Point, drew a razor across his throat at the Missouri Baptist sanitarium today. When found by an attendant he was dead. Howard left a letter o his mother, Mrs. J. H. Howard, Boerner, Texas. He also left a note for the sanitarium officials, directing them to notify his mother and the war department at Washington. Lieut. Howard had been on sick leave for some time and was under treatment at the sanitarium.

ROMANCE SPOILED

By Sheriff Who Took Gibbs to Jail

Kokomo, Ind., April 17.—Instead of going from his cell in the jail to the altar with his bride, John Gibbs, who had completed a seven-months' sentence for stealing turkeys, was rearrested here Tuesday afternoon by Sheriff Roach of Carroll county and taken to Delphi, where he is charged with stealing meat. The sheriff spoiled the pretty romance.

Soon after Gibbs was placed in the Howard county jail he was made a "trusty." His next action was to fall in love with Miss Myrtle Wigal, a domestic, who cooks food for the prisoners. Gibb's affection was reciprocated, and his engagement to Miss Wigal was announced among the prisoners.

They were to be married last Saturday, but since Gibbs is in the Carroll county jail, the event will be delayed. Miss Wigal said yesterday that she would not desert him, but would go to Delphi, and if she could not get a position in the jail there she would call on her lover every day.

DRIVERS RETURN TO WORK.

Chicago, April 17.—"Drip" wagons of the People's Gaslight and Coke company were put into commission today after having been tied up for two days by a sympathetic strike of the drivers, while the inability of the company to clear gas mains of accumulations of water which the wagons are used to remedy created a gas famine. Seventy-five drivers, acting upon orders issued yesterday by the executive board of the National Teamsters' union, manned the company's wagons, with orders to lose no time in reaching various parts of the city and pumping out the congested mains.

LOOKING FOR GERMAN

Who Was Seen Out With Minna Williams.

New York, April 17.—While Minna Williams, the nursery governess who was arrested Wednesday night charged with having stolen $25,000 worth of jewels and clothing from the wife of her employer, at London, occupies a cell in Ludlow street jail, detectives are searching for a distinguished-looking German with whom she went out Sunday morning to breakfast at the Casino. Alex Reitlinger, a merchant of this city, and a brother of the London banker, asserts that about ten days after her arrival here the woman began to take daily rides with this man, who is thought to know where the $10,000 worth of missing gems are.

The most valuable piece of all the missing jewelry, a necklace, containing 485 pearls, has been returned by a jeweler, to whom Miss Williams took it a few days ago.

TO OVERHAUL SHIPS.

San Francisco, April 17.—Two vesse'a of the Pacific mail fleet are to be laid up and their places will be taken by other steamers. When the steamer China arrives here from the Orient next week she will be taken off the run to undergo extensive repairs. Her place will be taken by the setamer City of Peking. The steamer City of Sydney, which has been on the Panama run for a number of years, will undergo an overhauling, and the Costa Rica will go out on her run.

AT WEST DULUTH

The first full practice of the West Duluth baseball team was held yesterday afternoon on the grounds at the head of Fifty-second avenue. All of the men but Young were out and a fast practice was indulged in for over an hour. The men all showed up well. Williams at third promises to be a star. His fielding is excellent, and he covers his full share of ground, while his throwing to first is a revelation. John Lew, the other newcomer on the team, also showed up well, his fielding being particularly good, although he was a little weak with the stick. The old members of the team showed their old time form, all of them connecting with the ball for safe hits. Larson showed good speed and excellent control for the first time in the box.

Charles Irwin, who played third base for the Freimuth team last summer, will probably turn out with the West Duluth team this year. He will be given a trial at second.

A game has been arranged for with Cloquet for May 3. The grounds are now in excellent shape, and unless wet weather intervenes nothing will prevent the game with the Big Duluth team Sunday.

ALBERTA BOOMING.

Fred P. Williams, a former resident of West Duluth, has returned from Alberta for a short visit with his old friends in this city. Mr. Williams went to Alberta in the spring of 1900 and has been there ever since that time. He expects to return to his home, near Calgary, Monday.

"Alberta is a fine country for any man to go to," said Mr. Williams. "I got there just in time. The rush was just commencing, and I had a much better choice of land than if I had gone a few months later. Last year there was a great influx of settlers from across the border, and this year will see an even greater immigration movement. There is plenty of room there for them. The settlers in the Northwest are not a drop in the bucket yet. But the world is commencing to realize the advantages of cheap land, fertile land, and it will not be many years before that country becomes settled."

WEST DULUTH BRIEFS.

CINCINNATIANS SURPRISED

To See Bryan the Guest of President Ingalls.

Cincinnati, April 17.—Considerable stir was caused in local political circles today by Col. William Jennings Bryan being the guest of Melville E. Engalls president of the Big Four railroad, at the Queen City club. President Ingalls was one of the most prominent of the so-called "Gold Democrats" in both of the Bryan presidential campaigns, and many of the Bryan Democrats are reported as not supporting Ingalls here for mayor last week. While Col. Bryan is here to fill a lecture engagement, his luncheon with President Ingalls, and meeting other so-called "Gold Democrats," was the feature of the day.

ECONOMITES SELL OUT.

Pittsburgers Buy Their Land In Zwickly Valley.

Pittsburg, April 17.—All the holdings of the Economites of the Zwickly valley are said to have passed into the hands of a syndicate of Pittsbugers by a deal just consummated, the considera tion being $2,500,000. The senior trustee, John F. Duss, of the Harmony society, as the organization is called, is said to have been the moving spirit in the sale, which carries with it the title of 2600 acres of land, including the town of Economy.

Only a half dozen members of the society are living and it is assumed that the sale of the land means the practical winding up of the Economites, after an existence of over 100 years. One of the principal articles of the sect faith was celibacy.

ON THE TRAMP.

Once Famous Painter Applies For Lodging.

Chicago, April 17.—James Sheldon, who, according to his story, is a painter of international reputation, and who in 1880 viewed his pictures on the walls of the London Royal academy, applied to the South Chicago police last night for lodging. The man says he is on a tramp through the country in search of a suitable scene to transfer to canvas in the hope that he may regain his lost fortune. Colorado and California, he says, in his objective point, and when he has made sketches in those locations it is his intention to return to England.

THE IRISH LEAGUE.

Dublin, April 17.—The national convention called by the United Irish league to consider the new land bill, which assembled here yesterday and accepted the principle of the bill, reconvened early today in the round room of the Mansion house in this city. There was a smaller attendance. In view of a misunderstanding in the case of certain English papers, John Redmond, the chairman, introduced a strong home rule resolution, declaring that the Irish nation would never be satisfied until it obtained a full measure of self-government. "No substitute," said Mr. Redmond, "can or will be accepted." Michael Davitt briefly seconded the resolution, saying Irishmen would be neglecting their sacred duty to the cause if they did not send such a message to their race throughout the world. Mr. Redmond's recommendation was carried by acclamation. William O'Brien then proceeded to explain the various suggested amendments to the land bill. An amendment of Mr. O'Brien's providing for extending financial assistance to the evicted tenants was welcomed, but many of the delegates wished it to go further.

Patrick Flynn, of the Cork branch of the United Irish league, a man of great mirth, with a shillelah in one hand and a broad brimmed hat in the other, then mounted the platform. His appearance created laughter.

"I did not," said Mr. Flynn, "travel 150 miles to be laughed at." A few seconds later Mr. Flynn held the convention spellbound by the extraordinary eloquence with which he insisted that the present occupier of the holdings which formerly belonged to evicted peasants, should themselves be evicted. This peasant orator worked up a storm against "grabbers," but Mr. O'Brien's more moderate counsel prevailed.

Throughout the morning peasant speakers discussed the details of the bill with very intelligent rhetoric. Mr. O'Brien's suggestions, as a rule, were passed without a division.

John Redmond and Lord Dunraven had an informal meeting this morning and decided to postpone the sitting of the landlords and tenants' conference, which will probably be held in London next week.

GIVEN KNOCKOUT DROPS.

Anaconda, Mont., April 17.—Jack Felbenben was robbed of a $1000 certificate of deposit and a $300 roll of bills. His pockets were torn out. The police believe he was given knockout drops.

A PLOT UNEARTHED.

Great Falls, Mont., April 17.—Police believe they have unearthed a plot to blow up the Stockholm brewery and concert hall and Cuban saloon. A man named Donaldson confessed today that he had been approached by a local gambler, who has disappeared, with a plan to destroy these buildings with dynamite. The gambler had been employed in a saloon but had been dismissed.

How to Care For Your Furs!

Storing of Furs, is Right in Our Line

and to those who have a fur garment of any kind we wish to say that we have one of the best and largest fire-proof vaults in the city, in which we keep our furs for the summer season. Every garment left with us is properly renovated before being placed in the vault, as we have the only furriers' renovating machine in the city. They are also insured against Fire, Moth and Burglary. Then why take the risk of having your garment destroyed by the pesky little moth by trying to look after it yourself? Profit by yours or your friend's former experience. Don't say "I have always taken care of my coat and never had a moth in it." Remember there is a first time to everything, and when the moth is there it means considerably more for repairs than the cost of storing it with us.

All garments are returned to owners cleaned and glazed without extra charge. We call and deliver garments. Call up old phone No. 1038-4, or drop a card and we shall be pleased to call for your garment. We also store plain cloth garments.

LET NONE FORGET

Saturday the Day Upon Which City Is to Be Cleaned.

Steps Toward Compelling Cleaning of Vacant Property.

The marble bag forgotten lies,
The cat now takes her ease,
No kite ascends to pierce the skies
Upon the swelling breeze;
No baseball flies from hand to hand,
To make youthful palms hard,
But quiet reigns throughout the land,
For Willie's cleaning the yard.

Vigorous and strenuous work is mapped out for all public-spirited citizens in the cleaning of yards tomorrow.

Tin cans and ash heaps are doomed, and it is confidently expected that by tomorrow evening local sanitary and aesthetic conditions will be improved greatly.

The school children have taken more than ordinary interest in the cleaning up campaign this year, and it is likely that much of the work tomorrow will be by them.

The health authorities urge the removal of garbage and other refuse that has accumulated during the winter before the hauling away of ashes, providing both cannot be cleaned away at the same time.

The warmth of the sun on garbage piles has a tendency to breed disease and create odors that are far from pleasant, and the sanitary condition of the city is considered first in importance.

Persons that cannot secure teams to haul away the dirt gathered up tomorrow will probably be able to secure the address of a reliable teamster by telephoning to the health department.

A convenient dumping ground for the central part of the city and the East End has been arranged for on St. Croix avenue, so that it will be possible for teamsters to make quicker trips and consequently more money at 50 cents a load than a year ago.

In the West End and West Duluth the dumping grounds have always been conveniently located, and as a result clean day in the western part of the city has furnished better results in the past.

The authorities are not a little worried about the old-time problem of compelling the cleaning of vacant property owned by non-residents, but there is an ordinance pending in the council which, if it ever becomes a municipal statute, will do away with this vacant nuisance.

The ordinance requires that all property owners—resident or non-resident—shall see to it that their premises are cleaned of filth and unsanitary and unsightly encumbrances within twenty-four hours after having been notified by the health department, or the offending property owner will be subject to a fine of not to exceed $100 or imprisonment not to exceed ninety days.

Agents for non-resident property owners are to be held responsible for the property they represent, and a notice served on them is the same as a notice served on the property owner himself.

OUTLAW OF THE TRACY BRAND

Jim McKenney Has Returned to United States From Mexico.

Kingman, Ariz., April 17.—Desperado "Jim" McKenney has returned to United States territory and resumed his murderous work.

This man, whose deeds have qualified him to claim equality in questionable fame with any American outlaw, dead or alive, not excluding the deceased Tracy, has just added two more corpses to his list. The remains of his latest victims, Charles Blakey, widely known as the "cowboy pianist," and Roy Winchester, a young miner, were found on the trail forty miles south of Kingman three days ago, and the news of the discovery reached here yesterday. Blakey was shot in the breast and Winchester in the back, the murderer using a shotgun.

McKenney confessed his identity to a ranchman whose house he visited after the shooting. After compelling the man to shoe two horses for him and give him a supply of rations, the desperado cautioned him to keep silence for at least three days, and then rode away. The terrified farmer religiously heeded the parting admonition. Three days after his visitor's departure he came to town and reported the occurrence to the sheriff, who at once organized a posse and started in pursuit of the murderer. McKenney is probably heading for Bad Man's Land, in Yuma county, where he will find other outlaws and where it will be difficult for a small posse to capture him. Before starting out the sheriff wired Governor Brodie to send out a party of rangers to aid him in the pursuit.

Since he ran amuck at Porterville, Cal., last July and murdered William J. Lynn and wounded several others, McKenney has had an exciting time of it. After he had succeeded in eluding the Tulare county officers, he struck south and worked his way through this territory and to Hermosillo, Mex., where he was captured about three months ago and held awaiting extradition. The Tulare county sheriff secured the necessary papers from Washington and went to Mexico, but when he arrived there the authorities refused to deliver McKenney into his custody unless he guaranteed that they should get the rewards which were out for the fellow's capture. As the sheriff was unable to do so, he was obliged to return home without the man had traveled so many miles to secure.

It is evident that shortly after the sheriff's departure McKenney either escaped or was liberated from the Mexican prison, and that he hastened to get out of the country. He did not explain to his unwilling host, the ranchman, why he had killed Blakey and Winchester, but it is surmised that the men overtook him on the trail and that, suspecting they were peace officers searching for him, he first shot Winchester in the back and then emptied the other barrel of his shotgun into Blakey's breast. It is probable the bodies will be buried where they were found, as they must be considerably decomposed by this time.

If the murderer is overtaken a fight is certain, as he undoubtedly realizes that no mercy would be shown him by the courts of this territory. The description of him given by the ranchman tallies exactly with that sent out by the sheriff of Tulare county last summer. McKenney is of light complexion, has long hair and a heavy mustache, a short and thick nose, square chin and large ears. Two joints of his left forefinger are missing, and he limps slightly with his left leg.

STEEL FLOATING DOCK

Is to Be Towed Thirteen Thousand Miles.

Baltimore, Md., April 17.—A serious problem will be presented to the navy department when the time comes for towing to Manila, a distance of 13,000 miles, the immense steel floating dock for which the contract has just been awarded to the Maryland Steel company.

The Manila dock is to lift from 16,000 to 18,000 tons, is to be 500 feet long, weigh 10,000 tons, and will cost $1,124,000.

The dock will be twenty-seven months in building. It is to be delivered by the builders on the Atlantic coast, and the navy department will then undertake the task of towing it to its destination.

The Manila dock will have to be towed across the Atlantic ocean, through the Mediterranean sea, through the Suez canal and Red sea, across the Indian ocean and up the China sea to Manila.

If it makes four knots an hour it will make eighty-six miles a day and it will require 151 days for the voyage, if it makes the voyage without stopping, which will be impossible, because the towing ships will have to stop to coal and for good weather.

The tow will be the longest in history.

The dock will consist of three pontoons, that will form the flooring of the dock, and two side walls, all of steel. It is to be self-docking, the largest pontoon being in the middle. In order to dock this section the smaller outer pontoons will be sunk under the middle pontoon and be pumped out, raising the larger section.

The dock must lift battleships two feet out of the water, a height that increases the stability of the ship fifteen or twenty times.

To sink the dock to receive a ship water is admitted to compartments in the hull through about twenty valves admitting a stream of water as large as a man's body.

The Manila dock will be constructed in an excavation near the beach and, when it is ready to be launched, the strip of land holding back the patansco will be cut away, the water admitted and the big structure will float.

LONDEN IS OUT.

Bail to Amount of $500 Is Furnished.

Oscar Londen, who shot and killed Mrs. Hannah Matson, of Garfield avenue, during a charivari party last week, and who is awaiting the action of the grand jury on the charge of manslaughter in the second degree, has been released on bail from the county jail. The necessary $500 bond was furnished yesterday afternoon by his friends and relatives, John Jackson furnishing the larger part of the money.

NEGROES IN MEXICO.

Experiment of Using Them There Being Watched.

City of Mexico, April 11.—Large employers of labor in Mexico are watching with a great deal of interest the results of the importation of 100 negroes which were brought to this country from the United States a few weeks ago to work on the plantations along the line of the Vera Cruz and Pacific railroad.

The negroes were persuaded to come to this country by a representative of their own race named McKolvin, who came down here some time ago and was employed on one of the large plantations in the South. McKelvin returned to his home in Alabama, had large circulars printed telling the negroes all about Mexico and the great opportunities it offered to poor negroes who wanted work in a country where they could enjoy unlimited opportunities. The inducement was strongly held out to the negroes that there would be no "white trash" to lord it over them, and that they would be perfectly free and independent. They were promised $1.50 per day, and were assured that the sum in silver would go as far here as a like amount in the states. With these assurances, about 100 of them agreed to come down with McKelvin.

So far the negroes who are at work on the plantations have been well satisfied and have satisfied the plantation operators, and those who are short of laborers, including several railroad contractors, who are trying to arrange with McKelvin for the importation of more of his people. McKelvin states that he will be able to bring a million of them into this country if they are needed.

Hopeful ones among the large labor employers of the country see in this move a solution of their troubles in securing laborers who are both able and willing to do hard work.

JOHN SCOTT WED

When Thought Dying But Now May Recover.

Sioux City, Iowa, April 17.—Believing he had but a few hours to live, John Scott, a farmer, living three miles from Arthur, insisted that his long delayed marriage to Martha Dekay take place. Accordingly, the two were married Tuesday evening. Today Scott gives indication of recovery, and a romance which promised nothing but a melancholy ending, takes on a brighter aspect.

Scott was the victim of a peculiar accident. For three months he watched ceaselessly at the bedside of his mother, and when she died he threw himself, exhausted, on the floor by the stove. He fell into a heavy sleep, and in some way threw his legs against the red-hot stove. He was burned frightfully. Blood poisoning set in, and his death seemed certain. He sent for his sweetheart, with whom he had been keeping company for eight years. Several times their wedding date was unavoidably put off, but this time, even in his extremity, he declared he would make her his wife, if she would consent. She did, and, in tears, she took the nuptial vows.

CUPID WAS AT THE THROTTLE

Bruden Family Express Switched Upon a Legal Side-Track.

Camden, N. J., April 17.—Away through New Jersey, with gauges showing high pressure and the steam hissing angrily, flew the engine attached to the West Jersey and Seashore express. The passengers watched the telegraph poles flashing by like spokes of a wheel and marveled at the speed.

They didn't know that Cupid had his hand on the throttle and his eye on the dials, while white-haired Joseph Bruden, one of the oldest and most trusted engineers on the road, held fascinating Jennie Bendler on his lap.

Bruden's wife was one of the summer turists that took this remarkable ride one day last summer. Her account of it was contained in a bill for divorce filed in the court of chancery. Cupid put on brakes at Woodbury to let Miss Bendler off. This dislocated the running schedule of the road, as Woodbury isn't a stopping place for express trains. But Cupid stopped nevertheless, climbed out of the cab with Miss Bendler, and Bruden continued the trip.

Not in the thirty years of her partnership with the engineer had Mrs. Bruden had such an experience. The girl for whom Bruden resigned the throttle to Cupid came into their household as housekeeper. The first signal of "danger ahead" came one day when, Mrs. Bruden says, she saw her husband and Jennie alone in the hallway.

"There is nothing harmful, Jennie is only a little country girl, and I am showing fatherly kindness," Bruden is alleged to have replied to his wife's reproof.

So the track was clear again, until Mrs. Bruden saw something that prompted her to signal "down brakes." She says she entered the housekeeper's room one day and found Bruden applying a porous plaster to Jennie's back.

The Bruden train was "made up" after that without Jennie in the "crew." Soon after that Bruden began to receive letters which Mrs. Bruden says he explained to her were from "Mr. Smith of Salem." "But they're postmarked 'Woodbury,'" Mrs. Bruden observed.

"I know, but Salem and Woodbury are so close together that it is just as convenient to post them at one place as the other," Bruden is alleged to have rplied.

Mrs. Brudn looked it up on the map and found the cities were miles apart. When the letter came she opened it, and she says she found it started: "My dear husband," and was filled with endearing terms. The Bruden train came to a full stop. It didn't start again. Mrs. Bruden says, until her husband and she came to an understanding. She later told her husband that the physician advised a trip to Atlantic City for her. Bruden agreed with the doctor and the Bruden train drew out for that resort.

Mrs. Bruden and her sister were sauntering along the beach, when they saw a couple bathing in the surf.

"If that man had on other clothes I would believe he was 'Joe,'" Mrs. Bruden said.

"Clothes or no clothes, he is Joe," said her sister.

Bruden came at his wife's call, she says, and told her he had come to the beach for a good time and did not intend that she should spoil it. Mrs. Bruden says her husband's companion was Jennie, and she slapped her face.

The Bruden train was immediately taken off the domestic schedule. Bruden was engineer of the express which took Mrs. Bruden home that day. The ride is that which Mrs. Bruden describes in her bill for divorce against her husband. She names Miss Bendler co-respondent.

BLACKFEET INDIANS

Are Suspected of Killing a Tribesman.

Havre, Mont., April 17.—Deputy United States Marshal M. W. Wall passed through Havre on his way to Helena with three Indians, arrested on the Blackfoot reservation for the murder of John Fast Buffalo Horse, an Indian. The accused Indians are Peter Day Rider and John Head Carrier and Barney Calf Boss. None of them would talk about the case.

The murdered Indian was found dead in his tepee, and circumstances pointed strongly to foul play. The matter was thoroughly investigated by Maj. Monteith.

The little folks love Dr. Wood's Norway Pine Syrup. Pleasant to take; perfectly harmless; positive cure for coughs, colds, bronchitis, asthma.

Ladies' Petticoats.

This season we are selling twice as many petticoats as we did a year ago. This is not due to good luck, there is only one reason for it, it is due to the styles values, make and general finish of each and every garment. It is nothing unusual for our salespeople to report to us, that such a petticoat is selling for a dollar less than other established concerns have their goods marked—we find Duluth ladies to be a very critical buying public—they know just about what they want and the price they ought to pay. We keep such a line of petticoats here and our sales are something phenomenal—we can show quite a number at any price from $10.00 each down to..... 50c

FLASHING MONEY

Seems to Have Become a Regular Thing With Duluthians.

Police Have Several Experiences of That Nature Recently.

Vulgar display of wealth seems to be becoming the besetting sin of Duluthians.

To have a young man of prominent social connections advertising to find out where he left $100 for safe keeping while under the impression that he was about to liquidate the entire output of a cocktail foundry, is said to be bad enough, but things are getting worse and worse.

Yesterday, right on the streets of Duluth, an individual picked up a slip of paper worth $1350. He was about to light his pipe with it, thinking it was a joke, when he sighted a police officer and decided to ask him if the paper was worth anything.

The officer saw at a glance that it was a promissory note for $1350 and retained possession of it until he reached police headquarters. There he turned the valuable slip over to Chief Troyer, and any person that can satisfactorily prove ownership to the note can have it.

But that is not all. A real citizen of Duluth—one that has been over from Canada nearly twelve years—showed a deplorable lack of refinment yesterday by leaving a purse containing $550 in a hotel wash room and was away from the institution for nearly two hours before he discovered that he and his wealth were disconnected. He thought it was a pickpocket case, but going back to the hotel found that a porter had turned the purse over to the clerk and that it had been locked in the safe pending identification.

A Chinaman that did not appear to have over the price of one chop suey to his name, was recently arrested and required to put up bail amounting to $25. It seemed like a joke to ask that amount of him, but the man from the Orient quietly put down a certificate of deposit for $430 and asked if that would be enough.

Excites Enthusiasm.

The enthusiasm excited in all who see the arts and crafts exhibit at the library this week speaks well of the first attempt in the line of an exhibit of this kind in Duluth. Although the exhibition now in progress is the first of the kind held here, it is a marvel of artistic beauty, and the articles shown call forth raptures of praise. The list of works of arts and crafts shown is large, and if one has a pet branch in which he is interested it will be surely found there. The exhibit will continue tomorrow, when a large number of schol children will doubtless see it, as the educational value is great.

suggested a law requiring sales to be by advertised public auction.

The house game and fish committee reported back the new game and fish code for passage, with a number of minor amendments, which the house adopted. The salary of the executive agent was fixed at $2000, instead of leaving it to the commission. Money received by the commission is to be used by it, instead of going to the general revenue fund of the state. Hunters may ship three deer out of the state instead of only two. The trout season is to open April 15, as the present law provides, instead of May 1, as the bill provided.

Speaker Babcock received a communication from President Jones, of the senate, denying the reports that the senate had been discriminating against house bills.

Frank Minnette wanted to take up his resolution calling for an investigation into the cost of printing and supplies for the house during the session. The house accommodated him by taking the resolution from the table and then killed it almost unanimously. W. A. Nolan, in speaking against the resolution, said that the house had spent $12,000 or $15,000 in investigating people and had not received 15 cents' worth of benefit from any of the investigations.

The committee on ways and means introduced the regular revenue measure, providing for a levy of $775,000 in taxes for 1904, the rate not to exceed 1 mill, and $800,000 for 1905, the rate not to exceed 1 mill. The bill passed under suspension of the rules.

S. D. Peterson, from the special committee to investigate the Minneapolis chamber of commerce, submitted a report showing that not much had been discovered. The principal feature of the report was the complaint that the records of the chamber are not wide enough to permit anybody to find out who buys the grain that is sold and to permit shippers to trace errors and discrepancies in their dealings with commission men. The committee had presented a bill providing for these complaints and wanted to introduce it, but the chair ruled that it could not be done, except at the request of the governor.

The house killed the Smith bill, providing for the publication of a synopsis of legislature amendments in the newspapers, and for the sending out of pamphlets containing the synopsis to the voters of the state.

The senate was in rather a murderous mood this morning and killed several bills. Senator Gjersten wanted to reconsider the vote by which Mr. Dowling's non-partisan judiciary bill was indefinitely postponed, but Senator Laybourn opposed the motion, and it was lost, 7 for and 38 against.

The senate also killed Mr. Nyquist's bill providing that newspapers cannot collect payments for papers after they have been stopped. The bill got 9 votes and there were 29 against it.

Mr. Frazer's bill providing for a Minnesota state board of surveyors, and requiring surveyors to take out licenses, was killed. So was Senator Morgan's bill providing that all applicants for admission to the bar, whether graduates of any law school or not, must take the examinations required by law.

The Shepard house bill, regulating the size of boxes in which berries must be sold, was amended so as to apply only to berries picked, packed or repacked in this state, and recommended for passage in committee of the whole.

The senate decided to cut talking and broaden on actual work, and it adopted unanimously a resolution by Senator Lord limiting speeches to five minutes.

CLAIM HANNA IS NEEDED

Roosevelt's Friends Say the Senator Must Elect Him.

Chicago, April 17.—A Washington special to the Tribune says: People who claim to be in a position to know say that if President Roosevelt is nominated for the presidency in 1904, as now seems assured, he almost certainly will ask Senator Hanna to manage his campaign for him. In fact, the president's friends say they have received assurances that the skillful leader from Ohio has positively determined not to be a candidate for the presidency himself under any possible contingency. This has removed all possibility of friction between Senator Hanna and the president, and Mr. Roosevelt has come to lean more and more upon the astuate political leader from President McKinley's state.

The result is that a strong effort will be made to induce Senator Hanna to undertake again the burdensome duties of conducting another national campaign. Senator Hanna will be 67 years old when the next presidential election is held, and it was feared he might plead that, after having borne the heat and burden of two campaigns, his duty to the party was ended. Nevertheless, the president's friends, after looking over the ground carefully, have come to the conclusion, it is said, that Senator Hanna, more than any other man, would carry the campaign to success in 1904.

The fact is recognized freely here in Washington that President Roosevelt will not have things all his own way in New York and New Jersey, owing to the resentment felt by the management of the great trusts against the president's attitude, particularly since the merger decision. The position of Senator Hanna as chairman of the national committee would be a guarantee to the corporations that the president was not actuated by any personal ambition, and that, having chosen a conservative man like Senator Hanna for his campaign manager, would, if elected, seek for advice during the next administration from the same quarter.

It so happens that Senator Hanna will be a pretty busy man from now on politically, entirely aside from the question of presidential elections. The senator's term of office expires on March 3, 1905. The Ohio legislature has only biennial sessions, and the next regular session is in January of next year. The state election this fall, therefore, will not only determine the question of who shall be the next governor but it will also settle the senatorial fight at the same time.

"Mark" Hanna is probably stronger in Ohio today than he ever was, but on the other hand the party is not quite so completely united as it was while McKinley was alive. There are some extremely doubtful counties in the state, and the election of members to the legislature in Ohio is frequently complicated by fractional local fights which are lost sight of or subordinated during the national elections.

The recent elections in Ohio have been watched by party managers here with great interest, and recent advices from the state are to the effect that political lines are being drawn sharply in anticipation of a big fight next fall.

TROUT FISHERMEN

Are Very Numerous on the Wisconsin Streams.

Madison, Wis., April 17—Reports from all over the state show an unusually large influx of visiting sportsmen to the trout streams of Wisconsin. The legal season, which opened on the 15th, promises exceptionally good sport, as 10,000,000 fry were planted two, three and four years ago by the state fish commission. The fish and game laws have been well enforced during the past year and the weather conditions are favorable for an early season and prolific catch.

BANISHED FOR FEUD MURDER

Parnell Brothers Leave the State of Arkansas Forever.

El Dorado, Ark., April 17.—Under an agreement signed here this week three brothers of this city, Daniel, James and Matthew Parnell, are banished from the state of Arkansas, as a condition for the dropping of charges of murder held against James and Matthew.

The banishment of these men from this state is the result of the terrible street duel here October 9, 1902, participated in by seven men, three of whom were killer.

This peculiar agreement was signed by Prosecuting Attorney J. M. Barker and Col. Hamp Smeade for the state and J. R. Thornton and R. G. Harper for the defense. It is effective immediately, the condition being that unless the three brothers quit Arkansas soil before May 26, 1903, the cases will be continued against them. If either of them should return to this state to resume his residence here, then the case will be revived against him. Should they or either of them engage in any difficulty with either Guy B. Tucker, Dr. R. A. Hilton or T. F. Newton the case will be revived against the party causing the trouble.

No charges has been held against Daniel Parnell but he will accompany his brothers. He and James are farmers, while Matthew until Tuesday owned a grocery here, selling it preparatory to leaving the state. All three men will take their families, and it is said they will go to Mexico.

The charge against Matthew Parnell is murder, and that against James Parnell is assault to kill. Kempner Parnell, a son of Thomas Parnell, who was killed, will also go.

The trouble grew out of an old feud between City Marshal Guy B. Tucker of this city and a branch of the Parnell family. Marshal Tucker met the Parnell brothers, four in number, just as the latter were about to enter the court house. The firing began immediately. Constable H. L. Dearing, a partner in business with Tucker, ran to the scene and entered the battle. He was killed, as were Walter and Tom Parnell. Tucker was shot six times, through the hip, arm, side, hand and head, but has fully recovered. Twenty-six shot were fired at him. Hilton and Newton reached the scene before the shooting was finished.

MERRIAM SPEAKS

Former Governor Addresses St. Paul Credit Men's Association.

Talks on Business Conditions and the Financial Outlook.

St. Paul, April 17.—William R. Merriam, formerly governor of Minnesota, and until very recently United States census commissioner, was the principal speaker before the St. Paul Credit Men's association banquet in this city last night, his audience also including members of the Minneapolis Credit Mens' association, who were the guests of the local organization. This was Governor Merriam's first public utterance since he laid down the responsibilities of the census bureau to enter again into general business, and his address on "The Present Business Condition and Financial Outlook," gave him a wide range.

After speaking briefly of the unprecedented prosperity and the great industrial combination, he said: "I can not help coming to the conclusion that the concentration in few hands of so large a number of the industrial concerns throughout the country must have an effect like ballast on a ship, to steady the situation; that the evolution which has gone on so constantly during the last half dozen years, by which all sorts of productive institutions have been welded together, has resulted in placing the management of these large concerns in the hands of men of the highest experience and of great financial strength. This is emphasized by the further fact that certain industries, like the oiron and steel, controlled as they are by a comparatively few men owning the raw material and the transportation facilities, and finally producing the manufactured article, must be in a better situation to restrict the output and adjust supply to demand, with less of loss, than could possibly be expected were their constituent companies resolved into original ownership with consequent competition and cost of administration. In other words, it is not a fact that the iron and steel industry that the sugar industry, that the combinations producing various articles of necessity will be enabled, by their financial strength as well as by their able management, to adjust the affairs of their corporations to changing conditions, and thus put off, or at least greatly mitigate, the area of depression which has been so common in our country as far back as 1857.

"If I am right in this hypothesis, there is much that is advantageous to the business interests of the country in this one regard; that the aggregations of capital engaged in manufacturing productively will result in adjusting supply and demand and in avoiding the great cry which comes up from the socialist—that the capitalist makes slaves of his workmen—whenever the day of industrial panic comes.

"In speaking of these vast aggregations of capital in connection with the present business condition, I do not desire it understood that I am unmindful of the necessity of corporations with our modern methods of commerce, but I desire distinctively to disavow any disposition to underestimate the possible evils which may overshadow the state from the greed of ownership, or the dangers that may threaten the public by reason of the unlimited power that follows the massing of capital, as well as the disaster which inevitably comes to the citizen in the attempt either to stifle competition, or to destroy an unfortunate rival."

After speaking of various attendant evils, he continued: "Many of these great corporations do not deal in articles that can be considered monopolies, but the very mass of the capital, and their ability to destroy, practically gives them the broadest field for operations, and I cannot help coming to the conclusion that the opinion promulgated by the court of appeals, a few days since, in which it is distinctly pointed out that while the right of private ownership is bestowed upon every citizen of this country, under the constitution, no man shall be permitted, and no corporation shall be permitted, to utilize that ownership to the extent of injuring his neighbor or menacing the public good. I would have you fully appreciate just what this means, for, if I am right in this connection, no corporation doing business in the states can destroy its rival by a disastrous cut in prices, or raise prices for products to the point of oppression. Hence the conclusion that the courts of this country, while recognizing the right of corporations to transact their legitimate business, in no way restraining them, yet whenever they touch the citizen in such a way as to prove a public menace, in that moment they become enemies to the commonwealth, disobedient to the law, and are liable to be destroyed.

Does this mean that there is to be a realignment of ideas on the subject of private ownership? Has there come another evolution which practically obliterates the tradition of centuries, that man may do what he chooses with his own? Is it a touch of socialism, and must we be prepared for greater changes? The conclusion is irresistible that in the central government rests the power to determine that the individual or to corporation transacting any business that is interstate in its character cannot hold, maintain or operate any property that results in injury to the public. Surely such a contention in effect materially tends to centralize power in the national government."

He spoke at some length of credits, so-called trusts and their management, of the big banking institutions and added: "We have much to deplore in connection with our monetary system. An experience running over a considerable number of years has given me a partial insight into the defects of our fiscal system. The currency system is faulty in that it is inelastic. The sub-treasury system of the United States is faulty in that it withdraws from circulation the results of returns from customs and internal revenue, so that, as a natural consequence, when prosperity abounds, and money is more active, when people spend most freely, at that time the revenues of the country increasing as a result of imports, is certain to withdraw from ciculation large sums that ought to remain in the channels of trade. This fault will undoubtedly be corrected at the next session of congress, although in the meantime in my judgment, when the crops, great in prospect, are to be moved, you are likely to see an exceedingly sharp demand for the necessary funds to start the crops in motion.

"It is the purpose of congress to permit the public funds, both customs and internal revenue, to be deposited in national banks and to secure them by certain kinds of municipal bonds. This plan seems to be the only feasible way to correct a faulty system—for I take it that the sub-treasury will never be abandoned by the government. To obviate this absorption of funds on the part of the United States it should be placed in banks, with proper security, in order that it may be reloaned and thus enter the channels of trade. It is confidently expected that there will be relief in this direction, and if it comes in time, there will undoubtedly be a much less acute financial situation than now apprehended by those who are immediately in the purview of the monetary atmosphere of New York city."

Again taking up the subject of combinations, he said:

"It seems to me that it is your duty, as it is mine, and that of every other good citizen, to lend his ability, his good will and to utilize his citizenship against every incursion of capitalization that looks to the invasion of the laws of the states or in any sense appears as a public menace."

SOCIAL MENTOR AT WHITE HOUSE

President's Sister Urges Appointment of "Master of Ceremonies."

Washington, April 17.—Mrs. Cowles, President Roosevelt's sister and wife of Capt. Cowles of the navy, and several other persons close to the Roosevelts, are advocating the appointment of a master of ceremonies for the White House.

Ordinarily the army officer detailed as superintendent of public buildings and grounds acts, in a measure, in that capacity, but he has other duties.

Those who want the new official say there is work enough for a master who shall have nothing else to do.

What they want is a person who shall be capable to instruct the great American publie when to approach the president and how; when not to go near him, what sort of clothes to wear on formal occasions; when to sit down or stand up in the presence of the president and Mrs. Roosevelt, and a lot of other important things from their view point.

At the social functions last winter several persons close to the president made themselves social mentors and went about at the receptions telling those present what to do.

The wife of a western representative was told one night that she held her train in the wrong hand. This information confused her so much that she dropped the train, and when she reached the president she had no train at all.

Another source of annoyance to the social mentors of the president was the talking of those present to "assist" at the receptions.

Frequently the president could not hear the name announced. He remedied things somewhat by putting the guests invited to "assist" in front of him instead of behind the line, where they had stood for many years.

Then the guests who were "assisting" leaned over to talk with the president and Mrs. Roosevelt and stooped the line that was approaching.

The proposed master of ceremonies is to be at the White House as a guide, philosopher and friend for all perplexed by social customs.

When to call upon Mrs. Roosevelt, how to call, or whether to call at all, are grave questions which perplex the wives of newly appointed or elected officials.

The wife of each new senator or representative wishes to attend one of the musical afternoon receptions or teas given at the White House.

An old member's wife discovered last winter that to call one afternoon and leave her card for Mrs. Roosevelt, brought her an invitation to a reception to be given the next.

Comparing notes with another member's wife, it was decided that to leave a card for the president's wife was a bid for an invitation to one of her receptions.

White House etiquette is left to the personal judgment of each president's wife, which causes much misunderstanding.

Hospitality at the White House is constantly taken advantage of, and an invitation to an affair there seems to the recipient to include all his friends.

When guests were invited to "assist" last winter they in turn invited a friend or so, and the number who remained for supper always turned out to be twice as great as the number expected.

The master of ceremonies is to settle all these things—if they get one.

ICEBERGS BY THE HUNDREDS

Ship Indore Passes 180 Miles of Mountainous Arctic Ice.

Baltimore, April 17.—Passing through a field of hundreds of icebergs looming up out of fog, mist and rain, to the right and to the left of the ship, as she crossed the Newfoundland banks, was the experience of the big Johnston liner Indore, Capt. Mytton, which has arrived in part from Liverpool.

Capt. Mytton made a chart of 100 icebergs within the 4-mile lane traversed by the Indore, which is probably the record for icebergs seen on the banks. The best previous record this season was seventy-four, by the steamer Lord Iveagh, and fifty-two by the steamer Chemnitz, both unusually large numbers. Never in a great many years, say steamship men, have the lanes of trans-Atlantic travel been so crowded with icebergs as at the present time. At this very season of the year they are most unusual, very few being seen as far south as the banks until the middle of June. Now, however, they are drifting down from the Labrador ice fields by the hundreds. Few vessels which arrived here in the past week that did not have some entry in their logs concerning icebergs.

The Indore passed through a countless field of icebergs for sixteen hours, the islands of Arctic ice being strewn along the ship's path for 180 miles. The ship had clear weather until she entered the ice field, when the mist and fog from the hundreds of icebergs made it impossible to see more than four miles to either side of the ship. Within these confined limits 100 icebergs loomed up to the right and left of the big steamer. If 100 were seen in the 4-by-180-mile lane, through the mist and fog traveled by the Indore, there must have been hundreds of the ice monsters drifting unseen to the north and south of the ship. The first berg, one measuring about 200 by 100 feet, was seen at 2 a. m., March 26, in latitude 42:30 and longitude 49:12. Then she passed through a group of twenty bergs, with one measuring 400 by 120 feet. The weather was hazy and the temperature of the air, due to the pressure of the ice, had changed from the water being four degrees colder than the air to the air being fourteen degrees cooler than the water. Next the ship passed between five big bergs, two of them measuring 400 feet and 300 by 100 feet.

The weather became misty and rainy. Fifty bergs had been left starboard or port up to noon, when the Indore entered a dense fog, with the temperature of the air twelve degrees above that of the sea. One berg to port and two to starboard were passed in the fog. After leaving the fog bank, the steamer met light rains while passing through a field of about thirty bergs. In this group was the largest one of the 100, a mass of ice 800 feet wide and 150 feet high. The enormous size of this berg may be calculated from the fact that an iceberg shows but one-eighth of its bulk above water. The last berg was seen at 6 p. m., in latitude 42.17 and longitude 52.17.

The majority of the bergs were from 100 to 150 feet long and from 40 to 50 feet high. The small pieces of ice and hummocks seen were innumerable. At no time was it possible to see more than four miles from the ship, owing to mist, fog or rain. The hydrographic bulletin issued this week devotes a great deal of its space to "ice warnings," and skippers are instructed to keep a watchful eye ahead, especially in the region of the 40s. Mariners fear icebergs as much as they do derelicts, and many a serious ocean casualty, attributed to unknown causes, has resulted from vessels coming in contact with them. A slight mist shrouds them, and a captain must depend largely upon his ability to "feel" their presence.

Good for children. The pleasant to take and harmless One Minute Cough Cure gives immediate relief in all cases of cough, croup and la grippe because it does not pass immediately into the stomach, but takes effect right at the seat of the trouble. MAX WIRTH.

INCREASED DEMAND

Of the Average American For Manufactures of Silk.

Importations of Raw Silk Show a Steady Growth.

FROM THE HERALD WASHINGTON BUREAU.

Washington, April 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The demand of the average American for silk manufactures must be steadily and rapidly increasing. Measured by the barometer of the imports of raw silk, the activity of the manufacturers of the country must be far in excess of any preceding year, while the importations of manufactured silks are also greater than for many years. The importations of raw silks, as shown by the figures of the treasury bureau of statistics, amounted to $37,000,000 in value for the eight months ending with February of this year, as against $29,000,000 in the eight months ending with February, 1902, and $15,000,000 in the eight months ending with February, 1901. Measured by quantity, the figures for the eight months ending with February, 1903, amounted to 10,000,000 pounds, against less than 9,000,000 for the eight month ending with February, 1901. Meantime the importations of manufactured silk have also increased, the figures for the eight months ending with February, 1903, being valued at over $25,000,000, as against less than $23,000,000 in the eight months ending with February, 1901.

The growth in the production of silk manufacture in the United States—a production which is wholly from imported material, much of which is brought from the other side of the globe—is rapid and interesting. In 1870 importations of raw silk were but half a million pounds; in 1880, 2,500,000; in 1890, 7,500,000; in 1900, 13,000,000, and in 1903 seem likely to be 16,000,000 pounds. The value of the raw silk imported was, in 1897, 45,000,000, and in the present fiscal year seems likely to be $50,000,000. From the silk thus imported the silk-manufacturing establishments of the United States produced in the year 1900 silk goods valued at over $100,000,000; and in view of the fact that the raw silk importations of the present fiscal year materially exceed those of 1900 or 1899, it seems probable that the value of the silk manufactures of the country in the present year will materially exceed those of 1900. The value of the product of the silk-manufacturing establishments of the country grew from $12,000,000 in 1870 to $41,000,000 in 1880, $87,000,000 in 1890, and $107,000,000 in 1900; and for the present year the total product will probably materially exceed that of 1900. Nevertheless the importations of silk manufacturers are greater in value in the present year than for many years. For the eight months ending with February the total value of silk manufactures imported was $25,000,000, an increase of $7,000,000 over the figures of a like period two years earlietr.

The following table shows the quantity and value of raw silk imported in the eight months ending with February for a term of years:

Eight months ending with Feb.—.	Unmanufactured Silk.	Imports of Manufactured Silk.
1892	$17,190,319	$21,695,485
1895	23,724,823	26,324,991

BLOOD HUMOURS

Skin Humours, Scalp Humours, Hair Humours,

Whether Simple Scrofulous or Hereditary

Speedily Cured by Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Pills.

Complete External and Internal Treatment, One Dollar.

In the treatment of torturing, disfiguring, itching, scaly, crusted, pimply, blotchy and scrofulous humours of the skin, scalp and blood, with loss of hair, Cuticura Soap, Ointment and Pills have been wonderfully successful. Even the most obstinate of constitutional humours, such as bad blood, scrofula, inherited and contagious humours, with loss of hair, grandular swellings, ulcerous patches in the throat and mouth, sore eyes, copper-coloured blotches, as well as boils, carbuncles, scurvy, stles, ulcers and sores arising from an impure or impoverished condition of the blood, yield to the Cuticura Treatment, when all other remedies fail.

And greater still, if possible, is the wonderful record of cures of tortnring, disfiguring humours among infants and children. The suffering which Cuticura Remedies have alleviated among the young, and the comfort they have afforded worn-out and worried parents, have led to their adoption in countless homes as priceless curatives for the skin and blood. Infantile and birth humours, milk crust, scalled head, eczema, rashes and every form of itching, scaly, pimply skin and scalp humours, with loss of hair, of infancy and childhood, are speedily, permaneutly and economically cured when all other remedies suitable for children, and even the best physicians, fail.

SECRETARY TO FOUR HUNDRED

Miss Maria de Barril Now Occupies That Proud Position.

New York, April 17.—When Ward McAllister, leader of New York's social "Four Hundred," died the wheels of society nearly stopped running, and the notable Patriarchs' ball, which it was thought could not be held except under his direction, came near being abandoned. But Miss Maria de Barril immediately stepped into the breach and took the social reins into her own capable hands and proved such an excellent whip that no one ever thought of usurping her position.

It was this circumstance, seven or eight years ago, that earned for her the late leader's sobriquet, says the World. Even the small boys are aware of this distinction, for, according to Miss de Barril's own story, a precocious messenger boy whom she passed on Fifth avenue recently nudged another and said:

"Do you know who that is? That's Ward McAllister, that's who she is."

From the first, fashionable friends rallied to her assistance and wealthy houses utilized her social abilities, until now Miss de Barril bears the distinction of being the most notable woman in the capacity of confidante in the counry.

Testifying to the affection and esteem in which she is held by her friends is the dainty boudoir in the Lenox, occupied by Miss de Barril, the equipment of which was the gift of Mrs. Frederick Vanderbilt.

The wall are hung with fascinating Dresden hangings, while the white enameled leather upholstery of the furniture carries out the flower and ribbon design on the wall.

Silver accessories on desk, tea table and shelves sparkle and glitter and seem to illuminate the countless photographs and pictures which cover the four walls. There is not an inch of space which is not overhung with the likeness of some notable personage of social, official or royal note, and the best of it all is that many of them are signed.

Prominent among them are the dowager queen of Spain, the duchess of Marlborough, the duchess of Manchester, her mother, and the infant heir, besides eminent operatic stars and society leaders.

GOLDSBERRY BRINGS SUIT

For Land Now Held By His Father's Second Wife.

Windfall, Ind., April 17.—A lawsuit of unusual features was filed in Tuscola, Ill., styled Charles A. Goldsberry, of this city, against Amanda E. Alolu, of Hugo, Ill., to recover sixty acres of valuable land in that county.

Jeremiah Goldsberry was married to Elizabeth Gifford in Fayette county, Ohio, in 1861. They removed to Gas City, In 1865 Goldsberry deserted his wife and three small children. The wife and children moved here. She died three years ago.

A short time before her death, in seeking evidence to obtain a pension, it developed that Jeremiah Goldsberry had died in Illinois many years ago, leaving a second wife in possession of a farm in that state. After the death of his mother young Goldsberry began an investigation, which resulted in finding that his father was married to Amanda E. Hinds, of Hindsboro, Ill., April 29, 1875; that he died April 12, 1883, leaving the woman in possession of sixty acres near Hugo, Ill., which she has held and now claims as the widow of Jeremiah Goldsberry. Young Goldsberry, accompanied by his attorney from this city, went to Tuscola last week, demanded possession of the land and upon the refusal of the Hinds woman to deliver up the land brought suit to recover upon the theory that the second marriage was void, as his father was never divorced.

The case will come up for trial at the October term of the Douglas circuit court.

HOUSEHOLD DUTIES

May Be Taught In New York Schools.

New York, April 17.—The coming woman in New York will know how to look after a husband when she gets one, if the plans now under consideration by the board of education are adopted. Frank Harvey Field, a member of the board, is authority for the statement that there is under advisement a proposition with every prospect that it will be adopted to include in the curriculum of the girls' high school in the city cooking, sewing, domestic economy and household duties.

It is not improbable that action will be taken on this line before the opening of the schools next fall.

ROBBED THE GRAVE.

A startling incident is narrated by John Oliver, of Philadelphia, as follows: "I was in an awful condition. My skin was almost yellow, eyes sunken, tongue coated, pain continually in back and sides, no appetite, growing weaker day by day. Three physicians had given me up. Then I was advised to use Electric Bitters; to my great joy the first bottle made a decided improvement. I continued their use for three weeks, and am now a well man. I know they robbed the grave of another victim." No one should fail to try them. Only 50 cents, guaranteed, at Abbett's drug store.

NECESSITY OF AID

From the Whole Christian World For Destitute Finland.

Reports Concerning Famine Conditions Have Not Been Exaggerated.

Uleaborg, Northern Finland, March 20.—The sledge trip across the country of this expedition has proved to its members the accuracy of all published reports concerning the conditions of famine in Finland as well as all statements concerning the continued necessity for help from the whole Christian world. In one church parish composed of 5000 souls, they found utter desitution from end to end. Throughout the famine area more than 50 per cent of the horses, cows and sheep have either died of starvation or have been killed to save fodder. Children in arms in every parish have had no milk for months. Thousands are obliged to trudge twenty or thirty miles in a temperature far below zero to get a few days' supply of rye flour. More thousands suffer from the bitter cold because of having exchanged all their warm clothing for food. Hundreds of children flock to the villages and there beg bread from door to door. If all the peasants who are without foot carrying of all kind could be assembled in one place, they would form literally a barefooted army compared with which the sufferings of Washington's shoeless regiments in the snow at Valley Forge were of small moment, if numbers be considered. Altogether more than 40,000 families, numbering at the minimum estimate 250,000 persons, are affected by last year's crops failures and the consequent scarcity of food. And of these, thousands of men, women and children have subsisted entirely on hunger bread and salt water since last October.

While relief work for these sufferers is thoroughly organized, it is still a fact that the need for aid from America is still urgent, as the worst time of all is to come with the spring thaws, when traffic becomes impossible and the tenant farmers in the remote districts are utterly cut off from communications with the towns.

Meantime the relief committees, central, provincial and local, extend aid to all the needy in the form of work. All who can must work. The men toil in the forests, the women and children are given home work, the committees furnishing them with materials with which to keep their looms and spinning wheels busy. Payment is made partly in cash, but chiefly in flour. It is known that thousands of Finns have during this famine received charity for the first time in their lives.

What caused this widespread distress in a land already plunged into the depths of despair by the despotism of Russian government? Simply, last year's crops were destroyed by an August frost, the chill that came too soon. In a single night the hay rotted where it grew, the potatoes were frogen in the ground, rye and barley became brittle, like stalks of grass, and corn was not given time to ripen. To make matters worse the run of fish last summer was inactive, and the supply salted down for winter use was smaller than in any year since 1867, when 100,000 persons actually perished for this same lack of food. But in 1867 the state and church and local government were not prepared for famine. This time they were. When came news of the destruction of the crops and the deficient supply of fish, there was a famine fund of thousands of dollars ready to draw upon for immediate use. A central committee, consising of a number of the foremost citizens of Helsingfors was at once formed, a provincial committee was named in the chief towns of each province, and a local committee of farmers was esablished in each district. When the famine this year became an established fact, this relief machinery was at once put into operation. Dr. Klopsch has personally investigated the relief work and declares that though he has helped in such work in many countries, the system here is so thoroughly organized, and its operation so vide-reaching, that it has gained his sincere admiration.

We have found famine conditions in Finland to be wholly different from conditions in similar times, in that greatest of famine-visited countries, India. In India the sufferers are herded in villages, thousands in the hideous stages of emaciation may be seen at one time, more thousands are congregated in relief camps; all are naked and where the climate is warm he may be minus clothing, food and shelter and suffer only from the lack of food. n this ice-bound region where abides the Finn, however, man needs not only food, but clothing and shelter as well. Here we have found starvation combined with suffering from the lack of clothing and shoes. The peasant thanks heaven for shelter, for shelter he has, even the poorest of all having his log hut and plenty of fuel from the fine forests. But thousands are without sufficient clothing, having sold the last boot, the last shoe, the last coat, for black bread. I have seen scores of children, boys and girls alike, treading through the snow surrounding their huts, bare of foot, bare of head. And it must be remembered that these boys and girls are as our own country's lads and lassies in the states. They can all read and write, for all attend the district schools in winter, and when the district is too far away they go to the nearest "ambulatory" school, circuit teachers being employed for such schools and having their regular routes, somewhat like circuit judges, teaching a few weeks in each place.

In every village and town through which we have passed, the young men and the young women have given expression to their feelings in song, ending always with the Finnish national anthem.

To understand the entire significance of Finnish gratitude to America at this time, one must know that in each breast, of man and woman alike, burns the unquenchable flame of the true patriot. A people thirsting for liberty and chafing under the bondage of foreign rule, sees in the famine relief given by Americans an evidence of the friendliness of a free country. The Finns, indeed, look to America for help in gaining their constitutional liberty, somewhat as did the Cubans before the war with Spain. The political situations here now, and in Cuba then, are indeed somewhat analogous. The attitude of the Russian government toward Finland, too, may be compared to that of Spain in relation to Cuba. Up to 1899 the Finns enjoyed constitutional liberty and were content. In that year and since Russia has deprived the Finns of much liberty, has practically abolished their house of representatives, has placed them in a positon of taxation without representation, has denied the right of free press and free speech, has suppressed thirty Finnish newspapers, has disbanded their army and reduced the number of schools. Briefly, Russian has made every attempt to Russianize Finland, forbidding even public meetings for protest, making Russian the official language, and by means of a hundred other obvious measures.

In spite of all this it must be added that the Finns have nothing but kindly feelings toward the czar himself. Pictures of the emperor, indeed, hang in conspicuous places in the homes of educated classes. Even the leaders of the Finnish patriots concede that it is the corrupt officials of the Russian government, and not the czar, who are to blame for the intolerable political conditions in Suomi.

Why this oppression by Russians of the most prosperous province of Russia? It seems incredible, but it is stated as fact that the very cause of the oppression is the prosperity of Finland. The example thus set all other Russian provinces, it is said, is a dangerous one, for the only constitutionally free province is the most prosperous. Hence the great secret desire of the Russian official is to close all avenues to prosperity in Finland, setting back the hands of time as it were, fully half a century, in order that Finland may be as other parts of Russia.

How welcome, then, to the Russian official the calamity that has befallen Finland in the form of famine. Nature itself, by destroying the crops, has reduced the Finn's opportunities in the direction of prosperity. The crops would have brought millions into circulation, and hence with their failure the purchasing power of the people was reduced, and the present year is the poorest, in a material sense, known to the Finns in a third of a century.

Dared the Russian government ignore utterly the suffering in Finland and remain pasive when aid was needed? Nay, not to the end. The czar himself, and the czarina—to the great credit of their majesties be it said—set an example for all Russia by giving help to the Finns out of their privy purse. It is known that the direct incentive to this imperial generosity was the news that President Roosevelt himself sent a contribution to the Christian Herald relief fund for Finland. It was apparent the ruler of all the Russians could not allow his people to see him outdone in generosity by the ruler of a free people. Hence, as soon as the fact of the president's contribution was known in St. Petersburg, the czar and czarina eacr sent $2000 to Admiral Kraemer, a Finn, and the representative of the Finnish central relief committee in St. Petersburg. On his arrival in Uleaborg Dr. Klopsch met the provincial committee, to whom he gave the sum of 50,000 Finnish marks, equal to $10,000, on behalf of American contributors. Thus the total amount of the financial aid given to Finland to date through Dr. Klopsch, amounts to $70,000.

In reply to all the expressions of gratitude to Americans, Dr. Klopsch aptly summed up the sitation in his address delivered at a banquet given to the retiring Finnish governor of Uleaborg, when representative men from all Finland were present. Said Dr. Klopsch: "Europe is the parent of all America, and the children across the seas are ever ready to stand by the old folks at home."

LETTER TO ROOSEVELT

Brought Inspector to Investigate Alexandria Postoffice.

Alexandria, Ind., April 17.—The Republican postmaster in this city is just now on the rack of investigation.

A whisky dealer issued 5000 letter circulars offering to send 12 quarts of whisky to the recipient at a low price, and, after a small advance payment, trust him for the rest. This was sent out under a name of an alleged distilling firm which did not exist in the city. To this circular as recommending the alleged "company" and its goods and methods was the signature of the city mayor, attorney, councilmen and the postmaster.

A Prohibition paper got one of the circulars, and the comments it made on the officials made them sizzle. The city officials laughed it off, some of them denying the authority of the use of their names. Some citizen sent a marked copy to President Roosevelt, which inquiry brought a letter promptly, and soon following it an Inspector, who is now going into the matter. It has created a sensation which the local officials are trying hard to smother.

CAMEL HERD IN ARIZONA

Miners Claim That Straggling Remnant of It Still Exists.

Washington, April 16.— Hi Jolly, famous the world over as the man who introduced camels from Arabia into the arid deserts of Arizona and New Mexico for freight-carrying purposes, died at Quartszite, Yuma county, Ariz., a short time ago, after one of the most picturesque careers in the history of the West.

With the death of Hi Jolly an old question has been raised—are there camels in Arizona today? Among old mining men and prospectors who know the innesmost recesses of the territory the question is answered in the affirmative. They claim that a small herd of camels still lives on the alkali deserts of the southern part of Arizona, known to but few and serving no purpose but to be objects of superstitious reverence to ignorant Indians.

"That there are camels in Arizona at the present time is a fact known to few," said Horace Winters, of Miles City, Mont. "I myself confirmed the fact about three years ago, and while I was not fortunate enough to see the 'ships of the desert' myself, although I searched long for them, I discovered unmistakable proof of their presence in the territory.

"The only importation of camels into the United States for utilitarian purposes, so far as I know, was made, as I recall it, in 1872, and I was then in Arizona, engaged in the mining business, and located at Yuma, perhaps the hottest place on the globe.

"The question of transportation in Arizona in those early days was an important one, so important that it cost a small fortune to ship a box of cigars from San Francisco to Fort Yuma. All supplies came from the former place by vessel to the mouth of the Colorado river, and thence by river steamer to Yuma. Fort Yuma was one of the most important military posts in the Southwest, and thousands of tons of government freight was brought there every year. All freight carriers made barrels of money, and the carrying charges to the Colorado River Steamboat company were appalling. Bulk, and not weight, counted.

"Thus a government wagon was charged for on the former basis, obtained by measuring from the tip of the tongue to the extreme rear of the bed. To obtain the height of the vehicle the steamboat people would elevate the tongue, and that height went, and had to be paid for. The tariff sheet was modelled in proportion, and as all charges had to be paid in gold, the steamboats had a regular mine of wealth.

"I was in Yuma in the summer of 1872. It was frying hot. The sole topic of conversation was the expected arrival of a herd of camels, which, according to rumor, was being imported from Arabia. I shall never forget the day they landed. They came off the steamboat early in the morning, about fifty camels, with Hi Jolly at their head, and then began the strangest procession that ever set foot on Arizona soil.

"The main street of the scorching little town was lined with Mexicans, miners, cowboys, Indians, gamblers, dance hall girls, as picturesque a crowd of people as was ever brought together.

"With great solemnity Jolly led the way, with the troops of comels slinking sheepishly in the rear. They were not in good condition and their humps were flabby. To the ignorant Indians and Mexicans they were supernatural and regarded with awe. The beasts were put in a corral outside the town.

"For days nothing was discussed but comels. To the men in Yuma the freak of Hi Jolly came as a welcome diversion, and no circus with its red and gilt wagons ever created half the sensation the Arabian beasts of burden did. Jolly believed they would solve teh transportation question in the arid deserts, and there were many who shared the opinion. But the camels were not a success.

"They were utilized at times, experimented with, but their use was never put on a paying basis.

"It was found that a camel required more food than a horse. I don't know how the camel does in Arabia, but in Arizona he was a rank failure. The clumsy animals were used around Yuma for some time, but with indifferent success.

"I came to know Hi Jolly and found him one of the most eccentric characters I have ever met. He was unique. No other man would have conceived the idea of importing camels to Arizona. After I left Yuma Hi one day, in dusgust, opened his corral and drove the camels out to shift for themselves."

AGED WOMEN BURNED.

Two Sisters Lose Lives at Bear Creek, Wis.

Tomah, Wis., April 17.—Fire early yesterday totally destroyed the home of and burned to death Misses Phoebe and Libbie Meeley at Bear Creek, six miles south of this place. The two sisters were 75 and 86 years of age respectively. They lived alone on a large farm which they owned. A high wind at the time fanned the flames and before assistance arrived all was destroyed.

It was thought that they had a large sum of money in the house and that they were robbed and murdered and the fire started to cover the traces of the crime. A coroner's inquest will be held next Saturday.

RHEUMATISM

An All the Year Round Disease.

Rheumatism does not come and go with winter time always; in fact some suffer more during the Spring and Summer than at any other season. When the blood is charged with Uric Acid, Alkali and other irritating poisons, then the system is in the right condition for Rheumatism to develop, and an attack is liable to come at any time, Winter or Summer.

Rheumatism, because it attacks different parts of the body, and is sudden or slow in its action, is given various names such as acute and chronic, muscular, articular, inflammatory, mercurial and sciatic, but it is the same old acid blood that causes all. Some are constant sufferers, while others have only occasional spells of Rheumatism, but either kind is wearing upon the constitution, and in time produces stiffness in the muscles and joints, and sometimes the acids thrown off by the blood settle upon the valves of the heart and ends suddenly and fatally.

It won't do to let Rheumatism run on. It is a dangerous disease, and you can never tell where it is going to strike. Home remedies, plasters, liniments and such things as produce counter-irritation, are soothing and may relieve the pain temporarily, but the polluted, acid blood cannot be reached by external applications.

Rheumatism must be treated through the blood, and no remedy brings such prompt and lasting relief as S. S. S. It attacks the disease in the blood, neutralizes the acids, and removes all irritating poisons and effete matter from the system.

Portland, Ind., Jan. 10, 1903.
After being terribly crippled for three years with Rheumatism, and having tried well known remedies I could get no relief. And having read of the wonderful effects of S. S. S., I concluded to try it, and am happy to say that I was entirely cured, and am able to work as well as I ever did

I cheerfully recommend S. S. S. to all sufferers of this terrible disease, and will say that if they will continue the treatment, as per directions, they will find a permanent cure. H. W. SEES.

S. S. S. strengthens and enriches the thin acid blood, and, as it circulates through the body, the corroding, gnawing poisons and acid deposits are dislodged and washed out of the muscles and joints, and the sufferer is happily relieved from the discomforts and misery of Rheumatism.

SSS

S. S. S. is a purely vegetable remedy, does not contain any Potash or mineral of any kind, and can be taken with safety by old and young.

Rheumatic sufferers who write us about their case will receive valuable aid and helpful advice from our physicians, for which no charge is made. We will mail free our special book on Rheumatism, which is the result of years of practical experience in treating this disease. It contains much interesting information about all kinds of Rheumatism.

TO GOVERN THE FLOW

Of the Waters of the Mississippi and Prevent Floods.

Measures That May Be Adopted By the Government.

Washington, April 17.—Floods on the Mississippi can be prevented and will be some day, although the time is far in the future. Irrigation, navigation, reforestration and water power are involved in the work. The government now deals with all these questions individually, but without any regard to food prevention.

Some of the states, notably New York and Pennsylvania, have taken up the question of combining the different enterprises with regard to their relation to floods. They have not accomplished much, as the successful combination of the various projects is a most difficult one. The states cannot go very far without conflicting with private rights, and the government cannot accomplish much without interfering with state privileges. In New York it is suggested that a storage reservoir commission be authorized to deal with the subject.

The bearing of these various matters upon floods is not generally understood, and the explanation is interesting. Irrigation has its own purposes and is usually considered for that and nothing else. The same may be said of forestry, water power and aids to navigation. Those who are familiar with the workings of the government are convinced that the flood question will be solved without any special effort to do so. Not any one of the propositions under consideration would have an important effect in preventing floods on the lower Mississippi, but all of them will practically control the flow of water and reduce freshets until they are comparatively harmless.

The principle involved is to store the water along the tributaries and then regulate its flow to the sea. The reforestration of the mountain sides will cause the storing of millions of tons of water in the shaded slopes. This will restore the thousands of springs, rivulets, branches, pools and marshes, which will slowly dry up as summer advances, feeding the little tributaries of the greater rivers all through the hot months. This great store is laid by from the melting snows and spring rains. The denuded slopes now carry the water to the rivers in a few days in the spring, causing the freshets. The government has under consideration several extensive reforestration schemes for the upper Mississippi and the Allegheny mountains. The last named will involve an expenditure of $10,000,000.

When the hills and valleys were covered with forests there were freshets, big ones, too, and therefore reforestration only deals with one phase of the subject. Next in importance come the storage reservoirs. In the West those will be established for the purpose of irrigation. In the mountains they will be to furnish water power. So far as irrigation is concerned the government will take entire control of these projects. The dams will be constructed, the water stored in the later winter and early spring and used in the summer. In time there will be hundreds and hundreds of these irrigation dams. The outflow will be regulated for the crops, which means saving it and using the supply slowly. The combined result of these many efforts will materially aid in the prevention of floods.

The water power proposition is the most difficult of all, so far as government supervision is concerned. Naturally the control of these smaller rivers belongs to the states. They grant the water power privileges. These would naturally be on small scales, without any regard to saving water in the spring for use in the summer. Those who have ridden through the mountains can recall many places where large rivers pass through narrow gorges or valleys between ranges of hills. At these points the dams would naturally be constructed to provide water power.

At many places dams a few hundred yards long and 75 to 100 feet high would make reservoirs which in the spring would become miniature lakes. Some of these larger ones would become 20 or 30 miles long, up-stream, and many miles wide. Here, again, the water would be stored in the spring and early winter and used in the summer. In the mountains the falling water would supply power. The growing scarcity of coal will eventually make these very valuable. After their construction the only government supervision necessary would be the regulation of the flow of water.

There are hundreds of places where big lakes could be made and many more where smaller ones could be located. This system would eventually extend to the smaller streams in the lowlands, where often times dikes would have to be constructed to contain the stored water. In every instance the maintenance would come out of the profits of the water power rights.

It is this phase of the flood situation which is now being dealt with by the legislators of the states of New York and Pennsylvania. Capitalists have already discerned the tremendous value of the power rights and have caused to be introduced bills whereby they can acquire the most valuable. They are using various pretexts for asking for these privileges, but they are all transparent. The rivers most sought are the Delaware, the Susquehanna, the tributaries of the Ohio and the Hudson. The efforts have amounted to legislative scandals, but only mentioned here to show how valuable these privileges are rapidly becoming. Their various schemes all contemplate extensive storage reservoirs.

Next comes the navigation problem. The government spends millions each year in the improvement of river navigation, but never with any regard for the prevention of floods. It is not likely that such can be accomplished by storing water in the beds of navigable rivers, although this in itself is of some importance. In improving the channel from Pittsburg to Cairo, or from Minneapolis to St. Louis, the question of a summer water supply becomes of importance. The improvement of these channels depends largely upon securing sufficient water in summer. The irrigation schemes all become important in relation to the all-year navigation of these streams.

The army engineers have given much study to the scientific arrangement of these dams for navigation. Their constant effort in the establishing of these pools is to get the greatest amount of water in midsummer, and in doing this the tendency is to save the water.

Millions of dollars of government money will eventually be involved in these various schemes. That the ventures will be made there is no question. The yearly flood damages are so great that when there is a popular understanding that the remedy is in sight, the government cannot resist the pressure which will be brought upon congress from the various districts. The excuse of great cost will not serve. The English government expended $100,000,000 to harness the Nile when the results were much less.

MEET NEXT IN DULUTH

State Sunday School Convention Elects Officers and Adjourns.

Mankato, Minn., April 17.—The state Sunday school convention closed yesterday afternoon, after a very profitable three days' session. The total number of delegates enrolled was 330, representing fifteen denominations, and twenty-nine counties. Duluth was selected as the next place of meeting.

Resolutions were adopted pledging every endeavor to get the bible introduced into the public schools, favoring the organization of the primary unions, and urging increased attendance at Sunday schools, etc. The following was also adopted:

"Whereas, there is an increase in the use of alcoholics in the preparation of food, and beverages in many social circles, and an alarming increase of inebriates among women in some places, an evil which greatly endangers, not only the children of today, but likewise generations yet unborn, therefore, be it,

"Resolved, that we pledge our influence whenever and wherever possible against the manufacture and sale of intoxicating liquors."

More aggressive temperance instructions were also recommended. President Irish reported on the plan of work for the coming year, recommending the maintenance of the organizations already effected, the sub-districting of counties for smaller organizations and district summer schools at watering places in various parts of the state. This was adopted.

The following officers were elected:

President, Jeff H. Irish, of Detroit; vice president, Hector Baxter, of Minneapolis; Charles F. Robel, of Duluth, and Rev. A. J. D. Haupt, of St. Paul;; treasurer, H. B. Aurey, of Minneapolis. Field workers, John Orchard, of Fargo; directors for 1904, F. A. Boardman and C. D. Bentley, of St. Paul; directors for 1905, S. S. Williamson, of Duluth; J. H. Martin, G. A. Gruman, J. E. Bell, and H. B. Aurey, all of Minneapolis.

A GREAT SENSATION.

There was a big sensation in Leesville, Ind., when W. H. Brown, of that place, who was expected to die, had his life saved by Dr. King's New Discovery for Consumption. He writes: "I endured insufferable agonies from Asthma but your New Discovery gave me immediate relief, and scor thereafter effected a complete cure. Western North Carolina In the Spring.

Western North Carolina is attractive at any season of the year, but certainly during the spring months, when the trees are budding and the flowers blossoming; what could be more inviting than a trip to this beautiful mountain country.

The months of April and May in the Land of the Sky and Sapphire country, including Asheville and Hot Springs, N. C., are very enjoyable. The climate at this season is delightful, the scenery most beautiful, and the opportunities for the enjoyment of sport, including golf, cannot be surpassed.

The hotels in this region afford the very best accommodations. If you wish to know something of this delightful region, communicate with your nearest ticket agent, or address G. B. Allen, A. G. P. NEW WAY TO PUNISH PUGS.

Boston, April 17.—A fine of $100 was imposed on George Gardiner, the pugilist, yesterday. The fighter having been pronounced guilty of assault upon Peter Maher, with whom he recently fought before a club here. Persons interested consider the case important as it indicates a method whereby the authorities may reach bouts given before private clubs, with which the courts had decided they could not interfere.

CURES CATARRH

"Hyomei the Most Wonderful Cure for Catarrh Ever Discovered," Says Mayor Yard.

Do not try to cure catarrh by taking drugs into the stomach; it cannot be cured in that manner. The only way in which this too common disease can be cured is through a direct application that will kill the bacilli of catarrh and prevent their growth.

Hyomei is the only known method of treatment that accomplishes this. It is the simplest, most pleasant and the only absolute cure for catarrh that has ever been discovered.

Thousands of unsolicited testimonials have been received from the most prominent men and women in the country who have been cured by this remarkable remedy. Ministers, bankers, lawyers, even eminent physicians have sent strong testimonials as to the remarkable powers of Hyomei to cure catarrh.

Former Mayor Emory M. Yard, of Trenton, N. J., writes: "You have my permission to say that I believe 'Hyomei' to be one of the most wonderful cures for catarrh and throat trouble that has ever been discovered. In my case the effect has been marvelous. I enclose you money order for two outfits for friends of mine to whom I have recommended 'Hyomei' and who I am anxious shall have the benefit of this remarkable panacea."

The complete Hyomei outfit costs but $1.00, consisting of an inhaler, dropper and sufficient Hyomei to last over a month. This will effect a cure in ordinary cases, but for chronic and deep-seated cases of catarrh, longer use is necesary, and then extra bottles of Hyomei, (a month's treatment) can be obtained for 50 cents. "It is not alone the best (it might be called the only) method of curing catarrh, but it is also the most economical.

S. P. Boyce has so much confidence in the power of Hyomei to cure catarrh that he will, for a limited time, sell this medicine under his personal guarantee to refund the money if the purchasers can say that it did not help them.

NATIONAL BISCUIT COMPANY

THE OLDEST MAN

In Southern Illinois Believes He Is 112 Years Old.

He Has Evidence That He Is at Least 104.

Dix, Ill., April 17.—William Gruar, thinks he is the oldest man in Southern Illinois, believes he is 112 years. Not having positive proof of this he has set the year of his birth as 1799, at which time he has absolute proof that he was on earth. This makes him at least 104 years old.

Mr. Gruar is a native of Tennessee, and as a school boy made quite a reputation as a pugilist, but was not given to study. He was married seventy-five years ago and he and his wife lived together for sixty-six years. He made his first entrance into public life sixty years ago, when he was elected trustee of the school in his district.

After he gained an insight into this part of the public business he gave much of his time to the economical conduct of the schools until his hearing was affected by sickness a few years ago.

After Mr. Gruar retired from official connection with the township board he continued to give his personal attention to educational work and attended all meetings of the board. He was the "watch dog" of the township treasury. His was no blind, ignorant system of objecting, but he kept posted on educational work and while insisting on economy, he also insisted upon the adoption of such innovations as could be consistently used in the country school system.

"Uncle Billy," as his many friends call him, has still a strong grip on life. He is not one of the kind that feels like a burden, either. Although his sight is too dim to read, and he is very deaf, he retains a surprising interest in every-day affairs. His mind is still active, remarkably so. That fact gives him great pleasure. He could hear very well until five years ago, and his eyes did not begin to fail till four years ago. He says he is perfectly willing to lose the use of any other of his faculties if he could only keep his mind clear until his time comes. He is now a perfect fatalist in expressions, but denies such belief.

As to the modern improvements, Mr. Gruar says he realized early in life that when more people come to live in the West, as in the East and other countries, many changes would have to come. His kinsmen were ingenious and they realized that in making their simple innovations in the methods of climbing and hauling over the mountain, they were doing what would soon be done on a larger scale. Having been used to mountain transportation, it was no surprise to Mr. Gruar to learn of the railroads in the flat Illinois country. Now he would like to see an automobile. He has expected them for years. The traction engines pulling the threshing machines around suggested them to him.

Many men a quarter of a century younger than Mr. Gruar might envy him his physical ability. He can walk the better part of the day and during last summer kept the field hands supplied with water. It is a common occurrence for him to drive to the neighboring village alone and to put up the horse when he comes back home.

As to strong drinks, he has no very pronounced ideas, although he abhors a drunkard or a man who gets drunk. He says he never drank anything until after he was 50. Then he adopted the plan of many old men in this part of the country and takes an early morning drink and later a good night swallow. Of late years he has quite given up even that.

At 50 he commenced smoking a pipe. Mrs. Gruar smoked and he was lonesome sitting by the fire place or on the front doorstep without a pipe. Since the death of his wife "Uncle Billy" has stopped this mild form of dissipation. Now he uses neither tobacco nor whisky.

In his boyhood days in Tennessee Mr. Gruar made two starts to attend school. The first time the overgrown boys thought it would be great sport to get the little fellow drunk. They did so, and he was carried home insensible and was sick for some time from the effects of the mountain whisky. The second time he attended school several months and was then taken with measles. It was no light attack, nor was it properly handled, and he was left "without any sense," as the old man expresses it. Not until he was a man grown did he recover his full mental faculties, but they came to him gradually, and those years have always been a dull haze to him. He does not know to what his recovery is due.

His earliest fame came to him as the result of his fighting ability and the old man chuckles yet to think of the trouble he gave his teacher during his school days by whipping most of his fellow pupils.

Mr. Gruar first moved to Illinois in 1830 and lived in Montgomery county three years. The next six years he was a resident of Kentucky, but in 1839 he moved to Jefferson county to make his home. He entered 160 acres in Rome township, forty of which he still holds. His title to this land rests in his government patent signed by Andrew Jackson, president of the United States.

His present residence is a combination log and frame house. It is the third he has built on the ground. The first two were old-fashioned log houses and they have rotted away.

Mr. Gruar has been a member of the regular Baptist church for sixty-five years. He was for many years a member of the I. O. O. F. fraternity, but allowed his membership to expire.

GOMPERS IS ANGRY

Says Parry's Remarks Are Those of a Lunatic.

Washington, April 17.—President Gompers, of the American Federation of Labor, yesterday gave out a statement in reply to the annual report of President Parry, of the Manufacturers' association, which was read before that body in New Orleans. It says:

"If there were any doubt that Mr. Parry had taken leave of his reason, the report (or rather harangue) which he has made to his convention demonstrates it beyond any doubt. If the manufacturers' association in convention at New Orleans endorses Mr. Parry's unjustified, undigested and malicious antagonism to the effort of the workers to secure material and moral improvement they simply write themselves down to his low level and stand committed with him for all the injury which must follow from his radical utterances, his venonous and ignorant antagonism, which must provoke only resentment and retaliation.

"Organized labor is the result of our industrial development and environment. It proposes to secure a larger share of the production of wealth. It seeks to secure a larger share of the production of wealth. It seeks to secure these objects by peaceful and lawful methods. It aims to establish more rightful relations between man and man.

"Organized labor is here to stay—yes, to stay long after Mr. Parry's name shall have been forgotten. It has survived many encounters with enemies of such labor. Organized labor seeks no such conflict, such as Mr. Parry would promote, nor will it run away from it. We desire industrial and social peace and are making for it. Mr. Parry and those who act with him to the contrary notwithstanding.

"We shall be enabled soon to discern what extent the manufacturers of the United States are in accord with him. At this writing we are confident that he represents but an infinitesimal part of the American employers.

"Organized labor faces the future confident and self-reliant and hurls back into the teeth of Mr. Parry his foul vituperation and abuse. Organized labor is constantly striving for the attainment of a better and higher life, the fulfillment of its mission for the brotherhood of man."

MATCHES SHOT FROM HER HAND

By Typewriter Manufacturer, Says His Wife Seeking Divorce.

Chicago, April 17.—"You'll reap the end of a whirlwind when I arrive."

That was the contents of a telegram Mrs. Mary F. Sholes declares. In an amended divorce bill, her husband sent to her from New York at the fashionable Avenue House in Evanston.

Mrs. Sholes's life was much of a whirlwind while she lived with her husband, according to the charges she made against him.

Shooting lighted matches out of his wife's hand, chasing her through the hall of the Avenue House with a Chinese dirk at midnight and pulling her out of bed by her hair were favorite and usual pastimes of Zalmon G. Sholes, the typewriter manufacturer, when he happened to be at home, his wife says.

He was not at home very much, according to the bill, which mentions the name of a young woman with whom Sholes is accused of spending much of his time.

Some of the telegrams the husband sent his wife from New York during an absence there annoyed her.

"What did you mean by sending such telegrams?" Mrs. Sholes says she demanded upon her husband's return.

"I want to know who has been here," he answered. "I will find out, as I have murder in my heart."

The case will be bitterly fought when it comes to trial in the supreme court.

Bodily pain loses its terror if you've a bottle of Dr. Thomas' Electric Oil in the house. Instant relief in cases of burns, cuts, sprains, accidents of any sort.

SIGNIFICANT

Is Action of New York Republican Senators.

Albany, N. Y., April 16.—By a vote of 28 to 23 the state senate today rejected the reappointment of Frank M. Baker by Governor Odell as railroad commissioner. Four Republicans, Senators Ellsberg, Brown, Brackett and Ambler, voted with the twenty-two Democratic senators. The rejection of this nomination came as a climax to a series of political sensations which began with the trio of Republican independents voting against the re-election of United States Senator T. C. Platt and the action this afternoon is considered of the greatest political significance.

A GRAPHIC STORY

Of the Riot In the City of Monterey, Mexico.

Awful Scenes That Were Witnessed By American Ladies.

Indianapolis, Ind., April 17.—Mrs. Helen E. Moses, of Irvington, a suburb of this city, who has just returned from Monterey, Mexico, was an eyewitness to the political riot in that city on April 2, which was followed by the government seizing the telephone and telegraph wires and permitting only its version to reach the "states." Her story is graphic. Bernardo Reyes has been governor of Nuevo Leon for sixteen years, being placed there by President Diaz during a period of great unrest, and ruling the state ever since with a firm hand. He is ambitious to succeed President Diaz, and makes a great show of his authority. This year an opposition party developed, favoring Francisco Reyes, a prominent lawyer of Monterey. The election will come off in July. As no public demonstration can take place without official sanction, sixteen leading lawyers and physicians petitioned Governor Reyes to allow a Francisco Reyes demonstration on the national fiesta, Porilrio Diaz day (April 2), marking the anniversary of Diaz's victory over the French at Pueblo in 1867. On the morning of the holiday the Zaragoza plaza was gayly decorated in honor of Diaz. To the east stands the cathedral. The municipal palace is opposite, on the other end of the square, with the Windsor hotel standing between.

A crowd of American ladies watched the celebration from the hotel balconies. The plaza and contiguous streets were crowded with people in holiday attire. After a demonstration in honor of Diaz the procession marched to Governor Reyes' palace, requesting him to send a telegram of congratulation to President Diaz, after which it moved to the Zaragossa plaza, the band playing the national air, where it disbanded and the people began gathering around the speakers' stands.

Then came a signal shot from the balcony of the municipal palace and a company of mounted gendarmes, who had ridden up with cocked pistols, began firing blanks over the head of the crowd. Instantly there was a stampede of the thousands of people massed around the stands, rushing in every direction to escape. The gendarmes then began firing a second time, their cartridges no longer blank, shooting right and left as the fugitives scattered in every direction, many of them breaking through the windows and hiding in the hotel, while others took refuge in stores and other buildings, and quite a number fled to the cathdral, where they were forced out by the priests, who locked the doors against them. Hundreds were trampled and bruised in the mad rush, and one slender boy, apparently not over 14 years old, struggled from under the feet of the crowd underneath the balcony where the American ladies were standing, waved his hand and shouted, "Vive Francisco Reyes," and then went down. Not less than fifteen people were killed in the brutal fusillade, while many were wounded, and they lay for an hour on the hot plaza until a judge could come and officially sanction their removal. An American saw one Mexican who had been shot and was bleeding from a severed artery, and he called to a friend, "We can save this fellow," but his friend retorted, "Not on your life. Unless you want to see the inside of a Mexican prison you must not touch that man until the judge has passed on him."

Another American, whose wife has a millinery establishment on the plaza, approached her store just after the shooting, and seeing his wife in a window he shouted a warning. Immediately he was surrounded by three gendarmes and hustled off to prison, and it was not until the American consul interfered that he was released, with the explanation that a wounded boy had been carried into his wife's shop from the plaza before a judge passed on him, and for that reason he was amenable. This American was a personal friend of Francisco Reyes, but had taken no part in the controversy. All of the sixteen lawyers and doctors who signed the request for the demonstration were hurried to the penitentiary without warning, they being held responsible for the lives of all who were killed that day unless the guilt can be fastened on the individuals who were responsible. When Mrs. Moses started north the families of the imprisoned men did not know their fate, and she was also informed that altogether over 600 of the adherents of Francisco Reyes had been imprisoned without trial, many of them young students from the civil college and state normal school.

The Americans at Monterey, who were witnesses of the affair, were possessed of a feeling of absolute rage because of the unheard-of and inexcusable brutality, and there was not the slightest doubt among them but that the whole bloody affair had been prearranged, as within a few moments after the first volley the state troops appeared upon the scene, and were in evidence throughout the entire day.

Mrs. Moses says that the procession was composed of orderly and respectable people, and not of low or disorderly people, as the local subsidized newspaper published, and that they were shot down while exercising a privilege guaranteed to all free people. "No amount of official whitewash," says Mrs. Moses, "can palliate the offense of that terrible day." She adds: "How men like Charles F. Lummis can laud Mexico to the skies, and to the disparagement of their own country, is beyond my comprehension. For my part, it was a happy moment to me when we had crossed the Rio Grande, and I realized that I was once more in my home land. There are splendid people in Mexico; to know them is to be interested in them. The nation has a great future before it, if it can be kept from the grasp of designing, selfishly ambitious men. President Diaz is loved and honored throughout the republic. His rule has been benficient throughout its entire period. In it the arts of peace have flourished. American enterprise have been invited by him to Mexico and have received an appreciative welcome. It is to be hoped he will be advised of the conditions in Monterey, and will act with his accustomed vigor and justice in righting the wrongs of its citizens."

STUDIES IN THE BOOKS OF ACTS

THE LAW OF LOVE

International Sunday School Lesson For April 19, 1903.

Romans 13:7-14. "Render to all their dues: tribute to whom tribute is due; custom to whom custom; fear to whom fear; honor to whom honor.

"Owe no man anything, save to love one another: for he that loveth his neighbor hath fulfilled the law. For this, Thou shalt not commit adultery, Thou shalt not kill, Thou shalt not steal, Thou shalt not covet, and if there be any other commandment, it is summed up in this word, namely, Thou shalt love thy neighbor as thyself. Love worketh no ill to his neighbar: love, therefore, is the fulfillment of the law.

"And this, knowing the season, that now it is high time for you to awake out of sleep: for now is salvation nearer to us than when we first believed. The night is far spent and the day is at hand: let us therefore cast off the works of darkness and let us put on the armour of light. Let us walk honestly, as in the day; not in revelling and drunkenness, not in chambering and wantonness, not in strife and jealousy. But put ye on the Lord Jesus Christ, and make no provision for the flesh, to fulfill the lusts thereof."

Golden text: "Love worketh no ill to his neighbor: therefore love is the fulfilling of the law." Romans 13:10.

From the days when Christ found it desirable to instruct his disciples that it was proper to pay to Caesar the coin that bore his image and superscription, the question of the Christian's relations to his civil rulers has been an important one. Paul found it pressing upon his attention, because the churches he had founded were in communities that had heathen rulers whose lives were fashioned after the spirit of their idolatory. But the question is one of importance in every age and country, and Paul's advice is of well nigh universal validity.

Respectful obedience to civil rulers is a duty that grows out of one's sense of obligation to observe the laws of God's moral government, for all civil power is ordained of God. Since this is the case, a person whose conscience leads him to seek and follow the will of God will, on that account, diligently seek to obey God's will by holding himself subject to those set in authority over him. To resist civil authority is, therefore, equal to resistance of God, and brings guilt and judgment in its train.

Paul's advice was evidently meant as a general principle of action, for it is tsated in terms that are quite ideal. He certainly would not have required his converts to obey every dictate of a ruler who would have ordered them to do sacrifice to idols. He plainly states the case he supposes. "Rulers are not a terror to good works, but to evil." And yet many rulers have been a terror to works that were good. But the dictum holds good, nevertheless, and men ought to respect and obey those set over them.

"Order is the first law of nature," and civil order is as essential as natural order. Right conduct is the plain path of duty. Rulers are sometimes unjust and immoral, but modern Western life provides ways of dealing with such cases. They do not possess the terror that pertained to them in Paul's day. His language is, consequently, more generally valid today than when it was written.

The question of taxes is today also much different from what it was in Paul's day. Then a tax was a tribute paid to an arbitrary ruler. Today it is one's share of the expenses of the government to which he owes the safety of his person and property and the general political order which is such an essential factor in the happiness of civilized man. No man can claim that he has fulfilled his Christian duties conscientiously if he has neglected to acknowledge and pay any of his honest taxes. And yet people quite commonly fail to make anything like full returns of their property in the assessment lists. Some states have tried to adopt drastic measures to force their citizens to be honest in the performance of their civic duty. The same people who fail in this social obligation are apt to fail in rendering courteous honor where it is due and in the fear of God, whose judgment will one day fall with terror on all their evil deeds.

LOVE FULFILLING LAW.

Money is not the only thing which one can owe to others. There are other terms in which we must reckon many of our debts. But all debts should be paid as promptly as possible, so that, as far as lies in one's power, he may owe no man anything except the great obligation that must evermore be due from man to man in fulfillment of the Christian ideal of human brotherhood. To the circle of one's family and intimate friends one gives a sincere affection that leads to many deeds and words of careful interest. This same disposition ought to be shown toward all men; not that the Christian is expected to love the stranger with the same degree of affection that dominates his fireside; but the same principle and quality of motive should control him whenever his hand touches the life of his brother man. Love is a universal debt. It is also a universal principle of conduct.

Before Christ's day many teachers had imposed the duty of love on their disciples. It had even been taught as a divine demand on man by such writers as Hosea and the author of Deuteronomy. But Christ struck it as the keynote of all he had to say and as the master theme of the grand symphony of the kingdom of God. In that kingdom love controls where statutes had only regulated. Righteousness becomes a passion where it had formerly been a rule; because it is now the child of the world's greatest passion spiritualized.

Instances might be multiplied of law that is better fulfilled by love. Paul named a few cases, such as the laws against adultery, murder, theft and covetousness; all of which imply real or intended injury to another in morals, life or property. But he passed immediately to the general statement that if there is any other commandment it is summarized in the law of love. This is Christ's great, new commandment and applies to all men everywhere, as he plainly declared in the parable of the Good Samaritan. There is hardly a law on the statute books that would be needed if all men loved their neighbor as themselves.

The reason for the universal validity of the law of love is that love never intentionally does wrong to anyone. Furthermore, it assiduously seeks to be a messenger of good will and benefaction. It is said that there was once a famine in Ireland, during the continuance of which many efforts were made to alleviate the sufferings of the people. Some English bodies sent over duly accredited agents to inquire into the conditions and make report. Such persons were wont to present their written credentials wherever they went. Other persons were sent with cargoes of food and other necessaries, to be distributed wherever they were needed. No written credentials were demanded of the latter class of agnts; their timely help opened to them the hearts of the people. So Christian love the world over finds ready entrance to human lives, as it goes about with hand and heart ready to serve the needs of mankind. It fulfills the law by going beyond the observance of the statutes that forbid injury and by seeking to fill life with deeds of kindness. It might be well to keep in memory that the law Paul had in mind while writing the passage under consideration was the old Jewish law; but the principle of love which he advocated will lead to the fulfillment of all just law.

ONE MOTIVE TO UPRIGHTNESS.

Upright living is an absolute demand of Christianity on human conduct; but there are diverse motives to which appeal can be made in order to induce Christians to strive to be more perfect. The love of God, the love of parents, pride, fear, self-interest, are but a suggestion of the list of such motives. In this lesson Paul gives a motive to which appeal was widely made in apostolic days. It is the expectation the church then had that Christ's second coming was near at hand, for which coming all believers desired to be ready. Salvation was conceived in a double sense, of one's present faith and hope and deliverance from evil temptations and sins, and of the future declaration before the throne of God that one is saved. It is to this latter showing forth of salvation that Paul refers when he says, "Now is salvation nearer to us than when we first believed.'

Most all men who know anything of Christian truth expect to find eventual acceptance with God. Many who indulge in sin freely today intend to quit it and follow Christ tomorrow. But they travel in the well-worn pathway to hell that is paved with good intentions. If they could be convinced that the judgment would come tomorrow, they might repent today, or, at anyrate, after tonight's revelry. But, like the sinners of whom Amos spoke, they put far away the evil day, while the violence of their own iniquity is pressing close upon them and striking the knell of their doom.

A man ought to so conduct himself at all times that he could invite the white light of day to shine upon his record before all the world without fear of a blush or a tremor. He will do so if he honestly fears God and constantly remembers that God sees and understands him in his most secret deeds and thoughts. Then lust and wantonness, strife and jealousy, and all other works of evil that go along with drunkenness will slink away like owls and bats to their native darkness, and the whole life will be left full of light.

Christian principle must be worn like a garment. It is as if Christ himself were reincarnate every time a believer truly lives out his spirit and truth. For being a Christian is more than wearing a garment that can be put off at will. That Christianity is spurious which is not as inseparable from one's outward appearance as is the habit of wearing clothes from the social habits of civilized man, and which is not as truly a part of the course of one's inner life as is the flow of blood and the energy of the nerves. No true Christian arranges ways and means for satisfying his baser passions and lusts. He seeks to control, to suppress these, and to bring all the forces of his being into subjection to the command of Christ.

WOULD OUST OLD BOARD.

Denver, April 16.—James O. Parrish, George P. Steele and George T. Woodside, who have been appointed by Governor Peabody as members of the Denver fire and police boards, took the oath of office today and made a formal demand on the old board to surrender the office and records of the departments. This was refused and the new board will at once endeavor to oust the old board by legal process.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

Disappointed Suitor at Miller Smokes Out the School Mistress.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Miller—Failing to gain Katie Bawdon, a school teacher, in marriage, the undone hero climbed to the top of the school house during the night and stuffed the chimney tight with hay. When the pretty teacher arrived with her pupils the next day and tried to warm the building, she was smoked out and the stove came near burning up the house. As there were but three days of the term left, and as she believed her malicious suitor was trying to break up the school to prevent her from drawing her salary for any of the term, she and her scholars put on their wraps and held the fort without a fire.

Watertown—Frank L. Bramble, who was county auditor for many years, has accepted the position of general manager of the cement works which Miracle & Miracle, of Sioux Falls, will soon put in in this city.

The land offices in this city are in receipt of a circular from the interior department which apprises them that the register or receiver may issue subpoenaes to compel witnesses to appear before them and testify.

Rev. S. G. Updyke, one of the earliest pioneers in this region, now pastor of the Congregational church at New Ulm, is in the city. He will go to Clark, where he will perform the marriage ceremony of a niece.

Mellette—John Brown, a farmer, was seriously injured by being kicked in the stomach by a horse.

Will Snearly, of Mansfield, had two bones of one of his legs broken as a result of his team running away.

Hurley—The Oil Fellows are making arrangements for the celebration of the eighty-fourth anniversary of the order. This falls on Sunday, April 26, but the celebration wil be held on the following day.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Fargo—The druggists of the state are making some investigations regarding the new Shiels law, which becomes effective July 1. The state association has secured an opinion on the law from a prominent attorney. It is held that all old permits become void July 1, when the new law becomes effective. The old law was a mere police regulation and not a contract. The druggists are informed that the mere fact that they have whisky in their places cannot be construed against them as long as it is not offered for sale. The druggist can keep the liquor on hand to compound tinctures and medicines, but cannot fill prescriptions without permits. The attorney rather thinks the law is unconstitutional—though not on the ground that it is class legislation—in permitting druggists to sell larger quantities to each other than to another customer. Under the new law prescriptions, when purely for medical purposes, can be filled for a third person by all druggists having permits. It seems to be the general sentiment that there will be fewer applications for permits than formerly, as the law is so strict and the trouble to secure a permit so great, that the additional trade will scarcely make up for it. On the other hand, if certain druggists in town do get them, all will be forced to apply, as it will handicap their business otherwise. In Fargo it is rumored that the druggists will make no effort to secure permits, and will let the booze prescriptions go by default.

Devils Lake—The trustees of the deaf school held an important meeting, at which a contract was let for the erection of a new dormitory building and wing to the main building of the school. Denny Brothers, of Grand Forks, were the successful bidders, securing the contract for $42,664, the work to commence at once. Several thousand dollars will be expended in working other needed improvements.

ARE GIVEN A CLEAN BILL

Resignations of Tyner and Beavers From Postal Department.

Washington, April 17.—Postmaster General Payne, in accepting resignations of James N. Tyner, attorney for the postoffice department, and George W. Beavers, chief of the salary and accounts division, has given these officials a clean bill.

If he had ordered them dismissed from the service or suspended them, or ordered a civil or criminal action commenced, the charges preferred against Tyner and Beavers would have amounted to something, but as their resignations have been accepted nothing more can come from that part of the postoffice investigations.

There is a gradual weakening of part of those who have been pressing investigations and promising big sensations.

One charge against Superintendent Machen is that he is connected with a copper mining company. If being an officer in such a company or any other outside business concern is to be barred and held against government officials there would be a shaking up of the cabinet itself.

Mr. Shaw, secretary of the treasury, is heavily interested in several large enterprises, including rice plantations. Mr. Payne, postmaster general, is prominently connected with several large companies.

There is no existing law that prevents an official from being connected with business enterprises that are entirely outside of his department with which he is connected.

St. Louis and Return $22.30.

The Northwestern line, Chicago, St. Paul, Minneapolis & Omaha, will sell excursion tickets to St. Louis, Mo., April 26 to May 1, inclusive, at $22.30 for the round trip. Tickets limited to May 4 for return passage. City ticket office, 405 West Superior street.

THE STEEL IS HERE

Stony Brook Double Track Will Be Completed June 1.

Great Northern Had Expected to Finish It January 1.

The steel that will be used in building the double track on the Great Northern, north of Stony Brook, has arrived.

Assistant General Superintendent D. M. Philbin of the road said today that the double track would be completed about June 1.

The Great Northern planned to have the tracks in shape for the opening of the ore traffic, but the delays in the delivery of steel rails caused the work to be put off. Jan. 1 was the date originally set for the completion of the extra track, and it was expected that the logging business could be relieved somewhat through the additional track in the early part of the year.

The two tracks are almost essential, as it will give the company a chance to keep the ore cars moving both ways to the main track into the Allouez docks, and the empties can be sent back over one track as the full cars are brought down over the old one. This will serve to permit the cars to have a larger extent of service and will cause much cheaper transportation from the range to the docks.

A THRILLING RUNAWAY.

Livery Horse Makes Things Lively For a Time.

A horse attached to one of the Board of Trade livery's light rigs gave an exciting runaway exhibition yesterday afternoon, during which several people had narrow escapes from injury. The horse started at the rear of Stewart's livery barn and ran west in the alley between First and Second streets until it reached Sixth avenue west, when it turned down and attempted to get into the central firehall. The carriage was left standing in the alley through collision with another rig.

Failing to get in the fire hall, the horse, with the shafts still attached, dashed down First street to Fifth avenue west and then took the sidewalks on the east side down the hill and across Superior street to Michigan street.

People in the course of the galloping animal dodged hastily into doorways or rushed into the street. The horse encountered no obstacles in crossing Superior street nor along the side of the Spalding block, but just as it reached Michigan street an empty coal wagon was driving out past the building and the runaway dashed into it, striking the heavy rig about the middle and nearly overturning it. The driver was thrown backward from his seat, but he got up in time to stop his own team. The force of the impact was so great that two shoes were torn from the feet of the runaway horse. Aside from several small scratches, the animal suffered no further injury. It was easily caught after colliding with the coal wagon.

FROM TEXAS TO SOUTH DAKOTA

Woman Walked Thousand Miles Drawing Child In Wagon.

Sioux City, Iowa, April 17.—Mrs. Ella M. Arthur, a frail little woman, walked 1100 miles, from Texas to South Dakota, drawing an express wagon containing her youngest child, in order that she might keep her family together, only to lose her youngest child at the end of the journey. That she may yet accomplish her purpose of uniting the family, she has procured a divorce and a $2000 judgment against her husband, that she may spend the money in search of the lost child.

Six years ago the woman was living at Artesian, S. D., with her three children, a girl of 8, a boy of 7 and a girl of 3. Her husband had left her, and she was striving to support the family. To do this she had as capital one cow, one pig and a pair of hands. She chanced to come across a glowing description of the delights of Texas. The land was represented as flowing with proverbial milk and honey.

The disheartened mother thought this her one chance. She sold her cow and her pig and gave the proceeds to the ticket agent at the depot for tickets for four to a gulf town in Texas.

When she reached her destination her disillusionment was rapid.

Her money all gone, Mrs. Arthur was in despair. She finally determined to walk to South Dakota.

She purchased a little express wagon, in which she placed the youngest child and clothing and a small quantity of provisions.

She had exactly 30 cents in her pocket.

Onward she went, across the broad plains of Texas and Indian territory. Many a time she was helped by kind farmers, and at other times she stopped to earn by manual labor enough money to feed them. In this wise she crossed Kansas, Northeast Missouri and Iowa as far as Ames. Here she was given a railroad ticket as far as Sioux City.

It was at Sioux City that the little girl she had drawn all the way from Texas with her was taken away. There was trouble with the father, who wanted the child. She was poor, and finally signed her consent to have the child taken from her. Little Barbara was given to Marion Johnson, agent of a Des Moines home for children, and since that time Mrs. Arthur has neither seen nor heard of her child.

Mrs. Arthur was given a decree of divorce in Alexandria, S. D., with a $2000 alimony judgment. She has just had the decree confirmed in Iowa, that she might be able to collect the judgment from her husband, who is a bridge builder living here.

TRIAL SATISFACTORY.

San Francisco, April 17.—The trial trip of the gunboat Bennington made to test her new machinery, proved entirely satisfactory. The vessel is now ready for use and will sail in a few days for a cruise on the coast. She will eventually join the Pacific coast squadron, which is now at Magdelena bay.

Educate the Boys

Give Them a Printing Press.

The moral, mental and physical development of the boys should be the study of all who love their country, and desire to perpetuate its institutions. In no way can this be more effectually aided than by the use of one of our presses. Commencing Saturday morning, April 18, we will give away with every purchase in our boys' dept. of $5 or over a complete printing outfit, consisting of printing press, type, pads and a complete outfit. With every $2.50 purchase or over we will give free a ball and bat or a catcher's mitt. Our boys' department is the most complete at the head of the lakes. We fit the boys' from head to foot, and every garment is new and up-to-date and of the very best makes. No accumulations of years to select from at K., A. & D.

"HI JINKS IN HI SOCIETY"

Guests Returned From Vanderbilt Wedding Full of Enthusiasm.

New York, April 17.—Some of the younger men and women, guests at the Vanderbilt-Neilson wedding, made Newport a bit lively late Tuesday afternoon. Most of the visitors returned to this city by way of the Wickford Junction ferryboat General, which runs between Newport and Wickford. While waiting for the departure of the General the younger element cut up some capers. Harry Lehr, Harry Payne Whitney and Peter Goelet Gerry were among the merrymakers.

Lehr had a huge bundle of American Beauty roses and orchids in his arms. When he reached the upper deck of the ferryboat he pelted the young women on the lower deck with the costly flowers. Impressed with the spirit of the occasion, the young women picked up the flowers as fast as they fell and playfully, though aimlessly, threw them back at Lehr.

One of the men on the lower deck, forgetting for the moment that he was in a new frock coat, natty new trousers, faultless silk hat and lavender gloves, also failed to remember that the builder of the boat had been thoughtful enough to place a staircase on the boat to convey passengers from the lower deck to the one on which Lehr stood. With his high hat pushed well down on his head, this young man decided to go aloft, sailor fashion, over the tin pipe that carries the rain water from the scuppers of the upper deck. He was a persistent athlete. Although Harry Lehr repeatedly struck the climber's now ruffled hat and smeared gloves with a fusillade of flowers, he did not give up until he reached the upper deck. Then he sailed into Lehr and assured the latter that he would pitch the great fun-maker overboard if the object of his attack would be kind enough to stand still and let him catch him.

Meanwhile another young man filled with enthusiasm decided to climb the gutter pipe. He dropped down three times before one of the deck hands convinced him he was soiling his new frock coat.

One of the men had a cane which the liveliest woman in the party cast playfully at Lehr. Being a woman, the walking stick fell some ten feet from where she intended it to land. But Lehr, getting down on all fours, ran in the direction of the cane, grasped it between his teeth, and ran back to the boat rail and deposited it at the feet of one of the women, who, by this time, had reached the upper deck—but not by the rain pipe.

Then Lehr barked in imitation of a dog amid roars from all hands. Several times Lehr played the dog and each time made a big hit.

Fun ran rampant until the General left the slip for Wickford. Even in midocean Lehr could be seen making a pretense of turning the fire hose on another young man who was anxious to go aloft via the gutter pipe route.

AIGREAT SESSION.

S. S. Williamson Comments on Sunday School Meeting.

S. S. Williamson, deputy county treasurer, returned this morning from St. Paul, where he has been attending the three day sessions of the Minnesota States Sunday School association. There were about fifteen delegates from Duluth and the total attendance was something over 300. Mr. Williamson says that the convention was among the most interesting ever held, the unique features being many. C. F. Roebel, of this city, was elected vice president of the state association.

The next meeting of the State Sunday School association will be held in Duluth.

Mr. Williamson says that two of the most interesting features of the convention were the talks of Frank A. Day, state secretary of the Michigan Sunday School association, and Marion Lawrence, the international secretary of the association. Mr. Day is to be in Hancock, Mich., very shortly and there is talk by the Sunday school workers of the city of extending him an invitation to visit the head of the lakes.

REMOVING POLES

North Side of Superior Street Is Being Rapidly Cleared.

Gives Indication of How Street Will Eventually Look.

The removal of electric wire poles from Superior street is underway.

First to come down were the big blue poles of the Duluth General Electric company on the north side of the street. A force of men began cutting these down yesterday and by this evening they will be cleared away from Fifth avenue west to First avenue west.

The improved appearance of the street is commented on a great deal and the removal of one set of poles gives some indication of how the looks of the main business thoroughfare will be improved when all the poles are taken down.

The poles now being removed have for years supported the electricity for the Superior street arc lights, but under the new order of things the lighting currents are to be carried down the avenues to Superior street in conduits and on each corner there will be an ornamental iron pole from which the arc lights will depend.

The iron poles of the street railway company will not be removed, as commonly supposed, but all wires will be removed, except the trolley and trolley connections.

The big feed wires will go underground, as will five or six other heavily charged electric wires now strung overhead on the street car poles.

COMING IN NUMBERS.

Seventy-Five Immigrants Arrive Over South Shore Road.

Seventy-five immigrants arrived this morning over the Duluth, South Shore & Atlantic. They landed in New York Monday, coming from Sweden, Norway, Germany and other countries in Northern Europe. A few of them purpose remaining in Duluth, but the majority purchased tickets to different range towns. The party was composed almost entirely of young men, there being scarcely any women or children.

Small parties arrive over the South Shore nearly every day, but a party of seventy-five is very infrequent.

"They are coming in great numbers this spring," said E. A. Lindgren, immigration agent of the road. "We had a party of nearly 200 last week, and today seventy-five came. Parties of ten and twenty are very common, and few days pass in which a few do not arrive."

WAR ON THE DRUG HABIT

Declared In Illinois and There Is Startling Evidence.

The state of Illinois has declared war on the drug habit. Not only has Governor Yates taken a hand in the fight, but the state's attorney of every county in the state has been ordered to make a thorough investigation of conditions and to present his findings before the grand jury. In addition to these powerful forces at work the state board of pharmacy is making a determined fight on druggists who sell cocaine, opium and other opiates, says the Brooklyn Eagle.

Investigations already made show that the improper use of drugs is not limited to any class, as physicians say that the sale of small boxes of cocaine and opium testifies to the grasp of the deadly habit on residents of fashionable hotels and on the boulevards. The Chicago Retail Druggists' association, a great factor in the crusade, has joined hands with State's Attorney Charles A. Deneen in he collection of evidence. One grand jury in Chicago has already made a report on its iniquity, and the next grand jury is expected to act on the evidence now being collected by the state's attorneys, detectives and the operatives of private agencies which have been hired by the various associations pushing the fight.

Another direction which the movement is taking is toward the amendment of the present laws regulating the sale of cocaine, so as to make their enforcement more severe. The January grand jury of Cook county made an exhaustive examination into the situation and indicted five druggists for selling cocaine. Wilhelm Bodeman, the president of the state board of pharmacy, was the witness who gave the testimony upon which the indictments were found. Mr. Bedeman told of the awful results of the cocaine habit as shown by examination of the records. Many letters had come into his hands from wives who were pleading for their husbands. They said that despite the law, which says that no one shall sell cocaine without a prescription from a regular licensed physician, their husbands had become physical wrecks from the use of cocaine and opium. One letter which Mr. Bodeman showed to the grand jury came from the Lexington hotel, one of the most fashionable hostelries in Chicago. It begged the president of the board of pharmacy to take some steps to prevent the writer's husband from getting cocaine as it was making him a mental and a physical wreck.

So widespread is the use of cocaine, said the pharmacist, that many railroad wrecks can be traced to its use. The railroad men fear to drink liquor because the signs of its use can easily be detected, but the user of cocaine cannot be detected until he finally breaks down.

Mr. Bodeman told of one druggist in a fashionable street in town who sells cocaine to society young women, who

"The number of prisoners who are confirmed users of drugs is rapidly increasing," said Superintendent Sloan. "In most of the cases we find that they are people of good breeding and often of fine families, and having good educations. But it is always the same old story. They take to the drugs, they become slaves to cocaine, and then they are not responsible for what they do. The use of cocaine in Chicago is steadily on the increase, in my opinion."

The records of the coroner's office tell purchase it in one ounce bottles and are required to pay $10 an ounce. They take the drug to their rooms, saturate bits of cotton and inhale it until the sense of exhilaration comes to them. This druggist's sales are said to amount to hundreds of dollars a month.

In Halsted street is a druggist whose bill for cocaine at wholesale amounted to more than $500 in a single month. Fearing the action of the law for selling it without a physician's certificate, he sold it in bottles labeled "Nature's Own Remedy." Other druggists have sold the drug designated as face powder. This is especially true in the fashionable quarters of town.

So large has been the increase in the number of "dope" prisoners, as they are known to the authorities, that a special department has just been opened at the Bridewell for the treatment of prisoners who are afflicted with the opium or cocaine habit. Superintendent John J. Sloan has introduced a cure system and is hoping for good effects from it.

an awful tale of the users of cocaine. The last nine months show that nine deaths were traced directly to the use of cocaine, while opium claimed two lives. Morphine claimed nine others.

In addition to these figures there were 148 deaths due to temporary insanity. Coroner John Traeger said that fully half of this number were crazed by the use of drugs, especially cocaine. The great prevalence of the habit has resulted in extra pains being taken by the coroner to keep accurate records of all cases wherein death was due either indirectly or directly to the use of drugs.

A careful investigation among officials has convinced the state board of pharmacy, as well as the state board of health, that the legitimate use of cocaine has not increased, since its greater use in general surgery is offset by a more careful use in nose and throat work and in general practice. Because of its known dangerous character, say physicians, it is of late seldom ordered in prescriptions to be handled by patients. The use of cocaine in operative surgery and the relief of pain by the advances in surgery largely tend to lessen the legitimate use of morphine, according to Dr. W. Harrison Hipp, member of the state board of health. The prices of these products vary but little from what they were in 1898, so that the increase of over 400 per cent in the imports of cocaine is considered very significant, while the increase of nearly 500 per cent in the quantities and over 600 per cent in the values of opium and morphine is regarded as startling by the officials.

Figures obtained by the American Pharmaceutical association from the cities of Philadelphia, New York, Baltimore, Brooklyn and the smaller towns of New Jersey and Pennsylvania show that of the entire number of persons afflicted with the drug habit nearly 45 per cent are addicted exclusively to morphine and cocaine. Cocaine claims nearly 30 per cent of this number. President Bodeman, however, takes the position that a careful examination of the figures in Chicago provided the druggists would tell the truth, would reveal a much larger percentage for the Lake city.

The vigor and energy put into the crusade has frightened many of the druggists, and now they are a little more careful of their sales of the drugs. Some of the druggists in the fashionable parts of the town have suddenly ceased to sell the drug since they were aware of the fact that they were being watched and that not only would they be arrested, but even some of their patrons might be put in the tolls.

Advertising is the only salesman you can employ that will keep everlastingly at it all the time.

FOREIGN BUYING

Large Export Business Is Done By Duluth Exporters.

Armour Buys In Minneapolis and New York —Flax Lower.

Duluth Board of Trade, April 17.—Armour was buying in the Minneapolis and New York markets today and was depressing the May option in the Chicago market to all appearances, for in the last named market there was a very slight advance while New York advanced ¾-⅞c, and was up 1¼c at one time, and Minneapolis advanced ½c. Duluth advanced ¾c also, but it was due to the large export business done here as much as anything.

The export demand was the best experienced in a long time. Tihrty loads were reported worked. The Chicago Record-Herald this morning in commenting on the export business of the past few days says:

"In five days New York reported 1,500,000 bushels worked and yesterday kept wiring that the American prices had gotten out of line. Those closest to the export business understand that New York cannot any longer gauge the business with the other side as it used to. The biggest export concern in the country is now at Duluth and does its business direct. There are two concerns at Chicago which do more business by way of the Gulf than any of the present houses at New York. There are houses which work from Kansas City and St. Louis direct."

The demand today came from the United Kingdom and the continent, and the amount sold was divided about equally between Manitoba and Duluth wheat. The representative of the "biggest export concern in the country," said this morning: "The foreigners have got to have our spring wheat if they have to pay as high as a dollar a bushel for it, in spite of the liberal Argentine shipments. The Argentine wheat is soft because of the character of weather they had there during the growing and harvesting period and is much like our Kansas wheat of the last crop. The foreigners must have our hard spring wheat to mix with it to make it good milling wheat."

The wheat market started out firm this morning although the Duluth market was slightly lower, but there was a quick rally and prices held higher throughout the morning. The Liverpool market was high, ¾d for old and ⅝c for new, the strength there being due to the better prices in American markets, Paris, however, was lower, showing a decline of ½ to 1c.

Argentine shipments were about as estimated aggregating 2,736,000 bushels, against 2,440,000 bushels last week and 992,000 bushels last year. The Argentine visible is now 3,680,000 bushels, against 3,760,000 bushels, a week ago, and 1,064,000 a year ago. Bradstreet reports total clearances from America this week of 2,977,777 bushels.

Stocks of wheat at Duluth are estimated to decrease 1,000,000 bushels this week.

Primary receipts of wheat were 257,000 bus., last year 197,000 bus. Shipments 204,000 bus., last year 666,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 167,000 bus.

Receipts of wheat at Duluth and Minneapolis, 115 cars, and at Chicago 10, a total of 124 cars against 126 last year.

Corn in the Liverpool market closed ¾d higher. May corn in Chicago closed ¼-⅜c higher. May oats had a sharp bulge advancing ¾c. Primary receipts of corn were 215,000 bus., last year 146,000 bus. Shipments, 655,000 bus., last year 170,000 bus. Clearances were 295,000 bus.

The Duluth market was rather active. May opened ½c off at 70¼c and sold up to 77⅛c shortly after the noon hour, settled back to 77¼c fifteen minutes later and closed there. The July option was not quite so strong advancing ⅝c.

Cash sales were rather more active than for some days, sales aggregating 25,000 bushels. Prices were unchanged, being ½c over May for No. 1 northern and ½c under for No. 2.

Flax was quiet and the market lower. May opened 9c lower at $1.11 and sold off to $1.10½ closing at that price. July lost ½c and is now 1¾c over May. Receipts were not large, 14 cars at Duluth and 6 at Minneapolis. Stocks of flax at Duluth are estimated to show a decrease of not more than 25,000 bushels this week in spite of large shipments. Argentine shipments of flax this week passed the million mark being 1,056,000 bus., against 680,000 bus. last week and 156,000 bus. last year.

There was an advance of ½c in oats on track and to arrive, but the May price showed no change. Rye to arrive, on track and the May option advanced ½c.

Following are the closing prices:

Wheat to arrive No. 1 hard 79⅜c; No. 1 northern 77⅜c No. 2 northern 75¾c; May No. 1 hard 79¼c; No. 1 northern 77½c; July 76⅞c. Flax in store, $1.09¾; on track $1.10¾; to arive $1.10¾; May $1.10¾; July $1.12½; September, $1.13¾; October $1.13; November $1.13. Oats on track 38c; to arrive, 33c; May 33½c. Rye on track, 49½c; to arrive, 49½c; May 50c. Barley 35@51c.

Cars inspected: Wheat, 14; last year 10; oats 4; rye 5; barley 2; flax 14.

Receipts: Wheat 11,157; oats 1087; flax 27,719.

Shipments: Wheat, 12,279; oats, 70,000.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Favorable Weather Induced Selling In Wheat.

Chicago, April 17.—Higher cables caused a firm opening in wheat today. May being unchanged to ¼c higher at 77⅛c to 77¾c and July a shade to ¼@⅜c higher at 71⅝c to 71¾c. The favorable weather induced considerable selling by local traders and the market gradually eased off May steadying around 77¾@⅞c while July held fairly steady around 71½. Duluth and Minneapolis reported receipts of 115 cars, which, with local receipts of 19 cars, two of contract grade, made total receipts for the three points of 154 cars against 126 a year ago.

Trading was rather quiet throughout the day. About noon considerable weakness developed on favorable crop reports, but late in the day prices again advanced o na fair export demand. The close was 7rm with May a shade higher at 77½@⅝c, after touching 77⅜@⅝c. July sold up to 72¼c and closed at 71⅞@72, a gain of ⅝c.

Corn was quiet and featureless the early part of the day but opening prices were firm on cables and small receipts. May being unchanged to ⅛c higher at 43⅜c to 43⅝c. There was little selling on the improved weather but a good cash demand prevented any decline. Local receipts were 64 cars with none of contract grade.

Closing prices were strong, May being ¼@⅜c higher at 44@⅜c.

The improved weather conditions brought out considerable liquidation in oats at the start and opening prices were easier. May being unchanged to ⅛c lower, at 33⅜c to 33½c but offerings were readily absorbed and a firmer tone developed. Local receipts were 88 cars.

Provisions opened steady to firm on a small run of hogs and a slight advance in prices at the yards. Trading was only moderate with buying of pork and ribs by brokers the principal feature. Prices shewed little change the early part of the session. July pork opened 5c higher at 17.37½. July lard was unchanged at $9.72½ while ribs were up 2½c at $9.67½.

Close: Wheat—May 77½@⅝c; July 71⅞@72c; September, 68¾@⅞c. Corn—April 43⅝c; May 44@⅜c; July 44⅛@⅜c; September 45¾c. Oats—April 34¾; May, 34⅝@⅞c; July 30½; Sept., 28c. GRAIN GOSSIP.

Logan & Bryan: Wheat—The market was moderately active and higher. Paris decline probably indicates the better feeling over recent rains in France, but Liverpool reported a good continental demand and the continent was again a buyer in this country. Armour was apparently willing to sell May wheat at current prices and replace with July. The weather in United Kingdom and Europe is reported cold and backward. Under present local conditions we are inclined to think it wont hurt much to buy July wheat on weak spots. Estimated cars 25.

Corn—Market here was firm. The trade is not large and the cash situation is moderate in every respect. On the firmness in oats and wheat, however, there was a covering of shorts and Armour seems adding to his July corn. Receipts are small and stocks decreasing. We still feel friendly to July corn on the weak spots. Estimated cars 60.

Oats—Market was strong. There was some improvement in cash demand and with cash oats at a premium there was a free covering of May shorts. There was also buying of July by brokers which looked like covering by Patten. The seeding of the new crop seems progressing under about normal conditions and on this view of the case we are inclined to think July oats may be sold on the hard spots. With favorable crop prospects next month and in June we look for lower prices. Estimated cars 95.

Harris, Gates & Co., Chicago: There seems to be a little confusion and some duplication in the omunt of export sales reported lately. They have been fairly large in all markets except here. A report this morning says flour mills in the Northwest are closing, account of freight trouble. A better demand for flour would probably have prevented this. Weather is favorable. It would be a great thing for this country if the growing crop of wheat is market at prices above those ruling now.

Modern Miller: No impairment of the condition of the winter wheat crop is reported, excepting in widely scattered sections, and the high standard and excellent prospects are maintained. The loss in the acreage east of the Rockies is exceptionally small. Late rains have restricted delleveries of wheat by farmers, but a resumption of a free movement market is probable with the better country roads.

Snow's weekly crop report says: "Weather conditions have continued ideal for winter wheat and that crop promise is maintained at a practical perfection. Continued rainfall has seriously interfered with the completion of oats seeding and the delay warrants some apprehension. Corn plowing is slightly delayed but there is nothing in the situation to warrant any alarm.

FIRMNESS SHOWN

In the Stock Market and the Close Was Strong.

Bad Break In Metropolitan Due to Sensational Rumors.

New York, April 17.—Prices generally opened a small fraction higher. Manhattan showed a gain of 1¼ and B. & O. was carried up ⅝. Metropolitan street railway on the other hand dropped 2 points and induced some hesitancy elsewhere in the list.

The purchasing movement assumed a broader scope and stocks which have lagged since the culmination of the bear movement were bid up aggressively. There was a resumption of the late confident buying of the Pennsylvania and Gould groups. The prices for the first hour showed gains of 2⅜ in Manhattan, 2¼ in Colorado Fuel, 2 in General Electric and a point or more in B. & O., Norfolk & Western, Reading, Delaware & Hudson, Missouri Pacific, Southern Pacific, Illinois Central, L. & N., Cleveland, C. C. & St. L., National of Mexico, preferred, Colorado Southern, second pfd., Brooklyn Transit, Sugar and Republic Steel pfd. Lackawanna jumped 4½, while St. Louis & San Francisco lost 1⅝ and Metropolitan securities 1½. Metropolitan street railway recovered ½ of its loss in sympathy with the general market, but when it reacted to 181¾ the market eased slightly.

There was some temporary hesitation in the buying, but it was renewed and the advance in prices continued. Union Pacific, New York Central, Rock Island, the Wabash stocks, Texas Pacific, Northwestern and St. Louis & Southwestern the smelting stocks, People's Gas, U. S. Rubber, Rubber Goods pfd, L. & N., Hide and Leather preferred and Grass Twine of the Industrials were brought into the list at 1 to 2 points advances. Lackawanna rose 8, New Haven 4, Westinghouse Electric first preferred 5, B. & O. preferred 2½, Colorado Fuel 3 and General Electric 3¼. Bonds were firm at noon.

Some of the standard stocks which had not risen a point in the forenoon advance were brought up to that level by midday, notably St. Paul and Copper. Various other leaders increased their advances slightly and there was a better inquiry for dormant stocks. St. Louis & San Francisco turned an early loss of 1⅜ into an advance of 2 points, and the second preferred also gained 1. General Electric extended its rise to 5½.

The market maintained its strength until late in the day and there were some material advances in the metal stocks following the jump of 5½ in Colorado Fuel. A raid on Metropolitan Street Railway which forced it down 5 points in short order unsettled the market and prices all around reacted sharply. Declines from the best ran to about a point in a number of leaders, especially Manhattan, Tennessee Coal, Southern Pacific, Union Pacific St. Paul, New York Central and Reading. Metropolitan Securities and Third avenue fell 5.

Metropolitan Street Railway rallied a point. Metropolitan Securities fell 5½ and Third Avenue 6¾. The sympathetic weakness in the general market resulted in wiping out the greater part of the gains, and a few conspicuous stocks were carried a shade below last night. Room shorts covered and rallied the market. Metropolitan Street Railway recovered 2½, Metropolitan Securities 4, and there were some sudden rebounds elsewhere. The closing was irregularly strong.

STOCK GOSSIP.

Waldorf to Coe Commission company: Speculative comment reflects growing confidence in the outlook for the stock market. It was reported last night that the largest Western house in Wall street has just borrowed $5,000,000, six months' money, at 4½ per cent. Other large borrowings are also rumored, which are thought to indicate a change from the bear to the bull side by powerful operators. There is a growing belief that with the improvement in the monetary situation, the next few weeks will witness a material rise, the latter having for its basis good crops and earnings and continued activity in general business. Conservative houses think that in the meantime stocks will be a purchasee on all moderate recessions, including N. Y. C., Pennsylvania, St. Paul, Baltimore & Ohio, Atchison, Union Pacific, Missouri Pacific and coalers. It is argued that compared with their quotations of last September these and other stocks are low, that they must appeal to investors as well as large speculators whose custom it is to buy big lines of securities after a heavy shrinkage to hold for a pull on the bull side. There are signs of buying of this sort in Atchison, Baltimore & Ohio and Missouri Pacific by wealthy interests who believe that neither the Northern Securities decision nor labor troubles will prevent these systems from making a splendid showing of net earnings for a long time to come. Among the more speculative element there is a better sentiment in Rock Island, and insiders are rtported buying on a scale. The selling is by professionals, who are generally bearish on the stock on the argument that it is "all water." To this friends of the people renly that, estimating net earnings for the last quarter of the fiscal year on the basis of results for February, a short month, 8 per cent will be shown for the common shares for the twelve months ending May 31.

Ridgley to W. H. Laidley & Co., Chicago: When I repeat that the bear campaign culminated Monday last you will not believe me, for the reason that I have been wrong before and you think I am wrong again. In my judgment prices will in no case touch Monday's low figures again. I doubt if we get setbacks of more than a point or two at most. Harris Gates & Co. think better conditions will cause some enhancement in values, but do not expect any considerable activity in the near future. Joseph expects a narrow market. Hoyle does not advise short sales, but would not buy unless there is another break Friday morning. Bradley says the market is a purchase on weakness and a sale on rallies. The Wall street information bureau says to stay short, and is very bearish on whole list.

Town Topics: We see no reason why same further improvement should not occur in the stock market today. It is a market in which one group is made prominent and then made to rest while another is pushed forward. There ought to be some reaction in the market between now and next Wednesday, when it is planned that the new stock exchange shall open. It is regarded as almost a certainty that prices will rise on the first day the members do business in their new home. We are conservative bullish. American Smelting has been quiet and we would not be surprised to see it spring into a bullish activity. The test of the market yesterday was satisfactory, as absorbing power was good. Mexican Central is likely to be taken in hand any day. We believe Rock Island will have a sharp rise soon.

COPPER GOSSIP.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: Coppers continued strong and showed good buying demand all day. Copper Range was the leader in point of strength, no change occurred in the metal market. The general stock market had a decidedly good tone and an upward tendency. It looks to us like a good traders market, one that should be sold on the rallies and bought on the reactions.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, April 17.—The cotton market opened steady at unchanged prices to an advance of 2 points. After the first call prices ruled rather easier under moderate liquidation in view of a tendency to increase estimates as to the amount of cotton to come into sight this week, figured originally at 106,000 maximum and this morning at 112,000 minimum, against 82,377 last year. Towards noon the market was quite inactive at a net loss of 1@2 on the general list.

Cotton spot closed quiet, 10 points lower; mid ups, 10.40; mid gulf, 10.65. Sales, 46 bales. Cotton futures closed steady. April, 10.22; May, 10.25; June, 9.87; July, 9.86; August, 9.44; September, 8.75; October, 8.49; November, 8.38; December, 8.37.

FIREMEN'S STRIKE

Seems Likely To Be Ended Soon By Arbitration.

Believed That the Strikers' Proposition Will Be Accepted.

Buffalo, April 17.—A proposition to settle the firemen's strike by arbitration, made by the local union of firemen last night, through President Keefe, of the International Marine Workers' association, is now under consideration. Mr. Keefe was called back from Erie after the local union had voted in favor of arbitrating the strike. President Livingstone will confer with the executive committee of the Lake Carriers today and an acceptance of the strikers' propositon is anticipated. It is believed that the strikers will return to work tomorrow.

THE DOWLING REPAIRED.

The tug Dowling, of the Independent Towing company, has been repaired after the accident which occurred while breaking ice in the Great Northern slip, and had her first tow of the season yesterday, taking the Fleetwood to the coal dock.

The Merrill is also in commission. The Carpenter is being fitted out and will be added to the flect this afternoon.

WITH NON-UNION FIREMEN.

Buffalo, April 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Five Ancher hac boats departed this morning, all carrying non-union firemen. There are here at present sixty men ready to ship. They will be put to work and the rest of the fleet started unless a settlement is reached today.

STRIKERS DISABLE ENGINE.

Detroit, Mich., April 17.—The anchor line steamer Cederus arrived from Kingston yesterday with her engine so badly damaged that she had difficulty in coming up the river. The captain said powdered emery was found in the pressure valve and it is supposed it was put there by strikers. He was afraid to tie up at the docks here for fear the strikers would inauce his four non-union firemen to leave, and anchored in the river where the engine was taken apart and brought ashore in small boats for repairs.

WILLING TO ARBITRATE.

Cleveland, O., April 17.—A telegram was received from William Livingstone, president of the Lake Carriers' association, who is in Buffalo, last night, announcing that the striking oilers, firemen and water tenders are willing to submit their differences with the association to arbitration, but whether they will go to work pending a settlement remains to be determined later.

SOME OFFICE CHANGES.

Great Northern Employes Shifting Around Somewhat.

John Runnings, formerly city ticket agent for the Great Northern railway in Duluth, has taken charge temporarily of the ticket office at West Superior for the road. Walter K. Adams, who is the city ticket agent there, has been granted a leave of absence for the next two months, on account of ill health, and will go to Arizona, where his father-in-law has a ranch.

Will Ryan, who has had charge of the city department's telegraph office at the Great Northern office here for the past seven years, has resigned his position, and will leave this afternoon for El Paso, Texas. He will remain there for some time, and expects to return as far as Chicago this summer and take a position with a railroad company there in his telegrapher's capacity. Mr. Ryan is a well known and popular employe of the road and a son of Conductor E. B. Ryan, of the Omaha road.

John Fogarty, of West Superior, will succeed Mr. Ryan here.

MRS. HAMLIN'S LECTURE.

Women's Council Anxious That Public Appreciate It.

The members of the Women's council are very anxious that the importance of the meeting to be held under its auspices Monday evening at the High School Assembly hall, shall be impressed upon the public mind. At that time Mrs. Conde Hamlin will address the people of this city on civic improvement, a subject to which she has devoted much study and observation and in laboring for which she has become a leader.

Mrs. Hamlin will discuss the subject as particularly applicable to Duluth and will suggest the lines upon which this city can work to good advantage for improvement. She will present stereopticon views illustrating her points and will show a number of Duluth places. The lecture is free.

Dealers are especially invited to visit our establishment and inspect as complete a stock of high grade hats as is shown in the Northwest.

William S. Wing Gets First Try For Annapolis Academy.

Examination This Month But Extension Will Be Asked.

Duluth has secured another naval academy appointment. William S. Wing, son of Mr. and Mrs. Harvey A. Wing, of 326 West Fifth street, has been notified of his appointment by Congressman J. Adam Bede, as principal for examination to enter the United States Naval academy at Annapolis, the examination to take place April 21.

A few weeks ago ex-Congressman Page Morris appointed Herbert L. Spencer, of this city, as principal to take the June examination for entrance to the naval academy. As soon as Mr. Wing heard of the appointment he immediately wrote Congressman Bede, asking that he might be considered as a candidate providing the appointing privilege of the new congressman had not already been used. Mr. Bede said at that time that a competitive examination would be held at St. Paul very shortly to determine who should have the appointment, and Mr. Wing signified his intention of being an aspirant in that event. Word was received from Congressman Bede this week, however, that he had decided to appoint the young man and notifying him that his examination will occur this month.

In view of the short time that will elapse before the examinations, and which will hardly give Mr. Wing an opportunity of preparing himself, efforts are being made to have Congressman Bede get the time limit for the examination extended until June, when Mr. Wing could take his examination at the academy with Mr. Spencer.

Herbert Spencer expects to leave shortly for a preparatory school near Washington, where he will remain until the time of the examinations. If the arrangements can be made he will be accompanied by William Wing.

Mr. Wing, the new appointee, was a former student of the Duluth Central High school. He is 19 years of age.

F. B. DAUGHERTY GETS PLACE

Said to Have Taken Position With Big Dredge Union.

F. B. Daugherty, former state senator, will probably leave this city soon and become a resident of Chicago.

It is reported that Mr. Daugherty has accepted a position with the Great Lakes Dredge and Dock Companies' Protective association, at a very good salary and with Chicago headquarters.

Mr. Daugherty was not in the city today to either confirm or deny the report, but it comes from a thoroughly reliable source, and it is further added that his residence here will terminate about May 1.

Delivery Boy Fined.

Boys driving meat and grocery delivery wagons should profit by the example of Olaf Dahl, who was fined $10 in the municipal court this afternoon for abusing the horse he was driving.

The speed with which the average boy drives a meat wagon or grocery wagon up and down streets and avenues, over crossings and through alleys is only exceeded by members of the chain gang when trying to escape.

The police have been notified to stop the practice before some serious accident occurs, and young Dahl, who was driving rather furiously near Twelfth avenue east and London road, was promptly taken into custody by Sergt. Gillon, at the request of several prominent citizens that had dodged his horse or saw the way he was driving.

BRIEF CITY NEWS

Parlor theater—Great program specialties.

Staff Captain Faulkner, of Minneapolis, will conduct the meeting of the Salvation army this evening in the Branch Bethel on Superior street, at 8 o'clock.

Felix Sierpulowski was brought down from Virginia yesterday and examined before Judge Middlecoff for insanity. An order has been issued to place him in the asylum at Fergus Falls. Sierlulowski believes that he has taken a contract to build a house containing 10,000 square feet.

Jessie L. Savin, of Stillwater, has sold to the Spruce Mining company a quantity of standing timber in 60-13, for $4200.

A. W. Kuehnow has sold to M. L. House 650 acres of farming lands in section 19-51-17, for a consideration of $4700.

F. M. Shaw and M. H. Stanford, two other property owners on East Superior street, who are dissatisfied with the assessment for street paving have filed appeals in district court. Their objections are the same as those interposed in the appeals filed the other day.

Parlor theater. Sparkling vaudeville tonight.

The Saturday club will meet tomorrow afternoon at the regular hour and will be addressed by Rev. Harry White on "Robert Browning." Mrs. W. G. Joerns will be the leader.

A birthday party which was attended by the colored society of the city, was given last evening for Mrs. George Caples, of 1021 West Michigan street. About twenty couples were present and many beautiful gifts were received by the hostess among which was a piano presented by her husband.

Dr. Frank W. Gunsaulus will lecture at the First Methodist church in Duluth next Tuesday evening on "Robert Browning." Dr. Gaunsaulus will fill the place of Hamilton W. Mabie in the Star Lecture course. He has lectured here two or three times and is one of the most popular men who has been heard on the local platform.

Rev. C. W. Estes, of Lebanon, Tenn., arrived in the city today. He comes to assist in the work of the Bethels. Mr. Estes will speak at the Branch Bethel tomorrow night.

Isaac Arola was arrested last night for stealing $7.50 from a friend. Most of the money was in silver but Arola denied taking it. While searching him at police headquarters he became excited in his efforts to show the police that he did not have a cent to his name and without thinking removed his hat. The silver slipped off the top of his head and jingled on the floor. When arraigned in the municipal court Arola entered a plea of guilty and was sent to jail for 60 days.

Some excitement was caused on Superior street early this morning by a man falling on the sidewalk and severely cutting and bruising his head. He was a stranger and the fall is said to have been due to a fit. The sufferer was taken to the Brunswick hotel and did not appear to be in a very dangerous condition.

With an additional work shop and more help we are now in shape to serve our customers better than ever before. Call in and look over our elegant line of latest suitings. Hagberg Bros.' Merchant Tailors, 218 West Superior street, upstairs.

LAST DAY'S SHOOTING

In the Interstate Association's Match at Kansas City.

Kansas City, April 17.—This was the closing day in the interstate association's fourth annual grand American target tournament at Blue River park. The program included four events at twenty inanimate targets at unknown angles, entrance $2, $25 added. The principal event, however, was the consolation handicap, open to all, at 100 flying targets, handicaps 14 to 25 yards. The weather conditions in the morning were favorable. It is believed next year's shoot will go to St. Louis.

In the four small events Fred Gilbert, of Spirit Lake, Iowa, with a handicap of 19 yards, broke seventy-nine targets out of 80, missing his seventy-ninth. There were 103 entries in the consolation handicap. All winners in the grand American handicap were set back one yard. The highest scores made follow:

Fred Gilbert, 24 yards, 83 out of possible 100; W. R. Crosby, O'Fallons, Ill., 23 yards, 84; J. K. Hughes, Palmyra, Wis., 24 yards, 85; H. C. Hirschey, Minneapolis, 24 yards, 79; G. C. Spencer, St. Louis, 19 yards, 90; Rolla Heikes, Dayton, Ohio, 22 yards, 88; Abe Frank, Memphis, Tenn., 19 yards, 85.

FIRE AT ST. JOHN, N. B.

St. John, N. B., April 17.—Fire, which started in a warehouse of the extensive terminal equipment of the Canadian Pacific railroad on the west side of the harbor today burned two large sheds, a large number of cattle pens, several hundred yards of grain elevator conveyors, a dozen freight cars, offices, etc. The loss is estimated at $50,000.

GEN. BATES ARRIVES.

Chicago, April 17.—Gen. John Bates, the new commander of the department of the lakes, arrived here today. Gen Bates comes from Omaha, the headquarters of the department of the Missouri, where he has also been in command since April 1. His successor in that department is Gen. Sumner, who will take charge about July 1. Gen. Bates was accompanied by his aide, Capt. Horace Reeve.

BORROWED A PACKAGE

And Learned the Scientific Value of Pure Food.

Taking notice of little things is a valuable faculty in life and many great discoveries have sprung from a humble source indeed.

"One day," says a lady of Norwich, N. Y., a sister of the County Judge and Surrogate of Chenango County, "I noticed on a grocer's shelf the now familiar package of Grape-Nuts. I asked him to let me see it, read what it had to say for itself, paid the 15 cents required by the merchant and became its possessor.

"At this time I had lost my desire for food having suffered so terribly from indigestion and all of its attendant evils that no food agreed with me or attracted me. But from the time that I began to eat my first package of Grape-Nuts I began to improve, eating it every morning and frequently at noons and nights.

"I very soon found my whole strength coming back to me with an added force. I gained in flesh and also found I could eat what others did with relish without any ill effects following. In short it has changed my life.

"A few weeks since I visited a niece in Penn., whose stomach refused to care for any food put into it. Rice, whole wheat bread and other foods had to be pumped out ten hours after eating. I suggested Grape-Nuts and she ate it, and when the contents of her stomach were syphoned out there was no trace of Grape-Nuts to be found; it had digested and been assimilated. She made great gains in strength and flesh while I was there, and made the six-mile ride to Scranton three times, something she had not been able to do for three months previous." Names furnished by Postum Co., Battle Creek, Mich.

WILL BEGIN MONDAY

Work on East Superior Street to Be Started Then.

A Single Track Near South Curb Will Be Used.

The improving of East Superior street from Eighth to Sixteenth avenues will begin next Monday morning.

The preliminary step will be the taking up of the street car tracks and putting in a new track bed and electrically welded heavy steel rails.

While this improvement is under way all East End and Lakeside traffic will be handled over a temporary single track, which will be laid close to the south curb of the street.

The arrangement throughout will be similar to the plan used while Superior street was being paved through the business district two years ago, though there will not be so much general inconvenience.

Simultaneously with the taking up and replacing of the street car tracks, the old cedar block paving will be removed and when the tracks are down everything will be in readiness for the laying of sheet asphalt.

Some of the property owners are still objecting strenuously to having asphalt paving, despite the fact that they petitioned for it last year and want the city to annul the contract with the asphalt company. This the city refuses to do unless there is another violation of the agreement on the part of the Barber Asphalt company such as occurred last year.

At a meeting of the board of public works this morning the assessment for the paving of East Michigan street was confirmed, which is taken by some to mean that there will be no delay of one year in this improvement as petitioned for by certain Michigan street property owners last week.

LIPTON WILL BE ALL READY

To Fulfill His Little Engagement on Aug. 20.

Weymouth, Eng., April 17.—Sir Thomas Lipton informed the correspondent of the Associated Press that he expects to be ready to fulfill his engagement off Sandy Hook Aug. 20. "The whole thing," said Sir Thomas to the correspondent of the Associated Press, "was so sudden that I have not yet had time to realize the full extent of the damage. I heard only a ripping sound forward, and then the whole structure wavered. While it was still swaying I was knocked down the hatchway and through the flooring. When I scrambled on deck it was all over. The accident will possibly delay us a month, but I cannot say until I see Fife, who is already on his way here."

Col. D. F. Neill, the representative of Sir Thomas on board the Shamrock I, attributed the accident solely to the unsuspected weakness of one of the rigging screws. He did not think there was any evidence of insufficient strength in the mast. The Erin's doctor reported that the injuries of the men were slight.

LABOR UNIONS TURNED DOWN

President Decides He Must Ride on Union Pacific.

Cinnabar, Mont., April 17.—President Roosevelt left the quarters of Major Pitcher of Fort Yellowstone this morning for Norris, where he will spend most of the remainder of his stay in the park. The geysers are in the neighborhood of Norris. If he has time he will visit the falls of the Yellowstone. The president has decided that he cannot accede to the request of the labor organizations to refrain from riding on the Union Pacific road because of a strike on that line. His itinerary was arranged months ago and much as he would desire to favor the union men, he cannot disappoint thousands of people by changing his plans at this late day.

MINNESOTA'S EXHIBIT

At St. Louis Will Go To Oregon Later.

St. Paul, April 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—Dr. Coe, commissioner of the Lewis and Clark exposition, to be held at Portland, Ore., appeared before the two houses of the legislature separately this afternoon, addressing them on the proposed exposition and a joint resolution was passed directing that the Louisiana purchase exhibit of Minnesota products at the close of the St. Louis exposition be transferred directly to Portland, Ore., for the exposition there. Dr. Coe had secured the endorsement of the Commercial clubs of St. Paul and Minneapolis as well as of many large jobbers and bankers, which with the governor's help made it possible to secure the passage of the measure.

FOUR DROWNED

While Trying to Cross the Wabash Bottoms.

Clinton, Ind., April 17.—Ora Eddington, his wife and their three small children, with two neighbor boys started to cross the Wabash bottoms this morning in the face of a warning of danger. The three Eddington children and William Dudley were drowned. The party got off the road and were soon beyond their depth. Hundreds of people witnessed the disaster but a relief boat was late in reaching the struggling people. Eddington escaped on a horse and his wife was rescued by William Jacks, 12 years old. Three of the bodies were recovered. The high water was the result of recent heavy rains.

IS NO SPLIT, SAYS PLATT

Senator Declares the Republican Party Is United.

New York, April 17.—Senator Platt today declared there was no split in the Republican party and no fear of one. Asked as to the refusal of the senate to confirm the reappointment of Frank M. Beker, as railroad commissioner, he said: "the governor simply wanted to keep his men in office. There is no split; not the slightest danger of one."

When asked about the nomination by Governor Odell of G. W. Morgan to succeed John McCullagh as state superintendent of elections Senator Platt said: "I was for McCullagh all the time, and I think it a pity that he was not re-appointed."

THOSE WHO HAVE DIED

Denver, April 17.—William R. Morrin, pastor of St. Francis De Salles' church of this city, is dead, aged 56 years. Pneumonia caused his death. For twenty years Father Morrin served as priest of the diocese of Rochester, N. Y. He has been in Colorado twelve years.

Waterloo, Iowa, April 17.—Levi Boies, son of ex-Governor Boies, and a member of the law firm of Boies & Boies, died today of typhoid fever, aged 39.

New York, April 17.—Mrs. Robert Fitzsimmons, wife of the former heavyweight champion, died today at her home in Brooklyn. She began sinking last night and Fitzsimmons summoned a number of physicians, but they were unable to save her. Mrs. Fitzsimmons had been ill for several days with typhoid pneumonia.

DIRECTORS MEET.

Northern Securities Board Transacts Routine Business.

New York, April 17.—The directors of the Northern Securities company held their first regular meeting since the merger decision today. According to statements made after the meeting the only matter that came up was of a strictly routine character. It was said that the question of appealing against the decision of the United States circuit court was discussed informally but that no definite steps in this matter were taken. One of the company's legal representatives declined to discuss what disposition would be made of the Great Northern dividend declared today.

WRECK ON N. P.

Train No. 4 In Collision at Dickinson, N. D.

Butte, Mont., April 17.—A report has reached here that passenger train No. 4 on the Northern Pacific, smashed into a freight train near Dickinson, N. D., this morning with heavy casualties. All the doctors in Dickinson have been summoned to the wreck.

St. Paul, April 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—General Manager Cooper, of the Northern Pacific, this afternoon received confirmation of the reported wreck near Dickinson, N. D. No pasengers were injured. Fireman Gleason was killed and the engineer hurt, but no others were hurt. A switch had been left open at the station 12 miles west of Dickinson and the passenger train crashed into a freight on the siding.

MORGAN CONFIRMED.

Albany, N. Y., April 17.—Governor Odell's appointment of George Wilson Morgan, of New York, to be superintendent of the state bureau of elections for the metropolitan district to succeed John McCullagh, was unanimously confirmed by the state senate today.

ORDER FOR HEARING PROOF OF FOREIGN WILL—

State of Minnesota, County of St. Louis. —ss. In Probate Court, Special Term, April 16th, 1903.

In the matter of the estate of Isaac A. Isaacs, deceased:

Whereas, certain writings purporting to be duly authenticated copies of the Last Will and Testament of Isaac A. Isaacs, late of New York city, deceased, and the probate thereof in surrogate court of the city and county of New York, N. Y., have been delivered to this court;

And whereas Agnes Isaacs has filed therewith her petition, representing, among other things that said Isaac A. Isaacs, lately died in said county of New York, testate, possessed of certain real estate, situated in said county of St. Louis, and that said petitioner is named as executrix in said will and has qualified as such, and praying that the said instrument may be admitted to probate, and that letters testamentary be to her issued thereon;

It is ordered, that the proofs of said instrument, and the said petition, be heard before this court at the probate office in said county, on Monday, the 11th day of May, A. D. 1903, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, when all persons interested may appear for or contest the probate of said instrument;

And it is further ordered, that notice of the time and place of said hearing be given to all persons interested, by publishing this order once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the Duluth Evening Herald, a daily newspaper printed and published at Duluth, in said county.

Dated at Duluth, Minn., this 16th day of April A. D. 1903.

By the Court,
J. B. MIDDLECOFF,
Judge of Probate.

(Seal Probate Court, St. Louis Co., Minn.)

MAY BE D'ANDREA.

Possible Clue to Identity of Murdered Man.

Buffalo, April 17.—The Times this afternoon says: There is reason to believe that the man found murdered in a barrel in New York was Professor Antonio D'Andrea, of Chicago, who was brought to Buffalo last December to appear as a witness against Andrea Romano, on a charge of attempting to pass counterfeit money. Assistant United States District Attorney Bain, who had charge of the prosecution of Romano, became well acquainted with D'Andrea and when shown a picture of him said there was more than a resemblance, but he would not say positively it was his picture. D'Andrea was expected to identify Romano at the hearing, but failed to do so and Romano was discharged.

MISSION IMPRISONED.

Constantinople, April 17.—The members of the special mission sent by the sultan to pacify the Albanians, it is now announced, are practically imprisoned at Ipek, Albania, where they are surrounded by several hundred Albanians whose chiefs refuse to accept the proposed reforms and demand the appointment of an Albanian governor, adding that otherwise they will continue the revolt.

THE ROAD AND BRIDGE BILL

Passed By Both Branches of the Legislature.

Anti-Trading Stamp Bill Is Probably Dead.

FROM A STAFF CORRESPONDENT

St. Paul, April 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The house and senate this morning spent most of their time on the omnibus road and bridge bill, which passed both houses. But little else was done, neither house reaching calendar or general orders. The bill appropriates $81,051 for the entire state, while the bills introduced referred to the committee asked for $231,000. The bill, therefore, gives only 26 cents on the dollar to those who asked for state aid in road work. Nearly every county in the state comes in for something, and St. Louis, Lake and Itasca counties were not forgotten. Mr. Dowling asked for $2600 for a bridge over the White Face river on the Payne road, and the committee allowed him $1000. Dr. Budd asked for $1000 for Lake county and got $400.

Senator Mausten and Representative Cole asked for $13,000 for Itasca county and they got $1200. The same bill was introduced in both houses and the senate passed it without any amendments. The house, however, made several amendments, which will have to be approved by the senate. The amendments did not affect the total, and the only one affecting more than one county was an item of $200 transferred from Cass county to Itasca. The house went through the bill item by item, and then passed it. The senate made no changes.

T. F. Ofstshun, of Glencoe, wanted to have the rules suspended this morning so as to place the substitute anti-trading stamp bill prepared by the attorney general on its final passage. The house has so far refused to consent to any suspension of the rules, and it held to its stand on this motion. The motion required 80 votes and it only got 75, there being 24 against it, so it was lost. This means that there will be no legislation against the trading stamp business at this session, as there is no time to do anything in the regular order of business.

Mr. Wilson, of Rock county, in talking on the motion, objected to the bill on the ground that it was in the interest of the grocers' combine, one of the worst things in the state. Mr. Nyquist said that if the house would not suspend the rules it might as well adjourn today, because no more business could be done; as a matter of fact little more business will be done. The house has shown a disposition to dodge work, and the horse play, inevitable at the end of a session, has begun, showing that the majority of the members do not care much whether any more bills go through or not.

Mr. Morley, of Owatonna, moved this morning that the rules be suspended and all of the bills now on general orders be advanced to the calendar, but a notice of debate was given and this put his motion off to Monday.

Mr. Von Wald, chairman of the committee on public accounts and expenditures, offered a resolution to pay the expert accountant that examined the state auditor's office $394, but W. A. Nolan gave notice of debate and this went over to Monday also. Then Mr. Shepard, of Minneapolis, wanted one of the cloak room keepers named as sergeant-at-arms to take care of property in the house at night, and Mr. Wald gave notice of debate, sending the resolution over to Monday.

Frank Minnette, of Sterns county, offered a resolution that speeches be limited to three minutes, and A. A. Hinton sent this over to Monday with the rest on a notice of debate.

The game and fish code is likely to die with the end of the session also. Mr. Andregg this morning wanted the rules suspended so as to get the bill, which is on general orders on the calendar, and the house refused to accede to his request.

The senate did nothing this morning outside of hearing committee reports.

THE BILL TO ABOLISH NORMAL SCHOOLS KILLED BY SENATE

Laybourn's Grand Jury Constitutional Amendment Bill Has Been Finally Passed—No Change to Be Made In the System of Taxing Logs.

FROM A STAFF CORRESPONDENT

St. Paul, April 17.—(Special to The Herald.)—The senate yesterday afternoon killed the bill by Senator John G. Schutz, of Marshall, abolishing the state normal schools at Duluth, Mankato and Moorhead.

While the author, Mr. Schutz, has steadfastly insisted that the bill was in good faith, it has been considered more or less in the light of a joke, and it was more as a joke than anything else that the senate yesterday afternoon, in committee of the whole, recommended the to pass. When the committee arose, Senator R. B. Brower, of St. Cloud, had the bill excepted from the committee report, and then had it killed.

When the bill came up Senator Wilson, of Minneapolis, moved that it be indefinitely postponed, and this motion failed by a vote of 14 to 15. Senator Witherstine said he had considered the bill a joke all the time, whereupon Senator Schutz assured him it was no joke. Senator Witherstine spoke against the measure, after which Senator Laybourn moved that the bill be referred to its author. Senator Durant, who was in thee hair, held that this motion was practically the same as that of Senator Wilsin, and refused to entertain it. Senator Dunn moved that the bill be re-referred to the normal school committee, and this was lost by a vote of 15 to 16. Then it was recommended to pass.

After the committee rose Senator Brewer said the joke had been carried far enough, and he did not think the author of the bill would object seriously to killing it. Therefore he moved that it be indefinitely postponed. The motion carried unanimously, not even Senator Schutz voting against it. He explained that the bill had been introduced in good faith, but that a number of strong members of the senate had agreed to support him and had gone back on him, therefore he would make no further fight.

The senate committee on taxes and tax laws yesterday afternoon killed the bill by A. B. Cole, of Walker, providing that logs should be taxed in the county in which they are cut, which passed the house several days ago. County Auditor Halden, of Duluth, appeared before the committee in opposition to the bill, and stated that if passed it would take away from the city of Duluth more than 25 per cent of the revenue now derived from taxing logs. The committee was nearly unanimous

GERMANS FEEL SLIGHTED BY ACTION OF AMERICAN FLEET

Think That Visit of European Squadron to Marseilles After Refusal to Accept Invitation to Kiel, Is Not Courteous to Germany.

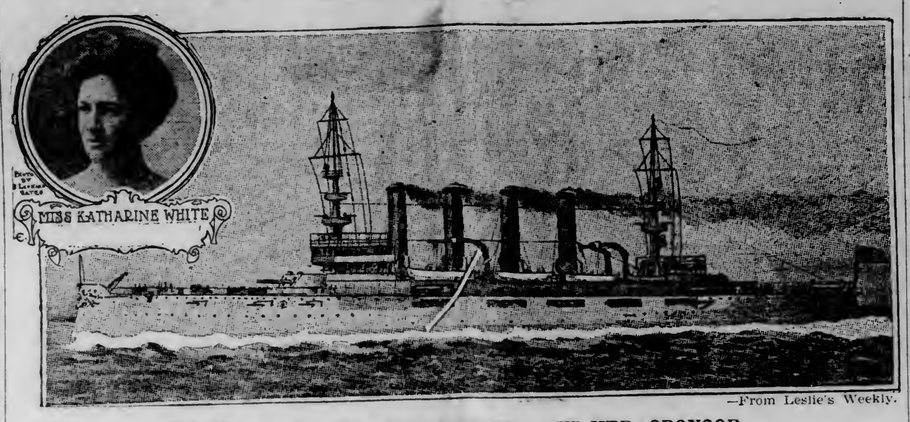
Berlin, April 18.—The German press does not distinguish between the visit of the United States European squadron to Marseilles and the program planned for the United States North Atlantic squadron, on behalf of which the American government declined an invitation to visit Kiel during the coming regotta there. Therefore some wonder is expressed as to "why special honors are shown the French president by the American navy, immediately following the refusal of the German emperor's request." One or two papers express themselves bitterly on the subject and say the Germans "do not miss much in not having a sight of the American ships."

As telegraphed from Washington yesterday, the Associated Press was authorized, on the highest authority, to make this statement of the position of the navy department in the matter of the visit of the United States European fleet to Marseilles:

"Nothing was further from the mind of Secretary Moody or the Washington government than giving offense to Germany by extending an appropriate courtesy to a sovereign of a friendly nation. The suggestion came from the state department that the squadron go to Marseilles in time to greet President Loubet, especially as it would touch there to take on board the new commander-in-chief, Rear Admiral Cotton. As regards the visit of the American man-of-war to Kiel, no invitation reached the navy department from Berlin for the European squadron to go there. On the same high authority it is stated that had such an invitation come it would have been accepted.

ANOTHER BIG WAR VESSEL FOR UNCLE SAM'S NEW NAVY SUCCESSFULLY LAUNCHED

Cruiser West Virginia Slides Into the Ocean In the Presence of Many Distinguished People.



—From Leslie's Weekly.

THE NEW CRUISER WEST VIRGINIA AND HER SPONSOR.

Newport News, Va., April 18.—The armored cruiser West Virginia was successfully launched by the Newport News Shipbuilding company at 2:03 this afternoon in the presence of 25,000 people.

Calvin B. Orcutt, president of the Newport News Shipbuilding company, escorted to the christening platform Miss Catharine Vaughan White, eldest daughter of Governor Albert B. White, of West Virginia, who was officially invited by the navy department to be sponsor for the West Virginia. Miss White was attended by three maids of honor, her sisters, Miss Grace White and Miss Ethel White and Miss Ashton Wilson, daughter of ex-Governor Wilson. In the christening party were also the governor and Mrs. White.

As soon as the ceremonies were over President Orcutt conducted the guests, numbering some 500 persons, to the steamboat Newport News, aboard which the party went to Old Point Comfort, where they were tendered a banquet in the dining room of the Hotel Chamberlain. Among the distinguished guests present were Governor White of West Virginia and military staff, Governor Montagu of Virginia and staff, officers of the army and navy and prominent citizens of the two Virginias. President Orcutt was toastmaster.

Others who accepted invitations to the banquet were Senators Elkin and Scott of West Virginia and Representatives Dovener, Gaines, Woodyard, Hughes and Dayton of the same state; Hon. Henry G. Davis, Messrs George W. Stevens, Decatur Axtell, L. F. Sullivan, H. T. Wickham, E. D. Hotchkiss, C. E. Doyle, Maj. E. T. Meyers, John Skelton Williams, C. D. Langhorn, Virginius Newton and Arthur B. Clark.

The West Virginia, which is a sister ship to the California and Pennsylvania, is an armoured cruiser of 14,000 tons displacement. The hull is of steel and measures on load waterline 502 feet, extreme beam 69 feet 6½ inches. The vessel has a normal displacement of 13,676 tons, with all ammunition and store on board, of 15,104 tons. The designed indicated horse power of the cruiser is 23,000 tons, to produce a speed of 22 knots. With a complement of 47 officers and 783 seamen and marines the vessel will be the floating home of 830 men.

Five feet below and four feet above normal line from stem to stern the cruiser will have an armor belt six inches thick at the top, the maximum thickness will be preserved. The armor will taper at the stem and stern to 2½ inches in thickness. The Hichborn oval turrets will be covered with armor 6½ inches thick on the port plate and 6 inches on the side and rear. The main battery of the West Virginia will consist of four 8-inch breechloading rifles, mounted two on each turret on the center line of the vessel. In addition there will be fourteen 6-inch rapid-fire guns and a secondary battery of eighteen 3-inch and 12-pounder guns, besides four 1-pound automatic guns, four 1-pounder rapid-fire guns, six Colt automatic guns, two machine guns and two 3-inch field guns.

THE WINONA CONFERENCE

Program Is Announced For the Ninth Annual Gathering.

Warsaw, Ind., April 18.—Rev. J. Wilbur Chapman, founder and director of the National Winona Bible conference, made a preliminary announcement concerning the ninth annual conference, to be held at Winona Lake from Aug. 16 to 26.

Rev. Dr. R. A. Torrey, who has just concluded his mission around the world, will, along with A. P. Pitt, president of the Moody Bible institute of Chicago, and John H. Converse, of Philadephia, have charge of the special conference on "A world-wide revival." The conference on "Tithing" will be presided over by Thomas Kane, of Chicago, himself a "Tither" for more than thirty-two years. He will be assisted by some of the most prominent Tithers in the country.

William Phelps Hale will conduct the conference for evangelists throughout the session. Over 100 well known evangelists are expected.

Dr. Chapman extends an invitation to all members of all evangelical denominations, to church officers, to Sunday school officers and Christians generally, who would like the privilege of Bible study under the leadership of some of the greatest teachers and preachers in the world.

Among the distinguished speakers at the Winona conference will be Rev. George Johnston A. Ross, of Cambridge, England; Rev. Dr. James Orr, Glasgow; Rev. W. D. Reed, Montreal; Rev. Dr. Robert Johnston, London, Ont.; Dr. W. G. Moorhead, president of the theological seminary at Xenia, O.; Rev. Dr. Gray, Boston; Rev. John H. Elliott, New York; Dr. Marcus A. Brownson, Philadelphia; Bishop G. M. Matthews, and Dr. George A. Funkerhouser, Dayton; Rev. Dr. Cornelius Wolfkin, Brooklyn; John Willie Baer, New York; Rev. Dr. John Potts, Canada, and many other leading ministers of the United States. Eight years ago the first gathering was held, with an attendance of thirty-five. Last year more than 2000 ministers, representing every Protestant denomination, took part.

STABBED IN THE BACK.

St. Paul Man Hurt In a Drunken Row.

St. Paul, April 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—During a drunken row at the corner of Kent street and Como avenue this morning Leon J. Hunter, 21 years old, a machinist boarding at 618 Como avenue, was stabbed in the back just under the right shoulder blade. Stephen escow and Thomas Massit were arrested.

Hunter was with a crowd of men who were drinking in a Dale street saloon. The saloon was closed at 12 o'clock, but the crowd hung around outside. A dispute arose and Hunter was stabbed. It is not known who did the stabbing.

A CALL FOR BROWN.

San Francisco, April 18.—Professor Elmer E. Brown, head of the department of education at the University of California, has received a call to become dean of the school of pedagogy of New York university.

SECRET SERVICE AGENTS SEIZE COUNTERFEITERS AND OUTFITS

Two Much Wanted Men Are Captured at San Francisco Through Their Foolishness In Having Dies Made at a Machine Shop.

San Francisco, April 18.—United States Secret Service Agent Hazen and his deputies have just effected the capture of two much-wanted counterfeiters, seizing their plant, including dies, crucibles, metal and a quantity of spurious $5 pieces and silver dollars in a house on Twenty-third avenue, South San Francisco.

A complete confession was secured from the two badly scared men who were caught, and the secret service men are hot on the trail of the third, who is known to be in hiding in the city. All three of the counterfeiters are Greeks.

The men captured are George Rose, one of the proprietors of a barber shop, aged 25 years, and James T. Soucas, a Southern Pacific railway employe, aged 29.

The man whom the government officials are still in pursuit of is Chris Patris, the leader of the gang. He is known by a half dozen aliases and has a record as a counterfeiter. The capture of the men was made possible primarily through their having dies made at a machine shop, the employes of which became suspicious and communicated with the government officers.

ACADEMY OF CRIME IN NEW YORK

New York, April 18.—According to a story told in a Brooklyn court by a boy named Solomon Hellerstein, of Manhattan, who confessed to the theft of a pocketbook from a woman who was watching a fire in Union street, there is an "academy of crime" in this city. Hellerstein said he had been a thief six weeks, and that, with other boys, he had been taught to steal at a place kept by two young men, known as the "Boston brothers," in Manhattan. He declared the brothers had a staff of thirty boys from 12 to 19 years old, and that they threatened to whip him if he did not join their gang. They districted the city, he said, and sent certain boys out to work certain districts, getting a share of the stealings of all of them. He also asserted that he and another boy were recently sent to work among a crowd. He grabbed a pocketbook containing $60. Its owner, a woman, screamed, and patrolmen arrested the boy after a chase. After admitting his guilt, young Hellerstein was paroled in the custody of his father.

FOUR OF CREW SWEPT OVERBOARD

Gloucester, Mass., April 18.—The fishing schooner Independence, Capt. Cusack, put in here today, reporting the loss of four of her crew, who were knocked overboard by the main boom during a gale last Thursday night and drowned. The four men were: Bonerias Walsh, Bernard Carter, Earnest Connors and John Oliver.

They were all single and had followed fishing for several seasons. The fatalities occurred while the Independence was on her way back from a successful trip. On last Thursday night she ran into a gale. While the men were at work taking in the mainsail, the main boom swung over and they were knocked into the sea. The schooner was thrown up into the wind, but the men could not be seen. The storm made it impossible to launch a boat.

The Independence is the first vessel of the "salt fishing fleet" to reach here and the earliest in many years to report. She brought 170,000 pounds of fish.

OFFICERS ARE CAUGHT SMUGGLING

Washington, April 18.—Capt. Harry B. Chamberlain of the quartermaster's department is on trial in Manila on a charge of smuggling silks and curios into Manila. When the army transport Seward returned to Manila from Hong Kong, March 10, Collector of Customs Shuster, having been informed by a seaman that there would be a quantity of goods on board the transport not declared, made an investigation and, it is alleged, that he found some articles in what appeared to be a false locker, about the smokestack and in the pantry. Some of the boxes, it is said, were addressed to Capt. Chamberlain, the quartermaster of the vessel, and others to othe officers, the remainder being addressed to the wife of an army officer on duty in Manila. Collector Shuster had Capt. Chamberlain taken before the court of customs, an appeal trial being set for March 12, the result of which has not been learned here. Capt. Chamberlain was relieved from duty. It is stated that the goods alleged to have been brought in on the Seward, which were discovered by the customs officials, were intended for the private use of the army officers and not for the purpose of sale.

April 28th, 29th and 30th the Great Northern will sell round trip tickets to the above points from Duluth, account Grand Commandery Knights Templar meeting, taking place at Minneapolis. Tickets good to return up to April 30th. Take the 1:25 p. m. train and arrive Minneapolis at 6 p. m., via the Bee Line. Two other fine trains every day except Sunday, making three to St. Paul and Minneapolis. Ticket office, Spalding Hotel corner.

FIERCE BATTLE WITH ROBBERS

Were Suprised In Act of Robbing a Bank.

One Burglar Killed, One Citizen Wounded.

Wampum, Pa., April 18.—In a battle following an unsuccessful attempt to rob the First National bank, of this place, early this morning, one man was killed and another seriously wounded. The dead man was one of the burglars, and he has not yet been identified. The wounded man was Henry Willoughby, a baker, who surprised the burglars while at their work. His injuries are serious, but not fatal. Willoughby was passing the bank at an early hour on his way to work, when he was suddenly confronted by a man who, at the point of a revolver, ordered him to throw up his hands and keep quiet. He did so, but in his right hand was a revolver, and a moment later both men fired at each other. At the report of the revolvers two other men rushed from the bank and took a hand in the shooting.

The three-cornered revolver fight roused some of the people in the vicinity of the bank and they were soon at the scene of the battle, but before their arrival the burglars fled. While the men had broken into the banking rooms they had not completed the drilling of the safe, and their attempt at robbery was unsuccessful. This morning the body of one of the burglars was discovered in a vacant lot on the upper end of town. As the bullet wound was near his heart, it is presumed that his companions had to drag or drive their dying comrade from the bank to where he was found. While he was dressed only in an ordinary suit of clothes he was not shabbily dressed, and on his body was found a gold watch and $44 cash.

Willoughby was shot in both legs, and it is supposed he fired the shot that killed the burglar.

Great excitement prevails in the town and a posse has been organized to pursue the burglars.

UNITED STATES IS BECOMING POPULAR WITH VENEZUELANS

A Wonderful Change In Popular Feeling and a Remarkable Growth of Sentiment Favorable to This Country Is Noted at Caracas.

New York, April 18.—A wonderful change in popular feeling and a remarkable growth of sentiment favorable to the United States are reported by Minister Augusto F. Pulido, recently returned from Caracas, whither he went to consult with President Castro concerning the Venezuelan negotiations with the allies, and to get President Castro's approval of the reference to The Hague.

Minister Pulido says the Germans are not molested, but the resentment of their share in the blockade is very keen. On the other hand the United States has gained wonderfully in public estimation, and ought to gain in commerce as well. The people of Venezuela are anxious to encourage American capitalists to come there. They are deeply interested also in the fate of the canal treaty with Colombia, and they hope the Panama canal will be built and the trade route with the Pacific coast opened up.

"As for the revolution in Venezuela, everything is calm," asserts Mr. Pulido. "There are insurgents in the mountains seventy miles from Caracas and at Ciudad Bolivar, on the Orinoco, but at present they are not being molested. Trade is picking up after the prostration incident to the blockade. I could not find any instance of absolute starvation. There is less luxury and display, but that anyone was without bread I did not hear.

"There is one thing more I want to say. On my trip down I stopped for two days at San Juan, in Porto Rico. I went ashore and rode out to Rio Piedras, and all I saw on the way were the new school houses you Americans have built there—school houses, dozens of them. You are treatign those people just right, and that is the proof of it. Education is the thing they need most."

UNIVERSAL REGRET EXPRESSED FOR LIPTON'S MISFORTUNES

English Papers Sympathize With Sir Thomas and Express the Hope That the Inevitable Delay Will Not Spoil the Chances of Shamrock III.

London, April 18.—All the daily papers express in editorials this morning their regret at the misfortune which pursues Sir Thomas Lipton's courageous attempts to lift the America's cup. Several papers for the first time admit that high hopes were entertained of his success, and trust that the inevitable delay will not spoil the Shamrock III's chances. The Standard thinks that a further explanation of the accident is needed. It remarks that the last time it was a bolt that yielded, now it is a screw that snapped. "We do not hear that these breakages occur in the American boats." The Standard fears that Sir Thomas Lipton's chances, at no time very good, now are less than ever.

Another paper asks why there were no lifebuoys aboard to throw to the seaman Collier, who was drowned. The Field publishes an exhaustive analysis of the America's cup challenger. Assuming that the Shamrock I is in the same trim as in 1901, the paper considers that the Shamrock III could allow the Shamrock I about fifteen to eighteen seconds per mile. If she can carry her sail, continues the Field, the challenger is likely to prove a slippery customer. Should she fail in the cup races, it will probably be because Herreshoff has made some great advance in the speed of his new boat on a reach. It would not be easy to design a more weatherly boat than the challenger, and in theory it should not be impossible to design a considerably faster boat for reaching or running. Thus, if the reliance proved to be an enlarged Sakantula or Marjory, the chances are that she will show some astonishing speed that the valuable weatherly qualities of the finer type possessed by the Shamrock III or Columbia would be greatly discounted. Previous attempts, concludes the Field, to construct enlarged Sakantulas, however, have been attended with very little success.

Weymouth, Eng., April 18.—The Shamrock III, challenger for the America's cup, which was dismantled in a squall yesterday, is being rapidly overhauled. The destruction of her standing gear was almost complete. Everything above deck must be renewed. The wrecking crew is not trying to save much, the object being to clear away the wreckage as quickly as possible. The gaff is badly dented, but may be repaired, the boom is practically uninjured, the topsail yards are useless and the sails are ruined. Lloyds' agent inspected the damage today. No official estimate of the loss is available, but it is thought that $25,000 will cover everything. This, however, is largely speculation. Nothing definite wil be known on the subject until Designer Fife arrives here. Sir Thomas Lipton is still stiff and sore from yesterday's experience, but he is recovering from the shock caused by the death of Collier, the man who was drowned at the time of the accident. The Shamrock I is to return to the Clyde, but the date of her departure is not fixed.

The mayor of Weymouth visited Sir Thomas on the Erin today. Thanking the mayor for the sympathy shown by the city, Sir Thomas said the Shamrock III would be back in a few weeks and resume her trial races.

BURGLAR USES CAYENNE PEPPER

Nutley, N. J., April 18.—Miss Elsie Symonds, 18 years old, of this place, is partially blind as the result of an encounter with a burglar. Miss Symonds, who had attended a reception, returned home late. She saw one of the windows open and suspected something was wrong, but unlocked the door after softly closing the window and started upstairs to alarm her father. As she neared the bedroom landing a man wearing a mask suddenly confronted her. Before Miss Symonds could utter a cry the burglar threw cayenne pepper into her eyes. Miss Symonds screamed from pain. The thief ran down the stairs and gained the street.

The family was aroused by the girl's cries, but the search for the robber proved futile. Miss Symonds is still under the care of a physician.

The Masses and the Classes Use and Praise Pe-ru-na

A Fruit Grower's Letter.

W. E. Birch, fruit grower, Afton, Va., writes:

"My wife was very much run down and out of sorts every way. She had female weakness and was very weak, nervous, and had no appetite. I tried her on everything I could think of, but she would not touch a thing—could not east strawberries, even. I saw Peruna in my father's store one day, and after reading the printed matter on teh bottle, decided to have my wife try it. Before she had taken half of the bottle, she commenced to eat, and now she is hungry all the time. We both agree that it beats any medicine to bring an appetite and put the nerves in good shape that we have ever had anything to do with.

"We had our family doctor to give her medicine, but she did not improve in the least. She has consumption in her family and she was in such bad shape and so run down that I began to get very uneasy, but your medicine has made an entirely new woman of her. I believe she eats and feels better now than she has for years. I had no idea it would do half what it has done, and don't think there is another medicine made that will begin to compare with it."—W. E. Birch.

A Count's Letter.

Count Segundo de Ovies, whose family has been one of the most influential and wealthy of Spain, and who is the last of his illustrious race, in a recent letter gives his endorsement to Peruna, in the following words written from The Canfield, Atlantic City, N. J.:

"Last winter my secretary had a severe attack of la grippe which was cured effectually by the use of four bottles of Peruna, so when I contracted the same unpleasant sickness last fall I at once sent for a bottle. It truly worked wonders, and removed the sickening and sore feeling I had within a few days. I would not be without it now for any money, and when I go away I carry Peruna as a valuable perquisite to my traveling outfit."—Julian Segundo, Conde de Ovies.

A Barber's Letter.

D. L. Wallace, a charter member of the International Barbers' union, writes from 15 Western avenue, Minneapolis, Minn.:

"Following a severe attack of la grippe I seemed to be affected badly all over. I suffered with a severe backache, indigestion and numerous ills, so I could neither eat nor sleep, and I thought I would give up my work, which I could not afford to do.

"One of my customers who was greatly helped by Peruna advised me to try it, and I procured a bottle the same day. I used it faithfully and felt a marked improvement. During the next two months I took five bottles, and then felt splendid. Now my head is clear, my nerves are steady, I enjoy food, and rest well. Peruna has been worth a dollar a dose to me."—D. L. Wallace.

An Ex-Consul's Letter.

Hon. James Morgan, 1735 Twentieth street, Washington, D. C., is Ex-Lieutenant U. S. Navy, and Ex-Consul to Australia. In a recent letter from Washingon, D. C., this prominent gentleman endorses Peruna in the following words:

"The use of your Peruna as a remedy or cure for catarrh by many of my friends who have been benefited by the same, as well as my own experience as to its efficacy and good tonic properties, causes me to recommend Peruna to all persons."—James Morgan.

An Old Man's Letter.

Mr. Isaac Brock, of McLennan county, Tex., has attained the great age of 114 years. He speaks as follows of Peruna:

"After a man has lived in the world as long as I have he ought to have found out a great many things by experience. I think I have done so. One of the things I have found out to my entire satisfaction is the proper remedy for ailments due directly to the effects of the climate. For 111 years I have withstood the changeable climate of the United States. During my long life I have known a great many remedies for coughs, colds, catarrh and diarrhoea. I had always supposed these affections to be differnt diseases. For the last ten or fifteen years I have been reading Dr. Hartman's books and have learned from them one thing in particular: that these affections are the same, and that they are properly called catarrh. As for Dr. Hartman's remedy, Peruna, I have found it to be the best, if not the only reliable remedy for these affections. It has been my stand-by for many years, and I attribute my good health and my extreme age to this remedy."—Mr. Isaac Brock.

A College Man's Letter.

Mr. Clyde W. Wells, Hiram, Ohio, manager of the Hiram College Basket Ball team in 1901, defeated Yale in 1891, writes:

"Close application to my books in orred to pass a creditable examination, with extra work in connection with socials and clubs, told on my constitution last spring. I had constant headache and that tired feeling when nothing in the world seemed right. One of the professors advised me to try Peruna, and I am glad that I did so, for it soon acted as a splendid nerve tonic and restorer to my fagged out system."—C. W. Wells.

U. S. Senator's Letter.

Hon. W. V. Sullivan, United States Senator from Mississippi, in a letter recently written to Dr. Hartman, says the following of Peruna as a catarrh remedy:

"For some time I have been a sufferer from catarrh in its most incipient stage, so much so that I became alarmed as to my general health. But hearing of Peruna as a good remedy, I gave it a fair trial and soon began to improve. Its effects were distinctly beneficial, removing the annoying symptoms, and was particularly good as a tonic."—Hon. W. V. Sullivan.

A Pastor's Letter.

Rev. S. H. Renfro, of Norborne, Mo., had running ears. He says:

"My head gathered and broke and my ears ran terribly. I tried several remedies with no relief. At last I got a bottle of Peruna, and it did me so much good that I kept on using it: am on the fourth bottle, and must say it has removed all my bad symptoms. My head does not pain any more, my ears have stopped running and I feel a great deal better."—Rev. S. H. Renfro.

A Judge's Letter.

Judge S. H. Mangum, of Helena, Ark., says the following in regard to Peruna as a catarrh cure and general tonic:

"I take pleasure in recommending your great national remedy as an excellent catarrh remedy. I have used it for a very short time and find I am very much improved. It is also a good tonic and should be used by every one whose system needs building up."—S. H. Mangum.

U. S. Consul's Letter.

Hon. J. Courtney Hixson, of Washington, D. C., ex-United States consul at Foo Chow, China, says the following of Peruna:

"I join with my distinguished friend, Gen. Wheeler, of my state, in recommending your preparation, Peruna. Friends who have used it recommend it as an excellent tonic, and particularly good as a catarrh cure."—Hon. J. Courtney Hixson.

An Actress' Letter.

Mrs. McKee Rankin, actress, of New York city, writes:

"No woman should be without a bottle of Peruna in reserve. As a remedy for catarrh of the head and throat it is, I believe, without an equal. Peruna is an effectual preventive against colds and coughs."—Mrs. McKee Rankin.

A Governor's Letter.

Hon. G. W. Atkinson, governor of West Virginia, in a recent letter from Charleston to Dr. Hartman, says:

"I can recommend your preparation, Peruna, as a tonic. Its reputation as a cure for catarrh is excellent, it having been used by a number of people known to me with the very best results."—Hon. G. W. Atkinson.

A Father's Letter.

Mr. Henry Wesseler, Wacousta, Mich., writes:

"About two months ago we wrote you for advice for our little girl. She was in a very bad condition then. We gave her two bottles of Peruna and a half a bottle of Manalin, and she is well now, which we feel very thankful for. She had catarrh of the nose, which caused an offensive discharge and bad breath.

"She was also bothered with her stomach a great deal for about three years. She seldom complains of it now since taking your medicine. We think she had catarrh of the stomach. We give your medicine high praise, and recommend it to others."—Henry Wesseler.

A Physician's Letter.

Dr. Llewellyn Jordan, medical examiner of United States treasury department, graduate of Columbia college, and who served three years at West Point, has the following to say of Peruna:

"Allow me to express my gratitude to you for the benefit derived from your wonderful remedy. One short month has brought forth a vast change, and I now consider myself a well man after months of suffering. Fellow-sufferers, Peruna will cure you."—Dr. Llewellyn Jordan.

A Lawyer's Letter.

Hon. Louis J. Behan, lawyer, 920-923 Stock Exchange building, Chicago, Ill., writes:

"During the recent gubernatorial campaign in this state, I was troubled with severe hoarseness and sore throat. At the suggestion of a friend I tried Peruna, which gave me complete relief."—Louis J. Behan.

A Sawyer's Letter.

F. W. Radtke, 740 Mintzer street, Philadelphia, Pa., writes:

"I deem it my duty to inform you that I have been troubled with catarrh for four years and could not work at my trade. I have tried almost every cure on the face of the earth, and had doctors attend me at their office and in the hospital, but could not get relief until I tried your wonderful Peruna. I was very doubtful whether it would help me, but at a good friend's advice I tried your Peruna, which is a god-send to all catarrh sufferers. After taking but four bottles I am very much pleased indeed. I can safely say that one more bottle will be enough. After taking the second bottle I could go to work at my trade (sawyer), and the dust has no effect on my throat now. I shall recommend Peruna to everybody who suffers with catarrh."—F. W. Radtke.

A Young Girl's Letter.

Miss Callie Windham, Moore's Bridge, Ala., Tuscaloosa county, writes:

"I am 21 years of age, and have been subject to spells of sore throat all my life, and for seventeen months I had hardly been clear of it. Our home physician treated it, but it got no better. I have now taken nearly five bottles of Peruna, and feel as well as I ever did in my life. I feel that it is a great blessing to me. I can safely recommend Peruna as a permanent cure for catarrh of the throat and will take pleasure in doing so."—Callie Windham.

A Foundryman's Letter.

Hon. James B. Curtis, president of the American Foundryman's association, North Side, 2306 Sealey avenue, Chicago, Ill., in a recent letter writes:

"I have tried Peruna and found it a very fine remedy for all catarrhal troubles. I have been troubled for over five years with catarrh, which started in my head and ended in my stomach, and after using only six bottles of Peruna I was completely cured."—James B. Curtis.

A Policeman's Letter.

Mr. Charles Rehm, lieutenant of police, Forty-third precinct, Chicago, Ill., writes:

"When I have suffered any bad consequences from exposure and colds, I have found that there is nothing so quickly restores the system to healthful activity as Peruna.

"I use it often myself, and know that several of our patrolmen have received great benefit from this tonic."—Charles Rehm.

An Alderman's Letter.

Hon. Otto Engelard, alderman of the Twentieth ward, 501 Belden avenue, Chicago, Ill., writes:

My experience with Peruna has been most satisfactory. Last winter I suffered very much with kidney trouble, getting but little relief from the different remedies tried, until I used Peruna.

"In a few weeks I began to feel a change, and in less than three months I was completely cured, and have had no trouble in that direction since."—Otto Engelard.

A Society Lady's Letter.

Miss Olive Carland, 181 Fifty-first street, Brooklyn, N. Y., writes:

"Last winter coming home from a ball I was suddenly chilled and caught a severe cold, which settled on my lungs, and in my head. Peruna was recommended to me, and I gave it a trial, and in less than a month all traces of catarrh had left my head and throat and I felt much better and stronger."—Miss Carland.

A Mayor's Letter.

Hon. B. J. Irvin, mayor of Washington, Ga., endorses Peruna in the following statement. He says:

"I have frequently used Peruna in my family and have found it an excellent remedy for colds and as a tonic. I often recommend it to my friends."—Hon. B. J. Irvin.

A Housewife's Letter.

Mrs. Maggie Franks, 617 Main street, Greenville, Miss., writes:

"I was troubled for a number of years with systemic catarrh. I had almost constant pain in the side, stomach trouble, a bad cough, caught cold very easily and felt nervous and tired all the time. Peruna has made me a healthy, strong woman. I improved in strength and flesh rapidly after beginning your medicine, and can do more work now and not feel it than I have done for years."—Maggie Franks.

An Architect's Letter.

Hon. I. S. Smithmeyer, architect of the new congressional library of Washington, D. C., writes:

"I endorse the good opinion expressed by senators and representatives in congress regarding the curative qualities of your compound. Those who have used it recommend it as an excellent tonic, which is particularly effective as a cure for catarrh."—I. S. Smithmeyer.

A School Teacher's Letter.

Miss Johanna Soyer, teacher in Oakley avenue school Chicago, Ill., writes:

"Last year I was very ill and could barely attend to my duties in the school room. After using three bottle of Peruna I was completely restored to my usual health."—Miss Johanna Soyer.

A Mother's Letter.

Mrs. George Van Dusen, Mohawk, Herk county, N. Y., writes:

"Having derived so much benefit from your grand medicine I felt as if I must write to you and tell you what a great help it has been to me.

"My little daughter when but two months old took a severe cold and it settled in her head and continued to get worse, and in a few months terminated in the worst case of catarrh that has ever been known in this part of the state. After doctoring with the best doctors for three years and receiving no benefits, we were persuaded to try an advertised catarrh cure. We thought it was helping her at first, but after using twenty or more bottles she was as bad as ever.

"As a last resort we began with Peruna, and she is now 9 years old and for the past year has been the healthiest child you ever saw. The catarrh has entirely disappeared; no discharge, no odor at all, but we still keep the precious bottle in the house, and at the first appearance of cold with any of us, we immediately take Peruna, for we know there is nothing like it. In our estimation it is priceless."—Mrs. George Van Dusen.

An Artilleryman's Letter.

Capt. T. H. Rundle, Third battery of the Wisconsin light artillery, writes from Loda, Ill.:

"I have nothing but praise for Peruna. This winter a severe cold settled in my kidneys, and my stomach was in such a bad catarrhal condition that I could ont eat. I lost appetite and sleep and nothing helped me until the doctor told me to try Peruna.

"That was the finest prescription he could have given. It seemed to restore me to my usual health quicker than anything I had ever taken. In two days I had a fine appetite, slept like a child, and felt like a man once more. I would not be without it in my family for ten times its cost."—T. H. Rundle.

A Fireman's Letter.

Mr. John Sweeting, captain, fire department of Evanston, Ill., says:

"Some time ago we had such continual hard service that I, as well as my men, was completely exhausted and felt my nerves give way. One of our men had tried Peruna a couple of years ago and he advised us to try it. We did so and found the change simply marvelous. A dose seemed better than a meal, and in ten days we were all feeling fine."—John Sweeting.

A Business Man's Letter.

Hon. William N. Selig, a prominent business man of Chicago, Ill., in speaking of Peruna, the great catarrh remedy, says as follows:

"After having used several remedies for indigesiton wth no benefical results, I was induced by a friend of mine to try Peruna, and I gladly say that it perfected a positive cure. I have lately recommended it to several of my acquaintances as I firmly believe it is all that is claimed for it."—William N. Selig.

A Young Mother's Letter.

Mrs. W. McRoberts, writes to Dr. Hartman from Delano, Minn., the following:

"I feel perfectly well of catarrh. I did as you directed me to and took Peruna and Manalin. The third of March I gave birth to a ten-pound baby girl, and we are both well and happy. I am very thankful to you, and Peruna saved my life. I recommend it to everyone, and can't praise it enough.

"I send you my own and my baby's picture. She is so sweet and good, she is a Peruna baby. I have such good health now. I do all my housework and take care of my baby, and feel so good.

"There are three or four of my neighbors using Peruna now since it did me so much good. They were just run down and they think it is fine. It is so good to give strength."—Mrs. W. McRoberts.

A Chief Justice's Letter.

Chief Justice Chambers, of Washington, D. C., writes as follows:

"I have tried one bottle of Peruna and I can truthfully say it is one of the best tonics I ever used and I take pleasure in recommending it to all sufferers who are in need of a good medicine. I can recommend it as one of the very best remedies for catarrh."—W. L. Chambers.

A Traveler's Letter.

J. Edward Clark, 402 Temple street, Los Angeles, Cal., writes:

"I fully believe Peruna saved my life. About two years ago, after returning from Alaska, I was taken with catarrh of the stomach, and in fact of the whole system. My stomach failed me, as nothing I ate seemed to do me any good, but always gave me pains and belching of gas. My kidneys got sore and weak, I had palpitation of the heart, my lungs were sore, and it was difficult to draw a long breath. I also had fainting spells, and while walking was afraid I might fall to the sidewalk. I also had to get up at night and sit in a chair to neep from smothering. My legs and arms pained me most of the time, my feet were cold on the hottest day, my tongue was coated, I had chills from my head to my feet. I was weak and had very little life, and everything looked dark to me, and often wished for the end.

"I took all kinds of medicine—do not think there is a drug store in this city that I did not get some truck from. I also used vapor baths, dieted, drank all the mineral waters, had many consultations with two of the best doctors of this city, used their prescriptions, but all seemed of no use.

"After months of this kind of work I fully made up my mind to try Peruna, and thank God for it, as I had not used over two bottles until I felt a change, and have been getting better ever since, and now I am well and strong. All my friends tell me how well I look. Let me say to those who are sick, try Peruna if you have any of my symptoms, it will cure you. Don't expect to be cured by one bottle, but stick to it until cured."—J. Edward Clark.

A Cavalryman's Letter.

Anton J. Frank, captain of the Twelfth Ohio cavalry, Company D, writes from 887 Lincoln avenue, Chicago, Ill.:

"No praise bestowed upon Peruna could be too high. I suffered for years with a complication of troubles of the pelvic organs from exposure in the army, and could find no relief until I tried Peruna. It meant life and health to me, broken down as I was and unable to enjoy life. I am now feeling well and strong, and without one ache or pain."—Anton J. Frank.

A Chaplain's Letter.

Mr. Z. L. H. Burns, chaplain of Lincoln lodge, Sons of St. George, writes from Benton, Ind.:

"I do not know just how Peruna is made, but I do know there is as much difference in effect in using Peruna and any other medicine as there is between night and day. Every dose seems to instill life and health. I have been troubled with catarrh of the head for years, also with influenza. But it is all gone. Peruna seemed to cure it in an incredibly short time. I only used three bottles and I am today as healthy and well as any man could wish to be. Inclement or damp weather I do not dread, as Peruna cures a cold in a short time."—Z. L. H. Burns.

A Band-Master's Letter.

W. H. Santelmann, leader of the U. S. Marine corps band of Washington, D. C., writes:

"I take pleasure in testifying to the merits of your Peruna. My wife is now using it and she is very much improved. As a spring tonic I know of nothing better, and take pleasure in recommending it to all who are in need of a good, safe remedy."—W. H. Santelmann.

SILBERSTEIN & BONDY CO

SILBERSTEIN & BONDY CO

OUR Annual Spring Sale of Oriental Rugs Begins Next Tuesday. Fine Furniture. Rugs. Draperies. Curtains. Decorations and Everything that Goes Toward Improving and Beautifying the Home!

We believe it to be the best, most practical and beautiful stock carried by any house at the head of the lakes. We do not claim it is the largest, mind you that! But we do claim it is the best—and one feature that will perhaps appeal to critical buyers is that you will not have to wade through a whole lot of mediocre kinds in order to get a fine piece here and there—Ours has been bought with but one purpose, that is to supply a want that was not supplied before; of giving Duluthians something that they usually went out of town for—Furniture pieces that have been selected with an idea of the artistic! People are telling us every day that our third floor department is filling a long felt want—It gives Duluth a collection of things not usually carried by even the best furniture houses—but a visit to the store and to our new third floor will tell you more in a few minutes than we could explain in several pages of type.

IS EASILY ROBBED

John Higgins Separated From His $10 With Little Trouble.

But the Robber Shows Less Ingenuity In Avoiding Police.

Get-rich-quick methods of George Anderson were daring and original, but unsuccessful.

Yesterday afternoon while John Higgins was standing in front of the ticket window at the Union depot, Anderson walked up and began talking with him.

Mr. Higgins, who was a stranger in the city, asked the agent what a ticket to St. Cloud would cost. The agent announced the price and Anderson broke in with:

"Hold on there, my friend. Don't throw your money away. I'll show you where you can get a ticket to St. Cloud for half that price up here at a scalper's office."

Mr. Higgins does not lay awake nights wondering how he can manage to die poor like a certain person in the library distributing set, and the prospect of saving half the fare home was alluring. He told Anderson to lead on.

Anderson hurried him up the avenue to Superior street, and on the way told Higgins to give him the money to get the ticket as the scalper knew him and would do more that he would for a stranger. The St. Cloud man gave him $10.

Anedrson went into a saloon on the Bowery with Higgins following a few feet behind. Anderson quickened his pace and went around the corner at the entrance of the saloon so fast that Higgins on reaching the inside of the screen could not see him. Anderson went right around and out of the door-way he had entered a fraction of a second before and then sought to loose himself.

Higgins searched for him for a time and then reported the matter to Officer McDonald. From the description of the officer recognized the man that had the $10 and the next time he met him in a Bowery crowd placed him under arrest.

In the municipal court this morning Anderson was sentenced to sixty days at hard labor in the county jail. Persons that witnessed the burst of speed with which Anderson doubled around the screen and then dashed up the street, say he will make a valuable acquisition to the chain gang.

NOT STRONG ENOUGH.

Cheese Seized By State Inspector For Weakness.

In the case of the States of Minnesota versus Six Hundred and Eighty Pounds of Cheese, a very strong defense was put up this morning in the municipal court.

The state won, however, and the cheese was ordered confiscated. The charge against the defendant was that he, she or it contained less than forty-five per cent of fat solids, which is contrary to the peace and dignity of the state of Minnesota.

This cheese, shipped from Chicago and consigned to a Michigan street commission broker, was seized by Otto Gatvert, the state pure food inspector, and it was analyzed by the state chemist at St. Paul, who declared that it was nothing but skim milk cheese, which by any other name would smell as strong.

AT WEST DULUTH

At the meeting of the West Duluth Commercial club last evening the practice of driving over sidewalks and curbs by delivery wagons and other vehicles was condemned and a motion was passed requesting the police and other citizens to report offenders. The members believe that such practices are becoming too common, and that the property of the city is suffering from them.

The club moved to petition the common council to have the road from Bay View Heights to Proctorknott improved so that it may be in fit condition to be used by teams.

Messrs. Phelps, Ramsted and Jacoby were appointed a committee to investigate the plumbing ordinance now before the city council and render an opinion on it at the next meeting.

The committee on free delivery to the factory district along the bay front was continued.

The committee appointed to have the refuse from the streets and cellars dumped under the Central avenue bridges reported that the work had been accomplished and the committee was discharged. The ravine under the bridge is now being used as a city dumping ground. Several new members were taken into the club and much routine business transacted.

PETITION IS SIGNED.

Paving of Central Avenue to Be Legally Requested.

The petition for paving Central avenue has been signed by a sufficient number of property owners to insure the paving of that street. The agitation was commenced last November and was taken up by the Commercial club. A committee composed of Messrs. Barnes, Frey and Sang was appointed to take charge of the matter. J. J. Frey was appointed by the city to circulate the petition.

Much difficulty was met with by the outside property owners, and it was not until yesterday that the required number was obtained. The petition will be presented to the council Monday night.

The regular routine will be gone through as quickly as possible, and it is hoped to have the pavement completed before winter sets in. The pavement used will probably be macadam, and will extend from Cody street to Main.

REAL ESTATE ACTIVE.

A Number of Sales at West Duluth Reported.

The real estate market has been active during the past week. J. J. Frey reports the following sales:

The Metropolitan hotel, Brunswick hotel and No. 212 Fifty-second avenue went to Louis Ramsted for $2500.

House No. 326 and hotel No. 208 Fifty-fourth avenue were sold to M. Kamerer for $1500.

Nels Nyphus purchased a lot on Grand avenue for $200.

Lots 15 and 16, block 22, West Duluth, First division, were sold to Charles Grieves for $550.

Houses for rent are still very scarce, two of the real estate dealers reporting that their lists are entirely exhausted, and that they cannot secure houses to supply the demand they have. All claim that the demand for houses has not been exceeded since the "boom times."

CHURCH SERVICES.

Program For Different West Duluth Churches.

At the Oneota M. E. church there will be services at 11 a. m., conducted bby Rev. E. R. Stevenson. At 7:30 the pastor, Rev. E. K. Copper will preach, taking for his subject "The Men of Anak." Sunday school will meet at 10 a. m. The special music will be as follows:

At the Asbury M. E. church Rev. George Hartley will preach at 10:30a. m., taking for his subject "The Eventful question." The pastor will preach at 7:30 p. m. on "A Criminal or a God."

Rev. George R. Merrill, of Minneapolis, superintendent of the Home Missionary society, will occupy the pulpit of the Plymouth Congregational church tomorrow morning and evening.

At the Norwegian Synod church, corner of Fifty-seventh avenue west and Gosnold street, there will be service tomorrow morning at 11 o'clock. Rev. Adolph Salverson will preach.

"What May We Do on Sunday?" will be the subject of the Sunday morning sermon by Rev. Arthur J. Hoag at the West Duluth Baptist church. In the evening "The Second Appearance of Jesus" will be the subject. Sunday school will meet at noon.

HIS BROTHER COMING.

The interest of the late C. W. Nitteraeur in the Duluth Brass works has been purchased by W. F. Bailey, the surviving partner. The price paid was $950.

Since the death of Mr. Nitterauer the plant has been operated by Mr. Bailey alone. The business has been growing rapidly and it has been found necessary to add new machinery and make other needed improvements. Mr. Bailey will take into partnership his brother, G. M. Bailey, of St. Paul, formerly a master mechanic for the Great Northern railway.

BASEBALL GAME.

The grounds of the West Duluth Baseball club at the head of Fifty-second avenue, have been put in first-class condition for the game tomorrow afternoon. The line-up of the team will be as follows: Pitchers, Young and Larson; catcher, T. Robinson; first base, Coughlin; second base, Charles Irwin; short stop, Lew; third base, Williams; right field, Brotherton; center field, E. Robinson; left field, Larson and Young.

The game will commence at 3 o'clock, unless wet weather should intervene.

TO CLOSE FOR A WEEK.

The Red Cliff Lumber company's mill at Oneota will close down this evening for a week's repairs, when it will resume on the company's log stock to be sawed before July. Both the Merrill & Ring and Alger-Smith mills at West Duluth are prepared and expect to start this week, but the logs were frozen in to such an extent as to cause delay. The work of blasting ice in the slips was begun yesterday and under the honeycombed top was found about a foot of solid blue ice.

THE MATCH FACTORY.

The alterations and improvements to the factory of the Union Match company are progressing rapidly. A large number of men are at work installing the big machines and fitting out the plant. One of the machines is nearly completed and others have been started.

"It will be some time yet before we commence operations," said Superintendent Weeks. "Probably a month before the first matches are made."

How 1,000 Chicagoans

Got Well at My Risk.

On Jan. 11, 1903, I published in the Chicago papers the names and addresses of one thousand people in that city alone whom I had cured of chronic diseases in just the last six months.

Since then several thousand other Chicagoans have written for my help. The offer I made to all of them is the offer I make to you.

Simply send me this coupon, or write me a postal stating which book you need. I will then mail you an order, good at any drug store, for six bottles Dr. Shoop's Restorative. You may take it a month on trial. If it succeeds, the cost is $5.50. If it fails, I will pay the druggist myself. And your mere word shall decide it.

My Restorative is the remedy that cured those thousand people in one city in one-half year. And I have in my office the records of nearly 550,000 sick ones whom it has cured in the past twelve years.

And my Restorative is the only remedy so sure, even in difficult cases, that anyone dare offer it on terms like mine.

If you need help—whether the trouble is trifling or severe—you need the best help—this help.

The usual way for treating weak vital organs is to doctor the organs themselves. My way is to strengthen the inside nerves—to bring back the power that makes the organ do its duty. This nerve power alone operates the vital organs, and it is nerve weakness alone that makes the organ weak.

I treat the weak organ like a weak engine—I give it the power to act. The result is always a cure, save when a cause like cancer makes a cure impossible. Such causes are so rare that I willingly take the risk.

THE WESTERN COAL MARKET

Chicago, April 18.—The Black Diamond, reviewing the Western coal market, says:

Unusual features continue to obtain in the Western anthracite trade. This week practically all of the large companies represented in Western territory discontinued taking orders for delivery during the current month. It is probable a small amount of business yet may be accepted in cases here and there, but large buyers who have held off expecting to place their orders about the 20th to 25th of April, and who believed they would be able to secure the coal thus ordered on the April circular basis, will meet with a disappointment.

The decision of the companies to refuse to take further business is largely due to a continuance of the strike among the marine firemen and oilers on the great lakes. While some few boats have left Buffalo and Erie with non-union crews, the larger portion of the lake fleet is still tied up with no assurance as to when it will go into commission. Vessel owners seem to be slowly breaking the strike, but at the present rate of progress it will be some time before they can win a complete victory.

Chicago received its first boatload of coal on Wednesday, the 15th, when the Gladstone consigned to the Lehigh Valley Coal company, arrived with 2700 tons of stove coal. Several boats are on the way and will arrive the latter part of the week, and it is understood that several boats are on the way to Duluth and will probably arrive Friday or Saturday. The opening of the coal carrying season this year is one day later than last year, although if it had not been for the strike it would probably have opened ten days earlier. A year ago the P. D. Armour was the first vessel to reach Chicago with a cargo of 2700 tons of coal. This cargo was also consigned to the Lehigh Valley Coal company.

In the soft coal trade the market on spot coal at Chicago is a trifle easier than a week ago, and large shipping interests say they expect a dull and quiet market until well into the summer. The situation as to Eastern bituminous coals in Western markets is being influenced to a more or less extent by the lake transportation situation. At Ohio and Pennsylvania loading ports there is commencing to be an accumulation of coal on cars which cannot be unloaded owing to the congested condition of the docks. Unless some relief is furnished soon as to the vessel situation it will be necessary to divert this coal into the all-rail trade or to tide-water. Some interests are already considering this plan and ways of making it effective until such time as lake shipments are fairly normal.

Any reduction in the quantity of coal moving to the docks will be felt next winter, although it may be only a small tonnage in the aggregate. Dock interests have demanded all along all the tonnage that could be moved to them. They entered the spring months without a pound of coal on hand as against a small surplus in past years, and their necessities the coming summer and winter are therefore quite urgent, especially as to obtaining as full a supply as possible.

Among Eastern bituminous coals, the only new prices announced during the week pertain to ocean smokeless, which is sold to a considerable extent in Western markets. These prices are on the same basis as Pocahontas, $1.85 at the mine for run of mine and $2.30 at the mine for screened lump. This coal is sold extensively throughout the Northwestern states and the new prices are regarded as quite conservative considering the advance in freight rates and cost of mining.

In spot Illinois coals the market presents little change. Illinois and Indiana lump rule at around $2.25 on the spot, with occasionally inside prices named on coal that is drawing car charges or demurrage. Prices on mine run range from $1.85 to $2 per ton, f. o. b., Chicago, and on screenings the market is showing a somewhat wider range varying from $1.40 to $1.50 on Illinois to $1.60 to $1.70 on Indiana, according to quality and the road over which they are shipped.

Contracts in all branches of the Western bituminous trade continue to drag, and it is not expected there will be much activity before the first of the month. Operators continue very firm in their views, while buyers are withholding their contracts until the spot situation becomes somewhat firmer. There is every evidence that fewer contracts will be made this year than ever before in the history of the coal trade, and operators are content that this should be so. Outside of some desirable railroad contracts which will absorb the large tonnage of the most important operations, there is no feeling of apprehension as to ability to dispose of all the coal that can be brought out during the season.

SENIORS TO APPEAR IN DRAMATIC STUNTS

Two Laughable Comediettas to Be Presented at the High School Tonight—Baseball Men Look For the Best Team School Has Ever Had.

The anxiously awaited senior play will be given at the High School this evening, after weeks of preparation, under the supervision of A. F. M. Custance.

Daily rehearsals have been held during the last week, and the entertainment has been under preparation for about a month. The high school histrions have attained a very fair degree of excellence for amateur thespians, and the entertainment is sure to be fully up to the standard of affairs of its kind given in Duluth.

Particular good fortune attended the class this year in securing two exceptionally funny little pieces in which to show their talents. Few funnier pieces have been written than "A Regular Fix," in which twelve members of the senior class will appear.

The story of the comedy—if it can be so called—is of a young man who wakes one morning to find himself in a strange house, where a friend took him to attend a ball the night before. He has forgotten the name of the people of the house.

He is about to apologize for his presence and leave, when the merry tangle of complications is started by a discovery that a sheriff's officer is waiting to arrest him for an unpaid bill outside. He dares not leave for fear of arrest, but has no excuse for remaining. To make matters worse, he finds that his host is a lawyer who has a bill against him and has set another bailiff on his track.

His endeavors at an imaginative explanation lead to shriekingly funny situations, during which he is found making love to the lawyer's wife. He is about to be ejected when other things happen.

Hugh De Brass, the cheeky young man, is to be impersonated by Frank Kane, president of the senior class. William Steiner will be Surplus, the lawyer; Worth Andrews does the lawyer's nephew; Orren Safford, his head clerk, Able Quick; Ernest Granzow is to be Smiler, a sheriff's officer, and Joseph Harrison a funny English porter.

Kathleen Watterworth will be Surplus' adopted daughter, who loves Able Quick; Grace Thompson, Mrs. Surplus, a romantic old lady; Olive Colbrath, the housekeeper, and Genevieve Washburn, Jessie Campbell and Ethel Jones maids.

All of these do their parts very well, and some will wear ridiculous make-ups.

Strict secrecy is maintained as to the troubles, trials, tribulations, bliss, felicity and happiness of the two people who take part in the comedietta, "Lamb and Mint Sauce," which will be the first on the program.

One pleasant feature of this act is that it portrays a scene in which a well-laden breakfast table appears. The good things to eat will be real. No rubber bread will be used.

Lydia, the "tintie wifie," will be Mary Richards, and Salisbury Adams in the role of Horace will struggle to digest her biscuits.

The stage of the Assembly hall has been fitted out as a happy home.

Between the two plays the intermission will be filled by piano music by Harry McMartin, and a Victor talking machine will portray such interesting events as dog fights and Chinese duets.

From the advance sale of tickets the large auditorium should be crowded. The money which is realized from the entertainment will go to the senior class to pay its graduation expenses.

BASEBALL MEN OUT.

Outlook For Best Team the School Has Had.

Regular baseball practice has been indulged in by the baseball men during the last week. The new men who will try for positions are showing up unusually well. Capt. Cummings believes that he will have a stronger team this year than last.

It is still uncertain as to whether Potter, the crack catcher, will be able to play, and that is the only point on which the fans have any great anxiety. Potter is one of the best high school catchers in the state, and with him behind the bat the school will have the best batters in the state by long odds.

Cummings' arm is stronger this year than it has ever been before. He has had a four-years' experience on the high school and other amateur teams, and his work is little short of that which might be done by a crack professional pitcher. Few of the schools which the team will play have batteries who are able to cope with his shoots and crooks.

With the field that will be built up around him during the next few weeks the team should put a magnificent front to any of the aggregations which they are to meet.

Two games will be played with Cloquet, one with Brainerd, and the two Superior schools will be given games. It is probable that the first big event of the Duluth baseball season will be a game between the high school men and the Duluth league team, which will be played as soon as the new grounds which Manager Praagh is building are completed.

The schedule is light this year because of the fact that the Athletic association, on account of its poor financial standing, found it necessary to stipulate that the management bring no teams here from any distance outside, on account of the expense.

Capt. Whipple is urging his track men out to work, and though not much has been accomplished as yet, the bunch which will get into the game in a week or two will make it easy for the Duluth team to give any of the schools which hope to enter the quadrangular meet between Duluth, Cloquet and the two Superior schools a hard rub for points.

GRADUATION AFFAIRS.

Preparations For the Commencement Exercises.

Dr. Long was selected to deliver the baccalaureate sermon for the graduating class at its meeting Thursday afternoon. The matter will be laid before him immediately.

Mr. Custance is already planning new school music for the graduating exercises and plans for the last week of the year, when the class graduates and the school disperses for another year, will soon begin to take definite form.

Zenith work is progressing rapidly, and a thoroughly good publication is assured.

Just now the seniors are busy swapping photographs. The entire class has been photographed for their class pictures, and each graduate-to-be is anxious to secure the likeness of his friends.

Contest Work Delayed.

Interest has been centered in the senior play for the last week or two, and the work on the declamatory and oratorical contest which will shortly take place has been somewhat interrupted.

Honor pupils will have their essays prepared in a short time, however, and then the final events of the year will follow in quick succession.

The Sophomore Dance.

Next Friday evening the sophomores will give their annual hop at the Masonic Temple hall. The committee in charge has worked hard to make the affair a success, and it will be well attended by the high school students.

Good music has been secured and an enjoyable evening of twenty-six dances is certain. All of the classes will attend the affair in force.

DUN'S WEEKLY TRADE REVIEW

New York, April 18.—R. G. Dun & Co.'s Weekly Review of Trade says:

Cold and wet weather the past week in many sections of the country retarded retail trade in spring and summer wearing apparel. Jobbers also felt the effects in a lessened activity and agricultural operations made irregular progress. Production of farm staples may not be curtailed by the later planting, although in some cases there will be greater danger of loss at the end of the season through early frost. Traffic conditions are steadily improving, yet some complaints are still heard, and further additions to motive power and terminal facilities must be made if another season of congestion is to be averted at the next time of pressure. Railway earnings thus far in April exceed last year's by 12.5 per cent and those of 1901 by 24.1 per cent. Several factors tend to delay the placing of contracts for pig iron deliveries after July 1, which naturally weakens the one, and it is reported that Bessemer is freely offered at $20, valley furnace, without attracting purchasers. Such small concessions as are offered increase the disposition of prospective buyers to wait as long as possible. An output of over 300,000 tons of coke weekly and sufficient traffic facilities to keep furnaces supplied remove the alarm regarding future scarcity and the situation has become more normal, which makes it possible to ascertain to what extent prices have inflated by special conditions. Thus far no accumulation of material is reported, notwithstanding unprecedented production and the prospect of favors continued activity in demand after the present period of uncertainty is past. Contracts for structural steel are also placed with great caution, not because of light business in sight, but owing entirely to the fear of labor troubles. It is hoped that controversies in the building trades will be settled by May 1, in which case large orders for steel shapes will be offered as plans for many new bridges and structures are now under consideration. Textile mills have not received any material increase in amount of new business and there is evidence that the exceptionally heavy transactions of January and February provided sufficient supplies for present needs. No improvement has occurred in the market for men's heavy weight woolens and there is prospect of an unusually early opening of spring lines for next year in order to maintain activity at the mills. Efforts to secure advanced prices on broad silks have not proved successful. As a rule the footwear market is quiet, except for good purchases of heavy shoes by Western jobbers. Only fair sales are reported of sole leather and glazed kid is weaker Failures this week number 212 in the United States against 261 a year ago and 16 in Canada compared with 24 last year.

IN COPPER CIRCLES

Output of Lake Mines Over 170,000,000 Pounds In 1902.

Gain of Ten Per Cent Over Preceding Two Years.

Houghton, Mich., April 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Final figures of production of refined copper by Lake Superior mines are now all in, except for the Tri-Mountain, and in that case the estimate of 6,000,000 pounds is based on an unofficial, but direct estimate of the company. The figures of production for 1902 and of the two preceding years, are as follows. The figures for 1901 will be found to differ materially from the generally accepted statistics, but those given herewith may be depended on as accurate and final. The erroneous figures in very general circulation are due mainly to a serious error in the output of the Calumet and Hecla caused by the fiscal year of that corporation ending on April 30. The following figures are for production during the calendar years in each case:

Mine.	1902.	1901.	1900.
Calumet and Hecla	$31,248,739	82,519,676	77,761,382
Quincy	18,988,491	20,540,720	14,116,551
Tamarack	15,961,528	18,000,852	19,182,502
Osceola	13,416,396	13,723,487	12,566,471
Wolverine	6,473,181	4,946,126	4,789,829
Baltic	6,285,819	2,641,432	1,735,099
Tri-Mountain	6,000,000	.....	.....
Franklin	5,259,140	3,757,419	3,663,710
Atlantic	4,949,366	4,666,880	4,930,149
Champion	4,165,784	.....	.....
Isle Royale	3,569,748	2,171,955	.....
Mass	2,345,865	*560,000	122,339
Adventure	606,211	29,361	23,572
Arcadian	600,000	*500,000	1,350,000
Mohawk	226,824	160,890	.....
Winona	101,188	.....	.....
Centennial	.....	896,400	892,500
Arnold	.....	108,000	856,000
Phoenix	.....	93,643	88,205
Miscellaneous	500,000	60,000	73,400
Totals	170,831,593	155,716,848	142,151,571

These figures show a gain of practically 10 per cent for each of the two preceding years. For 1903 the increase will be more than 15 per cent and very probably 20 per cent. The increased production secured in 1901 and 1902 were practically the first increase for 5 years, and reflect the increased productive capacity of the district brought about by the opening of new mines, rather than any marked increase in the output of the older mines. The total production of the new mines was a trifle more than 5,000,000 pounds in 1901, and upwards of 20,000,000 pounds for 1902, and should be doubled during the present year.

The output of the Calumet and Hecla was practically the same in 1902 as in the preceding year, and the mine is now producing at practically the same rate, of about 7,000,000 pounds of refined copper monthly. The new 6-stamp mill of the Calumet and Hecla, now going into commission, will not increase production, for some time to come at least, as the old Calumet mill is to be rebuilt in sections as soon as the new stamps begin duty. Eventually this will give the property materially increased stamping capacity. It is not certain, however, that it would be wise to crowd the mine much above its present production, which is approximately 9000 tons of rock daily. If the amygdaloid mine on the Osceola lode is worked as may be done if copper holds at a good price, the Calumet and Hecla can closely crowd an annual output of one hundred million pounds, or at the present rate of production of the Anconda, now and for some years past the world's largest producer of copper. The outputs of the Calumet and Hecla and Rio Tinto have been practically the same for several years past.

The Quincy output shows a slight falling off from the preceding year. This was due to the mining and stamping of rock of much lower average grade than formerly. In order to feed the stamps about 3400 tons of rock are supplied to the mills daily, and it is impossible to furnish such an enormous tonnage of as high a grade as obtained formerly, when but a third to a half of this output was required. The Quincy is now one of the best equipped mines upon the entire globe, and should be able to maintain an annual output of approximately 20,000,000 pounds of refined metal for many years to come.

The Tamarack showed a marked decrease in 1902. It can no longer be denied that the Tamarack is not the mine it once was. The three deep shafts have all proven more or less disappointing, and the grade of rock stamped has been declining slowly but surely for some years, until it is now below that of several of the amygdaloid mines, even though the bulk of the Tamarack's production is secured from the great Calumet conglomerate. The expense and strain of operating a mine a full mile in depth, may be guessed at, but can be fully understood only by those in actual charge. The Tamarack will be a big mine and a large producer for a long time to come, but the old dream of making it another Calumet & Hecla is effectually dissipated. The Tamarack can hope to but little more than hold its own for the future.

The Osceola output for 1902 was but a trifle less than in the preceding year contrary to the general expectation of a large decrease. The mines and mills are again working full forces, and the Osceola should show an output of 20,000,000 to 25,000,000 pounds this year, secured at a handsome profit. Of all the old mines of the district, the Osceola has the brightest prospects for the future.

Wolverine, which has shown an increased output during every year of its life made a large gain in 1902, and will make a still larger gain during the current year, when the output will reach approximately 10,000,000 pounds placing the "little Wolverine," so much laughed at a few years ago, among the largest producers of the world. Not only this, but the Wolverine is making the cheapest copper of any Lake Superior mine, and its profits are enormous. The Wolverine, however, has probably reached its full growth at present, though good for a quarter century to come.

Trimountain is the largest producer of 1902 among the new mines. While an output of 6,000,000 pounds for its first year of production looks large, the 1903 figures will tell a much more surprising story. The Trimountain is one of the world's best mines, and will play no small part in the lake district in the future. Its only rival is the great Champion, which lies immediately adjoining, and is working the same lode. The Champion's output of rising 4,000,000 tons will also be made to look small when the figures for this year are given out. It is another Trimountain, but a trifle richer. The recent tempest in a teapot on the floor of the New York metal exchange about the presence of arsenic in the copper of the Champion, Trimountain and Baltic mines appears rather ridiculous to those really conversant with the copper trade. The existence of an unusually large percentage of arsenic in the refined copper from the "South range" mines has been known to those nosted in copper matters, since the Baltic fairly began production. Nor are these mines alone in having much arsenic.

Few of the Lake mines, at depth, are as free from arsenic as was the case twenty or even ten years ago. For certain uses arsenic is very deleterious, while for other purposes it is a positive advantage. More and more of the Lake copper is being refined electrolytically, and in time all but a few special brands of Lake metal will go through the tanks. The 1902 output of the Baltic exceeded six million pounds, and will show another big gain this season. The Franklin exceeded five million pounds output for the first time in its history and made a fine record of output and costs from a refractory lode that has formerly yielded nothing but Irish dividends, and of which the great majority of experienced mining men of the district stand in fear. Atlantic held its own, and a trifle more. At present the showing is more encouraging at this property than for some time past. The Atlantic is a standing marvel to mining men the world over, being the best example extant of successful working on an extremely low-grade ore-body.

Isle Royale's showing for 1902, considering that it was worked under check for the greater part of the time, was exceptionally good. The mine is not at all rich, but is magnificently equipped. The only possibility of dividends lies in working the mine on a large scale, which is not being done at present.

The output of the Mass mine showed material gain in 1902, though not as large as had been anticipated. The Mass needs further underground development before it can feed its stamp mill to advantage. The Adventure's mill was started in the fall of 1902, and the production of 606,211 pounds was somewhat disappointing. The mine is not capable of supplying the mill with selected rock to its full capacity, and is now running under check. The Mohawk mill was started so late in the year that the 1902 production was trivial. For the current year the Mohawk should make nearly 8,000,000 pounds, and with the third stamp in commission will be able to increase the output named. Eventually the Mohawk, which is giving excellent returns, will increase its milling capacity to four stamps, which will handle nearly 2000 tons of rock daily.

The small output of the Michigan was secured exclusively from heavy copper taken out of shafts, drifts and cross-cuts in the work of opening. None of the stamp-rock so secured was treated, and no copper removed except where necessary to make room for the passage of mine openings. The present underground showing of the mine is remarkably good. The Arcadian is running only one stamp part time on its own rock, the other heads being leased to the Trimountain, and the output for 1902 was but a trifle larger than that of the preceding year. Winona's output of 101,188 pounds refined copper was secured from rock stamped under one head of the Atlantic mill in the last few weeks of the year. This stamp is still running on Winona rock, and is securing about one per cent copper.

The Centennial was out of the running in 1902, but has opened some fine ground in its new shafts on the Kearsarge lode, and should become a producer again in the not distant future. The Phoenix will have one stamp running next summer. The Arnold is closed down, with no likelihood of an early resumption.

Accurate Treatment Of Men's Diseases

I guess at nothing. My understanding of men's diseases is so sufficient that I have no need to resort to guess work. To men's diseases alone I have devoted my entire attention for many years. I have closely studied them in every possible phase and complication. I believe there is no case that I cannot accurately diagnose. My diagnosis is the foundation of my treatment. It determines the course to pursue. As the cure progresses I carefully note developments and vary the remedies accordingly. I employ original and distinctive methods of treatment, but they are not set methods. They are pliable to meet the conditions in individual cases, and their use calls for the most delicate prescribing. That they are correct, scientific and rational methods is conclusively proven by the cures they produce.

The longest established, most successful and reliable specialist in diseases of men, as medical diplomas, licenses and newspaper records will show.

"WEAKNESS"

That disorder commonly known as "weakness," has for years and generations baffled the efforts of physicians, yet to this very day a majority of doctors are attempting to overcome it by methods that have been in constant use and that have constantly failed for half a century. They dose the system with powerful stimulants and tonics calculated to restore nervous forces or strength that is not and never has been lacking, with a result that the functions are temporarily excited to the positive detriment of the patient. Weakness, we will call it such for convenience just now, is only a symptom resulting from a chronically swollen and inflamed prostate gland, and is curable by local treatment only. Either early dissipation or some improperly treated contracted disease is responsible for the inflammation in most instances, though accidental injury, strain, etc., may produce the same result. I have permanently cured thousands of cases of prematureness, loss of power, which demonstrates the absolute accuracy of my understanding and treatment of the disorder. In years I have not met with a single failure, and I have entire confidence in my ability to cure all cases that come to me for treatment other than that which I have perfected can completely and permanently restore strength and vigor.

CONTRACTED DISORDERS

To but partially cure a contracted disease is almost as dangerous as to allow it to go untreated. Unless every particle of infection and inflammation is removed, the probability exists that the disease will gradually work its way into the general system. All greater is the danger of the prostate gland becoming chronically inflammed, which always brings partial or complete loss of power. Perhaps 25 per cent of the cases of so-called "weakness" are a direct result of some improperly treated disease. During the past five years I have treated over 6500 cases of contracted disorders and have effected an absolutely thorough and safe cure in each instance. There have been no relapses or undesirable developments whatever and my patients have been cured in less time than other and less thorough forms of treatment require in producing even doubtful results.

VARICOCELE

Many men afflicted with varicocele are endangering their general health, their manly power and even life itself by allowing the disorder to remain uncured. Varicocele results from partial paralysis of the delicate nerve fibres that have a part in controlling local circulation of the blood. The muscular coating of the veins being deprived of nervous communication and control, become inactive, weaken and relax. The blood vessels expand from the pressure within, the circulation in the parts become sluggish, and frequently stagnant pools form in little nooks and pockets that constantly enlarge as the relaxation continues. The possibility exists that clots may form in these stagnant pools and then pass out into the general circulation. Should one find lodgment in the valve of the heart the result might be instant death, or should it be carried to the brain, general paralysis will follow.

I guarantee to cure varicocele in one week by a method that involves no cutting or ligature, or caustic. No other physician employs a like method, and so thorough is my work that there need not be the slightest fear of a relapse into the old condition. Those who have been long afflicted with varicocele will never realize the injury it has caused until they feel the vim, energy and buoyancy of spirts that a complete cure will bring.

STRICTURE

My treatment for stricture removes the necessity for surgical operations, even in severe cases of long standing. I do no cutting or dilating. No other physician employs my methous of overcoming this disorder, so the service I offer you is original and distinctive. Do not give up hope because others have failed. I will cure you and the cure will be a prompt and painless one. My treatment dissolves the stricture and permanently removes every obstruction from the urinary passage, subdues all inflammation, relieves all irritation or congestion that may exist in the kidneys or bladder, reduces enlargement of the prostate gland and restores to health and tone all organs affected by the disease.

SPECIFIC BLOOD POISON

I permanently cure this most hideous of all blood diseases. I employ harmless, blood cleansing remedies that positively drive the very last taint of virus from the system, and every symptom vanishes to appear no more.

We charge nothing for private counsel and give to each patient a LEGAL CONTRACT to hold for our promises. Is it not worth your while to investigate a cure that has made life anew to multitudes of men?

DR. MITCHELL'S

Treatment Endorsed By Prominent Financial and Professional Men.

It has always been the policy of Dr. Mitchell, the successful healer, as scores of reputable busines men will testify, to conduct his institute of magnetic healing on lines of honesty. Under this policy his busines has grown by leaps and bounds during the past five years. Very large percentage of his practice are those sent to him by persons who have been cured. At his institute all diseases are treated successfully, and no attempt is made to cure incurable cases. But he has a record of thousands of absolute cures to his credit that prove beyond a doubt that his treatment is what he claims it to be. Dr. Mitchell has such strong magnetic power that he is able to break up congestions and cure most obstinate chronic cases, sometimes only with a single treatment. He takes no incurable cases, only such cases as he believes will speedily give way to his wonderful healing power. His cure for blood poison and kindred diseases is sure and swift. He completely eradicates the disease from the blood without the use of poisonous drugs. His method of treatment for weak manhood is the most advanced known. Stricture, inflammation of the bladder, kidneys and all chronic diseases are cured by this great healer. Dr. Mitchell's Institute of Magnetic Healing is the only one in the Northwest. AT NEGAUNEE.

Negaunee, Mich., April 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Charles B. Conway, said to have been one of the best tailors in this region, who died in Ishpeming Wednesday night, was well known here. He was ill for the past six months and his death resulted from an affection of the liver. He is survived by a widow and six children, four sons and two daughters. The funeral was held yesterday morning.

The Grand club met Tuesday evening at the residence of Mr. and Mrs. F. A. Bell, where the members were entertained by Messrs. and Mesdames P. A. and E. W. Bell and Miss Kline.

Oscar Lundin, a painter and decorator, in the employ of J. W. Elliott, left Sunday night for Chicago.

Lillian and Anna Jandron, of Marinette, are in the city visiting relatives and friends.

Albert Kermode, who spent the past two years on the Menominee range, has returned to the city.

The Misses Jennie and Amber Neely returned from California, where they spent the winter.

Mrs. William Sellwood, of this city, is a daughter of Mrs. Grace Noall, who died Sunday, at Crystal Falls.

Thursday afternoon the council met and filled the appointive offices, as follows: Marshal, Thomas Gribble; city attorney, J. M. Edgerton; assessor, P. A. Thoren; superintendent of the water works, Thomas Buzzo; superintendent of the electric light plant, T. Gaffney; superintendent of streets and construction, S. Thomas; first engineer of the water works, A. Hellstrom; second engineer, William Westermeyer; fireman, William Hellstrom; night watchmen, Fred Zimmerman, Patrick Scanlon, John Rule and John Rock; health officer, Dr. Smith. The next regular meting of the council will be held May 7.

J. Arnett has taken the position in Kirkwood & O'Donoghue's pharmacy made vacant by the resignation of William Field.

F. J. Flynn, secretary of the Upper Peninsula Firemen's association, is attending the meeting of the executive committee at Hancock today.

Several of the high school boys are preparing for the Interscholastic meet, to be held at Union park, May 26.

Miss Barbara Kirchner, who is employed at the postoffice, returned Monday morning from a short visit to Chicago.

NATURE'S OWN CURE.

Hyomei Cures Catarrh Without Dangerous Drugging of the Stomach.

Not until Hyomei was discovered has it been possible to truthfully say that a remedy for catarrh was known.

This remedy is breathed through the Hyomei inhaler for a few minutes four times a day, and during that time every particle of air taken into the air passages and lungs is impregnated with the germ killing and health giving Hyomei. It is the only treatment that cures catarrh.

Stomach drugging often causes disordered digestion or brings on some other diseases and never makes a permanent cure of catarrh. Hyomei not only kills the germs in the throat and nose, but penetrates to the minutest air cells in the lungs and enters the blood with the oxygen, killing the germs in the blood. It frees the mucous membrane from poisonous microbes and gives perfect health.

A complet outfit costs but $1.00 and includes an inhaler, dropper and sufficient Hyomei for more than a month's treatment.

S. F. Boyce has so much faith in the merit of Hyomei that he agrees to return the money to any purchaser who may be dissatisfied.

Hiram Alguire, who had been a resident of this city for the past sixteen years, died at the home of his son, Anson, on Park street, last Tuesday evening. He was a native of Canada and was 73 years old, his death having been caused by ailments incident to old age. He is survived by a widow and two sons, Anson of this city and George of Ironwood. Previous to his illness which kept him confined to his home nearly all winter he was employed as engineer at the Lily mine. The funeral was held from the late residence Friday afternoon.

This afternoon at 2 o'clock, Harry Chamberlain Miller, of Denver, Col., and Miss Fannie O'Leary, of this city, were united in marriage at the residence of the bride's parents in Cyr street, Monsignor Langer performing the ceremony in the presence of relatives only. The bridegroom is a prominent Colorado mine owner, while the bride is one of Negaunee's most accomplished young women. The newly married people leave for Denver tonight, which will be their future home.

Mr. and Mrs. Lawrence Arland, early settlers in Negaunee, will remove to St. Paul, in the course of a week or so.

Wilfred Jandlon, of this city, has taken a position in Des Rocher's drug store at Houghton.

PAST CURFEW TIME.

Two Boys and Girls Placed Under Arrest.

Two girls—neither past sixteen birthdays.

Pretty girls—standing on the threshold of the vista leading to young womanhood—were prisoners in the city jail last night and this morning suffered the humiliation of a municipal court arraignment.

They were found by the police out rather late with two boys of their own age, and just to demonstrate that the curfew ordinance is not exactly a dead letter, and to warn others, the officers took the four in cusody.

Judge Windom gave all a sharp lecture and allowed them to go under suspended sentences after serving notice that a second offense would be punished much more severely.

Business University Happenings.

The college will be in session throughout the entire summer and the prospects indicate the largest summer school it has ever enjoyed.

The following young people left the college during the past week to accept the following positons:

Ada Salmu, bookkeeper for Anderson & Salsburg company, Arnold, Mich.

Amanda Meier, stenographer for the Duluth Land company.

Mary Vandergrift, bookkeeper for the McKay hotel.

Mike Cosgrove, bookkeeper for the Gately Supply company.

Louis Morgan, bookkeeper for Drake & Stratton, Hibbing, Minn.

Mollie Fink, stenographer for the Duluth Lithograph company.

We are pleased to learn that Miss Pearl Petz has been promoted to the position of cashier at the Spalding.

The Duluth Business University gives promise of having a good baseball team this season.

THE FAMINE FUND

Total Is Not Far From the Three Thousand Mark.

Two Large Contributions Made During Present Week.

The St. Louis county contribution to the famine sufferers of the Scandinavian peninsula was increased substantially during the past week.

Marcus L. Fay, of Virginia, late Democratic candidate for congress, aided in this week's donations by giving $100 toward the cause, while Mrs. Fay contributed $50.

The total amount contributed now amounts to $2557.95, not including the $285 that was contributed in the Fifth avenue wholesale district and cabled direct to Stockholm several weeks ago.

Progressive Concern.

The Duluth Marble and Granite works, located at 329 East Superior street, is a new enterprise in Duluth which is rapidly meeting with recognition for the superior class of work turned out. The firm manufactures monumental work of all kinds, the partners, Messrs. Koke and Diamond, having had a lifelong experience in the business in the Eastern cities. Mr. Koke makes a specialty of busts for monuments and pastels, his work being favorably commented on by leading critics of the country.

Going Into Larger Offices.

On May 1st the Chicago branch of the Advertising Agency of J. Walter Thompson Company will remove to handsome and commodious offices in the New York Life Building, which are being especially fitted up for its use to accommodate its growing needs.

The volume of business placed with the Chicago office alone is nearly equal to the entire business of any other advertising agency in the West, while the main offices of the Thompson Agency are in New York city, where the major portion of its contracts are handled.

Mr. C. E. Raymond, the Vice President of the company, and its Western Manager, has now been associated with this house for twelve years, and has been continuously engaged in the advertising field for over twenty years.

This Agency is handling at the present time some of the largest and most desirable accounts emanating from the West, and is considered one of the most responsible, reliable and progressive firms in the advertising business.

WORK IS BEGUN

Cleaning Day Develops a General Spirit of Industry.

Mayor Hugo Well Pleased With Evidence of Public Spirit.

This has been a day of strenuous endeavor, and the third annual universal municipal purification ceremony has been a success.

Burning rubbish heaps may fill the atmosphere with an unpleasant odor, and wagon loads of ashes and filth may not present a pleasing landscape view, but backyards and alleys have been improved about 100 per cent in appearance and about 200 per cent in sanitary excellence.

The cleaning-up movement was more generally observed than at any time since the annual purification day was introduced three years ago.

Mayor Hugo made a trip of inspection about the city early this morning and says that it was most gratifying to see the amount of work going on.

The school children were especially industrious, and many of them neglected to wait until this morning, but begun cleaning up as soon as school was out last evening. In fact there was about as much cleaning going on then as there is today, and that is saying a great deal.

Health Commissioner Robinson's arrangements for handling the transportation end of cleaning day proved to be ample and satisfactory, and there was very little loss of time in getting the dirt accumulation hauled away after the yards and alleys were scraped and cleansed of the winter's accumulation.

Despite the fact that the day was generally and industriously observed by all classes and conditions of good citizens, there is still much to do, and the city authorities are anxious to have it understood that it will not be a violation of the law, ordinances or health regulations if the citizens continue the good work whenever they find it convenient.

Members of the Women's Council called on Mayor Hugo this morning and explained the objects of the lecture on city cleanliness to be delivered on Monday evening in the High School Assembly hall by Mrs. Conde Hamlin, of Minneapolis. This lecture will be free, and the mayor is especially anxious that there should be a large attendance.

THE HORSE SALE

Big Crowd Attends the Barrett & Zimmerman Auction.

A Typical Affair With Lots of Fun For Spectators.

Snap! Crack! Crack!

To the crackling rawhide swung gracefully over his head, an an ancient and honorable equine lumberingly pranced into the sawdust ring at the Barrett & Zimmerman auction stables this morning.

It was a new and odious character to old Dobbinwho for a decade or more has been walking ahead of a scoop on a grade, or, perchance, a milk wagon. Heavy hoofed and fetlocked, with dreamy eyes, he made a figure that would have turned the ridiculers of Joseph Sedley green with envy.

With tail braided and tied with ribbons on each of the three pig tails, and with the mane braided and decorated with ribbons, the noble steed was prodded a little and went through some stunts for the crowd of buyers.

"What's all this fuss over me?" the horse thought. "Up to this time the small boys spattered me with mud and the milkman belabored me with a switch, whenever I appeared in public. Some one must be trying to sell me a brick."

As the old timer entered the arena on a hop-skip and a jump, there was a cry and a roar from the auctioneer's box.

"All sound or no sale."

"Broke single or double."

"Single foot, dog trot, pace or run."

"This ain't selling, it's giving away."

"Forty-five, forty-five, forty-five—do I hear no more? Sold."

"Take him away and bring on the next."

Then in rush a pair of grays hitched to the light road buggy. The horses are on their mettle, with heads checked high and their tails and manes primly done up with ribbons.

It is easy to see the animals are unused to this vulgar display. The crowd is pushed up close to them, the smoking and talking makes them restless appearing and they toss their heads, and, perhaps, whine a little.

Then comes the roar from the auctioneer box.

"Do I hear no more? Drive them around and let the folks see how they move. $240? It's a crime to give away horseflesh that way. Single and double broke. Look out."

There is a rush, a clatter of feet and the team which has been driven out comes back on a run and into the barn, scattering the crowd of spectators.

"Two-forty? Why it's scandalous. There's the best road horses in the state of Minnesota, and Minnesota horses, too. Two forty-one, did I hear? That means two forty-two and a half. Only two and a half bids go here. Two forty-two, do I hear no more? Well, sold, but it's like throwing pennies to newsboys," and the auctioneer sighed.

The horse sale was a typical down East auction. The auctioneer was a characteristic Yankee, with chin whiskers, a horseman, anyone could tell, and his blatant voice resounded for a block each way.

In the crowd there was a notable absence of the old horsemen of Duluth. There were some around looking at the sale, but they didn't do any buying, just stood around and minded their own business and listened to the line of jolly from the auctioneer.

Two long lines of stalls were occupied by the groomed and ribboned, spruce looking steeds, some of the dray horse variety and others sleek limbed and agile. They were brought out rapidly and with considerable commotion, the crowd outside keeping in a constant state of excitement from the opening of the sale until the recess at 12:30 o'clock. This afternoon the sale continued and "warmed up" as compared with the morning.

There was a score or more of excellent roadsters in the lot which were disposed of to Duluth people, most of them going to the business men and men having delivery wagons. In doubles, and to persons wanting evengoing driving horses in singles.

A small donkey hitched to a bill board across the street from the stables was a target for many curious eyes, but it was not put up for sale.

The Jean Du Lluth Stock Farm people had three of their massive black percherons, which have been the recipients of awards at the state fair and other fairs, out on the street in front of the barns, where the tests and trials were being made by the horses put up for auction.

"It was a successful sale," said Mr. Zimmermam, "and we disposed of a lot of good stock. There weren't any registered and pedigreed animals on for sale, but there was a lot of genteel and handsome road horses, which will grace Duluth's streets in the future."

The sale closed late this afternoon.

MARTIAL LAW AT CORDOVA.

Madrid, April 18.—Martial law has been proclaimed at Cordova in consequence of the rioting of agricultural laborers who are on a strike. The rioters compelled the shopkeepers to close their stores. Several collisions took place between the rioters and the police and military. The latter eventually quelled the disturbance.

DULUTHIANS TO WITNESS SMELTING

St. Paul, April 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—A number of Duluth people are here to witness a most important experiment which will take place tomorrow. Frank Johnson, of the Johnson Nickel Mining company, claims to have discovered a process whereby magnetic ore, heretofore condemned as worthless, can be smelted and used. He claims to have already made steel out of it, and that it proves to be even better than that made out of other ores. Should his experiments prove successful, it would revolutionize the iron and steel business, because there are millions of tons of magnetite in Cook county which would be used if his process is practical. Among the Duluth people here to witness the experiment are the following: James McCahill, B. G. Segog, J. F. Segog, A. S. Snyder, W. F. King, F. A. Brown, D. P. Jones, B. N. Johnson, A. P. Cook and Fred Ryan.

STILLMAN H. BINGHAM.

MACEDONIA IS ALL READY TO RISE

Rome, April 18.—Private advices from the revolutionary committee in the Balkans state that preparations for an insurrection are ready. The revolutionary committee asserts that the whole of Macedonia will rise and asks for the sympathy of Italy. In government circles here little faith is expressed in a general insurrection, while partial outbreaks are regarded as attempts to force a European intervention. Reccotio Garibaldi, the leader of the Italian volunteers in Greece during the war with Turkey, publishes a letter in which he says that in the Balkan question Italy's program must be to prevent Russia and Austria from advancing and helping the spread of Hellenism and to insure the freedom of the other nationalities under a federal government.

Inflammatory Rheumatism Cured.

William Shaffer, a brakeman, of Dennison, Ohio, was confined to his bed for several weeks with inflammatory rheumatism. "I used many remedies," he says. "Finally I sent to McCaw's drug store for a bottle of Chamberlain's Pain Balm, a which time I was unable to use hand or foot, and in one week's time was able to go to work as happy as a clam." If troubled with rheumatism, give Pain Balm a trial. One application relieves the pain. For sale by Boyce's Drug store.

MORE HOMES NEEDED.

The house problem which confronts Duluth at the present time is serious. The population of the city has been growing so rapidly during the past few years that there is not a desirable house unoccupied and scores of people are unable to secure homes and are forced to live in hotels and boarding houses. There is no doubt that the increased population here would be much greater if residences were obtainable. There are many men now working here who are unable to bring their families from their former homes because they cannot get suitable houses, and many more would come but for the same serious obstacle. Thus the growth of Duluth is retarded by the scarcity of houses. At the same time rents have risen on account of the demand, and the landlords are reaping a harvest. It is evident that if Duluth is to go ahead, something must be done to meet the emergency.

What are most needed at this time are houses of moderate rental and yet possessing most of the modern conveniences of comfortable homes. Men on small or moderate salaries find it extremely difficult now to house their families at rentals that they can afford to pay. It would add greatly to the advantages of Duluth as a place for business enterprice if some thought were given to this question of good houses for the many workers who make up the mass of the population. There are men of wealth in Duluth who should show their interest in the welfare of the city and their confidence in its stability and future growth by investing some of their money in cottages and terraces built substantially and yet in attractive and comfortable style. The suggestion has been made that the wholesale and other business firms in the city that have a large number of men in their employ should form a building company and enter upon the construction of homes adapted to the wants of their employes. This should relieve the situation to a great extent. Why is it not a good idea? The Herald would urge upon our business men careful consideration of this plan.

A NAVY GENERAL STAFF.

Now that the army has succeeded in getting its general staff, which will assume its duties next August, the navy is anxious to have one also. Influential officers have been at work quietly for some time perfecting plans for the scheme and trying to induce Secretary Moody to favor its adoption. The plan for a general staff for the navy contemplates the abolition of the title of the bureau of navigation and assigns the performance of its duties to the general staff without transgressing upon the powers or authority of other naval bureaus. The necessity for congressional legislation rests in the statutory authorization of a chief of the general staff and subordinate officers who shall rank appropriate with their responsibilities for the efficiency of the personnel and of the fleet in commission. These officers shall direct, under the secretary of the navy the military affairs of the fleet and be responsible to him for its readiness for war. The efficient administration of great organizations requires a natural subdivision of the various duties under responsible heads, while a co-ordination of these several subdivisions under a single head is equally necessary. This can be done by means of a general staff in the navy without interfering with the work and responsibility of bureaus, other than that of navigation, and without in any degree diminishing the power of the secretary of the navy.

To him the chief of the general staff will be directly responsible in the same sense and to the same degree as is now the chief of the bureau of navigation. The latter at present has charge of numerous subjects of a diversified character. He is, for instance, among other duties, expected to advise the secretary in the matter of the assignment to duty of commissioned officers, to exercise a supervision over the education of midshipmen and the post graduate instruction of officers, to provide for the enlistment and distribution of men, to conduct petty officers' schools, to arrange for the training of the enlisted force, to prepare a ship's complement of officers and men, to keep the records of the commissioned and enlisted personnel, to organize fleets and squadrons, to mobilize and distribute the floating force, to provide target practice and drills, to superintend maneuvers, including those with the army; to make the plans for furnishing a fleet with all necessary supplies, to provide the naval war college with its means of investigation and research, to acquire information of value in service matters, to study and develop strategy and tactics; in fact, to have an intimate knowledge of and take the responsibility for all that relates to the discipline and distribution of the personnel and the efficient preparation of the fleet for war.

Theoretically these plans seem all right; whether they would work to good advantage in practice is another matter. The naval officers should not hurry. Let the army try the plan of a general staff for a few years and, if successful, the navy could then adopt it. Just now the present arrangements seem all right.

THE POSTAL SCANDAL.

The postoffice scandal grows apace and the department officials at Washington realize the necessity of prompt action, not only to detect the miscreants who have brought dishonor on their calling, but to do away with the feeling of distrust which is rapidly growing concerning the postoffice administration. Reports from New York yesterday show that men with influence are able to secure advance lists from the department and turn them to their advantage. This is a condition that ought not to exist, and existing, is a disgrace to the officials in charge. According to the reports sent out from Washington the present investigation will be a thorough one. Whether it will be or not remains to be seen.

It is said that the overhauling will extend to every branch of the postal service, and if there is any foundation for the sensational rumors that have been current for the past few months it is certain to be discovered. Mr. Bristow, fourth assistant postmaster general, has the pick of the corps of inspectors engaged in the inquiry, and he has been given rein by Postmaster General Payne to investigate every charge, anonymous or otherwise, that may be brought to the attention of the department. For this reason the investigation may continue for several weeks. There is an immense amount of data to be examined, and Mr. Bristow said that it would be impossible to say when he would be ready to submit his conclusions to the postmaster general. As the matter stands now, no consideration will be given to the question of the removal of any official, neither will any official under investigation be suspended. So far nothing has developed to warrant any criminal action. This will be changed if, in the progress of the inquiry, it develops that any official is criminally liable.

It is entirely up to the leading postoffice officials. If they want a thorough investigation, it will be had. If not, there will be a whitewash.

THE WORLD'S WEALTH.

No one knows what the total wealth of the world amounts to, but there have been some pretty shrewd guessers on the amount. It has been generally estimated to reach $400,000,000,000, but some statisticians are of the opinion that is is rather an underestimate of the actual amount of money and property in the civilized and semi-civilized lands. Of the great total the greater part is owned by Americans and Europeans. According to Eugene Parsons in Gunter's Magazine, the United States has somewhere near $100,000,000,000, or about one-fourth of the whole. The United Kingdom is the richest country of Europe, its wealth being estimated at £11,806,000,000, or £302 per capita. Of the total, England's share was £10,062,000,000; Scotland's, £1,094,000,000; Ireland's, £650,000,000. In American money, Great Britain's wealth in 1895 was $56,668,800,000. A recent estimate makes it $59,000,000,000, or $1442 per capita (in 1901.) The annual income of England's population is said to be $5,600,000,000, while the yearly savings are $1,948,000,000. It should be remembered that a large amount of British capital is also invested in the colonies of the empire and in foreign lands.

France is the next richest nation of Europe. Mulhall estimated its wealth in 1895 at £9,690,000,000, or £252 per capita. A recent estimate of France's wealth makes it $48,000,000,000, or $1257 per capita (1901.) According to Mulhall, Germany's wealth in 1895 was £8,052,000,000, or £156 per capita. Prussia's share was more than half (£4,040,000,000); Bavaria's £949,000,000; Saxony's, £456,000,000; Wurtemberg's £370,000,000; while the smaller German states had £1,337,000,000. According to a more recent estimate, Germany's wealth is $40,000,000,000, or $709 per capita (1901). German money loaned or invested abroad amounts to $8,000,000,000 or more. Russia's wealth in 1895, as Mulhall estimated it, amounted to £6,425,000,000, or £61 pounds per capita. A recent estimate places Russia's wealth at $32,000,000,000 or about $296 per capita (estimating the population in 1901 at 108,000,000). The other ten countries of Europe are named in the order of their financial importance: Austria-Hungary, whose wealth was estimated by Mulhall in 1895 at $21,649,600,000; Italy, $15,168,000,000; Spain, $11,424,000,000; Scandinavia, $6,220,800,000; the Danubian states, $4,924,800,000; Belgium, $4,742,400,000; Holland, $4,224,000,000; Switzerland, $2,361,600,000; Portugal, $1,978,800,000; Greece, $1,065,600,000.

From Mulhall's figures it appears that the English are the best off financially of any people in the world, with the Scotch next. The four other countries that have most wealth per capita are Australia, France, the United States and Denmark. In 1895 the wealth per capita in the following countries was: England, $1584; Scotland, $1257; Australia, $1228; France, $1210; United States, $1123; Denmark, $1104.

There were six other countries whose wealth per capita exceeded $720: Canada, $940; Holland, $878; Switzerland, $787; Germany, $748; Belgium, $739; Argentina, $739. Among the great nations the percentage of debt to wealth is lowest in the United States, being less than 1 per cent, while that of France is the highest, over 12 per cent. After England and Scotland, Australia is the richest country in the world in proportion to its population. Mulhall figured its wealth per capita in 1895 as $1229. He reckoned the total annual earnings of the seven colonies (including New Zealand) at $1,030,000,000, or an average of $245 per capita, against $211 per capita in the United States, and $173 in Canada. In proportion to its population, the value of manufactured articles in Australia is greater than in any other country in the world. The total production in primary industries, according to Coghlan's "Statistical Account of Australasia" (1900) was £104,254,000 in 1899, or £23 2-5 per capita, while the industrial production of other countries per capita was approximately as follows: Canada, £16¼; United States, £14 2-3; France, £11½; Denmark, £10¼; Sweden, £10; Belgium, £8 4-5; Germany, £8 2-3; Austria, £8 1-3; Spain, £8 1-5; United Kingdom, £8. The national debt of Australasia in 1900 was £1,183,655,000.

The plucky girl bookkeeper at Altoona, Pa., who saved $500 in envelopes from a robber by throwing the envelopes into the waste-basket where he did not think to look when he ransacked the office, should at least have her salary raised.

No wonder Russell Sage has decided to quit business. It is stated he has lost $40,000 lately in bad loans.

TENEMENT HOUSE REFORM.

The passage of the bill by the New York legislature amending the law in regard to tenement houses is a signal victory for the cause of tenement house reform. The amending bill, introduced by Commissioner De Forest, was passed by the assembly last week. The opponents of the law made a concerted raid for its repeal, under the guise of amending legislation, immediately after the legislature assembled. Ten bills were introduced, every one of which was aimed to weaken the law so as practically to nullify its effectiveness. The opposition came chiefly from Brooklyn. It was asserted that the provisions of the law were so stringent that the building of small tenements was unprofitable. The agitation was led by certain building interests, which found themselves hampered by the act in their efforts to pile up profits at the expense of the public health. For some time the outcome of the contest appeared doubtful, but the emphatic support of the law by the metropolitan press turned the scale against the repealers. The friends of the law recognized, however, the need of amending it in some particulars, and Commissioner De Forest prepared a bill embodying the charges approved by his department, the purpose was to "adjust the law, so far as is strictly consistent with its fundamental purpose, to building conditions, particularly in Brooklyn and the outlying boroughs, so as to encourage the construction of small tenements at low rentals." It would have been a serious misfortune for the cause of tenement house reform if the splendid work accomplished by the Tenement House commission of 1900, of which Jacob Riis recently told a Duluth audience, had been undone by the present legislature. Such an outcome would have been exceedingly discouraging to workers for housing reform everywhere. As it is, the admirable tenement code of New York still stands as a model for other states to copy.

TREATMENT OF THE JACKIES.

It is really refreshing to learn from the dispatches from Washington that it is realized that the treatment of the Jack Tars of the navy, which has prevailed for, lo, these many years, must be modified and their worth more fully recognized by the powers that be. The great increase in the number of desertions has had an alarming effect on the department. They are getting heavier and heavier every year. According to the last records of the department they average one per year for every seven men in the service. This does not take into consideration a great many men who are dismissed because of bad behavior and inadaptability to the service. The Germans have observed the large number of desertions from our service, and have commented on it as a sign of weakness in the navy. It is known that this matter has given the president some personal concern, and it was at his suggestion that the general board, of which Admiral Dewey is the head, was requested to consider the subject. This board has been looking into the desertion records pretty thoroughly, and has come to the conclusion that a large percentage of them are caused by discontent on the part of enlisted men. The admonitions that have gone out to officers in this connection are not in the shape of orders, but are more in the nature of suggestions. Officers are urged to exercise all possible leniency consistent with the rules of good discipline, in handling bluejackets and marines. These directions are intended especially for the younger officers, who are only recently out from Annapolis and who have an exaggerated sense of their own importance and authority.

The type of the enlisted man has changed greatly from what it was ten, twenty and thirty years ago. In those days there were plenty of professional sailormen—rough fellows with little education, who spent their entire lives on the water and were accustomed to hard knocks. It was the custom then to order Jackey about with very scant ceremony, and officers were not over-particular in their language and treatment in giving commands. But the enlisted man of that period was invariably a fierce drinker and general roustabout, and if he was not handled with a sharp rein he would give all kinds of trouble. The idea was to keep the men constantly at work, allowing no time for idling or loafing, for trouble was bound to follow as soon as there was nothing for the men to do. In this way the American bluejacket led a rather hard life, but he was used to it and expected nothing else. The present day enlisted man is of an altogether different type. Since sailing vessels have gone out of vogue, the genuine Jack Tars are getting very scarce. Consequently the navy has to go to the plains and farms for recruits and train them to the ways of shipboard. They are green lads for the most part who have never seen the ocean. If they stick out their terms of apprentice they go to sea in regularly commissioned vessels, when their real troubles begin. Many of them are from families of eminent respectability and have been accustomed to generous and considerate treatment all their lives. The boys of this stripe are usually badly shocked when they run against an officer who has been accustomed to handling thick-skinned Jackies. The arbitrary and domineering actions of some officers are too much for the youngsters from the plains, and if they do not openly resent ill treatment they look for an opportunity to desert and leave at the first opportunity. There is a great improvement in the moral tone of the men who enlist today and the officers should realize it. If they do not they should be replaced by officers who do.

More protests are being made against the carrying out of the contract of paving East Superior street with asphalt, and several suits to overturn the assessment have been started in the district court this week. In view of the general opposition that is manifested by the property-owners to the asphalt contract it is strange that this sort of pavement was even ordered by the council. Indeed, the question may be fairly asked, how were sufficient signatures secured to the petition favoring asphalt? It is not surprising that the property-owners object to paying $2.45 a square yard for a pavement that costs only $1.98 in St. Paul.

"Isn't there some talk of Hanna?" asked the reporter, speaking of the presidency. "Tut, tut," replied Senator Hanna, "that is forbidden fruit." And thus Caesar again puts aside the crown.

One of the epigrams in a play that was written by a New York actress in twenty-four hours begins, "I have read somewhere that"—probably all the others should have been similarly introduced.

THE WEATHER.

HOTEL GOSSIP.

"Oh, what's in a name!" some people exlaim.
But we note amid antics of sorrow
Limburger tagged "rose," conveys to the nose
Information that there's been a borrow
So when millionaires
Go south with their shares,
Concealed, for a chance
On Pierp Morgan to prance;
And get fooled by the baggage.
They'll remember the adage,
And know J. P. M. 's our John P. Morrow.

To be mistaken for John P. Morrow, here in Duluth, would be such an honor as few could ever attain.

For Mr. Morrow to be involved in a mistaken identity complication with the lordly Morgan is a proud distinction.

To show the exaltedness of being taken for Morgan in one step would dazzle the faculties and whiten the hair to a degree that has been noticed in and about the Spalding hotel all winter; whence the comparative steps to show the attainment of Mr. Morrow.

Who is Mr. Morrow? you say. Fie, if you are only a guest at the Spalding, do not show your ignorance.

We will slap you on the wrist with father's business card. For Mr. Morrow is the whole thing in Duluth, just like Mr. Morgan is in New York and Two Harbors.

Anyway Mr. Morrow just returned from Havana, and Mr. Morgan was there at the same time. Mr. Morrow is home now, and maybe Mr. Morgan is. But let that pass.

Mr. Morrow's visit to Havana had been a pleasant one and he was about to return early last week, when he discovered that Mr. Morgan was to be a passenger on the same boat. The newspapers said he was to go to Miami, Fla., on that boat, and newspapers generally know what they're talking about, so Mr. Morrow anticipated a chance for a good look at the multi-milti-man, and perchance an opportunity of selling him a little Highland property.

If Frank Buell had been there he'd probably have accomplished it.

As it was he packed up his trunks and ordered them taken aboard. He followed or rather went aboard and waited for the baggage to follow, and leaned over the rail looking at the dancing sunlit waves rippling up on to the golden sands of the harbor bar, wishing he could keep to the tall weeds for awhile longer, like he would if he was managing editor of the world, as J. Pierpont is reputed to be.

He was suddenly roused from his reverie by a hue and cry. The hue was white, caused by the cloud of dust that rose in the street leading to the steamboat docks.

As the white speck approached nearer he wished he was off the boat and nestling in a crevise in the stone hills back of Duluth, where cyclones do not break through.

Looking closer he saw a pack of capitalists and promoters pamming down the street behind his baggage. They were there to see J. Pierpont Morgan, and the magnate wouldn't be seen while on his vacation. They figured that if they got him on a steamboat they could get at him and make him take water or throw him overboard.

On the eight or nine pieces of baggage, painted in large white letters, was the design: "J. P. M." It looked like Morgan, but it was Morrow.

Down came the cavalcade and the promoters never took their eyes off the baggage, and when it went on board, then got tickets and came. Then they all stood near the rail and waited.

Pierpont never reached the pier.

The boat sailed without him.

And the promoters who had put up cash fares to make the hurried trip were sore. There were fifty of them, and they all got fooled.

The joke was not on J. Pierpont.

It was not on Mr. Morrow, either.

THE GRASSCUTTER.

The thrifty man looks at his lawn.
"That grass," he says, "I'll cut at dawn."
And this is how it looks, when o'er
The lawn he runs his dull lawn-mower:

"I see," says he, "it's merely bent."
And back he goes, though well-nigh spent:

"Well, I'll be switched! Confound such hay!"
He cries, "I'll go the other way."
Grown desperate now, the shears he snatches
And cuts the grass—in gobs and patches:

Only to find next day, at dawn,
A dandelion-spangled lawn:

Reflections of a Bachelor.

New York Press: The meanest trick that a railroad can play on a girl is to turn on a light just before the train goes through a tunnel.

Women smoke the way boys swear—without appreciating how much fun they could get out of it if they knew how to do it.

A woman can win a man by making fine strawberry shortcake; to hold him she has got to know how to broil steak and bake bread.

It is an indescribable instinct that leads a girl to put on her best pair of stockings in the morning when her skirt is going to get caught on a barb wire fence in the afternoon.

When a woman makes an unexpected call on another it is a sign that she has heard something disagreeable said about her and would like a chance to tell it to her as a friend.

DEAR UNSELFISH DAN.

'Most everyone that knew our Dan
Agreed he was the kindest man
They ever see. He had the knack
Of takin' on his own broad back
The burdens an' the slaps and pokes
Belonged by rights to other folks.
If anyone was in distress
An' went to Dan, he'd say: "I guess
We'll pull you out all right; let's see,
Suppose you leave all that to me."

Was nothin' finer than the way
He cared for poor old Uncle Jay.
Who was the most unlucky han'
For havin' trouble with his lan',
'Bout taxes, or the early spring
Plowin', or some other thing
That plumb upsot the poor old man.
Then, in the nick o' time, our Dan
Steps in, and says, "Oho!" says he
Suppose you leave all that to me."

It got to be that Uncle Jay
He couldn't git along no way
Without our Dan, an' our Dan he
Jest cared fur him unselfishly.
An' when the old man come to die
Our Dan, o' course, was right close by.
Says Uncle Jay: "I'm worrit, Dan,
'Bout what's to come of all my lan'
An' all my money out at loan,
An' in the bank, when I am gone."
Then Dan, he ups an' says, says he:
"Suppose you leave all that to me."

TORN STAMPS OUTLAWED.

New York Times: There will be general surprise at the announcement by the postoffice department in its new book of instruction that stamps accidentally torn in two cannot be used for the payment of postage. Most of us can remember occasions when, with more or less care, we pasted the parts of a torn stamp on the letter, and in such cases, usually, if not always, the letter has reached its destination and made no trouble either for the sender or the recipient. So as a matter of fact, and whatever the department may say, torn stamps can, or at least could, be used. And why should they not? It is considerable, of course, that by the exercise of a vast amount of labor and ingenuity ten stamps could be turned into eleven that would pass the inspection of an overworked cancellating clerk, with the consequent loss to the government of two cents, but it is not conceivable that this crime would be committed by anybody else than a lunatic miser or oftener than once in a generation. On the other hand the frequency with which we all have only one stamp, and that a torn one, is very great, and a large amount of utterly needless inconvenience would be caused if it were necessary in such cases to make a journey to the postoffice, or even to the nearest drug store. It is the business of the postal authorities to render correspondence easy, not difficult, to do the work for which they take the people's money, not to find excuses for leaving it undone until they can get more money. The matter is a very small one, but it is one of those trifles that creates a lot of annoyance and irritation—or might if the department was as strict in practice as it now says it is in theory.

Now Will Dewey Be Good?

Philadelphia Record: Most of the accounts of the comparative strength of the American and German navies are mere tales for the marines. THE WOMAN WITH A BABY.

'Mid the herd of human porkers crowded on the trolley car
All is selfishness and jostle, making age and sex no bar;
Men collapse in seats and stay there, letting shrinking ladies stand
With a look of indignation—and a strap in either hand.
Yet there's one thing that, you've noticed, never fails to make a stir—
When a woman with a baby comes they all make room for her.

I have sat in stuffy coaches on a crowded railway train
Listning to case-hardened travelers who declared with might and main
That they'd see the railroad company in hades's fiercest heat
Long before they'd even think of giving any one a seat.
Then, ere scarce they'd ceased their boasting they would rise without demur—
For a woman with a baby; they must
all make room for her.

There is something sweet, Madonna-like in pictures such as that,
And it makes the lowest ruffian feel like taking off his hat;
For it bears him back to babyhood when loving mother arms
Closely clung to him and kept off e'en
the least of earth's alarms.
So, no matter what his station, he will evermore defer
To a woman with a baby—he has reverence for her.

Once I dreamed I stood in heaven, just inside the pearly gate,
While to every new arrival good St.
Peter said: "You're late;
For the places are all taken and the harps are all in use.
Golden streets are just so crowded that
I had to call a truce."
Then a little, tired-out woman lagged a baby into view.
And St. Peter said: "We're full up, but we'll find a place for you."

Profitable Trade.

Philadelphia Press: The negotiations with Cuba for naval coaling stations are said to have resulted in leaving the Isle of Pines to the Cuban government. That is quite probable. The United States could claim this island under the treaty with Spain, but that would have created ill-feeling, and the United States has no particular need of the island. It might well be given to Cuba in payment for the coaling stations.

Old Soldiers at the Front.

Minneapolis Times: The old soldier is still at the front in politics and the old Union soldier has no monopoly of this distinction either. Though the civil war ended thirty-eight years ago, 29 per cent of the senate and 18 per cent of the house fought on one side or the other in that conflict. It is an interesting fact and one showing clearly that the war is over, that thirty of the seventy veterans in the house were in the confederate army.

PRAISE OF DUNN

For His Services to the State While State Auditor.

Closer Inspection of Iron Ore Output Is Recommended.

FROM A STAFF CORRESPONDENT

St. Paul, April 18.—(Spcial to The Herald.)—The sub-committee of the house committee on public accounts and expenditures has prepared a report on its examination of the state auditor's office, in which it praises Former State Auditor Dunn for his services to the state, recommends closer inspection of the output of iron mines on state lands, and urges sharper collection of delinquent taxes due the state.

The committee, with the aid of an expert accountant, found that there are outstanding taxes and stumpages and mineral land accounts due the state amounting to $798,829.27, as follows: Railroads, $698,369.11; telegraph and telephone companies, $55,574.84; express companies, $11,506.73; stumpage accounts, $3561.14; individual stumpage, $25,162.45; mineral lands, $2475; total, $798,829.27. The committee decommends that the public examiner investigate thoroughly into these accounts, and that if they are actually due the state, that he be requested to take such steps as are necessary to enforce their collection.

The report is accompanied by several exhibits, one of which sets forth a number of payments upon vouchers not made out as the law requires, and defective in one or more ways. A letter from the state auditor requiring subvouchers is presented, and the committee recommends that all state departments comply with thees requirements. An account of settlements of timber trespass cases the committee found to be a very difficult subject, but from its information it came to the conclusion that the settlements made by the auditor were to the best interests of the state. Stumpage settlements from 1887 to 1894 are $1,109,662.85, and from 1895 to 1902 the figure is $1,429,630, and with outstanding permits sold in 1901-2 of $750,000, the total for the second period is $2,179,630.90. The committee found $626,861.71 due in taxes from different counties to the state, nearly every county in the state being behind. The committee recommends that county auditors be requested by the state auditor to take immediate steps to bring about an adjustment of accounts. There are also a number of school districts which have become delinquent in the payment of interest upon loans from the state. The state treasurer is asked to enforce the payment of all such delinquent interest.

Many differences between the balances of all the appropriations, ledger accounts, etc., on the auditor's books and the treasurer's books, are found, and it is recommended that the adjusment of these accounts, and the differences therein, be referred to the public examiner's office.

According to the state auditor's books, the unpaid warrants on March 1, 1903, were $39,759.95, while the accountant's verification of such unpaid warrants appears to be only $36,577.42, leaving a difference of $3182.23. This matter, the committee says, should be referred, and it is so recommended, to the public examiner for a thorough investigation and reconcillation of such outstanding warrants.

One exhibit shows that the state has received, between 1895 and 1903, $130,414.40 from mineral lands, including $52,900 on contracts for the purchase of mineral lands, $19,750 from leases and $57,764.40 from royalties. The committee found that there is no supervision or inspection on the part of the state over the output of iron mines upon state lands. The present holders of state mining contracts send in sworn statements as to the number of tons of iron ore that have been mined and shipped for a given period, which report is accepted by the state land commissioner. On this subject the report says:

"Up to the present time the state has not verified or inspected such shipments. No appropriation has been made by the legislature for that purpose. In our judgment, the time has arrived when this work should be looked after. The state has millions of dollars' worth of such property, and shipments will soon begin from a great many mines. We recommend that an adequate amount be allowed to the state land commissioner to enable him to properly supervise and carefully inspect the shipping of ore from lands belonging to the state trust funds.

"In conclusion, we would recommend that our findings be carried out, according to our report, by the various departments.

"Your committee further finds that Mr. Dunn is also entitled to credit for the manner in which he handled the settlement of the Little Falls & Dakota railroad grant; his construction of the law saved the state 70,912 acres of swamp land worth at least $400,000. It was also through the persistence of Mr. Dunn that the decree of the United States circuit court which gave to the Duluth & Iron Range railroad 4,664.16 acres of state institutions' land, was amended and the land in question reconveyed to the state. It is estimated that the state will receive in royalties from iron ore on one of these forties $2,000,000."

BRIEF TELEGRAMS.

The International Brotherhood of Paper Makers at Neenah, Wis., have refused all offers of compromise in the struggle for fewer working hours, and a strike of 7000 men will begin this evening in nine of the paper mills, the men say. The strike will be confined to mills that manufacture and print fibre papers.

Albert and Marvin William, brothers, aged 4 and 6, were carried over the dam in Grand river at Grand Lodge, Mich., and drowned. The boys were in a boat and lost their paddle.

Oil properties, involving between $6,000,000 and $7,000,000, in the Trenton rock fields in Indiana, are to be transferred to a French syndicate under a deal closed Friday. The syndicate will operate with the United States Petroleum company and the National Consolidated company, and will control most of the crude oil in Ohio and Indiana.

W. W. Heffelfinger, of Minnnesota, to whom the president has tendered the vacant position on the board of civil service commissioners, called at the office of the commission at Washington Friday. He said that he had not yet decided whether he would accept the appointment, but that he would be able to announce his decision very soon.

Samuel D. Pollock, representative in the legislature from the Fifth district, Kansas, was arrested for embezzling $964 from the United States government. The theft was committed when Pollock was assisant postmaster in the Arkansas City office, and was done by tampering with money orders and records. Pollock confessed and exonerated everyone else connected with the office. The thefts were committed beween May 25 and July 9, 1902.

Robin Hood

His aim was not surer than that of Hood's Sarsaparilla, which always hits the disease.

Be sure to take

Hood's Sarsaparilla

This Spring—it will rid you of that humor that makes you break out, that takes away your appetite and strength and makes you feel sick.

Take Hood's Pills, also, if you are bilious or constipated.

E. S. Bertschie, Hannibal, Ohio, says: "I took Hood's Sarsaparilla in the spring and it purified my blood and gave me a good appetite, and made me feel much better."

Maggie Perkins, Yale, Ills., says: "We have used Hood's Sarsaparilla in our family for years and have always found it as represented, a good spring medicine."

Ralph Rust, Willis, Mich., says: "This spring pimples covered my face and troubled me very much about shaving. I took a bottle of Hood's Sarsaparilla and the pimples are all gone."

Mrs. William Howell, Quogue, N. Y., says: "I have been using Hood's Sarsaparilla in my family for years as a spring medicine. Have found none equal to it."

THE LABOR WORLD

Three of the Four Local Strikes Are About Settled.

Benefit Dance For the Striking Machinists To Be Given.

Meetings next week:

Stonemasons' union, Monday, 302 West Superior street.

Building Trades' council, Monday, 18 West Superior street.

Painters' union meets Tuesday, 18 West Superior street.

Carpenters' union on Tuesday, 18 West Superior street.

Building laborers on Thursday, 221 West Superior street.

Plumbers' union meets Thursday, 18 West Superior street.

Stationary engineers, Thursday, 31 West Superior street.

Trades' assembly on Friday at 18 West Superior street.

Lathers' union on Friday, at 18 West Superior street.

Three of the four local labor strikes are in a fair way to be settled.

The marine firemen are going back to work today on a wage basis of $47.50 a month until Oct. 1 and $55 a month after that until the close of navigation.

The strike was ordered on the strength of a refusal of $52.50 a month and $65 after Oct. 1. This ends one of the most prominent strikes of the year so far.

The 300 members of the Freight Handlers' union are still out for that 40 cents an hour instead of 30 cents, but there is a report current to the effect that a settlement may be reached early next week.

A conference was held late today between the strikers and the freight handling contractors of the Northern Pacific company and this meeting may result in an ultimate adjustment.

* * *

The strike of the electrical workers will also probably be settled early next week. The members have been seeking $3.25 for an eight-hour working day and there are several minor points in dispute as to working rules, and the matter will be left to a board of arbitration—two representatives from the boss electricians and two from the journeymen, the four to select a neutral fifth member.

* * *

The strike of the machinists at the Clyde works is about the only local labor difficulty that seems as far away from a settlement as ever. It is a quietly conducted and well-ordered strike and both sides seem confident.

A benefit dance will be given for the strikers in the near future and judging from the general interest in the strike among union men it will be a record breaker.

The non-union men working in the Clyde shops are sleeping there now and are being fed at the Bethel despite the rports that the Bethel, like the Lake avenue restaurants, had decided not to serve them.

In view of the fact that a number of Duluth manufacturing concerns, including the Clyde Iron works, are members of the National Association of Manufacturers, resolutions adopted at the New Orleans convention this week defining the attitude of the association toward organized labor will be of considerable local interest.

The resolutions were as follows:

We, the members of the National Association of Manufacturers, United States of America, in convention assembled at New Orleans, do hereby declare the following principles which shall govern this association in its work in connection with problems of labor:

1. Fair dealing is the fundamental and basic principle on which relations between employes and employers should rest.

2. The National Association of Manufacturers is not opposed to organizations of labor as such, but it is unalterably opposed to boycotts, blacklists and other illegal acts of interference with the personal liberty of employer and employe.

3. No person should be refused employment or in any way discriminated against on account of membership or non-membership in any labor organization, and there should be no discrimination against or interference with any employe who is not a member of a labor organization by members of such organizations.

4. With due regard to contracts, it is the right of the employe to leave his employment whenever he sees fit, and it is the right of the employer to discharge any employe when he sees fit.

5. Employers must be free to employ their work people at wages mutually satisfactory, without interference or dictation on the part of the individuals or organizations not directly parties to such contracts.

6. Employers must be unmolested and unhampered in the management of their business, and in the use of any methods or systems of pay which are just and equitable.

7. No limitation should be placed upon the opportunities of any person to learn any trade to which he or she may be adapted.

8. The association disapproves absolutely of strikes and lockouts and favors an equitable adjustment of all differences between employers and employes.

9. The National Association of Manufacturers pledges itself to oppose any and all legislation not in accord with the foregoing declaration.

J. H. Dorsey is a new representative of the Barbers' union in the Federated Trades' assembly.

Hon. A. Murphy has been elected secretary of the Typographical union, succeeding Miss M. E. Van Auken, who recently resigned.

Ole Larson, the well-known member of the Steamfitters' union, says that there should be a much better attendance of delegates at assembly meetings.

LABOR NOTES.

Bakers and Confectioners' International union convention, at Buffalo, is consiaing issuing an ultimatum to the crackers' trust to unionize all its plants or face a strike. The factory in Chicago is now a union one.

Chicago carpenters get 50 cents an hour.

Cleveland plumbers won the 8-hour day with $4 pay.

In Indiana the average work day is a little over nine hours.

The labor unions at Niagara Falls are planning to erect a labor temple.

Montreal bookbinders struck for a $8 to $12 a week scale and fifty-four hours work.

London, Ont., firemen are asking for a ten per cent increase in their salaries.

There are nearly 125,000 miners in Belgium, not 10 per cent of whom make a dollar a day.

The standard rate of wages for bricklayers and plasterers' laborers in England is $7 a week.

Union printers at Waco, Tex., have presented a new wage scale calling for a substantial increase.

Steamfitters at New Haven, Conn., will demand 53.50 a day, an increase of 50 cents, after May 1.

The International Brotherhood of Paperhangers has adopted a general plan for raising a $100,000 defense fund.

In Austria no trade union, as such, can engage in a strike. Strikes must be conducted by secret organizations.

San Francisco's tanners' strike has been settled. Then men gained the half time demanded.

It is probable that the state of Michigan will this year establish a board of arbitration on the lines of the Massachusetts board.

In less han three weeks the boot and shoe workers' stamp has been granted to factories in Massachusetts employing 10,000 hands.

Journeymen butchers of Pasadena, Cal., have organized and will demand a shorter work day. They now average sixteen hours a day.

Miners at Nanaimo, B. C., have affiliated with the Western Federation of Miners, in direct antagonism to their old leader, Ralp Smith, M.P.

By referendum vote it has been decided that the 1902 convention of the brotherhood of electrical workers shall be held in Salt Lake City Sept. 14.

The National Trades' congress of Canada has issued an appeal to organized labor to join with it in advancing the interests of Canadian labor.

Montreal, Canada, journeymen bakers have decided to make apprentices serve three years at the trade, and that they shall be controlled by the union.

Newspapers workers in Des Moines, Ia., will form a union and affiliate with the Typographical and other organizations in the Trades' and Labor assembly.

A franchise was recently granted to a street railway company at Zanesville, O., providing for a two and one-half cent fare for workingmen at certain hours.

The brewery workers of Columbus, O., have refused to accept the A. F. and L. decision that brewery engineers and firemen belong to their respective craft unions instead of the Brewery Workers' union, and they have struck.

There is great popular excitement in Russia over the law introduced by the government to make striking a penal offence. The government has inadvertently given a great advantage to the socialist party by the introduction of the bill.

It is asserted that the recent parades of the London, Eng., unemployed that have drawn so much money from the pockets of the charitable onlookers have been largely composed of newly arrived allen paupers instead of unfortunate British workingmen.

The United Railways and Electric company raised the wages of its 2000 motormen and conductors. The increase amounts to an average of about 9 per cent. The scale is graduated so that the wages run from $1.86 to $2 a day, according to the length of time the employe has been in the service.

The United Brotherhood of Carpenters and Joiners of America now number 165,000 enrolled members, in 1500 local unions located in 960 cities and towns throughout the United States and Canada. It is the second largest labor organization in the world, being only surpassed by the United Mine Workers of America. It is a benevolent organization as well as a trade union, and has paid in sick, death and disability benefits more than $3,000,000.

The Greater New York of the Brotherhood of Carpenters in Brooklyn, the Bronx and Richmond and Queens counties have made demand for increased scales of wages for their members, to commence being paid from Monday, May 4. In Brooklyn and the Bronx a wage scale of $4 a day is required, in Richmond $3.60 a day, and in Queens $3.50 a day. No demand will be made this year for increased wages in the carpenters' unions in Manhattan.

The minimum wage law, providing that unskilled labor shall not be employed for less than 20 cents an hour by counties, cities and towns, and providing a fine or imprisonment for any person or corporation doing public work to employ unskilled for less than that wage, was held to be unconstitutional by the Indiana supreme court. In an opinion written by Judge Dowling it was held that the law interferes with the freedom of contract, and that the legislature can no more fix the price of labor than it can the price of bricks. Judges Jordan and Gillet concur in the facts, but not in the reasoning. The appeal grew out of a suit of a laborer named Frank Street, who, in the Wayne circuit court, sued the Varney Electrical company for 20 cents an hour. The company refused to pay more than 15 cents an hour.

Labor legislation will be the feature of the coming session of the British Columbia parliament. Provincial Secretary McInnes puts forward "An act for the prevention of strikes and lockouts," designed as an improvement unpon both the New Zealand and similar legislation, and Sir William Mullick's suggested federal law, several of its features being adapted from the findings of the anthracite commission. The bill is to compel employers and employes to submit their differences to an impartial conciliation board before they can legally cause either a strike or a lockout.

A re-enactment of last session's disallowed Chinese and Japanese exclusion measures, with this notable difference: In last year's legislation Chinese and Japanese were jointly considered. This year the bills refer exclusively to Chinese. As for the Japanese, a foreshadowed measure standing in the premier's name is understood to provide a remedy only to be made applicable by order in council, and this to be withheld so long as Japan retains her restricted immigration law.

COLDS

LOSS TO WORKMEN

A Prominent Labor Leader Discusses An Issue.

Gives His Own Experience as an Employee in the Railroad Shops—Couldn't Afford to be Sick.

Mr. A. C. Holmes, of Oneonta, N. Y., an employee of the railroad shops at that place, is well known in labor circles and his own experience, recently related, deserves the attention of every workingman who has lost time and money on account of sickness. Mr. Holmes said:

"Two years ago I had a severe attack of grip, which left me in a bad condition. I was so weak that I frequently had to lay off for two or three days at a time during a period of four or five months. I could not very well afford to do this but there was no help for it—I simply was not able to work. I lost flesh, got nervous, had awful headaches and felt worn out all the time.

"I had read of some remarkable cures made by Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People in cases like mine and so decided to try them. A few boxes helped me and I think I took ten altogether. They drove all traces of the disease out of my system and made me feel like a different man. I have told many of my acquaintances about Dr. Williams' Pink Pills and what they did for me."

After an attack of the grip there is always left behind some troublesome effects. Often these are worse than the disease itself and seem to baffle all efforts of physicians. Health is shattered—the blood becomes poor, the flesh falls away, the sufferer grows nervous and irritable, and even slight exertion causes shortness of breath. These are dagerous symptoms and indicate that the system is in a state that invites pneumonia, bronchitis or even consumption. Dr. Williams' Pink Pills for Pale People, however, will not only quickly restore the health after an attack of the grip and expel the lingering germs but, working upon the blood, will render the system proof against the disease. In hundreds of cases just as remarkable as that of Mr. Holmes it has been shown that Dr. Williams' Pink Pills have surely accomplished this result.

At all drug stores or sent postpaid, on receipt of price, 50 cents a box; six boxes for $2.50, by the Dr. Williams Medicine company, Schenectady, N. Y.

SENATOR SUTTON

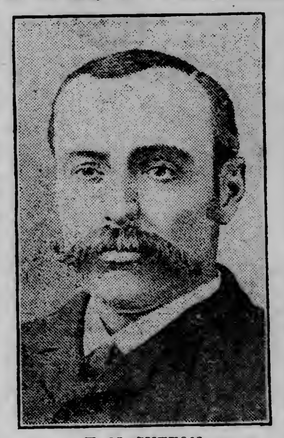
of Burlington, Vt., Does Not Wait for Sickness.

HE USES

Paine's Celery Compound

The Spring Health Giver, Whenever He Feels Out-of-Sorts, and Thus Maintains Regular Health and Vigor.

Paine's Celery Compound is more talked of in the spring time in each state, city, town and village than any other medicine now before the public. It has a place in the homes of the wealthy, influential and intellectual; it is a disease banisher that has the entire confidence of our men and women who toil daily in workshops, stores, offices and homes. When the first warning symptoms of physical weakness and disease are experienced, wise and prudent men and women invariably seek new vitality, health and strength in nature's health builder, Paine's Celery Compound. If the reader of this article finds it difficult to find restful sleep; if the blood is impure and sluggish; if rheumatism, neuralgia, dyspepsia, kidney or liver troubles are comencing to annoy, follow the safe and wise example of ex-Mayor Sutton, of Burlington, Vt., use Celery Compound and promptly banish the little ills; do not wait until you are sick. One bottle, as a rule, will brace the nerves, correct impaired indigestion, cleanse the blood and make you robust and strong. Read Senator Sutton's cheering testimony:



E. M. SUTTON.

"People have often asked me how I managed to keep so well, for although out in nearly all kinds of weather, and traveling considerably, I have no aches or sickness. My one answer has been, that instead of waiting until I am sick in bed and forced to stop work for a while, whenever I feel out of sorts the least bit, I take Paine's Celery Compound, which keeps me well and strong. It is a great deal better, in my opinion, to take a medicine that keeps one well, rather than to wait for sickness and then hunt around for a medicine or a doctor. I have been a hearty advocate of Paine's Celery Compound since it was first made a great many years ago, and have yet to learn of a case in which it has failed to fulfill its promises."

A GREAT CHARITY

Made Complete By Will of Mrs. Wilder.

St. Paul, April 18.—The last will of Mrs. Fanny S. Wilder, widow of Amherst H. Wilder, was filed in the probate court yesterday by Victor M. Watkins and Charles N. Bell.

By this last one of three wills made by the members of the Wilder family the great Wilder property, or the bulk of it, is devoted to the relief of the worthy poor of the city, founding the largest charity which the city of St. Paul has known. The estimated value is from $3,000,000 to $4,000,000.

The principal provisions of the document relate to the founding and maintaining of the Amherst H. Wilder charity, thus supplementing the disposition of Mr. Wilder and the daughter, Mrs. Appleby.

Personal friends have been remembered in bequests, but in the main the will shows that the benevolent testatrix shared with her husband and daughter an absorbing interest in the great charity which is destined to stand as a monument to the Wilder family. In most particulars the will is similar to the wills of her husband and daughter, especially in regard to the Amherst H. Wilder charity. A day nursery is provided for, a sum of $2500 annually to be set apart for its maintenance, in rooms in the proposed administration building, such nursery to be for the care of children during the day while the mothers are at work. For the establishment of free new public baths $20,000 is to be used annually and a fund for maintenance is provided. The creation of a corporation for the administration of the charity is directed, and the executors are named as the corporate managers.

As a last request, Mrs. Wilder asks to have the will expedited, and it is possible the foundation of the immense charity will be laid within a year.

THE STAGE.

"Arizona," with a cast that would clear the clouded face of Augustus Thomas, if he could see it work, was presented at the Lyceum theater last evening, and two performances will be given today.

The military is always a thrilling element, but combine the military and lovely woman in a set of love matches and some counterplots to make things interesting, a gun play here and there, an heroic sacrifice there and a few living character here, and you have the picture offered in "Arizona."

The most surprising thing was the company presenting it. They are all good actors, none shining lights in the stellar firmament, but just good, that's all.

That was as much as could have been said about the play and company four years ago, when it was coming up the western country, or was it five? Eleanor Robson was the Bonita of that organization, and today she is closing a season with Kyrle Bellew in "A Gentleman of France," and is getting ready for her "Romeo and Juliet" the coming season. Edgar Selwyn, who once was "Tony" will lead for Maude Adams next season.

And the company in Duluth this afternoon and evening is offering a performance just as good as that road company, or at least nearly as good.

The officers and men of the Eleventh cavalry at Fort Grant are real human beings, and they don't do much that ordinary mortals wouldn't do. Lieut. Denton, as provided by Dustin Farnum is a pleasing character for a hero, but the best old character in the play, not barring Bonita, the ingenious flower of the Arizona desert, is J. W. Cope's Henry Canby, the old ranchman who talks in the vernacular of the race track and the fero table and is a lovable old soul, because he is a man with a heart.

Altogether the performance was a most satisfying and entertaining one. The essentials were all in the right proportion. Everyone knows the play is the salt of its class; the company is above the average, all actors and intelligent; and the scenic portion was not slighted. The scenery is heavy and correct and nothing is lost to make that atmospheric condition which must surround the army post and adjoining ranch, upon which a pretty girl is housed, and a hospitable old ranchman opens wine occasionally.

FIRE IN ARLINGTON.

Michigan Street Hotel Building Is Damaged.

Flames threatened the destruction of the Arlington hotel last evening. The establishment is located on West Michigan street, opposite the Union depot, and the blaze attracted a large crowd of people.

Seven rooms on the third and fourth floors were considerably damaged and the loss is estimated at $2000, fully covered by insurance.

The building is owned by G. G. Dickerman & Co., and the hotel is conducted by Arthur A. Fider.

The origin of the fire has not been determined. The smoke was first seen on the third floor by one of the hotel employes.

Eagle Team Organizes.

The baseball team of the Eagle Clothing company has organized for the coming season, and is looking for games with any amateur organization at the head of the lakes. Capt. Sheehan announces his line-up as follows: Jones, catcher; Summers, pitcher; Dahl first; DiMarco, short; Bowden, second; Sheehan, third; Bayard, left; Brown, center; O'Brien, right.

PROTECTION URGED.

Canadians Ask For Revision of the Tariff.

Ottawa, Ont., April 18.—R. L. Borden, leader of the opposition in the house of commons, replying to the budget speech of Finance Minister Fielding, renewed his policy of last year in favor of adequate protection to Canadian industries. He complained of the large imports of goods, especially from the United States, which ought to be manufactured in Canada. He embodied in his policy the following amendment to the proposition of the finance minister:

"This house regarding the operation of the present tariff as unsatisfactory is of opinion that this country requires that a fair policy of such adequate protection to its labor, agricultural products, manufactures and industries as will at all times secure the Canadian markets for Canadians and that the financial policy of the government should include a measure for the thorough and judicious readjustment of the tariff at the present session."

SYSTEM BREAKS DOWN.

London, April 18.—The Times announces that owing to a breakdown of a subsidiary device of the Marconi system of wireless telegraphy which will, the company states, shortly be remedied, the Times' service of American Marconigrams is temporarily interrupted.

SECULAR SHOTS AT PULPIT.

Philadelphia North American: If everyone lived by the rule laid down by the Springfield, Mass., clergyman who says that every Christian should be in bed by 10 o'clock each night, there would be no morning newspapers to print the bright remarks of the reverend gentleman.

Washington Post: The ministerial influence did not make a highly satisfactory showing in the Ohio municipal elections. At Cincinnati the ministers united in support of Mr. Ingalls, and at Cleveland they opposed the election of Tom Johnson. But then politics and religion never did mix well in Ohio.

Chicago Inter Ocean: An awful state of affairs exists in New York. Rev. Isaac N. Funk declres positively that he has recently conversed with the ghost of Henry Ward Beecher, face to face, and Rev. Dr. Isaac H. Heldmn explains the matter by saying that Rev. Dr. Isaac N. Funk lies. Something should be done to stop the controversy right here.

Portland Oregonian: Fifteen new churches are built in the United States every day on the present average, and in a year the value of new edifices will aggregate $37,340,000. In conjunction with this statement is the fact that in nine-tenths of all the churches in the country many vacant pews confront the minister Sunday after Sunday the year round. This seems to indicate that it is not Christianity, but denominationalism, that constantly cries aloud for new churches. The presentment could without much effort be construed into a plea for church unity on the basis of economy.

BILL TO ABOLISH NORMAL SCHOOLS KILLED BY SENATE

in voting to recommend the bill for indefinite postponement.

There will be a Minnesota sanitarium for consumptives in Northern Minnesota. The house yesterday afternoon passed Senator A. F. Ferris' bill establishing one at Walker, Cass county, and all that is needed to make the bill a law is that it shall go back to the senate to have that body concur in the house amendments, and then receive the governor's signature. The senate passed the bill carrying an appropriation of $50,000, but the house cut this off with the idea of having the money cared for in the omnibus appropriation bill, and then when that was not done the house added an amendment to the bill appropriating $25,000. It is likely that the senate will concur in this amendment and that the bill will be come a law.

It provides for the purchase of a site and the construction of a sanitiarium for consumptives at Walker, to be in charge of a commission to be appointed by the governor. The cost of keeping inmates is to be paid by the patients, if they are able, and if not by the county from which they come. The board of county commissioners is to send them and is to pay the bills. The resort is only to be open to those who have lived in the state a year. The bill carried by a vote of 81 to 12, the only one speaking against it being Dr. S. M. Jones, of Otter Tail county, who said it was impossible to cure in Minnesota a case of tuberculosis contracted in the state. Dr. Graham and Dr. Budd disputed this assertion.

The people of Minnesota will have a chance a year from next fall to vote on a constitutional amendment that will permit some future legislature to do away with the grand jury system in this state. Senator Laybourn's bill along this line, already passed by the senate, passed the house yesterday afternoon by a vote of 63 to 21. The change it makes in the constitution is very slight. It simply provides for cutting out the provision that no person may be convicted of a felony except upon an indictment by a grand jury, and substitutes a provision that no person may be convicted except by due process of law. This will permit prosecutions either with a grand jury or without, as the legislature sees fit to fix the law.

The Nelson bill taxing sleeping car companies passed the house yesterday, though James R. Hickey, of St. Paul, tried to get it back on general orders for the purpose of having it amended. He said as the bill stands it will exempt most of the sleeping cars from taxation, because it provides that they shall be exempt when operated by railroads coming under the gross earnings system. He said that nine-tenths of the sleeping cars in the state are operated by the railroads under contracts with the sleeping car companies, and the bill would not tax any of these. He offered amendments purporting to cover this objection, but the author of the bill objected, saying that the bill had been drawn by the attorney general after a Wisconsin law that worked very well, and as unanimous consent was required, the bill went through unamended.

The senate yesterday afternoon recommended to pass a bill by J. B. Kelly authorizing county boards to offer rewards for killing crows. It was amended, however, so as to provide that rewards could only be claimed from May 15 to June 15 and from Aug. 15 to Sept. 15.

* * *

The senate yesterday afternoon, in committee of the whole, recommended the osteopathy bill to pass. The bill was not amended, but it was agreed that amendments could be offered when the bill was reached on the calendar.

* * *

The senate had a long session over Senator Schaller's bill to change the complexion of the state school library board by making it include only the state superintendent of schools and one county superintendent, instead of being composed entirely of normal school presidents. He amended it, however, so as to make one normal school president a member of the board, and also to add an annual appropriation of $10,000. Senator Schaller said the state had been paying too much money for books under the old system, and he has some provisions in his bill calculated to ensure better deals. It is the province of the board to select lists of books for school libraries, to call for bids from booksellers, and to make two-year contracts with the lowest bidders. Senator Brower resented the bill as a reflection upon the normal school presidents, and Senator Schaller hastened to say that he did not mean anything of that sort. The bill was recommended to pass as amended, a motion by Senator Eberhart to refer the bill to its author for decent interment and another by Senator Brower to indefinitely postpone it being lost.

The state tax of 1 mill, which the revenue bill passed by the house makes the maximum for state purposes for the next two years, is really quite a low rate for a state of this size. It raises only $775,000 next year and $800,000 the year after, and St. Louis county has to raise more taxes than that for all purposes, including the uses of cities, villages, townships and school districts.

The precedent was established last year, when State Auditor Dunn, in his office, lopped of 3-10th of a mill from the rate, making it 1 mill. Once established it will be pretty hard to break the rule, and Bob Dunn, by starting it, may possibly have bred trouble for future officers that must try to maintain it. Of course that is not all the money the state uses. It has other and larger sources of revenue, such as the gross earnings tax on railroads.

The senate yesterday, in committee of the whole, recommended the inheritance tax law to pass, after amending it so as to make it apply only to inheritances over $10,000. The house passed it so as to apply to inheritances over $1000.

* * *

The senate also recommended to pass yesterday the bill by Senator Pugh, appropriating $997 for the relief of Walter S. Cutter, a Duluh militia man who was injured at the state encampment by the explosion of a defective cartridge, which he was extracting from his rifle. The amount asked for simply covers his hospital and similar expenses since the accident.

* * *

The house yesterday passed two senate bills exempting fraternal insurance companies from taxation, on the ground that they are charitable instituttions. One bill by Senator Laybourn of Duluth applies to societies with rituals, and the other, by Senator Schaller, applies to societies without rituals.

RELIC OF MOUND BUILDERS.

Farmer Finds a Stone Plow at Princeton, Ill.

Chicago, April 18.—A special to the Evening Post from Princeton, Ill., says: Eli Williams, a farmer, four miles south of this city, while digging a well, unearthed a stone plow which is believed to be a relic of the mound builders. The plow is of reddish stone, triangular in shape and thirteen inches wide each way. It was found immediately above a strata of coal.

WILSONS ARE PASSENGERS.

Liverpool, April 18.—Sir Charles Rivers Wilson, president of the Grand Trunk railroad of Canada, and Lady Wilson, will be passenger on the Cunard liner Campania, sailing from this port today for New York.

TEACHINGS ARE OBJECTIONABLE

Rev. Paul James Francis Is to Be Brought to Trial.

New York, April 18.—It is now positively asserted that the Rev Paul James Francis, minister general of the order of the atonement, with headquarters at Garrison is to be brought to trial. Papers in the case have been prepared, it is said, by Bishop Coleman of Delaware in which diocese the Rev. Mr. Francis is canonically resident.

Bishop Coleman's charge is the teaching of the Rev. Mr. Francis, who has for some years openly advocated the Episcopal church acknowledging the Roman obedience and procuring pardon for the sin of having denied, for some hundreds of years, the spiritual supremacy of the pope of Rome. A leader of the Catholic party in the Episcopal church, resident in this city is quoted as saying concerning the Rev. Mr. Francis and his teachings:

"Catholics of the church have no sympathy with the position taken by the Rev. Mr. Francis and his order of the atonement. There is no element among us who desire union with the church of Rome. Neither is there agitation in this country similar to that which seems to obtain in England. Indeed, Catholics deplore such teachings as Mr. Francis puts forth, even more than others.

Somebody gave Mr. Francis' order a mountain at Garrison, worth about $300, and upon the one side of it he has establish a monastery so-called, and upon the other side his sister, under a second order of the atonement, has established a mother house."

RUSSIAN CHART

Valuable In Settlement of the Alaskan Boundary.

New York, April 18.—The attitude of the American embassy at St. Petersburg shows clearly that the chart of the Stickeen river is considered an important weapon in the setlement of the Alaskan boundary dispute, cables the London correspondent of the Tribune. This chart was made by an officer commissioned by the Russian government previous to the transfer of Alaska to the United States and deposited at the Russian admiralty, where it has remained ever since. At the time of the transfer a copy of this chart was given to the United States government, and just lately the American embassy at St. Petersburg has been asked for another one.

The Daily Chronicle's correspondent in the Russian capital says that a copy of the original chart, signed and certified to be a true copy, has been handed to the United States ambassador, and is now on the way to Washington.

English Coal In Demand.

The American demand for English coal is again in evidence, and many large vessels are being loaded and started for our country as rapidly as possible. The demand for the celebrated Hostetter's Stomach Bitters is also largely increased, because more people are learning of its wonderful curative powers in cases of stomach, liver, kidney and bowel disorders, and having tried one bottle they have been convinced of its value, and won't accept anything else in its place. This will be your experience, to, if you will only give it a trial. It will build up the run-down system in the spring, overcome that tired, depressed feeling, purify the blood and cure loss of appetite, indigestion, dyspepsia, constipation, billousness and la grippe. Don't fail to ry it.

MARKETS HIGHER

Wheat Ruled Strong on the Bullish Foreign Advices.

Flax Trading Was Fairly Active and the Market Firm.

Duluth Board of Trade, April 18.—The wheat market started out easier and lower this morning, but soon firmed up, and ruled strong throughout the remainder of the session. Bullish foreign advices were the chief cause of the strength, coupled with a good export demand.

Saturday is always a poor day for export business and this was no exception, there being a marked falling off from the good business done in the earlier part of the week. Exporters worked about five loads, all to the United Kingdom. The inquiries were very good, but the foreigners were evidently playing for a reaction in the American markets and it did not come. The Liverpool market closed ½d higher and Paris ¼c lower to unchanged.

Primary receipts of wheat were 291,000 bus., last year 198,000 bus. Shipments, 672,000 bus., last year 415,000 bus. Clearances of wheat and flour aggregated 432,000 bus.

Receipts of wheat at Duluth and Minneapolis, 165 cars, and at Chicago 25, a total of 190 cars, against 442 last week and 147 last year.

Corn in the Liverpool market closed unchanged to ½d higher. May corn in Chicago closed ¼-⅜c higher. May oats were very strong, advancing ⅝-¾c. Primary receipts of corn were 215,000 bus., last year 240,000 bus. Shipments 559,000 bus., last year 118,000 bus. Clearances were 19,000 bus.

Trading in Duluth wheat was fairly active and the price strong. May opened 1c off at 76c, sold at 77¼c at 9:45, and then fell to 77c at 10:15. From that point it rallied to 77⅞c at 11 and held steady closing there. This was an advance of 1c. Chicago advanced the same. New York ⅝c and Minneapolis unchanged.

Cash sales were 7000 bus at ¼c over May for No. 1 northern and 1¼c under for No. 2.

Flax was fairly active and firm. May selling 1c up to $1.11 and holding steady, that being the closing price. July and September advanced 1¢.

Following were the closing prices on the Duluth board.

Wheat, to arrive, No. 1 hard, 79¾c; No. 1 northern, 77⅝c; No. 2 northern, 76¾c; May, No. 1 hard, 79⅝c; No. 1 northern, 77⅝c; July, 76⅝c. Flax, in store, $1.10; to arrive, $1.11; on track, $1.11; May, $1.11; July, $1.12⅝; September, $1.14; October, $1.13½; November, $1.13½. Oats, on track, Oscar Sundin, a painter and decorator track, 49½c; to arrive, 49½c; May, 50c. Barley, 35@61c.

Cars inspected—Wheat, 11; last year, 37; oats, 4; rye, 1; barley, 1; flax, 10.

THE CHICAGO MARKET.

Good Export Demand For Wheat Strengthens Market.

Chicago, April 18.—May wheat was a trifle easier at the start on scattered commission house selling, opening sales being ½@¾c to ⅝@⅞c lower at 74¼c to 77¾c. July was firmer, however, being unchanged to ⅛@¼c higher at 71⅝@72c to 72¾c. An excellent export demand with the bullish foreign advices were strengthening influences and with a good general demand for July the market soon became stronger. May advancing to 77½@78c and July to 72⅝c. Minneapolis and Duluth reported receipts of 165 cars, which with local receipts of 25 cars, one of contract grade, made total receipts for the three points of 190 cars, against 442 cars last week and 147 cars a year ago.

The market continued firm throughout the session with some buying of May and July by the leading long. Duluth reported a good export demand which was a bull factor. After selling up to 78c, May closed ¼c higher at 77⅞@78c, while July was up ⅝@¾c at 72⅝c, after touching 72¾c.

There was only a small trade in corn, but a firm tone prevailed due to small receipts, an improvement in cash demand and in sympathy with the strength in wheat. May opened unchanged to a shade higher at 44@44⅛c to 44¼c, while July was shade higher at 44⅝c. There seemed to be no disposition to sell and little changes in prices occurred the first hour. Local receipts were 55 cars, with one of contract grade.

The strength in wheat was the main supporting influence and the close was firm with May ⅝@⅞c higher at 44⅜c. July closed ⅜c higher at 44⅝@44¾c.

Oats opened firm, with May a shade to ⅛@¼c higher, at 31⅝c to 31⅝c, and under a good demand from shorts the market advanced still further. May selling up to 31¾@⅞c. There was a scattered demand for July with little offerings, and that delivery was also firm. Local receipts were 90 cars.

Provisions were quiet but firm, on a steady hog market and on a fair demand from brokers. July pork opened a shade lower at $17.40, July lard was unchanged at $9.72½, and ribs were 2½c higher at $9.67½.

TEMPERANCE INSTRUCTION

In Schools Explained at International Anti-Alcohol Congress.

Bremen, April 18.—At today's session of the International Anti-Alcoholic congress, Mrs. Mary H. Hunt, of the Woman's Christian Temperance union, of Boston, delivered an address on the significance of scientific temperance instruction in public schools as a preventive of alcoholism. She said in part:

"The thralldom of alcoholism can be overthrown only by making the masses intelligent in regard to the true nature of alcohol and its consequent effects upon the human system. This requires, first, thorough scientific investigation of the alcohol problem; and second, the widest diffusion of truths thus learned.

"The people of the United States, believing that such diffusion could best be effected through public school instruction secured between the years 1882-1902, the passage of state and national laws by which the study of physiology and hygiene, including special instruction as to the nature and effects of alcoholic drinks and other narcotics, became mandatory for all pupils in all schools of the republic.

"Temperance physiology has thus been very generally taught for ten or fifteen years, and it is significant that during this time the rate of increase in the per capita consumption of alcoholic liquors has diminished materially; also that there has been a gain of four and one-tenth years in the average length of life. Thorough investigation in the most populous state, New York, shows that the study is restraining children from forming alcohol and other narcotic habits and influencing their parents against alcohol and tobacco.

"The teachings that have secured these gratifying results are:

"First, the nature of alcohol and its effects upon the human economy; and

"Second, the physiological reasons for obeying all laws of health, since unhygienic habits often cause a craving for narcotics.

"Careful grading shows that the subject can be adequately covered by a minimum of three oral lessons per week for ten weeks in each primary year, and four text-book lessons per week for ten weeks in each of the five grammar years and the first year of the high school. Thus, with thirty lessons, a progressive development is attained without crowding other branches, during years in which the formation of habits is especially active.

"The text books used by pupils of all grades above the primary are supervised by a committee of physicians and educators. At the headquarters of the department of scientific temperance instruction in Boston are kept on file records of all scientific investigation of the question, free of access to authors and others interested.

"Objection is sometimes made to scientific temperance instruction on the ground that by injuring the brewing traffic it will decrease the national revenue. Figures show, however, that every dollar of tax on fermented and distilled liquor paid into the national treasury costs thirty dollars in the cost of consequent crime and poverty. The same is doubtless true in other countries.

"This congress is to pass no resolutions, but there is nothing to prevent any individual from personally resolving to use his utmost influence to secure for all the children of his own country the blessings of a scientific education."

WILLIAMS ANSWERS

Allegations Involving His Efficiency as an Officer.

Washington, April 18.—William F. Williams, assistant United States treasurer at Chicago, was at the treasury department today in conference with Secretary Shaw. Some time ago it was intimated to Mr. Williams that his resignation would be acceptable to the department. This intimation was based upon allegations involving his efficiency as an administrative officer. It was found that loose methods had prevailed in his office and that there had been some irregularities, which, however, had been straightened out. Mr. Williams was informed that he could come to Washington and present his answer to the charges. This answer was made this morning. The character of his answer has not been made public. It will probably be several days before final action will be taken upon the case.

GASOLINE STOVE EXPLODES.

St. Paul, April 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—There was a gasoline stove explosion this morning at the residence at 192 Charles street. Three people were injured and one may not recover. Miss Eva Holly, the housekeeper, was terribly burned and her recovery is doubtful. Charles Adams, aged 80 years, and his son Charles, aged 35 years, were also badly burned.

CHICAGO WORSE THAN DULUTH

Mayor Hugo Finds Streets There Far Dirtier Than Here.

Trevanion W. Hugo—twice elected mayor of Duluth by a margin of four votes—has returned from Chicago, where he admits having called on Carter Harrison, recently elected mayor of that city by 6000 votes, for the purpose of ascertaining how he did it.

Mayor Harrison was in Springfield, busy with a number of legislative matters, and in consequence Mayor Hugo was compelled to come home without the desired information, and, though he says he was disappointed, he does not look it.

Speaking of his trip he says: "If the people that have been complaining about Duluth's dirty streets could only smell and see the stinking filth of Chicago's most important thoroughfares, they would realize with me that Duluth is not the worst place in the world, by a long way.

"The weather down there has been of the worst. Wind and rain with a cold and chilling atmosphere, furnishing as remarkable a contrast in favor of Duluth's climate as the Chicago streets do in favor of Duluth thoroughfares.

"It is good to get back to Duluth, even if I did have to come away from Chicago without finding out how Mayor Harrison managed to get the plurality he did."

A RALLY IN STOCKS

Followed By Decline Due to Large Selling Orders.

Hardened Near Close Which Was Dull and Steady.

New York, April 18.—The feature of the opening in the stock market was a violent rebound in Metropolitan Street Railway on running sales of 4500 shares at 131 and 133½, compared with 129⅝ last night. Gains were general throughout the list but did not exceed fractions. Canadian Pacific rose ⅞. Colorado Fuel ¾ and Baltimore and Ohio ⅝. Further advances were made before the temper of speculation underwent a change. Gains reached 3⅜ in Third avenue, 2⅛ in General Electric, 1¾ in Metropolitan Securities and New Haven and a point in Brooklyn Transit, Northwestern, Wabash preferred and Amalgamated. The appearance of large selling orders in Reading coincident with another drive against Metropolitan Street Railway turned the course of prices abruptly downwards. Opening advances in the railroad list were cancelled and some of the leaders sold a substantial fractional below yesterday's close. Metropolitan Street Railway and Third Avenue reacted about 2 and Reading fell as much below last night, trading quieted down toward 11 o'clock and the market became steadier. The market became extremely dull before the appearance of the bank statement and sold off afterward to a lower level than before. The net decline reached a point in St. Paul, F. C. & St. L. lost 3. There were two point advances in Long Island and Westinghouse Electric first preferred and 1½ in Colorado & Southern first preferred. Metropolitan Street Railway 1¼ and the whole market hardened a fraction. The closing was dull and steady and generally at small net changes.

COPPER GOSSIP.

Boston to Paine, Webber & Co.: The bank statement showed a net gain in cash of about 3,000,0000. It is not quite so good as some had expected and traders raided the general list. Coppers acted well but rose too sharply in the morning and therefore ran off with the rest of the market after the bank statement appeared. All new developments go to show that the market is simply a trader's affair. It is apparently all right to buy on reactions but profits should be taken on rallies.

• • •

Hayden, Stone & Co. to W. H Laidley & Co.: Coppers have been strong lately and the strong position of metal seems due to natural causes rather than manipulation. We believe coppers are in position for a good movement. Money is getting easier. The market is getting broader and everything points to higher prices. The advance in Copper Range has been very rapid, but there has been no news to account for it. Buy the coppers.

THE COTTON MARKET.

New York, April 18.—The cotton market opened firm at an advance of 3@8 points, ruled steady and fairly active for a time and then commenced to decline under realizing. The early improvement was attributed to a much better class of cables than called for by the closing of New York yesterday. The demand in the local market was mainly from shorts and subsequently a selling movement started by parties who had profits and were disposed to secure them in view of the large movement. Within less than an hour the net rise had been reduced to 1@3 points. The new crop months were comparatively neglected with a bearish undertone on favorable weather conditions and glowing crop accounts. The local contingent has been inclined to sell in a conservative way on the large movement, which is now figured at 105,000 for the week, against 82,226 last year with the port receipts scheduled for 65,000, against 60,284. The volume of business continues small and mainly confined to the operations of parties already interested. Cotton futures closed quiet and steady. April, 10.24; May, 10.28@29; June, 9.87@88; July, 9.46@ 9.48; August, 9.48; September, 8.76@87; October, 8.49@50; November, 8.38@40; December, 8.37@38. Spot closed quiet; mid ups, 10.40; mid gulf, 10.65. Sales none.

Gold Is Money!

For We Are on the Gold Standard.

No matter where you go, Gold bullion is Money, and it costs absolutely nothing to convert it into the Coin of the Realm.

In Buying Stocks, keep the following points in view:

First—There never can be a depression in mining Gold, for the harder the times, the more the gold is worth—greater its purchasing power.

Second—It is not necessary to seek markets for Gold, and there is no danger of an oversupply.

Third—Stock in a great gold mine "is as good as gold"—and what can be better?

Fourth—Here is the Northern Homestake Mining Company, with fourteen full claims on two of the Greatest Known Lodes—with 3000 feet of each lode, and every mine thus far developed on these lodes are among the Greatest Gold Mines in the World.

Fifth—A limited amount of treasury stock for sale for a short time at the first and lowest price.

This is an Opportunity and you should look it up at once. Call for a prospectus and get the facts.

Another Steamboat Line For Green Bay Ports.

Menominee—There is a plan on foot to organize another steamboat company to compete for the business of the Green Bay ports. The names of the men interested are not given out, but one of them has had long experience on Green bay and the other is a well known vessel captain. A meeting will be called this week to talk the matter over. The plan is to organize a company with $100,000 capital and to purchase several good steamers. If the company is formed the route taken by the boats will include Green Bay, Menominee, Marinette, Escanaba and as far north as Mackinac. Eleven of the intermediate ports will also be included.

The lumber companies whose headquarters are at Menominee are fast disposing of their lands from which the pine has been cut, and in many sections thriving agricultural communities are springing up where a few years ago the tracts were covered with forests. One hundred and twenty-five thousand acres have been sold by the Menominee Lumber company alone during the past year and a goodly portion of this has gone to actual settlers.

Ishpeming—A circular just issued by the state department at Washington, warning Finlanders that they would become liable to service in the Russian army should they return to their native land, has caused consternation among that nationality in this section. Many Finns were planning to visit the country of their birth this summer, some of whom were to leave this week, and the state department's notice has caused a sudden change in plans. The great majority of the Finlanders in northern Michigan who are of legal age have taken out citizenship papers and become fully naturalized. They have thought they could visit the czar's domains and bid defiance to the Russian government were an attempt made to compel them to serve in the army, relying on their American citizenship for protection. The Russian government has heretofore been lax in enforcing military service in Finland, and visitors from America have come and gone without interference. Now, however, a more vigorous policy has been adopted, and it is stated that every native born Finn will have to serve the allotted time in the czar's army or be liable to severe punishment, including the possibility of deportation to Siberia. Russia, it appears, does not recognize the right of Finnish Americans if they have left their native land without imperial consent, nor can the United States extend them protection should they return to Finland.

Iron Mountain—G. Von Platen of Boyne City, Mich., has purchased 9000 acres of hardwood lands in Florence county, across the line in Wisconsin, and has options on 20,000 acres more owned by the Chicago & Northwestern railroad. He intends to start a hardwood manufacturing plant and to establish colonies of settlers.

Escanaba—A plant for the manufacture of wood alcohol is to be established at Wells. J. W. Wells of Menominee, George Mashek of Escanaba, and a Boyne City, Mich., man are associated in the venture. The plant will involve an initial expenditure of $125,000. It will employ 100 men.

Houghton—It is announced by officials of the Houghton County Agricultural society that Secretary Wilson of the agricultural department, will visit northern Michigan this summer. He is coming at the request of the land department of the South Shore road.

THE RENTAL AGENTS ARE OVERWHELMED

Big Rush of Applications For Houses to Rent—Difficulty In Getting Houses Causes Good Demand For Residence Property and More Building.

The past week has been a fairly satisfactory one in local real estate circles. While a number of deals have been closed, there are still pending some important sales which will be closed up either today or the first of the coming week, the earnest money having been paid. Considerable more inquiry has developed lately for residence property by reason of the advanced cost of building, which has had the effect of turning the attention of intending builders to securing homes already erected. At the same time, building activity is apparent and orders have been left with the local architects for plans for several new houses and flat buildings. Reports differ somewhat as to the loan business, some firms having had a good demand, while others have noted a falling off in inquiry. It is generally conceded, however, that there is less talk of 5 per cent and more of 6 per cent money at the present time than earlier in the spring. Not a few people are negotiating loans with the view of building the coming fall instead of during the summer season.

The past week has witnessed another big rush for houses, and nearly every rental agency is swamped with applications. Some agents report that persons seeking homes for the coming year have visited their offices several times during the week in the hope that something would be available for rent, but were disappointed. From Lakeside to West Duluth, and even to the far western end of the city, everything available in the way of houses is being taken up as fast as they are vacant. The movement of the summer residents to Park Point is now under way in good earnest, and several new houses have been begun or will be started on the Point the coming week. The large amount of lumber that is being daily transported to the Point is one of the many indications of the lively building operations in that part of the city.

* * *

Unfavorable comment is being made from all quarters over the new plumbing ordinance, especially among the architects and contractors, who claim that the increased cost of plumbing is having a detrimental effect on the building movement, especially of homes. The great need of Duluth at the present time is more new residences and flats, but they claim some amendment to the plumbing ordinance will be necessary very soon. One architect estimates the cost of plumbing under the new ordinance has been increased from 15 to 40 per cent.

* * *

Mr. Volk, of A. C. Volk & Co., reports a very active season in realty in the New Duluth district of the city. The firm has made a number of sales of business and residence properties there during the past ten days, among them the following: A residence property to M. V. Messer; a residence property to N. J. Bernt; a residence property to A. E. Grochau; a residence property to W. H. Miller; a store building to Wilson & Strand; a lot to E. Berger, two lots to J. L. Prosser and a lot to U. C. Tower. Inquiry for improved and unimproved property along the St. Louis river is said to be stronger than ever, in view of better transportation facilities which are being planned between the central portion and the western portion of the city, and the prospective manufacturing activity along the river.

* * *

Stryker, Manley & Buck report a good week's business, including among the sales that of the C. A. Eldredge residence property at 1217 East Second street, from the Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance company to Perry D. Jones. The firm has been doing a fair loan business and in the past few days has made a number running from $1000 to $3000.

* * *

William M. Prindle & Co. report a satisfactory business the past week, including a number of small sales, among which are the following: Two lots on Garfield avenue for $1000, house and lot in the East End for $750, house and lot on Mesaba avenue for $1700, lot with double frontage and two houses on Mesaba avenue and Fifth street, lot on London road for $1500, house and lot on West Fifth street for $750, house and lot at Lakeside for $1500, lot on Minnesota Point for $350. The firm also reports a good loan business.

* * *

The Lakeside Land company reports a number of parties building homes in the Lakeside division this spring, including C. H. Fugle and Emma Hicks. The latter is building a residence facing the fish hatchery park. The company has sold a new house at Forty-eighth avenue east and the car line for $2200 and has made a number of sales of Park Point lots.

* * *

Pulford & How have made the sale this week of two centrally located residence properties, one on Fifth street and the other on Fourth avenue east. The firm reports a good realty business and a fair demand for loans.

* * *

Mr. Hanford of the Interstate Land and Investment company, comments on the increasing demand for West Duluth properties and says that he believes that it will be one of the safest places for investments in the near future. The prospect for the new car line on Grand avenue has caused an active inquiry along that avenue and several sales have been made by the company on the strength of it during the past few days. Mr. Hanford says that the only class of property which iss are the close-in acres, for which the demand is light. He says that the sooner owners of lands three and four miles out make up their minds that their properties are worth more for farms than for city lots, the better it will be for them and the city.

* * *

J. J. Wangenstein, the arichtect, is preparing plans for a frame residence building for Robert M. White on East Second street between Seventeenth and Eighteenth avenues east, a double flat building for F. A. Thorwald on Fifth street between Sixth and Seventh avenues east, a residence for Emma Hicks at Lakeside, a row of eight brick houses on Second street between Sixth and Seventh avenues east, for local parties; the remodeling of the Clarendon hotel at Garfield avenue and Superior street and a double brick house for local parties on the northeast corner of Second avenue east and Third street.

* * *

Several sales of farming land in St. Louis county have been made during the past week.

* * *

Deeds were filed this week transferring lots 9 to 34 inclusive, Boston pier, in Oneota, from Duncan & Brewer to F. L. Gilbert and E. T. Buxton, the consideration being $52,000. The deal was in connection with the transfer of the sawmill plant from the Duncan & Brewer company to the Red Cliff Lumber company.

* * *

Fred J. Voss has purchased of John F. Horgan lots 1, 2 and 11 and 12, block 24, East Duluth, the consideration being $7000.

* * *

Fred Merrill and William Orr have sold a quantity of standing pine in several townships of this county for $26,000.

* * *

Permits have been taken out at the inspector's office this week for repairs on the Davis Real Estate company's block, which was damaged by fire, at Second avenue west and Michigan street, to cost $9600; by J. S. Strum for a dwelling on First street, to cost $1500; by A. Milorstan for a dwelling on Fourth street, to cost $5000, and by J. Hollernan, for a flat building on St. Croix avenue, to cost $4500.

* * *

M. A. Ryan, of the Northwestern Steam Boiler works, on Garfield avenue, has the plans out for the new building which will immediately replace the former plant burned this spring. The new plant will be much larger and better equipped than the old one.

The last issue of the Improvement Bulletin contains an appeal from Menomonie, Wis., for somebody, or some ways and means, of obtaining more houses that will rent from $8 to $15 per month, to meet the growing demands of that place, and asking that persons of capital who wish to go into a building scheme consider the proposition.

The city of Duluth is looking for the same kind of people with capital, and the inducements offered here are even better than $8 to $15 per month, for it is a very small or out of way property that is not paying far more than $8 per month rent in this city. The following interesting comment is made relative to the Menomonie letter and conditions generally over the Northwest:

"While the conditions are perhaps somewhat peculiar at Menomonie, owing to the schools, this same cry comes up from cities and towns, big and little, all over the Northwest. People wanting to rent houses this spring have on hand the problem of their lives, and while there is an enormous amount of building in sight, not a great deal of it is calculated to meet this demand. We hardly know what to say to such an inquiry as this. The fact is capital has too many other avenues for profitable investment with less prospect of depreciation and trouble. The rental proposition figures out nicely on paper, but is apt to prove disappointing in many ways in the long run. It is a difficult matter especially to find an outsider who will go into such an enterprise. We believe each town will have to tackle the problem itself. The appeal will have to be partly to the public spirit and partly to the private pocketbook. If properly started and handled such a proposition can be made fairly profitable. If the business men of Menomonie would get together and organize a stock company for the purpose of erecting such houses as are needed and put the project on the right business basis, they can solve the problem. Houses should be built not only to rent, but to sell on easy payments. In fact we believe a good deal of relief would be afforded if more encouragement were given to people to build their own homes. It will be better for them and for the town. Moreover, it is more feasible to secure outside capital for the erection of houses to sell than to rent. A small payment down and monthly installments have been the making of thousands of happy home owners, and the number might well be multiplied many times."

ORDER FOR HEARING PROOF OF WILL—

State of Minnesota, County of St. Louis—ss. In Probate Court, Special Term, April 11th, 1903.

In the matter of the estate of John Macleod, deceased:

Whereas, an instrument in writing, purporting to be the last will and testament of John Macleod, deceased, late of said county, has been delivered to this court; and whereas, Jessie Macleod has filed therewith her petition, representing, among other things, that said John Macleod died in Las Vegas, Hot Springs, New Mexico, on the 5th day of September, 1901, testate, and that said petitioner is the executrix named in said last will and testament, and praying that the said instrument may be admitted to probate, and that letters testamentary be issued thereon to her, said Jessie Macleod;

It is ordered, that the proofs of said instrument, and the said petition, be heard before this court, at the Probate office in the city of Duluth, in said county, on Monday, the 4th day of May, A. D. 1903, at 10 o'clock in the forenoon, when all persons interested may appear for or contest the probate of said instrument;

And it is further ordered, that notice of the time and place of said hearing be given to all persons interested, by publishing this order once in each week for three successive weeks prior to said day of hearing, in the Duluth Evening Herald, a daily newspaper, printed and published at the city of Duluth in said county.

Dated at Duluth, Minnesota, this 11th day of April, A. D., 1903.

By the court.
J. B. MIDDLECOFF,
Judge of Probate.

PLANS FOR THE BIG INITIATION

Lady Maccabees Arranging For the Great May 1 Event.

Invitations are out for the big class initiation and entertainment at the Armory by the Lady Maccabees of the hives of Duluth, May 1, and arrangements are being rapidly completed. The members are very enthusiastic and have already secured a large number of candidates. A friendly rivalry has arisen between the degree teams of Duluth hive No. 1 and Pearl hive No. 4, who are to exemplify the work, and the drill promises to be the best ever given by the ladies in the city.

Several new features have been added for the occasion. A chorus of 100 members dressed in uniform will furnish music, besides the musical celebrities that have been secured. Chartered cars will be provided for the East End and West Duluth people.

A boulevard drive and boat trip are being planned for the distinguished guests, Supreme Commander Mrs. Lillian M. Hollister and Supreme Medical Examiner Dr. Susan F. Rose. A reception will also be held at the Spalding parlors, which will be elaborately decorated for the occasion, and for which an orchestra will also be provided.

A meeting of the central committee was held this afternoon at the rooms of Deputy Supreme Commander Mary Gowan, for the purpose of perfecting the arrangements.

The supreme commander, Mrs. Lillian M. Hollister, is of winning personality and pleasing address, is highly educated, speaks several languages and has traveled extensively. She has had wide experience in lodge matters, is one of the best of parliamentarians, and is an active member of the W. C. T. U. and other benevolent institutions.

The decorations at the Armory will also be very elaborate, and La Brosse's orchestra will be in attendance.

D. S. C. Mary Govan and D. S. C. Mary Barton are especially qualified for work of this kind, both having had large experience in lodge work.

GLAD TO GO TO WORK

Marine Firemen Pleased at Settlement of the Strike.

Concessions Made By Both Sides—To Work at Once.

The members of the local lodge of the Marine Firemen, Oilers and Watertenders are jubilant over the settlement of the strike which has been delaying the lake shipping for the past three weeks. Many of the men were idle during the winter months and a further period of enforced idleness at the commencement of the season meant hardship to them.

The terms of the settlement show concessions by both sides. The men consider they have won a partial victory, inasmuch as they have secured an increase in wages, even though they did not secure what they demanded. They will receive $47.50 until October 1, and $55 per month until the close of the season. They, however, waive their claim to 25 cents an hour overtime, which was offered them by the former agreement. The vesselmen also consider it in the light of a victory as it is believed the overtime charge would more than pay the addition to the wage scale.

The news of the settlement was received in Duluth about 9 o'clock last night. A special message was received at the headquarters of the firemen in Superior. The room was crowded with men and a cheer went up when the news was read. The men have bent all their energies on preventing the signing of non-union men by the vessel owners at the head of the lakes, and the relief from the strain was welcome.

"The terms of the settlement are fair," said William Jones, the agent of the union for the head of the lakes. "The men are satisfied with them and are willing and ready to work at once. Our lodge carried the motion to arbitrate by over a hundred majority. We knew from the personnel of the arbitration board that we would get a fair deal. The members of the board were all fair-minded men who would consider both sides of the question, and that was all we wanted.

"There are about 4500 men in the Marine Firemen, Oilers and Watertenders' union. There are branches in all the important lake ports, the head office being in Buffalo. All of these men were affected by the strike and have been idle for the past three weeks. They will all report for work tomorrow."

The settlement clears away the last cloud over the marine situation on the lakes, and nothing now holds back the navigation season. The delay has not been unwelcome to many vessel owners. "A short season and a merry one" is always the ideal of the vessel owner, and a delay of two or three weeks in the opening of navigation was not unfavorable to their interests. Few of the owners made vigorous efforts to obtain non-union firemen and break the strike. They were content to let matters take their course and allow the strike to settle itself.

"Prospects are excellent for a prosperous season," said a local vessel agent. "The labor troubles are all settled, the season will not be too long, and business will probably be plentiful."

The dispatch from Buffalo announcing the settlement, was as follows:

"The strike of marine firemen which for nearly three weeks has delayed navigation on the great lakes was ended tonight. Tomorrow the strikers will report for duty at every port on the lakes.

"All day long the executive committee of the Lake Carriers' association were in conference with the strikers' representatives at the Iroquois hotel and peace was formally declared at 7 o'clock this evening after concessions had been made by both sides.

"President Stewart, of the Firemen's union, and officials of the Carriers' association will tonight sign the articles of agreement.

"By today's settlement the men will be paid $47.50 per month until Oct. 1 and $55 per month from then to the season's end. The firemen waive their right to payment of 25 cents an hour overtime that is, for work done when not on duty which was offered to them by the carriers when the $45 scale was determined upon."

WILL BE KEPT.

Non-Union Men to Be Retained By Pittsburg Company.

The three or four hundred non-union firemen and oilers, who are at present on the great lakes, will be treated as regular employes when it comes to the hiring of the union men who went out on a strike three weeks ago.

There were sixty of the seventy Pittsburg Steamship company boats moving this morning, all manned by non-union firemen, oilers and water tenders, aggregating about 300 men, and the other line boats moving probably employ 100 more.

With the Pittsburg company the non-union men who helped bring the strike to a close will be treated fairly, and the men on the boats now will probably be retained, as they can join the union now and operate upon a different basis.

The number of lake firemen, oilers and water tenders is limited, also. It is claimed, and the contracts with the union calls for the employing of non-union men when the unions cannot furnish enough, will let in many of those who are now working on the boats.

CHANGES IN SAULT LIGHTS.

The extract from the notice to mariners No. 15, published by the hydraulic office at Washington, contains notice of several changes in the lights at the Sault canals. The gas buoy on the middle ground abreast of Sarnia in the St. Clair river has also been placed in position and masters of vessels are warned to keep close to the Canadian side at that point.

PORTAGES LAKE CLEAR.

Houghton, April 18.—Marine traffic through Portage Lake was opened for the season yesterday when the Union Transit line steamer Nicol, coal laden, struggled through a mass of honey-combed ice and refusing assistance from tugs reached Houghton. The Nicol arrived at Portage Entry yesterday morning and at 3 p. m. was sighted off Dollar Bay. Her passage through the ice was slow and it was not until evening that she reached port.

MORE TONNAGE ON MARKET.

Chicago, April 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The end of labor troubles, which seems to have been reached in lake transportation for the season with the settlement of the firemen's strike last night, placed at once an increase of tonnage on the market. At the same time the call for boats fell off a good deal, but without change in rates.

LIGHTS WILL BURN.

Bayfield, April 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The lighthouses among the Apostle islands will be lighted for the first time this season tonight. There is still considerable floating ice in the bay here, but by picking their way through, vessels can avoid the larger fields.

FIRST OF LUMBER FLEET.

The steamer Edward Hines of the Edward Hines Lumber company, Chicago, arrived in the harbor shortly after 1 o'clock this afternoon. She was light for lumber and went to the Shofield mill in Superior to load. The Hines is the first of the lumber fleet to arrive this season.

ALL CREWS UNION.

All the vessels which left the harbor today carried union crews. Three of the Pittsburg Steamship company's fleet were among them, the Marina, Rockefeller and Mariposa, all of them being manned by union firemen.

PORT OF DULUTH.

Arrived: Marsala, Siemens, F. W. Peavey, Crescent City, coal, Lake Erie; Buffalo, Mohawk, merchandise, Buffalo; More, light for ore, Lake Erie; Edward Hines, light for lumber, Lake Erie.

Departed: Rockfeller, Mariposa, ore, Lake Erie; Nye, grain, Buffalo; Marina, light, Two Harbors; Northern Wind, merchandise, Buffalo.

HAPPENINGS IN DAKOTAS

Seemingly Live Body Examined By Physician at Grave.

SOUTH DAKOTA.

Tyndall—A Bohemian girl living east of here poisoned herself early in the week by taking strychnine. A physician was called, but she had been dead an hour or more when he arrived. The funeral took place Thursday afternoon. When the coffin was opened at the cemetery the cheeks of the girl presented a bright pink flush. The remains were lowered into the grave, but friends, thinking there was a sign of life, called a physician, who noticed the peculiar appearance. He used the mirror, the stethescope and other devices and means, but pronounced her dead.

Deadwood—A verdict against the defendant on all the issues was returned to the jury in the case of Mrs. Christina Grantz, wife of Otto P. Th. Grantz, in her suit against the city for personal damages. Mrs. Grantz sued for $25,000 for injuries sustained by falling on a broken sidewalk. The amount asked, with medical attendance and anticipated expenses, brought the claim to $27,500. The case was on trial one week, and the jury arrived at a verdict in about ten minutes.

Elk Point—Miss Kathryn M. French, daughter of Principal French, of this city and for five years assistant in the high school, has been elected principal of the Huron high school at an advance in salary.

Carl, the 5-year-old son of Willard Allen, while following a breaking plow, slipped and fell, his right leg being pushed through the "fifth wheel" and broken in two places.

Edgemont—In response to the invitation of Mayor J. A. Stewart, the Society of Black Hills Pioneers will hold its annual reunion and picnic at Edgemont, April 25, in honor of the visit of President Roosevelt. The pioneers will hold their reunion over a month earlier than usual for the purpose of welcoming the president. Excursion trains will be run from Deadwood, Lead, Rapid City, Custer, Hill City, Spearfish and Hot Springs, and it is expected that 10,000 will be here.

There is a possibility that the president may be induced to make a tour of the Black Hills towns, and in that event the pioneers will act as his escort. According to his present schedule his train will only stop here a few minutes, but as Captain Seth Bullock is one of the prime movers in the matter, the president can undoubtedly remain here two hours at least.

Fairfax—Mrs. Frank Nusbaum, living ten miles northwest, died of smallpox. This was a particularly sad case. Mrs. Nusbaum having given birth to a child about a week ago, which will also die. At the last term of court her husband was sentenced to a term in the penitentiary for horse stealing.

While the smallpox, of Cuban itch, has been prevalent here during the winter, this was the first death. The building in which the death occurred, with all its contents will be destroyed by the board of health.

Hecla—This village has been going through a bad scare from a mad dog. A strange dog apparently with the rabies went snapping about, biting no less than ten other dogs. The mad dog was finally killed.

Pierre—Governor Herreid appointed Captain M. F. Montgomery of Aberdeen as aide on the staff of Gen. Corbin at the dedication of the St. Louis exposition.

NORTH DAKOTA.

Bismarck—The board of education has re-elected William Moore as superintendent of schools for the eighth time. The action was unanimous. The entire force of teachers was re-elected. The graduating class numbers fourteen young ladies and five young men.

Grand Forks—The body of Ole Oomas, who was drowned in the Red River, was found Thursday.

Mitchell—The executive committee of the South Dakota Bankers' association met and located the coming convention in this city. The date was not selected, but will be either until Governor Cummings of Iowa can arrange to come.

A DIVORCE SUIT.

Mrs. Amanda Dahl Would Be Separated From C. J. Dahl.

Amanda E. Dahl has begun an action in district court for a divorce from her husband, Charles J. Dahl. In the bill of complaint filed this morning the plaintiff alleges that she is 31 and the defendant 38 years of age; that they were married in this city Sept. 4, 1901. The charges partake somewhat of a sensational nature, including cruel and inhuman treatment and adultery. The plaintiff claims that the defendant began a course of ill-treatment shortly after their marriage, and at divers times struck, kicked and choked her and threatened to throw her from the house. It is charged that the defendant committed adultery with some woman, whose name is unknown, about Feb. 22, 1903.

Plaintiff alleges that in addition to a monthly salary of $125, which the defendant obtains in the employ of the Consolidated Elevator company, he is the owner of a large amount of real estate in St. Louis county, and is paid about $20 a month in rentals. She asks that she may be granted an absolute decree, with permission to assume her maiden name of Amanda E. Bauman, and an equitable portion of the real estate holdings of the defendant and alimony.

The plaintiff is represented by Baldwin, Baldwin & Dancer. The defendant, who is represented by Oscar Mitchell, has filed an answer denying in general the charges made, and also relative to his real estate holdings.

NEW TRIAL DENIED.

David City, Neb., April 18.—Mrs. Lena Lillie, convicted of the murder last October of her husband, a grain broker, was today denied a new trial. Evidence was offered by the attorney for the defense that tended to prove perjury on the part of two jurors. Judge Good, however, after he had heard the arguments today, overruled the motion for a new trial. The jury recommended life imprisonment.

WHALER'S SHAFT BROKEN.

San Francisco, April 18.—The steam whaler Bowhead has returned to port with a shaft broken.

FRANK C. CLARK, 111 Broadway, New York

STATE OF MINNESOTA, COUNTY OF St. Louis.—ss. In Probate Court, Special Term, April 18th, 1903.

In the matter of the estate of William B. Dixon, deceased:

On reading and filing the petition of Lana N. J. Laine, formerly Lana N. J. Dixon, setting forth the amount of personal estate that has come into her hands, the disposition thereof, and how much remains undisposed of; the amount of debts outstanding against said deceased, as far as the same can be ascertained; the legacies unpaid, and a description of all the real estate, excepting the homestead, of which said deceased died seized, and the condition and value of the respective portions or lots thereof; the persons interested in said estate, with their residences; and praying that license be to her granted to sell all the real estate of said estate. And it appearing, by said petition, that it is for the best interest of the estate of said William B. Dixon, deceased, and of all persons interested therein that all of the real estate of said estate be sold;

It is therefore ordered, that all persons interested in said estate, appear before this court, on Monday, the 11th day of May, 1903, at ten o'clock a. m., at the court house in the City of Duluth in said county, then and there to show cause (if any there be) why license should not be granted to said Lana N.

HISTORICAL SOCIETY.

THE WEEK IN SOCIETY

All things have been conformable this past week to the expected after Easter burst of gayety. The weather has been almost ideal for April in Duluth, and the spring gowns and hats were gotten ready the preceding forty days, and everything came but the gayety and the burst. Whatever are people doing? Last week one might charitably have supposed that they were going to church, but this week even that diversion is non-existent. Maybe next week will be better.

* * *

If you like pretty things and did not see the exhibit of hand wrought jewelery at the Arts and Crafts exhibit at the library last week, it is too bad. The beauty of this work, the daintiness and charming and unexpected combination of stones were a delight. One fancy comb for the hair showed exquisite work and a wealth of artistic beauty. The comb was of gold, with the top daintily set with small broque pearls, pink topaz and sapphires.

* * *

A card party on Tuesday afternoon, at which Mrs. E. L. Bradley, of 501 West Second street, was hostess, was a most charming affair. The house was prettily decorated, the reception room in pink flowers and the library was most charming in Easter lilies. The dining room was done in yellow. Six-hand euchre was played and the prizes went to Mrs. William A. Kaake and the decklare prize to Mrs. Grace Upham Spear and Mrs. Albert E. Kirby. The score cards were clever bits of work, depicting a good-sized chicken scuttling away from beneath the hat of a small coon, which had evidently a moment before covered an egg. The invitation list included:

Mesdames—

M. H. Alworth,	W. J. Suffel,
W. D. Bailey,	D. W. Stocking.

Yesterday afternoon Mrs. W. G. Hegardt entertained at her home, 1708 East First street, in honor of Mrs. Alexander Milne. The house was prettily decorated in spring flowers and the Easter lilies. In the dining room Mrs. Albert Baldwin and Mrs. T. H. Hawkes poured coffee, and Miss Pauline Smith and Miss Grace Richards assisted. During the afternoon Flaaten's orchestra played softly, and Mrs. Robert Kneble sang, and the reception was one of the most charming affairs of the week.

* * *

Mrs. W. M. Jeffrey, Mr. and Mrs. Carol D. Norton, of New York, and Miss Grace Collins have been visiting the range towns the past three days in a private car.

* * *

Mrs. Robert Knebel, of Wilmar, Minn., is the guest of Mrs. J. N. McKindley. Mrs. Knebel is well known here and will sing tomorrow at the Pilgrim Congregational church.

* * *

All the interest of the school is centered in the senior play, to be given this evening at the Assembly hall. The annual play of the seniors is always a source of great interest to the school people, and the two little plays his year promise to equal anything yet given.

* * *

Miss Josephine Satler was up from Stanley hall, at Minneapolis, over Easter.

* * *

Mrs. L. A. Mathews, of Wadena, is the guest of her brother, M. T. Burns, of 118 West Fourth street.

* * *

Wednesday afternoon the Irwin Missionary society of the Lakeside Presbyterian church entertained at a birthday party at the home of Mrs. Jessie R. Blackmarr at 4609 Cambridge street. Miss Harriet Kemper spoke during the afternoon of the work which the Young Women's Christian association has done in other communities and the work it is doing and intends to do here. The opportunity in this work to help girls who are working in the city and whose homes are elsewhere in making friends and in general giving them a better time is great. When the local association gets into its new rooms the field will broaden and the work will be established on a more favorable basis. Dainty refreshments were served and the afternoon was a delightful one.

* * *

Mrs. J. H. Sullivan, of 209 Fourth avenue, will entertain the J. D. Culver Relief corps at a sewing bee Tuesday afternoon.

* * *

Tuesday evening the wedding of two young people well known in West Duluth occurred at the parsonage of the Catholic church, when Miss Jeanette La Farre and William Coburn were married. The ceremony occurred at 7 o'clock and was performed by Rev. Father Feehely. The wedding was a quiet one, only the intimate friends being present. The bridesmaid was Miss Isabelle McDonald and the groom's attendant was O. S. Buell. Mr. and Mrs. Coburn will be at home at West Duluth.

A pretty wedding ceremony occurred Monday morning at the cathedral, when Miss Nellie Brophy, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. M. J. Brophy, of 808 West Fifth street, and James Murphy were married. The ceremony took place at 9 o'clock and Rev. Father Dwyer read the service. The attendants were Miss Mayne Godman and George Dondino. The bride was charmingly gowned in white crepe de chene, with a veil, and she carried bride's roses. Miss Godman wore blue crepe de chene and carried pink roses. After April 19 Mr. and Mrs. Murphy will be at home at 1911 East Fourth street.

The engagement of Miss Florence Cramp, of Philadelphia, daughter of Edwin S. Cramp, vice president of the Cramp shipbuilding firm, and Theodore Roosevelt Pell, of New York city, has just been announced. Mr. Pell met Miss Cramp a few years ago at Newport, where she spent much of her time during the summer, and where he was attracted by the tennis courts. Twenty-one years old, Miss Cramp was educated abroad, and was only introduced to Philadelphia society a short time ago. Mr. Pell is engaged in the real estate business in New York and is prominent in society.

Clubs and Musical.

The Apollo club of Duluth announces a very attractive program in which it will make its debut to Duluth music lovers. Elsewhere will be found a picture of the club. Rehearsals have occurred weekly from the time of the club's organization early in January under the careful direction of Milton B. Griffith and something good in the line of male chorus work is promised. Miss Charlotte DeMuth, a young and talented violinist who enjoys an international reputation as an artistic performer, will play the Wienlawski Concerto and two other numbers. Frank B. Webster, basso, has also been engaged and will be heard twice on the program. Mr. Marx E. Oberndorfer will play the accompaniments. Following is the program:

PART I.

"Breeze of the Night" .....Lamothe
The Apollo club.

Concerto for Violin, Op. 22, No. 2.....
.....Wienlawski
Allegro Moderato. Romanze Andante non tropo. Allegro Moderato (a la Zingara).

The Women's Council of the city has been fortunate in securing Mrs. Conde Hamlin, of Minneapolis, to address the people of Duluth interested in the subject of civic improvement. Mrs. Hamlin will speak Monday evening at the high school assembly hall and her lecture is interesting and instructive. The interest of the lecture is added to by a number of views shown of the cities before and after telling the prescribed measures for its improvement. The meeting is to be a mass meeting and it is desired that a large attendance will repay the effort made to secure this speaker.

Rehearsals of "Carmen" give promise of a production that will easily eclipse anything in the amateur operatic line that Duluth has seen. The opera is to be presented at the Lyceum Thursday evening next under the direction of George L. Tyler, the parts being taken by his pupils. Lansing R. Robbinson will be in charge of the stage and Harry Howell will direct the music.

The opera is one of the most interesting of grand operas both in its music and its story and action. The story is thus:

Jose, a brigadier of dragoons at Seville, is waiting the arrival of Michaela, a peasant girl, with a letter and purse from his mother. A band of girls arrive at the cigar factory opposite, and Carmen, the prettiest and most coquettish, throws him her bouquet. Jose falls distractedly in love. A quarrel ensues among the girls in the factory. Carmen, declared the assailant, is ordered to prison. She fascinates the luckless brigadier till he connives at her escape, and is himself placed under arrest for it. Carmen returns to her wandering gypsy life, and tempts Jose, who meets her outside the walls, to desert. He refuses; but quarreling with his superior officer about Carmen, is forced to join the smugglers. Carmen's love grows cold. Escamillo, the popular Torendor, woes her, while the jeayous Jose departs to visit his dying mother. Carmen is faithless. She goes with Escamillo to the bull-fight at Seville. Jose pursues her and, frantic at her desertion, and avowed affection for Escamillo, stabs her to the heart.

The cast which will produce the opera is as follows:

Don Jose—Corporal of Dragoons .....
.....George Tyler
Escamillo—Toreador..Charles Applehagen
Zuniga—Captain of Dragoons.....
.....L. Dworschak
Morales—Officer .....T. V. Collins
Lillas Pastia—Inn Keeper .....

Michaela—A Village Maiden .....
.....Miss Rena Smith
Frasquita—Companion of Carmen.....
.....Miss Bessie Bailey
Mercedes—Companion of Carmen .....
..... Miss Allie Piper
El Rammandado—Smuggler .....
.....C. H. Giddings
El Dancairo—Smuggler.....Cyril Tyler

The reservation of seats has been open to subscribers at the Duluth Music company's store this week, but they have not been coming in very rapidly, apparently owing to a misunderstanding. They are urged to get their seats before the sale is removed to the theater.

DIED FROM CAT'S BITE.

Peoria, Ill., April 18.—Maria Parr died yesterday as the result of a bite received from a pet cat ten days ago. She was fondling the feline when it sprang at her and buried its fangs in her hand. Soon afterward the woman was attacked with hysteria, and later with acute nervous prostration.

Say, Brown, you and Mrs B. look as young as the day you were married—twenty years ago. That's a fact, Smith—We take Rocky Mountain Tea every spring. It's like a dip in the fountain of youth. S. F. Boyce.

AMONG THE PLANTS

Gardening is to the man engaged in it the most interesting thing in the world, but it is a frightfully uninteresting thing to write about. At this time of year the florist has only time to stop and draw breath once a week, and in that breathing spell he wrote a piece for The Herald; then looking it over before sending it, it seemed so dull and commonplace and was about so many simple things that everyone knew more or less of, that it went into the stove, and now it is Friday and I have just thirty minutes to get something to amuse, instruct or provoke you with, and the worst of it is, just at such times you forget nearly all you thought you knew. Oh dear, what an awful thing it must be to edit a paper.

It is too cold and frosty to do anything out of doors anyway yet. The ground dries off very slowly this spring, but when it does, remember to sow some poppies; they want to go in as early as you can get them; always sow them in rows, you can weed and hoe them so much easier than when sown broadcast. But of all the provoking things to come up in clumps, these beat all, for the seeds are so small; so mix them with some quart or so of dry sand, or ashes and then you can sow them evenly; if sown in rows, press them in with the ball of the foot; if broadcast, put them in with the back of the spade, they will come up without any further covering. Sow a good big bed of them for they are gay, frolicsome fellows when in bloom, and by sowing mixed seed stay in bloom quite a long time. One of my customers took me to task about putting my pansies out so early. Well, I have done so ever since I came to Duluth and although they freeze and look bad just now, yet they are the nice plants I take up again and sell to the public a month or so from now, and right here I want to impress on your memory that hardy things don't want coddling any more than a polar bear wants a warm bath.

ANSWERS TO QUESTIONS.

1. Someone has some winter killed roses; so have I. Perhaps our cases are alike. I was feeling lazy at the time I covered them, so I took up on the fork a lot of half-dried rubbish and garden waste that laid in a pile and threw over the trailing roses to the depth of six inches or so. Down came the heavy snow on top, the covering began to heat a little under it and my rose wood is as dead as a door nail. In taking them up I find the roots are still alive and they will come out all right, but carelessness has lost me the sale of those plants this year.

2. Hybrid pertual roses should always be planted deeply, so that the graft or budded part is beneath the surface. It is better too, at the approach of winter, to heap the earth up around the plant, so that if by chance the rose is killed back, there will always be four or five buds to make a new start with, for they never kill where covered with earth.

3. Early parsley. Your best plan is to get a few plants from the florist for early use. Next fall dig up some roots and plant in a box and then you can have a supply for the winter and spring. Of course you will sow your seeds for them now out of doors.

4. Geraniums diseased. When the leaves look as though they had the smallpox I always throw them out, for I believe it is contagious. What made yours so I don't know, but I think it was a chill. Mine was caused by the ice water running off the roof onto two or three plants, and I call it the grip.

HATS FOR THE SPRING SEASON

Flat Hat Is Said to Be Nearing the End of Its Career—No Hats Now Have the Brim Turned Up at the Back.

New York, April 18.—The Paris correspondent of the Millinery Trade Review writes:

As the season advances it is borne in upon those who follow every inclination toward changes, however slight, that the flat hat is, in all probability, nearing the end of its career. We have ceased to have much confidence in the advocates of higher crowns, and it is not on any modification of the crown that we are counting, for the present, at least. Those seem likely to remain low, or non-existent as in the plateau.

Attention is almost entirely concentrated on the brim, for the time being; the way in which this is waved, rolled, bent or tilted in divers ways, uplifted and turned down, constitutes the novelties. Some of the latest creations are shaped so that the semi-circumference of one side is greater than the other. The bigger side—almost always the left—is lifted from the front where it is nearly vertical, and then curved round to shelve obliquely downwards behind the ear. The hollow thus formed may be likened to the mouth of a conch shell, and it is this hollow which receives the most important portion, sometimes, indeed, the whole of the trimming.

The shapes usually treated in this way are the broad brimmed hat with a very low crown and the plateau domed in the center.

We were shown a model of the former class, in very fine black rice straw, the only trimming of which is a bunch of three large blush roses, mounted with leaves which occupied the whole of the inside of the shell-shaped curve.

Another, made of nut brown, fancy braids, has a bright emerald green ostrich feather and a straight paradise aigrette to match, secured in the same position; outside, near the edge of the brim, and around the low crown, are pleatings of green straw, each made of three plain satin braids folded double and pleated fine.

A third model of the slightly domed plateau shape is made up of wide black satin braids and wide chip braids, the two edges of which are sewn together so as to form pipings about the thickness of a lady's finger. In this case the trimming placed underneath the side assumes still larger proportions, consisting of four white narcissus blossoms, a lot of green leaves framed medallionwise by a draped piece of greenish white taffetas ribbon, the ends of which are tied in a butterfly bow resting on the top of the brim.

Other broad brimmed hats are bent down over the brow and still more decidedly at the back. A very elegant model of this pattern is in sewn Leghorn straw of a somewhat curious greenish maize tint. The trimming consists of a breadth of begonia-pink China silk twisted into two parts on the front of the low crown, then encircling it and finishing in two loops at the back, and a fringe of small pink poppies with pale green stalks resting on the brim. Small bunches of the same flowers are placed underneath the brim over each ear.

The brims of others again form little points over the brow in front and at the back, the left side lifted, resting on a barrette. A broad-brimmed hat of this shape is made of a plateau surmounted by a much smaller plateau, the edges of which are turned up tricorne fashion. This small plateau acts the part of a crown and gives the hat a very novel appearance. Both plateaux are built up of white straw twisted into a cord sewn together in a spiral. Leaves and flowers of black chantilly are appliqued on the upper side of the large plateau and on the under side of the plateau arranged as a tricorne, while to border both black comte is used closely gathered. The barrette is concealed by a mass of dark green leaves intermixed wit mauve and crimson fuchsia blossoms gradiated in size, those dangling at the back of the ear being nearly three inches long.

Among the many hat shapes in vogue none have the brim turned up at the back. If the brim is wire behind, it is turned down over the nape of the neck, but many—and perhaps the majority—are cut off very short at the back, where they will often be trimmed with a fall of lace, a pendant feather or drooping sprays of flowers. It is generally considered that a more youthful appearance is attained when such additions are omitted—a large knot of hair filling in the vacant space perfectly. However, this is merely a matter of personal appreciation; milliners are rather prone to favor hats trimmed at the back—perhaps because they show off better in the hand. Hats turned up at the side frequently have this portion of the brim wider; others that put forward or that turn down or up over the brow have the brim much wider in front.

Most of the newest toques are large with the turban effect exaggerated in front and at the sides and a decided slope at the back. Many are made with the top—it can hardly be called a crown—on a level with the upper edge of the brim. Other constructed out of a round or heart-shaped plateau are rolled up high at the front and at the sides. Besides these, there is a variety of fanciful shapes that are dubbed indifferently toques or small hats.

Among these may be noted some new Louis XV tri-cones, some built up of a plateau the edges of which are caught up in three placed by ribbons; others with a regular blocked crown and the brim slanting upwards from it at an acute angle.

A natty little tricorne of the latter shape is made of closely plaited champagne colored straw trimmed around the edge of the brim and around the crown with three rows of green straw closely pleated. In the indent on the left side are two narrow pointed black couteaux tipped with green, fastened by a rosette of the green braids. There is a great fancy for this sort of quill, just now; they are called "couteaux diable" because somewhat similar to those which decorate the cap of Mephistopheles.

The highly ornamented character of much of the straw provided is a trimming in itself.

For a big turban toque made of wide dark blue fancy straw braids, overlaid with thick piping of plain straw, the only trimming is a pair of the beforementioned "couteaux diable," also dark blue and shaded into gray and dipped with scarlet, placed rather forward against the brim. Some medium sized hats are built up of two plateaux of heart shape, made of wide fancy chip braids, to one side of which hang straw balls—tassels, almost exactly resembling hops. There is an interval of two inches between each tassel. This arrangement is most effective in such colors as pale nut brown, light gray-blues and blue-greens, further trimmed with a large bow of satin to match, put on at the back. Shell braids and pleated and gouffred braids make up in a variety of ways; the first arranged so that each row of braid laps over the other, is very ornamental.

The others may also only be sewn down at one side when lace edging or a pleating of velvet ribbon is sewn on the overlapping edge.

Red or foliage-green braids edged with black lace make up charming hat and toque shapes, as likewise white or light colored braids edged with cream lace. A good deal is done by combining braids of several shades.

Sailor hats look very well shaded from dark to light in blue, red and brown, and also shaded from a dark shade of one color to a light shade of another. The braids of the darkest shade are laid at the edge of the brim and the top edge of the crown. Shapes of this sort are sometimes trimmed in quite a dressy style, as for instance, a sailor shaded from black through different tints of lavender to white, mounted on a barrette of lavender stain, which has two ostrich plumes shaded in the same way fastened to the top of the crown by jet cabochons, their tips curling down behind the ears.

Shaded straw is also made up into palettes, a dozen of which arrayed like a huge rosette fastened together in the center by a straw cabochon, compose a very pretty fancy hat. We were shown one in grayish blue shades which, unlike the generality of shapes, was pressed down on the left side whereon a white bow was fastened.

Sometimes instead of sewing fancy braids together they are joined by a fold of lisse caught across from one braid to another in long stitches at right angles to the braid. This method is best adapted to toques, the braids resting on puffed tulle of the same color.

A large toque is made up in this way with dark blue braids, folds of lisse or tulle to match, has a single row of foliage-green satin straw braid to edge the top of the rolled brim; it is moreover trimmed with two bunches of cherries framed in their green leaves.

Another new idea is to arrange narrow straw braids in a rope pattern as seen in so much of the guipure. Such a pattern may face the brim of a turban toque made wide straw braids or it may be used to cover a toque shape made of puffed tulle. In the former case, the narrow braids which compose the pattern, are generally of the same color as the foundation, but in the latter, corn, twine colored and black braids are chosen to decorate white tulle or white tulle over black. Handsome garlands of straw guipure are also provided for application on plain straw hat shapes or on shapes stretched over with white or black net or filet lace. We have also seen many wide white braids used with effect as a decoration for a white face hat. The model in question, a wide plateau hat, over which the hair braid is arranged in unstudied fashion, stitched down here and there so as to form upstanding loops. The hair braid is bordered with black grenne and the shape has two rows of black satin straw around the edge. A large cluster of primroses decorates the under side of the brim, which turns up frankly on the left. Some of the flowers have white, others yellow and others black petals, but the stems and calix are invariably white.

Many straw hats, generally of the plateau form, have additional braids sewn on erect and between these are laid corteaux of soft silk or satin tulle or gauze, and then across the whole is thrown a large loose spray of flowers or a mixture of flowers and fruit. Arrangements of this sort carried out in burnt straw colored braids, pansy blue satin ribbon and a spray of pink roses or apple blosoms are charming.

Another method consists in reserving a plain border to the plateau on which are fastened bunches of small flowers. A pale blue straw hat has three circles of upstanding braids with couteaux of white tulle between, and little bunches of tiny moss roses around the edge.

Fancy Tuscan braids are used in a novel manner in another hat, also in pale blue straw. This hat is entirely veiled with a scarf of ecru lace, the ends of which droop at the back, and across the center of the plateau over the scarf are cross bars of Tuscan braid, the ends of each piece concealed by the garland of pale pink muslin roses that encircle the hat about three inches within its edge.

Flowers are arranged in all manner of ways, in separate bunches, garlands and sprays for the outside of hats and in huge clusters underneath the brim. To the list of fashionable flowers given in the preceding letters, must now be added narcissus and red and purple anemones, fuchsias in different combinations of red and purple and even fancy colors, holly hocks with very pale green stems, leaves and buds, and maroon bordeaux or deep orange blossoms, diminutive moss-roses in all colors, including black, small flowers, such as wild clematis, wild periwinkle, pink, white and red double daisies and the leaves and deep pink blossoms of the oleander. Fruits and berries are also in much request. Cherries again promise to be very fashionable throughout spring and early summer. They are now tied up short in little bunches with their own leaves or in narrow garlands when the leaves of the lily-of-the-valley are used to mix with them, unless used as a fringe to trim the backs of hats.

Hats of almost any color may be trimmed with red cherries, but they are particularly well suited as a decoration for bright green, dark blue and crimson straw shapes. Other fruits are coming in. Mature fruit is to be seen on bunches of apple and plum blossoms, and also flat representatives of the same stamped out in velvet hanging to very long stalks.

Coming from London there are intimations that bonnets are beginning to be of revived consideration among fashionable women. And certainly our Manhattan milliners seem to indicate revived interest in bringing forward their models in bonnets, although they are few in comparison with hats.

A model in Tuscan straw lace braid, made up over white taffeta silk, with rounded crown and brim curled back, is faced with draped and fluffed black lace relieved with spangles and trimmed at the left side of the top with a white marabout aigrette, held by a bow of white Liberty satin ribbon.

A bonnet with horseshoe crown of white fancy rice braid, and brim turned back under draped black shower spangled tulle, has the brim clasped at the left of the top by a rhinestone crescent, and trimming of a white wisp of heron aigrette, held by a bow of white taffeta ribbon. A bonnet of fiber braid in mixed white and black, the brim curled back under puffed black tulle, has the brim set with several black jetted fiber leaves, and at the left of the top the dark green hearts (or stamens) of two simulated field poppies.

Positive Proof of Pinkham Cures

The wonderful power of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound over the diseases of womankind is not because it is a stimulant,—not because it is a palliative, but simply because it is the most wonderful tonic and reconstructor ever discovered to act directly upon the whole uterine system, positively CURING disease and restoring health and vigor.

Marvelous cures are reported from all parts of the country by women who have been cured, trained nurses who have witnessed cures, and physicians who have recognized the virtue in Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound and are fair enough to give credit where it is due.

One of Many Women Cured by Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, Without Submitting to an Operation, Writes:—

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—I was a great sufferer for three years, had some of the leading physicians, and they all said nothing but an operation would cure me, but to that I would not submit.

"I picked up a paper and saw your advertisement and made up my mind to try your medicine. I had falling and inflammation of the womb and a flow of whites all the time, pains across small of back, severe headache, did not know what it was to be without a pain or an ache until I used your medicine. After three months' use of it, I felt like a new woman. I still sound the praise of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound."—MRS. WM. A. COWAN, 1804 Bainbridge St., Philadelphia, Pa.

A Graduate Nurse, Convinced by Cures, Endorses Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. She Writes:—

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—Ministering to the sick I have had numerous chances to compare Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound with other medicines in cases of diseases of women, and the number of cures recorded where your medicine was used convinced me that it is the safest and surest medicine for a sick woman. Doctors certainly must know the value of Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound. I am convinced that you deserve the splendid record you have made.—Yours very truly, MRS. CATHERINE JACKSON, 769 Beaubien St., Detroit, Mich." (Graduate Nurse and President Detroit Emergency Association.)

Many Physicians Admit that no Medicine Known to the Profession Equals Lydia E. Pinkham's Compound for the Cure of Woman's Ills, and We are Permitted to Publish the Following:—

"DEAR MRS. PINKHAM:—It gives me great pleasure to state that I have found Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound very efficacious, and have often prescribed it for female difficulties.

"My oldest daughter found it very beneficial for uterine trouble some two years ago, and my youngest daughter is using it for female weakness, and as a tonic, and is slowly but surely gaining strength and health.

"I freely advocate it as a most reliable specific in all disorders which women are subject to, and give it honest endorsement.—Yours very truly, SARAH C. BRIGHAM, M.D., 4 Brigham Park, Fitchburg, Mass."

If physicians dared to be frank and open, hundreds of them would acknowledge that they constantly prescribe Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound in severe cases of female ills, as they know by experience that it can be relied upon to effect a cure.

Women who are troubled with painful or irregular menstruation, backache, bloating (or flatulence), leucorrhœa, falling, inflammation or ulceration of the uterus, ovarian troubles, that "bearing-down" feeling, dizziness, faintness, indigestion, nervous prostration or the blues, should take immediate action to ward off the serious consequences, and be restored to perfect health and strength by taking Lydia E. Pinkham's Vegetable Compound, and then write to Mrs. Pinkham, Lynn, Mass., for further free advice. No living person has had such a vast and successful experience in treating female ills. She has guided thousands to health. Every suffering woman should ask for and follow her advice.

CRIPPLE CREEK DISTRICT.

Portland Mine Producing More Than Ever Before.

Colorado Springs, Col., April 18.—Recent advices to the effect that the Portland mine at Victor is producing more ore than ever before in its history, is very gratifying. The camp generally is producing more heavily and the outlook is for further increase. The drainage tunnel is making rapid headway, and when this is completed a large number of properties that are now idle will resume operations more actively than ever before. The settlement of the Stratton will case will also have an important effect upon the development of the camp for the reason that this means that at least 1000 men will be employed upon the different leases that will be granted by the executors in the near future. It also means that the output of the camp will be greatly increased since ore is already known to exist in at least thirty different places already opened on property owned by the estate. The outook in all respects is highly encourging so far as this famous camp is concerned.

The Golden Cycle company is making strenuous demands on the railroad companies for more cars, and the hoisting capacity is being taxed to its full limit. In the lowest levels the showing on what is known as the Legal Tender vein is immense, and the grade of ore is much better than it was in the upper levels.

The Granite, on Battle Mountain, is making the usual production of about forty tons per day. The grade of ore is better than it has been for months past. The greater portion of it comes from the upraose at the 1000-foot level.

The main working shaft of the New Haven, on Raven Hill, is being sunk an additional 100 feet, and heavier machinery will be added to the present equipment. This lease has been making money for the lessees right along, and they are of the opinion that they have a very good proposition before them.

The Ajax, on Battle Mountain, is outputting about fifty tons a day, the ore averaging about $35 per ton. The Empire State company is steadily shipping about twenty tons of good grade ore per day.

HELD UP FERRY BOAT.

Negro Desperadoes Rob Passengers of Their Valuables.

Washington, Pa., April 17.—Two negro desperadoes, Wilbur Sharp and Cornelius Wilkens, held up a ferry boat in the middle of the Monongahela river, opposite Courtney, this county, and with drawn revolvers robbed the passengers of their valuables. Isaac Ames, an old soldier, who resisted, was shot through the left breast and dangerously wounded. The passengers were held at bay by Sharp, while Wilkins did the robbing. When the boat reached shore the negroes backed off, flourishing their revolvers, and disappeared in the darkness. Ames will recover.

Dealers are especially invited to visit our establishment and inspect as complete a stock of high grade hats as is shown in the Northwest.

Effective Use of Fringe on Cloth Gown. (Lebouvier.)

LATEST FASHIONS FROM PARIS

Until last year cloth was not included among the materials suited to summer wear, and a cloth gown in summer, unless for some cold day, was considered most inappropriate. Now the craze for cloth gowns is so great that there are as many orders ahead at the tailors' and dressmakers' as though the season were autumn instead of spring. One reason why cloth is possible in summer wear is because it is now woven so much lighter, and, while, of course, there must needs be warmth in it, it is not such a heavy, hot material as might be supposed.

The trimmings that are now fashionable have also a great deal to do with its being so fashionable. A so-called cloth costume trimmed with lace will, in nine cases out of ten, be a lace gown trimmed with cloth. An entire waist of lace, with only bands of cloth, the lining the thinnest of india silk, a transparent yoke and collar and elbow sleeves of the cloth slashed with bands of lace entre deux and undersleeves of plaited chiffon, is a garment cool enough for ordinary summer weather, while the skirt with more lace than cloth is equally cool. Embroidered laces and binding of gold, gold passementerie, medallions, bands and ruffles of lace and embroidered batiste used in the same way are alike considered smart, and are certainly most attractive.

White is, above all, the most fashionable, but all the light shades are in demand. A charming costume of pale pastel blue has embroidery of the same color in silk hand work, and also bands of cluny lace that match exactly. The skirt has one flounce joined in some invisible fashion to the upper part of the skirt and trimmed with the hand embroidered design. The waist has broad bands of the lace, capes over the shoulders of lace, and the front of the skirt is composed entirely of the lace. In order that the lace may be of the same color as the material, and it must not vary the least degree, it has to be dyed the same color. The coarse cluny lace is taken with a sample of the material to the dyers, and in this way the exact shade is obtained. The red cloths that are so exquisite in colorings, the pale grays and tans and all the shades of white are in this way kept in the one-color effect now deemed necessary to any smart costume.

Exceedingly severe cloth costumes are also fashionable, made of a lightweight cloth. They are in coat and skirt designs, long coat, short coat, blouse and pleated bolero, but the smartest are the short skirts and long coats, made of either dark or light cloths and with pleated chiffon waist to match. Only lines of machine stitching or narrow binding are correct for trimming this style of gown, but a perfection of cut and fit is demanded which precludes the danger of the model becoming too popular.

Cloth coats and wraps of every description are in style for summer wear. Like the gowns, they are often so much trimmed with lace as to be in reality lace coats or wraps, but as it is well to have some weight and warmth in any or every garment that is expected to do duty for a wrap it is as well not to have too much lace, but to be content with equal parts. A lace and cloth coat on the loose sacque shape looks very smart with two broad bands of lace down the back and the front, the cloth either being left or cut away to show the lining as desired, and while in everything else the one color scheme is apparently obligatory the linings of the new coats are often of a different color, in some pale blue, yellow or green, for instance. Light tan coats are always lined with white and the color showing through the lace is very effective. The more severe styles, however, in the light tan are now lined with exactly the same shade of color as the cloth, and when the design of the coat is on the same lines as a man's coat the same lining, a ribbed one, is used, but these coats are more on the covert coat order, for the light cloths are all more or less elaborate in design, with one or two capes, lace, cords and tassels, or big pearl buttons, and sometimes facings of velvet.

The sleeves of cloth costumes, coats and wraps are all large, the coats and wraps in the shawl shape, sometimes pleated from the shoulder and the sleeves; in the cloth waists in bell shape with lace puff undersleeves or, if severely plain, gathered into a plain wrist band of cloth, lace or cut work embroidery, but above the elbow all unnecessary fulness is laid in box or side pleats that are fastened down as far as the elbow. While the first inspection of the new wraps causes an exclamation of dismay at the size of the sleeves, a glance at the sleeves of the waist is sufficient to solve the mystery. No ordinary sleeve could ever be put over the sleeves of the fashionable waist of to-day, and these large sleeves are made large purposely, to avoid any crushing of the lace or material. The sleeves of the regulation tailor-made coat that is supposed never to vary in size are now made quite wide and in shawl shape at the wrist, in order to accommodate the sleeve to be worn beneath, for even skirt sleeves are large, in accordance with the prevailing styles, but with the fulness above the elbow kept fastened down the coat sleeves never look badly, for they, too, can be of medium size.

Novelties In Spring Hosiery.

Gay hosiery is to cover the dainty feet of American belles this season. Flowers bloom in gorgeous profusion upon some, while on others appear pretty reflections of the trimming styles in vogue upon gowns.

Roses creep over the instep and up the fronts of black and white stockings and declare the social status of the maiden whose feet they adorn.

Milady whose blood is of a fashionable blue tint, but whose purse is less plethoric than that of her silken hosed sister, wears stockings of lisle thread with designs similar to the silk ones, woven in the mesh, while Mary Ann, whose aspirations lean eagerly toward personal adornment of a fashionable cast, is less particular in the matter of material and joyfully increases her substantial feet in cotton—mercerized and otherwise—hose, radiant in printed floral fancies. She is not critical as to whether the roses be purple or pink—they are in the style, and she is not too particular as to color.

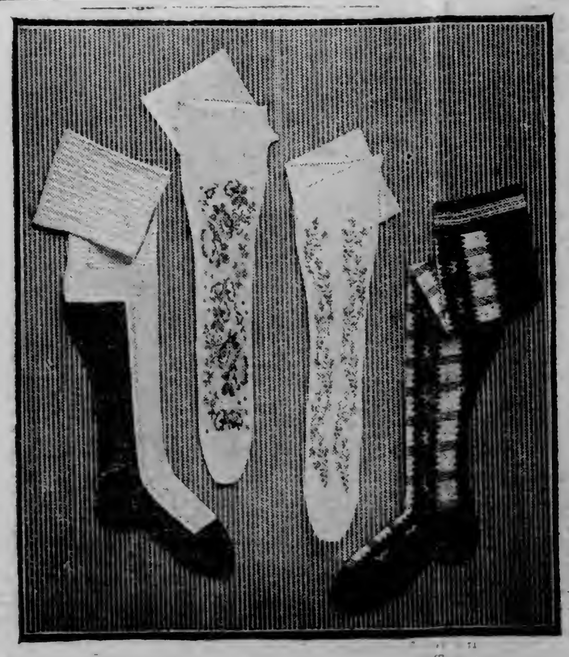
In silk and lisle thread hose appear imitations of herring boning, feather stitching and hemstitching. These stitched effects are in stripes of raised embroidery upon the stockings or are woven between wider stripes of lacework. Sometimes three colors are employed in a stripe of fancy stitching, alternating with one of black lace.

Although loud colors are a distinct note in early spring hosiery, the leading favorites are black stockings, with designs worked or woven in white and vice versa. It is a fad to introduce stripes of three sorts of stitches, such as herring boning, feather stitching and a fancy stitch in black upon white, or the contrary, and black, white or colors upon ecru or gray. Polka dots are also seen upon these.

Many new styles show narrow stripes in various widths of one color, and next to black and white Paris ecru, or linen color, is the favorite.

A novelty is the introduction of braid effects upon plain colored stockings. These are in front and vary in length. They are self-toned, or of a contrasting color—usually white or black—and have just a thread of color outlining the raised edges of the narrow braid or cord used in the adornment.

A style introduced during the winter of a stocking having a lower front portion of one color, with lace or embroidered effects, and the rest of the stocking of another color is still popular, while the use of light blue in these shows how hosiery follows the trend of spring styles in colors.



In plain hosiery gauze has supplanted lace for spring and summer wear, but lace insets, appliques and stripes vie in popular favor with the pretty flowers and fancy stitches so daintily set upon the stockings for spring.

Began With One Waist

When a girl can come to New York a stranger and make a success in a comparatively untried kind of undertaking she has in her something akin to that which makes heroines.

Makes all sorts of waists, nothing else, is the specialty of a young woman who came, unfriended, from the South to make her way in this crowded city.

She began with one girl to help her, in her bedroom at her boardinghouse, a little more than a year ago. Now she has four rooms in a centrally located apartment house, employs from 9 to 14 women to do the work, has among that number four expert French needlewomen, receives orders for $65 waists, runs an establishment costing about $4,000 a year and has a snug bank account.

"It has not been easy," she said, in speaking of it. "Until a few months ago, I had to go out to do the fitting, and that meant sometimes snubs from butlers and inconsiderate treatment from their mistresses and all sorts of trying things. Now my patrons come to me.

"Before I began to make waists I tried being companion, and that is one of the most uncompanionable things in the world! First I was companion to a woman found to be a morphine eater; next to a nervous invalid with spells of lunacy that reduced me almost to the same state. Then I tried nursing.

"While thus engaged I made some shirt waists, and, in a spirit of gratitude to a New York physician who had been kind to me, I made one of my prettiest for his wife. She proposed that I make waistmaking a business, expressing her belief that I would not lack for customers. Thus encouraged, I began. Now I have so many orders that I can't get the expert help necessary to fill them.

"Let me show you something I think pretty," she continued, and she drew from a drawer a waist of lace and chiffon made to order for the wife of a railroad magnate. It was of exquisite design and workmanship. Another waist showed hand embroidery of the new grape design in handsome pattern. Still another was rich in renaissance embroidery of original design.

Beyond a doubt this girl has found her metier in the making of waists.

The Paper Hat.

When the many uses of papier mache were made known to the world, a few years ago, we grew accustomed to the idea of things—even such substantialities as railroad ties and bedsteads—being manufactured from this apparently frail material. But it remained for the most likely and commendable paper article—the hat—to come in at the tag end of the procession. As with all simple ideas, we wonder "why we didn't think of that before."

The paper hat for men's wear has many things to recommend it to the public—first of all its cheapness, a big item in this bargain-hunting age. Its cost is ridiculously low, as the munificent sum of 10 cents will make you the owner of a hat which looks like straw, is light as the proverbial feather and is rainproof as a duck's back. It will not crush, being saved from that common catastrophe to nattiness by a wire inside padding.

It is patented and made in Germany—that last magic phrase which sells anything in this country, which honors still its hall marked imports more than its home products. So we may expect next summer a deluge of paper hats for the million, and so will the pendulum swing back to the other extreme from the purse flattering Panama which has been flattered by imitation so much this season.

"I'm glad to hear that," said a merchant on being told of the threatened paper hat invasion. "My Panama cost me about $700 all told, this summer. For when I shut my eyes and plunged into the purchase of that hat, I had to buy a new suit to go with it—it was like the tenement room that looked too dirty to match the flowers given by a charitably inclined woman—and so the whole house had to be made over to go with it. Then my wife kept throwing it up to me that my hat cost $50, and so—well, any married man knows how that hat drained my purse before I was through with it!"

Savory Sandwiches For Luncheon.

Egg Sandwich a la Lyons.—Chop a hard boiled egg; on a thin slice of buttered bread place a nice, white, crisp leaf of lettuce; spread a thin layer of mayonnaise over it; now sprinkle the chopped egg over all, add the other slice, press gently and cut in two.

Anchovy Sandwich.—Salted anchovies after being soaked are chopped fine; put into a bowl and add a little lemon juice, paprika, a little fine chopped celery and a chopped hard boiled egg; mix well and spread on thin slices of buttered bread; add a leaf of lettuce which has been dipped in French dressing, then the other slice of bread; trim and cut in two.

Curry Sandwich.—Put into a saucepan a tablespoonful of butter and one of flour; mix well and add a gill of cream, a teaspoonful of onion juice and a teaspoonful of curry, and bring to a boil while stirring; put away to get cold; spread on thin slices of buttered bread (when cold); now sprinkle fine chopped hard boiled egg on top of the sauce, add the other slice of bread, trim and cut in two.

In the "Conjuror's House," Stewart Edward White has produced a really good story. The story is not a long one and the action all takes place within a few days. The scene is laid in one of the outlying camps of the Hudson Bay company, where winter regions three-quarters of the year and where the only touch of civilization is felt in fur trading posts, whose habitues are mostly half-breeds and Indians. To one of the company's remote posts, on the banks of the River Moose, a captured free trader is brought in, a prisoner. This young fellow, Ned Trent, has acted in accordance with the law in trading in Rupert's land, for the company's charter has long since expired; but the company is superior to law, and tolerates no competition. Trent knows that unless he gives his promise to "get out of the country and stay out," in longue traverse will be his fate. He will be sent away from the post with no arms and but a small store of provisions, and if he does not die of starvation before reaching help, the company has other means of causing him to disappear. A half-breed refuses, for fear of the terrible factor, to sell him a gun, but points out the slimness of his chances:

"Maybee," said Achille cheerfully, "you stan' some show—not moche—eef he sen' you out pret' queek. Does small perdrix is yonge, an' dose duck. Maybee you is catch dem, maybee you is keel dem wit' bow an' arrow. Dat's not beeg chance. You must geev dose coureurs de bois de sleep w'en you arriv."

The plan of slipping away without waiting for orders, so as not to be kept 'till tam w'en dose perdrix an' duck is all grown up being 'nuff so he can fly," is thus discouraged:

"Dat no good. W'at you do? S'pose you do dat, dose coureurs keel you toute suite. Dey is have good excuse, an' you is have nothing to mak' de fight. You sleep away, an' dose ole man is sen' out plaintee Injun. Dey is fine you sure. Ba, eef he sen' you out, den he sen' oder two Injun. Maybee you fight dem; I don' know. Now, mon ami, eef you is wan' get away w'en dose ole man he don' know eet, you mus' have dose carabine. Den you is have one leetle chance. Ba, eef you is not have been dose carabine, you mus' need dose leetle grub he gev you, and not plaintee Injun follow you, onlee two. An' dose ole man is don' sen' you out till eet is too late for mak' de grub on de fores'. Dat's wat I t'ink. Dat ees not fonny for you."

Ned declines to promise, and as the resident factor, Galen Albert, is one of those servants of the company who have made it what it is, a stern, implacable man, hesitating at nothing, he gets his sentence with short shrift. The factor, however, has a daughter, a yellow-haired girl, with the heart of a child and the manner of a grande dame, and she flis in love with Trent with an alacrity that suggests the burning South rather than the frozen North—falls in love with his daring, because "in him she felt the dominant, as a wild creature of the woods instinctively senses the master and drops its eyes." Of course Trent wins not only his bride, but reprieve and the approval of her father. The plot is filled with dramatic situations and picturesque throughout. New York: McClure, Phillips & Co.)

The author of "What Manner of Man," Edna Kenton, is a Chicago newspaper woman. This "man" is an artist, named Thayer, who is looking for the right model for a Christian maiden who is to form the central figure in a heroic picture representing a Roman sacrifice. Kirk Thayer paints a picture of Mrs. Davenport—not as the Christian maiden, however—and he paints it so well that he appals the sitter. But she will have none of him. No sooner has the painter dropped this self-possessed woman "with the sob about her mouth," he finds a Scottish wildflower, named Clodah, who is his ideal for the figure of the Christian maiden. He marries Clodah purely as a means of securing the model for his great painting. Then when he is about to begin work on the painting Clodah, the flower of innocence, is told that she must pose "in the altogether." The story is one of the crucifixion of a soul and not altogether a pleasant one to read. (Indianapolis: The Bobbs-Merrill Co.)

William Henry Carson is not unknown to readers of current novels. His "Hester Blair" and "The Fool" had general approval from a large number of lovers of good books. Just what credence is to be given the profession of a writer of fiction that his story has foundation in fact is a matter to be determined, but Mr. Carson stoutly insists that "Tito" tells an unrevealed romance in one of New York's oldest and most exclusive families. Tito himself was born of Italian peasantry on his mother's side and American aristocracy on his father's. The book is in strong literary style, the interest in the characters is kept alive all the time, and the vicissitudes of the hero of complex character never leave the reader time for languor. The contrasts of life in Sunny Italy and dark New York are vivid to a degree. (Boston: C. M. Clark Publishing Co.)

"San Francisco and Thereabout," by Charles Keeler, contains a series of pen pictures of the stirring past of San Francisco—of the days of the Spanish mission, of the pioneer days when the spirit of adventure in the unparalleled quest for gold succeeded the romance of the Mexican life. A chapter is devoted to the bonanza and railroad kings and the remainder of the book describes San Francisco as it appears today. The author takes one about the city streets, leads him through Chinatown and the Spanish quarter, shows him the bay in all its moods, journeys with him to Burlingame, Stanford university, and even as far as Mount Hamilton, introduces him to the charms of Berkeley, the home of the University of California, and the woodlands of Mount Tamalpais. The book concludes with a chapter on the great possibilities for growth in the city, industrially, commercially and from the standpoint of art, literature and culture. "The Real Benedict Arnold," by Charles Burr Todd, a companion volume to this author's "True Aaron Burr," which was one of the successful books of last season. In the present work, while not condoning Arnold's treason, Mr. Todd emphasizes his invaluable services to America, and shows conclusively that he four times saved the cause of the colonies: First, at the battle of Valcour's Island on Lake Champlain (the first naval battle, by the way, in which our arms were engaged) where, by his desperate valor, he gave the British such wholesome respect for American arms that they gave up their plan of invasion from the north that year; second, by raising the siege of Fort Stanwix in the Mohawk valley and putting to flight St. Leger's invading army marching to aid Burgoyne, and third and fourth by winning the two battles of Saratoga, which, conjoined, Cressy included as one of the fifteen decisive battles of the world, and which was the Gettysburg of the revolution. Mr. Todd also shows that it was the influence of Arnold's wife and his fear of losing her should her treasonable correspondence with the British officers be discovered, which induced Arnold to betray his country, and not the gross injustice of congress nor the calumnies of paper generals—the motives generally ascribed. The book promises to be an original and unique contribution to revolutionary history (New York: A. S. Barnes & Co.)

"On Satan's Mount," by Dwight Tilton, is a tale of love and a supreme temptation, finding its inspiring motive in the present social and economic situation in this country and culminating in a possible situation arising from the present craze for the centralization of wealth. The author's view of the possible results of the creation of a cabinet officer to represent labor will doubtless create much interest, comment and, perhaps, not too friendly criticism. Prominent students of sociology and labor topics declare that "On Satan's Mount," with its bold treatment of a vital national peril, will occasion comment and win a large number of readers. Will N. Harben, whose recent successful novel "Abner Daniel," has just been followed by his new Southern story, "The Substitute," was born at Dalton, Ga., July 5, 1858. He began his literary career by translating for the newspapers. His first short story was essayed with hesitation, but was approved by Joel Chandler Harris and the late Henry W. Grady. From this time Mr. Harben began his real career as a writer of fiction. His first novel appeared in 1889, was followed in 1896 by a second and others appeared at brief intervals. Later Mr. Harben was for two years one of the editors of a northern periodical. After this he went to Europe and applied himself to study in the British museum. There he began writing "Westerfelt," which the Harpers considered one of the most successful volumes in their American novels series. "Abner Daniel" has now established this author in the approval of the public to such an extent that the Harpers report their advance sales of "The Substitute" as being far in excess of those of any of Mr. Harben's former books.

Cheerfulness pervades every page of C. Hanford Henderson's novel, "John Percyfield." It is an idyllic love story, the scene of which is laid for the most part at a charming Swiss chateau overlooking Lae Geneva. Here a young American aristocrat, studying social economy, is singularly successful in his search for "the indeterminate good." The book has an old-fashioned flavor that is very refreshing.

D. Appleton & Co. will publish about the end of May a novel by Frank R. Stockton, which was written by the author during the year preceding his death, and entitled "The Captain's Tollgate." It is a love story, 95,000 words in length, making 460 pages of text, or the same as "Kate Bonnet," and has for its scene that part of West Virginia in which Mr. Stockton made his home during the last years of his life. Mr. Stockton had this novel written at the time when he took up "Kate Bonnet," but decided to defer publication until "Kate Bonnet" had been issued in serial form and had afterward run its course as a bound volume. It will be remembered that Mr. Stockton died only a few weeks after "Kate Bonnet" appeared. He had however, so far completed the work on "The Captain's Tollgate" as to make it ready for submission to his publishers.

The Messrs. Appleton will bring the book out with a memoir of Mr. Stockton, written by Mrs. Stockton. It will also have a frontispiece portrait of the author and some views of Mr. Stockton's home in West Virginia. Claymont is a stately mansion of a former generation intimately associated with the Washington family, Mr. Stockton's farm having been at one time the property of George Washington.

Carol Norton, whose first book of verse has just been published by Dana Estes & Co., resides in New York city, but is at present on a lecture tour through the West, which has extended over twenty states, and during which he has addressed more than 60,000 persons, and received newspaper reports of his lectures, which have reached, it is estimated, 2,000,000 readers. His mother, Mary Wadsworth, was a cousin of the poet Longfellow. Mr. Norton is a member of the board of lectureship of the First Church of Christ, Scientist, of Boston, and has been visiting friends in Duluth during the past week.

"The Pit" is said to have been the best selling book in almost every state in the Union before it received anywhere near the same appreciation in California, Norris' own state and the land of his "Octopus," where he did most of his early work. The problem of "best-selling" books is interesting. The heavy sales of "The Pit" were anticipated by a demand before publication quite heavy if not equalling the subsequent sale, and it still leads all the rest. On the other hand, "The Leopard's Spots" has been published a year and has just passed the 100,000 mark before it has taken its place with the five best-selling books of the month, as reported by The Bookman.

L. Frank Baum has written and published more books of fairy tales than any author of ancient or modern times, and, especially in America, his name is known in every household where there are children old enough to read or to be read to. It is rather surprising that an American, and a Chicago man at that, should hold the world's fairy tale record, but it is, nevertheless, true. Mr. Baum's new book for this year is announced by his publishers, the Bobbs-Merrill company, under the attractive title of "The Enchanted Title of Yew." It is said to contain even more novel ideas than the author's famous "Wizard of Oz."

One of the youngest among the new writers of the year is Miss Faith Bickford, whose story for children, "Daddy Joe's Fiddle," is published by Dana Estes & Co. Miss Bickford is only in her 21st year, having been born in Cambridge, Mass., July 15, 1882, but she has already done considerable promising literary work. From her earliest years she has had a strong ambition to be a writer, and her entire educational training has been directed to this end. Miss Bickford is the daughter of a retired Congregational clergyman, and has had the advantage not only of access to a large library in which she has browsed from childhood, but also of constant sympathy and co-operation in her literary work.

Harper & Brothers will publish shortly, under R. H. Russell's imprint, a new book by the author of the famous "Wolfville" stories, called "The Black Lion Inn." Mr. Lewis has been frequently spoken of as the lineal literary descendant of the late Bret Harte, and he is one of the few young American authors who have been distinguished by honorable recognition in England. An eminent London editor recently singled him out for this high encomium: "Alfred Henry Lewis occupies a position upon which no one trenches. I wondered, before I met him, what manner of man he was. I found in him a photograph of his writings. He has the innate enthusiasm of the American, a complete cognizance of his subject, and a point of view which is as delightfully refreshing as it is novel and correct. He has been induced to add to his "Wolfville" stories. I have read the first of this new series, and it is a perfect link in a chain of rare material and finished workmanship. These stories have in them the spark which distinguishes the classic from the literary favorite of an hour. They are peopled pictures of a country and a period that will undergo even more radical change than the England of Pope, Steele, Swift, Dryden, Addison and other Saxon immortals, and that will live through the efforts of Mr. Lewis as the England of Queen Anne lives in the works of the great writers I have mentioned."

"My Eccentric Friend," by Hayden Carruth, in the April issue of 10-Story Book, is a story of this class and is of the highest order. Only a real artist can make you doubt whether you want to laugh or cry and that is what Mr. Carruth has succeeded in doing in this little sketch.

Adelaide Keen, the author of the unique cook book entitled "With a Saucepan Over the Sea," which Little, Brown & Co., Boston, recently published, is a native of Philadelphia, coming from an old and epicurean family. She has written extensively for the New York daily papers, Harper's Bazaar, Vogue and some of the monthly magazines. She is an authority on domestic topics, and a frequenter of foreign restaurants. Miss Keen gathered her recipes from many sources, but chiefly, it appears, from foreign cooks, during tours on the continent and in England.

When Miles Forman, the author of "Journeys End," was at Yale, a fire broke out one night in the basement of Welch hall, where he lived. A number of late revelers followed the fire engines to the dormitory. Some of them, ready for a joke, found a ladder and placed it at Mr. Forman's window. Then they shouted: "Hurry, Miles; there's not a moment to lose! You can't wait to dress!" Forman quietly dressed and hurried out through the door and joined the would-be jokers while they were still calling at the empty room in the hope to get Forman out on the campus in his pajamas. There had been, of course, no danger from the start.

Doubleday, Page & Co., though still a young publishing house, has rapidly developed its business, because of its good fortune in bringing out new authors. Among them are Frank Norris, whose "Pit" is now the best selling book in the United States; Miss Ellen Glasgow, who has achieved her greatest success with "The Voice of the People" and "The Battleground;" Allen French, the author of "The Colonials," and Thomas Dixon, Jr., whose "Leopard's Spots" has gone beyond 100,000 copies before the end of its first year. In addition to these are such writers as Booker T. Washington and Helen Keller.

They now present another new author—Miss Martha W. Austin, whose first novel, "Veronica," shows a literary quality of an unusual sort. It is the quiet story of a woman's love, and has charmed all who have read it by the delicacy of its subject and by its unusual style.

Theauthor of "Soltaire," George Franklyn Willey, is indeed strenuous. In the midst of writing another novel, he finds time to personally direct the publication of his list of over fifty weekly papers in New Hampshire, and four weeklies and two dailies in the West. He is a large stockholder in several important mining properties in the West, an active official in several flourishing companies which he has promoted, and he is seeking new business worlds to conquer. In stature, alertness, energy, wonderful perceptive faculties, and generalship, he is said to remind one much of the busy Napoleon.

The newest of magazines is announced with an evidence of cheerfulness in its pages which speaks well for the spirit of the venture. The Red Book is its name, Chicago the place of publication, the editor, Trumbull White, who is widely known as a traveling correspondent in many lands, and as a writer of historical and biographical works. The Red Book in the first number sets itself a high standard of excellence to maintain, with stories by Morgan Robertson, Elizabeth Phipps Train, W. A. Fraser, General Charles King, Cy Warman and Rene Bache, leading a distinctly enticing table of contents. The names of such authors prove that business as well as editorial resourcefulness must be behind the enterprise.

The April Woman's Home Companion contains a wealth of attractive features. "How an American Circus Astonished Europe" pictures the great Barnum actually invading kings' palaces. A Picturesque Moravian Easter" tells of some quaint ceremonies in Bethlehem, Pennsylvania. "The Romance of Lincoln's Life" is reverently told, and in the "Great Movement" series the work of the Episcopal church is pictured. Miss Gould's fashions are notable for beauty and timeliness. The articles on "Home Health-Exercises," "Floral Notes for April" and "Easter Games" are excellent and seasonable. In fiction the number is unusually strong.

One of the leading features of the April number of Harper's Bazar is a poem by Theodosia Garrison, "The Earth Cry," which is a dialogue between a spirit and an angel. It occupies two pages, which are most artistically decorated by James Verrier. Another poem is An Easter Canticle, by Clinton Scollard, and Katherine Pyle contributes some verses on "The Summer Sky," illustrated by Sarah S. Stilwell. Another page of verse is on "Work and Play," by Marion Foster Washburn, Illustrated by Ruth M. Hallock. Josephine Daskam contributes the first part of a most amusing "Biography of a Baby." This instalment deals with the young mother and is attractively illustrated by F. Y. Cory. "The Resignation of the Second Vice President" is a humorous tale by Caroline Benedict Burrell, and is illustrated in silhouette by J. J. Bryams. Margaret Delaud writes about the trials of old maid "Aunts." Florence Scovel Shinn contributes the fourth of her stories With Words, and Jessie Wilcox Smith a double page drawing representing "Two Dancers." E. Nesbitt has written a short story which he calls "Rounding Off a Scene," with illustrations by Hermann Heyer. The fourth chapter of William R. Lighton's novel, "The Ultimate Moment," appears this month. The first forty pages are devoted to the latest spring fashions with a color page of a Paris reception gown as a frontispiece. "Books Worth Reading" are reviewed and such subjects as "Old Blue China," "Setting the Table," "Midnight Suppers," "Cut Paper Patterns," and "Good Form and Entertainment" are treated.

The Burr McIntosh Monthly is the the name of one of the latest candidates for public favor in the magazine line, and if the succeeding numbers come anywhere near the standard in the April number it is bound to be a success. The Burr McIntosh Monthly is different from any other periodical now published, so different that it must be seen to be appreciated. A mere description would give no idea of its beauty and attractiveness. The April number contains beautiful panel reproductions of Maxine Elliott, Mrs. Langtry, Maude Adams, Clara Bloodgood, Edna Wallace Hopper, Irene Bentley, Bonnie Maginn, Marie Dore, Peter F. Dunne (Mr. Dooley). Then there is a remarkable picture of "the kick off" of the last Yale-Harvard football game, showing the entire field at the moment the referee's whistle blew. An artistic colored front of Madam Camille Seygard as "Carmen" occupies the first page. There are six pages of pictures, adventure, rhyme and nonsense. Mr. McIntosh is to be congratulated on the artistic perfection of his monthly. It should be a winner.

The most important feature of the current number of Collier's Weekly is the article on "Capital and Labor vs. The Public," by Edgar E. Clark, grand chief conductor of the Order of Railway Conductors, and a member of the president's anthracite coal strike commission. Mr. Clark, in an authoritative manner, brings out the various influences which public opinion is destined to exert toward the settlement of the labor question. He also has forceful remarks to make anent the incorporation of labor unions. This is the third of the Collier series of decisive statements by great leaders in the industrial fight.

In the April number of Scribner's Magazine a writer has revealed himself who can interpret the region of a great steamer "Below the Water-Line" with the force and insight and picturesque detail for which McAndrew longed in Kipling's famous poem. Benjamin Brooks, who writes the article, is a practical machinist and draughtsman, who has served on an ocean steamer as assistant to the engineer. From the fullest knowledge, and with a mind sensitive to the literary quality, as well as to the practical, he has written a thrilling description of the life in the engine hold. The illustrations by Edwin B. Child, in color and tint, reproduce from actual life the scenes described. In a far different way the romance of what seems to many a dry subject is portrayed by Frank A. Vanderslip in his article on "The Treasury"—one of the very notable series on Government. Mr. Vanderslip's experience as a former assistant secretary of the treasury, his wide acquaintance through personal investigation with the methods of finance at the European centers, his daily contact with the great questions of it as a vice-president of an important national bank—all these things have given him the equipment and knowledge to put in one brief article the essentials of our gigantic financial system.

STOP!

That backache mustn't go any further—it's dangerous—
Kidneys are out of order—Backache is their cry for help—

Serious trouble is sure to follow if you don't heed the warning—
Diabetes, Urinary Trouble, Bright's Disease—they're all the natural outcome of neglected backache—
But there's a way to stop it—

Doan's Kidney Pills

make the sick kidneys well---cure the backache by removing the cause—there's proof of it right here in Duluth. Plenty of proof---the word of Duluth people—proof that you can't possibly doubt---Read this testimony---

Mr. Josiah Collins, of 510 Third avenue east, employed at C. Conn's meat market, says: "I suffered severely from rheumatism for a long time, and during a year was so bad I could hardly get around at all and found it impossible to get up and down a hill. I felt like an old man, all worn out, my shoulders were so sore I could scarcely raise my arm, and the least exertion tired me out completely. I tried bottle after bottle of medicine, and spent lots of money treating for the trouble, but nothing did me any good. Seeing Doan's Kidney Pills advertised, I procured a box at W. A. Abbett's drug store, and used it. I felt some better after the first box and continued their use until I had completed the seventh box, when I had no signs or symptoms whatever of the trouble left."

Doan's Kidney Pills are for sale at all Drug Stores.

NEW THINGS STRANGE & CURIOUS

TREE DESECRATES A TOMB.

In a long-since-closed cemetery in Hanover, Germany, one may see a curious prank played by nature.

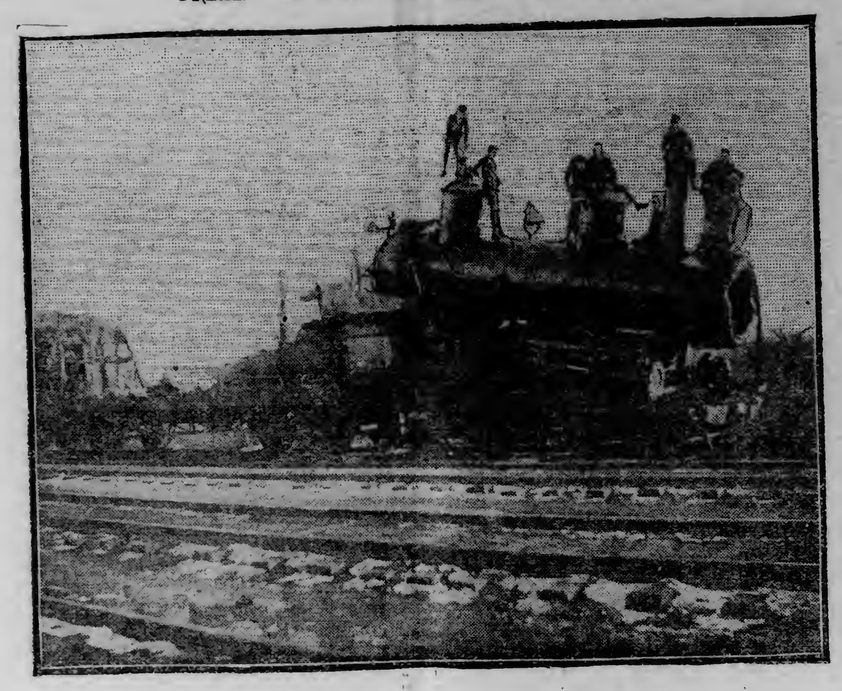
One Johannes Ruhling, the last of his line, feeling, in 1782, that his days were numbered, left word that this inscription be cut on the family tombstone:

"This burial place, bought for all time, shall never again be opened nor disturbed."

Three heavy blocks of stone, clamped with iron, mark the grave. Marble carved to look like overhanging drapery covers the top stone, among the folds of which drapery one reads the curt command.

Not long afterward some bird, mayhap, coming irreverently to bathe in the holy water basin at the grave's foot, dropped the embryo of a birch tree among the rugged gray stones guarding the dead Ruhlings. The seed sprouted and grew, pushing its way up to the light from under the oppression of its mighty burden. Slowly and surely it burst the stones asunder and snapped the iron bars, in steady defiance of the command on the marble drapery. Today, six score or more years later, the birch is a state's tree, and its roots have opened and bent and rent the tomb out of all symmetry. Little did old Johannes Ruhling believe that his command would be scorned and his tomb violated by the result of a bird's carelessness at breakfast.

FREAK OF A RAILROAD COLLISION.



This is a photograph of a railroad collision, which occurred at Danbury, Ct., some time ago. It was a "head-on" collision. The demolished locomotive is known as the "yard switcher," and was violently struck by a huge freight engine.

The force of the blow caused the tank portion of the tender to completely telescope the adjoining box car, at the same time hoisting the locomotive wholly upon the trucks of the tender as if by the aid of a derrick. Although this portion of the wreck advanced nearly 200 yards before stopping, there was not one truck derailed.

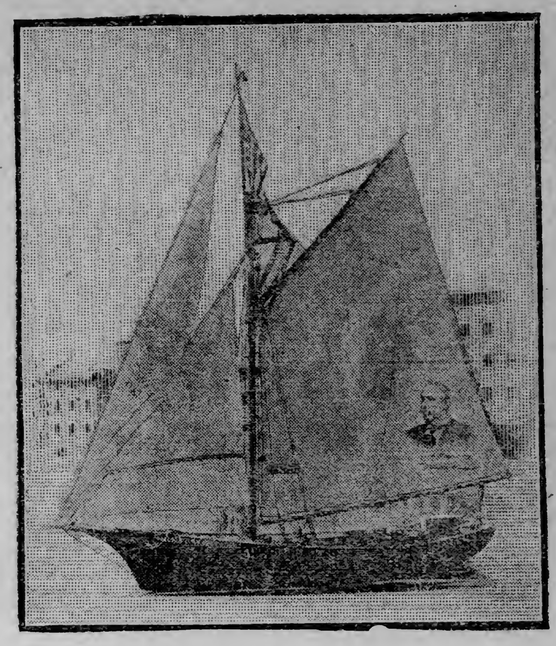
The first life insurance society was started in London in 1698 and another in 1700. Neither was successful.

BIG JOURNEY IN A SMALL BOAT.

Capt. Howard Blackburn has the record of making longer voyages in a small boat than any other sailor in the world. He has just returned from a trip in which he traveled several thousand miles over the inland waters of the United States. The route he took was, indeed, interesting. He sailed around Cape Cod and through Long Island Sound, and then down the Jersey coast as far as Atlantic City and Cape May. Then he went to New York and up the Hudson to the Erie Canal, and through to Buffalo. He kept on through the lake to Detroit, and then to Chicago. He was in Chicago the latter part of August, and after a stay of about two weeks went down through the old Illinois and Michigan Canal to the Illinois River and to the Mississippi. He kept on the latter river to Columbus, reaching there in November. From Columbus he went by rail to Mobile, Ala., and thence through the Gulf of Mexico to St. Joseph Bay, Pensacola, Tampa and Key West. From Key West he started for Miami, but in the Biscayne Bay he went ashore, and later decided to sell his boat.

John R. Strong, of Cambridge, a summer resident of Gloucester, gave him a rowboat, which he named the Laura R. Strong, after Mrs. Strong. In this he rowed up the creeks, canals and the Indian River as far as Titusville, where he hauled across to Sale Lake, on the St. Johns River, and from there went to Jacksonville, where he sold the rowboat and took a Clyde steamer for New York.

The first boat used by Mr. Blackburn was the same in which he left Gloucester, Mass., a few years ago, crossing the Atlantic Ocean and returning safely. He considers the inland trip recently completed far more difficult and almost as dangerous. The boat which he used is a little craft which is less then 20 feet in length. Mr. Blackburn is known as the "fingerless navigator," as a number of years ago he lost all of the fingers of one hand in an accident.



ELECTRICITY AND WINE

Italian wine merchants have reason to congratulate themselves on the introduction of the electrical process for the aging of wines in the wine-producing provinces of Italy. The process is said to render possible extraordinary modifications in the bouquet and body of the vintage, and the suggestion has been made that it might be employed with advantage also in the correction of faults frequently apparent in California wines arising from the richness of the soil on which the grapes have grown.

But the tempering of wine is only one of many uses to which electricity is now put in the wine-producing industry. In an establishment in Algeria, where the Arab labor was uncertain and unsatisfactory, a generating plant has been erected for doing the whole work.

The current from the dynamo is utilized for lighting purposes and for the operation of seven electric motors ranging from 2 to 10 effective horsepower. One motor drives a one-ton crane, which lifts boxes of grapes from the ground floor to the beating room, three motors operate the beaters and presses, and the remaining three are coupled direct to centrifugal pumps, which keep the must moving in the tuns

Two-Legged Cat.

Hooker is a gray cat, the property of a family living in Dunkirk, N. Y. He was born with only two legs seven years ago. His hind legs are perfectly natural in development, but he is without the least vestige of forelegs. There is no unnatural formation or growth in place of the missing members, and the handsome gray fur grows as thickly over the shoulders to which the forelegs should be attached as upon other parts of his body.

There is nothing in his appearance except the absence of forelegs differing from that of a perfectly formed cat. He does not seem to lament his lack of legs, but contentedly uses the two that he has. Like a philosopher, he makes the best of existing circumstances.

When Hooker was a kitten his mother instinctively cared for him as though aware of his misfortune and comparative helplessness.

If her little family were taken from the basket and placed on the floor she would replace Hooker first, although after he grew up to cathood she paid no special attention to him. But, then, Hooker was not so helpless as one would suppose him to be. He managed to get along with only half as many legs as the ordinary cat, and as for tricks and pugnacity he was the equal of any of his fellows and a terror to stray dogs. He has been taught to do many odd things and his accomplishments are the wonder of visitors to the home of this wonderful cat.

Two Armenians.

Some time ago an Armenian bazaar was opened in Marseilles, and the proprietor, who claimed to be an Armenian and who wore the Armenian costume, attracted much attention on account of the extraordinary stories which he told of his travels and adventures in distant countries. French he spoke well, and he gave his neighbors to understand that he knew several other languages, including, of course, Armenian.

Now it happened that another Armenian was recently arrested in Marseilles on some grave charge, and, as he could not speak a word of French, the proprietor of the bazaar was requested to act as interpreter. Very unwillingly he complied with this request, and for the excellent reason that, in spite of all his pretensions, he really did not understand a word of Armenian. In the courtroom, however, a happy inspiration came to him. With a solemn face he listened attentively to the prisoner as he told his story in Armenian and explained clearly how impossible it was that he could have committed the crime with which he was charged, and then turned to the judge and said in doleful tone:

"The prisoner has confessed everything and only asks that Your Honor will deal leniently with him."

The judge thereupon thanked the wily interpreter for his services and the next moment imposed a heavy sentence on the unfortunate prisoner.

A Notable Congress.

The fourteenth International Congress of Medicine will be held in Madrid, from April 23 to April 30. For several weeks the central executive committee has been at work making the necessary preparations, and has been aided by forty committees in the Spanish provinces and thirty-two in foreign countries. Up to the present four thousand Spanish physicians and fifteen hundred foreign ones have announced their intention of attending the congress, and it is believed that the total number of those present will exceed 6,000. Among them will be delegates from the leading universities and medical societies in all civilized countries.

Ocean Lilies.

These beautiful "flowers," preserved in a bottle, are sea lilies. Great areas of the ocean bottom, at great depths, are fairly carpeted with them. But they are not really flowers; they are animals. Where they dwell there is no plant life at all, but only the interminable desert of the sea floor, over which browse monstrous carnivorous fishes and strange crabs of brilliant scarlet and orange hues.

Alligator's Smile.

This is the only photo ever taken of an alligator's smile. Hippopotamuses frequently smile, and have been photographed in the act, but the armored saurian is a melancholy animal and rarely laughs. That he does so once in a while, however, is here made manifest.

Edict Against Cats.

There is much excitement in the village of Beaumont-sur-Oise, in France, owing to a curious edict against cats which has been issued by the Mayor. "Cats," says the edict, "must not be allowed at large for the next six weeks, and any householder who allows a cat to roam through the streets during that period will be heavily fined."

The Mayor explains that the reason why he issued the edict was because two persons were recently bitten by a mad cat. The good women of Beaumont-sur-Oise who keep cats reply that they are perfectly willing to obey the Mayor, but that they do not see how they can compel their cats to obey him.

Gilyak Cradle.

The Gilyaks, who live on the Amoor River, in Sibera, have a curious cradle or cradle board. It is made of two pieces of basswood; the back and bottom are fitted with pieces of matting secured with thongs of leather. When indoors it is suspended from the rafters, but in summer it is attached to a slender sapling that sways with the gentle motion in the breeze, thus literally rocking the baby in the tree-top.

In certain parts of Russia a similar cradle is used, and the one that Peter the Great was rocking was made of material like this, but it was round like a sieve, and had no hood.

Egypt has 1,211 medical men to look after the health of over 8,000,000 people. Six hundred and four are European doctors.

ICE CAVE OF BESANCON.

In several parts of the world there are caves in which ice is found in the middle of summer. In some of them the ice lasts only until August or September, and is renewed during the winter, but in other caves ice is found all the year round. One of the most celebrated and remarkable of ice caves it situated near Besancon, in France, in a hill about 500 feet high. The roof of the cave is 80 feet high, and the floor is strewn with great ice stalagmites of such fantastic forms that they are frequently linked to human and animal figures.

The cave has been known for centuries, and in 1727 the Duc de Levi, who was in command of an army encamped in the vicinity, made an attempt to discover the secret of the ice formation. He had all the ice removed from the cave in order to determine how soon it would reappear, if at all. It was found that new ice formed and accumulated very slowly. Sixteen years after the ice had been removed the floor of the cave was again completely covered, and there were oddly shaped pillars six feet in height. The amount of ice in ice caves is found to vary from year to year, in accordance with fluctuations in the climate outside.

CAUGHT CROSSING BY THE CAMERA.

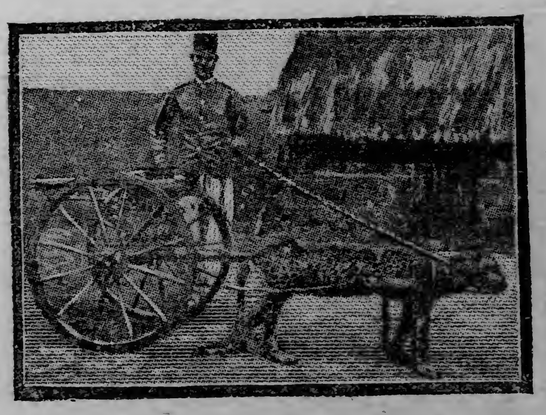
Miss M. E. Shackford, of Troy, N. Y., writes: "In a recent issue of your paper I saw a picture which the article accompanying it said was considered by many photographers and others to be a very remarkable example of the quickness of the camera in catching a moving object. The picture I send, I think, is still more wonderful, inasmuch as the camera, as will be seen, actually caught the moving objects in midair at the time of passing. My cousins were playing with their Indian clubs out on the lawn at their summer home, Holland Cottage, West Sandbake, N. Y., and after watching them a while I wondered whether I could get a picture of the clubs as they were being thrown back and forth. I made a snapshot, not dreaming of such a success as catching the clubs as they were passing in midair."

WORLD'S LARGEST FEAST DISH.

What is considered the largest feast dish probably in the world will shortly be on exhibition at the American Museum of Natural History. It was formerly used by the Kwakiutl tribe of Indians, of British Columbia and Vancouver Island. These Indians from remote times have occupied isolated territory and have almost entirely kept aloof from civilizing influences; consequently they developed and practiced many peculiar customs. Their habits and mythology have been studied extensively by Dr. Franz Boas, who has contributed much valuable information in regard to these people.

The huge dish here pictured is nearly twelve feet long by three in width. It was used by a big chief in one of their leading ceremonies, known as "The Potlatch," or the Feast of the Distribution of Property. It is carved out of a solid section of cedar tree and represents the body of "The Little Wild Girl of the Woods," a legendary personage. The dish was placed in the center of the room, and the long compartment was heaped up with a sort of biscuit consumed in great quantities on this occasion.

LEOPARDS FOR HAULING CANNON.



Leopards have been used with good results for hauling light cannon in several recent African campaigns. For all hauling purposes they are said to rival the famous army mule for patience and all round utility. The leopard was first introduced for draught work in Upogoro, in German East Africa, but they have proved so valuable that their use is likely to spread widely. A single able bodied leopard, properly broken, it is said, will haul an ordinary mountain or field piece, or a similar weight of ammunition or provisions for a campaign. They are not particular about their food and will work all day with but one meal. In the jungle marches this is, of course, a great advantage.

The leopards are broken to harness when very young. The difficulties of taming a full grown leopard to such work are too great to make them of any practical value. The leopard cubs are usually broken by the natives. After a few months' work in harness they become remarkably docile, minding the rein and stopping or starting at the word of command. They are usually hitched up in a simple leather harness, and do not carry a bit, but a tight band about the mouth enables one to guide them readily. They are sold to the soldiers for money or in exchange for clothing, beads, glass or similar trifles. Properly harnessed, it is said that a leopard could no more run away than he could change his spots.

DULUTH'S TEAM WILL OPEN BALL SEASON
AT FARGO

First Game to Be Played There On May 20, and Len Van Praagh Will Be the Manager—Local Grounds Will Be Near Jenswold St. Subway.

Local baseball has passed from the realm of fiction, or at least speculation, into that of fact.

The green hosleried maroons, representing Duluth, will open the season at Fargo, on May 20.

Len Van Praagh will manage the aggregation, and while his team is no complete it is safe to say that it will be a winner.

The rule of the Northern league, that teams belonging to that organization should not carry colored players, deprives Duluth of one of the speediest pitchers in this part of the country.

Wilson, formerly of Wauseca, signed for the Duluth Fashion team before the local Northern league team was thought of much, and though colored, he is far more gentlemanly on the diamond than a majority of visiting white players that have been here during the years just prior to the Knowles period.

Colored players are not generally barred from athletics. Harvard and a number of the big colleges have used colored men on their ball teams, football teams and in track athletics, while in minor leagues throughout the country colored players have the same privilege as white players.

Still, it is a rule of the Northern league, and as Duluth is the youngest member of that organization it would look bad to insist on playing Wilson, and he has been dropped.

The league schedule will be announced next week. It will contain 112 games for each of the six clubs, and Duluth will probably be well taken care of in the way of holiday dates, in view of the fact that there will be no home games on Sunday.

* * *

It will require about $2500 to put the club into the pennant race in proper shape and every person in Duluth should be willing to donate something toward this end. Primarily the Duluth team will establish a close communication between the head of the lakes and the Red River valley, and it is therefore up to certain local business interests to contribute liberally. These interests seem to appreciate the fact, and a good sum was collected the first day the subscription list was passed around.

* * *

It has just leaked out that Jim Wiggs, who at present is on the bench at Cincinnati, would like to come to Duluth for $500 a month. "Clara" is about as erratic as ever.

* * *

The new baseball park will be located just west of the Jenswold subway, thus insuring a better transportation service than the old Oneota park.

It will be for baseball purposes exclusively, and the fence will not be of the sieve variety, letting in about half the attendance free, as was the case at the old park.

Down East they have started the anvil chorus in full cry, and the objective point is the foul strike rule, a topic which was supposed to have been thrashed to death already out West. The fans in that section have worked themselves to a high pitch, and are daily flooding President Johnson's office with letters and petitions praying him to repeal the objectionable rule. The fact seems to have only just penetrated the slow thinking brains of that section that the foul strike is a fact, and they are just beginning to fight it.

Ban Johnson is not a little disturbed at the turn affairs have taken, and inclined to be incensed at those who are instigating the hundreds of communications which have come to him, because, while the petitioners may not be aware of the facts, the instigators are. After about 1000 of these requests to abolish the foul strike rule had accumulated in his quarters, Johnson began sending them up two flights in the Fisher building to President Hart, who is not only the author of the foul strike but its open advocate, and proud of it. The American leaguer naturally feels that all protests should be addressed to Mr. Hart, and the facts in the case seem to justify that feeling.

The American league is powerless to give up the foul strike rule without violating not only the spirit but the letter of the Cincinnati peace treaty. Simmered right down to a fine point, the American league has no more right to refuse to play under the foul strike than the New York National league club has to keep George Davis and Delehanty in the fave of the same agreement. "Uniform rules" was one of the watchwords with which the magnates were urged to make peace, and a provision for uniform rules was expressly made in the peace treaty. It was provided that a committee of three from each league should confer and adopt a uniform code, to which both leagues should be bound by the action of those committees. It is a well known matter of record how such committees did meet in this city; how the American leaguers found that a committee from the minor leagues' association had been invited by Mr. Hart to confer with the big leaguers; how the National league committee, with the assistance of the minor leaguers, outvoted the Americans six to three and so adopted the foul strike.

The American league was forced into a corner from which there was no retreat. Although, according to the peace treaty, the minor leaguers had no right to vote on the rules, the Johnson committee could not drive the minors out of the session without estranging them and without giving the American league's enemies every chance to put that league in a bad light before the public. They were taken entirely off their guard by the wholly inexplicable change of front exhibited by Pat Powers and his committee. The Eastern league, of which Powers is president, and the New York league, of which Farrell, another member of that committee, is president, started the season of 1902, using the National league's foul strike rule, but soon gave it up and returned to the old rule, both magnates avowing that they never would have any more to do with it. Yet they voted with the National league for its adoption at the conference. The American leaguers could do nothing except swallow the pill, acknowledge themselves outmaneuvered, and live up to the agreement they had made in good faith. Any other action would have been unsportsmanlike and might have disturbed the peaceful relations between the leagues, which had only just buried the hatchet.

The Pittsburg club will have to work hard if it lands the pennant again this year. The most sanguine enthusiasts will not deny the Pirates are weaker than last year. Tannehill and Chesbro, the star pitchers of the two time champions, will be sadly missed. They were two men who could always be depended upon in a pinch. Aside from his magnificent work in the box, Tannehill will be missed as a general utility man, for his clever field work and strong batting helped the Pirates out of many a hole.

Then Pittsburg has lost two of the greatest backstops who ever wore mitts in Jack O'Connor and "Chief" Zimmer. They are men who cannot be replaced. It was these old timers who were relied upon to develop the young pitchers, and well did they do their work. Smith and Phelps are promising, but lack experience.

The infield and outfield are practically the same as last year, and should play as good baseball. But if the Pirates win the pennant again it will be due to the generalship of Fred Clarke, who twice landed them winners.

"How to Play Baseball," by Tim Murnane, is the title of the Spalding Athletic Library for the month of March. Without question it is the best work of its kind ever published. It contains nearly fifty pages of pictures showing how the leading ball players play their respective positions. The art of pitching is especially covered, being illustrated by pictures of many pitchers in action who posed specially for this book. Several pages of illustrations show how to hold the ball in pitching, describing fully the outcurve, the incurve, the drop curve, the raised ball, the straight swift ball, Mathewson's slow ball, Mathewson's drop curve, Mathewson's high inball, etc.

The pugilist of today is not the spendthrift that his prototype of other days was. The sledge-hammer blows of iron-muscled arms no longer coin big purses for rounds of dissipation. They fashion them for investments, for snug bank accounts, for little fortunes that are to keep their owners in comfort long after they have become back numbers. Nine well known pugilists have fortunes whose total reaches the half-million mark. These consist of Mitchell, Jeffries, Sharkey, Corbett, Fitzsimmons, McGovern, McCoy, Choynski and O'Brien.

Mitchell is the wealthiest of them all. He always made his matches with the greatest care. Whether he won or lost, he always came out of his battles with a large slice of the gate receipts. He is worth $200,000, and this in spite of the fact that he always lived well and has been liberal in his treatment of his friends. When the English champion fought Corbett he had scarcely a chance in the world of winning. He was in poor condition, his hands were badly hammered up, and in all the essentials of the game his opponent was his master. As had been foreshadowed, he lost the fight, yet he afterward said that he cleared $25,000. Part of this he got from a tour which he made on the strength of being matched to meet the American champion, $5000 came to him as the loser's end of the purse, and this he got when he came into the ring before the fight began.

Of American pugilists either Tommy Ryan or Tom Sharkey is the richest. The former sailor is worth at least $70,000. From his New York cafe he reaps an income of $5000 yearly. The middleweight champion has probably a still larger portion of this world's goods, made in the main by knocking out soft marks, for the Syracuse boy never yearned after meeting the hard ones at anything like even terms. Eighty thousand dollars is a conservative estimate of what Ryan has stowed away.

Since he first leaped into fistic fame and began to have value as a pugilistic and theatrical attraction, Jeffries has been careful of his money. He has avoided the pitfall of speculation that has proved the undoing of many another fighter. The champion is worth in the neighborhood of $50,000, and is still a big drawing card. Fitzsimmons, who lost the championship to the boiler maker, is rated at about $35,000. He had perhaps twice that much two years ago, but has been unfortunate in his investments.

Corbett, the first of the three men who held the championship after Sullivan lost it, has made more money than any fighter of the present generation, with the possible exception of George Dixon. Corbett was the only graduate from the squared circle to the footlights who displayed any real histrionic ability. His monologue still brings him $750 a week. He has earned at least $200,000 since he downed Sullivan. It is doubtful if he still retains more than $20,000 of it.

McGovern is much better off than the man who has twice beaten him. Corbett has nothing more than the money he won in the recent San Francisco conflict, while McGovern is worth $50,000. He owns a fine property in Brooklyn, a string of fast horses, and has a share in several good theatrical ventures. Two other little men, the Sullivans, Spike and Dave, have also fared well financially. They have $45,000 between them.

"Jack" O'Brien, Philadelphia's premier boxer, is placed beyond the need of soliciting benefits. He has about $25,000 on the right side, and will add to it even after he leaves the ring, for he has a good business head, and is a man of exemplary habits. "Joe" Walcott, the "Barbadoes Demon," is ahead of the $30,000 mark.

Choynski, who is one of the most quiet and gentlemanly of all the professional boxers, it rated at $40,000. Ruhlin has $10,000 between himself and starvation. Erne, the former lightweight champion, and Jordan, the English feather, both can sign their checks for $25,000.

"Kid" McCoy craftily proclaims himself almost broke, but those who know say that he has not less than $30,000. Frank Craig, the "Harlem Coffee Cooler," is the richest of negro pugilists. He is worth $60,000.

The two best representatives of the old school fighters, who squandered their quickly-won cash as soon as made, are John L. Sullivan and George Dixon. These men, admittedly two of the greatest men at their weights that the game ever knew, were immensely popular, and earned enormous sums in various ways, but both are now virtually penniless.

Interesting stories are going the rounds regarding Tom Allen, the old-time bare-knuckle figthter and ex-world's champion, who died in St. Louis recently. Allen's first fight of importance was with big Mike McCoole, of St. Louis, and took place at Foster's island, about twenty-six miles below St. Louis, on June 15, 1860. The fight was for $1000 a side, and before they stripped for the fight McCoole offered to bet $1500 he would win, to which Tom replied he had no money to bet. This was hailed with cheers for Mike and jeers for Allen, and Tom, perceiving how strong the tide was against him, said: "Gentlemen, I have no money or I would freely bet it, and I am sorry that so much prejudice exists in regard to my nationality. I declared my intentions to become a citizen of the United States two years ago, and if you will give me time enough I will prove as worthy a citizen as any of you. I came here today to fight this gentleman, and all I ask of you is to give me a fair show. I ask no favors. I have no money, but I am going to try to win some."

This manly speech was applauded by a few, but had little effect on the vast majority, who were blinded by prejudice and admiration for their man, whom they had resolved should win. The fight lasted nine rounds, during which Allen cut McCoole into ribbons. The ropes were cut in the seventh round, but the ring was not broken into.

When time was called for the ninth round the ropes lay on the ground in McCole's corner, and the aspect of affairs showed the crisis was at hand, and a bloody one it promised to be. Several impromptu fights had taken place, and everything looked ripe for a scene of bloodshed, which, it was thought at that time, would strike the final blow to the sport. All that was wanting was for some leading spirit to "break the ice." Allen came forward, undaunted by the glare of the revengeful, passionate-looking faces or the gleam of their knife blades in the sunlight, and as McCoole met him in the center of the ring he peppered him severely on the face and drove Mike to the ropes, where he used both hands with effect on the piece of raw beefsteak formerly known as McCoole's face. In the clinch which followed, Allen's hand, in wrestling for the fall, accidently touched Mike's forehead, whereupon cries of "Foul!" "Foul!" "He's gouging Mike," etc., were raised by the McCoole party. The ropes were again cut, and the excited mob surged into the ring. Clubs and knives were used promiscuously, while the referee, Val McKinney, was besieged by enraged men, armed with murderous weapons, who savagely and threateningly demanded a decision in favor of the poor, bleeding and thoroughly beaten McCoole. The referee, to save his life, said he would reserve his decision until he reached St. Louis, and the next day had published the following statement: "I, Valentine McKinney, give my decision in the late fight between McCoole and Allen in favor of McCoole, a foul being committed by Allen on McCoole in the last round by gouging his eyes."

Two months later Allen met Charley Gallagher at Foster's island and beat him to a standstill in eleven rounds. When time was called for the twelfth round, Tom Kelly, one of Gallagher's seconds, tossed up the sponge in token of defeat, and as Allen crossed over to Charley's corner, with hand extended, Gallagher struck him on the nose, and Allen, thinking a general attack was to be made upon him, jumped over the ropes. Kelly denied the next day having thrown up the sponge, so the referee declared the fight a draw. Allen was also robbed of his fight with Ben Hogan. He gave Ben a sound drubbing, but before he could finish him the mob, which was with Hogan to a man, broke into the ring and broke up the fight.

Allen's last fight was with Joe Goss, whom he also beat, but the mob, headed by "Red" Leary, would not let him win, and Tom, to save his life, lost on an intentional foul. Allen beat McCoole at their second meeting, was knocked out by Charley Gallagher with a scratch hit, won from Bill Davis, and was defeated by Jem Mace for the world's championship.

He was a high-class fighter, game as a pebble, but was disliked by the toughs that followed the game. Joe Coburn and his associates in 1873 tried to inveigle him into a barn in the upper part of New York city to fight Ben Hogan, where he was to be laid out for good, but the writer tipped it off to Tom and begged him, if he valued his life, to leave the city, which Allen did while the murderous crowd awaited him in the barn.

The paths of the present day fighters are strewn with roses as compared with those of their brethren of a quarter century ago. With hands incased in 5-ounce gloves, a large hall in which to exhibit their fistic skill, and under police protection, the Queensberry rule fighter of today is well protected from everything pertaining to mob rule and severe punishment.

A TARPON THAT WON THE GAME

Struggle With Piscatorial Giant Old and Wise and Strong Enough to Fight the Man to a Finish and Beat Him Out.

The Planter told them good-by after they killed the wildcat, for the season was drawing to a close and it was time that the winter sports should cease, says the New York Sun. As they drove back to the house boat they noted, perched high on the very topmost branch of an oak, a male mocking bird swinging blithely and pouring out his full soul to the blue sky and the sun. The Farmer shook his head slowly.

"That's the spring song," he said. "Lays over anything that Mendelssohn ever dreamed. That loafer's wife is down below working like a nailer to build the nest and he's furnishing the music."

So, next morning, the rope was cast from the trunk of the tree around which it had been wrapped for weeks and the Skeeter drifted slowly down Bayou Marie toward the Gulf. They looked about them half sadly at the wide plain, the marsh and the far-off depressions that marked the senna ponds. The pine hills rose blue and misty to the north, the old boat sagged and staggered as she drifted down, and the Farmer, his feet wide apart, grasped a long pole and fended her from the banks. A slow wind behind them half filled her square sail and she raced along at two miles an hour.

It is not often that keen sportsmen grow tired of shooting, but this party had, as the Doctor expressed it, "shot itself out." The jar of the gun and smell of nitrate powder had grown to be distasteful. They had all agreed upon this the night before, and had taken the guns apart, cleaned them and put them in their cases.

In the hold of the Skeeter, lying on the straw-covered ice, were nearly 1000 head of geese, ducks, snipe and woodcock which they could not eat. They would be used, of course—given to friends—but shooting palls when the appetite begins to fail. They had had enough of the open air and began to think longingly of cosey restaurants and newspapers and the jostle of the streets. So they were homeward bound with memories of a perfect outing.

The bayou widened as they drifted and on its green banks here and there were spangles of flowers. The air was soft with the balms of spring and the sun shone from a fleckless sky. Late in March on the Louisiana coast the recreating work of nature is far advanced. Civilized folk had been eating home-grown strawberries for weeks, roses were budding, and on all of the plantations were the smell of newly turned earth and the sight of green growing things. They heard the steady boom of the surf, and looking afar, could see the rolling whitecaps of the Gulf.

Now there was no need for the Farmer's pole, so the Journalist stood at the rude tiller, his feet natutically planted, and made believe to steer. Gradually the banks spread apart until there was a good hundred yards of smooth water between them. The Engineer stood near the bow, his black pipe in his mouth, his cap off, the salt water breeze ruffling his scant hair.

"What's that?" he asked of the Farmer, pointing a long finger ahead.

From bank to bank the water was pitted and dimpled and little bits of silver in thousands flew out of it and fell back again. Above the dimpling, which was the bayou's width, and quite a quarter of a mile long, gulls fish-hawks, avocats and kingfishers soared and swooped.

"Mullet school," said the farmer, sententiously.

The words were scarcely out when back of the dimples the water shouldered up in a long ridge and the mullet sprang in air in an almost solid mass. To the right was a similar rush, and to the left. Some great fish were striking at the smaller crowded ones, and it was wonderful to see them work. Lying a yard under the surface a single stroke of the powerful flukes would send them twenty yards with the speed of light, and where they went was multitudinous death.

"Tarpon!" said the Farmer. "They are at work a little early on the mullet. Mostly they do not show up until well along into April."

"Tarpon?" said the Engineer, and his heart was on fire. "I've got to have one. I couldn't go back home and say I'd seen 'em working and never had a try."

"That's easy," said the Farmer. "I haven't seen a tarpon tight since last fall, myself."

He turned the blunt nose of the Skeeter to the left bank and made fast to a small hackberry. The Engineer dived below and came up with a rod he had brought South with him in expectation of big fish.

It was seven feet long, made of greenheart, and the butt was as big as a man's wrist. The craftsman who made this rod and jointed it with thick brass ferrules intended to hold a mule. Its weight was against it, but the strength and elasticity was there.

The Engineer had a rubber-plated double multiplying reel half as big as a hat, and 600 feet of beautiful brown silk line shot with breen and tested to a breaking strain of eighty pounds. His hook, a single steel one, five inches long, with an inch curve of bowl and a shank an eighth of an inch thick, had a gimp of piano wire a yard in length with a strong swivel at its upper end. He jointed his reel and fastened his reel, strung his line, put on the piano wire and announced that he was ready.

The one skiff of the Skeeter had been lowered to the water and the Farmer took his place with the oars. The Journalist got into the bow as a looker-on in Vienna and the Engineer sat in the stern. The Doctor strolled along the bank.

The Farmer headed his little craft straight out to the Gulf. When they struck the school of mullet he took up a dip net, scooped half a gallon of them and placed them in a minnow bucket. One he threw to the Engineer, a beautiful shining little fish, five inches long and half an inch wide. The Engineer impaled it lightly through the back and cast it out. Four feet above it, just above the wire gimp, he had a large float of black and white cork, and the mullet dragged after the skiff as way was made slowly toward blue water.

"There's no use in staying near the mullet school," said the Farmer. "The tarpon after them will get all they want to eat. We must try farther out."

Half a mile from the mouth of the bayou they stopped. Still beyond them was a litle sandy island against whose outer edge the surf of the open water pounded. They were protected from the roll of the sea, and about them the surface was smooth, almost olly. The mullet is a fish extremely tenacious of life, and this one still swam about slowly, dragging the big float after it. Weighted down by the piano wire it was all of four feet below the surface, and in its efforts made some disturbance.

They sat so for five minutes, the mullet swimming in a circle not more than two yards wide. Suddenly it started off with some speed in a straight line.

"That's tarpie," said the Farmer, "swimming with the mullet in his mouth. They often do it. Let him alone or he'll spit the bait out. Give him a chance to take it down further. Let him go for thirty feet and then reef it to him."

The Engineer knew nothing of Gulf fishing, but he had spent many days with the black bass, the ouananiche of Canada and the salmon of the Columbia, and his wrist and eye were good. He waited still until the float had traveled ten yards, then bore down with his thumb and jerked hard. The line

MODERN FABLES BY GEORGE ADE

The Modern Fable of the Town Lover, Or How the Lady-Killer Blew Up In the Stretch.

(Copyright, 1903, by R. H. Russell.)

There once lived at a prominent Railway Junction a local Swell known as Wilbur. He was what one might call a Half-Portion. That is, he was a little shy on Weight, but what he lacked in Avoirdupois he made up in Nerve. He was a Fresh Gazabe who could get away with anything. For instance, he could sit in a Lady's Lap for an Hour at a Time without starting any Scandal and yet if a fullgrown Man tried to hold this same Lady's Hand for a couple of Minutes, just to be sociable, she would tell around that she had been Insulted.

In speaking of Wilbur the Girls usually said that he was Cute, or else just too Cunning for any use. The Men said various Things about him but what they said did not come under the head of Sunday Reading.

Every Debutante wanted to wear him on her Chatelaine but most of the Men were plotting to drop a little Prussic Acid into his Ice Cream Soda.

For some Reason or other the gabby young Squab who is a Ten-Strike with the Dairy Grays never stands very Ace with the Poker Players.

When a man has put some blonde Esmeralda up on a Pedestal a mile high and is silently waiting for the Day when he will know her well enough to carelessly throw one Arm over the back of the Chair, it makes him Hop-Eyed to see some 90-pound Rabbit with an immortal Rind chase up to the Godless and give her the Kitchy-Kitchy Business under the Chin and call her "Babe."

The Pocket-edition Society Boy can take Liberties that would cause the Six-Footer to be murdered and thrown into the River.

Wilbur was the lowest little Insect that ever buzzed and his Work had a Mahogany Finish. He could put in an Afternoon with five or six boulevard Netties and make every one of them think that she was the High Card. He ordered his Photographs by the Hundred and he had collected enough Locks of Hair to stuff a Mattress.

His Den was richly decorated with Trophies of the Chase and the Postman became lop-sided from delivering his Mail.

THE POSTMAN BECAME LOP-SIDED.

There is such a Thing as being too Popular and that was what ailed Wilbur. He was being passed around all the while and never had time to devote himself to any particular Queen and besides, he didn't meet very many that were Particular. He fluttered from Flower to Flower and he did not have the Heart to tie up with any one of the Bunch and make her his Steady because he knew that the others would jump away or else renounce the World and enter a Convent.

One Reason why Wilbur had such a strong Pull with the Buds was that he never permitted his Work to interfere with his Social Duties. They could get him on the Phone at any time and book him for any kind of a Stunt from a Luncheon to a Golf Tourney. He kept his Evening Clothes at the Office and he could respond to a Dinner Invitation like a Fireman going to a Fire. He never schlestepped a chance to eat.

One of his prize Specialties was to play sympathetic Companion to the Woman whose Husband belongs to a Club. He cultivated the antique Hens who make out the Invitation Lists and that is why Wilbur usually led the German and distributed the Favours when the Smart Set pulled off a Cotillon.

Although he was on Salary he somehow contrived to hold up his End. Fortunately, his Board did not cost him anything and he squared all of his Society Obligations by making Party Calls, instead of sending American Beauties.

Inasmuch as all of the real Tessies were more or less crazy about Wilbur it seemed a lead-pipe Certainty that he would land an Heiress who would take him to Palm Beach on a Wedding Tour and then say like Tailor Bills for all time. However, so many were on his Trail that not one of them had a chance to monopolize him. Just when Hortense would get him off into a Corner to tell him that she loved Blue Eyes, Beryl would come along and begin to stroke his Hair and then Clarice would come up and pin Violets on him.

A Selling-Plater can keep after one Girl and finally hound her into making a Promise but the Honey Boy has to play a Circuit all the Time. Wilbur usually had about 47 Names in his Date-Book.

He never ran short because when the June Brides dropped out a new Crop, fresh from the Boarding Schools, came in to fill the Vacancies.

Year after Year, the Ladies' Idol continued his heart-breaking Career, not because he wished to be Cruel but because he couldn't help being so all-fired Entrancing.

There never was a time when he could have put a Tag on any Dulcinea without putting a Blight on the entire Female Community so he waited.

In fact, he overdid the Waiting Act.

About the time that he outgrew his Hair and began to look a little puffy around the Eyes, the Lumty-Tum Elite caught the Athletic Fever. The Real Boy in Society was the husky fellow who had played on a College Eleven and who owned a String of Polo Ponies.

Little Wilbur, the has-been Midge, found that he could drift into a Drawing Room without causing the faintest Ripple.

Now that he was becoming Bald and Shelf-Worn, no one cared to use him as a Pet.

He was lucky if he got a few kind Words from some elderly Patroness. As for the Girls who owned a Million Dollars apiece, they couldn't see him with a Spy-Glass.

They would permit him to go out and call the Carriage, but that was about as far as he could go.

So he became that pathetic Figure, the played-out Beau—the extinct Volcano in the Landscape of Gaiety. He tried to butt in, from Force of Habit, but he had the Ice-Pitcher handed to him so often that at last he got wise to himself and realized that he belonged on the Top Shelf.

THE FRESH GAZABE.

He did what every Man does, viz.—the best he can. He hooked up with a Maiden Lady who looked all right in the Dark and although a Bundle of Money came with her, he earned all that he got.

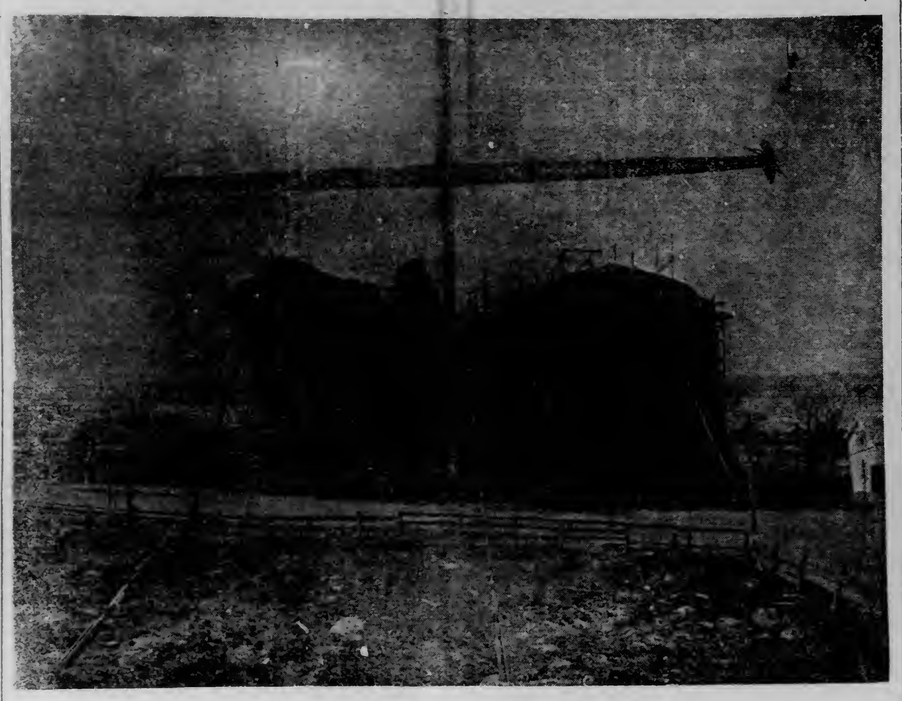
HILL'S BIG STEAMSHIPS

BOW VIEW OF THE MINNESOTA ON THE WAYS.



NOSES OF THE BIG TWINS ON THE WAYS.

The steel cargo and passenger steamship Minnesota, built at New London for the Great Northern Steamship company and launched Thursday, is not only the largest vessel of any kind constructed in America, but it is the largest cargo carrier in the world.

The Cedric, which is registered at the same tonnage, and exceeds the Minnesota in length, has less dead weight carrying capacity by more than 9000 tons. The dead weight carrying capacity of the Cedric is 18,400 tons, while that of the Minnesota is 28,000. The Minnesota and sister vessel, the Dakota, which is to be launched in about ten weeks, will carry 28,000 long tons of coal and 280,000 barrels of flour. This is fifty per cent more than the dead weight carrying capacity of the two giant carriers of the White Star Line, the Cedric and the Celtic.

As compared with the largest steamships built at American shipyards, the Minnesota and Dakota have very nearly double the tonnage displacement and fully double the net dead weight carrying capacity. The new cargo and passenger carriers, the Finland and Kroonland of the Red Star Line, have a tonnage of 12,500. The Korea and Syberia, of the Pacific Mail Company, have registered tonnage of 11,300. The Minnekakda and Minnedora, of the Atlantic Transport Company, have 13,400 gross tonnage. The St. Louis and St. Paul of the American line, have 10,500 tonnage. The Minnesota and Dakota, on the usual basis of 40 cubic feet to the cargo ton, have a cargo space of 31,652 long tons, while the acutal dead weight carrying capacity is 28,000 and their tonnage displacement 38,000.

The new North German Lloyd steamer, Kaiser Wilhelm II, is somewhat longer than the Minnesota but has less breadth and has a moulded depth of 44 feet as compared with nearly 56 for the Minnesota. The tonnage displacement of thethe big German vessel is over one-third less than that of the Minnesota and Dakota.

The strength of the Minnesota's hull is shown by the fact that it is twice as thick as that of the American battleship the Oregon. Where the Oregon uses steel deck plating of a half inch in thickness the Minnesota uses an inch to an inch and a quarter plate. Where the Oregon uses a main frame six by three and a half inches, the Minnesota uses a twelve inch. The Minnesota is of the intermediate cargo and passenger type, and built under Lloyd's survey. She is 620 feet long, 73 feet 6 inches wide, 55 feet high to upper deck, 88 feet high to captain's bridge, 177 feet high to top of mast and has five continuous decks, all plated with steel. Four decks not continuous are the forecastle, promenade, bridge and boa decks, and on top of all comes the captain's or navigating bridge making nine decks in all.

In the hull and decks of the Minnesota there are no less than 12,000 tons of steel plates and shapes and 375 tons of rivets, a greater total of steel strength than is found in the hull of the greatest battleships or of any other merchant vessel in the world. It is interesting to note by comparison that the Park Row building in New York contains 9000 tons of structural iron and steel, or one fourth less than the Minnesota, that the Frick building in Pittsburg contains 7500 tons, or nearly 40 per cent less, and that the Old Colony building in Chicago contains 2800 tons of structural steel and iron, or less than one-fourth that in the Minnesota steamship.

The Minnesota and Dakota are primarily cargo vessels, at the same time they have a comparatively large passenger equipment. The Minnesota will carry 172 cabin passengers, 110 second cabin, 68 third cabin and 2424 steerage passengers or troops, in addition to a crew of 260. Its speed is 14 knots, and it is expected to average 12 knots with the heaviest cargo and in the worst weather. While not as fast as the passenger steamships of the leading trans-Atlantic lines they will be by far the swifest cargo carriers in the Oriental trade.

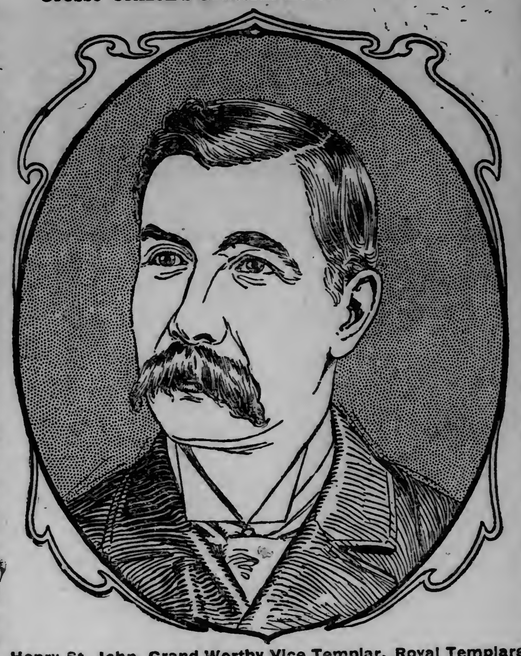
In completeness of electric service, of cold storage and refrigerator plant, or laundry service, ventilation plant and lifesaving appliances the Minnesota and Dakota are the most modern and up-to-date vessels that have been designed. The dining saloons, the cabin, library and ladies' boudoirs, the staterooms and toilet rooms, are models of the latest discoveries in their respective lines. In regard to the cargo capacity of the vessel it will carry a cargo that would fill a railroad train seven miles long, or 125 trains of 20 cars each. President Lewis Nixon, of the United States Shipbuilding company, of which the Eastern Shipbuilding company is a branch, in answer to a question as to whose genius originated and designed the steamship Minnesota, says:

"To arrive at a just and complete answer to this question we must go back before the existence of the United States Shipbuilding company and before the Eastern Shipbuilding company had a plant or even a site. We must look further, moreover, than to the work of the responsible manager and builder. Charles R. Hanscom, president of the latter company, or to the plans of his architect and designer, William A. Fairburn. We must go back to the great mind that discovered a mission for these vessels in the Oriental commerce of the United States, and who saw and conceived even in detail the nature and character of the vessels to fulfill that mission. We must go back to that grand old transportation giant, James J. Hill, whose ideas not only in the main but often in minute detail were transferred to paper by the architect and draughtsman and thereafter transformed into the great steel palace, the biggest cargo carrier in the world, by the builder and his efficient force of skilled workmen."

FROM GRAND WORTHY TEMPLAR ST. JOHN

He Owes His Health To Kickapoo Indian Sagwa.

Gall Stones and Inflammation of the Bladder made Him a Miserable Sufferer. A dozen remedies failed to Cure Him, but Sagwa, which Never Fails, Cured Him in Two Months. Read this prominent La Crosse Citizen's Grateful Letter.



Henry St. John, Grand Worthy Vice Templar, Royal Templars of Temperance.

KICKAPOO INDIAN MEDICINE CO.

Gentlemen:—I was a very sick man, full of pains and misery, my trouble being Gall Stones and Inflammation of the Bladder. I urinated with great pain, and any little jar or over-exertion would completely upset me. Life looked pretty black and I had but little hope of getting well. I tried at least a dozen remedies, but none seemed to help me; so upon the advice of a friend I took a course of treatment with Kickapoo Indian Sagwa. It was a great blessing as it brought quick relief and a cure to me. Within two months I was like a new man, the functions of life again operating naturally and easily and my pains gone. I can eat, sleep and work as I did 20 years ago, and I owe it all to your wonderful Kickapoo Sagwa.

HENRY ST. JOHN, La Crosse, Wis.

If you are ill and miserable with Kidney Disease, Liver Trouble, Indigestion, Dyspepsia, Rheumatism or any disorder of the Stomach, Heart or Blood, you need not suffer longer, for Kickapoo Indian Sagwa, the guaranteed vegetable remedy, will surely cure you. If your case is chronic, one or two bottles may not cure you, but they will relieve and benefit you, and if you continue the treatment good health will soon be yours again. Kickapoo Indian Sagwa cures where other remedies fail, just as it did in Mr. St. John's case. A word of warning, don't delay. Commence taking Sagwa at once, for when one is sick, time is wonderfully precious. Realize your danger now and consider your condition. Are you sleepless? Are you constipated? Is your body branded and blistered by eruptions? Is your appetite failing? Are you nervous and irritable? Is your breath bad and your tongue coated? Do you feel weak and listless? These are a few of the symptoms that indicate the rising tide of disease. The present is yours, act now. Kickapoo Indian Sagwa makes Nature work. It has saved thousands from peril. It drives out the impurities that taint the blood. It enables the stomach to digest and assimilate the food. It cleanses the kidneys and tones up the liver by removing the obstructions that prevent the harmonious working of these great organs of the body. Kickapoo Indian Sagwa is Nature's own remedy, a compound of healing roots, barks, herbs and gums, that cleanse the system, and promote the healthy action of the physical organs.

Remember, Sagwa is sold under a positive guarantee. Your money back if not satisfactory. At all druggists. 50 cents and $1.00 a bottle.

felt as if it were tied to a tree. Then the tip of the big rod was snatched down until it struck the water and the crank of the reel was jerked from his fingers and the tarpon was away.

Close to the surface, he heaved the water up a foot and he was fifty yards away going with twice the speed of a torpedo boat before the Engineer awoke to a realization of what had happened. It was useless to attemp to grasp the whirling crank: it would have knocked a finger-nail off as neatly as a hammer. On his left thumb he wore a heavy stall of leather and he pressed this down on the line savagely. He could feel the heat of the flying silk through the leather.

At last, when quite 150 yards were out, the tarpon turned at right angles, dashed rapidly for thirty yards parallel with the skiff, then half-wheeled and started back, coming in as fast as he went out. The Engineer was an expert with the reel and he made his hand buzz reeling in, but it was not fast enough to take up the slack.

When the tarpon stopped after a dash of fifty yards, no longer feeling the strain on his jaw, there was 100 feet of loose curved line lying on the water. The Engineer kept on reeling and swore softly under his breath. Never on the Columbia or elsewhere had he known any fish to go for more than 400 feet without a bobble, then start in again for 150 feet, driving at top speed.

"If he wheeled now and went against the slack, he'd have me," he muttered, and he reeled desperately.

The Farmer, up to every trick of the tarpon, had bent to the oars when the first rush was made and endeavored to keep up as nearly as possible and so help to save tackle. Now he rested idly on the oars while the slack was coming in and the tarpon lay motionless. The fish was so close to the surface that his long black fin could be seen projecting an inch from the water.

"He's a big one and an old one and a wise one," said the Farmer. "You'll have your hands full. The only thing you can do is to fight him for every inch of the silk. Don't give him any more slack than you can help, and hold on. He hasn't found out yet what's the matter with him. He supposed at first that the mullet had scratched him and made his rush in anger. He didn't understand the strain of the line and took the other course to get rid of it. It's let up on him now and he thinks that he is rid of it. When he feels the hook again he'll know that there's serious trouble and he'll get too angry to see straight. Look out for war then."

"Well," said the Engineer, "I've handled the salmon, and I'll try this fellow, but he's a monster, sure. The hook's well in; that's one comfort."

The line came taut and the fish felt the pain of the hook anew. Then a strange thing happened—a thing new to the Engineer, though common enough in the experience of those who go down to the sea for tarpon. The big swimmer did not rush, did not dive, did not make a move in the water that anyone could see or feel. He just came straight up like a bird, came up in the clear a good five feet, half-curved in air and at the topmost reach of his arch shook his head, slinging it wildly from side to side in the effort to throw the hook far away. It held, however, and he struck the water jaws downward and then off again.

This time the rush was short—for a tarpon—not more than thirty yards covered in one splendid lightning dash, and at its end he rose once more, tail on, plunging to the surface in a beautiful curve. Then he wheeled, and, holding his head to the men, would rise half from the water and sling his body about, still seeking to throw out the hook. This not serving, he would spring and stand upon his head, diving straight downward to a depth of twenty feet, which would bring him near to the bottom of sand and old shells.

In each of these enterprises the Engineer was required to be exceedingly wide awake. His task was not so much to take in silk as to avoid getting the full weight of the tarpon on the taut line, which would have resulted in snapping the silk or tearing out the hook, though it was firmly imbedded in the tough flesh at the entrance of the throat. The inner lining of the tarpon's jaws is of a membrane almost as hard as bone, and no hook will take sufficient hold there.

Gradually the boat had been towed and drifted until now it was quite a mile from the mouth of the bayou.

When the fish was standing upon its head, writhing and diving to dislodge the steel, it was not more than fifty yards from the skiff, and the Engineer felt no uneasiness about his tackle running out, but now, when the fight had lasted for all of an hour, the tarpon took a fresh spurt.

He wheeled and started out in imitation of his first dash, going strong fast and free, and the thumb stall jammed upon the silk had no deterrent effect at all. When he had out nearly 500 feet of line he began a sideways race. He would dash through the water in a straight line for fifty yards, bearing hard on the hook, then wheel and whirl and dash back again, carrying up the surface before him and leaving a wide wake of bubbles.

Often in the midrush he would throw himself high, so high that the sandy island and far out to sea the horizon could be seen under his white belly and the broad scales of him gleamed in the pouring sunshine like a massive bar of virgin silver.

Tired of long-range fighting, at last he came in at half speed to get a closer view of the thing that was checking him, and the Engineer took up the line as he came. When within thirty yards of the skiff the tarpon suddenly shot forward with great speed, gaining six feet and making a small loop of slack in the line, then he threw himself across it suddenly and rolled over and over. His object was to wrap the line about his body several times and then, with the cruel pang in his throat lessened, to break it by sheer weight.

As luck would have it—and it was purely luck, for no human skill could guard against the move—he missed the line with his body and did not entangle it in his rolling. It came stiff and straight as the angler reeled furiously, and the strain was still on the hook. Warring at such close range and going from the water frequentl. bright streaks could be seen along the plano wire where he had gashed it with his teeth, and the need of the metal was plainly shown. But for that tough gimp the fish would have cut himself loose in five minutes.

The Engineer does not know today how it happened, but suddenly his left hand lost all power and the rod fell to the bottom of the boat with a crash. He tried to hold by the handle of the reel crank, but could not. Luckily the rod fell in such a fashion that the crank of the reel was uppermost, and the spindle continued to revolve as the fish shot away.

The Engineer did not know it, but the battle had lasted for an hour and a half, and he had been fought to a standstill and clean whipped by his great adversary. He had felt no pain, but his left wrist had been terribly strained and was now useless and swelling rapidly. From his thumb a tiny stream of blood ran down where the silk had cut through the leather and gashed the skin. The crank of the reel hummed like a spinning wheel. The Farmer stooped forward, but too late. The last inch of silk paid out and popped. The tarpon was away.

The Engineer sat breathing heavily and said not a word. The Farmer said cordially: "It was well fought," and bent to the oars.

The Balloon-Bubble

BY W. LIVINGSTON LARNED.

Wee One had stood tip-toe by the window until shadows began to gather among the trees in the garden, and the soap bubbles, sent afloat over the grass plot, reflected grotesque shapes that were not as pretty as a little girl might wish.

"Just one more, and then you must come up stairs," said Wee One's mamma, calling down from the landing.

Wee One shook a big, fat bubble, radiantly red from the sunset, from the end of her clay pipe and dipped it once more in a bowl of soapy water.

"Just one more," cried a voice from the shadows. "Mamma won't care, and then"——

When Wee One looked she saw that the returning bubble was talking to her and that it had legs and arms, like a real sprite. Ordinarily Wee One would have scampered away in alarm, but this was nothing more than a fairy bubble, and brave girls were not daunted by such things.

The Bubble Sprite sat crosslegged on the window sill, his face radiant.

"Do what I say!" he cried, bracing himself as a gust of wind came around the corner of the house. "Mamma won't care if it's only one more."

This did not sound like proper doctrine, but Wee One yielded. She blew on the pipe until her sides ached, and the bubble grew until it consumed nearly all the space in the alcove window.

"Now for a little aerial navigation," called the Sprite, who, with both hands grasping the ledge, was having considerable difficulty in preventing his head from brushing the woodwork.

Wee One felt chilly; her clothes were damp. She dropped the pipe and attempted to back away from the window, yet without avail, for when she looked the window was several feet beneath her and she was being lifted clear of the garden, far up and out, out across the yard, while the lilacs drooped in their beds as they said "Good night."

"I want to go back!" called Wee One, fearfully.

"Just one more minute!" called the voice of the Bubble Sprite.

He was floating along some yards distant, but Wee One could not see him distinctly, for she was within the last bubble that had been blown from the pipe, inside a large globe of soapy water that reflected colors from the evening sky.

It was useless to argue with a fairy, so up they soared, quite above the town, into a world of clouds.

"Would you like to stop now?" inquired the Sprite. Wee One nodded her head. She was too excited to speak.

The Sprite pushed her balloon bubble over a smooth road until they came to a factory, where dozens and dozens of sprites were blowing bubbles. When they reached a certain size they were nipped off, held over little furnaces clipped with big metal shears.

"What is that?" inquired Wee One, regaining her speech.

"They are making bowls for jelly fish and Globe Suspended by Spider Webs.

incandescent lamp globes for the fairy city of Bubbleovia," came the response. "Everything is made out of soap and water here. Our King grew tired of seeing nothing but jelly fish a-swim in his bubble bowls in the royal palace, and it was suggested that we import a real live girl. I was chosen for the task, and here you are."

Wee One puckered up her mouth in anger and alarm. "But am I to be like a goldfish and stay penned up just for people to look at me?" she inquired.

The Sprite laughed.

"You had the honor of breaking the heads of any number of Bubbleville knights on the grass plat today," said the sprite gravely.

He rolled the big soap globe along the road and across the drawbridge made of sunlight into a gorgeous palace.

Wee One was dimly conscious of people in strange filmy robes about her and the King of Bubbleville, with a funny crown upon his transparent pate.

Courtiers fastened the globe with spider-web cords and it was suspended from the ceiling in the throne room. Whenever the King grew weary of having people's heads cracked or issuing soap edicts he would bend over and look at Wee One, forever running up and down the sides of the bubble in a vain effort to get out.

The Jester carried a bow and arrow.

"You are nicer than a jellyfish," he asserted one day. "There was always a clash when it came to jellyfish anyway—my wife wanted raspberry jellyfish and I am partial to quince. We both agree that you are very amusing."

Wee One became acquainted with the Court Jester, whose duty it was to keep the King in a continual state of good humor.

On bright mornings, when the throne room was aglitter with gold from reflected sunshine and each fibre of royal habitation was brilliantly illuminated, then came the Jester, who always carried a bow and arrow. He would wander cautiously around the room, and if a joke that had been dropped by some cavalier chanced to be fluttering to concealment he would promptly aim at it and impale it upon the emblazoned walls with an arrow.

Wee One remembered only one joke. She had heard it long, long before.

"When is a door not a door?" When it's a-jar.

She wrote it upon a piece of paper and stuck it, face outward, upon the side of the bubble, as high as she could reach.

That evening, when the throne room was alive with shadows, the Jester came in, with mournful tread, hopeful that some stray joke had found temporary lodgement among the rafters.

He did not see the bubble balloon, and the little girl crouched at the bottom of it—he only caught sight of the joke pasted to the side of the globe. He stooped in the shadow, drew his bow, and twang—

A sudden rush of air, a splattering of soap particles about her head, and Wee One slid down a strand of spider web and landed safely upon the floor. The Court Jester's arrow had gone through the joke and carried it to the other side of the room, so she was not discovered.

On the following day a crowd gathered in the throne room of the palace—a noted physician had stated that unless the King laughed his death would follow, as his gout had taken a turn for the worse.

There were many attempts to bring about the desired result, but just as the joke was sprung the King twisted up from the agony of the disease and refused point blank to think anything funny.

Then came the Jester with the joke that Wee One had written, so old in her world, so new in Bubbleville:—"O King, when is a door not a door?"

"That begins well," returned His Highness, twitching, "but spring the joke. I am likely to pass away at any moment. 'When is a door not a door?'"

"When it's a—when it's a—a—a—" sputtered the Jester, but he could not continue, for the end of the sheet containing the answer was gone. His arrow had cut it off and it had been blown into obscurity.

The King of Bubbleville folded his hands nervously. The Jester could not for the life of him remember the end of the conundrum.

"Take him away!" roared the King. Then, looking at his watch, "I have just twenty minutes to live. The one who completes the joke shall have his wish granted."

A gray headed philosopher, who desired an automobile in which to take his lessons to market, stepped forward.

"A door is not a door when it's a window," he said; but the King ordered him to be beheaded.

Wee One saw her opportunity.

Scampering from beneath the curtains she fitted in the missing word and was sent home on the Bubble Express Limited as a reward.

The Arrow Went Through the Joke.

Under the wand of tender spring,
Whose magic none resists,
Fresh beauty comes on everything
Bathed in the sun and mists.
Each bud becomes a leaf or flower
In the radiance sublime
That falls o'er hill and vale and bow'r
In gladsome April time.

A Ring Trick

A boy of our acquaintance astonished his host and the guests at a party the other night by asking that a bowl of water be brought into the parlor.

"You may have the bowl of water, of course," said the host, "but may I ask what you are going to do with it?"

"I want to show you a trick," answered the boy. "I promise not to spill the water or muss up anything, so you needn't be afraid to let me try it."

"Now," he said, "I want to borrow a finger ring, and I'm going to put it into that bowl and then take it out with my hand without getting my hand wet."

"Oh, you can't do it!" cried a dozen of his companions. "Whoever heard of putting your hand into water without getting it wet?"

"Of course I didn't expect you to believe me," said the young experimenter; "but wait and I'll show you a thing or two."

One of the girl's handed him a ring, and having put it into the bowl he stood back so that they might all see it. Then he took a little paper package from his pocket, and emptied from it a powder, distributing it over the surface of the water.

"What's that?" asked his host.

"Oh, that's my patent anti-wet," answered the boy. "Now, watch me; I'm going to take that ring out with my hand, and if the hand gets at all wet I promise to drink the water, ring, powder and all."

And he did take the ring out with his hand, and he did not get his hand wet.

Of course, you want to know how he did it, so that you may astonish some of your friends. The powder that he threw on the water was lycopodium, and as he plunged his hand into the water the lycopodium covered it like a waterproof glove, for that substance and water have no affinity for each other. Try it.

The Indian Dolls.

The Indian papa and mamma dolls,
With the little pappoose at their side,
Belong to a little Ojibway girl,
And her name is Mari-gold-wild.

They are dressed, you must know, with beadwork fine,
Tobacco pouch, purse and necklace;
And Mari-gold-wild loves them nearly to death,
And keeps in the wigwam their place.

If Mari-gold-wild saw your dolly, so fine,
And her own, so dark and queer,
Do you think she would choose the flaxen-haired doll
Or the ones that to her are so dear?

KATHERINE LOUISE SMITH.

Snow Races.

Races through deep snow are an attractive feature of winter sports in Germany, and athletes who take part in them do not always fare very successfully.

The reason is because over the ground which the runners must cross are laid nets with strong meshes, and as these are covered by the snow, and hence are invisible, the men's feet almost always catch in them, the result being that a race, instead of being won by the swiftest runner, is generally won by him who is lucky enough to escape the nets or who succeeds in freeing himself the most quickly from their meshes.

Races of this kind always attract large crowds, and there is much amusement when the nets begin to get in their deadly work.

New Jersey's Boy Farmer.

Elmer Mixner, of Beebe Run, near Shiloh, N. J., is 12 years old, and the proprietor of a large and flourishing farm of 40 acres. There he raises prize Jerseys, gathers the fruit from a fine apple, peach and pear orchard, and looks after a well stocked barnyard and dairy.

One of young Mixner's cows has just carried off a $1,000 prize that was tried for by many veteran farmers who were obliged to yield the palm to the boy competitor.

Elmer's farm was started with one thoroughbred Jersey cow and her calf. Three years ago this spring Mr. Mixner presented his son with the valuable Jersey and told him he could bank the proceeds he received from her milk, and put the calf up for sale if he wished. Young Mixner soon established an extensive milk route, and as payment was prompt, it was not many weeks before the bank account was opened and the capital soon reached three figures.

The calf brought a good round sum, but before she was sold Elmer had bought a number of chickens and was selling eggs. Later he drove home two cows and a bull which he had bought from a Shiloh farmer, and so the farm was started.

Adjoining his home was a number of acres of rich meadow land which only needed cultivation to be made to yield rich harvests. Mr. Mixner sold his son these 40 acres on easy terms.

The boy had a new barn built on the best approved hygienic plans, and he advertised for farm hands of experience. Then he took in the lay of the land and soon had the various fields marked out. He superintended the hoeing and ploughing and planting, and he worked with a will in the field or barn, rising with the sun and going to bed a tired but happy lad when the chickens went to roost.

That was in May of 1901, and in June the residents of Beebe Run and Shiloh were buying onions and giving orders for radishes to the young farmer. Next came, in July, his peas, orders for which exceeded the supply. In August he gathered corn, lima beans and tomatoes, all of which found a ready sale.

On the acres were several groves of fruit trees which had been neglected. "As soon as I bought the farm I secured a man to prune and graft those trees," the young farmer remarked when showing his visitor over the place. "I knew that the new trees I had just planted would not bear fruit for several years, and I wanted to get my apples and peaches in market that year.

"I find a ready market for butter, eggs and milk, and I cannot supply the demand for green stuff. Fruit is plentiful in Beebe, so I am going to send my peaches and pears to Philadelphia markets. The apples we use ourselves on the farm, with the exception of about four barrels, which I sell to a neighbor.

"Last summer was a very profitable one. Almost all the stock proved healthy, and the milk route became so extensive I had to engage two boys regularly to help me. We get up at 4 o'clock all year round and hustle out with the milk wagons, and in winter time are back for breakfast at 8 at the latest, and that gives us plenty of time to be in school by 9.

"Last spring I planted asparagus and strawberries in addition to my other crops. These I also sent largely to Philadelphia, although they would have found a ready sale in Shiloh.

"Last Thanksgiving and Christmas I made a pile of money on my turkeys and chickens. Every one said to me, 'Oh, don't try to raise turkeys, they will cost you more money and time than they will ever bring.' But I had decided to try, and they certainly flourished and grew fat in the most gratifying manner. Whether last year happened to be an especially good year for turkeys or not, I do not know, but anyhow I cleared $75 on my first flock and I'm going to double the number next year.

"My chickens are fine. Many of them have carried off prizes for breed and size. I have 100 pure white ones, most of them show chickens.

"We are now getting ready for busy times on the farms. I want to plant over twice the quantity of every vegetable this year and that means a lot of work. Planting is a cinch, though, compared with harvesting and haying. That's when a fellow's back aches and he has to keep his mind on the coming dollars, else he's off to the cool fish pond and the farm suffers."

A Home-Made Blow Gun.

A good blow gun gives boys lots of fun, and we are going to tell you how to make one of the best.

The gun may be of wood, of tin, or of glass, but the latter is the best. It is a glass tube with an internal diameter of one-quarter to three-eighths of an inch. You can get it at a druggist's for from ten to twenty cents. The length may be from twenty to thirty inches.

To make the darts, get common pins of a good size, and some coarse colored worsted. With the worsted make six loops, beginning half-way down the pin, letting the loops be long enough to project about three-quarters of an inch beyond the head of the pin.

Now with linen or silk thread wind around the worsted tightly, beginning just under the head of the pin, and going downward until the worsted is entirely covered; wind so that there will be a taper toward the lower end. Then tie the thread fast.

The loops that project above the pin head you must now cut square with scissors, which will leave the dart with a bunch of worsted as its head, and this will make it fly straight.

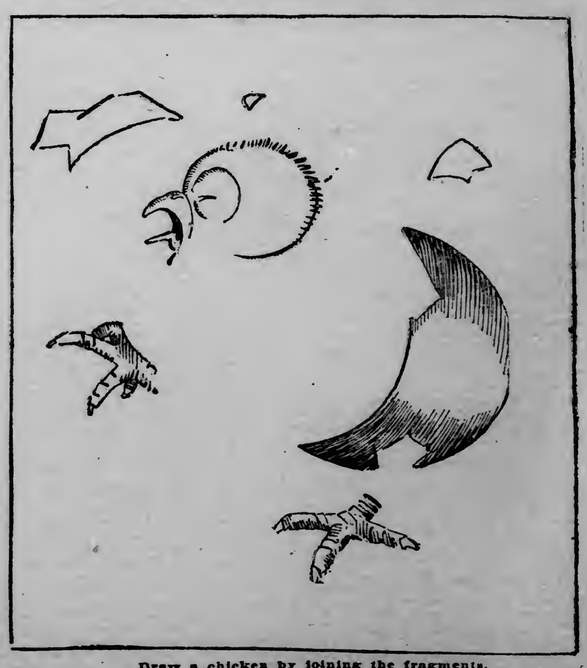
Now for a target. Use a piece of soft pine board, perfectly smooth, and let it be about seven and a half inches square, and half an inch thick.

Exactly in the centre of the board draw a circle three-quarters of an inch in diameter, and blacken it; this is to be the bull's-eye. Around this draw five rings at equal distances from each other, so that the outer ring will be near the edge of the board. A pair of dividers with a pencil in one end will do to draw rings with.

Number the bull's-eye 100, and the rings 50, 35, 25, 10 and 5, respectively. Make any number of points you please for the game, but 500 is a good number.

With twelve darts four players may take part, each having three darts of a certain color. A dart is put into the gun, and a quick, hard puff of breath sends it flying.

FOUR POINT DRAWING PUZZLE.



Draw a chicken by joining the fragments.

THE MILLS CLOSE

Head of Lakes Flour Manufacturers Are Shutting Down.

Rates Prevent Them From Competing With the East.

The Duluth-Superior Milling company has closed its mills at the head of the lakes because the rates on flour to Buffalo will not permit of competition with the Buffalo millers, the rate on wheat being much smaller.

The Commander mill will be closed down some time early next week, it is said.

Thirteen cents a hundred pounds is the lake rate for handling and transportation to Buffalo on flour from Duluth. The rate on wheat is 2 cents a bushel, or about 3 1-3 cents a hundred pounds for wheat.

The Pillsbury-Washburn company, the Washburn-Crosby company and the Consolidated Milling company of Minneapolis, besides several smaller milling concerns, closed their mills Thursday night, because of the discrimination of the carriers in favor of the Buffalo millers.

The millers of Minneapolis met Thursday night and decided to close their plants until rates were properly adjusted, upon learning from Duluth that another big consignment of wheat had been contracted for shipment to Buffalo at 2 cents a bushel.

About a million bushels of wheat had been contracted for shipment before that time from Duluth to Buffalo, but no action was taken by the millers before.

There may be other causes which militate to influence the millers to close their works, and these are the increased price of wheat and the dropping off of the price of feed.

The primary cause, however, is the rate. The flour that is shipped to Buffalo at a cost of 13 cents a hundred has to compete with flour at Buffalo made of wheat that is shipped from Duluth at 2 cents a bushel. About four and one-half bushels of wheat are necessary to make one barrel of flour which is 196 pounds. This makes practically 9 cents for the wheat as against 26 cents for the flour, in like quantities, giving the Buffalo miller the difference, a large one.

All the lake transportation lines asserted this noon that the rate was 13 cents from Duluth to Buffalo, though in Minneapolis it is asserted that the rate is 3 cents a hundred.

Of the 13 cent charge, 3 cents is for handling and the 10 cents is the rate figured in considering discriminating rates, for that is what the vessel gets. The rate means that it actually costs 20 cents a barrel for flour as against 9 cents for wheat, a difference of 11 cents in favor of the Buffalo millers.

The millers point out that under the rates in vogue, vessels get 20 cents for carrying 200 pounds of flour and only 9 cents for carrying 270 pounds of wheat, a proportion that is believed to be entirely out of line.

As an illustration of present conditions the business done in Duluth yesterday may be taken. About 100,000 bushels of wheat had been sold yesterday morning to go to London. This wheat can move from Duluth via Montreal and Quebec at a rate of 11 cents per bushel, which is equal to 18 3-10 cents per 100 pounds. The lowest possible rate obtainable on flour from Duluth to London is 25½ cents per 100 pounds. Naturally there is demand for wheat and little demand for flour.

The Duluth and Minneapolis millers will work for a rate which will enable them to compete on betters terms with the flour made abroad from this wheat.

The effect of the closing of the mills caused a general advance in flour prices. At Minneapolis there was a moderate advance of 10 cents a barrel, and in Chicago the prices of Minneapolis brands were advanced 10 to 15 cents, other millers coming into line as well. If the mills reopen shortly, no material advances may be expected, but any long closing would mean considerably higher prices.

CARBOLIC ACID ENDS HER LIFE

Mrs. Laundergan Carefully Plans Death and Is Successful.

Weary of life at nearly 70 years of age and mentally deranged, Mrs. M. Laundergan committed suicide today by drinking a large dose of carbolic acid.

She was at the home of James Dunn, in the rear of 322 West Second street, at the time, and carefully planned her death. She drank down the deadly acid when others were out of the room and then hiding the bottle she retired to her room and went to bed.

The odor of the carbolic acid through the house caused an investigation and Mrs. Laundergan was found in an unconscious condition, from which the physicians could not wake her.

She lived about an hour after drinking the dose, and then passed away with apparently very little pain.

Mrs. Laundergan is well known throughout the city, especially to those that were here twenty or thirty years ago.

The body was removed to the undertaking rooms of Durkan & Crawford and arrangements for the funeral will be announced later.

Hopes to Get It.

Capt. Cartland, of the steamer Estelle, is not hopeless of securing the contract for the canal ferry in spite of the fact that the board of public works has recommended the Carrington. He says that the Estelle has carried in the past year more than 500,000 people and has saved three lives and that ought to recommend her. He claims that she will be docked and put in good shape and that she is naturally looking badly now for she has been running all winter. A petition is being circulated by some of the Park Point residents asking that the Estelle get the contract.

OCEAN STEAMSHIPS.

Cherbourg—Arrived: Koenigen Luise, from New York. Queenstown—Arrived: Umbria, New York. Boulogne—Arrived: Ketterdam, from New York. New York—Arrived: Philadelphia, from Southampton. The steamer Etruria from Liverpool was reported 35 miles east of Nantucket lightship at 9 a. m., Saturday.

CRACKSMEN SUCCESSFUL.

Emporia, Kan., April 18.—Cracksmen wrecked the vault and safe of the Allen State bank at Allen, a small town ten miles north of here early today and escaped with $700. The building also was badly damaged by the explosion. At Admire another small town a few miles east of Allen, the postoffice was broken into, and a small amount of money taken.

SETTLEMENT NOT REACHED

Freight Handlers' Strike Officially Declared—Union Men as Police.

Officers of the Freight Handlers' union deny that their organization sent a tractors suing a for settlement of the committee to the freight handling constrike.

They say that a committee which waited on the contractors yesterday simply notified them that unless the demand of 40 cents an hour weer granted without further delay the union would declare an official strike, which up to this time has not been declared.

The contractors announced that they could not consider the 40-cent proposition and the committee withdrew. Later the union declared the strike on officially, and today it is given out from strike headquarters that any proposition tending toward a settlement of the trouble must come from the contractors themselves.

It is also the announced intention of the union to preserve the best of order during the strike, and with this object in view three members of the organization have been sworn in as special police officers and detailed for duty on the docks, where trouble between union and non-union freight handlers has been threatened from time to time.

An officer of the union, in speaking of this action, said that it would be difficult for the strike headquarters to control the actions of 300 or more members, some of whom might feel a little quarrelsome a times, and in putting on the union men as special police the union was guided by an impression that members of their own union could do more with possible belligerent members than outsiders.

HOWARD ON THE STAND

Denies Positively All Connection With the Goebel Murder.

Frankfort, Ky., April 18.—James Howard was called as the first witness for the defense in his trial today for the murder of Governor William Goebel. He testified to arriving here shortly before the shooting of Goebel on January 30. He repeated his former testimony that he was in the Board of Trade hotel when he heard of the shooting and that he had not previously that day visited the state house grounds. He denied that he knew either Taylor, Culton or Goebel. The witness also denied emphatically that he ever saw Henry Youtsey until he met him in jail after their arrest and he denied positively and emphatically that he ever received a letter from Governor W. S. Taylor or did any of the things to which Youtsey testified.

Indianapolis, April 18.—W. S. Taylor, ex-governor of Kentucky, who lives in this city, against whom a great deal of the evidence in the trial of James B. Howard at Frankfort, Ky., for the murder of Governor Goebel is directed, says in an interview that so far as he remembered, he never met Howard and did not know him while he was governor of Kentucky. He also says that he does not, so far as he knows at present, know Frank Cecil, who gave evidence Wednesday, charging him with being responsible for the murder of Goebel. He also says that he did know Henry Youtsey but not intimately and that he did not even know what position Youtsey occupied around the state house and never conferred with him on any important matter. Mr. Taylor denies ever having dictated any letter to Howard. Taylor says he does not fear any plans to kidnap him.

MINERS RETURN TO WORK.

St. Paul, April 18.—A. Calumet, Mich., special to the Dispatch says: The striking trimmers at the North Kearsarge branch of the Osceola consolidated mine, returned to work this morning. The management granted an increase of $4 in pay.

MAKE IT OVER.

Change of Diet Will Build an Entire New Body.

People can be entirely made over by a scientific course of food and drink. Even old, chronic diseases and hereditary ailments are eliminated by the wonderful processes of reconstruction under modern methods of feeling.

An illustration is worth attention. A lady writes: "I feel this letter will exceed all reasonable bounds, but how can I be brief when I have so much to tell. First about myself. I inherited nervous headaches and half invalid condition. I had to give up tea and coffee, but some months ago a friend insisted that I start on Postum Food Coffee and Grape-Nuts breakfast food.

"I prepared the coffee myself, carefully according to directions on the package, and used good cream. The first cup seemed the most delicious and satisfying drink I had ever tasted. I drained it and filled it again; I was impressed with the idea that it was just what my starved nerves demanded. So I used Postum and Grape-Nuts with good rich cream. Now for about four weeks I have been entirely free from headaches and nervousness, and am feeling unusually strong and well. There has also been a marked change in my appearance. I am 47 years old and my hair is very white, but the haggard, care-worn look is entirely gone from my face, my cheeks and body have filled out, the face shows a fine color, flesh firm and smooth, eyes clear and lips red My friends comment on the change and say I look fifteen years younger. They are incredulous when I tell them that skillful feeding on scientific food like Grape-Nuts and Postum Food Coffee has wrought the change.

"Now, as to my son, 26 years old, who has been afflicted with epilepsy from infancy. I hardly dare tell the facts, but he is here in the body to prove them. He has had the best treatment in this country, all without perceptible benefit. His memory was gradually growing weaker. At the time I started on Postum and Grape-Nuts he started also, and the change in him has been so wonderful that I can hardly describe it. Now he carries himself erect instead of in his former careless way; his eyes are clear and bright, and best of all, his memory is growing stronger and stronger every day, until I am fairly overcome with astonishment. He shows a decision of character quite unusual and has lately expressed a strong desire to study. I dare not say what hopes his improvement has raised.

"It is perfectly evident that bodies and brains can be rebuilt by skillful feeding, and that means Postum Food Coffee and Grape-Nuts." Name given by Postum company, Battle Creek, Mich.

THOSE WHO HAVE DIED

New York, April 18.—The death of Mgr. Sales Soto, bishop of Huarez, at Lima, Peru, is announced in a dispatch to the Herald from that city. Bishop Soto was one of the most distinguished of the Peruvian clergy.

San Francisco, April 18.—Dr. Matthew Gardner, chief surgeon of the Southern Pacific company, died this morning at the railroad hospital in this city, as the result of an operation for appendicitis attended with complications.

ANXIOUSLY AWAITING

Return of Indictments By Jefferson City Grand Jury.

Jefferson City, April 18.—It is only a matter of conjecture as to who were indicted here by the grand jury last night in connection with legislative bribery charges. Sheriff Smith is out of the city and his return is watched with interest for he will serve the warrants. The grand jury will report late this afternoon and it is said that four more indictments will be rturned for bribery and these will probably be against state senators, two of whom live in St. Louis. These indictments will be in connection with the alum legislation. Judge Hazell today took under advisement the cases of Page and Hickox, who refused to state to the grand jury from whom they received bills of the denomination of $1000 and $500, until April 27, to which date he will adjourn court today. This adjournment is necessary to enable the judge to hold the Morgan county circuit court next week. Judge Hazell will only send the men named to jail for contempt as a last resort.

St. Louis, April 18.—"Lieut.-Governor Lee is absent from St. Louis now because he is physically unable to undergo the strain of testifying before the grand jury; he has undergone a terrible nervous strain in the last few months and must have rest," said Robert E. Lee, brother of the lieutenant governor. "I don't know his address in Chicago, but I have reasons to believe he is there and I will probably hear from him today. He is simply getting into condition to testify before the grand jury. He needs quiet for a week or so and he is going to get it. He will be in St. Louis to testify before the grand jury soon, probably Monday. I know that to be his intention."

The grand jury today resumed its investigation of the baking powder legislation charges, but several of the witnesses summoned did not appear.

Mrs. Lee, who arrived here yesterday, said, regarding her husband's absence:

"It was upon my advice that my husband went away. He is not in a condition to appear before the grand jury. I wish to deny that he is suffering from nervous prostration. He is suffering from an attack to which he is subject.

"When will Mr. Lee return?"

"I do not care to answer that question." Mrs. Lee replied. "He is not running away, however. There is no subpoena served upon him for the St. Louis grand jury. He is a sick man and is not in condition at present to take part in this affair. His physical condition rendered it necessary for him to go away."

LAKESIDERS UP AGAINST IT

Will Lose Big Cars While Superior Street Is Torn Up.

Once more the Lakesiders see themselves up against it.

Monday morning the improvement of East Superior street will begin and the street railway tracks will be torn up. The double track cars will have to be taken off then, for it will be impossible to run them over the necessarily unstable temporary track.

This means that not only will Lakeside people have to ride on the small cars, but the traffic will be interfered with to a considerable extent.

Naturally the Lakesiders view this with alarm and they have in course of circulation a petition on which will be presented to the Duluth-Superior Traction company asking that it construct a track up Twenty-first avenue east and run the Lakeside cars over that and the Fourth street line instead of via East Superior street.

Brownsville, Neb., April 18.—Three brick buildings occupied by Ritchey's general store, Kauffman's general store, Biographic printing office, Perkins' millinery store, postoffice, Llewellyn & Davis, hotel and opera house, were destroyed by fire today. Loss, $50,000.

BRIDGE WORKERS

Settle Strike With the American Bridge Company.

New York, April 18.—The strike of the iron workers against the American Bridge company was settled today at the conferences between representatives of the union from Albany, Buffalo, Pittsburg, Philadelphia, this city, President Buchanan, of the International Association of Bridge and Structural Iron Worker, and Superintendent Laughlin, of the American Bridge company. It is understood that the agreement provides that the men shall return to work on conditions that prevailed before the strike and continue to work under those conditions until May 1. Schedules of hours and wages for next wear are to be made between the locals and the bridge company in the different cities. In case of a failure to agree arbitration will be resorted to. One of the conferees said that he believed the iron workers would resume work next Tuesday.

DIED AT PROCTORKNOTT.

J. J. Hardy, Railroad Employe, Dies Suddenly.

J. J. Hardy, a resident of Proctorknott and a member of the Brotherhood of Railway Trainmen, died suddenly at Proctorknott early this afternoon.

Mr. Hardy was an employe of the Duluth, Missabe & Northern railway, and had been in Proctorknott but a few days, coming from Ely on April 15.

The cause of his death is unknown and a post-mortem examination will be held. Hardy had entered a saloon belonging to J. E. Koen at Proctorknott. He was sitting in a chair when he died. Death came without any warning.

The body was brought to M. J. Filiatrault's undertaking rooms in West Duluth, where it awaits the coroner. It is thought that death was due to heart disease.

The deceased was a brother of George Hardy, of Ely, and of Mrs. Harry Gurtin, of this city.

NOT THE MURDERER.

Man Arrested at Lake Nebagamon Not Louis Stitt.

The Italian captured at Lake Nebagamon, Wis., and brought here under the suspicion that he was Louis Stitt, the alleged murderer of Dominic Jilot at Hibbing, has been identified as Frank Tauletti.

He is at the central police station and will be held there until tomorrow, although the authorities are well convinced he is not the fugitive from Hibbing.

The identification was accomplished by the citizenship papers the man had upon his person, which described him as Frank Tauletti, a native of Italy.

Several Duluth Italians called at the station to converse with the prisoner, and they express the opinion that the man is not the person the authorities are looking for upon the charge of murder.

Officer Charles Burch, of Lake Nebagamon, captured the man yesterday as answering the description sent out with the notices of the escape of Stitt. He sent word to Sheriff Butchart, who left last night and returned with the man this morning.

Need of Expanding the Work In India.

Wilkesbarre, Pa., April 18.—At this morning's session of the national convention of the Young Women's Christian association, Mrs. T. S. Gladding, of Mt. Clair, N. J., presided. Mrs. Walter J. Clark, of India, spoke at the finance meeting and dwelt at length on the need of expanding the work in that far-off country. Miss Rutherford, of Athens, Ga., addressed the delegates on the activity of the association in the South. Miss Best, of Chicago, spoke encouragingly of the condition in that city. Miss Mary M. Falk, of Toledo, Ohio, and Mrs. J. W. Finney, of Detroit, stated that local work would be greatly hampered were it not for the aid rendered by the American committee.

Addresses were also made by Miss Anna Cassley, representing North and South Carolina, and Miss Howell, of the women's college at Baltimore. All the recommendations for city work were adopted. A resolution was reported from a special committee and adopted, calling for more harmonious relations between the international board and the American committee. Confidence was expressed in the American committee and the carrying out of further details was left to the members.

STEAMER DISABLED.

New York, April 18.—The French steamer Germania, which sailed on Thursday for Naples, was sighted off Highlands today, returning to port. St. Paul, April 18.—A Rochester, Minn., special to the Dispatch says: The First National bank and the general store of C. H. Russell & Son, in Eyota, was burned to the ground last night. The stock, fixtures and buildings were entirely consumed. Insurance, $7500. This was the oldest firm in business in the village. The cause of the conflagration is unknown.

PEOPLE EXCITED

Hammond, Ind., April 18.—Hammond was greatly stirred today over the message of Governor Durbin, ordering that pool selling at Lakeside be stopped. It is said that the governor will send the state militia here if the police and sheriff fail to cope successfully with the situation. At noon it was not known just what would be done when the track opened. The mayor and city council last Monday licensed the Lakeside people to operate racing at $200 a day during the twelve days meet and $2400 was paid into the city treasury.

Nashwauk.

Nashwauk, April 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—The Great Northern Railway company has instituted regular train service on the Nashwauk branch, and merchants and other shippers are now able to have their goods billed direct to Nashwauk instead of toting from Hibbing. This is a great relief to the citizens, and will result in a large increase in the number of families, as household goods can more easily be taken in and the cost of living will be considerably reduced.

The La Rue mine struck ore in its first shaft at a depth of about 40 feet and will have ore for shipment as soon as a track is completed to the stock pile. The ore runs about 60 per cent.

Supt. C. E. Walton has been appointed superintendent of the La Rue, as well, but Capt. Mudge, of the Hawkins has been promoted to the position of assistant superintendent of the La Rue, and will be in direct charge.

C. S. Barnes, of Negaunee, Mich., is now in charge of the Nashwauk station and telegraphic communication has been established with the outside world.

The village council, three out of five of whom are saloon men, have decided to organize a little trust of their own and have refused to grant saloon licenses in excess of seven now running. This is creating quite a storm, not only displeasing the rejected applicants, but the citizens as well, who believe that as long as saloons are to be licensed a dozen are no worse than seven, and as the village needs all available funds for improvements, all eligible applicants should be given license.

Dr. R. J. Small, formerly of Two Harbors, has bought Dr. Rood's interest in the hospital here, and is now located here with his family. He is building a residence and enlarging the hospital.

Walker.

Walker, April 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—A. G. Bernard, of Cass Lake, was in the city Wednesday and stated in conversation that there were absolutely nothing in the rumors that have been floating around the past few days to the effect that the land office question might be reopened. He asserts that neither President Roosevelt nor the officials of the interior department will give any consideration to the late protests from Bemidji and Duluth, and says he has information from Washington to justify him in making this assertion. Owing to the illness of Mr. Jones, of Long Prairie, who had been selected as register of the new land office, it is not improbable that Mr. Bernard may receive that appointment. According to the Little Falls Transcript, Congressman Buckman has just received positive assurance from Washington that there was no hitch or delay in any of the plans for the new district, and that the decision of the department, approved by the president, will be final. The department is going ahead with the necessary formalities, and the existing land offices have been notified to announce no hearing coming after July 1, involving any lands in the new district.

Quite a large party of Cass Lake citizens came down Wednesday morning to appear before the board of county commissioners, in session this week in Walker, with grievances of various natures. Messrs. Hartley and Smith, of the Cass Lake Land company, sought an abatement of taxes on lands held by the company. Their request was denied. Mr. Stanton, attorney, and others have a fight on their hands in regard to changing the boundaries of a school district.

Mr. Pederson, superintendent of the new court house work, has returned to his home in West Superior, and some of the girls are mourning.

The county commissioners have been holding a meeting in Walker this week and transacted a large amount of business.

Mr. Yates, who is to open a hardware store in town, arrived last Saturday with a carload of household goods and horse and cow. He will occupy Mrs. Dyer's house as soon as the present tenant, Mr. Foster, moves out, which will be in a couple of weeks. Mr Yates' son came up with him.

The squaws on the reservation are now busy making maple sugar.

William Pennar, of the Pillager Post, who has been spending several days in Walker and Bemidji left for home Wednesday morning.

Mrs. Wilcox has returned from a visit to her parents in St. Paul.

Mr. Hollenbeck, manager for A. L. Cole & Co., has rented the house adjoining that in which George Crow lives and expects to bring his family up from Brainerd in a short time.

H. Paddock, of Mankato, is in Walker inspecting a large quantity of land bought last fall by a Mankato syndicate and which it is intended to sell to actual settlers. Mr. Paddock and Bank Cashier Kneeland started out Sunday morning for a tramp over the land. They did not lose themselves—but they reached home at midnight very tired.

Judge McClehahan passed through Walker Wednesday en route from Bemidji for Brainerd.

GROWING LENGTHWISE

You want the children to grow, but not all lengthwise. When they start that way Scott's Emulsion will help them to grow right—with due plumpness and outward proportion, and with inward vigor and good spirits.

The Emulsion increases digestive power and strengthens the vital organs to get the best and make the most out of all the other food. It gives a kind of help that every growing child ought to have.

We'll send you a sample free upon request.

The Test of Pure Silver

In England the official symbol of the sterling quality of silver is the Hall-mark. In America its place is taken by the trade-mark; this is even better than the English Hall-mark, for it vouches not only for the fineness of the silver, but for its artistic design and capable workmanship. All responsible jewelers are glad to point to this trade-mark on the silver they show to their best customers.

Mr. Garrot, editor of the Eveleth Mining

Virginia.

Virginia, April 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—At the council meeting Tuesday evening not a great deal of business was transacted, but what there was was of great importance to many. These many were those who were appointed to several positions last year. Their terms had just expired and applications for their jobs were coming in pretty thick. But upon looking up the new law, under which Virginia is being run, City Attorney Palmer gave it out that as the elective city officers held over until the next general election under the new law, the appointments made last year could also be made good. Those now holding various city positions appointive, are: P. H. Gannon, street commissioner; Edward Johnson, fire clerk; Dr. Miller, health officer; A. F. Dupuore, assessor. The only change in the city machinery at all was the designating of the Virginian as the official city paper, that honor and emoluments having gone to the Enterprise for the past nine years.

The two-year-old baby girl of Mr. and Mrs. William Brennan died at the family home on Mesaba avenue Tuesday, of spinal meningitis, the funeral being held Thursday from the Catholic church, and was very largely attended.

Three Swedish lumberjacks got into a bad scrap Saturday and it came within an ace of resulting in the death of one and years of sorrow for the other two. They started in for a good old jag and before they had accomplished their deigns they become ugly. They had been partaking of the rain and Peerless tobacco mixture. The fracas happened just on the outside of the Northwestern limits of the city. Before the two finished with their "friend" he resembled a stuck hog. Passerby came across the man and had passed the assailants. The police were notified and by their clever work the two assaulters were landed in the city jail, and the one who received the licking, was taken to Lenroot's hospital, where he came near making a mark for himself by being the first corpse therein, as the hospital was but recently opened. However, lucky for the two, he survived and is getting along pretty well. Everything has been fixed up now and business going on just as though nothing had happened.

Sunday morning at 4 o'clock as August Walberg, the saloonkeeper, was standing behind his bar and talking to a few friends on the other side of the bar, a terrific crash was heard in the front of the building and upon examination it was found that in the center of both the plate glass fronts of the building was a large hole, and on the floor near the east window lay an empty whisky bottle which did the damage and told the story. Mr. Walberg immediately looked out of the door and up the street, but not a soul was in sight. This is the second occurrence of the kind in the past two weeks.

Adolph Belanger, formerly chief of police here, but who has filled that position at Chisholm the past two years, has decided to move back to Virginia with his family, and this he will do as soon as Mrs. Belanger is able to leave the sanitarium at Hudson, Wis.

John Dow, who is floating stock in the Anglo-Saxon gold mining proposition in Colorado, is again in the city and is interesting many of our citizens in his prospects, which are, upon investigation, found to be just what he represents for them.

W. G. Pliess is conducting a shooting gallery on the vacant lot between Pigott's meat market and Oberg's grocery store. He has taken out a season's license.

The Ladies of the Maccabees will give a basket social at their lodge rooms Monday evening next.

William Henderson, who has held the position as fireman at the Virginia Light and Water company plant here the past year, has resigned his place, and he and his family will shortly move back to their farm at Dakota.

Wallace McGill, representing R. L. Polk & Co., the publishers, has been here the past two weeks getting together material for the range directory for 1903-4.

A. N. Slaw has gone to Duluth to work in one of the sawmills there.

J. B. Sattler, representing the Sattler Liquor company, was in the city Wednesday.

Negaunee

Negaunee, April 18.—(Special to The Herald.)—Tomorrow the local lodge of the Sons of St. George will attend service at the Mitchell Methodist church in a body, forming in a procession at their hall on Iron street and marching to the church in regalia, headed by the Negaunee city band. Rev. Gilchriese has prepared a special sermon for the occasion.

Will Long has taken a position as time keeper at the Mary Charlotte mine.

Con Driscoll is superintending the installation of an ore crusher for the Oliver Mining company at Escanaba.

Harry Moyer, the cigar manufacturer, has moved his outfit to Calumet, where he will enter in partnership with another cigar maker.

Prof. S. Mustonen and R. Bastian, both of Calumet, were in town Saturday.

George Legault, station agent at Nadeau, spent Easter with his parents.

At a meeting of the Ishpeming Livery company, in which many Negaunee people are interested, last Saturday night, John Stickney, a well known liveryman, was elected manager.

The Swedish and Finish Furniture & Hardware company, with John Lindbom as manager, opened for business on Monday.

From present appearances Negaunee will be well represented on the diamond the coming season.

Josiah Collins, who has been in the undertaking business here for some time, left Wednesday for Calumet to take charge of the undertaking department, which is connected with Sivert Olson's furniture store.

Leslie Maitland came down from the mining school Saturday, to spend Easter with his parents.

Robert Northey and Miss Bessie Tonkin, formerly of this city and well known here, were married in Ishpeming last Wednesday night.

Austin O'Leary, a student in the University of Michigan, is in the city visiting his parents.

Miss Carrie Beyers returned to her home in Marquette Sunday night after spending a week in the city visiting friends and relatives.

Stephen Slaymaker, the well known boy soprano singer and who is particulary well known here, on account of his numerous appearances in the various churches, whose home is in Beloit, Wis., but who has made his home in Ishpeming for some time, in order to have his voice cultivated under the direction of Miss Amy Peavy, instructress of music in the Ishpeming high school, accidently shot himself Saturday, while fooling with a revolver, which somehow came into his possession. At present the details of the affair are not known, for he was alone at the time of the shooting and he has not yet been in a condition to give a reliable account of the accident. At this writing the lad's condition is very bad, but there are some hopes for recovery, if peritionitis does not set in.

PLAYS AT THE DULUTH HOUSES

"York State Folks" and "The Telephone Girl" at the Lyceum—"The Octoroons" and "A Soldier of the Empire" at the Metropolitan.

"York State Folks," one of the finest of rural dramas, will be seen at the Lyceum Tuesday and Wednesday evenings of next week with a matinee Wednesday. "York State Folks" was presented here last season, when in its infancy, and it will be remmbered by all who saw it at that time. Since its last visit "York State Folks" has grown to be the greatest success in its line. Critics, everywhere it has been offered, have been enthusiastic in its praise. The theaters have been too small to hold the people, and the "standing room only" sign has been used as frequently by "York State Folks" as by any other attraction on the road.

As a play it is unrivalled in the peculiar field it occupies. There are many rural plays, but "York State Folks" is unexcelled; it is the play pure and simple. And it is unlike any other ever seen, in that it possesses not that which has ever been supposed to be a prime factor of any and all plays—a villain. Neither is there the heretofore inevitable wronged maiden. There are no lost wills, mortgages or shooting affairs. It is a welcome departure from the old beaten path of all things dramatic.

The company is the original, including James Lackaye as Simon Peter Martin, the czar of the village, the "man who carries his worst side out." Jay L. Royce as Lyron Cooper, the old organist; Lem Dunbar, the horse trader, is impersonated by Ernest Lamson; Mrs. Sidman will again be seen as the neighbor's girl: Osborne Searle as the city music teacher; Harry Jackson and Arthur Gregory as the lazy workmen about the shop; Randolph Currie, Marie Falls, Harry Crosby, the clever children, and all the others who assisted in making "York State Folks" a success on its orighal presentation.

The scenic effects and stage accessories are practically new this season, the scenery being the work of Arthur Voegtlin, and it is said to be the best work this clever artist has turned out.

THE TELEPHONE GIRL.

Manager Marshall has arranged for the appearance here at the Lyceum next Friday and Saturday of that breezy musical comedy, "The Telephone Girl," one of the most successful of the many New York Casino successes. All of the prominent cities of the country have been played during the past six seasons, beginning with New York at the Casino, where it enjoyed a most phenomenal run of over 250 nights, accorded it a most enthusiastic reception, and it seems not to have surrendered one jot of its popularity.

"The Telephone Girl" is in two acts. Gustave Kerker's tuneful melodies pervade them and the book, by Hugh Morton, who, in collaboration with Mr. Kerker, is responsible for "The Lady Slavey," "In Gay New York," "The Belle of New York" and numerous other highly successful Casino productions, is bright and witty.

SUMMER OPERA.

The plans for the summer opera season at the Lyceum are rapidly shaping themselves. The opening opera will be Millocker's melodrama military comic opera, "The Black Hussar." Some of the engagements for the Northwestern opera company have been announced. The most important is Miss Eleanor Jenkins, prima donna, who has achieved success in Europe with the D'Oyley Carte companies and in this country with leading opera companies. She has a large following and will certainly be welcomed with warmth.

JAMES LACKAGE,
As Simon Peter Martin In "York State Folks."

AT THE METROPOLITAN.

Ferris Comedians to Present Two Strong Plays.

The Ferris comedians will produce at the Metropolitan for the last time tonight the costume play, "A Celebrated Case."

Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday matinee and night a presentation of that old and popular drama, "The Octoroon," will be given. The play is said to be superior to "Uncle Tom's Cabin," and is much of the same order, dealing with the slaves in the South during the days of slavery. Thursday, Friday and Saturday matinee and night, Howard Wall's success, "A Soldier of the Empire," will be presented. This will be one of the best scenic and costume dramatic performance and an indoor circus which will display marvelous feats of sensationalism and specialty acts of all kinds. The vaudeville will be given between the acts of the play, and the circus features after the regular performance is over. The week set aside for this big event will be announced in a few days.

MRS. CHARLES A. DOREMUS

Mrs. Charles E. A. Doremus' new play, "The Duchess of Devonshire," a romantic comedy in four acts, was presented for the first time in New Haven, Conn., last week. The scenes of the play are laid in England late in the seventeenth century, and the rather elaborate settings and costumes are of historical models.

MISS WYNNE MATHISON AS ROSALIND

Miss Mathison, the actress, will appear as Rosalind in an out-of-door performance of "As You Like It" for the benefit of a New York kindergarten.

plays that this company has yet attempted.

The specialties will embrace the famous Aerial Shams, who scored such a big hit with the Metropolitan patrons a short time ago, and who have been re-engaged. There has also been engaged "Rosaire," the great European sensation, who is claimed to be the highest salaried vaudeville artist in America.

In addition to the regular matinee performance Wednesday afternoon, there will be quite a novelty in the way of a bread exhibition, to be given upon the stage immediately after the close of the show. There will be a prize of $10 in gold given to the person bringing the best baked loaf of bread. Everybody entering the contest should tag their name to their loaf, and after the audience has viewed the exhibit, two expert bakers will decide the winner, after which all the bread will be donated to charity and the poor. The contest is looked forward to with much interest.

A big feautre soon to be given is an indoor vaudeville circus in addition to the regular show. Preparations are going on to make this one of the greatest events that has ever taken place in any theater, combining as it will a

GOSSIP OF THE RIALTO.

New York to See Ezra Kendall's New Piece.

New York, April 18.—Ezra Kendall is to be seen as a star on Broadway in about a month. He has been doing well on the road in "The Vinegar Buyer," but ever since his tour started Liebler & Co. have been making every effort to get some time for him in this city, believing that the experiment will be more than justified. Arrangements have been completed with Mr. Frohman whereby Kendall is to appear at either the Criterion or the Savoy theater according as to how arrangements can best be made with shows already booked for these houses. Within a week Kendall received a flattering offer for his appearance at Weber & Fields, after the stock company goes on the road, but this he vetoed in a letter to his managers, in which he said: "This play may be no graham gem, but it's too good for a smoke house, even with the smoke cut off." In deference to his wishes negotiations with Weber & Field were broken off and the contract signed with Frohman.

Rehearsals for the all-star production of "Romeo and Juliet" began on Monday morning under the direction of Eugene Presbrey. In order that there should be no delay Miss Eleanor Robson closed her tour in "Audrey" at New Orleans and with her company made the jump direct to New York, a proceeding which cost some fourteen hundred dollars in railroad fares alone. Meanwhile A. Toxin Worm has been getting in his fine work for the show in Chicago. He it was who offered to Professor Oscar L. Triggs, who holds down the chair of literature and languages at the Chicago university, the sum of seven hundred dollars a week for six weeks to lecture on "Romeo and Juliet" ahead of the company. The professor was certainly tempted, for his first response was half an acceptance, but he has finally written the following letter to the management: "My engagements for the next six months are such as to prevent my acceptance of your very courteous offer conveyed in your letter of April 4. If you had written to me earlier I might have adjusted my own work to this engagement. I regret my inability at this time to take advantage of this opportunity, for the plan proposed seems to me to be an excellent one. I would regard it, from my point of view, as an educational opporunity. It would gratify me to be able to present my views on drama, on Shakespeare, and on this particular play, to audiences that would gather together from a serious interest in the drama itself. This would be a form of "University Extension" not hitherto tried, and which should be attended with good educational results—such as I would desire and such also as I assume you would desire.

"Please accept my thanks for your kind offer, and believe me, Yours very truly,

"OSCAR L. TRIGGS."

If Professor Triggs could have read the correspondence that took place between Mr. Worm and George Tyler, when the latter was informed of the offer, he would certainly wonder what kind of nerve tonic Worm has been in the habit of using.

Wilbur Bates, under whose able direction the public generally is kept informed of the progress of the Klaw & Erlanger enterprises, is proudly resting on his laurels as a prophet. When "Ben Hur" was playing to some $18,000 a week at the Broadway Theater, during the first month of its career, Bates offered to wager Erlanger a modest sum that four years later the play would take in at least $25,000 a week while playing one-week stands. The returns made by the treasurer of the show, while in Toledo, indicate that the receipts there for one week reached $25,000, and Bates having collected his bet, is happy.

Over on Third avenue they have a melo-drama called "The Little Outcast," which, besides being filled with all the things dear to the lovers of that from of dramatic art, has one feature which has made it a howling success. The hero is accused of a safe robbery, which has been performed by a bad father, and a still worse villian. The bad father has a good son, however, who is passionately devoted to the hero in hard luck. While tracking the real criminals the son hits upon a happy suggestion, and produces a phonograph, into which the unconscious evildoers promptly tell the stories of their lives. When the crank is turned in the presence of the police the house simply gets up and howls with joy.

The likeness of the titles "Pretty Peggy" and "Peggy From Paris," the one a drama, being played by Grace George, and the other, a musical comedy, written by George Ade, has caused some confusion. The other night a man of somewhat rustic appearance came out of the Herald Square Theater, where Miss George is appearing, and stood in the lobby. There he was joined by a friend who had tarried to get his coat from a lock room. "Well," queried the friend, "what do you think of it?" "Rottenest musical comedy I ever saw," was the reply. "Only one song in the whole business, and not a girl in the chorus!"

"Hm" returned the other, evidently looking about for some point on which to base a dissenting opinion. "I thought the prima donna was kind—a funny—didn't you?"

According to the reports from Utica, the new play of the Four Cohans has met with much success. It is a musical etravaganza entitled, "Running for Office," and George M. Cohen has written both the words and music. The scene is laid in Tigersville, Vt., and the four leading characters are John Tiger, a prohibition candidate, his wife and daughter, and Augustus White, a football player. In the last act is a political torch-light parade, which brought down the house. The play will be seen here on April 27, at the Fourteenth Street Theater.

The contract was signed last week between Liebler & Co. and "Ned" Harrigan, whereby the latter's new play is to be given an indefinite run in this city. In the cast, besides Mr. Harrigan, who will, of course, play the leading role, will be seen Miss Jenny Yeamans, Mrs. Annie Yeamans, Dan Collier and John G. Sparks. The company, all told, will number nearly 100, but these are all of the old Harrigan players who will be seen.

Some idea of the size of the new Druary Lane Theater can be had from the fact that the two proscenium trusses are 80 feet long and weight thirty tons each. So ponderous are they that Oscar Hammerstein can find no truckman to move them from the pier at West Twenty-seventh street to the theater in Thirty-fourth street, west of Eighth avenue. They have been there three weeks, and meanwhile work on the stage part of the theater is delayed. Truckmen say that 12 horses would be required to haul one of the beams, and that they could not make the turn off the pier without getting stuck or breaking the strongest truck built. This difficulty may be avoided by putting them on a float and moving them down to the Thirty-fifth street pier to make a straight haul to the rear of the theater.

Miss Elsie De Wolfe played an April fool joke on her friends and certain members of her company, or at least they think it was, although she denies that there was any such intention in her mind. However, she picked out April 1 to give a midnight supper to them at her Irving Place home, with vision of lobster, rabbits and other dainties in their minds, their amazement was changed to consternation when they discovered the table set forth in the simplest style. The center piece waas built of string vegetables, lettuce, radishes and cucumbers, and as course after course was served without any suggestion of lobster or rabbits the joke began to dawn on the guests. Miss De Wolfe was merely giving them an object lesson in her most pronounced fad, vegetarianism. The piece de resistance was a dish invented by her chef at Versailles, egg croquettes, with rice and tomato, but each course offered vegetables in some shape or form. The ices were served in small vegetable forms, cabbage alone being omitted from the list, and the favors were baskets of lettuce leaves filled with sweets in the form of small new potatoes, made from almost paste.

Miss Julia Marlowe will not accept liberal offers made to her to play in Australia the coming summer, preferring to rest in preparation for her production of H. V. Esmond's play, "Fools of Nature," which will go in September.

"Shipp & Co., Wall street," is the name of the next attraction to be shown at the Garrick. It is an original comedy of New York life, by Henry J. W. Dam, with its scenes laid in Wall street and on Fifth avenue. It will be produced by Manager Frank McKee at the Garrick early in May, immediately after the conclusion of the run of "Mice and Men." The leading role in the piece was specially written for Mr. Maclyn Arbuckle, and Charles Cherry has been engaged to create one of the other important roles.

The the judgment of J. M. Barrie in declaring that "Mrs. Wiggs, of the Cabbage patch," was one of the very best books produced on this side of the water in years and would make an admirable comedy, has been proven by the constantly increasing desire among church and literary societies to produce their own version. "I have received at least ten letters," said George Tyler yesterday, "asking permission to let the country people play it on their own account. It is very flattering to know that Mrs. Wiggs has so many friends, but sad experience has taught me that the thing cannot be. Once we give permission for a production of 'The Christian' in this manner in a place in Nebraska, and feeling confident that where the people were so fond of it we ought to do more than well, we booked that town for 'The Christian' No. 2 company. The box office showed that the receipts were just $120, and the local manager informed us that the company which played 'The Christian' before us was so rotten that nobody in the town ever wanted to see that show again."

Mrs. Lionel Lawrence last week filed suit for an absolute divorce from her husband, the former stage manager of the New York theater when the Sires managed it. Mrs. Lawrence names as co-respondent Lillian Bond, the vaudeville singer. The Lawrences were married about two years ago in romantic fashion. They were with some friends in a rathskeller about midnight when the subject of matrimony came up, and a companion laughingly asked Lawrence why he did not wed the then Miss Winfield. Lawrence expressed a willingness, and Miss Winfield did not demur. As a result a neighboring flat was used and Dr. Houghton, of the Little Church Around the Corner, being summoned the couple were wedded about 2 o'clock in the morning. From then on Mrs. Lawrence avers in her petition her troubles began. The divorce proceedings are the result.

The latest sensational melodramatic success, "The Worst Woman in London," now running at the Adelphi theater, London, has just been secured for this country by Fred Berger and R. G. Craerin, who signed contracts with Frank W. Sanger for the piece, and will give it an elaborate production in the fall.

Albert Hart, who has been identified with most of the Lederer productions of recent years, has been engaged by George W. Lederer to originate a leading comedy role in the company which will be headed by Miss Blanche Ring at the Knickerbocker theater this summer.

• • •

The heirs of the late Eugene Field announce that they have disposed of a comic opera written by Mr. Field, which he called "The Buccaneers." The piece will likely be produced in New York next season.

• • •

Jennie Yeamans is recovering slowly from an operation for appendicitis that she underwent the other week at a private hospital in New York.

• • •

Lulu Glaser is touring the South in "Dolly Varden," and, judging by the enthusiastic praise that has been heaped upon her by the newspapers of that section, she is reaping a successful harvest.

• • •

Bartley Campbell's famous drama, "The White Slave," has passed into its majority and last Wednesday closed its twenty-first season on the road. An entire season has already been booked for the attraction next year.

• • •

Since "The Country Girl" was sent on tour the work of William Norris, the principal comedian of that organization, has been attracting no small amount of attention. Mr. Norris's performance is heralded by some of the critics in the Eastern cities where the piece has been seen as the best thing of its kind in the musical comedy field today. Quite a step, by the way, to the comedian of a musical comedy after a season in which he appeared as Pepe in the poetic tragedy "Francesca da Rimini," but it is only another illustration of Norris's versatility.

• • •

Frances Pemberton, who married a rich Philadelphian and retired from Joseph Jefferson's company, has been prevailed on to return to the stage for a brief period this spring and will support Mr. Jefferson on his tour until the season is brought to a close.

• • •

George Fleming, which is the nom de plume of Miss Constance Fletcher, a clever writer in London, will make the dramatization of "Lady Rose's Daughter." Miss Fletcher has been successful as a dramatist with her version of Kipling's "The Light That Failed," now a big success in London.

• • •

Alfred Capus is preparing to go to Russia in the interest of the French dramatists' societies in an endeavor to protect them against play pirates.

• • •

George H. Broadhurst is to dramadze the story, "The Garden of Lilies," in which the Shuberts will star Aubrey Boucicault.

• • •

Della Fox, who was featured in a revival of "The Wedding Day" in Philadelphia, was too ill to appear. Grace Cameron took her place on short notice and was well received. Miss Fox is said to be quite ill, and may not be able to appear for some time.

• • •

George Daly, the well-known vaudeville actor, while playing in Wilmington, Del., the other day, suddenly lost his mind, and has been removed to a private sanitarium near there.

• • •

Early next September Clyde Fitch's "The Girl and the Judge" is to be brought out in London. The title roles will be played there by Nina Boucicault and Frank Mills, the American actor.

• • •

Charles E. Evans celebrated his return to the stage last week in Buffalo, where as a joint star with Charles H. Hopper they were seen in a new farce called "There and Back." The piece is favorably spoken of in Buffalo and will likely be used by the pair for some time.

• • •

"The Silver Slipper," which ran for twenty weeks at the Broadway theater, is reported to be doing finely in the other large cities. It needs to, for its running expenses are more than $7000 a week—a pretty large risk for a traveling organization.

• • •

Fred Hallen and Mollie Fuller will start for San Francisco to play a short engagement. From there they go to Australia for a six months' tour under the management of the big vaudeville man out there—one Rickards. The two will appear in the sketches that have become familiar here.

• • •

Rehearsals of "Sunny Jim," Joe Hart's farcical play, have been begun. Hart does the stage management, but he will have to delegate his powers to some one else next week, as he himself resumes his tour with "Foxy Grandpa."

• • •

Edward E. Rice will be in St. Louis the coming summer, and will bring out there four of his old shows, beginning with poor old "Evangeline" and then "1492." He had an idea of getting a new libretto written to utilize the scenery and costumes of "King High Ball," that had a short run at the New York theater early in the season, but has given it up for the present.

• • •

Weber & Fields will be the first of the many New York theaters to close its season. Everything points to the organization making one of those phenomenal tours that last year brought in as much as $25,000 in a week on the road.

• • •

Miss Frances Gaunt has been engaged by Henry B. Harris for Miss Alice Fischer's company to replace Miss Lotta Linthicum in "Mrs. Jack."

• • •

It is doubtful if Miss Mary Mannering will have a new play next season, in the first place there is the difficulty of finding one, and then again "The Stubbornness of Geraldine" has been doing very well, with a very great part of the country still untouched. Mr. Hackett wills it this way.

FOOTLIGHT FLASHES.

Lillian Russell has been re-engaged for five years by Weber & Fields.

Helena Frederick, formerly prima donna of "The Emerald Isle," has been engaged to originate the title role of "The Wood Witch," a new comic opera by Albert Mildenberg, with libretto and lyrics by Willard Hilcomb, which will be produced during the latter part of May.

Maude Adams, who was a short time ago in London perfecting her arrangements for her next season, the exact details of which, however, have not yet transpired, has left that town for Egypt and the Holy Land, where she will stay until the middle of May, thereafter returning to London prior to starting for America.

Williams & Walker and their company will go to London, opening at the Shaftesbury theater the latter part of this month. George W. Lederer has arranged with Hartig & Seamon to supervise rehearsals of a new version of "In Dahomey" before the company sails. Mr. Lederer will have an interest in the London production.

Asked how he came to go on the stage, Kyrle Bellew once said: "Driven to desperation and actually starving in the streets of London, I chanced to read an advertisement calling for a 'light comedian.' In my woebegone condition I thought myself light enough for anything—applied for and secured the position. It proved the turning point of my career."

There is to be a prize cake walk in Paris, the prizes to be worth 12,000 francs. As Paris is loop the loop and cake walk mad at the present time, things look very interesting for all Americans who are on a visit to the gay capital. Almost everything is billed a la Americaine. The Harveys are doing a cake walk on the tight wire, and are making quite a hit.

Charles H. Yale's attractions for next season are: "The Way of the Transgressor," "The Men of Jimtown," "The London Bank Robbery," "The Daughter of the South," an entire new production of "The White Slave," two productions of "Uncle Tom's Cabin," besides entirely new productions of "The Evil Eye," "The Devil's Auction" and for Al. H. Wilson, in "A Prince of Tatters."

Kyrle Bellew, during his romantic career, has been miner, journalist, civil engineer, sign painter, herdsman and even bushman, as well as the best romantic actor on the English stage. His strange life has been full of contrasts. He has tested the heights of success and the depths of distress in many countries. He has been the companion of the present king of England and a beggar in far off Australia.

"The Tenderfoot," a music-play, was disclosed in Chicago last week. The "tenderfoot" is Professor Zachary Pettibone, a shrinking tutor from St. Johnsbury, Vt., whose travels in charge of a party of young ladies take him to the Texas border, where "tenderfeet" traditionally are the prey of cowboys and other rough-and-ready jokers. Richard Carle, the librettist, designed the part to fit his own personality, which is important in light of the fact that he is to be "starred" by the Dearborn theater management.

E. S. Willard will not return to America next season, having taken the St. James theater, London, where Miss Maud Hoffman will rejoin him in September as leading support in "The Cardinal." He will present also a new play being written for him by Stephen Phillips, author of "Plysses" and "Paolo and Francisca." He will also bring out two new plays by Alfred Capus, author of the original of "The Optimist," both in England and America, so that on his return here in 1905 he will not be seen at all in his present repertory.

More than a year ago Mrs. Fiske secured a one-act play by John Luther Long, the author of "Madame Butterfly," entitled "Dolce." There had been a great deal of competition for this play, but Mr. Long preferred that the character should be itnerpreted by Mrs. Fiske, and in consequence "Dolce" has been awaiting opportunity for production ever since. Such an opportunity has come in a performance for the benefit of the Animal Rescue league, in which Mrs. Fiske will take part at the Tremont theater, Boston, on Thursday afternoon of this week, when she will give "Dolce" its first representation. Special scenery has been provided and the play will be represented with as much care as if for a regular premiere. The character of Dolce, which Mrs. Fiske will play, is an Italian girl who has spent her girlhood in little Italy, New York, and who is introduced as a young woman of title and wealth in Florence some years later. There are but three characters in the play, which is longer than the usual one-act play, and which will show Mr. Long's talent in a new light.
